Boyne City bond issue passes 2 to 1

Boyne City voters overwhelmingly passed all three proposals which will now allow the city to bond up to $2.8 million for repairs to sewers, water mains and streets by more than a two to one margin.

Voters approved the first proposal, covering street improvements not to exceed $1,008,700 by a vote of 425 for and 227 against.

The second issue on the ballot, approval of the water system, at a cost not to exceed $592,400 passed with 437 voting yes while 198 voted no.

The third issue, covering the repair of the sanitary sewer system at a cost not to exceed $1,198,900 was also passed by a more than two to one margin with 439 voting yes while 218 voted no.

With the passage of the bonding proposals, City Manager

Randy Frykberg said he was extremely excited and pleased and encouraged that the citizens realized the wasteful repairs had to stop.

Frykberg said he will be meeting with engineers to prepare the bid specifications for the first phase.

That would entail work on the north side of the river.

Frykberg said he hoped to be able to have the work started by late summer.

Frykberg said it was funny that more people voted for the sewer work than for the water system. He said, "I expected that area of the vote to be higher since it was the more visible of all of the proposals we were going after."

It has been several years since the city was torn up with a major street and sewer project. The last major work done by the city was in the downtown area when they replaced storm sewer, sanitary sewer and water mains on the two blocks of Water Street and the two blocks of Lake Street.

High school goes independent, hopes for Ski Valley berth

Boyne High School will be going the road of the independent sports teams, joining such schools as Traverse City and Johannesburg-Lewiston as the school board Monday night agreed that was the only way the school could arrange for high school sports until they can either get acceptance into a league or help found a new league for class C schools.

The meeting was held as the school system faces a time problem scheduling teams for the 1988-89 school year since they will be without a league starting that fall.

Former members of the Michigan Huron Shores League have withdrawn to start a new league within themselves and did not invite Boyne City or Onaway to participate. Those two teams are the only two teams left in the former Michigan Huron Shores League.

Since the former schools decided to call their league the Michigan Huron Shores Conference, the matter is confusing at best to those fans of the former league.

Last week, a group of concerned parents asked the board to try to resolve the matter as they wanted the Boyne City teams to be able to participate in high school sports.

They presented a list of four options for the board to consider. The agreement that was approved was a compromise taking into account several of the options.

The board agreed to start the athletic director, John McGeorge, on a quest to find teams the school could play against for the 1988-89 season, while the school is seeking entry into the Ski Valley Conference. If the Ski Valley does not accept Boyne City, then the school will start a drive to form a new league made up of class C schools in northern Michigan.

The Ski Valley Conference will be holding a league meeting March 25th, according to Rich Kelly, superintendent, where the idea of increasing their league size would be discussed. But he expected no action would be taken to bring Boyne into the league at that time.

According to Bill Christenson, a member of the Athletic Committee, "It's their league a little like hitchhiking. If a car stops to pick you up, you get a ride." Both said no matter what action occurs at that league's meeting, Boyne still would have to schedule games for the 88-89 season as an independent.

According to McGeorge, some of the teams the school will play would be the same as in the past, like Harbor Springs, but league action against schools, like Petoskey and Charlevoix, would be difficult.

The crux of the sports problem is the football program at all of the schools. If a larger school plays Boyne City and wins, they get no bonus points in the computer standings which would allow a school with high points to go on to state level competition.

Because Boyne City's program has been down for the past several years, other schools in the former league did not want to play us as they are class B schools. Playing Boyne City and winning for them would not give them enough points to continue on in state action.

A second motion was made by Christenson to aggressively pursue adding to the present two team league Boyne is left with, or taking the option of forming a new league, if they cannot gain entrance to the Ski Valley League. They may also look at other league options.

According to board member, Gary Winters, "We want this to be a positive action. We also want the parents backing and involvement as well as continued encouragement."

"All of us want to have our team be part of a league," Board President, Richard May, said. "As a board, we need to make a commitment to develop a strong sports program."

Prior to the board discussion concerning what to do, Kelly gave a response to a question from the audience with the history of the problem of the league. Kelly told the audience, "Maybe you have to blame it on me for not wanting to change the league, but work to develop a two tiered league and keep it together."

When Rick Casper was principal of the school, he tried to do the same with other schools of the league, and although they tried a two tiered league, that fell into disuse after Casper left his position.

Two schools did not want to play Boyne City in football, Cheboygan and Gaylord. Football was the only reason given for the league break-up as Kelly said other schools still wanted to play us in other sports.

While no action is expected by the present league, they will still play us in football next fall, the problems the school will be facing as they move to the independent status are expected to cost the school system more as they may have to travel further to get to games.

McGeorge was given the task of finding schools with which to compete as close as possible.

In other action, the board accepted the resignation of Rick Fowler as the head basketball coach. Fowler will still be an assistant football coach, according to Frykberg.

Making sure their vote counted, Boyne City Commissioner Thelma Behling and Mayor Keith Fitzpatrick voted shortly after the noon commission meeting on Tuesday.

180 unit housing project proposed in Wilson Twp.

Wilson Township planners approved a request for rezoning last Saturday that would allow a housing development of thirty homes to be built on land located along Hull Street next to the Boyne City limits.

The parcel, about 40 acres, was recommended for rezoning from R-1 single family to R-4, multiple housing by the planning board even though several residents of the area voiced strong opinions against the request.

The request was made by Gil Redmer, a Boyne City businessman, who told the planning board that the area needs additional housing, partly caused by the growth of Boyne City and the additional workers the new Air-Industrial Park will be bringing to the community. Redmer projected a three to five year need.

He told the planners he intentionally moved away from the lakefront, looking for a large piece of land so development could be controlled instead of being placed wherever.

He said realty firms in the area are saying they have a need for housing that falls into the middle income area, homes costing about $75,000 and up. Redmer plans on building housing that would meet that criteria. He said the base cost per unit would fall into the area projected by the need. The housing units would have a "country look", and the interiors would be custom designed for the individual buyer, Redmer added.

Redmer is proposing to build 30 buildings on the land, each with six housing units which would give the land a 30 percent density factor. Under the R-4 zoning, the maximum number of units would allow for a 70 percent density factor.

Redmer said he was not looking for the great amount of density as he wanted to see a quality housing development, looking for openness and beauty.

He told the planners he intends on building two units to start and use them as models to see if the people wanted a ranch style or would prefer something else.

Redmer also said he would be bringing Boyne City sewer and water to the site if allowed by the city. All of the sewer and water mains would be at the expense of the developer.

According to Redmer, his engineer had talked with the city and was told it could be worked out as far as adding to the existing lines are concerned. Al Ranger was told the lines would extend off the Harborage area.

Redmer said some of the housing sites would be three stories high, but would all be under the maximum 35 foot height limit the zoning ordinance calls for. One unit may be in a basement type setting. Redmer said no one's view would be blocked. He projects that each view would be different, but they would still be able to see the lake. There is a 60 foot elevation difference from one side of the property to the other.

As far as Hull Street and other traffic is concerned, Redmer said he talked with Fred Welch of the County Road Commission and was told the county would improve the road surface and drainage of the roadway. Redmer also said he talked with city officials who said they would work with the development.

Many of the neighbors in the area are against the project, saying it would add to traffic problems, watershed problems, and the rezoning of the land.

Jan Harrison spoke saying she was opposed to any change in the zoning to Multiple Dwelling. Others opposed the project saying the increased density and traffic factors have to be considered by all.

The planners then closed the public hearing and voted to send the project to the Wilson Township Board with their recommendation for approval. The township may consider the project at their next meeting.

ASPARAGUS AND ST. PATRICK'S DAY

I cannot go past St. Patrick's Day without offering congratulations to my many Irish friends just for being Irish and the wearing of the green. On St. Patrick's Day our food will reflect our love for the Irish. We will serve a potato dish, of course, and something beautifully green, like asparagus. How about these POTATOES O'BRIEN

Good for any meal of the day. To serve 6 or 8 use these ingredients. Cut this recipe in half for one or two.

- 6 medium potatoes, cubed. (If new potatoes, do not peel)
- 2 medium onion, chopped fine
- 1 large green pepper, chopped fine
- 1/2 pimento, cut fine
- 4 tablespoons butter
- 1/4 tsp. seasoning salt
- 2 tablespoons chopped parsley

Vegetable oil
Soak potatoes in cold water and drain well. Fry potatoes in vegetable oil until brown and tender. In a separate pan, saute onions and green pepper in butter until just tender, then add pimento and set aside. Combine potatoes, onion, green pepper, pimento and seasoning; heat thoroughly. Sprinkle with chopped parsley and serve hot.

When we consider the vitamin value of asparagus, we know that it is wise to serve it often. It is rich in Vitamin A, B1, B2, B6, C, niacin and iron, and only 4 calories per spear, either cooked or raw. I have discovered that I really like asparagus raw, especially with a dip.

Almonds and asparagus are great partners. We could serve this with the potatoes, whether it is St. Patrick's Day or not.

- ### ASPARAGUS ALMONDINE
- 1-12 oz. package frozen chopped asparagus or 1 lb. fresh asparagus, cut in pieces
 - 4 tablespoons butter
 - 4 tablespoons almonds (slivered, blanched)
 - 2 tablespoons pimento, chopped

1/4 teaspoon salt
parsley

Steam asparagus until barely done; drain. Melt butter and stir in almonds; cook until lightly browned. Add asparagus to buttered almonds; saute until asparagus is thoroughly heated. Lay on serving dish, sprinkle with pimento and parsley. Serves 4.

Here is another delicious asparagus recipe given to me by a very charming lady while on vacation.

ASPARAGUS TUNA SALAD MOLD

- 1 can tuna
- 1 pkg. unflavored gelatin
- 1 can asparagus soup
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 1 cup mayonnaise
- 1 chopped onion (med.)
- 1 chopped green pepper

Mix tuna, onion, and pepper. Put gelatin in 1/4 cup water to dissolve. Heat soup and add gelatin mixture. Pour into a greased mold and refrigerate at least 4 hours before serving. Serve on lettuce leaves.

Make this mold ahead so it will set well. A sprinkle of onion salt or celery salt may be added. Unmold a couple of hours before serving and shape it properly to get best results.

Margaret Bird Hilton Head Island, S.C.

I sampled this salad at a potluck supper at Long-Boat Key church in Florida. It could double for a dessert and so tasty. So if you want another touch of green, make this delicious salad.

MARGARET'S LIME SALAD

- 2 pkgs. lime jello
 - 2 cups hot water then let cool
 - Add 1 cup lite salad dressing or 3/4 cup real mayonnaise
 - 1 cup cottage cheese
 - 1 cup crushed pineapple, undrained
 - 1/2 cup condensed milk
 - 1/2 cup nutmeats
 - green pepper or pimento
- Chill until firm in a square dish and cut in squares. Put on lettuce if you wish.

The Positive Side

"Don't let anyone kill your enthusiasm, someone will always criticize and complain, no matter how great the project."

Jottings

BY JIM SILBAR

I ran across an ad for a machine that is supposed to help you stop smoking, but I don't think I will use it. I have slowed down to a small fume when I see ads like that in national magazines and I can't imagine anybody wanting to buy such a machine.

This machine is supposed to regulate the amount of nicotine and other harmful ingredients in your smokes by reducing them in incremental amounts as you work the system.

I guess what the machine does is that it puts small holes in the sides of the cigarette that allow more air to be drawn in along with the smoke.

But according to the ad, it puts those small holes in the cigarettes when they are still in the pack, still sealed up. One great feature they say is that you can use the machine with any brand of smokes, just sticking them into the machine, pressing down on the device to put all those small holes in the sides of your smokes.

When I read that, I wondered how it puts all those small holes in the sides of all twenty cigarettes, as they are packed close together, sealed up in a pack.

If I were to get such a machine and try to make all those holes in the smokes, I am sure I would screw it up somehow.

But that is probably the way they can say you would eliminate all the bad stuff from the smokes. As you press down on the device to put holes in the smokes, it destroys about half of them while they are still packed in that sealed box.

That is just one way to cut down on the amount of smoking you can do...just have a machine to wreck all those expensive smokes.

Heck, I could do that without paying $19.95. I could do that kind of a job with that new hammer I bought last year.

As this is written on a day for the wearing of the green, my thoughts go out to those who have some real Irish blood flowing through their veins. Do they celebrate like we do? Do they have all these folks getting out green clothing to wear? And isn't the wearing of the green a part of Ireland that is having all the problems with the British Empire?

What do those people do who want to wear the orange? Do they just run off and hide for the day? Or do they proudly wear the orange and go to the bars to make fools of themselves as much as we do?

Those are just some of the great unanswered questions that have arisen on the day of the wearing of the green.

I wonder if someone could come out with naturalization papers that would be good for the day. Just think of all the money you might be able to make if you could sell those "papers" to all the Italians, Germans, Poles, Russians, Chechs, Japanese, Indians and others.

Maybe that is why we can celebrate the occasion. All of those nationalities can join in the fun of remembering the heritage of one small nation.

Could the American Indians come up with some patron saint so the whole world would celebrate a day for them?

What patron saint do some of the other nations have that we could celebrate? We might be able to find a day for every week of the year, and then some, if we could look hard enough.

Are you ready to celebrate "Grunistaca Day" next year?

Letters

Conundrum!

Editor,

The Council is again giving us one of their slick tricks.

The people voted not to close Front St. It was! They made a new one. The city wanted to put the museum in the park by voting. The state said if you vote, you take the people's vote. Hurray for the state. Now they are giving you false information in order to close Main St. They say that Main St. doesn't touch the beach. With high water like now you still have 10' plus attached and when water is down about 50' plus. 10' is enough to put their boardwalk on for people to go to the beach. Main St. is straight and has the sewer line on it.

The city says they can't afford to move it, but they have to get to it to service it. How can they do this if they give it away?

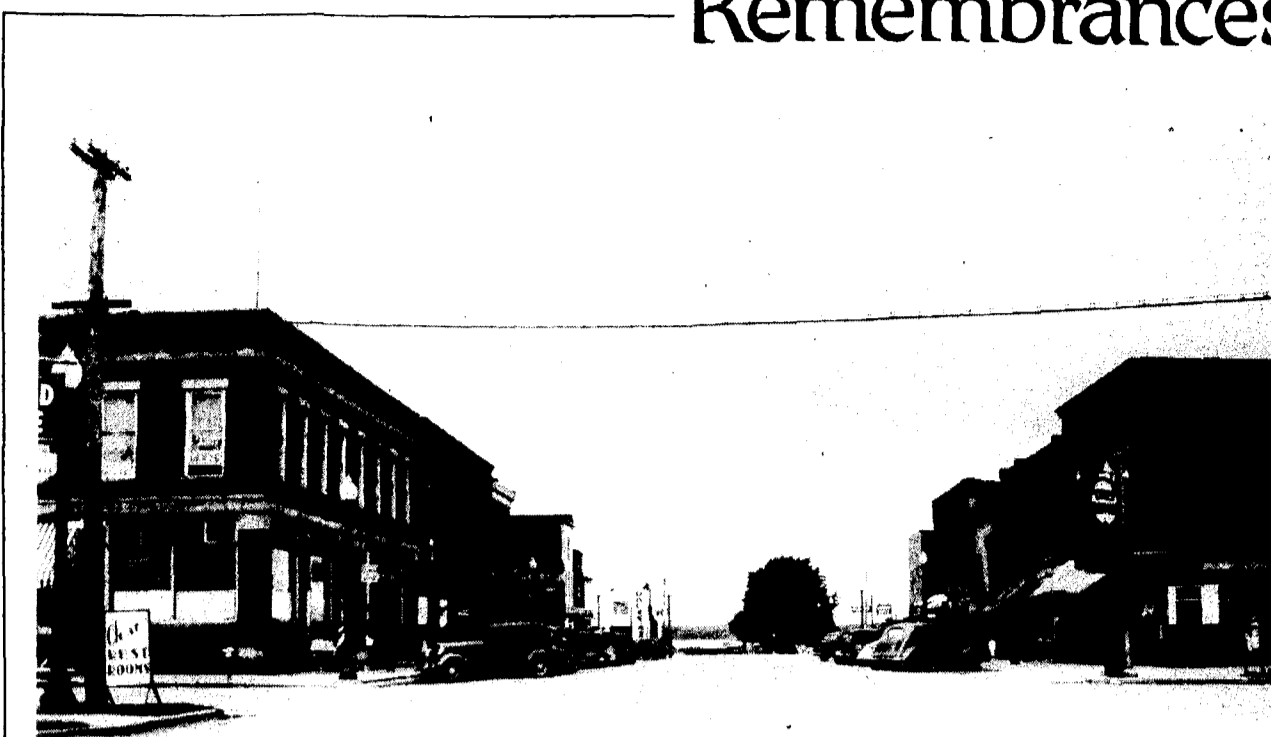

They have to run the sewer line out into the lake to help the beach. If they move it, the only place is closer to the beach.

There is 10' to 15' of Riparian Rights there belonging to the people of the state.

How can they endanger their right to go down Main St. and walk up the beach? They are. They put the beach lots up for bids, but the paper said they were not for sale. They just wanted to get an idea what they were worth. Nobody could buy them, so why bid? They may have lost a lot of money on these. If they get that crooked piece of marsh land, they will have to buy boulders to make it solid enough to drive on.

Money. Also, they will have to spend time tearing down gas building with cement 4' high to break up and haul away. Money. Where will all this money come from? Be at Circuit Court on March 26, 1987, 8:30.

Name Withheld

Boyne City in the 1930s-Water Street looking to the lake. Ben Franklin is now in the corner store on the left, Boyne Country party jewelry sign shows here. Boyne City is ageing beautifully. We think it's much prettier now.

I have gained seven pounds in the last few months. The doctor is saying that I must reduce. He recommends that I quit eating during meals.

In about seven weeks children will be taking their mothers out to dinner, rain or shine. Others will be in the deep woods looking for tasty fungus. That's because, in Boyne City, Mother's Day and the National Mushroom Hunt Championship will be smack-dab up against one another. Hoping to heavy up the bag for a bang-up celebration, the festival sponsors are asking Lansing for a fifteen thousand grant.

I recall asking Lansing for a few thousand to tide me over the terrible mushroom drought in the hills and valleys of our back forty. I was as hurt as a touched boil by their answer. It is my hope that the festival project funding committee has better luck than I did. If they do I shall say no more about the disturbing things that go on at the capitol. And that's almost a promise.

Everything costs so much we decided to clamp down on our spending. We decided to save every penny we could. That's when I learned that a penny saved is still a penny.

You've seen that TV show on the Lifestyles of the Rich and Famous? Well, I could write a book on the Lifestyles of the Poor and Unknown.

Speaking of mushrooms in the middle of March:

About twenty-five years ago Boyne Country had the best mushroom crop in a long, long time. Everyone, it seemed, came to town to show off their pickings. Among the pickers were a young boy and girl who returned to town later than all the rest. Their pails contained not a single mushroom. That's when I learned what this world is coming to. (I hope the Lord has a sense of humor. If not, I'm in trouble.)

A fifth grade teacher decided it was time to acquaint her students with the facts of life. "Today, students," she said, "we are going into the library to see a videotape on the difference between male and female and where babies come from." That got their attention. The children all wanted to know, "What's a library?"

Gad, how I hate to wake up at eight or eight-thirty in the morning. I can't get back to sleep and I just have to lay there until it's time to get up.

While you are having a happy St. Patrick's Day please figure out how we Englishmen can also have one day a year when everything seems rosy.

RAY GILMORE GROWING WITH

Glen's MARKETS & FAMILY CENTERS

RAY GILMORE is currently our Roscommon Store Manager. He and his family will be moving to Boyne City where he will assume the responsibility of Store Manager of that unit.

Ray started his career with our family of stores when he was finishing high school. He became full-time in January of 1967 when he was responsible for both the Dairy and Frozen Foods Departments at Gaylord. Then Ray started college in the fall of 1967 but returned to the business he loved so much and in 1968 was Beverage Dept. Manager and our Bakery Bake-Off Manager. In 1969 Ray joined the Army, spending his first year state-side and his second year in Viet Nam where he specialized as a Cook/Baker and Food Service Instructor.

After his discharge Ray went into a Management Training Program in the summer of 1971 at Kalkaska and then was promoted to Assistant Manager of our Mio store where he spent six months. Later in '72, Ray was transferred to Gaylord as Assistant Manager for nearly two years. His promotion to Store Manager to take on the leadership of our old and new Mancelona store provided him with many insights over the following three years.

In January of 1978, Ray took the responsibility of Manager of our new Charlevoix store in the Captain's Corner Mall. In 1983 he was promoted to Bakery/Deli Supervisor with his office in Gaylord. A year and a half later Ray took on the responsibility of Grocery Merchandiser for a year before the opportunity to manage our Roscommon store came along.

Ray's wife Linda obtained her teaching degree in Elementary Education from C.M.U. and has taught in the Mancelona system for many years. She's only six hours away from obtaining her Masters Degree and hopes to complete it this year. Ray has a 13 year old daughter, Betsy and he and Linda have three children; Amanda 9, Kristen 5, and Jason 3. With all the moves they've made as a family, Ray wishes, kiddingly of course, that he had gotten his real estate license.

An active, civic-minded person, Ray belongs to the Roscommon Rotary Club, is the V.P. of the Roscommon Viet Nam Veterans of America Chapter, is a Board member of the Roscommon Business Association, a Board member of the Roscommon County Co-op Nursery and is a Board member of the Messiah Lutheran Church in Roscommon.

Ray is excited about managing our Boyne City store because it offers more opportunities in that it is larger and has more associates. He also wants to get back into the snow belt, he said and the drive his wife will have to Mancelona will be closer. Like Ray says, "Linda and I always have our bags packed and ready to go...Gypsy style of course."

East Jordan students hear group, Arc

BY DENNIS SKROCKI

On Thursday, March 12, students at East Jordan High School were treated to the rock and roll sound and dramatic presentation of the group Arc.

The band, winding down its 1986-87 nationwide tour, performed many other shows, including visits to Petoskey, Gaylord and Central Lake.

Campus Life, SADD, Student Council, and various other youth-oriented organizations sponsor the band's high school and church related performances.

"We do more than just entertain," said Steve Smith, the group's road manager. "We also address such subjects as suicide, drugs, and peer pressure in our performances."

Smith also commented on the group's ability to depict these situations and perform intense scenes to alert the audience to the great danger involved. "Acting is a prerequisite," says Smith, referring to those who audition for the band.

EJ students viewed a session dealing with drugs and their extremely harmful effects on a person, both mentally and physically.

Edwin Dodds, Commander of Ernest Peterson Post No. 228, the American Legion, Boyne City, observes Warren Davis, Post Adjutant presenting a $500.00 check to David Behling, chaplain at Northern Michigan Hospitals.

Behling is associated with Hospital Chaplains Ministry of America (HCMA), in non-denominational ministry, and provides spiritual care to all patients and their families who desire. In (HCMA) faith ministry, each chaplain is not promised or guaranteed a salary, but must raise his/her own support.

After attending Ozark Bible College in Joplin, Mo., he entered HCMA training at the University of California Hospital at Irvine and became chaplain at NMH in July 1986.

In keeping with the Legion calendar which proclaims the first week of February as Religious Emphasis Week, members of Ernest Peterson Post chose to show their appreciation toward Behling for his ministry and dedication to service at Northern Michigan Hospitals.

Ware-withal

BY GAIL WARE

Way back in the time when B.C. first turned the corner and became A.D., a Latin poet named Ovid wrote: "A woman is always buying something." And ever since then a number of men at various times have made similar comments. They're pretty much right, of course; we are. But Ovid made it sound as if it showed a serious flaw in women's characters, which it most certainly does not. Buying things, lots of things, for our homes and families and ourselves is part of our job. That we manage to do it so well in spite of constant changes in the market place shows determination and stamina. And heaven knows we need these qualities, especially when it comes to buying clothes.

In recent years, few countries on earth have missed out on the chance to run their sewing machines full tilt, stitching up clothes for Americans. It seems that a large part of the world wants to help keep us warm or in style. So they send us boatloads of clothes—some good and some not. The stores are jammed with them. And women have to pick and choose among them.

Buying men's clothes made in foreign countries presents few problems. Some color combinations are decidedly peculiar. But they can be steered around. The main thing, the sizes, are right whether the clothes are made in Jamaica or Japan or some other place. A shirt labeled "15 1/2 34-35" can be counted on to be just that. The same goes for the pants. Foreign makers have the sizes down pat for the American men.

But some manufacturers of clothes for the women don't quite have the hang of it. Admittedly women's sizes, except in the case of some blouses and sweaters, don't come in exact measurements. But standards do exist for women's sizes and these standards must have been sent to the manufacturers overseas. But perhaps they consider these only loose guidelines that don't have to be stuck to if things don't work out just right.

So the sizes don't always match what we're used to, which means everything needs to be tried on before buying. This is a good idea in any case but annoying if one has to do it because she doesn't trust the folks in Mauritius or wherever to do a good job.

Take skirts or pants from Poland or Czechoslovakia. They run distinctly broad in the beam. Fun but no fit.

And Macau makes blouses in lovely material but some of them are shaped funny. I have one that would fit fine on someone shaped like a Christmas tree, which is why I have it. The friend who handed it on to me isn't shaped like a Christmas tree either.

Some countries do have the size thing right. Most of the Asian countries do. And I'm continually amazed by the great blouses that come out of Bangladesh. I always thought that Bangladeshians spent all their time on horseback riding across the plains with their hair streaming out behind. But I guess that's just the men.

Anyway, experience shows that Ovid and men of like mind are not totally right. Women don't always buy every time out. Sometimes we just try things on.

Of course, we always go out looking to buy. But that's beside the point.

District Health Dept. tells about meningitis

Since the first of the year, three cases of meningococcal meningitis (a bacterial infection of the lining of the brain) have occurred in the area. Two cases were reported from Charlevoix County and one case from Otsego County. The number of cases is unusual because this type of illness is uncommon. However, the bacterial organism causing meningococcal meningitis is frequently found in normal individuals without any illness. This is called the carrier state and most cases of acute illness are related to exposure to a carrier.

At other times, individuals with an acute illness place close contacts at increased risk of developing meningitis, although this is still uncommon. Medication is given to the contacts which will prevent the illness. A close contact is usually a family member or an individual exposed to the ill patient's saliva, or nasal discharges, by kissing or sharing of food or beverages.

The illness is treatable and can be prevented with antibiotics. Preventive measures include identifying and treating close intimate contacts with antibiotics, and maintaining good personal hygiene. Good personal hygiene is extremely important because it prevents many types of illnesses. Hygiene measures include handwashing and not exchanging oral and nasal secretions by kissing and sharing of personal items, food, and drink. Additional preventive measures include reducing overcrowding, improving ventilation, avoiding fatigue, and promoting nutrition.

There is also a vaccine available which can prevent certain types of meningitis and may be useful when an outbreak occurs. The vaccine is generally given to close contacts, family members, and other groups at high risk. Symptoms of meningitis include fever, stiff neck, headache, change in behavior or personality, nausea, vomiting, chills, and possibly a rash. After exposure to an active case, illness usually develops within a few days. Although, at times, the illness may take 10 to 14 days to develop. Individuals concerned about meningitis should contact their family physician. If you have additional questions, please contact your local health department.

BOYNE CITY LANES PRESENTS ITS BOWLERS OF THE WEEK

FRED LOOZE

STACIE HANCOCK

After many years of league bowling, Fred rolled his first 600 series ever, hitting 600 right on the button, along with shooting a game high of 226. With his 154 average, "Lefty" Freddie was 138 pins over for the night. "I've always bowled for fun," Fred tells us. "I usually don't care too much on how good I bowl. I asked Steve at the lanes for just a couple of tips, and it worked great!" Fred bowls for the Free Press team in the Monday night Business Men's League.

It was a very big night for Stacie Hancock in the Thursday Night Ladies' League. Bowling on the United Tech. team, Stacie rolled her first ever 500 set, hitting it right on the nose, which put her 104 pins over her series average, and her high game of 223 was good for 91 pins over her per game average. Needless to say, her 132 average has a good possibility of going up a few pins. Congratulations, Stacie, on your first 500 and your highest 200 game. Again, the point is proven, that pregnant women bowl better. Do you think we will have a baby boom?

CONGRATULATIONS.

East Jordan short-lived in B-ball districts

BY DENNIS SKROCKI The East Jordan varsity basketball squad's life in district tournament action was short lived as they were disposed of rather easily by Harbor Springs, 76-57. The Red Devils drew a first round bye which automatically sent them into the semi-final game against the Rams, who had previously beaten Boyne City. The game was viewed by a capacity crowd at the Boyne City High School gymnasium. The Rams drew first blood as Doug Dickinson gained control of the tip-off and took it to the hoop for an easy two points. Harbor extended its lead to 6-0 before the Red Devils put their first points on the board. After being down by as much as 12-2, the Devils brought the score within six, 14-8, as they outscored the Rams 6-2 over a two minute stretch midway through the first period. From there the Rams took control and held a nine point, 23-14, lead at the quarter's end. Harbor kept up its dominant ways through the second quarter hitting on 8 of 21 shots from the floor and 2 of 3 at the foul line. The Devils hit on only 5 of 11 and 5 of 9 allowing the Rams to take a 41-29 lead into the halftime intermission. The first minute of the third stanza saw the Rams score seven unanswered points to increase their already commanding lead to 48-29. The Devils sank their first shot at the 6:04 mark. The momentum was with EJ for the next few minutes as they outscored Harbor 11-8, forcing coach Rick Davies to call a timeout with 2:21 remaining. The end of the quarter score stood at 62-43 in the Rams' favor. The final stanza saw Devils match Harbor point for point but that was not enough as they lost by the final score of 76-57. On the night the Devils hit 22 of 51 field goals and 13 of 21 free throws as the Rams made good on 30 of 74 and 16 of 24. Jim Raymond led the way offensively for the Devils with 21 points as Mark Moore added 14. Greg Kitson was also dominant from an offensive standpoint with 12 points and six assists. Raymond led the way defensively with 19 rebounds as Kitson came up with five and Kevin Molby added three.

Kids see fame in different ways

University Park, Pa.—"Braces are a pain to kids," wrote Kim Leary, a fifth-grader from Greendale, Wis. "I would like to be famous for inventing a way to straighten teeth without using braces. I would invent a tooth-paste with magnetic crystals in it that would straighten your teeth." A unique invention was one of the popular topics that more than 4,400 students wrote about when they sent essays on, "I would like to be famous for..." to "What's in the News," a weekly current events television series for children.

Football talents. "I would go down in history for winning the Super-bowl and kicking the longest field goal in the history of professional football." Andrea Autry, 14, a student at Pinecrest Special School in Aiken, S. C., would like to be a famous dancer. She was born with cerebral palsy and has recently begun dancing lessons. "My balance is not good, but I fall down really well," she wrote. "However, if I don't get to be a famous dancer, I am still happy, I candance."

The series alternates between news summaries and feature programs and is produced by WPSX-TV, Penn State's public television station, in association with Penn State's College of Education.

Jeremy Kunce, a fifth-grader from Fairfield, Ill., would like to be famous for "saving the small rural schools." He thinks the rural schools are a very important part of our nation's heritage. "The little country school is as much a part of our nation's history as the native American."

Chris Twaddell, a fourth-grader from Prairie Village, Kan., would also like to be famous for a unique invention—the flea disintegrator. "It would work on dogs and cats, and it wouldn't hurt their fur or skin." He said he would want to be famous for this invention because his dogs "are always itching because of fleas."

If Kortney Stock, a sixth-grader from Phoenix, Ariz., were famous it would be for her teaching skills. "Teachers are usually not famous, but the joy of watching a student learn how to read must bring a feeling of success."

Another common theme among the essays was excelling in a sport. Sixth-grader Andy Kline from Boyne City, Mich., would like to be famous for his Fourth-grader Chris Basten from Green Bay, Wis., would like to be famous for writing children's books. "It might make a sick person feel better, or perhaps a sad person laugh. It

Warren Wade, high school principal, said he would like to have all sports positions posted before the spring break so the school system will be able to fill all the positions prior to the summer.
