News Briefs

Boyer City will be trading mayors with the capital of asparagus country, Hart, during the Mayors' Exchange Day as part of the newly refurbished Michigan Week ceremonies. East Jordan will be exchanging with Elk Rapids, just a short drive away during the same day. The exchange is one of the highlights of Michigan Week where other mayors get to see first hand some of the things the other community is doing.

Bicycle maps of all 83 counties are available now for interested bikers. The free maps show roads with paved shoulders and low motorist traffic, designated bike routes, roads where travel is prohibited and more. They can be picked up at Michigan Welcome Centers on major highways or from the Michigan Department of Transportation in Lansing.

Twelve northern Michigan students will be recipients of health career scholarships to be awarded this spring from the Northern Michigan Hospitals Auxiliary. Each is worth $500 and are given to students entering or enrolled in an accredited health services program. Residents must be from this area and applications can be received from the hospital or by calling Dee Dilworth, 347-8473.

Saying Bed and Breakfast establishments are a major part of the state's tourism industry, a core of state legislators are set to introduce bills designed to help them flourish. The main bill, says sponsors, will exempt B & B's from the stringent rules which apply to larger hotels and restaurants in order to treat them as the private home they are.

BC landfill contamination slight

Tests of groundwater from wells located on the grounds on and near the former Boyne City landfill site in Evangeline Township show some contamination according to DNR officials but, according to a look at the results of the tests being made, only two wells out of the ten wells drilled by the DNR showed any contamination at all.

The two wells, one a new well drilled last December, are located within the landfill site. The newer well was drilled at the edge of where refuse was dumped prior to its being closed by the city. The other well with contamination is the same well that showed contamination in a previous test. It is located next to the roadway leading to the dumping area.

According to City Manager Randy Frykberg, the test results show something different than what the DNR has reported to the area daily newspaper.

"Sure, they found something, but according to the results, almost everything found was almost not detected," he said.

A review of the results showed that the DNR tests were not able to be confirmed by their own department tests.

After a preliminary finding of a substance, Dichloroethane, for example showed a 4 parts per billion finding, the same sample was determined to be unconfirmed in a back-up test required by the state to confirm the original finding.

Other samples taken during the same tests showed many of the supposed contamination to be unconfirmed by the second test.

While the state was sampling the wells, they allowed the city to have some of the samples for their own sampling tests. The firm of Aquatic Systems, Inc. of Ludington did testing for the city and found almost all of the sample solutions to be less than one part per billion on all chlorinated hydrocarbons, pebs and organochlorine pesticides.

They also tested for phthalate esters and polar pesticides, purgeable halocarbons and found much the same.

According to Frykberg, the important findings of the tests indicate the groundwater flow of the contaminants is going toward an eighty acre part of the landfill that was never used by the city.

But for the most part, the indications are that the chemicals are staying within the landfill area where they were dumped and not moving toward private property.

Frykberg said some of the tests should be suspect as to methods of sampling used. He also said that the amount of money being spent for the additional wells to monitor the landfill could have been used to help pay for capping some of it.

One other finding Frykberg said, was the well number 3, which is located near the entrance to the landfill and allegedly was contaminated in previous tests, showed that this latest sampling showed the amount of contamination was less than the previous sampling.

That well is one where an observer to the well drilling said an unspecified amount of gasoline was spilled during the drilling of the well.

According to Kate Brower, of the DNR's Environmental Enforcement Division, all of the suspected contamination is dangerous because the groundwater flow is unpredictable. She

BC to hire new engineer

Boyer City Commissioners continued their discussions on the city's budget at their noon meeting Tuesday, covering the areas of General Services, Central Administration, Public Buildings Cemetery, Marina, Capital Improvement and the Wastewater/Water Funds.

In remarks brought out by the commission, it was noted that the city will be increasing their staff by the hiring of a city engineer who would be working under Basil Moore. The person would then be expected to take the place of Moore when he retires in a few years, according to the City Manager Randy Frykberg. Frykberg also said he expects having an engineer on the staff of the city would save the city his salary and then some, as the city is currently spending about $70,000 to $100,000 on hiring consulting engineers to do the work he could provide.

Frykberg said he is interviewing now, and expects to hire someone soon as the city is beginning to get started on the replacement of water and sewer lines due to the bonding issue getting passed last week.

Speaking of the bonding issue, See Noon/Page 8

Three East Jordan OM Teams will travel to Central Michigan University campus in Mt. Pleasant on April 4 to compete in the State OM Competition. For two of the teams this is the second and third time they have gone to the state level. The Unlimited Potential organization has given financial support to allow the teams to go down on Friday and return on Sunday. From early morning Saturday until late evening the teams will be involved in the various forms of competition, including giving the skit they have produced and competing in the spontaneous portion, which involves having to provide answers to a question you have had no prior knowledge of under the pressure of time limitations.

The teams represent two and three years of togetherness and building on previously gained knowledge and experience. The teams also turn out to be somewhat family affairs, as two teams are coached by husband and wife, Richard and Nancy Brooks, who have a son on one of the teams. Mary Bacon coaches the third team and her son is on her team.

Aaron Brock, tenth grader; Dawn Brock, Jon Sumner, Krista Sumner, Bobbi Jo Metcalf, ninth graders; and Jodie Argetsinger, eighth grader; coached by Nancy Brooks, are taking a solution to the problem Decision Structure (a balsa wood structure which must hold as much weight as possible) to the competition. This is the second year this same exact team has worked together, but first time in attempting this problem. A skit must be made up by the team to incorporate the weight holding structure.

Rick Brooks, Joe Brennan, Tom Reid, Brian Mickey, Jeniece Gardner will be competition to the first team as they have also chosen the Decision Structure problem. This team is coached by Richard Brooks and they have worked together on this problem (or one similar) for three years, having gone to the State Competition for three consecutive years. All the team members are seventh graders.

Enos Bacon, III, Kellie Barber, Beth Gouts, Jenny Cook, Tina Metcalf and Susan Mills are all sixth graders coached by Mary Bacon. This is Mrs. Bacon's first year as their coach, but Kellie, Beth, Jenny, and Tina have worked together for three years. Enos has worked with them two years and this is Susan's first time. This team chose the "Cro Magnon" Problem, which requires them to create a scene from that time, using bone tools and instruments they have made themselves. An animal had to be created to include in the skit, as well as a cave and cave drawings. Mrs. Bacon commented that the

Monday Study Club hears reminiscing talk

The Monday Study Club of Boyne City opened their 1987 season on March 16. This first meeting of the year was held at the home of Connie Van Hoosen. Serving refreshments were co-hostesses Delcie Phillips and Genevieve Sutton. Following the overall theme for this year, A Time For Reminiscence, members Violet Manglos and Leah Waggoner shared their personal memories of Boyne City businesses. Using historical data and photographs to enhance the presentation, they made their program interesting and informative. Special attention was centered on the Bailey Drug Store, Kadens, and the McNamee Store. Newspaper clippings of the great fire that destroyed the original Bailey building were shown. Discussion and questions followed and much interest was shown.

In last week's newspaper concerning the proposed 180 unit housing project in Wilson Township, the developer, Gill Redmer, said that the county will not be improving the road surfaces and the drainage ditches of Hull Street. Redmer said that the development will be paying for all improvements to the road under specifications developed by the county road commission.

Jottings

BY JIMSILBAR

With the coming of spring happening so fast, my thoughts about putting in a lawn in front of the ol' homestead are fast becoming something I will have to do rather than think about.

I always figured that someday I would have a house where I didn't have to mow anything. Like grass. I also wouldn't have to water, fertilize, weed, spray, caress, pray, rake or anything.

It would be just like I wanted. No lawn to take up the time on the weekend.

But after getting into a new house last year, and seeing the right kind of lawn that made me happy, I was informed that this year, we would have to have a carpet of grass for all the little visitors to play on.

So, I started to think about how I could get all the reclamation work done prior to putting in a lawn. After all, several years of weeds and sumac were allowed to grow where the lawn was supposed to go.

I thought about spraying the whole area with "Agent Orange" to get rid of all the weeds and brush, but my thinking on all of the toxins contained in that stuff and the apparent unavailability around town kept that thought from maturing.

I also thought I could find someone with a brush hog, a plow, disk and harrow that could do the job.

But after talking with a couple of farmers with all that equipment, they told me it would be a little like planting potatoes.

If you take a potato and cut it up with all the eyes, each will produce a new plant. In my case, that would mean the weeds would come back threefold, the sumac would come in thicker than ever, and I would never see any of the grass seed that would have been planted.

So then I thought about hiring a bulldozer to come in and scrape away about 15 inches of what could be called topsoil, replace that with new loads of sterilized topsoil, add in a little fertilizer and plant on that.

But after looking at all the cost that would be involved, I would have to save up a lot more money in order to do that job.

So, I have been asking around to see how others have dealt with the growth of sumac.

Several said you just start pulling it up, getting as much root as possible. They said it takes several years to get all of the growth the darned plant has. Every time you break off a root, another tree will break through the topsoil.

Not having the motivation to spend several years fighting the problem, I thought a combination of stuff I can get from the hardware store, the pulling of the roots, the plowing up and disking, might make the ground available sooner for planting the grass.

Then I started thinking about what kind of grass I should use. Should it be a combination of grasses, or should it be a single variety? And if a single, which one?

I thought about bluegrass, I thought about fescue, I thought about every combination known. Heck, I even thought about hay.

I even thought about those Zoysia plugs you see advertised all over the place in magazines and newspapers. But those take several years to fill out in a lawn and I don't think I could stand the soil erosion while waiting for them to take hold.

I have been reading every piece of literature, every press release, and anything that crosses the desk from the mail.

The best news is that I think I have found what may be the special grass I have been looking for all my life.

Seems a Canadian geneticist has come up with 35 kinds of what he calls a miracle grass from the 17 varieties of alpine grass species he has been working with for several years.

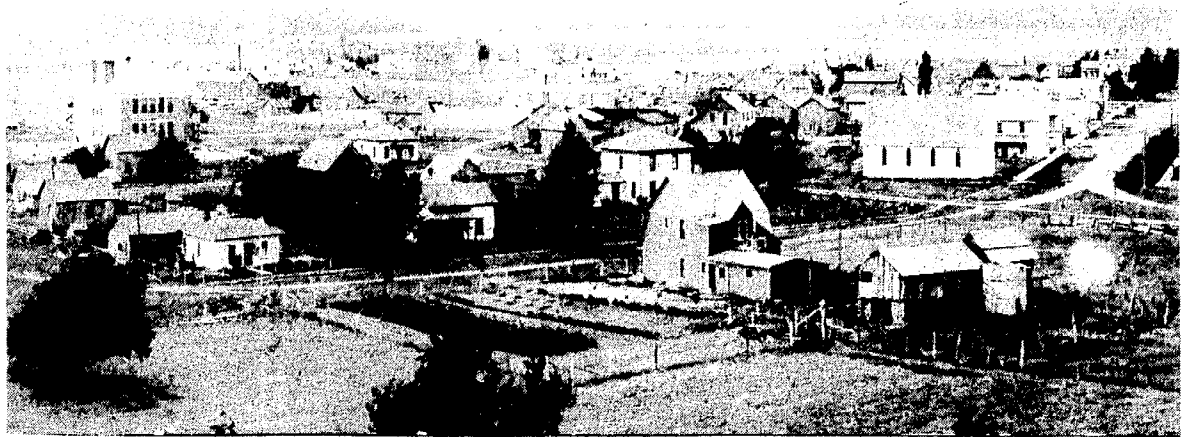

The grass he has developed is said to repel weeds, resist disease, dislikes fertilizer, stands green late in the season and, best of all, barely grows!

That's the part I like. Barely grows. That means barely have to mow it.

Other factors are a plus too. Dislikes fertilizer, resists diseases, repels weeds. Sounds like my kind of grass for my kind of lawn.

The press release said the Canadian Government is already using this slow-growing grass along highways, so it is being used.

The only problem is that the grass won't be commercially available for at least four more years or so.

You can hardly recognize Elmira today from this scene taken about 1910. This view, looking north, shows the recently completed school on the left, while the road that became M-32 from Gaylord is on the right middle. The present downtown of Elmira shows little of what it was back in the early days of the north. This picture was brought to our office by Rena Newkirk and a copy was made while she waited. She lived in the then thriving community as a small child and remembers a shingle mill and other industry around the town. If you have any old pictures showing the area or the city, bring them to our office and let us copy them.

Marshall Sayles

I understand the people of Boyne City are not looking for a sunstroke, but rather are longing for that first, short blush of summer that comes between the time the new preacher arrives and just before the watermelons are ripe. They are quiet, happy days following the gloom and doom of a long winter. Only the feel of a bank book is more satisfying.

Two people, seeking the presidency, have come down here to Florida arm-twisting folks into saying they will vote for them at the next national primary.

George Bush and Robert Dole have whooped it up for the sake of saving the Republican Party from a fate worse than death.

Bush is vice-president. Dole is a senator. Each is smarter than the other. I think that's the lie they tried to put across.

I lean toward Robert Dole. He comes from Kansas where the corn is green and I like that. George Bush bothers me. His mouth reminds me of a curtain hanging out the window, flapping in the wind.

As a frank and talkative Republican, I would rather work myself up into the lap of luxury or the lunatic asylum than hang around town and become a wart upon the face of the Democratic Party.

But yet, there is an historic perhaps:

Letters

Who's Marty?

Editor, A few weeks ago your local exponent of negativism, Mr. Everett Sayles, wrote quite rathfully about a "Marty" Davis who had--so Mr. Sayles said--belied the public trust of voters by con-ning in the U.S. Congress to hike his own salary.

Of course, the Marty Davis Sayles referred to wasn't the only scavenger ripping off us taxpayers. Congress' action was almost unanimous.

For the record, is it possible that Mr. Sayles was referring to the ex-undertaker of St. Ignace, a Mr. Robert Davis, now an official resident of Gaylord?

Could you, in the light of public interest, inform us readers who Sayles' Marty Davis is? If the Congressman Robert Davis is the Marty Davis who was the target of Sayles' criticism, then will the real Marty Davis please stand up?

Gregg Smith
What credentals?

Editor, Please put this in the paper as it is directed at both parents, school board members, students, and Mr. Wade.

If by chance some intelligent Democrat should burst forth upon the scene, throwing his hat into my ring, I might break with my long Republican past and give him a leg up. But only, mind you, if he is hailed by the wild and clamorous appeals of the vote-casting section of the nation.

It is difficult to buck the crowd when the crowd is right. I've done it a few times and as a result lived four years with the crowd pointing at me and laughing. I have a feeling that in the next election I shall wise up, vote just right and out-snicker the lot of them.

If cucumbers were not such a drug on the market I believe I would return to growing them in our field orchard. Over the years, I've had fun with cucumbers. As everyone knows, cucumbers grow low down on the branches of the cucumber trees. In the still of an evening I can easily knock them off with a club. How often I have taken a little stroll to pick one or two luscious specimens from the heavenly laden boughs. Age and poor growing weather has turned me off from growing cucumbers of late. I've kind of let the trees go to hang like a forgotten apple orchard. If the price was right and if my ambition would get out of bed, I just might once again fuss with the cucumber trees.

There are people who do not believe a word of this; and it irks me that some folks in Boyne City are growing cynical and are fast losing faith in my political judgment and my sense of cucumber farming. Some of them even make a low, guttural sound that seems to die away in the clucking part of their mouths.

I tell the truth and they don't believe it. That's why I write silly stuff most of the time.

team "worked well together" and once they got an idea they really pursued it.

Mrs. Brooks said that continuity was greater on teams that worked together year after year because they know each other, the coach knows each of them and their parents, and they build on the previous year's experiences, mistakes, and knowledge. The expertise of working with wood and glue increases each year.

The experience of competing in the District Competition and then going to the more intensified and more diverse State Competition gives these teams ideas, memories and hopes for the next year. Whether they go on to the World Competition or not, they have certainly proven to themselves that they can "build a better mousetrap" than many others of their age.

Practicing their winning Olympics of the Mind skit, these East Jordan students, Krista Sumner, Aaron Brock, Bobbie Jo Metcalf, Jodie Argetsinger and Dawn Brock are working on perfecting the scene as they prepare for the next level of competition.

WHY ARE THEY RUNNING?

As 1987 rolls on and more politicians announce or think aloud about announcing their candidacy for President, one can't help but wonder why so many seemingly well-balanced men want the job. Granted, the position does have fleeting moments of glory, but it also has dismal interludes of the sort that can ruin a man's day for months.

What makes men risk going in to enormous debt for the privilege of being criticized by the press and assorted persons at home and abroad, viewed suspiciously by allies-not to mention unallies-and watched by everyone for signs of physical or mental crumbling?

It can't be the money. The President makes a decent salary. But the presidents of large corporations, like GM and Ford, make more, with less to worry about. They only have money on their minds. The President has that plus the welfare of 242 million people who have a variety of ideas about just what that means.

The fringe benefits do make the job attractive. For example, a big, impressive home comes with the job. This benefit looks better on the outside than it proves to be on the inside, though, what with there being more offices than bedrooms in the place. And many of the rooms are more for public display than lounging around in. Still the private quarters do quite well, especially considering that they're free. The neighborhood's not too terrific. But security guards and barricades make 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue a pretty safe place to live.

Another good benefit lies in the travel opportunities. The President gets to go to foreign countries from time to time at taxpayers' expense. And he travels in a private plane. He does have to be nice to everyone whether he likes them or not just because he is the President. And this can be annoying. But free travel is free travel, nonetheless.

And the pension benefits are splendid. The President gets a comfortable income after holding the job a few short years. And he gets secret service men assigned to watch out for his safety.

So there are pluses to the Presidency but scarcely enough to justify the crowd that runs for the office. Of course it might be that these are men who were told as little boys that if they learned their multiplication tables and to eat their spinach cheerfully, they could grow up to be President. And so they did. And here they are running. Some of them are anyway. Those who stuck on the spinach became accountants, which pays better, especially around April 15. And they draw less criticism from the public than the President as more and more people seek aid and comfort in accountants' offices at tax-filing time.

As for the cheerful spinach-eaters, they developed some acting ability, a quality every politician needs and some have gotten a lot of mileage out of.

And it could be that the spinach-eaters gained confidence from the food, which would account for their firm belief that they would make good Presidents—a political Popeye Syndrome sort of thing.

County gets credit card license bureau

Charlevoix County motorists can now use credit cards to pay for their license plates and driver licenses when using the Department of State's mail program, Secretary of State Richard H. Austin announced today.

"With so many consumers preferring to use credit cards, we started this program so we can continue to offer Michigan motorists the most convenient service," said Austin who began an unprecedented fifth term as Secretary of State on January 1.

Charlevoix County motorists join those in 53 other counties who can use their VISA or MasterCard to charge their fees. The credit card program, the first of its kind for motorists in the nation, should be available in all 83 Michigan counties by July.

"We are hopeful

the acceptance of credit cards will increase our mail business," continued Austin. "This should shorten the waiting time in our branch offices and allow us to achieve significant savings in departmental costs."

"I expect the use of credit cards to be as popular as when we began accepting personal checks for the payment of fees in 1971," Austin added.

Beginning this week, Charlevoix County's 15,695 drivers who own 18,935 vehicles will receive charge slips when their license renewal notices arrive in the mail.

The Department of State began accepting credit cards under a pilot program last October shortly after receiving authorization from the Michigan Legislature.

During the pilot program, motorists who used their credit cards charged an average of $50 in fees.

The Department is implementing the credit card program by adding a number of counties each month. In addition to Charlevoix County, 24 other counties have been added to the program this month. They include: Alpena, Alger, Arenac, Clare, Crawford, Eaton, Houghton, Iron, Kalkaska, Leelanau, Mackinac, Mason, Mecosta, Menominee, Midland, Monroe, Montcalm, Ogemaw, Otsego, Ottawa, Saginaw, Shiawassee, Van Buren, and Wexford.

Credit cards cannot be used in local Secretary of State branch offices.

Reye's syndrome warning issued by HD 3, 4

Dr. Brian Youngs, Regional Medical Director for District Health Departments Number 3 and 4, would like to remind parents that "there has been an increase in the number of cases of chickenpox, Taiwan A flu, and flu-like illness in Northern Michigan." In past years these illnesses have been linked to an increase in the number of cases of Reye's Syndrome.

Parents are urged to be alert to the Reye's Syndrome signs. If your child is recovering from a flu-like illness or chickenpox, and displays persistent and continuous vomiting, or show changes in behavior such as excessive drowsiness or combativeness, get medical help immediately. If you can't reach your own doctor, take the child to a hospital emergency room. If the symptoms indicate Reye's Syndrome, treatment should begin at once.

Between 80 and 90 percent of the young Reye's Syndrome patients, ranging in age from infancy to 18 years, survive with appropriate treatment.

According to information supplied by the Michigan Department of Public Health, although the specific cause is unknown, there seems to be a relationship between the disease and children's taking aspirin and aspirin-containing medication during chickenpox and flu-like illnesses. Rather than giving aspirin in some form, parents are advised to leave their children's low grade fevers untreated, or make the patient more comfortable by sponging with lukewarm water.

Dr. Youngs went on to say, "I strongly recommend that all parents should be aware of the symptoms of Reye's Syndrome. Early contact with the family physician or emergency medical facility can aid in the prevention of serious complications." Parents should contact their family physician if they have questions concerning the treatment of ill family members.

Between October 1, 1986 until January 8, 1987 only one case of Reye's Syndrome has been reported in the state of Michigan. The increased number of cases of chickenpox, Taiwan A flu, and other flu-like illnesses should serve as an indication that recovering children could develop Reye's Syndrome.

Health dept. offers new vaccine

For years District Health Department Number 3 has offered vaccines to prevent diseases that have caused problems, especially in children. These diseases are whooping cough, polio, measles, diphtheria and mumps.

Parents can help to prevent another serious type of childhood illness. A bacterium ("Germ") called Haemophilus influenzae type B (or Hib). Hib attacks one of every 200 children in the United States before age 5.

Hib can be responsible for over half of all cases of meningitis in children. Hib may also be responsible for more than 90% of all cases of epiglottitis (A medical emergency that may cause choking) in children. Many infections that can cause joint problems and crippling forms of arthritis have also been linked to Hib infections.

One infected child may make many other children sick. That is why immunization against Hib is the best way to prevent children from catching and spreading this type of serious childhood illness. The new vaccine has been tested and is up to 90% effective in the 2 to 6 year-old group.

The United States Public Health Service recommends this new vaccine for all children once they have reached 24 months of age. Because of their increased risk, children 18-23 months old who attend day care should also be considered for the vaccination, although the vaccine is less likely to be as effective in this age group.

District Health Department Number 3 will be offering the Hib vaccine at all of its clinic locations for a fee of $10.00. The vaccination is also available through many private physicians.

More information about the Hib vaccine may be obtained from any office of the District Health Department, or by calling a private physician.

For more information about this release contact Bert Notestine at 616-347-6014.

Contamination

also said the contamination is still there and hasn't gone away which leaves the DNR responsible for the monitoring of the situation.

A meeting with the DNR is tentatively scheduled for April 16 for discussion on the proper closure of the landfill site. It is expected that members of the city, the consulting engineer, as well as members of the DNR staff, will participate.

In a letter to the city with the raw data concerning the landfill sampling results, Brower asked the city to send copies of the city's laboratory results to her office for comparison.

Frykberg wanted to thank the entire city for responding to the need. He said this is one of the reasons the city has been granted the excellence award by the governor. He also said when he was at a meeting held in Lansing the next day, he was congratulated several times by others attending for the passage of the bonding issue.

Frykberg then showed the commissioners and the audience part of the tapes that were taken by a television camera that was sent through the sewer system. Many spots were noted where water was infiltrating, along with areas where roots, cracked and crushed tiles were present. According to Frykberg, those were all in areas that will be replaced by new lines.

In other action, the city approved a resolution clarifying the land title on a private piece of property. Somewhere, sometime, the city had its name applied to a title on some private land in the area of Avalanche Preserve. The owner of the property asked to have the city take its name off the title so it could be sold. City officials will be filing a disclaimer of interest in the parcel as they had searched the records and could find nowhere where the city could have title to the land.

Recently, a student and potential athlete of mine came home with a nice looking brochure concerning the track team. I picked it up to read, and while parts of it were interesting, I found the entire manual lacking as far as what a handbook for track should be about.

The only thing I saw in the manual was a list of rules and conduct, all making a negative statement about the program instead of what the beginning paragraphs said was the beginning of building new traditions and new attitudes.

What was missing were these questions. What credentials do the coaches have to coach the sport they wanted to be involved with? Did they participate in track when they were in high school and college? Did they letter at either? Did they set any school, state, college, national, league or conference records? Are they themselves good role models for someone starting out to run?

I also wondered why, with all of the training information available today, there was no list of potential training patterns for long distance runners, sprinters, or field event athletes. Each has to train differently for their event.

I also wondered why nutritional guidelines weren't included.

Strong athletes need a strong base to work from. So far our high school still hasn't shown a real commitment to athletics as they still haven't hired good coaches. And good coaches make the motivation in the student athlete to make a great team.

Sincerely,

Doesn't think you can drive 55 and stay alive

Editor,

In an emergency, I had to make a trip south. I had made this trip before (last summer) but was not behind the wheel. This time I had to drive. Do you recall the saying, "Drive 55 and stay alive"? Not so. You try it and you will be pushed. That's what is meant when they say 55 saves gas. Perhaps someone should invent a shock absorber bumper. The one to your rear could push you with less impact. Someone should get that on the drawing board. How about Marshal Sayles? Fact is, he must be checking out the space plan. He is the first to write about outer space. Fact is, I don't see how Charlevoix County can get along with him and I being absent. Say, I wonder if they do better?

Curt Roberts
P.S. I got pulled over in El Paso. The officer said you were clocked going 70. I said, yes we all were. He gave me a warning.
P.P.S. I hear that Marshal Sayles was told not to bring any coat hangers to Florida any more.

Small "Michigan Tornado Week"

THEY WEREN'T TRAMPS

Around 1908 there appeared at our back door a man who informed mother he was walking to the Upper Peninsula looking for work and as he was hungry, would she give him some food.

There were numbers of these men from the states going north in hopes of finding work in the mining or lumber camps. They weren't tramps. They had neither money nor extra clothing.

Mother prepared him a plate of food and coffee. He sat on the back stoop and ate what she had prepared. Later, out of curiosity, I peeked out to see him and found he had eaten the food and was on his way again.

Again, I say, they weren't tramps, just men "down and out" looking for good honest work.

Governor James J. Blanchard has declared the week of March 22-27 as Michigan Tornado Safety Week and urges all citizens to learn more about protecting themselves from tornadoes and other forms of severe weather.

Michigan ranks third in the number of tornado-related deaths in the country. Since 1950, 230 people have been killed by tornadoes in the state with property loss estimated in the millions of dollars. The high concentration of people in urban areas makes Michigan citizens more vulnerable to the devastating effect of tornadoes.

Capt. Peter Basolo, Deputy State Director of Emergency Services, Michigan State Police, explained that tornadoes usually develop in conjunction with severe thunderstorms. "Community siren systems and the broadcast media alert the public when a possible tornado is approaching, but often it will touch down before any warnings can be issued. When severe weather conditions exist, residents should be aware of the possibility of a tornado and seek shelter," Basolo warned.

A basement offers the greatest safety. If there is none, take cover in the center of the house on the lowest floor in a small room such as a closet or bathroom. If you're in a vehicle-get out and move away from it. Seek shelter in a ditch or a ravine and hold onto something on the ground if possible.

"Don't ignore warning signs and follow safety rules," Basolo urged. Contact the nearest State Police post, local emergency management authorities, police or fire departments for assistance if you need more information concerning tornado safety.

Cancer screening offered

Northern Michigan Planned Parenthood will again offer reduced-rate cancer screening exams during April in conjunction with the American Cancer Society's designation of April as Cancer Control Month.

Morning or afternoon appointments are available and may be made by calling the Planned Parenthood clinic at 347-9692.

The reduced fee of $20, one-third off the regular price, covers the complete exam and lab work. The exam includes: a Pap smear test for cervical cancer; a pelvic exam;

a breast exam and instruction for breast self-exams; colon and rectal screening for women over 45; lung, heart and abdominal check; a urine test for diabetes; and a blood test for anemia.

Alice Clayton, NMPP clinic manager and nurse practitioner, recommends an annual Pap smear for women over age 20 who are in a sexual relationship, or whose last test was more than a year ago.

Women also need contraceptive services, information or counseling may obtain these for a small additional fee.

PUBLIC HEARINGS

BOYNE CITY ZONING BOARD OF APPEALS MEETING

Wednesday, April 8, 1987
5:00 p.m.

Commission Chambers - City Hall

Pursuant to rules and regulations as set by the Boyne City Zoning Ordinance concerning the granting of variances, the Boyne City Zoning Board of Appeals has scheduled three Public Hearings for Wednesday, April 8, 1987 at 5:00 p.m. in the Commission Chambers of City Hall, 319 N. Lake Street, to consider the following variance requests:

- The Water Street Inn, 216 Front Street (Property Tax Code 051-435-003-50), is asking for a variance to install a permanent free standing sign on their property to advertise their business. Free standing signs are not allowed in the Central Business District unless a variance is granted.
- Dr. John Karkosak, 337 State Street (Property Tax Code 051-245-045-00), is requesting a sign variance so that he may be allowed to continue to display three individual free standing signs, rather than a single, stacked free standing sign as allowed as a non-conforming professional office area use. More details will be given at the Public Hearing.
- Brooks-Dietze Development, owners of Parkview Apartments, 326 E. Division Street (Property Tax Code 051-302-011-00), wishes to construct 32 additional apartment units on their present property. Under the density rule of Planned Residential Districts (PRD), they are allowed a total of 50 units. Since 32 units are already existing, their allowable density would limit the number of new units to be built at 18. A variance of 14 additional units is being requested to be granted, so that the total number of units on the 10 acre parcel will equal 64 units, rather than the maximum density of 50 units.

More details and a location map of each of the three variance requests are available for review at the City Clerk's Office. Every property situated within 300 feet of each of these variance locations, is being notified via the U.S. Mail.

All interested persons are invited to attend the Public Hearing on all the variance requests. Additional information is available at the City Hall during regular business hours or call (616) 582-6597.
