

Girl Scouts help with Christmas basket decorating

While it took one person several days worth of time to wrap shoe boxes for Christmas fruit baskets that are given to the needy, it only took a short time when the Girl Scouts from Boyne City joined in with Madeline Streu at the City Hall last Thursday night for a night of fun and work. Putting the gift paper on some boxes were Brenda Kelly, Betty Hull, Michele Pelton and Streu while an unidentified scouter looks on to figure out how to do a perfect job.

About 20 floats will be participating this Friday when Santa comes to Boyne City. The parade will be getting underway about 7 p.m. in the downtown section and promises to have lots of attraction for children and parents.

Plantings so far in the new Peninsula Beach area by the Boyne Valley Garden Club includes Crimson King Maples, locust and spruce trees. The garden club has placed two flowering crabs and plans more this spring while they still are trying to gather donations totalling about $800 to cover the city cost of the grant for the beach project.

The Boyne Falls PTO will be having their annual Winter Sports Exchange Sat., Dec. 5. Items will be available from the Bahnhof and Boyne Country Sports as well as other new and used clothing or sporting supplies. The school cafeteria will be filled with items according to organizers.

Information about medigap insurance policies held by senior citizens is available from the State Department of Insurance. They are conducting a campaign because they believe most seniors have too many policies. According to the Department, one good policy is sufficient. Call the Consumer Office at 1-517-373-0240 for more info.

District Health Department No. 3 has issued a mumps alert after a couple of cases were diagnosed recently. They are asking that parents ensure their children are immunized from that and other childhood diseases. For immunization schedules, contact your physician or the health department at 547-6523.

BC asks letter update of Harborage

While reviewing past minutes of the Boyne City Commission, the newest member of the commission, Sandra Stanley found out the developers of the Harborage have not kept a promise to update yearly a letter of agreement between the developer and the city.

According to Stanley, the last time she found a letter was in 1985 and she said a lot of things have been done at the Harborage development since then that the city was not kept informed of by the promised yearly letter of agreement.

She asked City Manager Randy Frykberg to look into the matter and to see if the city could get an update from the developers concerning the project along the waterfront.

Also along the waterfront, the city agreed to purchase some tot-lot playground equipment for the Peninsula Beach area. The equipment will include a climber, as well as a slide and since it was used as a display model, the city saved a lot of money, Frykberg told the commissioners prior to their vote of approval. The total cost to the city will be $1792.50 for about $5,000 worth of playground equipment.

Keeping with the recreation side of the city, the commissioners approved the spending of $200 in order to get electricity to the new skating rink by Avalanche Preserve. The poles that will hold the lights were donated by Michigan Bell and are currently along Lakeshore Drive. The city crews will be pulling the poles for use at the rink.

In other action, the commissioners heard that two parties have made proposals for the building of large hangars at the airport now that the legalities have been assured by the vote recently. The hangars would be built at no cost to the city and will revert to city ownership in 25 years after they are constructed. One proposal is for a 60 ft. by 80 ft. hangar while the other is for an 80 by 80 ft. hangar.

According to Police Chief John Talboys, who is also a member of the Airport Authority, several other proposals are expected at the next meeting of the Authority. He said possibly six new hangars would be started by next spring.

PRIDE visits EJ for work sessions, assembly

PRIDE (Parents' Resource Institute of Drug Education) chapter from Central Michigan University appeared at the East Jordan Schools for a work-training session and an assembly on November 6. Students from grades seven through twelve were involved. The highly motivated group of college students worked throughout the day in training sessions with small groups from each grade. The culmination of the day was an all-school assembly for grades 7 through 12 during which a spirited musical, dance, and spoken program illustrated the points made during the day's training.

The East Jordan PAC, comprised of parents and community members, sponsored the PRIDE Production by gaining grant moneys to pay its expenses. The purpose behind E.J. PAC providing this program is to help students, parents, and faculty to learn more about the hazards and

Charlevoix County Transit shows plans for new facility on Brockway

Boyne City planners, after having to postpone a meeting last week because of a lack of a quorum, saw a first glance at a proposed site plan for the Charlevoix County Transit Authority.

The Transit authority will be building a new facility on 300 feet of land across the back of the County Road Commission property along Brockway street.

Tentative plans show a 6868 square foot building that would house all of the busses, have a repair and maintenance facility as well as provide the offices for the Transit Authority and the County Commission On Aging.

Current site plans show the building will have one driveway in and out on the property and according to Oral Sutliff, the County Commissioner who chairs the Transit committee, would be sharing gas facilities with the Road Commission.

The Authority hopes to break ground on the building next spring and is working to finalize plans with the architect, Richard White of Walloon Lake.

The property where the building is located was given to the Authority by the Road Commission and will allow the Authority room for expansion if plans require it in the future.

It is estimated the new facility will cost about $300,000.

The reason the Authority showed the plans to the city was a formality. Public entities are expected to meet all codes for building and are not required to come in front of the planners for a site plan review.

The planners asked a few questions about the proposed plan and made suggestions for ingress and egress that the Authority may include as they finalize the drawings.

The planners also recommended two lot splits in other action coming before them.

The first, a lot split that would make four lots out of five was for the Boyne City Schools Building Trades Program. The lots, located on Lewis Street, were made larger

EJ 2nd graders would make Pilgrims proud

By 12:30 the halls smelled of turkey and pumpkin pie and shortly thereafter the 50 second graders were being served mounds of mashed potatoes and cornbread and turkey. Special guests at the meal were Elementary Director Gary Albring and the mothers who had worked so hard to make it possible.

The original Pilgrims ate the first Thanksgiving for several days and surely stuffed themselves. Behind them lay some very lean times when food was very sparse and scarce. Truly the hungry second graders attacked the mounds of food before them with as much zeal for the joy of having made it themselves and having worked hard built appetites. The turkey their Moms or Grandmas bake on Thanksgiving day won't taste any better to these youngsters than the dinner they made themselves!

Occupational Health and Wellness Workshop planned

An Occupational Health and Wellness Workshop will be held Thursday, December 3 from 1 to 4 p.m. in the classroom of the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

The workshop is open to all employers from Emmet, Antrim and Charlevoix Counties and is being co-sponsored by the hospital and Chip Counseling Center. It should be of particular interest to managers and personnel directors.

The theme of this free session will be reducing health care costs, improving employee productivity and generally improving the workplace environment by taking advantage of various occupational health and wellness programs available locally.

Four brief presentations will include:

- "Hospital Based Occupational Medicine Services"
- Merle Plagge, M.D. will discuss how the hospital can help employers cut health care costs and improve productivity through injury and illness care, diagnostic and therapeutic services, referrals and health promotion programs.

- "Stress in the Workplace" JoAnne Lutze, Chip Counseling Center educator, will examine the physiology of stress including typical causes of stress in the work setting and its physical manifestations. She will go on to suggest ways for people to deal with stress when it affects their own work and that of others.
- "Employee Assistance Programs" Kari Walker, Executive Director of Chip Counseling Center, will explain the concept of the Employee Assistance Program (EAP) as a means to help employees deal with personal problems such as substance abuse, anxiety and emotional, legal, health or family problems. He will discuss how an EAP is designed and a company policy developed, the supervisor's role in mandatory versus voluntary referrals, assessment and follow-up.
- "Rehabilitation Programs" Julie Collie of Northern Michigan Substance Abuse Service will describe the components of both inpatient and outpatient rehabilitation programs. She will go on to discuss the employer's role in the treatment network and the costs involved. She will also provide information on rehabilitation programs available in Northern Michigan. There is no cost to participants for this program. However, space is limited so advance registration is requested. Participants may register by calling the hospital at 547-4024.

Don't let the flu get to you

Fall is the transition season between summer and winter. It is also a time to immunize against the upcoming flu season. Influenza (or flu) is a viral infection of the nose, throat, bronchial tubes, and lungs that can make someone of any age ill. Usually the flu occurs from November to April with January, February, and March the worst months.

If you get the flu, you usually have fever, chills, cough, and soreness and aching in your back, arms, and legs. Although most people are ill for only a few days, some persons have much more serious illness and may need hospitalization. Thousands of people die each year in the U.S. from the flu or related complications such as pneumonia.

There is a vaccine and a medication (Amantidine) which can prevent and control influenza. Amantidine is not a substitute for vaccination and is recommended for use under specific circumstances such as unimmunized high risk persons. The vaccine is recommended for use in the elderly and people with other health problems most likely to be seriously ill or to die from flu or its complications. The vaccine is useful for any individual who doesn't want to get the flu or be off work due to illness. High risk groups include:

1. Adults and children with long term heart or lung problems which cause them to see a doctor regularly.
2. Residents of

The Positive Side

"Seek the advice of smart people. No plan is perfect, every idea has it's soft spot."

Jottings

BY JIM SILBAR

"OK," he said, "If you think you know almost everything, then tell me how you would reduce the federal budget better than those guys in Washington."

Not wanting to disturb the guy at coffee, I said "Sure, I will take up the challenge of outdoing all those guys."

So I went home and put on the old thinking cap and thought and thought.

Then, out of the clear blue sky over the weekend, it hit me.

If the feds are going to try to even out the budget with increased taxes, then they must mean some other kind of taxes than the ones we all have to pay called an income tax.

If that was the case, then they are probably talking about some form of excise taxes that would be raised, helping to provide some sort of user tax that will help ease the pain for the rest of us.

Something like the excise tax we all pay when we buy tires, or make long distance phone calls or such, I thought.

So all I needed to do was to create a new form of excise tax for the feds to make additional rules and also make very confusing for the general public.

But, my thought processes are simple, compared to those guys.

So I am proposing that the federates impose a one cent per share excise tax on all shares traded within the stock market.

Then all those Yuppies who are buying and selling shares can help reduce the federal deficit.

I figure that about a million shares are traded each day, which would figure out to about $10,000 in income to the feds for just the big board.

That doesn't sound like much but, using my calculator, that figures out to about $2.5 million each year that could be used to lower the mega budget.

A small sum for the feds to think about, but a large sum for a guy like me who is wondering whether or not we can make enough to come up to the federal guidelines for poverty.

I figure that those Yuppies that will have to help pay for this will be a very small share of the income produced.

That's because most of the shares that are traded each day are done so by the major traders, whose with the mutual funds and such.

So thinking that, I proposed that idea to the coffee companion who thought that since he was out of the stock market, and didn't plan on going back in until after all of the stocks stabilize from the recent "Black" day, the idea might fly.

All the way to the round file on some legislators office floor.

But, I felt I was doing my share, trying to get the federal deficit lower, so that all Americans can continue supporting all of the third world countries and the banks can lend them the money they will never be able to repay.

Opinions

Did school rally really help?

Over the last few weeks, Boyne City has been beset with rallies, for Bendix employees, and the students doing much the same in support of what they thought would help the teachers—a show of allegiance.

But to compare the two would be like trying to compare horses to mules.

In the Bendix case, employees thought their firm was unjustly defamed and they wanted to show the world that the company was not as bad as the television folks said it was.

Their rally was in support of the company and the products they make.

Those employees who marched in the rally on Saturday knew what they were doing, and more importantly, why.

They had the blessing of both management and the union that represents the workers for the rally, with both knowing that a rally would, along with all of the other things the employees did, help restore faith in the company and show how the company's products were made better than depicted to all who were concerned.

On the other hand, the students took what they thought was a good idea, and found out what the "real world" thought.

They jumped into the middle of a bargaining program that hopefully will reach a status where all concerned, the union and the management, would be in agreement.

Traditionally, students have a zeal, that if steered in the right direction, can be a good thing. But when they venture into places they have little knowledge of, the results can backfire on them.

That is why, we can imagine, the bargaining session that night may have had a new meaning. We could see the union negotiators having to answer for actions they may have instigated.

We say may, because the action started somewhere, with a casual remark by a teacher to a show of strength at a school board meeting.

Both seem outwardly actions of a bargaining unit trying to control the bargaining.

The teachers and the school board are being faced with many different issues they have to work out and agree upon, and money or salaries are a small part of the total agreement.

Usually, not everything is set on the table in negotiations, just small pieces, as the give-and-take of an agreement is worked out. If one side gets the upper hand, then the agreement, when it is worked out, may not be as fair as it should be, if the other side gives into the pressures.

In any case, it is hard enough to work out all of the details of an agreement without outside interference.

We feel that the students may have hurt the bargaining more than helped. They don't know what the issues are that are keeping the two sides apart, and neither do we as that is part of the reason for bargaining in private.

We applaud the efforts of the teachers to dissuade the students from their rally, although it shows that the teachers themselves do not have much control over their classes.

In this "Do-what-you-want" world, backed by the many freedoms Americans have, along with the courts' support, could mean an action like that of the students could destroy all of the work that has been done.

We, along with the school system and the teachers, hope that whatever the two sides work out, we can all live with and afford.

We also hope that the student actions did not hinder the process, even though they may be paying for their actions with detentions and suspensions.

Marshall Sayles

Human nature is strong and over powering stuff, but it does have a character flaw. Not everyone understands this. So I shall step to the front of the bus and lay a forefinger upon the shame of it all.

It is merely this: Human beings do not always use common sense. This includes the reader and the man looking over his shoulder.

I have absolute proof of this wide-spread character flaw since I am a part of the vast bulk who wrestle daily with human nature.

Here's a first class for instance:

The other morning I went into the garage, pushed the door up, backed the car out, shut the motor off, got out, and pulled the door down.

The wind was having a skirt-raising November Dance. As I opened the car door to get in, my hat blew off; it skipped along the ground, tumbling out into the tall field grass beyond the lawn.

Human nature grabbed me by the ear, shouting: "Don't just stand there you fool, go get your hat!" So I took off with the speed of a man who had just heard that One Water Street was serving dinner at half price.

The wind kept blowing, the hat kept bumping through the weeds and I kept running. I have had a couple of heart attacks and since then the hospital has raised its prices, but human nature would not hear of it: "Forget all that," it yelled, "or you'll lose your hat."

It was not a November hat. It was a seven year old spring bought Florida hat that wasn't so good anymore. It had shrunk or I had gotten the big head.

Human nature would have no truck with this information. It kept saying, "Chase your hat or you're going to lose it."

My wind gave out before November's fox-trot. The hat was gone. Lost forever.

Poohoy!

There I was, a grown man standing knee deep in field grass, overcome by human nature's shoddy character flaw.

Back in the car I had a wheezing face to face talk with someone who wasn't there. "What in the world is the matter with me? Running like that I could have shaken hands with St. Peter."

A hat chaser does not stand still to see where it stops before going over to pick it up. No. That would eliminate the character flaw and put human nature to shame.

It's like taking your hands off the steering wheel to swat that bee in the car. Human nature says, "Forget the tree that's coming up, kill that bee before you get stung."

Now here's one last for instance:

It is human nature's character flaw that causes a man to watch the six O'clock Washington news when he knows in advance that it's going to make him sick.

If I could eliminate that character flaw, human nature and I would get along just fine.

PORK

On a 2500 year old vase shown in the Louvre in Paris is a painting showing a pig being offered in a ritual slaughter to a god. Swine, both domestic and wild, were linked to the deities in ancient cultures around the world, and used as a sacrifice to many gods. Hence there were taboos against eating pork. The great-grandfather of our modern pigs was the European wild boar.

From my old National Geographic, I find that swine first appeared on earth some 36 million years ago, which makes them somewhat older than man. They were never native to the Western Hemisphere, although there was a close relative, the peccary. When Columbus came, he supposedly left pigs on Haiti when he landed there. From that original stock they were spread throughout the West Indies, many returning to their wild state. There are still descendants of these wild hogs after 400 years on islands off the coast of Georgia and Florida, also some in the state of Florida. On a cold, wet, foggy morning last winter in central Florida, a friend, to my surprise, pointed out a wild boar to me. I was glad that we were riding in the car!

Swine were no doubt on all colonial ships coming to America later; and pork became the main meat for our ancestors all through the colonial and pioneer periods; and they thrived on it! Here are a couple of "Economic Recipes" from an old cook book.

SAUTEED SALT PORK

Cut salt pork in 1/4 inch thin slices, cover with boiling water, and cook five minutes. Drain, arrange in frying pan and cook slowly for five minutes, then more rapidly until crisp and brown on both sides. This is what Grandma would serve with pancakes and applesauce for breakfast or for an unexpected guest when she was caught out of bread. We can now purchase fresh side pork at our supermarkets, and I like to prepare the above meal with it.

Then there is cottage pie which can be made with left-over roast pork or beef.

COTTAGE PIE

1 cup chopped meat
1 cup hot water or gravy
2 cups hot mashed potato
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup hot milk
1 tablespoon butter
few grains celery salt
1/8 teaspoon pepper

Put meat in casserole, add salt and pepper to taste, and the hot water. Mix the remaining ingredients with the mashed potato, and spread on top of meat; bake in hot oven until potato is brown.

Not too many years ago the fatter the hog the better for butchering as our fore-fathers needed the fat for lard and other uses. Now with our vegetable shortenings, the high cholesterol lard is no longer needed and many of us believed that we should cut down on our favorite pork products.

The pork industry has helped a great deal to overcome this. They are now raising slimmed-down hogs; most of our meat now has a lot less cholesterol. They do not fatten them and they are butchered when the hogs are 6 to 7 months old. So enjoy the good pork available. Some experts say that good lean pork has no more cholesterol than breast of chicken.

When I told my friend, Maxine Schlink, that I was writing about pork she immediately invited me to share a meal of spare ribs and sauerkraut, of which we are very fond. Great-grandpa and Grandma made barrel sized crocks full of kraut every fall. What a wonderful way to preserve their cabbage. My friend Rosalyn Chapel gave me this recipe from her fabulous collection. It is another terrific way to serve those two go-togethers.

KRAUT-PORK PINWHEEL

1 lb. ground pork
1/2 cup dry bread crumbs
1 teaspoon salt
Dash of pepper
1/2 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1 lb. can (2 cups) drained sauerkraut
1/4 cup chopped onion
5 slices bacon
1 beaten egg
Combine pork, bread crumbs, eggs, salt, pepper and Worcestershire sauce. Mix thoroughly.

On wax paper pat meat into a 10" by 7" rectangle. Combine sauerkraut and onion, spread evenly over meat. Starting at one narrow side, roll up jelly roll fashion.

Place loaf in shallow baking dish. Arrange bacon slices across top.

Bake in over 350 degrees about 45 minutes or until golden brown and bacon is crisp. Serve with mashed potatoes.

Mashed potatoes are a must with spare ribs and sauerkraut. Maxine puts her kraut on top of the potatoes, just like gravy—mmmm-good! And don't forget the applesauce!

"The Royal Road To Riches." The words headline a full-page advertisement that has appeared for several months opposite the index page of Writer's Digest magazine. Since riches usually mean money, which in this case indeed is true, and since money's something many people wish they had more of - especially writers who generally have little - the ad is bound to be read. And it will get a careful reading by those who believe that money means happiness. But it doesn't always work out that way, even for believers.

The author of "The Royal Road to Riches" ad, John Wright, is convinced it does, though. And he says so as he writes about a secret for making money that he came upon - he doesn't explain how - when he was poor, humiliated and $31,000 in debt. But because of the secret, he now in two hours and be making money in less than twenty-four. "After you get started you can probably do everything that is has "wealth, happiness and... peace of mind."

Once more, John's willing to share all the particulars of his money-making secret. For a mere $12.95 - plus $1 for mailing which he says doesn't nearly cover the cost of this heavy material - others can know the good life John has.

The man has little to say about what the secret is or how it works beyond the fact that it involves a service, one that people will be proud to perform. But he has much to say about what it doesn't take to make it work, like special equipment, a big investment, illegal or physical activity, any personal contact or even a high school education. One can live anywhere, learn how to do it necessary in three hours a week," says John. He reports, though, that he works about four hours a day. But since he tells of owning four homes in Southern California and took a recent vacation trip to Hawaii, upkeep on such a lifestyle no doubt requires more lengthy attention.

In any case, after a third of a page's worth of endorsements from various publications and delighted secret-purchasers, John invites interested parties to send a 45-day postdated check. If after a 30 day trial, the check-writer isn't on "The Royal Road to Riches", John sends the uncashed check back - plus $20 "just for giving the secret an honest try."

But what if the secret brings the money but not the happiness to the check-writer that John claims? The check-writer doesn't get his money back. But far worse, he feels betrayed.

The money has allowed him to buy his heart's desires but hasn't fulfilled his expectations. For instance, a fancy car hasn't brought him pleasure. It's brought him anxiety, especially when he leaves it parked anywhere unattended. Expensive meals in fine restaurants haven't done it either. They've only made his clothes too tight.

If money doesn't bring happiness to these disenchanted, what can? Maybe luck. Not the "winning the lottery" kind of luck, more the "come to think of it" kind, the kind Garrison Keillor explains in his unique, oblique fashion in this observation: "Some luck lies in not getting what you thought you wanted but getting what you have, which once you have got it you may be smart enough to see is what you would have wanted had you known."

Cub Scout Pack 17 active in East Jordan

BY ELOUISE ROSSLER

Cub Scouts in Pack 17 in East Jordan are off and running at full speed this year. The 40 plus young gentlemen are divided into five dens and have various ranks, depending on years and time spent in Cub Scout activities.

Dens 1 and 2 are made up of primarily second graders, with Den 3 being third graders, Den 4 having fourth graders and Den 5 having fifth graders. Each den has been working on projects related to the level of its boys, so they can earn the appropriate badges. Dens 1 and 2 are working for their Bobcat Badges, and many of them will have earned them or have already earned them this fall. Craft projects, learning about Scouts and follow up on Pack meeting programs have filled den meetings.

Future projects for the scouts will be building bird houses, preparing their cars for the Pinewood Derby to be held in January, preparing boats for a Regatta in the spring and the Blue and Gold Banquet in late winter.

Cubmaster Joe Donellan has announced the Pack will not have a popcorn sale this year as Glen's slips have become sufficient for funding needed. This was increased by the gift of a large amount of slips from an anonymous donor. Each den is working, however, to turn in the most green slips as a trip to MacDonald's with free meal goes to the highest den. Highest individuals will also receive prizes.

East Jordan Cub Scouts are: Den 1-Chad Allen, Kevin Allen, Gary Brooks, John Boyer, Charles Hague, Jimmy Gagnon, Mike Mazzella, Brad Carey, Andrew Wood, Nathan Sothard, Jeremy Lord, and Ryan Rossler, Den 2-Stewart Scott, Russell Goodburn, Eric Clark, Bob Kenny, Christopher Vonderan, Christian Vonderan, Tracy Johnson, Den 3-Mark Vincent, Nathan Kenny, Matthew McCoy, Jerril McCoy, Luke Pennington, Shane Swann, Chris King, Ryan Gardner, Bill Thompson, Den 4-Josh Parks, Alan Rossler, Matt Witten, Ezra Jones, Shawn Donellan, Aaron Aydiott, Rocky Spencer, Jason

Cub Scouts Andy Wood, John Boyer, Jeremy Lord, Ryan Rossler and Brad Carey work on seed plaques.

Challenge yourself—Jimmie Heuga USA Express

The Jimmie Heuga USA Express, a national fund raising marathon ski series, challenges you to test your limits and a mountain! Co-ed teams of three will compete to raise the most money from businesses and individuals and be part of a group that attempts to ski more than one million vertical feet in a day.

The USA Express, entering its fourth year, is hosted by more than twenty ski resorts and benefits the Jimmie Heuga Center, a non-profit organization "reanimating the physically challenged." The winning team from each area will receive a trip to Vail, Colorado, April 14-17. There, USA Express winners will compete and participate in the festivities at the 1988 USA Express finals.

At the finals in Vail winners will also have the chance to ski with 30 former Olympic and World Cup skiers, as the Olympians attempt to accumulate a million vertical feet in a single day. Past skiers include Billy Kidd, Phil Mahre, Jean-Claude Killy, Cindy Nelson and other national, Olympic and international celebrities.

During 1987 Sun Valley reigns as the Ski Resort National Champion, with High Sierra Energy Systems from Mammoth Mt. Capturing the Team National Championship.

Jimmie Heuga, a bronze medalist in the 1964 Olympic slalom, is accustomed to such challenges. After he was diagnosed in 1970 with multiple sclerosis (MS), he developed a very successful personal fitness program rather than follow the traditional treatment of non-exertion. "Our goal should be to challenge ourselves based on what we are able to do," says Heuga.

In 1984 he founded the Jimmie Heuga Center, now recognized by medical organizations and the National Multiple Sclerosis Society as an alternative means of health care. The Center, the only one of its kind, seeks to improve the quality of life for persons challenged by chronic conditions through participation in a goal-oriented program of fitness and self motivation.

By participating, you can share in the dream of the physically challenged to lead healthy, active and fulfilling lives. For more information write the Jimmie Heuga USA Express, P.O. Box 5480, Avon, Co 81620 or call 303-949-6550. You may also contact the marketing director at one of the following ski resorts. Planners than originally planned. With the new plans, the smallest lot would be about 79 feet wide instead of 60 feet. It will be up to the City Commission to make the final approval.

The other split was really just a trade of some land owned by Aldwyn Barden and F.O. Barden and Son, Inc. and Elmer Crain. The two will be exchanging some land that runs from East Street to Water Street between themselves and need the lot split to even up property lines. That also will move to the City Commission for final approval.

In service

Army Private William J. Hughes, son of William J. Hughes of Rural Route 1, East Jordan, Michigan, has completed basic training at Fort Dix, N.J.

The planners, with the work out of the way, then tried to name a new member to the board to replace Sandra Stanley. Stanley was elected to the City Commission and can't serve on both boards. Two people were named for the position until a motion to table the matter until the December meeting was brought up by a member.

It was thought that the extra time was needed as the board wanted to fill the vacancy with someone who they feel will do a good job and needed the extra time to consider the names brought to the board.

They then elected new officers to head future meetings. Marty Paul will be the new chairman of the board with Leigh Woodbury serving as vice-chairman. Trudy Clark was named to fill the spot as secretary.

The influenza vaccine is a single flu shot that provides protection against three strains of flu virus. The shot will not protect against other illnesses that resemble the flu and does not begin to provide protection until 1-2 weeks after the injection. Flu shots will not protect all persons who get them against the flu. Possible side effects include soreness for a day or two at the injection site and occasionally may cause a fever or achiness for one or two days. Most people have no side effects from recent influenza vaccines. Allergic or more serious reactions could occur with the flu shot.

Individuals desiring the flu vaccine should contact their family physician, Area Council on Aging, or the Health Department for further information.

Taking a jump shot that went in for two points was this East Jordan player during the matchup between Harbor Springs and the Red Devils. The East Jordan girls went on to win and to continue their quest towards being District Champs. Monday night, the team beat Charlevoix with a comfortable 68-42 win and will be facing Rogers City Wednesday night for the right to go on to the regional play at Roscommon.

Red Devil girls' varsity nips Harbor 50-48 at district tournament

BY DENNIS SKROCKI

The East Jordan girls' varsity basketball squad remained alive in district tournament play after a dog fight with Harbor Springs last Friday in which they managed to survive huge deficits and claim a 50-48 victory.

The Devils trailed 13-10 and 31-24 after the first and second quarters respectively. They outscored the Rams 12-7 in the third stanza and cut the lead to two points, 38-36, setting the stage for a very exciting final period.

Consecutive three point shots in the period's opening minute built up Harbor's lead and confidence. But the never say die Devils held their ground from then on and fought their way back. A Brenda Drenth jump shot with 11 seconds remaining in the contest tied things up at 48-48. Then an erratic inbounds pass by Harbor Springs was recovered by Jill Burt who immediately dished it off to Kristy Miller. Although Miller's shot did not fall, Brenda Drenth grabbed the rebound and put it through the hoop as time expired. Thus raising the roof at the East Jordan High School gymnasium and giving EJ a well deserved 50-48 triumph.

EJ hit 21 of 57 field goals and went 8 of 10 at the freethrow line as Harbor Springs connected on 17 two-point shots and four three-pointers in 59 attempts from the floor and made two of nine at the line.

Offensively Miller led the Devils with 29 points and two assists as Drenth and Erin Snyder scored eight each, Jill Burt added three and Monica Olstrom two. Sara Chase contributed 10 assists.

Miller also dominated from a defensive standpoint with 12 rebounds. Also contributing defensively were Snyder (8 rebounds), Drenth (7), Jill Burt (2), Chase (2), Olstrom (1), Kris Burt (1), and Christie Barber (1). Jill Burt added four steals as Snyder contributed two.

The Red Devils will resume tournament play this week on Monday against Charlevoix. A victory there would put them in the District final against the winner of the Boyne City-Rogers City contest.

Stadt, Tompkins named to league team

In girls' basketball, Mindy Stadt was named to the most Valuable Player list while LaCinda Tompkins was given the honorable mention award among the Boyne City Rambler players participating in their last Michigan-Huron Shores Conference standings.

Charlevoix's Ellen Pearl was named to the first team for her school while Stacy Gebott took the honorable mention award.

One point loss drops BC from tourney

BY SCOTT KNIPE

It was neck and neck the whole evening, but in the end, Boyne City girls ended losing in a valiant effort against the Rogers City Hurons by only one point, 35 to 36 in the wrap-up of the District tournament action for the Ramblers.

Boyne started out ahead, but the second and third quarters saw them fall behind. They made a comeback attempt in the fourth quarter bringing the score even at one point before letting the Hurons score a field goal and a freethrow.

That freethrow was the deciding point as the Ramblers made a basket in the last seconds of the game before time ran out on them and closed down the Rambler season.

Taking the high scorer honors for the Ramblers was Mindy Stadt who hit for 14 points, followed by Marci Center with 10. LaCinda Tompkins also had 10 points with Amy Weeks adding two, Mary Beth Archambault and Tysh Crozier each adding one.

Archambault also had an excellent night on the defensive side, taking 13 rebounds, one assist, three recoveries, a blocked shot while only getting two fouls.

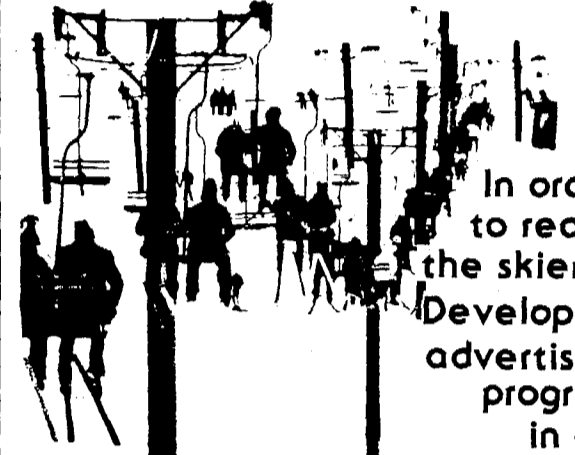

Boyne outplayed Rogers City for most of the game, out-rebounding them 37-27, and shooting better freethrows, 54 percent to 44 percent. But it was the field goals where the Hurons outplayed the Ramblers hitting 37 to 30 percent.

File No. 87-0552-LT
vs.
FRED N. WELCH, GARY SMITH and DeANNA SMITH, Defendant
KLEVORN, DUBOIS & KLEVORN
BY: Kevin G. Klevorn (P35531)

Boyne City, MI 49712

ORDER TO ANSWER
At a session of said Court held in the District Court Room in the City of Charlevoix in said County, on this 17th day of November, 1987.

PRESENT: THE HONORABLE HARVEY C. VARNUM, District Judge

On the 26th day of October, 1987, an action was filed by the Lakeview Village Mobile Home Park, Plaintiff, against Gary Smith, DeAnna Smith and Fred N. Welch, Defendants, in this Court to recover possession of a mobile home lot rented by Defendants and for a Complaint for supplemental damages.

Upon consideration of the Motion of Plaintiff, and the Affidavit in support thereof, attesting to the facts that Defendants, Gary Smith and DeAnna Smith, respectively, cannot be personally served with a Summons and a copy of the Complaint herein because their present whereabouts are unknown, and Gary Smith and DeAnna Smith have no last known address, and that publication of Notice of this action in a newspaper of general circulation is at most likely to give notice to the Defendants, and it appearing to this Court that Plaintiff, after diligent inquiry, has been unable to ascertain the Defendants' residence either within or without the State of Michigan, and it further appearing that personal service of the Summons and Complaint in this action can not be made on the Defendants for the above stated reasons, and that publication is the best means available to apprise Defendants of the pendency of this action.

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that Defendants, Gary Smith and DeAnna Smith, shall on or before the 15th day of December, 1987, serve their Answer on KLEVORN, DUBOIS & KLEVORN, by Kevin G. Klevorn, Plaintiff, whose address is 215 South Lake Street, Boyne City, MI 49712, or take such other action as may be permitted by law. Failure to comply with this Order may result in a Judgement by Default against the Defendants for the relief demanded in the Complaint filed in this Court.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that a copy of this Order be published once each week for three consecutive weeks in the Charlevoix County Press, a newspaper of general circulation hereby designated as most likely to give notice to the Defendants. Publication shall occur within the County of Charlevoix, State of Michigan.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the first publication of this Order be made within ten days of the date of entry of this Order; and that mailing a copy of this Order be dispensed with because Plaintiff cannot, with reasonable diligence, ascertain a place where the Defendants would probably receive matter transmitted by mail.

Date Signed: Nov. 17, 1987

BC jayvees end season with overtime win

BY SCOTT KNIPE
Boyne City's JV girls basketball squad ended up their season last week with a rousing victory over Harbor Springs in overtime, 41-39.

The Ramblers topped Harbor in shooting, hitting 24% of their field goals and 38% freethrows, while Harbor hit only 20% field goals and 17% on the line. Defensively Boyne topped Harbor with 56 rebounds to 46.

High scorer for Boyne was Nancy McCullough with 13, followed by Dawn Archambault with 12.

In another matter, Talboys told the commissioners the proposed 4-way stop sign at the corner of State and East Streets was approved by the state and would, hopefully, be installed before the end of the year. The corner has been the scene for several bad accidents through the years and since it was a state designated highway, the city had no control. They recently asked the state to put a stop sign at that location after an accident sent people to the hospital.

When the Boyne City High School asked the city if they would like the old bleachers being pulled out of the high school gym, the city said yes. But after a discussion as to what the costs may be to remove them from the gym and rebuild them on permanent sites at Rotary Park, the Little League and the high school ball fields, they decided to table the matter until they look into the costs a little better.

The city was alerted to the removal of the bleachers by the school system's superintendent who said the new bleachers were on their way. The city was to take the bleachers down and out of the school as a condition to their use. From there, they would rebuild them on permanent sites and add railings or outside wood as well as welding them together.

DPW head Basil Moore projected it would take two workers from the city about 6 hours each to dismantle the bleachers. That along with the costs of rebuilding them have caused the city to look further into the matter.

It was finally decided to take the bleachers providing the cost of rebuilding and moving them would be less than 50 percent of newly purchased bleachers.

Frykberg is looking into the possibility of finding volunteers to help move them to reduce the cost to the city.

The bleachers would have to be removed and stored prior to the Christmas break for the students as that is when the new school bleachers are expected to be installed.

After the meeting, several commissioners went to the school to see what difficulties would arise with city workers doing the work.

prevention of alcohol and drug abuse.

Students learned skills and information to help them communicate with people of all age groups and outside their usual group, to help develop and maintain self esteem, how to conduct rap sessions, how-tos for better parental-student communication, how to deal with peer pressure, assistance of friends, as well as other activities. The students involved in the training sessions are going to promote and explain these ideas to other students on both a formal and an informal basis. The basic idea is to teach students that they can be attractive, worthwhile, and reach their goals without alcohol or drugs.

Approximately 75 students were involved in the training sessions and the level of involvement and "Pride" increased as the day evolved.

PRIDE is a national organization based in Atlanta, Georgia. The group has trained members from colleges and universities travel to local schools to teach high schoolers, who in turn train middle or junior high schoolers and they sometimes work with elementary students. Follow-up materials and activities are provided by the PRIDE group to the local school. Student evaluations are done at the end of the one day program and after other activities which are used locally.

Simplistic and fun best describe the program which suggests students do such things as tell a teacher they're appreciated, tell a friend that you're glad they are your friend, pick up litter. These simple things open the doors to communication which give opportunities to discuss the uselessness of drug and alcohol use by students. The addition of music and dance make the learning fun and easy, as well as fitting the social aspects of young people.
