

Take pity on city trees

Boyne City trees along the redeveloped Front and Water Streets have had their share of difficulty growing and doing what they are supposed to do, which is to provide shade, some color, and help with esthetics. The trees have been eaten by elephants, or vandalized by Christmas Grinches. This tree, in front of the Lindsay-Campbell Insurance Agency was pulled over until it split last Friday evening. Repairs have been made to restore it, but it will probably have to be replaced next year. The splint and the wire is helping to keep the tree straight through the winter. Residents are asked if they have any knowledge of the damage, to report it to the police and city authorities.

News Briefs

Of the 5.5 million Christmas trees harvested in Michigan this year, one percent or 55,000 will likely be stolen according to Christmas tree growers. To combat the problem, the DNR, state and county authorities will be intensifying patrols around tree plantations and retail lots. Besides plantations, its illegal to remove trees from state lands. With a permit, trees can be removed from federal lands.

After many months of trying, the new 65 mile per hour speed limit went into effect November 29th on many rural interstate highways. This means that I-75 will have a 65 mph speed limit until you reach the Bay City area where it will drop to 55 mph. Still at the 55 mph limit are all roads in Charlevoix County, and all state numbered highways (U.S. 131, for example). The best rule of thumb will be to drive 55 unless posted higher.

It was a normal opening of the ski season at Boyne Mountain, according to Art Tebo, the general manager. He said the area skied about 1000 on both Friday and Saturday, while the rain Sunday kept the crowd down. With weather expected to break downward, and the snowmakers at the ready, the skiing should be good by this next weekend.

Area merchants said that for the most part, they had a good weekend for Christmas sales as the Thanksgiving weekend opened the season. Merchants expect the next few weeks will be even better as those who shop outside of the area will start visiting local shops for gift merchandise.

BC to look at M-75 rebuilding plans

Boyne City Commissioners authorized the setting up of a committee to hear the update of the Harborage project at the noon Tuesday meeting after the urging last week by the newest commissioner Sandra Stanley.

The committee will include Stanley and Thelma Behling representing the city commission as well as two members to be appointed from the planning board. Also included will be the City Manager, Randy Frykberg.

With Frykberg out of the office for the week, Clerk Tom Garlock told the commissioners that a meeting will be taking place next Wednesday with the State Highway Department engineers as they will be present ing to the city preliminary plans for the rebuilding of Boyne Avenue and M-75. The city engineer as well as Frykberg are expected to discuss any infrastructure rebuilding plans on the road at that time.

Plans to have the road repaved have been in process for several years and changes to the roadway have gone from repaving to widening and rebuilding the roadway as it passes through town and goes out into Wilson and Boyne Valley Township.

Garlock also gave an update on the bleachers the city has been given by the Boyne City School District, saying that a way has been found to dismantle the bleachers in the high school gym, remove them, and store them for placement at ball fields next spring.

The city workers are going to start with the removal next Monday after City Commissioner Steve Moody looked at the bleachers and found out whether or not they would be salvagable at a relative cost to the city.

After the city gets the bleachers, they will have to be rebuilt to withstand weather and have safety railings installed on them.

City Commissioners also approved a resolution that will allow the city to collect one-half of the school taxes in the summer tax collection they make.

The taxes will help the school system so they do not have to borrow as much money to carry them through until the winter taxes are paid.

Because the city normally collects their taxes in the summer, there is no interest gained from the collection process.

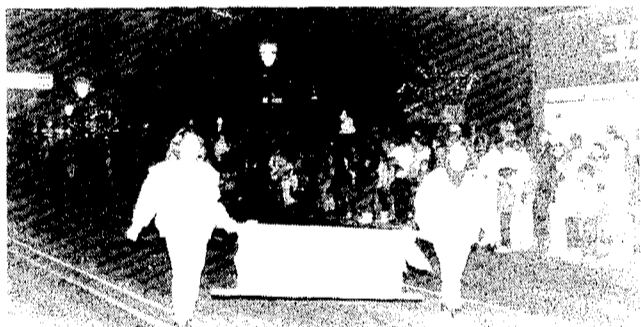

In other news, Garlock told the Commissioners that the work done so far on the infrastructure repair is starting to show up in the savings area.

He said in October, the city pumped 30 million gallons of water into the water mains throughout the town. In November, the pumpage rate was only 25 million gallons, or a savings of five million gallons. He said that the repairs done so far are only a small portion of what is planned and they expect even greater savings after completion of the project of replacing many of the water mains around town.

Biggest Christmas parade ever draws thousands to town

"He showed up," said one young onlooker last Friday night as he looked at Santa. "I wasn't sure he would be here 'cause the parade was so long." That youngster, along with about 2000 others viewed what many said was the best Christmas Parade ever. The parade saw floats from area businesses as well as those from Horton Bay where the Banana Republic folks captured their Windigo and brought him to the parade to pass out candy canes to the youngsters. Of course Santa brought up the rear, much to the delight of the children who then flocked to One Water Street for cookies and a chance to meet the man of the hour.

Arson suspected in Friday fire

Boyne City fireman were called out at 3:30 a.m. to REH Acres last Friday night after the Boyne City Police discovered a fire in a warehouse section of the building.

The warehouse was being used by Fineout Carpet to store carpeting. This fire damage was contained to that part of the building although other portions received smoke damage.

After the fire department put out the fire, it was then discovered the building had been broken into and the fire was intentionally set, according to a Boyne City Police Department release.

The arson is still under investigation by the Boyne City

Sorority announces fundraiser for Hospice

The Eta Nu Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority has announced that a "Tree of Lights" fundraiser for the Charlevoix County Hospice, Inc. will be held throughout the holiday season. The eighteen-foot tree, decorated with colored lights, will be located outside at Stafford's One Water Street Restaurant in Boyne City.

"The object," explains event chair Mercedes Mathers, "is for participants to purchase a light on the tree either in honor or in memory of a person or group. The tree will be lit at 6:30 p.m. on Friday, December 18."

Proceeds from the Tree of Lights will be used to provide hospice patient care in Charlevoix County.

Donations for lights range from $3 for a white light up to $25 for a gold light. The names of persons or groups honored by a light, and their sponsors, will be posted at One Water Street.

Margaret Lasater, Director of the hospice, is enthusiastic about the program. "This is the season when families and loved ones mean so much to us, a time of sharing," she said. "By honoring them with a visual reminder such as a light, we are showing our love for them and are keeping memories alive. This is another form of healing."

Anyone interested in contributing to the Tree of Lights may pick up an order form from One Water Street (drop box available), Boyne Area merchants, the chambers of commerce in Boyne City, Charlevoix and East Jordan, the Charlevoix County Hospice (536-2842), from Eta Nu members or watch the newspaper for insert flyers.

Make sure your vehicle is winterized

Have you lost your "snow legs?"

Winter is coming, and state traffic engineers say it's time to start thinking snow and safe driving. These crisp fall mornings can create problems for drivers unprepared for changes in the road surfaces.

Chilly fall mornings are perfect for a thin coating of ice to appear on bridges even when the roadway remains frost-free. This is caused by cold air blowing underneath bridge decks, causing temperatures to remain colder than on the road surface.

"Icy bridges are usually more of a problem in late November and early December in the Lower Peninsula, and even earlier in the Upper Peninsula,"

Label said. "Drivers should use particular care when approaching bridge decks, even if it isn't snowing."

The best thing to keep in mind as winter approaches is to drive defensively, Label said, and be alert to potential trouble spots.

"You should lower driving speeds, and give yourself more time to get there," he said. "Then give yourself more stopping time when you're approaching an intersection or stoplight, and keep a little more space than usual between you and the next car."

Other things to remember: avoid panic stops and hitting the brakes too hard, which may cause the car to skid on ice and spin. If you need to stop on an icy patch of road, always remember to pump your brakes.

Buckle up with your safety belt. "It's amazing how much you can get jostled around if you're sliding on ice, even if you don't hit anything," said Label.

Once the snows begin, make sure to keep headlights and taillights cleared of snow.

The Positive Side

"Keep growing! When growth stops, death and decay are just around the corner."

Jottings

BY JIM SILBAR

I was hoping that the police chief would say he and his men had put a big dent in the local crime wave, but, in an off-the-record type, casual conversation at coffee, he admitted that what his department has done over the past few years, still hasn't stopped crime from happening.

I have to agree with him, no matter what we do, no matter how severe the penalties, no matter how well we prepare, we will never be able to stop crime.

Sure, we may be able to slow it down a little, but crime can range from a neighborhood school-age bully to a professional hit man with a whole lot of other possibilities in between. Or over, around, behind and along side.

One of the factors we are having to face as this area becomes more and more like a growing, vibrant community, is that crime also grows along with the development of housing, condos, and resorts. I think it could be a fact of life.

Many folks move up north to get away from such stuff as crime. They feel a lot safer here in northern Michigan than they do in the big cities south of us.

But what they perceive as less crime, can also be a large amount of crime for the area. Sure, we don't see the needless killings everyday like we read about in the city, but we still have a certain element that is doing the same sort of things, only to a lesser degree.

I feel sorry for those on our police forces. They work hard at trying to solve some of the growing number of cases each day, only to find a court system that allows the person accused to be free on some sort of technicality, or some sort of bonding that allows him out to walk the streets again.

That is another fact of life.

Part of the blame can be dumped on the lawyers who are working within the system. They are trying their best to defend people and to lessen the impact on the accused, even if they are guilty.

Usually, our police departments are extra careful to provide complete evidence, facts, and information so that when the prosecutor goes to court, he will be able to convincingly convict the accused. Sometimes, the evidence heard at a trial could be called "overkill." But that is only because the jury doesn't hear all of the evidence that is presented, they only hear about half of what is said.

And then they act, along with the judges, to work with the accused to reform him and give him another chance in our society. Work programs are one of the ways the court system is dealing with convicted persons who have had a "lesser" crime.

There are those who say we need to have a new system, but those same people are the same ones who say they can't condone the death penalty, for instance.

All of this is not going to deter anyone from causing crimes to be committed.

Many times our only defense is to make sure the doors are locked, our children are home where we can oversee them, and our prayers can save us.

Takes band to task

Editor

As a graduate of Boyne City High School, I took pride in my school and what it stood for. The Junior and Senior band's appearance was always number one. Much to my disappointment upon seeing the band in the Petoskey Santa parade, I saw this not to be true anymore. Their uniforms were a disgrace!

Turquoise tennis shoes, unhemmed pants and even a person with no instrument in hand! Come on BCHS where's your pride? I'm in hopes the next time I see you perform your appearance is back to where it should be—"Number One!"

Remembrances

In 1928 and 29 in Boyne City High School, there was a senior English class taught by Jeanne Bailey, daughter of WW. It was unique in that we learned more about English literature and how to appreciate it than in all of our preceding years of study. Students acted out Hamlet in the school basement, and learned to love Masefield, Shelley, Keats, Longfellow and many many others. They learned that it wasn't just a school assignment but the stuff of life itself. They not only read and understood it but were inspired by it. All students were certainly not all genius material but they did know enough to appreciate the fact that they had been taught by a truly great teacher. Many were saddened to read the obituary of Jeanne Bailey Houk.

We shall now advance backwards:

Talking and pictures, talking and pictures. After all these years one would think that television would have advanced beyond that. Newspapers seem to be in the same rut: Reading and pictures, reading and pictures.

I don't know what's the matter with them.

Look how others have advanced over the years. I can recall my grandmother chasing a shirt up and down a washboard. And now, today, after a great flurry of inventive smarts, a woman can go to the soap opera while an automatic does the work.

Maybe we should call that a TV advancement: Entertaining people while the work is being done.

Now let me pull another cork from the same bottle.

My mother would find work for us around the house, or my father would have us throwing those five cords of winter chunk wood into the basement. No radio headphones to entertain us while we worked. Throwing wood into the basement to the tune of New York, New York, was a thing of the future.

There are times when things you don't know won't make you mad. And that was one of them.

Truth be told, we had a pretty good time growing up. That's because we lived in a comfortable social period when children had two parents.

CAKES

Yesterday, I was fascinated by a picture on the wall in the doctor's office. It looked like a Norman Rockwell painting of a couple taking down the old wood or coal stove. Soot was everywhere; they were covered with it and I could see the frustration in the faces as they tried to match up the stovepipes with the stove. A tender wave of nostalgia spread over me as I recalled Mother and Dad taking the stove down in the front room every spring so that Mother could do her spring cleaning, then setting it back up again in the fall.

I can see now the beautiful hard-coal stove in the living room. To a small girl it was very big and tall with a ledge on the back for a tea kettle, the old time humidifier. Coal was fed into the stove from the top; I can see Papa lifting his scuttle of hard coal and puring it into the top of the stove every night. Then in the morning he used a poker to clean out the grates, then the beautiful red coals glowed through the door which was made of many small sections of isinglass, a preparation of mica in very thin sheets which one could see through, and also could stand the heat.

Realize now that even as a very young child I was thrilled with the beautiful fire reflecting into the darkening room before the evening lamps were lit. We never know what memories our children will take with them as they grow up. At a very young age we learned the difference between anthracite (hard coal) and bituminous (soft coal) and we knew their names.

Later, we had a soft coal stove which could also burn wood as hard coal was not always available and Papa wanted to use his own wood. About the same time that the stoves were set up, Mama made her Christmas cake; like our fruit cakes it needed to ripen before Christmas. This year I will make this cake for the holidays.

LONDON RAISIN MARMALADE CAKE
 1 cup raisins
 2 tablespoons grated lemon peel
 2 tablespoons rum
 1/2 cup butter or margarine, softened
 1/2 cup honey
 1 cup sweet orange marmalade
 2 eggs
 2 cups flour

2 teaspoons ginger
 1 teaspoon baking soda
 1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
 1/2 teaspoon salt

In small bowl soak raisins and peel in rum; set aside. In mixer bowl cream butter. Beat in honey, then marmalade until well blended. Beat in eggs, one at a time.

Sift together flour, ginger, soda, nutmeg and salt; stir in. Add raisin mixture, mixing just to blend. Turn batter into a 9 inch tube pan that has been greased and dusted with flour. Bake in 350 degree oven for 50 to 60 minutes, until golden and wooden pick inserted into center comes out clean. Cool in pan 10 minutes; invert onto rack. Warm additional marmalade over low heat to melt; brush over warm cake.

Decorate as desired with additional raisins, candied fruits and peels. Courtesy of Calif. Raisin Advertising Board.

Be sure to decorate with some Christmas candies if you have youngsters. That is what I remember most about Mama's cake.

You do not need to wait for a holiday to make this delicious pumpkin cake. Recently, my grandson Joe asked me if I ever needed a recipe. What a question! His girl friend's Mother made these pumpkin squares so he acquired the recipe and brought just one piece for me to sample. He said that the rest was going back to MSU with him.

JOEY'S PUMPKIN SQUARES

That the stock market moved suddenly in a disconcerting downwardly direction on October 19, most people know by now. But while some claim to have the answer as to why, wise men admit they don't know the reason it did so on that particular day. Nevertheless, the Federal Government has declared that it will fix it - whatever went wrong - by working on the country's deficit spending. This sounds fine to me. What doesn't sound so fine, though, is that I'm supposed to be involved in the proof that the government's doing the right thing with this fix by spending freely.

I first became aware of my part in the government plan when I noticed that the newspapers and newscasts were frequently citing polls gauging "consumer confidence". No one was polling about how people felt generally about the stock market slippage and the government's subsequent action - just about how the consumer part of them felt, the part that controls their willingness to buy. And government officials spoke glowingly when the confidence rating held up reasonably well and congratulated the public on their grand American spirit. And I felt out of it.

It's not that I think that the government's idea of working on reducing the national debt isn't a good one. I do and for a number of solid reasons.

Take our allies, for instance. Their leaders have been making rude remarks about our budget deficits for quite some time. This should brighten up our image with them.

Our politicians and economists too have been saying that the national debt is getting out of hand, which is a fair point seeing as budget deficits have almost tripled in the last six years. Granted, economists don't uniformly agree that a big national debt means big economic trouble. Still, this kind of rapid "upward mobility" in this area seems a bit much.

Also, and a big reason for going after the national debt, is the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings deficit reduction bill signed into law last year. It calls for budget cuts every year until the national debt simply isn't anymore. For fiscal '88, $23 billion worth of cuts must be made, and soon. If they aren't, or taxes aren't approved that get the same results, the law takes over and lops a fixed percentage off the amount allocated for every item in the budget to get the job done. This prospect pleases no one on Capitol Hill.

But the biggest reason for the frenzy of budgetary activity from the government's viewpoint seems to be this "consumer confidence" thing. It wants to show that there's fiscal responsibility "at the top" so the consumer will feel confident about the future, confident enough to buy at a steady clip and thus keep the economy buzzing along.

But I can't do that, buy at a steady clip. I learned economics from my father, a lifelong practitioner of the World War II slogan: "Use it up, wear it out, make it do or do without." With this background, I make a lousy spender and for now, a poor patriot.

And so I've decided to write a letter to the President explaining how it is with me and offering, instead, to wave a flag on Thursday mornings to show my patriotism. I think he'll think that's good enough, especially if I promise to wave it very, very confidently.

Check your car's liquid diet as winter approaches

Along with a good tuneup, the correct help ensure quick battery and recent engine oil also can vehicle starts this winter, reports AAA Michigan.

The Big Three U.S. automakers now recommend SAE 5W-30 oil for winter use in most models to improve starting, cold-weather performance and fuel economy.

Most owner's manuals state that 5W-30 can be used if the outside temperature does not exceed 60 degrees and should be used if the temperature is below zero degrees.

Because SAE 5W-30 has a lower viscosity level than SAE 10W-30, the oil is thinner and less likely to become thick and gluey when temperatures drop, thus ensuring that engine parts can move freely.

To prepare for the height of winter, drivers should change oil in November or December.

The owner's manual or marks on the engine oil-filler cap should state which oil the manufacturer recommends.

'LIQUID DIET' ESSENTIAL FOR WINTERIZING CARS

Throughout the year and especially in winter, vehicles need special attention and a "liquid diet" to keep them operating efficiently. By checking the six fluid levels listed below before winter arrives, motorists can help ensure their vehicles will be prepared properly for cold-weather operation. Check owner's manual for fluid-level inspection directions. The key fluids include:

- Antifreeze—Use hydrometer to check strength of antifreeze in radiator. Proper mix is 50 percent water and 50 percent antifreeze. Mixture should be good for up to 37 degrees below zero.
- Motor Oil—Use dipstick to check oil and add when fluid reaches the add mark. Use SAE 5W-30 oil to improve fuel economy and cold-weather performance.
- Brake Fluid—Fluid level should be within one-quarter inch of the top of the reservoir.
- Power Steering Fluid—Check indicator stick and, if needed, add slowly to avoid overfilling.
- Automatic Transmission Fluid—Check with indicator stick generally located behind engine on passenger side. The car should be parked on a level grade with the engine running.
- Windshield Washer Solvent—Keep the reservoir filled with solvent.

I am now going to chop this off, not because what I say may upset some people, but rather because my head is so small it won't hold all I know about it.

I spent Thanksgiving afternoon watching the Detroit Lions play a high school game of football against the Kansas City Chiefs. The Lions are a poor excuse for a professional team. They acted as though the worst part of the day was the night before. Every time they got the ball I was hoping they would show the enthusiasm of a cow that had just had some turpentine poured into its ear.

At this writing there isn't one flake on the ground around our house, or anywhere else in Boyne City. Maybe when you read this there will be a few snowflakes to make it look like winter. (Hold it right there. What kind of flakes did you think I was talking about?)

East Jordan girls' varsity claims district title

BY DENNIS SKROCKI
Last Wednesday, November 25, the East Jordan girls' varsity basketball squad downed Rogers City 47-37 in front of an ecstatic home crowd that turned out to witness EJ capture its first ever district title in girls' basketball.

The Red Devils jumped out in front early and held the lead throughout the entire contest. They led 13-7 at the conclusion of the first period and extended the margin to nine points, 23-14, at the halftime intermission.

EJ took total command in the third stanza as the defense denied the Hurons a single basket and the offense poured in 16 points, thus making the score 39-14 at the beginning of the final period.

Rogers City outscored the Devils 23-8 over the last eight minutes but that wasn't enough as EJ held on to claim not only a victory but the district title as well.

The Devils connected on 19 shots from the floor and went 9 of 17 at the free throw line as the Hurons hit 11 from the field and canned 14 of 26 at the line.

Kristy Miller led the EJ scoring attack with 22 points as Jill Burt added 11 and three assists. Erin Snyder, Brenda Drenth, Sara Chase, and Kris Burt all contributed three points as Christie Barber came up with two.

Miller also led the way defensively with 13 rebounds as Drenth added eight and Kris Burt came up with five. Also contributing to the defensive cause were Olstrom (4 rebounds), Snyder (4), Jill Burt (3), Dawn Noiro (2), and Dia Jones (1). Jill Burt also added four steals.

The victory advances the Devils to the Regional tournament in Roscommon where they will face Benzie Central on Tuesday, December 2.

The girls advanced to the district final contest by claiming a one sided 68-42 victory over Charlevoix on the Previous Monday.

EJ led by five points after the first period and extended it to 20 at halftime as they outscored the Rayders 25-10 in the second quarter.

The Devils continued the route in the third stanza by outscoring Charlevoix 16-10. Both squads hit 12 points in the final period, thus giving EJ the 68-42 triumph.

From the floor the Devils hit 31 two point shots and one three pointer while going 3 of 6 at the free throw line. The Rayders sank 20 two-pointers from the field and went a perfect 2 of 2 at the line.

The Red Devils had three players in double figures as Miller collected 20, Jill Burt 16, and Chase 11. Also scoring were Jones (8), Drenth (6), Snyder (4), Olstrom (2), and Christie Barber (1). Chase added eight assists as Miller contributed five.

Defensively Miller led the way with 17 rebounds as Drenth collected 10 and Olstrom and Burt each crashed the boards for five.

New coach hopes he and team will make BC a threat

BY SCOTT KNIPE
 "A lot of our success will depend on how our young kids play," said Boyne City's newest basketball coach Mike Wallace as he commented on his hopes and goals for the upcoming season start against Harbor Springs this Friday.
 "With six juniors and three sophomores, we are going to have to work extra hard to make up for our inexperience," he continued.
 Wallace said that this year's roster includes only four returning seniors, with the rest of the squad made up of underclassmen. Wallace said the first two or three games may show a few of the sophomores playing for the jayvee team one week, and then the varsity team. This way he and jayvee coach Tom Neidhammer can determine which they are better suited for, and see where they lack experience or need additional training.

 Wallace fully expects all three sophomores, currently practicing with the varsity, to be playing full time with the varsity by the middle of the season.

He seems happy with the team so far. With five men topping 6'3", and having the leagues' highest scorer in the ranks, there is no reason why he shouldn't be glad but he is concerned with the team's lack of experience.
 Another thing facing Wallace is that he hasn't seen what kind of basketball most of the teams play, whether they tend to go to man-to-man coverage or to a zone type of defense. He is training the team for either type of play and the height should help this season.
 "The team has good potential.

We're as tall as anybody and fairly quick. If the team can rebound and shoot well, we should be able to play with anybody," Wallace stated.
 So far, Wallace has been teaching the team a primarily man-to-man style of defense. Wallace said he wants the team to be constantly aggravating and pressuring the other team. When they play a zone defense, Wallace said it will be a press or zone trap.
 "I like an up-tempo game. I like the fast break," Wallace says with a bit of a smile.
 Wallace is hesitant to divulge information on the kind of offense the team will present, but he is sure he can keep the opposing team guessing at what the next move of the Ramblers may be, and hopefully, keep them guessing wrong.

 The starting line-up has not yet been well defined. So far the point guard position is under contention with both Mark Harris and Scott Hammontree fighting for it. Other positions are sure to be filled with Mike Deschryver, Tom Miller and Aaron Richards.
 Wallace's outlook on the season shows that he expects "...the team to improve, but it is hard to say how much. I figure we should be able to win ten to fifteen games, but we're also capable of losing ten to fifteen. It is up to the kids."

 Last Saturday during a practice session, Wallace told his team where he had read that Boyne was not considered a threat in the conference this season. He and the team would like nothing better than to prove that statement wrong.
 Wallace came to the school with a winning tradition behind him. From his playing days in high school in the Flint area, to the schools where he has coached previously, he has developed teams that have gone on to the additional tournament play after the district level. Wallace said he hopes to have the team in contention as soon as possible for those tourneys.

College basketball came to East Jordan last week as these two teams, Lake Superior State and Grand Rapids Baptist met in a season opener at the high school gym. It is not often colleges will play in high school settings, but thanks to the East Jordan Boosters Club and Mike Burr, the two teams met on neutral grounds.

College basketball visits East Jordan

BY DENNIS SKROCKI
 Last Tuesday, November 24, college basketball came to East Jordan as Lake Superior State College and Grand Rapids Baptist College, two NCAA Division III schools, squared off in the high school gymnasium.
 The contest was the first of its kind in East Jordan. It was organized by Mike Burr who came up with the idea and discussed it with LSSC Coach Bob Eldridge while officiating a game at the school last February. Eldridge found it to be a worthwhile proposal and agreed to bring his team to East Jordan. Grand Rapids Baptist Coach Phil Hoskins also found it good, basically because it cut down his squad's travel time.
 The contest was highlighted by aggressive play and a fast pace that showed a different type of basketball than that usually seen in this area.

 The Lakers led 46-37 at half-time and outscored the GRB Comets 65-54 in the second half to capture a 110-91 victory.
 Lake Superior guard John Gilbert stole the show with an impressive 47 point effort. Other Lakers hitting double figures were Chris Wooley (13) and David Jokisch (12). Many eyes were on LSSC freshman Rick Gray of Gaylord. Gray, playing in his first college game, scored four points and pulled down two rebounds.
 Scott O'Day led the Comets with 23 points as Mike Angus scored 22.
 Depending on the success of this contest, future games may be a possibility.

Meeting Santa Claus has to be one of the great experiences in your life. New basketball coach, Mike Wallace, probably had his kids ask for a winning season for their dad.

Former BC athlete honored with naming of gymnasium

Robert L. White, a former Boyne City athlete and a Western Michigan College graduate was honored by the high school in which he worked by having the high school gymnasium named in his honor.
 White graduated from Western back in the early thirties and was hired by the Akron, Ohio school system to teach elementary physical education. After being recognized for his fine characteristics, he became a basketball and track coach at North High School.
 During his career, his teams won two Ohio State championships in basketball and he was the only Akron coach to ever win a state championship in track.
 White retired from teaching and coaching in 1972, but has had a continuing relationship with the school since, which resulted in the gym being named for him. He will be honored at a special ceremony December 4.

Bernadyn experiencing life in Germany

For Americans serving on duty with the military in this north German seaport community, life is a series of contradictions—separated from most other American military units, life here can be confusing, lonely and downright inconvenient. It can also be a refreshing change of pace, an opportunity to see a part of Europe few American soldiers get to experience, and a chance to get away from the typical "GI town" atmosphere.

But for a Boyne Falls man, life in Germany stationed at this northern seaport, far removed from the "mainstream" American military, can mean adjustments—to a way of life that often times is taken for granted until their arrival here.

Army Sgt. John E. Bernadyn, son of Frank G. and Mae J. Bernadyn, Route 1, 232-A Romanik Road, Boyne Falls, is one such soldier that finds life away from "mainstream" Army anything but "business as usual."

"When I first arrived in Frankfurt, West Germany, in 1984, it was pretty much what I expected. But when I left there last January to come up to Bremerhaven, it definitely was not what I expected," remarked Bernadyn.

"Bremerhaven is right on the North Sea; in fact my company is about 2,000 meters from the sea. It's windy most of the time, and where Frankfurt was more like living in a city, Bremerhaven is more like living at a harbor."

Bernadyn says that while life in Germany may not always be idyllic, it does have its good points. "I like Germany! The beer is stronger and I've had the chance to travel throughout the country, mostly visiting many of the castles that date from the 1600's."

But there are some bad points like the dollar is very low against the German Mark right now, and being stationed in a foreign country means I'm away from my family. I also don't have all the shopping conveniences like I do in the States."

The 1983 graduate of Petoskey High School is a heavy motor transportation operator assigned with the 69th Transportation Company in Bremerhaven. "I drive a 14 1/2-ton truck all over Germany and sometimes into Holland, Belgium, and Denmark. I drive thousands of miles a year and really enjoy what I'm doing, especially since I'm in the number one transportation company in Germany. During the last three years my company has logged over 4 million miles on the road."

AAA offers fire tips to local students

A AAA Michigan safety consultant will demonstrate fire prevention and escape techniques to students at two area schools to help reduce the number of fire-related deaths to youngsters aged 5 through 11 years.

Students from East Jordan Elementary School, 304 Fourth St., East Jordan will attend programs at the school on Tuesday (Dec. 1). Boyne City Elementary School, 930 Brockway, Boyne City will host a program Friday (Dec. 11).

"There were an average 304 fire-related deaths annually in Michigan between 1976 and 1985 and an average 100 of those killed annually were children aged 11 and under," said Robert V. Cullen, AAA Michigan Safety and Traffic manager.

Students who attend the demonstrations will be able to identify the warning sound of a smoke alarm and learn exiting procedures when smoke is discovered. Students also will learn what to do if clothing catches on fire and the necessity of staying low when smoke is present.

Potential fire dangers from matches, heating sources and electrical fixtures and outlets will be emphasized along with procedures for reporting fire or smoke conditions.

Students will receive take-home handouts to review with parents and coloring pages which highlight the necessity for escape drills in the home and identifying two ways out of every room. The materials also recommend that parents should designate an escape meeting place outside the home.

More than 70,000 students at 175 Michigan schools will receive the AAA-sponsored demonstrations during the school year.

police, the Michigan State Police Petoskey Post and the Gaylord Fire Marshall Division.

Damages caused by the fire were not given a dollar amount as of press time Tuesday.

Police later that same night arrested Paul R. Hufford, 22, of Boyne City on a charge of larceny over $100. He allegedly raped a 15-year-old Boyne City girl in Boyne Valley Township. The girl was raped and beaten, according to authorities and had to be transported to Northern Michigan Hospital for treatment.

Boyne City Police are also looking for answers as to who broke a window at Moore's Hardware and trashed a public telephone near the Chamber of Commerce office. Both those cases are under investigation by the department.
