Wow! Boyne, EJ busy throughout weekend

"What a way to start the summer", was one remark of a Boyne City businessman after looking at how much business his firm did over the three day Memorial holiday.

His remark was echoed by others within the community that is most effected by tourists, namely the bars and restaurants. All said that their weekend was good.

But they also said it was about the same as last year although one merchant said the start appeared to be as good as 1980.

With the good weather, the visitors had plenty to do as they went around the area. Boating was good, and swimmers, who usually don't go in the water until the Fourth of July, were seen using the public beach in Boyne City.

The children seemed to enjoy playing in the sand and running into the water to cool off. Temperatures were said to be in the area of 90 degrees.

All in all, according to some observers, it was the best start to the summer season they have seen in years.

Boyne City starts litigation to enforce ordinance

City commissioners authorized City Attorney Bill McTagart to start litigation against a homeowner who refuses to remove a group of cedar trees the homeowner is using as a visual screen. The trees are too close together and are too high according to the zoning ordinance of the city.

The matter has been a problem with the city and a neighbor since December of last year and the neighbor asked the city what could be done about the hedgerow of trees.

The city wrote various letters to the homeowner, Robert and Judy Kostin, Front Street, Boyne Street, trying to resolve the matter.

The problem comes from the wording in the zoning ordinance which says that a hedge cannot be more than six feet tall. City Manager Randy Frykberg estimated the cedar trees are about 10 feet tall.

But the Kostins, according to McTagart, say that the group of trees are just that, trees, and that makes the issue fall into another part of the ordinance.

The neighbor, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Roof, filed the complaint after not being able to resolve the matter. The hedge, as they call it, blocks off air flow and the view of the lake.

The city contends the trees are used as a hedge and should fall under the ordinance.

The city planning board is also looking at the problem and is working on clarifying the ordinance so that the problem will Workers completed the installation of the new spire of the Methodist Church in East Jordan recently. The spire and the steeple were donated to the church by the Vance Memorial Fund.

EJ United Methodist Church gets new spire

BY ELOUISE ROSSLER

Standing tall against the azure May sky is the Vance Memorial Steeple erected atop the East Jordan United Methodist Church May 18, 1988. A base for the steeple, built by church member Doug Sumner, was carefully lifted atop the existing bell tower. A few small May breezes gave the sizeable audience some breathtaking moments as they moved the base to and fro slightly while it was dangling by one slender cable and a crane. Slowly and carefully workers from Behling Construction Company and Doug Sumner guided the base to its proper position.

The twenty foot aluminum spire and cupola, topped by a gleaming cross, was placed on the base and carefully secured.

A dream has been brought to fruition and the Vance Memorial Steeple is a reality. The family and friends of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon (Ruth) Vance along with their son Bryce Vance proudly have made the steeple possible by generous memorial gifts.

Mr. and Mrs. Vance were married in May, 1919, in the church parsonage and were active members until their respective deaths in 1985 and 1986. Bryce Vance, Vernon and Ruth's son, was a lifelong, active member until his death in 1987. The steeple will be a fitting reminder of the contributions of the Vance family for many years to church and community.

In October, 1987, the East Jordan United Methodist Administrative Council voted to purchase an Ameray Steeple from Ameray Manufacturing, Inc., Troy, Michigan, with funds from the Vance Memorial Fund. The Church Trustees were charged with making the arrangements for design and construction of a steeple base. The base had to be designed to fit the existing bell tower, built in 1927.

The Methodist Church was organized in 1879, although circuit riders such as Amos Williams (who named the river Jordan) had been in the area as early as 1850. In 1886, the present site was bought and the groundbreaking for the building was on May 21, 1886. In 1926 the first building was almost totally destroyed by fire, including the steeple. In the spring of 1927 the congregation moved into the basement of the new structure until the sanctuary was completed. A square bell tower replaced the damaged steeple until the setting of the Vance Memorial Steeple.

"Fear not that you might love and lose, fear rather that you might never love at all."

Jottings

BY JIM SILBAR

Have you ever tried to get things done around the house when you have teenagers? Do they do anything you ask? Or do you have to plead, cajole, beg, and finally threaten?

Or are your teenagers one of the few who do follow directions without talking back or saying they'll do the job "In a few minutes"?

Usually, the job you have asked them to do is something rudimentary. Like picking up their shoes from in front of the television set. Or hanging up a coat.

Maybe it is something big, like asking them to go into the room they call home and clean out about a year's worth of mess.

At that command, you might as well forget it, because of all the "treasures" they have stored on the floor, they will want to keep. That old pair of jeans that should have been thrown out, are all of a sudden, an item that is sorely needed, important, and wearable, even with so many holes it looks like the moths were the size of a woodpecker and decided to change habits from wool to cotton.

Or that sweater that was last used in the blizzard of '86. Can't find a place in their heart to hang it up or fold it away and put it on a shelf to await the next blizzard.

No, if the kid is a typical teen, the room is a mess, and we parents will never be able to discern why, or will never find out the reason you raised such a child. After all, you didn't have a messy room when you were a kid.

Or did you? Me, I will admit to being messy. But then I didn't live at home my last two years of high school, as I was going to school here in the northland.

But I will admit that I wasn't allowed to have a messy room.

They, the instructors and counselors of the school, would inspect the rooms every day to make sure the clothes were neatly put away and the bed was made.

This was also true of the days in the service. I learned a bed should be tucked in so tight, a quarter would bounce at least six inches into the air if it were just tossed upon the bed.

And a sergeant was waiting in the wings to make sure I, and a whole lot of other guys, knew just what was expected.

Needless to say, I learned how to make a bed. Even my wife was surprised when I made up the bed shortly after we were married. She didn't think I knew how to make the hospital corners she was taught in nurses training or from her mother.

But I knew and I guess I passed inspection because we are still married.

Hey, you like to screw up polls like I do?

Like to give answers that are absolutely not the answer the poll taker is looking for when they ask questions?

I did that on a poll I was asked to take last week, and I see I have another opportunity to do the same by our competing daily.

So I went and told them I only read the Charlevoix County Press and the other newspapers from downstate.

I hope a lot of folks take the time to fill out their poll and put us down as being a first read newspaper. Go ahead, do it.

Speaking of newspapers, I had a chance over the weekend to read one of the Booth Chain of newspapers that someone brought up north.

I must say I enjoyed reading it. It had lots and lots of state news that our local daily doesn't carry. It also had a lot of news about the tourist season and where the most pressure for tourists will be this season.

Charlevoix County wasn't listed as the top spot, so someone had better send out letters telling people to come up around here. We need players to play our golf courses, eat in our restaurants, ski our slopes in the winter, and enjoy themselves almost as much as we do year-around.

Too bad our neighbor daily from another town doesn't carry this kind of material. I like it better than reading about the blood and gore in Detroit or Chicago.

Just like I like reading the hometown newspaper.

With the setting of the new gazebo roof, it brought to mind this view of the Old City Park in Boyne City when it was one of the few parks in the community. Pictured is the fountain, which is now a flower garden, and the old gazebo is in the background along the right side of the picture. If you have any old pictures of Boyne City, East Jordan or the surrounding area, bring them to our office and we'll make a copy for this feature.

The butterflies and the bees and our lilac bush are telling us that summer has at last arrived.

New findings now say that we live in what is probably the fastest growing tourist and resort area in the nation. Communities from Traverse City to Mackinaw City are attracting people not only from around the United States, but from foreign countries as well. Take Boyne City as an example. It's becoming so crowded there isn't hardly any space where nobody ain't.

And in that connection:

All of us know at least one person who came here from the busy haunts of men, purchased land, settled down in a house near the lake and then proceeded to ask that all progress in this area be stopped.

People our age (go look into the mirror) live in what I call the Pill Generation.

If the doctor doesn't prescribe a wonder drug, we try finding something at the pharmacy, anything that will soothe these aches and pains and return our loins to active duty.

Many of us with a Charley horse throughout our system are over medicated, not deathly sick, really, but kind of dumb, headache and over the hill. Dumb because we can't catch on to the way the world is spinning. The new life styles won't quit. Personally, it is quite difficult for me to live with a guitar and a screech.

Age is asking us, "What in the world happened to yesterday?"

The society of the pooped finds it quite disgusting to give the doctor and the drug store each monthly social security just to keep us in touch with this twentieth century merry-go-round.

But let's not kid ourselves. Bathroom pills and a glass of water ain't going to stop it, that's for sure.

I wrote the above in a state of misery that came upon me when I discovered that I can no longer dance by the light of the moon.

East Jordan library has big problem with overdue books

BY DARLA LOOZE

The vast amount of overdue material at the Jordan Valley District Library has become a serious problem, according to a library spokesperson.

According to the director of the library, Mickey Hamerski, on any given day there will be as many as 30 people who have overdue material. "It is really a waste of our time and we want to get a complete inventory of all material before we move to our new building at the end of this year," she said.

"If a book is overdue by one week we call the people and inform them there is a 5 cent fine per book per day until the material is returned," Hamerski said. "If they can't be reached by telephone we send them a postcard with the same information. Also, many people don't realize they can renew material over the telephone."

Hamerski also said the local police department has been given the names of the people with the delinquent material and has been very good in their efforts to help the situation.

While all materials in a public library are for the use and benefit of all, abuse of this privilege, according to the statutes of the State of Michigan, constitute a misdemeanor.

"We used to let people keep books out for two weeks and then last year we extended it to three weeks, thinking it would help the situation, but it hasn't," said Hamerski. "If the material isn't returned, we will take the appropriate steps to see that it is."

Library privileges are suspended when an overdue fine for any materials loaned from the library reaches the amount of $5. This privilege is not reinstated until the fine is paid in full.

Anyone with overdue material from the Jordan Valley District Library is asked to return it as soon as possible or contact them at 536-7131 to renew the material.

When warm, sunny days point toward summer, and friends speak of "opening up the cottage," my mind sometimes picks up decades-old images of summers our family spent near Poplar, Wisconsin, at Bowinaga. The name we devised from those of my parents, Bob and Winnie, my sister's, Nan, and mine. We loved this place, especially the dwelling extending out from a slope above a brook that ran 50 yards or so inside the south shoreline of Lake Superior. But it never seemed to reciprocate. Acceptance, short-term, was all.

My father bought the place, 40 acres of tax-delinquent woodland, the smallest parcel available, when I was six. He built the house with lumber milled from the trees he felled. Ours was more a cabin than a cottage, a long one-room structure plus front porch. It had no interior walls nor any electricity nor plumbing but for a rain barrel. Of course, he built a "biffy" too, a two-holer with a grand view.

Each year in June as we hobbled down the trail to the cabin after the long drive from St. Paul, we could tell at a distance that the cabin didn't welcome us. The rain barrel, its platform canted by the frost-heaved ground, reproached us. And the windows and the porch looked awkward and resentful all covered up with the weather-beaten grey, wooden armor. Even the varnished, amber pine siding appeared sullen and dull.

After we unlocked the back door, it shrieked on being swung open. Once inside the murky cabin, the stale air mixed with the odor of untidy mice hung heavy.

With shutters off and windows open wide, we breathed easier. But the lighter atmosphere didn't take away the sense of being outsiders in this, our summer home.

We always tread softly, spoke low, initially. But this soon gave way to frantic settling in. Mom cleaned out the drawers and cupboards of mousy souvenirs. Dad hauled and Nan and I lined up books on the block and board shelves. We always brought 84 library books, 21 per person, the limit for summer, plus other beloved volumes like "The Wind in the Willows". The cleaning and book display helped.

But mostly time and usage made the cabin seem more friendly. The doors began to quit their protests. Then the window cranks turned with less fuss. The bunk springs never ceased to complain but their users ceased minding it.

By mid-July the place seemed more relaxed with our occupancy. Or perhaps only we were. In any case, probably the thing that turned it, or us, around was the sound of our voices day after day filling the place, especially our laughter.

Dad sold Bowinaga to friends when Nan and I, as teenagers, got more attuned to boys than balsam trees. The friends used it for six years and then sold it to the Boy Scouts.

I heard a few years ago that the cabin is gone. Over the years, the lake moved its shoreline further and further inland until waves could reach and collapse the cabin's supporting pillars.

But I remember Bowinaga as it was with the cabin whole and sound. So in the spring, when I hear mention of "opening up the cottage", I can always go back there. And I sometimes do.

not occur again in the future. They have been working on the proposed changes to the ordinance and will be taking it up at this month's planning board meeting after delaying it last month.

When the Roof's asked the city how long it may take to resolve the problem in court, they were told it may take months or years. McTaggart said he will be filing the matter with the court within the next two weeks. He said the last time the city wanted to enforce a zoning matter, it took several years.

In other action at the Tuesday noon meeting, the commissioners had hoped to take a look at a cube-type van they are considering buying for the water department. The van was supposed to have arrived in time for the meeting. If the city does buy the truck, they will install shelving and make it a supply van which would be used to help repair water main problems. The truck will be loaded with supplies which would eliminate the need to have someone return to the warehouse for needed equipment everytime a main breaks.

The money the van will cost has been budgeted by the city and, according to Frykberg, looks like this truck will be under the budgeted amount of money.

When it arrives, it will be checked out prior to purchase by the city mechanic and the department heads involved.

On May 20, 1979, Centennial Sunday celebrated 100 years of service to the community. May 18, 1988, adds a new chapter to the church history as the Vance Memorial Steeple stands tall and reflects the brilliant sun rays against blue sky above freshly leafed trees.

On July 24, 1988, a formal dedication of the steeple will be held. The entire day from morning worship service until a late afternoon reception will be a celebration of thankfulness for the lives in whose memory so many family and friends wish to commemorate.

THE FORMS OF ABUSE

In the mind of the public, child abuse is frequently related to the infliction of physical injury. However, child abuse takes other forms from which children are entitled to protection. For instance, a child should not even be subjected to an environment which poses the risk of physical injury. Any parent or guardian who subjects the child to an injurious environment or otherwise fails to support the child is considered to be neglectful. In addition to the physical aspects of child abuse, a child should not be subjected to emotional neglect or psychological abuse. Failure to remove a child from such threats to emotional well-being is also considered to be neglectful. Anyone can report a case of child abuse to the proper authorities in an effort to protect a child's rights.

Neglectful parental behavior includes leaving a child at home without proper supervision in the parent's absence.

Doesn't want Michigan to have radioactive dump

Editor,

Will we allow Michigan to become a Radioactive Waste Dump for not only our own waste but also the radioactive waste generated by 6 other states?

Michigan is now a member of the Midwest Compact which is made up of 7 states. We have been the state chosen to be the sole host of a radioactive waste dump to be used by all the seven states. This dump site will be built above our ground water level. We are being told by our government that this site will hold only low level waste, which is a misleading statement meant to allay our concerns. Although medical and research waste is almost entirely low level and relatively short lived; only 5% of the total generated waste is from medical and research facilities. The other 95% is coming from nuclear reactors and includes significant quantities of extremely high level waste, such as Carbon-14, Niobium-94, Nickel-59 and Technetium-99. Some of these waste products remain radioactive for up to 100,000 years! Yet the Nuclear Regulatory Commission plans to license this facility for only 100 years.

An organization of concerned citizens known as "Don't Waste Michigan" has formed to oppose this siting. We feel that locating something proven to be as hazardous as this dump site in our beautiful state is a complete assault on both our environment and our economy. Even our own Dept. of Health admits this dump will eventually leak. I urge all the citizens of Michigan to learn as much about this matter as possible and let our legislators know how we feel. It's up to us to keep Michigan a clean, healthy environment for our children. To learn more about how we can keep Michigan from becoming a radioactive waste dump please contact "Don't Waste Michigan" 227 Custer Ave., Lansing, MI 48219. (517-487-6873) And please write Governor Blanchard to let our opposition be heard now, while we are still able to withdraw from the Midwest Compact. Write to Governor Blanchard, Executive Office, 2nd Floor, State Capitol Bldg, Lansing, MI 48909.

Says we can't afford not to pass millage

Editor,

School millage elections all over the area have been voted down in recent months. It is really difficult to vote for an increase in taxes when salaries and retirement income don't rise to help taxpayers meet these expenses.

Why should we spend so much money educating our kids?

Cary Adgate competed in the olympics and is the top American on the US Pro Ski Tour. When he graduated from Boyne City High School, no one realized just how far his athletic talents would take him. Boyne City can be justifiably proud that its sports program was the start of Cary's career. Naturally, not every high school athlete will enjoy such success. However, sports, drama, music, and other extracurricular programs are the reason some young people stay in school and finish their education rather than dropping out. The State of Michigan recognizes the importance of education and has recently introduced the Tuition Incentive Program to provide low income families with the motivation to graduate from high school and go to community college. When the first steps are accomplished there is even assistance to complete a four-year education. When one drops out of high school, it is harder to get a job that will support a family; and the extra frustration and anxiety may even cause a person to be an abusive spouse or parent. The cost of welfare payments and rehabilitating families is far higher for taxpayers and society than the earlier cost of completing an education.

A look ten to twenty years down the road may provide some additional answers to the question of why should we spend so much money to educate our children.

The year is 1998. "Joe" has a low IQ. He is very proud of the fact that he can support himself on the salary he earns. He doesn't understand or care that he is saving taxpayers many thousands of dollars a year for his care. All he knows is that he learned enough skills in special education classes in school so that he can be employed in a job he can handle. His classes cost taxpayers more than those for "normal students" back in 1988, it is true, but Joe is really pleased to be a productive individual. If the pride in Joe's face isn't enough to justify the extra expense, then the tax savings from not paying for his custodial care surely is.

It is still 1998. "Bill" owns an auto service center in Boyne City and makes a very respectable living. It's known through town that Bill knows the basics about auto repair as well as much of the technology to fix the newer cars. He's proud to say he got the excellent background in auto mechanics in high school. Boyne City Schools had an exchange and tuition program to allow for more vocational classes back in 1988. In years that followed, Bill went away several times for classes at his own expense to keep up with advances in his field. But the solid start he got in high school laid the groundwork for his later schooling.

Now it is 2008. "Sue" has recently been appointed to a major research center for cancer study. Already the project she will work on has helped increase the life-expectancy and quality of life of thousands of patients. There is a real possibility her background and experience will be a major part of a real breakthrough. Sue often looks back to her years in the Boyne City school system and is grateful for the special programs for gifted students all through her school years. She readily admits that without the extra enrichment she might have lost interest and quit school.

Why should we spend so much money educating our kids? Perhaps the question is not can we afford to pass the millage plus the increases, but can we afford not to pass them?

Jackie Battiste has received a check for $60.03 from Glen's Save/Share for the Boyne City Middle School media center.

This is one example of a non-profit group making use of the Save-Share Program to help raise funds. There are many more groups using it, too. Glen's wants everyone in Boyne City to know about Save-Share and hopes more groups will use it to raise funds. All a group has to do is register with the store manager and begin saving the green cash register tapes. Glen's will pay 1 percent of the total qualified amount of all tapes brought in by any registered group; and not just once, but each time a group brings in $25.00 worth of slips or more.

Killers may be lurking in farm shop

Farmers who have a severe headache or feel nauseated after spending the day in the farm shop may have had a brush with death.

Those are two symptoms of carbon monoxide poisoning, and that is just one of the hazards that may exist while farmers prepare equipment for spring work.

"One of the primary safety risks associated with farm shops this time of year is inadequate ventilation," says Howard J. Doss, Michigan State University Cooperative Extension Service farm safety specialist.

Farmers tend to seal the shop to help assure warm working conditions. Unless the shop has a positive ventilation system, potentially lethal gases and fumes will be sealed right in with the heat and the farmer.

"The greatest threat is the accumulation of carbon monoxide," Doss says. "It is colorless, odorless and tasteless, and in a concentration of just 1 part per 100 units of air, can cause unconsciousness in about five minutes."

Nationally, about 10,000 people require medical attention for carbon monoxide poisoning each year and another 1,500 people are killed by the gas.

Among the early symptoms of carbon monoxide poisoning is a headache accompanied by throbbing in the temples and red, flushed skin, especially on the face.

monoxide poisoning are severe headache, weakness, dizziness, dimness of vision, nausea, vomiting and collapse.

But don't rely on these symptoms to appear to warn you of danger. There may be no warning signal. Doss says people have started vehicle engines in their garages, gone to open the garage doors and were overcome by carbon monoxide gas before they could get the doors open.

Running engines aren't the only sources of carbon monoxide. The gas is a byproduct of any flame, including those in unvented space heaters.

"Salamanders, kerosene heaters and ventless gas space heaters are not intended for use within enclosed areas where humans work for long periods of time," Doss says. "Any heat source used in the shop should be vented to the outside of the building."

Other potentially dangerous gases and fumes can quickly accumulate from welding, spray painting, and using cleaning solvents and other chemicals in machinery repair.

"All farm shops should have a positive air flow to help provide a safe working environment," Doss says. "The use of ventilation fans similar to those used in livestock housing and permanently installed exhausts on shop heating units should be the minimum precautions taken for safe working conditions."

DNR to check ORVs for safety

Efforts are underway by the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) to increase equipment compliance checks on Off-Road Vehicles (ORVs), especially for muffler systems lacking the mandatory spark arrestor, which can throw off sparks and create a serious wildfire hazard.

More than 12 percent of Michigan's wildfires are the result of faulty motor equipment on vehicles. Mufflers which lack or contain a faulty spark arrestor are the major cause of those types of wildfires, according to DNR statistics.

ORV equipment violations are misdemeanors carrying a penalty of up to 90 days in jail and/or up to a $100 fine.

Acceptable spark arrestor mufflers, approved by the U.S. Forest Service (USFS), should contain a visible impression of the USFS seal of approval on the spark arrestor.

"DNR conservation officers will be concentrating equipment checks on ORVs in high use areas to assure compliance with the ORV law (PA 319 of 1975)," said DNR Law Enforcement Division Chief Herb Burns.

Davis bill aimed at saving facilities

Frustrated with Army Corps of Engineers policy which results in the loss of recreational uses at Army Corps maintenance construction projects, Northern Michigan Congressman Bob Davis has introduced legislation which will require the Corps to maintain existing recreational facilities when the Corps undertakes reconstruction of repair projects.

H.R. 4609 would force the Corps to include and pay for recreational use in designs for projects when recreational use has already been established at the construction site.

Davis drafted the legislation after wrangling with the Corps over fishing access at the Charlevoix harbor, where a new breakwater is being constructed. The Corps plan for the new breakwater did not include access for fishing, a recreational use long established at the pier. Instead, the Corps told the local community that the $100,000 cost for including fishing access would have to be borne by them.

"That's ridiculous," Davis said. "There's no reason why the Corps can't pay for this kind of thing. It's one thing when a community wants to expand a new project to include recreational facilities that weren't there before, but when a community has a recreational area in place, the Corps shouldn't be allowed to simply remove it." Davis' bill addresses only projects that are reconstruction, maintenance, or repair and recreational areas which are already established.

The Davis bill is cosponsored by Rep. Fred Upton, who has a similar problem at Holland, Michigan, and Rep. Arlan Stangeland, the Ranking Minority Member of the Water Resources Subcommittee, which authorizes Army Corps projects.

Fowler honored for softball at Alma

Meg Fowler of Charlevoix, catcher on Alma College's softball team, was honored at the end of the season by being named both captain of the team and most valuable player. She was also an All-Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Association (MIAA) second team selection.

During the 1988 season she had a .220 batting average and .961 fielding average, and she stole three bases. Alma finished second in the MIAA, one game out of first place.

Young golfers sought for Northern Michigan tournament

The Independent Insurance Agents of Northern Michigan will sponsor a qualifying tournament for local golfers 17 and under to open the annual Big "I" Insurance Youth Golf Classic (IYGC), the nation's largest youth golf event.

The Northern Michigan round will be played at Michaywe' in Gaylord on June 27, 1988.

John Clay Smith, IYGC Chairman for the Northern Michigan Independent Insurance Agents, says more than 900 young golfers entered 18 qualifying tournaments in Michigan last year.

"Winners of the local tournaments will compete in the Michigan finals on July 17-18 in Cadillac," Smith says. "And the top six Michigan winners will have the chance of a lifetime to play with a PGA pro at the national IYGC finals at Woodlands, Texas in August."

Teen golfers are paired with touring pros for the final IYGC round. Last Year's participating pros included: Hal Sutton, Pat McGowan and former PGA champion Robert Wrenn. The IYGC teen winner is also eligible to play as an exempt amateur in the Independent Insurance Open (formerly the Houston Open).

Entry blanks, rules and regulations on entering the local qualifying round are available at Insurance by Burley Agency, Inc., 262 E. Main, Harbor Springs (616) 526-2123.

Last year's IYGC attracted more than 10,000 youngsters to 800 local and state tournaments organized by independent insurance agents as a community service effort by local businessmen and women. The Big "I" IYGC is sponsored by the Independent Insurance Agents of America and a number of leading insurance companies.

Farmers urged to file acreage reports

Elaine Richardson, County Executive Director of the Emmet-Charlevoix County Agricultural Stabilization Service

today said all farmers should file an acreage report, whether they participate in the 1988 commodity programs or not, and protect their crop acreage history. "By certifying crop acres, producers establish documentation for future crop acreage bases as well as eligibility for different benefits if they decide to participate in farm programs."

Elaine said it is very important for farmers who are participating in the 1988 programs to file an acreage report, because without it they are not really participating. "We must have the report in order to determine the level at which producers are eligible for price support loans, deficiency payments and other program payments. Without certification, no benefits will be available to them.

Farm program participants are required to report crops and acreages planted, the uses to be made of these crops, and cropland acres to be devoted to the Conservation Reserve. When producers report to the county ASCS office, they can review aerial photographs of their farm and pinpoint the fields in which the crops are grown. This information is then documented for program compliance and crop acreage bases.

Final certification date for program crops in Emmet and Charlevoix Counties is July 1.

Farmers who are not participating in the 1988 programs are encouraged to report their crop acreages to insure future benefits and protect acreage bases. The Emmet office is located at 2206 Mitchell Park Drive in Petoskey and the Charlevoix office is at 319 D. N. Lake St., Boyne City.

NMC to train persons for recreational boating

A new program for persons who want to work in one of America's fastest growing industries—recreational boating—will be offered by Northwestern Michigan College next fall.

"Recreational boating is the fourth largest leisure industry in the U.S.," Northwestern Michigan College President Phillip E. Runkel said. "Last year, an estimated $16.5 billion was spent by nearly 70 million Americans who participated in recreational boating. The industry employs upwards of 600,000 persons nationwide. They work for boat builders, dealers, marinas, suppliers and service companies."

Runkel said students enrolled in the two-year Recreational Boating Program can earn an Associate Degree that will qualify them for jobs with boat manufacturers and dealers and for marina management positions.

Job prospects for graduates of NMC's new program are promising, according to Monicatti.

Additional information on the program may be obtained by writing or calling Jerry Williams, Northwestern Michigan College, Traverse City, MI 49684.
