

Portable house finds permanent site in Boyne City

Workers lower the floor of the new portable house Boyne City acquired from the former Kinchloe Air Force Base recently. The house will become a warming house for the new skating rink that was completed at the Avalanche Preserve on the south side of Boyne City. The house was designed for the Air Force to provide temporary housing for airmen and to be capable of being set up and repacked as the need fits. In Boyne City, the home has a permanent spot next to the skating rink.

BC saves big when bids come under budget

Boyne City officials are learning how to bid as the next phase of the infrastructure program was started at the monthly evening meeting of the city commissioners.

By breaking the bids down and separating components, City

Manager Randy Frykberg said their were substantial savings which will allow more sewer and road work to be completed as the city goes through repairing streets, water and sewer lines.

This phase, which includes sewer main and service line replacement along with surface restoration on East Street, Grant Street, Jefferson Street, Wisner

Street and Pleasant Avenue was given to several companies, each bidding on specific items within the bid.

BC High School roof work to start Monday

Builders will be starting work to repair the Boyne City High School Roof next Monday after the school board approved the letting of the contracts during Monday nights' monthly meeting.

The roof, an ongoing concern since a $500,000 bond issue was passed last year, will be of the "Tocal" system type as the Blossom Roofing Company of Traverse City will be doing the work.

The board had agreed to the membrane system after bids for a new steel roof that would have changed the look of the building came in much higher than the budget allowed and had to be rejected.

The bids for the work being done will spend the remaining $442,083 left after the school replaced the bleachers in the gymnasium. Of the remaining amount, $144,682 has been set aside as a contingency and that is where the savings could come from, according to a spokesman from Elzinga and Volkens, the construction management company the board hired to oversee the project.

Other bids went to Northern Michigan Building Specialties for redoing some acoustical ceiling, and to Alma painting of Roscommon for the paint work to complete the project.

The roof will be stripped down to the gypsum below the roofing material for visual inspection. If bad spots are found, they will be replaced or repaired from the contingency budget.

Work is expected to be completed by the time school starts in the fall.

In other action, the board had one of the longest agendas to work through in some time as they are trying to complete as much as possible before Superintendent Rich Kelly leaves for another position downstate.

One of the first things the board approved was the hiring of an interim superintendent. Named to the position was Mario Conflitti. He was formerly a superintendent for two years at Ellsworth and also had nine years of being superintendent at Alanson. Conflitti retired two years ago and said he was looking forward to coming in to help out in Boyne City. Conflitti will be paid $150 per day along with $10 expense money.

Conflitti will come on stream to work with Kelly during the last days of his administration. If Kelly works beyond his contract, he will be paid $150 per day.

The board then approved a compromise agreement to a grievance that was filed by Pam Crouch against the school system. Crouch was being paid at the wrong pay level since she

Boyne voters pass one of four

Boyne City School System voters approved one of four proposals that will allow the schools to operate next fall with only a small increase in money while other requests for busing, new equipment and overriding the Headlee Amendment failed.

The proposal which passed will allow the renewal of the present millage and give the schools an additional 1.3 mills that will be used for operations. That issue passed by a narrow 42 votes.

Superintendent Rich Kelly said he was pleased to see the passage of the first proposal but was also disappointed that the second and third proposals failed.

He said that he was hoping to see the maximum levy issue pass, but was not surprised due to the complexity of the issue and the understanding of the voters.

The second proposal, which was asking for 1.7 mills to allow busing of students failed by a 592 to 461 vote.

The third issue, which asked for additional monies to purchase new equipment and furniture for the schools failed by a bigger margin, 678 no to 394 yes.

Almost 200 votes separated the issue that would have overridden the Headlee Amendment and would have allowed the school district to levy the maximum authorized millage allowed. It failed by a 621 no vote to 437 yes.

A total of 1104 votes were cast in another large election for the

On Wednesday afternoon, a small group of ladies from the Boyne City Garden Club toured the festivities of the University of Michigan Biological Research Station (near Pellston) which first opened in 1909. Among the visitors who enjoyed the escorted tour with Dr. Mary Whitmore were: Lois Pollock, Vi Manglos, Thornita Rowe, Bessie Hamm, Dorothy Grant with visitors, friends Etta Montroy and Maryanne Watkins. Of special interest was the individual cabins, circa, 1920, the lecture hall, the dining room facilities, and the research library, but most of all, the research laboratory itself. All were interested in the computer rooms and the highly sophisticated scientific machines which can measure ratios between nitrogen and carbon, and a large variety of materials. These machines combust matter, analyze it, and make print outs of exact ratios; and this data determines if the matter is in the upswing of growth or the downswing of decay. Most importantly, the group learned, the primary purpose of this year-round station is research, which each student conducts on an individual basis as a requirement of course completion. This summer the station will be filled to capacity with approximately three hundred people, including staff, faculty, and students. The term, which lasts 8 weeks, allows the student to earn 10 college credits in a hands-on, personalized program.

"Make time, for important happenings."

Jottings

BY JIM SILBAR

As I stood looking out the back window of my Tuesday afternoon, I started to feel the fangs of envy come out in me. It almost made me want to become a kid again.

The reason for that is a city easement at the lake that some people are using as a beach. And a whole lot of kids were cavorting in the water as I stood there sweating and wondering how I could do that.

That is one of the problems of growing up, I guess, having to work when you wish you could have fun playing in the cold water.

And it is still cold, they tell me. Seems many oldtimers don't put a toe into the water until at least the Fourth of July because of it, the cold.

But on a hot day like we have been having recently, I wouldn't mind putting more than my toe in the cool water, just to find out what it is like.

It has been a long time since I went swimming, and I think I am afraid that I have forgotten how to do it. I know I am not in shape to swim the English Channel or even just across the lake, but a swim would sure be nice if I could only find the time.

Between work and the chores, the only thing left is sitting in front of the television and falling asleep. And I do that sometimes.

But more than not, I get off the couch potato robes and wander up to the bedroom and try to figure out how to sleep in unair-conditioned comfort. A couple of nights ago, I threw off all the covers and wondered where that mosquito was going to bite me as I tried to fall off to dreamland. I almost got up, turn on the lights and look for that darn beast of prey, but I listened a little more and discovered that he was outside the window screen trying to get in.

Seems I can attract mosquitoes from great distances.

And, they are unnerving, listening to where they are in the room.

It made me want to vow to buy a purple martin house in the hopes of attracting a mosquito eater or two.

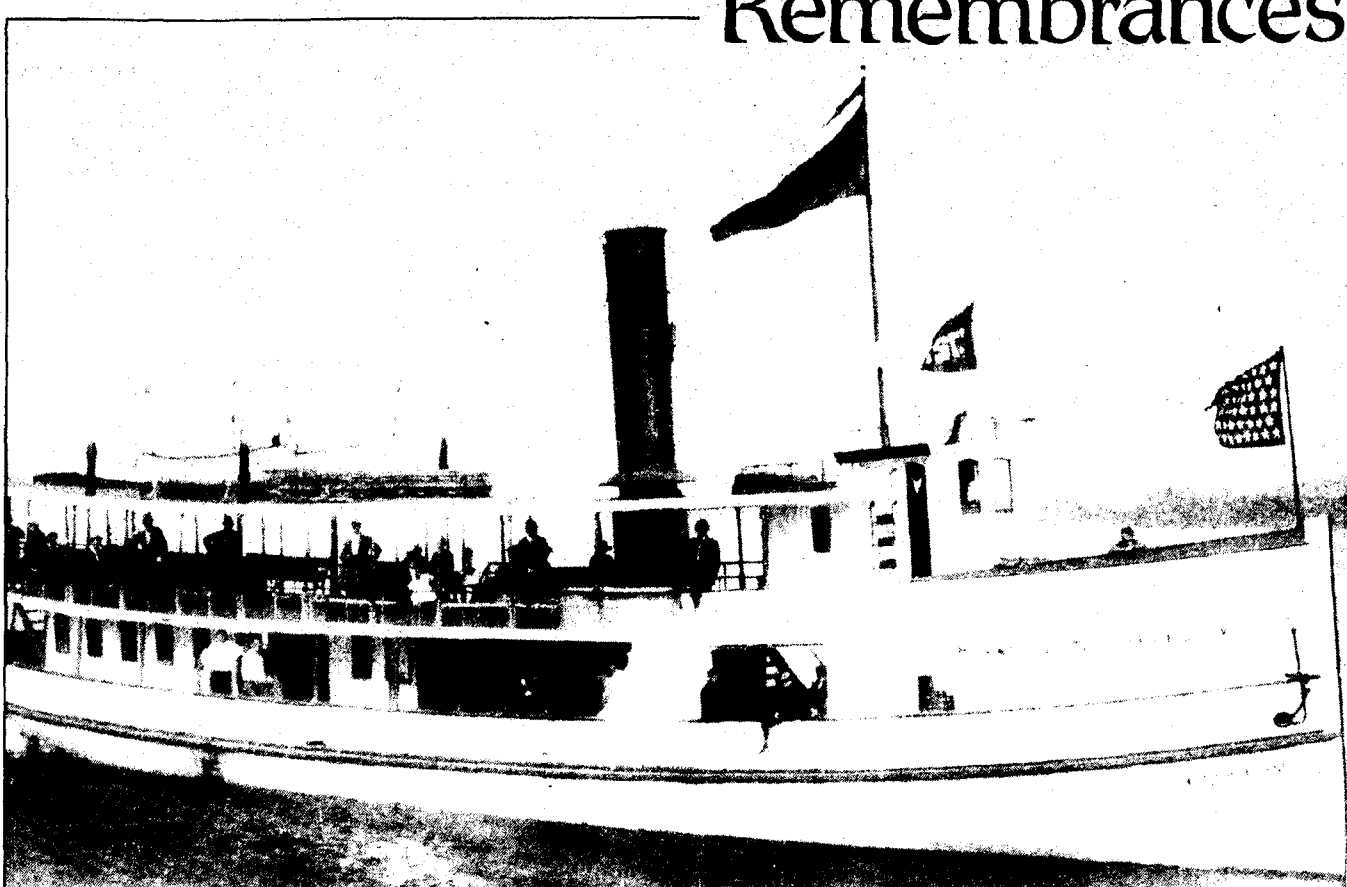

I think that was one of the excuses I used when I didn't get out for the free fishing weekend. I thought I would be eaten up by those pesky things.

Of course I had a lot of other things to do, like staining wood, varnishing and trying to not think about building a stone wall.

One of these days I will have to stop procrastinating and get out there and start moving big rocks to make the wall.

But I will put it off as long as I can...or at least until the other half gets me going to get the work done.

But, I think I would rather just go to the beach and run into the cooling waters to get my heart going again.

With the new trolley service being offered by the County Transit System ready to roll around the county, this picture was a reminder of the way residents visited Charlevoix and other places around the lake back about the turn of the century. The City of Boyne plied the lake taking travelers to Charlevoix and Boyne

City every day during the summer months, sometimes with lots of riders, sometimes with nothing but the mail. It was a trip that can still be remembered by some oldtimers as the boat stopped making trips shortly after the roads were built between the two cities.

I never do the grocery shopping. I pick up a few things but that's it. My wife does the big bunch buying.

Except last week. Forty dollars a week for two mouths had to go. When I was a kid, forty dollars kept six mouths busy for two weeks.

Let me explain what went through my head when I started to do the week's shopping.

Most shoppers grab a cart right off. It's an indication they are going to buy stuff they don't need. Beer, wine, pop and fake cheese that never saw a cow. Things like that.

The Lord gave us two arms so we wouldn't need to use a cart, not if we buy only the necessities. "Ain't that so, Lord?" He ain't speaking to me since neither one of us can remember the last time I warmed a pew.

Anyway, the first thing you must understand is how to buy things. Bread is not sold by the loaf. It's sold by the feel.

Now here's watermelon. It's sold by the thump, not by the pound or the water. Three or four sharp thumps and you've made up your mind.

Take meat. Does it look too big, too small, too dark? If its just right I carry a small piece under my arm. It keeps my pit cool.

Take candy. Heavens, look at those huge, mouth watering bars. Should I carry one between the bread and the meat? Then I check the price and lose all desire for candy.

The tobacco shelf sends me back to those wonderful days when I smoked anything that would burn. I quit twelve years ago. But I do enjoy standing in the store, smelling it for free.

There's my lettuce. It's not sold by the head or pound. It's sold by the pinch. Cabbage is pinch sold too.

Now I'm in canned goods. Three for something or two for so much. One can costs more. I'm glad spinach costs so much. I don't like spinach and the price helps me stay that way.

Now it's milk. Not sold by the gallon. It's sold by the date. You don't realize that it costs too much until you're at the check-out.

When I come to the beer and wine case I glance at it and move on, remembering the good old days.

Ha! Ha! Here's a big jar of dill pickles. How I love dills. When I look at them I feel the urge of a pregnant woman. But when I check that outlandish inflated price I realize that I am not pregnant after all.

Now I am at the check-out. After that I step over and buy my weekly allotment of lottery tickets.

At home, I spread everything out on the table, checking the items against the store slip. Holy ol' supermarket! Forty dollars, including lottery tickets.

My wife fingers the small number of items. "What restaurant are we eating at tonight?" she wants to know. It's not a question. It's a statement.

From now on if you see me at the store, I'm waiting, I'm not buying.

Cooking

NO-COOK MEALS FIRST DAY OF SUMMER

Summer cooking is so very much easier for us than it was in Grandmother's time. She no doubt used a three burner oil stove in the back kitchen or a porch-like room called the summer kitchen. It was a real challenge to regulate those oil burners. She could bake a pie or a pudding in the small oven that she set on top. However, she built a fire in the big wood range once a week to bake her bread. She also did most of her other baking that same day. No matter how hot the day, the bread must be baked.

Those oil burners were also used to heat the water in the copper boiler like those we now see in antique shops, on wash day. I can still see Mother shaving the P & G or Fels Naptha soap into the boiling water. I am sure that my great-grandmother and possibly my grandmother made her own soap. I remember that Mother made some during World War II. It was a good serviceable soap for general cleaning but very hard on the hands. Mother could buy the nlye to make her soap then, but our grandmothers had to make their lye from hardwood ashes.

My goodness, I am rambling on, away from my subject of summer cooking. I recall the first time I read "A Lantern In Her Hand" by Bess Streeter Aldrich, one of my favorite books that I like to reread. She describes the pioneering days in Nebraska. She tells how the neighborhood was shocked when someone brought potato salad to a party. "Imagine eating cold potatoes" they said. The old-timers thought that all vegetables should be cooked and served hot. We've come a long way, haven't we. Cold salads and entrees of all kinds are so popular now and so good!

The old neighborhood would no doubt be more surprised if they were served this

RICE SALAD

1 cup cooked rice, chilled
1 1/8 cup raisins
1 1/8 cup chopped ham
2 teaspoons grated carrot
2 teaspoons grated orange peel
2 teaspoons chopped almonds
1 teaspoon orange juice or salad dressing

Toss all ingredients together.

mixing well; serve on lettuce or surround by sprigs of mint. Serves 2.

Here is a recipe for a salad dressing that is perfect for any leafy vegetable or sliced tomatoes, as well as for the above salad.

VINAIGRETTE DRESSING

1/4 cup vegetable oil
1/4 cup white wine vinegar
1/4 teaspoon grated lemon peel
Dash tarragon

Salt and pepper to taste

Mix well and store in covered container. Keep chilled.

We are even eating chilled soups. Here is a tasty one.

CHILLED CUCUMBER SOUP

1 large cucumber
1/2 clove garlic, mashed
Dash of pepper
Dash of lemon juice
2 cups plain yogurt
A few dill or mint leaves.

Peel, seed and shred cucumber and mix with garlic, pepper, and lemon and yogurt. Taste and adjust seasoning. If too thick, add a little cold milk. Keep well chilled. Serves 2

We should have one potato salad recipe. Here is a more modern one, I am sure, than the one served on a farm in Nebraska in the 1880s.

2 medium potatoes, cooked and sliced
2 tablespoons Italian salad dressing
1 tablespoon snipped parsley
1 can Chunk Ham, flaked with fork
3 cups salad greens (lettuce, spinach, romaine, endive, etc.) torn into bite-size pieces.

3 hard-cooked eggs, quartered
3/4 cup Swiss cheese strips
1/2 cup sliced pitted ripe olives
1/4 cup chopped green onion
1/4 cup Italian salad dressing

In bowl, sprinkle potatoes with 2 tablespoons salad dressing and parsley. Marinate, covered, in refrigerator for several hours or overnight. Layer remaining ingredients. Just before serving, pour 1/2 cup Italian dressing over salad and toss lightly. 4 servings.

Just waiting for riders will be this trolley, on loan from Manistee County, as the County Public Transportation system opens summer by offering rides around the lake every two hours during the week of June 20 to June 30. The route will be along the Boyne City Charlevoix Road and M-66. The trolley can be flagged down anywhere along the route for riders and it will be making stops at various spots along the way.

Trolley coming to county

Charlevoix County Public Transportation System is willing to try almost anything to get riders to use the green busses, but the latest move, borrowing a trolley from the Manistee transit system is one of the best ideas to happen, according to Art Sawarski, the head of the system.

The county will have the use of the trolley for ten days in June, the 20th through the 30th, and another ten days in August to give tourists and residents rides around the lake.

The trolley will be making trips about every two hours with stops in Boyne City, Horton Bay, Charlevoix, Ironton, East Jordan and back to Boyne City. The locations where the bus will be stopping include One Water Street in Boyne, the General Store in Horton Bay, Olson's and Captain's Corner in Charlevoix, the Ironton Ferry, and the Civic Center in East Jordan. At places in between, the bus can be flagged down for a pick-up anywhere along the route.

A tourist could jump on the bus in Boyne, head out to Horton Bay for a cup of coffee, then continue on the next bus to Charlevoix and shop for another hour or two before catching the next trip through to make the return trip home to Boyne.

Sawarski said the bus will even run on the weekend according to the schedule. The bus will leave about 9 a.m. from One Water Street, reach Horton Bay fifteen minutes later, then Charlevoix 30 minutes after that finally reaching East Jordan about 10:30.

It will start the same trip at 11 a.m., 1:30, 3:30, 6:00 and 8:00 p.m.

Cost for the round trip is only $3.50 and children under 12 are free when accompanied by an adult. Seniors, handicappers and students 12-18 are half price.

No reservations are needed, but the bus only holds 24 people and Sawarski hopes it will be filled every trip.

Ware-withal

As celebrated occasions go, Father's Day scarcely wiggles. It just squats there on the road to the Fourth of July requiring a few gifts for dads and that's it. The presents are either frivolous, like another hat for dad to wear while pursuing his favorite hobby with some inane expression emblazoned on it, or a duty-related item like hedge clippers, which would be like giving mom a mop for Mother's Day if this were done and mercifully is not. But then, mothers fare better all around on their day with breakfast in bed, dining out and gifts showing love and esteem. These disparities in celebrations have existed for years, unfair, unexplained, unchallenged - until Bill Cosby.

Cosby, star of TV's The Cosby Show, a comedian and a father, is miffed by this situation. But after studying it, he feels he's mastered it. And he says that the differences have come about because "mothers cry and fathers don't."

Cosby's got a point, no doubt about it. But he's skipped over a whole bunch of other things that male and female parents do and don't do that also affect the case.

Mothers give more hands-on, face-to-face care that children remember. And supposedly moms make better cuddlers, a talent reported to come in their genes and blooms with motherhood. But training comes into play too as when children suddenly remember at 9 p.m. that they've promised cupcakes for the school bake sale 12 hours hence. Moms' expertise in the kitchen rises to the occasion.

And need be, moms can also sew up a costume, or find or assemble one, at any hour. And they can stitch up wounds and replace eyes on beloved teddy bears, too. And moms, being women and chatty, do talk about their feats.

Dads' contributions to their children's well-being are considerable too. But some don't show much. And dads, being men, don't chat.

First, right genes or no, dads cuddle most satisfyingly. But their special talents lie in fixing things, especially broken toys and kiddie cars, which they mostly manage to do when their toddlers are asleep. And jalopies, the one they strongly objected to their teenagers buying but who did anyway, dads can usually fix them to the delight of their owners, and themselves.

But these same kids can't picture that dad, being the main family financial source, contributions as heavily to their metal mouths and the handsome results as the orthodontist. Ditto for their improved skins and the dermatologist.

So dads do their part. And occasionally they get very tired at it, which is why they sometimes shout a lot.

But giving Cosby the benefit of the doubt and granting that the big difference between the quality of celebrations of Mother's and Father's Day stems from the crying factor, his solution seems questionable at best. He suggests billboards nationwide showing a father with a tear rolling down his cheek. He volunteers to be the pictured father even.

Unfair and unequal as the situation now stands, likely most fathers would favor sticking with what they've got. Blubbery billboards seem a bit much just for better treatment one day of the year. Besides, once on gets used to that kind of thing, foolish hats and hedge clippers-type presents don't make bad gifts.

Top 'O' Michigan awarded $6.2 million

Top O' Michigan Rural Electric Co. has been awarded a $6.2 million loan from the federal Rural Electrification Administration (REA) for making improvements to its distribution system, according to Congressman Bob Davis and Senator Carl Levin.

The $6.2 million is part of the company's $9 million work plan for 1988 and 1989. The remaining $2.8 million is being borrowed from the National Rural Utilities Cooperative Finance Corp., another lending source available to rural electric cooperatives.

A primary portion of the two-year work plan consists of constructing 129 miles of distribution lines which would include extensions to handle an estimated 1720 additional members. According to company growth projections, the additional members would be located throughout Top O' Michigan's 12 county area. Also included in the work plan are new tie-lines to improve existing distribution lines, additional meters and transformers to increase capacity, additional security lights and other system improvements to provide better service to members.

Top O' Michigan is a cooperative owned by the members it serves. Its service area includes Emmet, Charlevoix, Antrim, Otsego, Crawford, and Kalkaska counties as well as portions of Cheboygan, Wexford, Oscoda, Montmorency, Missaukee and Grand Traverse counties.

was hired two years ago. When the administration caught the mistake after the new teacher contract was approved, she was told she would be moved back to the proper step and she would have to return to the school the unauthorized money she was being paid.

In the compromise, she and the board agreed to her being paid at the wrong level for 127 days of this past school year, and from the time the mistake was found, she will be paid at the proper level. She would not have to return the money she was previously paid. Next year, she will be paid at the level at which she started this year.

The board then set the price of the new building trades home at 323 Ann Street. The asking price will be $56,800. The offering is available from all real estate brokers within the school system.

Also approved was an insurance package for students with the First Agency, Inc.

The board then approved the starting of a new Applied Economics class at the high school and new text books for Algebra and the Economics class.

Another approval was given to Blue Cross-Blue Shield as the health insurance carrier for the staff.

Sherry Sheldon and Shelly Martin were rehired as funds were again available from outside the district for their programs.

The board then passed a resolution to enter into a contract with Char-Em in the area of vocational education. This will allow the school to receive the full allotted monies rather than have to give part of it back to the state.

Also accepted was a bid of $729 from the Deford Community Church for a used school bus.

Salary adjustments were made for the non-affiliated members of the staff ranging from 5.5 percent to 6 percent over the next three years. Principal Ed Snyder will be receiving $45,204 for the 88-89 school year and $47,916 for 1989-90, for example.

The board then reviewed and reaffirmed five points they are working towards as part of their long range goals.

They then adjusted the school budget to reflect the current spending as the school year ends June 30.

Grievance

They then took a short recess to wait for the election results so they could determine the setting of the operational millage. When they learned the first proposal passed but the others failed, they approved a total operational millage of 31.37 mills, broken down into the 21.3 that was renewed, 1.3 additional voted and 8.84 allocated. The allocated amount was reduced as per the Headlee Amendment. Also reduced will be the amount of debt retirement the school is collecting. That will be reduced to 2.30 mills.

Other issues on the agenda will be covered at a special meeting to be held June 27th at 7:30. Those items include reviewing and setting the budget for next year.

Contracts

The bid was broken down into three alternatives with alternative A just furnishing the materials only. Cadillac Concrete Pipe won a portion of the contract and will provide concrete manholes at a cost of $5,148. The sewer pipe will come from R. Vanderlind and Sons of Grand Rapids who bid $19,127 for pipe and fittings.

Alternative B included just the installation of the materials and that was awarded to the C.H. Smith Company of Charlevoix and Boyne City. They bid $89,582.50. The Smith Company was one of five bidders for the contract.

Contract four was also let for construction and includes sewer main and service line replacement, storm sewer installation, and surface restoration on East Main Street and Pleasant Avenue. It totals 4,322 lineal feet of work.

Low bidder for that contract was the C.H. Smith Company with a bid of $154,519.28. The reason the bid is higher than the other contract is that it includes more surface restoration than contract three.

The bids ranged from Smith's low to $209,630.70.

The grand total for both bids was $268,357.28. The total was about $150,000 under the estimates by the two engineers estimating the projects.

The commissioners also approved the naming of Bea Smith and Nancy Gowell to the Boyne City Historical Advisory Board for another three year term.

In the Tuesday Noon meeting, the commission decided to close the type three landfill located at North Boyne to everyone except the city. The dump is used to place leaves and stumps. The commissioners decided it would be open to the city residents twice a year for short periods. Those will be during the spring and fall clean-up times.

The reason given for the closing of the landfill is the cost of bonding and monitoring. Frykberg said that with another similar landfill in the area, the public will be able to use that instead of the city's. A commissioner remarked that by controlling the use of the North

Boyne Landfill, they will also be able to control what is being dumped into it. The commissioners agreed that the only materials that could go into the landfill were leaves, stumps and tree limbs from prunings.

They also agreed to let the Boyne City Adult Education Department use only two of the four tennis courts this summer for a training session which will be starting next week. The school had asked for all four of the tennis courts, but the commissioners thought tying up the courts almost all day for two days a week was too much. Especially, said Steve Moody, when the school has tennis courts of their own if they would only clean them up and maintain them.

The East Jordan City Council agreed to implement the necessary contracts to begin the next step of the renovation of the city's waste water treatment system at their meeting last Tuesday.

Beaupre informed the council the Design Agreement, step two of the Sewer Upgrade Project, could be implemented at any time.

Superintendent of Public Works
June 15

Step three of the project, the Construction Agreement, would not need to be implemented until EPA funding is received. The DNR expects the grant funds to be available in July or September of this year. The EPA has issued a finding stating no significant environmental impacts will result from the project. After the final hearing process, the DNR can grant the funds within 30 days.

Mike Dionne, Superintendent of the Department of Public Works, added that before the funds can be issued to the city, a proposed engineering agreement must be in effect. Construction is anticipated to start in 1989.

Consensus of the council was the necessary contracts will be implemented within the 30 day waiting period after the city is assured of receiving grant funding.

The council also adopted a new city ordinance which will prohibit anyone from keeping any animal, fowl, reptile or apiary within the City of East Jordan, except those commonly kept as household pets.

Anyone wishing to own such a pet must apply for a special permit from the city council. Such permits may be issued to permit circus performances or other public exhibition or entertainment events.

The new ordinance will take effect on June 27 and anyone who violates the ordinance shall be guilty of a misdemeanor punishable by a fine of no more than $100, imprisonment in the county jail not to exceed 90 days or both.

The council also agreed on a sidewalk replacement program, of which 80% of the cost shall be paid by property owners and 40% shall be paid by the Walks fund of the city.

Also at the meeting, Russel Peck was appointed mayor of East Jordan after Mayor Pro-Tem Jim Yettaw informed the council that he himself did not want the position.

Peck is the only person who has shown an interest in the position by filing a nominating petition. He will remain the mayor until the November 1988 election.
