

Boyne Falls School expansion to cost $741,000

Boyne Falls School Board members continued to look at plans to expand the Boyne Falls school by building additional classrooms, changing the size of the gym and taking care of other storage problems.

All of the changes, if approved for funding, will cost the school district an estimated $741,000 and would require a vote of the people to bond the school district. School board members looked at the most recent plan prepared by the architectural firm hired to develop plans, DEM of Gaylord, after a public hearing June 7th brought additional suggestions.

Don Glowinski, the architect involved with the project, made the changes and brought the revised plan to the school board meeting.

After looking at the revisions, the board took no action on the plans, but asked school administrators to prepare costs for equipping the classrooms and other costs involved.

The plans show four additional classrooms will be added to the north end of the present elementary side of the school. The gym will be enlarged by taking out the present restrooms near the school office. The restrooms will be added in another area of the school by the cafeteria.

A section of the gym will have portable bleachers and will allow for a portable stage that can be used for drama and other performing arts.

According to Mike Wallace, school principal, he estimates the cost of equipping a classroom to be in the area of $1,000 to $3,000 per desk depending on the type of desks purchased.

Wallace added that if one of the new classrooms is used as a computer room, then the costs would be different - possibly less.

The board then discussed reasons for the new gym and classrooms, saying that if the present gym were utilized for classrooms they would only be able to get two rooms with a lot of wasted space above the classrooms due to the height of the gym.

If they constructed a new gym, they would also have to construct new lockerrooms as the old ones would be too far away from the gym. They also said the present gym floor would not be able to be used in a new gym and couldn't be used in the classrooms.

The plans being presented show the school is cost efficient as compared to constructing a new gym in a different location. Also considered was the location

Boyne City OK's site, starts housekeeping

Boyne City planners approved the second phase of the renovation of the former Barretts Furniture building that is being converted into a mall by Walt Coyle.

The approval came after the Zoning Board of Appeals gave their approval for a one foot variance in height for the phase, which will allow the developer to have up to three stories.

The need for the variance was caused by the developer and architect, Jack Begrow, showing and telling the ZBA the reason for the increase in height. They showed the ZBA that with a normal eight feet of room height, along with one foot between floors on a three story building, a builder needs 36 feet instead of 35 the zoning rules will allow.

The change has prompted the planners to take a look at the reasons for the height limitation and possibly, change it as too many variances are being asked by developers.

About six area merchants and businessmen told the ZBA they did not have any objections to the increase in height. Mel Howard, who has a business directly across the street from the proposed project, told the board the project would be a "Plus for the downtown." Other business owners in the area agreed with Howard and asked the ZBA to grant the variance.

One member of the Planning Advisory Board spoke against the granting of the variance, asking the board to consider the rules requiring a "hardship".

Dale Parsons, a member of the planning board then asked the ZBA to consider the amount of residences being put into the Central Business District.

He thinks there should be a limit on the amount of residences allowed within the district. Parsons was told by other planning board members that the current planning guides suggest the inclusion of residences within the downtown areas as it adds to the diversity. Johnson, Johnson and Roy, the city planners, are suggesting that all downtowns include residences in order to remain healthy.

His being the only objection heard, the ZBA then passed a resolution allowing the height variance.

At the Planning Board meeting, held shortly after the ZBA, the plan was approved with the conditions that a parking area planned on a side street behind Howard's gas station meet all criteria of the zoning ordinance and plans be provided to the city prior to occupancy of the building.

The second phase will include six offices and six residential units to be constructed on the site of the former warehouse and garage. Parking for the residents will be along side of the building with space for twelve cars.

The planners then were given a letter updating them on some minor changes in the previously approved site plan for the Lake Street plaza and approved of them providing the headlights and noise problems that may occur will be solved to the satisfaction of the planning board.

The board then did some housekeeping as they refined several sections of the zoning ordinance to allow for a time limit on building plans. The time limit would require a builder or developer to begin and end a project within a certain time span that the builder/developer has to provide to the city.

The reason for the change in the zoning law was the developments that have been proposed but not started by various developers.

The developer will have to

There will be no distribution of food in July, officials said.

In case you haven't heard, open burning is banned in Charlevoix County by order of the Governor. The ban is due to the continuing drought conditions which have turned area forests into tinderboxes. The ban will remain in effect until we get substantial rains.

Watering limitation asked in Boyne

Boyne City is now asking residents to limit the watering of lawns and gardens as the City Commission passed a temporary watering limitation during the drought that is occurring in the area.

The city has been pumping about 1.75 million gallons of water daily for the past several days and have asked for the ban to allow the reservoirs to fill up in order to provide enough water in case of an emergency.

Effective today, those residents having city water are being asked to water lawns and gardens on an every other day basis until the drought is over. Residents living in homes with an odd numbered address are asked to water on odd numbered days of the month. Those with even numbered addresses are asked to water on even days.

This resolution will apply only to those who are using city water.

The ban reflects the water usage of the city. Last year, according to City Manager Randy Frykberg, the city pumped 1.5 million gallons for one day during July. This year, they have surpassed that amount several times. He said the ban was needed to help protect the city's water pumps, which have been working hard to maintain the water supply.

The city then heard a plan that would see a fish cleaning facility constructed at the present city boat launching site.

Patrick Mitchell, a representative of the Lake Charlevoix Walleye Association, presented plans to the city asking permission to research it further. The proposed cleaning station would be constructed behind the present restrooms and the water.

The 16 by 16 foot building would have benches made of stainless steel and would allow the fish entrails to be ground up and put into the present sewer system.

The city, while approving the request to look into the plan, expressed some concern over the maintenance costs, the Department of Natural Resources rules, and the load on the city's sewer system.

One of the concerns is with manpower, as the site would be opened and closed daily. The city has no personnel that can be assigned to watch over the cleaning station and keep it clean.

The proposed building would be built next spring at an estimated cost of $6,000. The Walleye Association said they would donate $1,000 now and come up with the rest of the money by next spring.

They would also be doing the construction utilizing volunteer help.

Mitchell said that Charlevoix constructed a cleaning station and it cost that city about $6,200. He said Boyne could build a more refined one cheaper.

The commissioners then held a discussion concerning the amount of boats using the launch site and the amount that are staying overnight without city permission.

Commissioner Steve Moody suggested the sports group take over the operation of the site to ensure compliance with the rules.

He said the operation of the site is costing the city money and a volunteer group could possibly make money by taking over the operation.

BY JIM SILBAR

Psssst. Want to know something that Boyne City has going for it that few other towns in the area have?

Well, I'll tell ya. This is the only town in the area where you can see such a diversity of people, not putting on airs, not trying to show off, and all having a great time.

It's especially prevalent during the summer where you can go into a restaurant or drinking establishment, sit down and see the rich and famous mingling with us lesser lights.

Unlike some other towns, where you almost have to wear a suit or sportcoat to go out to dinner, in this town, you only need yourself and your friends.

What? No friends? Wait a minute, the guy sitting next to you will shortly introduce himself.

He may be a president of some large company downstate, or may be a local woodcutter, but it is one of the things that makes Boyne City unique to the north.

It is the same in the way the town is constructed. A large Victorian styled home looks quite nice next to a contemporary. Oh sure, there are some that say things like early American and contemporary don't mix, but won't make any difference. Here in Boyne City everyone is equal...as long as they can pay the bill, one restaurant operator told me.

As far as I am concerned, I hope that idea never changes. It they have never talked with designers and city planners.

Some large cities have special areas for distinctive types of housing, but here in Boyne, the mix of homestyles makes for a better community.

Just like a planner asking if the downtown needs more residences, and other planners telling him it is fine and recommended by consultants.

Small business and large business is the same way. A large business knows it would have a hard time getting along if it didn't have small businesses to prepare the workers. And hopefully, those small businesses become bigger and join the ranks of large businesses someday. The hope is that they will stay in the area so the local permanent residents will get a chance to make a living.

All in all, the mix that we have available in Boyne is perhaps the best of all worlds. Few communities have it and those that do grow and prosper.

Concerned with present and future foreign policy

Editor, I am becoming more concerned by the day. Our vice president - George Bush - who so desperately wants to be president keeps accusing Michael Dukakis of not having a foreign policy. My concern comes from what is happening world wide these days. He claims he holds a vital position in this policy. That's scary-real scary.

Let us hope and pray that Dukakis does not now have or will ever formulate a foreign policy that will even remotely resemble that of the Reagan-Bush administration. When we watch, listen and read the daily news that comes from South Africa, the Middle East, Southeast Asia, Central America, Japan, Korea and on and on, who can help but be concerned and wonder just what this administration is trying to do. The clumsy way they are handling the Moriega affair is inexcusable. They have impoverished the Panamanian people in an effort to get them to get rid of him. Succeeding only in making his position more secure. This kind of foreign policy we can do without. Our trade agreement with Japan is another case in point. Ronald Reagan is the best president Japan has ever had. Margaret Thatcher thinks he is great but took the management of NATO away from him.

They keep telling us what a great economy we have, but no one mentions the fact that Reagan has tripled the national debt to keep it going. If these are the best of times why are we

Of hot weather, politicians and the life and loves of those wild berries. So pay attention.

Father's Day sailed off into the clouds letting the Fourth of July arrive that much sooner and summer itself is doing business under heat that won't quit.

In the wake of these affairs comes the stress, noise and arguing over he who is most fit to grapple with the Washington-merry-go-round for the next four years.

Politicians are going to be politicians and there's nothing we, the people, can do about it. So vote, if you wish, but the fall election will change little or nothing. (Remember, you heard it here first.)

It is as difficult to put the United States government on the right road as it is for a farmer to swear away this deadly dry spell.

And speaking of dry spells, let me tell you about our wild strawberries. (Now, don't stop here. If you do your education will have a hole in it.)

We have a couple of acres of those nice, sweet wild strawberries. Dry, summer heat has kept them small, hard and about worthless. Except those growing along the edge of our lawn where the field begins. Lawn water sloped over into the field and some berries burst forth, making a wonderful desert with our evening banana dish.

But the vast bulk of our wild berries are about as useful as a weather forecast on a hot day.

That's not true for our wild blackberries. There are fifteen million and one half blackberries hanging on tall canes ready to pop forth when it's time. Late July or August should arrive along with the blacks.

If we have no rain by the end of July, everything I've said here will be a bare faced lie. If there's anything I can't stand it's telling false truths about our wild blackberries.

Nice townspeople come out here to pick our berries in the fall and more than once they have been kind enough to leave some for the bears. Those who eat too many berries as they pick find their stomachs full of the juice of future punishment. So watch it.

We don't mind folks picking our wild blackberries as long as they don't step into a hole and break a leg. These are suing times. Everyone is suing someone for something.

The last time there was a broken leg out here the judge awarded the picker all of our second hand clothes and a peanut butter sandwich.

So, please, step where you are watching.

I fussed around for fifteen minutes trying to find something with which to finish this offering. It finally hit me where I don't think.

It goes like this: Now that I'm on the other side of the haystack of life, I never seem to know whether to do last things first or first things last. The only time I rush to do first things first is when I get out of bed in the morning.

MEXICAN AND ORIENTAL COOKING

I am just astonished when I think of the progress and changes in the American diet since times that I can easily remember. Not too many years ago a famous visitor to America stated that they never ate so much fried chicken. It was served in a few different ways according to the area everywhere they visited.

Since then our restaurants, magazines, cookbooks and even TV has put many different ethnic foods on our tables, and how we love them! Not only have they made us aware of the wonderful varieties of foods, they have put these delicious products in boxes and bags and have frozen them for our use. We can buy entrees ready for microwave or regular ovens or the vegetables and spices to make them ourselves.

In our area Grandmother had to make do with the food available. If she served her family bread, meat and potatoes and fresh vegetables from her garden in the summer she was doing well. Oysters and oranges shipped in for the Holidays were special. Grandmother was always interested in spices for flavoring and preservatives. Nutmeg was a favorite. It was once sold by traveling vendors and was so popular in Connecticut that the state was nicknamed The Nutmeg State. We had our navy and great northern beans and they were good, however now we are cooking with a great variety of kidney, red, black, lentils, and lima beans with a whole new variety of spices and flavorings.

There is a new trend now towards better health in our diets. In fact there seems to be a culinary revolution going on all over the world. Famous chefs are making a dramatic change in the size of portions, eliminating heavy sauces that smothered over-cooked vegetables and making less extravagant desserts. How good for us and beautiful to see.

Oriental and Mexican foods which have long been popular in the western states are now delighting cooks and families everywhere. Here is a recipe for Mexican eggs that we all like served in Mexican restaurants.

HUEVOS RANCHEROS

(Mexican eggs)

1 medium onion, chopped fine, about 1/2 cup
1 large clove garlic, crushed
1 tablespoon oil
1 can (26 oz) tomatoes
1 1/2 cups water
3 tablespoons minced, canned green chilies
2 chicken bouillon cubes
1/4 teaspoon oregano
4 eggs
4 tortillas
1/4 cup shredded cheddar cheese

In large, heavy skillet or electric fry pan saute onion and garlic in oil until tender. Add tomatoes (breaking up the pieces), water, chilies, bouillon cubes, and oregano. Bring to boil, then simmer covered 30 minutes. Break eggs, one at a time, into a custard cup; carefully slip each egg into simmering sauce, holding cup close to sauce. Cover and cook over low heat 8 to 10 minutes or until desired doneness. Heat the tortillas in oven or microwave according to package directions. Place a tortilla on each plate. Top with egg, ladle on sauce and sprinkle with cheese. Serves 4

One thing that makes for the popularity of Oriental cooking is the fact that it really fits into our modern methods of quick cooking. Soups and other dishes are prepared in such a short time. Vegetables are not overcooked. Oriental cooking does not require special equipment. A wok is fun, but most things can be prepared in a large skillet or electric fry pan. This hearty soup has an Oriental flavor using modern broth and frozen vegetables—so easy!

ORIENTAL SOUP

1 teaspoon oil
1 egg, well beaten
2 cans (10 1/2 oz. each) chicken broth
1 1/4 cups sliced, cooked ham
1 pkg. (10 oz.) San Francisco style vegetables

Heat oil in sauce pan. Add egg and cook over low heat until set. Remove from pan and cut into strips. Combine broth, ham and frozen vegetables in the saucepan, reserving packet of topping. Bring to a full boil over medium heat, separating vegetables with a fork and stirring occasionally. Reduce heat, cover and simmer 2 to 3 minutes or until vegetables are tender. Add egg strips. Sprinkle with topping just before serving. Serves 3. From Birds Eye

This next recipe is really an international recipe with an Oriental flavor.

BEEF LO MEIN

1 lb. boneless chuck roast (about 2 inches thick)
1/4 cup teriyaki sauce
1/2 teaspoon ground ginger
1 large clove garlic, minced
2 tablespoons salad oil
1 cup sliced fresh mushrooms
1 cup bean sprouts
1 teaspoon brown sugar
3 cups cooked linguini
1 cup diagonally sliced green onions
1 cup sliced radishes
1 1/2 oz. can beef broth
3 tablespoons cornstarch

Freeze meat 1 hour to firm (makes slicing easier); slice into very thin strips.

To make marinade: In bowl, combine 2 tablespoons teriyaki sauce and meat; marinate 30 minutes. In skillet: Cook meat and ginger and garlic in oil until color just changes. Push to one side. Add mushrooms and bean sprouts; cook 2 minutes, stirring constantly. Add remaining teriyaki sauce, sugar, linguini, onions and radishes. Mix 1/2 cup of the broth with the cornstarch, stir into the rest of the broth and then into meat mixture. Cook, stirring until thickened. Serves 6.

Community invited for Jordan River Arts Council start-up meeting

The public is invited to attend the Jordan River Arts Council start-up meeting scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, June 28, at the East Jordan High School library.

The organization's interim board will welcome feedback concerning programs the community would like the arts council to sponsor. It also hopes many more Antrim and Charlevoix County residents will become involved with the council's intent to sponsor programs encouraging cultural and artistic awareness within the Jordan River Valley and its environs.

Interim President Fran Pletz will present an update on the organization's progress since its founding meeting on May 17, including the work done by the bylaws, program advisory, and membership category committees.

The Council will file for incorporation as a tax-exempt organization, making dues and contributions deductible for federal income tax purposes. A membership drive is in the planning stages.

Although the Council will be headquartered in East Jordan, its intent is to make programs available at locations throughout southern Charlevoix County and all of Antrim County.

Saxton family will hold reunion in East Jordan over 4th

The Saxton family, originally from East Jordan, will be reuniting during the holiday weekend. The list of attendants is over 60 people.

Harry Saxton, a lumberjack and mail carrier for the town, and his wife, Mary, lived in East Jordan most of their lives, living on Fourth St. across from the high school until their deaths. They raised five boys and one girl, all of whom will be attending the reunion.

Gayle, the eldest of the Saxton children, taught and coached in the East Jordan school for several years before moving to Houghton Lake, where he taught and then became their principal. Attending the reunion with Gayle and his wife, Rea Rae (a retired school teacher) are their two sons, Bradley of Fenton and Steve of Midland and their families.

Virginia Goodman (Harry and Mary's only daughter) of Estero, Florida will be attending with her husband, Harry, and two daughters from the Detroit area, Nancy Rogers and Dawnne Iwinski and their families.

Richard (Tich), a pharmacist living in Little Rock, Arkansas and his wife, Jean, will be attending with their two sons, Clint and Jim and their families, all residing in Arkansas.

Bill, a retired superintendent of Britton/Macon schools and his wife, Elaine Galmore (also from East Jordan) have a summer home on Lake Charlevoix in East Jordan. They will be attending with their three children, Shelly Barnes and Michael, both of Orchard Lake and Rick of Sacramento, California and their families.

Chuck, a retired teacher from the Warren School system, and his wife, Nellie, own a cottage on Lake Charlevoix. Nellie and Elaine Saxton are co-owners of Ellie's Antiques on Main Street in East Jordan. They will be attending with their five children, Charnell Downing, Jane, Chuck, Scott, and Jill and families which include eight grandchildren.

Bob and his wife, Betty, live in Laingsburg and will be attending with their son, Steve. Bob is a retired school teacher from Laingsburg and is the present mayor of Laingsburg.

The itinerary for the reunion includes a gathering at Sunset Hill Cemetery for prayers for the deceased relatives at 10 a.m. on Monday, July 4, a picnic at Whiting County Park later that day, a canoe trip down the Jordan River, and enjoying the Jordan Valley Freedom Festival together.

The fond memories the town of East Jordan and its people have brought to the Saxton family keep bringing them back year after year to their roots.

'The Paper Chase' at McCune Arts through July 2

"The Paper Chase," an exhibition featuring handmade paper constructs by five Michigan paper-makers, will be shown in the sales gallery at the McCune Arts Center, Petoskey, through Saturday, July 2.

"Handmade paper is an ancient medium that is being rediscovered, and pushed way beyond the mundane perception of paper as something flat to write on," Collins explains.

Collins, manager of the Art Tree Sales Gallery, says "stimulating" best describes the body of work included in "The Paper Chase."

"We are showing jewelry, notepaper, sculpture, collage, beadwork on paper, cast paper, even dream journals made of paper, the medium is deeply satisfying to the senses of touch and color," Collins says.

The Art Tree Sales Gallery is located at the corner of Mitchell and Division Streets, downtown Petoskey.

Gretchen Deems, Mary Lou Mooney, Andy Roeser, Sally Rose and Sally Thielen are the artists who will be showing wall hung and sculptural pieces for this exhibition, the first of its kind at the arts center.

"This exhibition and sale does include two-dimensional works and even monprints on handmade paper," Collins says. "But I think people will be especially amazed and delighted at the experimental directions being taken by these artists."

Ware-withal

by Gail Ware

A week ago, I spent some time entertaining Denis Waitley and his letter-writing consort, Vic Conant. And I was mad at these two for days after, without ever having laid eyes on them. Knowing the fault lay with me not them didn't help. Of course, they started it by sending me their literature—clearly marked as bulk rate mail, though, which told me that they didn't much care about developing my "seeds of greatness". So I shouldn't have either. Anyway, I'm not mad any more.

These men hauled me into reading their stuff by the start of Conant's letter appearing on the outside of their envelope. It began: "Dear Achiever: We know you're good. That's how you got on our mailing list in the first place. But why settle for good when you can be great?" So I read on.

The letter continues inside, four pages of it, talking about ten seeds of greatness, how we're all born with them but develop few if any, except for us achievers who've developed five or six of them. But we need all ten developed, or nine at the very least, to go from "good" to "great."

And Waitley can help in doing just that. With his six-tape program, he can help make those seeds sprout and grow big and strong enabling "you to be whatever you want to be!"

Waitley cites the seed of self-esteem first. Reprogram it to send positive messages, he says. Creativity, responsibility, wisdom, goal-setting and communication come next on his list. Developing that last one, he proposes, will make me "more loving and lovable". Sounds perfectly lovely, doesn't it?

Developing the communication seed also follows up an earlier paragraph of Conant's letter in which he promises that once one masters the program, "you will be a great parent, a great husband or wife, a great neighbor and a source of pride for all who know you." Providing they recognize me that is. But they will as long as my dusting doesn't get to be great too.

I wondered early into reading the letter how Waitley knew that all men come into the world with seeds of greatness in them. But I found when I turned to the color brochure enclosed with the letter, that Waitley explains it. He says he gleaned this information from researching successful men and their character traits for 20 years, and has 50 years of first-hand knowledge too. Either I've the wrong knowledge or know the wrong people because none of my friends shows these seeds.

Among Waitley's credentials I note that he's been the psychological "trainer" for American Olympic champions. Of this he says that "in the final score, a sharply focused will to win carries as much weight as a highly trained body." Will his program help my deplorable frisbee-throwing, though?

But I shouldn't keep putting in my frivolous comments. These men don't go in for frivolity. While they make some good points in their thousands of words, not a hint of humor peeks out. Their vision of greatness includes power and money but no mirth. Still they claim it brings happiness.

I can't pretend I don't know why I go so deeply involved in this stuff because I do. Conant hooked me on my vanity right off. And I didn't get unhooked until I thought it through. And then I laughed. That's when I got over being mad too—and when I decided that since I can't use my sense of humor in their vision of greatness, I'm just not going, and that's that.

Governor bans open burning until drought is over

Portable camp stoves and bottled gas grills may be used by campers at Michigan State Forest campgrounds as a substitute for cooking over an open campfire, while an emergency ban on open burning exists throughout the Upper Peninsula, 33 northern Lower Peninsula and Ottawa and Muskegon Counties in the southern Lower Peninsula. Effective June 16 at noon, Governor James J. Blanchard banned all open burning throughout these areas of the state until such time as existing drought conditions and corresponding wild-fire danger is alleviated by substantial rain.

Campfires within containers or fire rings are permitted during the open burning ban at homesteads and campgrounds when continuous on-site supervision (park ranger/manager, host camper or owner) exists, such as at all State Parks, most private county and township operated campgrounds.

Most of Michigan's 150 State Forest campgrounds, do not have continuous supervision, therefore, the camp stove or gas grill is required at these sites.

Michigan's State Forest campgrounds offer more than 3,000 campsites. Overnight camp site fees run between $3 and $5 a night, and $2 a night for senior citizens 65 and older.

Michigan's State Forest campgrounds offer more than 3,000 campsites. Overnight camp site fees run between $3 and $5 a night, and $2 a night for senior citizens 65 and older. For more information on Michigan State Forest campgrounds, a brochure may be obtained from the DNR's Information Services Center, P.O. Box 30028, Lansing, MI 48909, 517-373-1220, or at any of the DNR's field offices, Statewide. All 15 Upper Peninsula counties are affected by the open burning ban. The 35 Lower Peninsula counties included in the ban are: Alcona, Alpena, Antrim, Arenac, Bay, Benzie, Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Clare, Crawford, Emmet, Gladwin, Grand Traverse, Iosco, Isabella, Kalkaska, Lake, Leelanau, Manistee, Mason, Mecosta, Midland, Missaukee, Montmorency, Muskegon, Newaygo, Oceana, Ogemaw, Osceola, Oscoda, Otsego, Otawa, Presque Isle, Roscommon and Wexford.

Health Dept. lists safety rules for fireworks

The July 4th holiday weekend is one of the most enjoyable times of the summer. Backyard barbecues, picnic lunches and firework displays are only a few of the activities that help each of us to remember our Nation's Independence.

This celebrated holiday can end in tragedies such as death, blindness, amputations, and severe burns when fireworks are used improperly.

The Consumer Product Safety Commission estimates that in 1985, 10,300 people were treated in hospital emergency rooms for injuries associated with fireworks. Over half the injuries were burns and many of the injuries involved the head and face, including the mouth, ears, and eyes. Forty two percent of the victims were under 15 years of age. Since January 1985, there have been 27 deaths reported to CPSC from fireworks.

A fourteen year old boy was seriously injured while mixing chemicals for making explosives in his family's home. The chemicals which were ordered from a mail order firm exploded unexpectedly, destroying much of the home.

An eight year old girl received second and third degree burns to her leg when a spark from a sparkler she was holding ignited her dress.

The majority of injuries (ranging from burns to lacerations) reported every year occur to the fingers and hands, yet it is not uncommon for accidents to result in eyesight and hearing loss during the July 4th holidays.

Doctor Brian Youngs, Regional

Medical Director for District Health Department No. 3 and 4, offers the following advice to parents to anyone else that will be handling fireworks:

1. Do not allow younger children to play with fireworks under any circumstances. Remember that fireworks are not toys for children. The sparkler, considered by many the ideal "safe" firework for the young, burns at a very high temperature and can easily ignite clothing. Children cannot appreciate the danger involved and cannot act correctly in case of an emergency.
2. If you permit older children to use fireworks, be sure they use them only under close adult supervision. Do not allow any running or horse play while they are being used.
3. Before using any fireworks, read and follow all warning instructions printed on the label.
4. Light fireworks outdoors in a clear area away from houses and flammable materials (gasoline can, etc.).
5. Keep a bucket of water nearby for emergencies and for dousing fireworks that don't go off.
6. Do not try to relight or handle malfunctioning fireworks. Soak them with water and throw away.
7. Be sure other people are out of range before lighting fireworks.
8. Never ignite fireworks in a container, especially a glass or metal container.
9. Store fireworks in a dry, cool place. Check instructions for special storage directions.
10. Parents should supervise the ordering and use of mail order "make your own" firework kits. Some kit contents can produce dangerous, explosive devices.

Not all "Department of Transportation Class C" labeled fireworks are legal in Michigan for use by the consumer. The only firework devices which may be sold at the retail level and used by the general consuming public are restricted to the following: toy paper, caps, wire sparklers (size 14 or less), flitter sparklers, toy snakes, toy smoke devices, toy trick noise makers, cone fountains, and cylinder fountains.

Firework devices, other than those noted, are illegal for sale and use unless proper permits are obtained from the local governing body. Firework devices which send a projectile into the air, spin, twirl, or emit an audible signal (excluding toy paper caps and toy trick noise makers) are illegal.

Accidents resulting from fireworks occurs at all ages, so watch the children around you and watch yourself.

Questions regarding types of legal fireworks should be directed to local law enforcement agencies.

Summer should be an enjoyable season for everyone. Please be careful with fireworks, and when traveling, "remember to buckle up!"

provide to the city a construction performance schedule which will provide a sequence schedule for phases of a project within certain specific calendar dates.

Another housekeeping matter tightens up the rules governing the division of a two-family residential structure and provides a definition of what a dwelling is, whether it is a single, two-family, or multiple dwelling.

The same section will also see a rule added that the two-family dwelling must have the same ownership of both units unless it has been condominiumized.

If it is turned into a condo, it will fall under the state rules.

The planners also clarified a section of the ordinance dealing with motel, hotel and other commercial lodging establishments. It will require each type of establishment to provide two parking spaces if the rooms are more than 400 square feet. The changes also include a definition of a motel or hotel.

The planners then closed the public input for the upcoming Marvin Loding Community Pride Awards and will be making the decision at their meeting next month.

They then started to discuss whether or not the city should have an Architectural Design Committee to help guide those builders and developers into what the city is looking for as far as the turn-of-the-century buildings the city is trying to evolve into.

They appointed a committee to look into the idea with Mark Kowalske, Leigh Woodbury and Chris Bandy being named. The committee will first have to decide what is the look the city wants, and then provide examples for builders and architects to consider as they prepare plans for developments within the city. The city intends to make this advisory committee develop suggestions for the builders.

going farther in debt all the time? What happens when the roof falls in? By the end of Reagan's term the debt will be over 2 1/2 trillion dollars and rising faster and faster. I have yet to have anybody explain how we are going to pay off this debt. It won't just go away. If we continue spending our national wealth on exotic weaponry and our so called defense against them we won't need a war to destroy us. We will destroy ourselves by abdicating our position of strength and letting the war war mongers take over.

The question I would like to ask is this. Are all these good republicans that claim to be so gung-ho on America and have so enthusiastically supported Ronald Reagan and his policies going to support George Bush also? We all know full well that he intends to continue business as usual. There is nothing in his so-called credentials that would indicate his ability to be president. In my opinion he would be a national disaster. I don't know what kind of a president Dukakis will make but I am positive about Bush.

Think of the corruption that has gripped the nation in the last few years, think of the 2 1/2 to 3 trillion dollar debt and who will pay it, think of a nation that believes their president is a nice fellow but can't be trusted, think of all the people in this world that used to look up to the United States as a great nation-compassionate and caring for the less fortunate, think of our national honor and our lost respect, think of the kind of people we Americans really are.

Golf Digest Instruction Schools return to Boyne

Summer at Boyne Highlands brings the return of Golf Digest Instruction Schools, featuring that magazine's Director of Golf Instruction Jim Flick as the driving force.

"I'm thrilled to be back," says Flick of his return to Boyne. "Interest in golf has expanded in Northern Michigan in the past few years, and I'm excited about being here. The weather, the facilities, and the people make this a fun place to be and work."

Either full or half-day instruction are available for students of all skill levels in the 3-day sessions.

Two sessions, July 4-8 and 11-15, include three full days of instruction, plus accommodations and meals. Jim Flick, Jack Lumpkin from Amelia Island, Florida and Ann Arbor's Dick Drager will instruct.

"We plan on having no more than 20 students per session," says Flick, "which will give me a low student-teacher ratio."

The mini-schools, August 22-24 and 25-27, include three half days of instruction. Participants can choose morning or afternoon classes, both of which are limited to six students. Instructors for the mini-school include Flick, Drager and Paul Runyan, a golf legend who will have the hole of his choice on Boyne Mountain's Monument golf course dedicated to him this summer.

Flick says that although both whole and half day classes will concentrate on the full swing and short game, the Golf Digest emphasis is on tailoring instruction to each individual's character and golfing style, rather than following a preset formula.

"We are aware that every golfer has a different make-up, character and emotional needs which need to be addressed during instruction," says Flick. "We tune in to those needs, giving every student lessons designed for (his or her) particular needs."

The Golf Instruction Schools cover all aspects of the game and seek to improve distance, accuracy, consistency and confidence for all levels of players.

Director of Instruction at Golf Digest for 17 years, Flick has taught everyone from beginners to tour players in 23 different countries. He is also Golf Consultant for Boyne USA Resorts.

Boyne Rapids Adventure Golf to open July 1

Boyne Rapids Adventure Golf, located at the eastern city limits, of Boyne City, announces its first day of operation July 1. This miniature golf course honors the Michigan lumbering industry in general and the Boyne Valley in particular because the Boyne River was the last of the large lumbering rivers in the lower peninsula.

An authentic set of "Big Wheels" - a

Michigan lumbering invention- dominates the front lawn and is an integral part of the logo and highway signs. Reproductions of turn of the century photographs of timber crews, logging operations, Big Wheels; and of the White Sawmill operation in Boyne City, serve as interior decoration to the ticket building.

The golf course features 18 holes of miniature golf played around three hills, each with its attendant waterfall and rapids, totalling some 22,000 gallons an hour. The ticket building's exterior showcases Heidi Scroll siding, in keeping with the overall theme, while old-fashioned flowers of hollyhock, petunias, delphiniums, sweat-peas and marigolds accent natural foliage.

Nearly every hole on the course will be beside, over or under moving water. In addition to a number of "rapids," the Irish settlers of the Boyne Valley are also remembered at the shamrock-shaped first hole.

Students of Char-Em Intermediate School District have been invited to play the course on a complimentary basis, once a month this summer. Boyne Rapids Adventure Golf is also open to suggestions for local charity events, including a "Charities' Night" monthly.

"We want to become an integral part of the community," states Manager Brian Williams. "We have been in love with this particular area of Michigan for over 25 years, our family has

Bolt family represented in show at McCune

Russ and Sue Bolt and their artist-family will be represented in a group show June 26 through July 9 in the Art Tree Sales Gallery, Petoskey.

The Bolts have gained national renown for their work, but remain committed to their home base near Charlevoix. They were among the first in the growing northern Michigan art community to settle here, and are still at the hub of the area's creative activity.

Northern Michigan is home to several husband and wife artist teams: Steve and Karen Andrews, Ray and Tami Bier, Harry and Kathy Boyer, David Chulick and David Godwin, Steve and Deanna Kostyshyn, Chuck and Nancy Koucky, Bob and Ellie Nicol, David and June Otis, Steve Toornman and Meredith Krell.

"As unusual as it is to have ten artist couples in an area as small as this, it is even more rare to have an entire family working as professional artists," says Audrey Collins, manager of the Art Tree Sales Gallery.

"Russ produces rich watercolors and acrylics; Sue paints on porcelain with bright glazes; their daughter, Lori, creates contemporary fine art quilts and wall-hangings; her husband, Frank Hasseld, sculpts with metal and stone; Russ Bolt, Jr., has given life to a menagerie of whimsical clay animals; Bob Bolt uses clay to make stylized cars that automaniacs wish were life-size," Collins says.

In this Bolt Family exhibition, viewers will see the differences and similarities of expression that distinguish their endeavors.

"What I have found as a common thread in all their work is an immense love for all the wonders of creation, and an eagerness to celebrate what is best in life," says Collins.

Their work, done with an obvious passion for color and contour, has become some of the most sought-after in the area, according to Collins.

The Bolt's Limited Engagement Exhibition will be on display and sale from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday, and 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Sunday. The Art Tree is located in the McCune Arts Center, corner of Mitchell and Division Streets, downtown Petoskey.

Boyne tennis brings Burwash back again

Boyne USA Resort guests will enjoy another season of great tennis as Peter Burwash International teams up with the resort for their second annual Tennis for Life clinic.

The program, designed last year to increase the use of Boyne Mountain's extensive tennis clubhouse and 14 championship Laykold courts, will also expand to Boyne Highland's tennis facilities this summer.

All levels of adult and junior player's clinics will be offered under the direction of returning PBI instructor Ric Piermont. His goal is to keep classes "positive, simple, fun and a great workout."

"We want everyone to have a fantastic time while they're here at Boyne and want to make their stay here one they'll never forget," Piermont said.

The new Star of Charlevoix

BY DARLA LOOZE

Residents and tourists in the Northern Michigan area now have a chance at a unique experience—a ride on an authentic paddle boat, on the new Star of Charlevoix.

According to the general manager of Star of Charlevoix, Inc., Phil Lutzi, the new boat was completed and left Myrtle Beach, South Carolina last November. The boat was supposed to have been here and in operation last summer, but construction delays prevented it.

From Myrtle Beach, the boat was piloted by some of the crew from the other Star Corporation boats to Norfolk, Virginia where it was docked for the winter. In April of this year the boat was brought up through the Intracoastal Waterway into the big lakes and finally, Lake Charlevoix.

The new boat was docked at a temporary facility near the Ironton Ferry where it was painted. Additional construction work was done on the boat because some of it had to be dismantled to make it through the New York Barge Canal on the trip up to Lake Charlevoix.

The boat is now harbored on Round Lake at the foot of Clinton Street in downtown Charlevoix where a new docking facility has been completed. This is right in back of the new Star of Charlevoix, Inc. office located at 218 Bridge Street, Charlevoix which has been open for about three weeks.

Monument is one of nation's best

The Monument course at Boyne Mountain was selected as one of 1987's best new resort courses by Golf Digest magazine.

Boyne's head professional, Brian Sanderson, said the Monument was runner-up to the Semiahoo course in Blaine, Washington.

In all categories, more than 80 courses were considered by Golf Digest for the honors. Judging criteria for course evaluation included playability, aesthetics, shot value, memorability and design balance. Winning courses were selected by ballot.

Golf Digest editor Jerry Tarde said the Monument was "considered by ranking panelists (to be) among the best in the country."

In addition, Boyne Highlands' Heather Links course continued to be ranked in Golf Digest's top 100 American courses.

started in 1981 and there have been two other Star boats before this one, according to Lutzi, but this one is the first paddle boat. "This boat is powered by two paddles and has much shallower draft than the other boats," he said. "But, despite this fact, it will be run by the same crew.

Navigation in rough seas will be about the same, they will just have to take it a little easier where the water is shallower." One of the other two

2nd Annual Boyne Triathlon dates announced

Boyne Country Sports announces August 27 as the date for its second annual Triathlon at Boyne Mountain.

The event, featuring a 1 kilometer swim across Deer Lake, a 42 kilometer bike ride through hilly country roads, and a 10 kilometer run over Boyne Mountain, is expected to bring increased participation over last year.

Thirty five competitors finished 1987's event, with winner Bill Brundage of Traverse City breaking the two-hour mark. Brundage's total time of 1:59:11 was three minutes faster than runner-up Don Fedrigo.

The top female finisher, Traverse City's Karen Wells-O'Connell took seventh place overall with a time of 2:18:40.

This year's event is expected to draw some of the state's finest athletes, as well as a healthy crowd of spectators. The rolling hills, views and setting make the Boyne Triathlon a favorite of competitors and spectators alike.

All are invited to attend the awards banquet which follows.

Ever think you'd like to raise llamas?

BY DARLA LOOZE

The 7th Annual National Conference of the International Llama Association was held at Shanty Creek-Schuss Mountain Resorts from June 15 through June 18.

It was the first time this International Organization met west of the Rockies and, according to Conference Chairman Dale Morris, was a very definite success. "The weather was just perfect and we had over 250 first time conference attendees," he said. "The conference was held to benefit and educate the over 1250 members of the organization, but the public was more than welcome to come and look at the llamas."

According to Morris the conference was attended by llama breeders and owners from over 42 states, Canada, England and Australia.

In the Charlevoix area there is the Maplewood Farm, 06300 Boyne City Road, Charlevoix where Jim and Nel Vickers own and breed around 20 llamas.

Becky Abbott of the Wilderness Llamas in Empire, Michigan said that many people do not know the benefits of llamas. "They make excellent breeding stock and are used for wool production, therapy, used for driving animals or as pets," she said. "I have two small children and don't fear them getting around any of our 14 llamas."

An interesting fact, according to Abbott, is the llama foot is much like that of a deer so they are used as pack animals for the United States Rangers in many of our national parks. "Their feet cause less erosion on much of the terrain as opposed to a horse's foot," she said.

Llamas are members of the camel family and camelids originated on the plains of North America where they lived about 40 million years ago. The first domestic herd of about 100 llamas was brought to the United States from South America by William Hearst sometime around the turn of the century.

Llama wool is oil-free, lightweight and very popular among weavers and spinners. It usually sells for about $2 - $5 per ounce according to its quality.

But don't expect to jump into the llama raising business as the average cost of a female llama begins at approximately $6,000 with breeding females ranging in price from $10,000-$12,000, but pet or pack llamas begin at around $600. Stud quality males begin at $2,500. The highest price ever paid for a female llama was $80,000 and $100,000 for a male.

Featured at the conference were over 30 speakers including veterinarians, PhD's, acknowledged experts and experienced llama breeders. Over 20 topics were featured covering all aspects of llama care.

According to Morris, the next conference will be held in Salt Lake City, Utah at about the same time next year.

Anyone wishing to find out more information on the organization can write the International Llama Association, P.O. Box 37505, Denver, CO 80237 or call 1-303-699-9543.

Star Core

by Fred Cooper Tichenor

For the week of June 22nd

ARIES (Mar 21-Apr 21) I know you're not a diplomat but do you have to go out of your way to upset others? One of your exploits could make the newspaper. You'll be glad it happened in the long run. You might consult a marriage counselor as things are not working out like you'd thought or hoped they would.

TAURUS (Apr 22-May 22) Some of the excitement seems to be gone from your hobby. Don't make any financial moves until Venus turns direct. An upheaval at work could leave you in an excellent position. If you're getting married today it should last forever. (The doesn't mean you don't have a lot to learn.)

GEMINI (May 23-Jun 21) This is your best time of the year because people seek you out. A deal you've been working on should come through. A Scorpio is going to present you with a problem concerning one of your favorite subjects. A good weekend to begin taking a greater interest in the children.

CANCER (Jun 22-Jul 20) The cloud you've been operating under will be blowing away soon. You will receive an exciting assignment but plan for any eventuality. The opportunity to move out of town could be coming. Don't think it will solve your problems—they will move right along with you.

LEO (Jul 21-Aug. 20) Push yourself forward at every chance, the wind is at your back. A romance is going to drop in out of the blue. Don't count on its longevity but enjoy it while you can. Take the children some place exciting this weekend. You will receive an upsetting communication in regards to a project.

VIRGO (Aug. 21-Sep 22) You should be making explicit plans for the home of your dreams; your finances are improving and you will be able to afford it soon. If you've been postponing asking someone a big question, now is the time. Out of town business could be more profitable even counting the expenses.

LIBRA (Sep 23-Oct 25) You'll be on a downer for a couple of days but hot to trot by weekend. Your love life should be much more to your liking now. You are becoming more interested in something (or somebody) out of town—what's going on? A Scorpio has a sure-fire way for you to get rich - don't you believe it!

SCORPIO (Oct 26-Nov 23) The problems with your sex life should be ending in the near future. Don't let go of any money this week no matter who comes begging. The loved one is going to make a financial mistake if you aren't on top of things; better do some nosing around. Good weekend to "let it all hang out."

SAGITTARIUS (Nov 24-Dec 21) Your patience will pay off and you will begin to make excellent, steady and long lasting progress before the year is out. You will make the acquaintance of an unusual person and shouldn't prejudge. This person carries clout although you wouldn't know by looking.

CAPRICORN (Dec 22-Jan 17) You must be patient if you want to get anywhere. A Libra could wake you up and make you see there's more to life than work. On the other hand, it will make working more fun. Go on a retreat to get your priorities straightened out but don't do anything out of character, it will cause talk.

AQUARIUS (Jan 18-Feb 16) If you need any counseling, don't postpone it. You will be in the mood to speculate (or even gamble) but your feelings of optimism may be misplaced. What's this? An Aquarius becoming all romantic? You are in one of your bizarre periods and it isn't doing your reputation any good.

PISCES (Feb 17-Mar 20) Put any expansion plans on hold until Mercury turns direct. If you are planning a show-of-strength, forget it; it will be a bomb. It's time you quit spending every penny and started a savings program. This would be a good weekend to attend a meeting concerning the ecult.

"One berry, one kiss," wrote American author Washington Irving about mistletoe. But National Wildlife magazine reports that the custom of kissing under the mistletoe goes back much further than the 19th century. According to Norse Mythology, the Goddess Frigga made the plant a symbol of love and promised to bestow a kiss on all who passed under it.

Gaylord's Alpenfest July 13-16

Where else could you put on clothing called Liederhosen, get together and burn the boog, walk down an Anpenstrasse or maybe just have coffee with a few hundred of your closest friends? Where else but during Alpenfest 88 in the Alpine village...Gaylord.

Alpenfest organiza-

ers have four big days planned, July 13th to the 16th, for the 24th Annual Alpenfest. This year's activities start at six P.M. on Wednesday with the Sechselaeuten Bell Ringing and opening ceremonies. In the three days that follow, parades, entertainment, sampling of ethnic foods are just a few of the many activities that will make your visit special.

Gaylord area business locations and the Gaylord/Otsego County Chamber of Commerce have the complete schedules. Spend the best four days of summer at Alpenfest 88 in Gaylord...naturally.
