

EJ pool adds lift thanks to donors

East Jordan's Community Pool has been made accessible to handicapped swimmers thanks to the generosity of various groups and individuals within the community. The Nolan Poollift is a hydraulically-powered lift which permits swimmers to lower and raise themselves in and out of the pool. This equipment is being installed in the newest pools serving handicapped swimmers.

A committee was formed to investigate available equipment and to raise funds for the purchase of equipment most appropriate for East Jordan's pool. Members of this committee included Lyle Etcher, Bill Grauel, Father Arthur Mulka, Florence

Stucker, Milton Veverka, and Anne Dingman. Before purchasing the Nolan Poollift, members of the committee observed it in use in other facilities. Once the committee decided on the specific piece of equipment, letters requesting support were sent to businesses and service clubs in the area. Many individuals and groups responded to this appeal. Some donations were made in memory of friends and family members. Among service groups contributing were the Northwest Shrine Club, East Jordan Bridge Tournament, American Legion Post No. 227, Grandvue Auxiliary, Swan Sues, Extension Club, East Jordan Rotary and Charlevoix County Senior Citizens. Contributing businesses included Jay Bingham Insurance and Campbell-Lindsey Insurance.

Very large vote

Bus issue fails by 62 votes

The buses will not be rolling next week for Boyne City students, or the following weeks either as the vote to add 1.7 mills to pay for busing was defeated by a narrow 62 votes in the special election held Monday.

The vote count was 875 votes cast against the millage increase while 813 votes were cast supporting the increase. The total vote count included one spoiled ballot as an almost record number of voters came to the polls at the middle school to express their concern.

With the failure of the issue, the bus issue will not be on a ballot in the near future as the board is going to have to try to work out other budgetary concerns in an attempt to balance the present budget.

According to Superintendent Dr. Bob Nakonezny, the district has its work cut out for them. Nakonezny said he will be attending to transportation matters in the next few days, laying off the bus superintendent, Vic Ayres, and tying up other transportation matters.

He stressed the need to have a detailed budget to see if there are any other areas that could be cut, and if those cuts are feasible, as he tries to figure out the direction the school system is going.

Nakonezny said, "The simple answer is to cut the heart out of the program, but that is not the answer or in the best interest of the kids. I can't see destroying the future of this community's kids by cutting out necessary programs.

According to the preliminary budget which was not accepted by the school board during the summer, even if the busing issue was approved, the school budget was still in the red by a considerable amount. The board is working with a repeat of last year's budget until a detailed budget can be worked out and presented by the superintendent.

Nakonezny said, "As we put the budget together, moms and dads will see the needs. It's too late for busing this year and I hope when we have the budget sessions in November, we will have several hundred people interested in attending the meetings."

Board member Thelma Behling said, "I feel sorry for the 813 people who voted yes for the busing issue, knowing that it would mean a tax increase and knowing that the schools needed the money to operate.

"Now we will have to see what else we could cut in order to reach a balanced budget. I still want to have the best possible education we can provide the children of the community and we are going to have trouble doing that."

But according to Carl Dulin, one of the group that wanted busing returned without having a tax increase, a no vote does not mean the people do not want busing.

He said, "The people are telling the school board to manage its money more wisely. I implore the school board to meet as soon as possible to reinstate busing. They must take the responsibility to ensure the safety of the children."

He added, "I am not willing to wait more than a week to ten days. I want a special meeting as soon as possible. There has to be someone on that board that realizes that they have to step forward and bring this community back together. If and when they can prove that their budget is as tight as former superintendent Rich Kelly thought, then measures will have to be taken.

"Until I would have a chance to study the financial statements of previous years, I couldn't even begin to tell them what is needed or could be improved.

"I could probably come up with 20 suggestions or more on ways to save money or use it better."

In the meantime, the school board will be discussing what avenues will have to be taken to reach the rest of the goal of reaching a balanced budget for this school year.

If they continue the spending level of the present budget, they will be substantially in the red which is against state law. Law requires a school system to have a balanced budget.

Nakonezny said he will be working on the budget, trying to understand what was done previously, and what will work in the future as time permits. He said he expects to be spending as much time as possible, while still running the school district, on

This view, a projected look at what the new plant may look like when it is built, shows a low roofline for the new 67,000 square foot plant for Altair International. The plant will be constructed on property that is between the airport and Carter's Food Market near the Air/Industrial Park in Boyne City. The firm said it expects to have about 100 workers within two years after completion. The plant is expected to be on line by February with landscaping and paving to be done by next spring. Two other plants of the firm will be consolidated into the new plant. The plant on Dam Road in Boyne Valley Township and the East Jordan plant are expected to be moved to the new location. Additional expansion is possible with plans showing room for growth on either end of the building. Peninsula Construction will be starting to build as soon as details are worked out concerning the owners, architect, and the city.

Boyne City okays new 60,000 sq. ft. Altair plant

Boyne City will be getting another 100 plus jobs within the next two years, and perhaps as soon as next February, after members of the planning board approved the site plan for a new Altair International plant to be located behind the Carter's Food Center near the Air-Industrial Park.

The plans call for a 60,000 square foot manufacturing facility along with a 6,900 square foot office to begin construction as soon as possible. Peninsula Construction of Traverse City will be starting construction as soon as all of the details the company wants in the plant are worked out and contracts are signed.

The facility will be 300 by 230 feet and involves property owned by Ron Reffitt, the president of Peninsula Construction. His firm was the firm that constructed the former Country Star Market, now Carter's. Reffitt purchased the property some years ago when Country Star was relocating on M-75.

According to Mike Nault, the project supervisor for Auget-Altair, the corporation over Altair International, the company hopes to begin manufacturing at the new facility sometime in February. He said he hopes the building is completed by that time with the exception of asphalt and landscaping which would occur as soon as possible next spring.

Entry to the project area will come off the present Air/Industrial Park Drive, located behind the Top O' Michigan Rural Electric Company. The owners of the plant said they want the plant to become part of the park.

Nault said the reason the project was located in Boyne City was that the site was desirable to the firm.

Presently, the firm has two plants in the area. One on Dam Road in Boyne Valley Township and the other in East Jordan. The new plant will consolidate the two plants into one new location.

The plans show the plant has room for expansion on both ends, east and west, if business requires expansion. The plant will be located on about eleven acres of property owned by Reffitt.

The plant will add one more facility to the growing Boyne City complex, something that the Economic Development Corporation of the city had hoped would occur.

The plant manufactures electrical connectors for the automotive industry using high speed stamping presses. Nault said they will be installing noise enclosures around the machines to contain noise a stamping machine makes.

The plans call for parking of up to 155 cars along the back of the plant which is about 200 feet from the airport runway. A ditch will separate the cars from the airport.

In approving the plans, planners said they expect a few questions will arise concerning some of the details and assured the company they are willing to work with the firm.

In other action, the planners also approved two site plans for the Harborage Marine Company.

The first involves the building of two 80 by 150 boat storage buildings on property they own along Division Street. The buildings will be constructed behind the present showroom and maintenance building across the street from the Maplelawn Cemetery.

The construction, which is to start immediately, is a positive move according to representative Richard Smith, representing the firm. The expansion of the facility comes within one year of beginning the complex.

In the original site plan, approved last year, an area was set aside for the two boat storage buildings and Smith said the need is present to construct them now.

The buildings will have no electricity or need bath facilities Smith said as they are only ac-

City establishes rules for boat launch, paving

The changes for the boat launch involve the registering of any vehicle, trailers or boats for the parking at the ramp for more than 24 hours. A $400 fee has been established to help pay for the cost of maintenance. Over-

"Don't think battle thoughts all day, or you'll be war-weary at night."

Jottings

BY JIM SILBAR

Are you among those of us who are watching the Olympics from Seoul?

Are you a little like me when watching the gymnastics or diving...holding my breath until the athlete gets through the routine? Or do you grunt and groan when watching the boxing or the wrestling competitions?

I do. Especially since I used to be a gymnast back in my youth.

I look at the routines the athletes are doing today and shake my head in wonder.

When I was competing, the tricks they are doing today were something very rare. Like doing a double back somersault — back in my day, if a tumbler could do one of those, he had to do it on the pads of a tumbling mat. Today, they do them on the floor as part of a floor exercise routine.

Or the things they are doing on the high bar — we used to dream of doing things like German giant swings. Now they do them as part of basic routines.

And to leave the bar doing a vault like those of today, was not even thought about back in my day. I just get amazed as what the gymnasts are doing. And I hold my breath while they are doing it.

I know how dangerous that sport can be. In fact, I can say it is the only sport where I have been hurt, if a dislocated elbow is a hurt. It still bothers me a little today on rainy days with high humidity.

And I can remember many times with a lot less serious hurts, like twisted ankles, pulled muscles, skin ripped from the palm of my hand and such.

Part of the illusion of gymnastics is to make the hard things look easy and the easy things look hard. But those in the know, like Mike Bos and a few others in the area, know of the tremendous amount of time it takes to learn a trick, and the amount of time it takes to put that trick into a routine. Then you have to do the routines thousands of times so that they are right in your mind, so you won't hurt yourself trying.

Now that I am out of gymnastics, I can truthfully say that I only completed one pommel horse routine the way I had it planned in competition.

That piece of apparatus was the hardest for me. I just couldn't get the rhythm of it down to a point where I could do a whole routine.

Needless to say, I envy those who can. And those who are up there representing our nation.

They may not be the best in the world, but in my book, they are excellent. And they do wonderful things we used to dream about doing as part of their daily lives.

Heck, I couldn't do the compulsory routine of today, even in my prime. The sport has advanced so much since I was in training, a handstand is passe.

And it was the basis of a good routine back then.

Sets story straight

Editor:

On the front page of the July 27, 1988, edition of the Charlevoix County Press, you incorrectly identified the workers and their program.

In your picture, there are two different crews; one is a crew of Michigan Civilian Conservation Corps workers from Camp Vanderbilt (of which John Perry is the Crew Leader) and one is from the Michigan Youth Corps.

Michigan Civilian Conservation Corps (MCCC) is administered by and works primarily with the Department of Natural Resources. This MCCC has three Residential Centers; one in Vanderbilt, a second in the Detroit area, and a third in the western end of the upper peninsula at Alberta, as well as having non-residential positions throughout the state. Each year we employ over 500 young people between the ages of 18-25 who are on some type of general assistance. They can work for our program for one year, after which, they are encouraged to seek permanent employment in the private sector. Approximately 70% of the corps never return to welfare!

Depot in Walloon Lake Village before fire - 1906 - Grand Rapids and Indiana Railway

Back in 1906, the depot at Walloon Lake was busy during the summer months dropping off and picking up vacationers to the many cottages and resorts around the lake. The railroad tracks went right to the water where boats would take the vacationers to the cottages. After dropping off those passengers at Walloon Lake, the train went up to Petoskey and over to Harbor Springs before starting back down state to Grand Rapids and Indiana.

Marshall Sayles

I am happy to be among those folks who simply vote "yes" or "no" in an election and let it go at that. Which means I am not a bureaucrat.

In Monday's election did you vote to put the certified adolescent transportation specialists back to work? If you did, the student mobile command modules will be rolling again. This is bureaucrat government talk. It is impossible for them to call a school bus and its driver by their proper names. If you voted no on the proposition the government would explain it with language a PhD would not be able to understand.

I know some people who fooled the bureaucrats by not voting at all.

The other day my wife was spending the afternoon playing bridge on the other side of town. After reading the paper and staring out the window, I fell hungry. So I went into the kitchen and looked at all that food in the fridge. Nothing looked good, so I started fingering the cracker boxes and canned goods on the shelf. Then I look at all those kitchen gadgets I'd have to use. Realizing there's no problem I cannot solve, I went down town and ordered a hamburger and a cup of coffee.

The fall season began officially this week. I didn't have to look at the calendar to know that it was rapping us aside the head with a soup spoon. No, I realized it when I saw a little field mouse in the garage. He was seeking relief from these early morning weather warnings.

It has been my experience that seeing one mouse is like seeing people. The minute you turn around, there's another one.

Every year when winter approaches we must do something about field mice setting up housekeeping in our garage. Traps and poison help. An old broom hangs on the wall. A swish and a swat and they are gone. Not for good, however. I can't count times I've heard the words, "I shall return."

We put our garbage in a plastic bag, tie it up good and set it in the garage until it's time to drag it down the driveway for the pick-up man.

Those field mice that "shall return" aren't kidding. They have chewed through the plastic bag and finished off that pork-chop I'd had enough of. (Correction: of which I had had enough).

There is only one sure way to get rid of field mice. Go outdoors and somehow get rid of the field. Without a field you won't have those little mice.

I told that to an environmentalist and he laughed at me. It was the first time in American history that an environmentalist has been known to laugh. Like the people with the Department of Natural Resources, they either frown or get fired.

When he realized he could be fired he began to cry, saying that I should leave our field alone and do something about the mice.

"Look," I said, "As long as that big field is out there I just can't do much about these mice."

Wiping the tears from his eyes, he said, "Why not? Walt Disney did."

Just 101 days before Christmas. I thought and thought and that's all I could come up with to end this column.

END OF SEASON PICNICS.
This morning I have re-discovered some very good reasons for a picnic. One - The scenery is perfect: our northern woods are aflame with color; there is that pale blue haze in the early morning which will become brilliant blue before noon. I become picnic hungry just observing such a morning.
Two - There is a crispy cool tang in the air that whets our appetites. This is so very welcome after our hot summer days. The robins are congregating on our lawns in large flocks telling us that they will be leaving before long, and we know that there will be cold days ahead. So we must make the most of these luscious, glorious early fall days.

There are many different kinds of picnics: Breakfasts, casual ones, the last minute picnics when we stop for cheese, lunch meat, pop or wine on the way, family reunion type, and cook-outs where the fish just caught are fried.

Then there are evening picnics for those who have busy days. I am recalling one glorious evening: an evening to remember. It was almost dark when we built our fire and roasted weiners and heated up baked beans. If going on an evening picnic, it is a good idea to go before the hunting season. We heard bird calls at sunset and pheasants flew over. I am still remembering that picnic after many years. I hope that my children and grandchildren can experience such an evening just sitting on a log with a blanket over their shoulders in front of a fire singing the old songs, eating our Michigan Concord grapes and apples for dessert. I am really getting carried away! Let's think of food for a daytime or evening picnic in our beautiful North Country on the patio at home where most of us have a grill, or take your grill to a favorite picnic spot. Here is a tasty way to make barbecued ribs, loved by everyone.

LEMON GRILLED RIBS
1/2 cup water
1 chicken bouillon cube
3 tablespoons brown sugar
1 cup pineapple juice
2 cloves garlic, minced
1/4 cup minced onion
1/4 cup catsup
1/4 cup lemon juice
2 tablespoons cornstarch
Salt and pepper
3 lbs. spare ribs or country style spareribs.
Combine first 9 ingredients in a saucepan, and season to taste with salt and pepper. Bring to a boil, stirring well. Lower heat, and simmer 5 minutes; set aside. Cut ribs into serving size pieces (3 to 4 ribs per person). Place ribs, bone side down on grill over slow coals. Grill about 20 minutes; turn meaty side down, and cook until browned. Turn meaty side up again, and grill about 20 minutes longer. Brush meaty side with sauce mixture. Continue to grill without turning, 20 to 30 minutes; baste occasionally. Brush sauce on both sides of the ribs, let cook 2 to 3 minutes on each side. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

This salad is an attractive barbecue accompaniment, serve it in a hollowed-out cabbage head or in a bowl lined with dark green outer cabbage leaves. From Kraft Kitchens.

SUMMER FRUIT SLAW
Can be made the day before.
2 cups red grape halves
1 cup shredded zucchini
1 cup shredded cabbage
1 medium apple cut in strips
1/2 cup French reduced calorie dressing
1/2 cup shredded carrots
1/2 cup coarsely chopped walnuts
Combine ingredients; mix lightly. Chill. Makes six servings-180 calories per serving.

Sometimes we like to fix a casserole or other main dish and take it to a favorite picnic spot at the last minute. Here is one such dish.

STUFFED LUNCHEON LOAF
Prepare 1 package (8 oz.) bread stuffing according to package directions. Add 1 can (9 oz.) crushed pineapple, drained. Slice 1 can (12 oz.) pork-ham luncheon loaf. Alternate meat, dressing, and cling peach halves in buttered loaf pan. Bake in moderate oven (375°) for 20 minutes.

This is the time to serve fruit for dessert. Our Michigan muskmelons are at their best, and apples, pears, plums and peaches are deliciously ripe and don't forget the Concord grapes. Homemade cookies are the only accompaniment needed. If it is too hot to bake, the local bakeries have delicious cookies.

Sometimes, just baking a pie or a special dessert calls for a picnic. Just pack it up with some weiners or hamburger patties and rolls and head for your favorite spot. You could even fry bacon and eggs for such a spontaneous picnic. I always had a large iron frying pan packed in a basket for just such a purpose.

A good rule for picnics is to make the preparations easy and then have fun!

BY GAIL WARE
Partly due to the conclusion of the condensed version of "What Men Really Think About Women", an article by Pete Hamill that appears in September Reader's Digest, and partly because I've been wanting to do it anyway, I spent last weekend reading women's magazines. I couldn't find specific information in them for Pete about what all that women really want, the subject of his conclusion, but I did have a fine time.

I've not read women's magazines for many years and I wondered if they'd changed as much as women have. To find out, I bought five of them, ones that have been around for a good long time and have a circulation of five million or better: Good Housekeeping, Ladie's Home Journal, McCall's, Woman's Day and Family Circle.

I discovered that they've made big changes both in style and in substance. The advertisements still push things like toys and cheese and lotions and laundry products, but they don't shout at one so much. The writers speak more softly too, more in conversational than in commanding tones.

As for subject matter, tips on make-up and hair styles, articles on marital relationships and pages of fashions are featured as always. September being back-to-school month, much space is given to kids' emotional and mental development also.

Recipes abound, more fast and easy recipes (microwave included) for busy working women than formerly, as well as more news on nutrition, fitness and diets. With thin being "in" and so many Americans being overweight, the magazines are helping us to fight flab. They even put the calorie, cholesterol and sodium count at the end of many recipes. Recipes for wise investing and borrowing have popped up in women's magazines too.

The biggest change in substance, though it has to do with current style also, comes in the fiction department. The many short stories of former years are missing with only one showing up, in the Journal. Longer fiction, a condensation of a forthcoming novel by Andrew Greeley, "Love Song", is printed in Good Housekeeping, and a lovely modern woman's story it is.

What takes the place of short stories are personal accounts of courageous living on the part of women or whole families. A woman whose son was born with Down Syndrome has set up a bakery where he and others like him can work and lead productive lives. Then there's the family that has taken in a foster child with AIDS. So real life drama has replaced fictional romance. Since these magazines have such long, successful records, I assume that they've learned from their readers that this kind of thing interests women more these days.

As for Pete Hamill's complaints that women are giving mixed signals about what they want - demanding space but then intimacy, too, and freedom but with commitment - and that women have talked "at" men but not with them, women's liberation hasn't been easy for women, either. There's an Irish toast that goes: "May you have the hindsight to know where you've been, the foresight to know where you're going and the insight to know when you're going too far." We've got our history down pat, developed a pretty good sense of direction too, but we're traveling unmapped roads and still trying to find the best way to get where we need to go. Hold our hand and be patient and maybe try reading a woman's magazine to get some idea of what we care about.

Honest, worthwhile occupations

Editor:
This letter is in reference to your recent column from the Sept. 7 edition.

Your statement comparing teachers to "shop rats", I assume, was meant to insult the teachers. In truth, you also insulted the hundreds, no, thousands of factory workers, unionized or not, who work in this area.

The demeaning term of "shop rats" and the implication that factory employees are just "putting in their time waiting for retirement" shows a remarkable amount of ignorance on your part.

We who work in factories know ourselves to be as good as and equal to anyone in any other occupation. The quality products we manufacture help keep the American economy going. The money we earn and spend locally keeps the stores and service businesses in business. Ask your advertisers if they could survive without our patronage. The taxes we pay, local, state and federal, certainly cannot be scoffed at either.

A small percentage of people in all walks of life "put in their time" but manufacturing does not have any higher proportion than any other occupation, including but not limited to, teachers, doctors, politicians or even those people who write newspapers.

Speaking of politicians, surely you are aware that the mayor and one of the commissioners in Boyne City and the Boyne Falls Village mayor and assessor all work in local factories. There are also officials in the other cities and townships of the county who work in factories for their living.

Let's hope your other statement that teachers think they are no better or worse than a factory worker is correct. Manufacturing, like teaching, is an honest and worthwhile occupation.

You owe us an apology!
Sincerely,

Proud of their achievements

Editor:
In reference to your article appearing in a recent issue of the Charlevoix County Press, we choose to take exception to the derogatory phrase used to describe a factory worker, as well as the statement, "just working and putting in their time waiting for retirement."

The derogatory phrase sets a negative image, in the minds of your readers, that is unfair and unjust. We work hard, by serving on organizations like the Boyne City Business-Education Partnership Committee, to change the image of the factory worker in the eyes of our young people in school. It is unfortunate that this phrase could tear down the progress the committee has made over the past year.

Our employees would like to tell you that they earn their retirement through years of dedicated service and loyalty. Their retirement is a significant event in their lives, not to be shunned as "putting in their time."

United Technologies - Boyne City enjoys a reputation of quality products, made by quality people. We are justifiably proud of the achievements of our many employees, both working and retired, and judge your article references to factory workers as being off-base and defaming.

Boyne City Varsity Girls whip Vanderbilt 52-26

BY SCOTT KNIPE

Boyne's girls' varsity squad got off to the right start last week as they handily beat the Vanderbilt Yellowjackets, and then turned around to lose to Cheboygan Thursday night.

In the Vanderbilt game the Ramblers opened up strongly as they took an 8-0 lead in the first quarter, and maintained an eight point lead going into the half, 18-10.

To top off a fine second quarter performance the Ramblers put on a show as they leapt out a 31-17 lead, and then finished it off with a marvelous finish, 52-26.

Boyne showed signs of improving from the earlier games, characterized by a lack of turnovers, teamwork defense, and a better point distribution amongst the scorers, and everyone on the team scored.

To lead off the scorers the Ramblers had three players in double figures, Mindy Stadt, Tysh Crozier, and Dawn Archambault, all with 10. Kristin Harvey followed that with 7, Stacy McGeorge and Amy Weeks both put in 4 points, Toni Toton scored 3, and Trish Fanning and Nancy McCullough each had 2.

Top defensive players were two sophomores, Dawn Archambault with 11 rebounds and 5 steals, and Kristin Harvey with 7 rebounds and 7 steals. Mindy Stadt also crashed the boards, gaining 7 rebounds from her guard spot, and pulled off 1 steal to help.

Boyne, however, could not muster the spirit they possessed at home while in Cheboygan and consequently suffered a tough loss at the hands of the Belles, who are always hard to play when at home.

Boyne hopes to get going again against neighbor Boyne Falls and then out to Detour on Thursday, a new team on the Rambler schedule.

BC jvs take Vanderbilt 45-16

BY SCOTT KNIPE

Boyne City's JV girls' basketball squad is tearing up the opposition the first couple weeks of the season as they have gone out to a 4-0 record and show no signs of slowing down.

A good team effort led to a victory over Vanderbilt, 45-16. Strong defense seemed to be the key, as Vanderbilt's best quarter was the second, in which they scored a total of 6 points. Boyne held the lead right from the start, 9-4 at the first quarter, and 22-10 at the half. The third quarter was the one that the Ramblers put the Yellowjackets away in, holding them to a meager two points, leaving the score at 35-12 with only eight minutes remaining. Boyne didn't let up though, and went on to win it 45-16.

High scorer was Crissy Gervasi with 17 points, followed by Christina May with 11. Kim Stadt added 6, Kris Crozier 5, Aulani Kuheana had 3, Ricka Casper contributed 2, and Kathleen Johnson 1. Top defensive players were Crissy Gervasi with 11 steals and 11 rebounds, Kim Stadt with 10 steals and 3 rebounds, Christina May and April Silbar, both with 10 rebounds and 4 steals.

Thursday Boyne was in Cheboygan against stiffer competition, possibly one of the toughest teams on their schedule. Cheboygan possessed greater penetrating and shooting power than any team Boyne has yet faced, but the Ramblers could counter with good shooting and a strong bench.

After a tough fought game Boyne finally prevailed by five, 53-48. Again high scorer for the Ramblers was Gervasi with 21, followed by Kris Crozier with a much needed 13 points. Kuheana contributed 9, Christina May 5, April Silbar 3, and Kim Stadt 2. Gervasi also retained her top defensive player status with 10 rebounds, followed by Silbar, May and Kuheana, each with 5.

Next week has the Ramblers going against Boyne Falls and Detour.

Run/shoot good, but EJ bows to Inland Lakes 12-7

The Red Devil run and shoot offense was the best Coach Ted Jeffery said he has seen this season out of his young team, but it wasn't good enough to win the game against Inland Lakes as they lost 12 to 7 last Saturday at the Inland Lakes field.

On the first possession of the game, the Red Devils started out like a winner, driving down the field for 81 yards and a TD, thanks to the running and passing of Dan Pepin. Pepin took a few jaunts of 18 and 9 yards and then completed a pass to Mark Moore for the TD. Moore then kicked the extra point.

But that was all the scoring the Devils could come up with as they faced an aggressive Bulldog team that broke through the many defenses the Devils tried.

The Bulldogs gained a total of 339 yards, much of it with one runner, Tim Moen who gained 242 by himself.

East Jordan gave the Bulldogs some threats in the second half, but could not put the ball over the goal line. One attempt ended in a turnover to the Bulldogs near the goal line.

A pass from Pepin to Moore ended up with Moore fumbling on the one yard line and the Bulldogs recovering the fumble.

Both teams moved the ball back and forth in the second half, but neither team could get a score.

The last Devil threat of the game came in the final minutes when Pepin hit Moore for a couple of passes, but the effort was stalled on the Bulldog 21 yard line.

The loss left the team with a 0-3 record overall and a 0-1 record in the Ski Valley Conference. The Devils will play Bellaire this Friday night at East Jordan.

I was torn between 5-speed or automatic, not where to get the loan.

Then I made the right move and chose NBD.

“When I saw this car, I knew I had to have it. I can't honestly say I gave too much thought about where to get the loan. I thought all there was to choosing a car loan was finding the lowest rate. Good thing Mom was along. She set me straight and sent me to NBD. They explained that there were other things to consider, such as the length of the term and fixed or variable rates. Most of all, they made it clear they really wanted to help me get my car. Well, I got my car. And I got a great feeling about NBD. Which is why I decided to do all my banking there. I made the right move.”

Today, you have more banking choices than ever. At NBD, we have to be better to earn your business. Make the right move, and make NBD your first choice for a car loan—for all your financial needs.

Beware of these beguiling bandits

BY REG SHARKEY

Those beguiling, bandit-masked woodland waifs we call raccoons, alias 'coons,' are probably the best known wild critters we have in these parts.

With their pointy nose and dextrous front feet, they pry into every nook and cranny, be it for crawdads under submerged rocks, or prying off the lid of a garbage can. They don't miss a bet in their quest for food, or just to satisfy an insatiable curiosity.

In intelligence this ring-tailed raider tops the list in my book.

They have adapted to man's way of life, often causing conflicts twix man and beast.

Nothing is more appealing than a mother coon followed by four or five quivering-voiced youngsters. This often leads to cases of "coonapping," when a cub is captured for pet purposes, regardless of the law that says it's a no-no.

But the primary reason to keep a hands-off policy towards these cute little woodland gamins is that they can transmit diseases and parasites to their human keepers, as well as canine or feline pets.

There is always the danger of rabies. Mange mites can be transmitted from coon to humans, as well as domestic pets. Distemper, although not transmittable to humans, can affect your dog or cat.

But the affliction that has recently drawn attention to the hazards of handling raccoons is dubbed the CNS disease. Those initials mean Central Nervous System.

Let's try to unravel a couple of rather technical papers that say the whole thing begins in coons infested with the common round worms (B procyous). When coons expel feces, round worm eggs are usually contained in it. Human beings could become infected with round worms by accidentally ingesting infective eggs from contaminated soil, hands clothing or food. This is similar to what occurs in other animals. Working with infected raccoons for periods (such as research, zoo, or animal rehabilitation, or for those keeping them as pets) having contact with contaminated environments could expose themselves to B procyous infection that ends up as CNS disease.

Once the eggs hatch, the larvae migrate to different body organs.

For a while it wasn't known if the larvae were responsible for CNS disease.

But recently a two-year-old Pennsylvania boy was the first proven human fatality. He lived in an endemic area for the ascarid (round worms) and the host. He had possessed a pet raccoon.

Midnight raiders: cute but unlawful and undesirable as pets.

An autopsy found large numbers of larvae in the spinal cord, heart, lungs and brain. Evidently the larvae had traveled up the spinal column into the brain, thus causing nervous trauma.

It is thought that coons playing host to this epizootic are far from uncommon.

So be warned. Leave those cute little critters alone. If, for some unknown reason you must handle one wear gloves, and then use a disinfectant liberally, destroying the gloves and sterilizing anything the animal came in contact with.

Addendum: I'm getting calls from people reading my column in this paper, saying how much they enjoy my efforts. Like Kurt Roberts of East Jordan way. Kurt checked with me on a snake he had in his yard. Wanted to know what kind it was. From his description it was the harmless, beautiful milk snake, quite common in this area. It is a beneficial reptile, destroying many kinds of rodents. Just let it be.

Believe me, it's nice to hear that people enjoy my efforts. There's more to being a writer than the monetary returns.

cessory buildings. Planners gave their approval only after putting two conditions on the plan.

One would have screening of the buildings and an open area between them for outside storage if required while the other asks the zoning board of appeals to approve a variance if there is a need concerning a 50 foot back lot line setback requirement. The variance would not be needed if the developer purchases or acquires land behind the storage area.

The other okay was given to allow a temporary building, 10 by 14 feet to be located at the northeast end of the Harborage Marina at the boat takeout facility. The building is to be used to allow workers a place to eat lunches, store equipment and tools used in the boat business. The developer was given a time of five years before the building would have to be removed.

The building will be constructed and sited on the property without footings, according to Smith. He said the intention is to have a permanent building on the site in the future.

After some discussion planners also decided to keep the time of their meeting the same. Last month, board members asked to consider moving the time of the meeting to 7 p.m. but the motion was defeated 6 to 3.

After hearing of the cancellation of plans for a new hangar to be built at the airport by Ralph Locke, planners tabled all discussion about the airport until a master plan is presented that tells the planning board what is proposed by the airport authority.

The Locke hangar was supposed to be constructed in an area that would have shortened the grass runway safety zone. Planners had some concerns as people suggested the runway should be saved. The Airport Advisory Board is working on a master plan that was presented to them by the Michigan Aeronautics Commission that would eventually phase out the grass strip. It is presently used by only two or three planes, said

Randy Frykberg, City Manager, and is very expensive to maintain. He said, given the choice, most pilots would want to land on the paved runway that is longer and provides better safety margins.

developing a budget that will meet all concerns.

The failure of the busing issue leads to other questions the board will have to consider: the reasons why the issue failed. One observer said it was because of the teacher salary increases while others say they can't afford the additional taxation.

Nakonezny said the voters of the community voted on this issue with their pocketbooks and they were taking it out on his kids, explaining that every student is one of his kids.

PUBLIC HEARING BOYNE CITY ZONING BOARD OF APPEALS

Thursday, October 6, 1988 7:00 p.m. Commission Chambers - City Hall Pursuant to rules and regulations as set by the Boyne City Zoning Ordinance concerning zoning variances and interpretations, the Boyne City Zoning Board of Appeals has scheduled a Public Hearing for Thursday, October 6, 1988 at 5:05 p.m., in the Commission Chambers of City Hall, 319 N. Lake Street, to consider the following:

1. Interpretation of the Zoning Ordinance definitions of the use of two structural steel/storage buildings to be constructed by Harborage Marine Company, 970 E. Division Street.
2. A variance, if required, of 22 feet of a rear yard set-back, instead of the required 50 foot set-back when a GC/I zoned area abutts to a residential zoned area. Presently the existing set back is 28 feet.

The request is being made by the Harborage Marine Company and Mr. Richard Smith. The property location is directly across the street from Maple Lawn Cemetery on E. Division Street, behind the present showroom and maintenance building. All residents living within 300 feet of the property where the variance is being requested will be notified via first class mail prior to the Public Hearing. Anyone for or against the granting of this variance request may personally appear at the meeting or may notify the City Clerk via telephone or mail service. Additional information on this variance request is available at City Hall during regular business hours or by calling 616-582-6597. Thomas Garlock City Clerk City of Boyne City

BC varsity drops to Lincoln Alcona 22-0

If mistakes could be coached, then Boyne City would probably have a winning team so far this season, but as it stands, the loss last Friday gave the Ramblers an 0-3 record so far this season. Both teams appeared to be evenly matched, before the game. The schools are about the same size and have, roughly, the same types of athletes. But the Tigers of Lincoln-Alcona made fewer mistakes during the game and ended up shutting out the Ramblers 22-0. After both teams traded the ball several times in the first quarter, an off tackle play by the Tigers ended up with a long run and a score. The point after attempt failed leaving the Tigers ahead by 6 points. Play was even between the two teams until the half as the Rambler defense would hold the Tigers and ended up giving the ball away through interceptions and having to hold the Tigers to keep them from scoring. The Tigers added two more touchdowns in the third and fourth quarters, this time making two point conversions and giving them the 22 point lead. It seemed that several plays for the Ramblers were working well as they would make yardage before having to lose the gain through penalties or having to kick the ball away after not being able to get a first down. Mark Harris was the leading rusher for the Rambler offense, gaining 80 yards while Jason Hunt picked up another 60. Both led the team defensively as Harris had 12 tackles and Hunt six. This Saturday, Boyne City will face Battle Creek Pennfield at Brotherston Field with the game time for the varsity game starting at 4 p.m.
