Boyne buses to roll, millage passes by 400 votes

By slightly more than 400 votes, school busing in Boyne City will be started November 21st, according to Boyne City Superintendent Bob Nakoneczny, after the announcement that the millage issue was approved by voters in the school district Monday night.

The issue, which will raise taxes for the homeowners of the school district 1.2 mills, (about $30.00 per year for a $50,000 home) caused a heavy turnout of voters with 1834 voters casting ballots. There were 1132 yes votes approving the millage while 702 votes were cast against the busing proposal.

This was the third time voters went to the polls to approve additional money for the school system. Two other votes asking an increase were turned down earlier this year. A request in June and September asked voters to approve a 1.7 mill raise.

Because of the earlier turn-downs, the school district started the year with no busing of students. That caused traffic jams for several days among parents bringing their children to school. But those problems worked themselves out with the passage of time and the city making Brockway a one-way street for a couple of blocks.

The request is only for one year and the issue will have to come up again in front of the voters next June when the district will again ask for operational millage to run the schools and the busses.

Board members have said they will not separate the issue again as they did this past year as they tried to figure out a way to balance the school budget.

The election is unofficial as of Tuesday, but election officials are hopeful the elections board will approve the vote sometime this week. Officials do not expect any changes in the vote counts.

School officials said that busses may run earlier than the announced start-up. Girls going to the District Girls' Basketball Championships for example, may be riding a school bus to the games in Harbor Springs.

For the rest of the students, the bus drivers will be getting return to work letters today asking them to start driving Monday morning.

At the Tuesday noon meeting of the city commission, Police Chief John Talboys announced that the school crossing guards were told their services will no longer be needed after Friday, and that all of the street changes, signage and other changes that were made to accommodate children walking to school and being brought to school in cars would be returned to the way it was previous to the start of the school year. Brockway will again become a two-way street, he said.

Nakoneczny said after the election results were announced that it was matter of a lot of faith, and a lot of people deserved thanks, but, he reminded the audience at the school board meeting, "It's only the beginning to many things coming in the future."

Tibaldi appointed new high school principal

Boyne City High Schoolers will have a new principal starting the second semester after school board members approved the recommendation of a special committee made up of community and educational leaders Monday night.

The principal, Joseph Tibaldi, will be coming from Cedar Springs High School where he is presently the principal. That school has about 700 students in the ninth through twelfth grade.

Tibaldi began his career in public education as an instructor with the Grand Rapids school system for two years, moved to Cedar Springs as a teacher for seven years before being tapped to become the assistant principal. Then he was named principal and has held the position since 1983.

Tibaldi graduated from St. Mary's of Redford and earned his Bachelors Degree from Aquinas

College in 1973. He received his master's degree from Central Michigan University where he is continuing to take post graduate courses. He has earned his Professional Administrator Certificate from the Michigan Association of Secondary School Principals.

Tibaldi has been very active in the Michigan School Volunteer Program and works with volunteers within the school environment.

He is married and has two children, ages four and seven years.

Superintendent Robert Nakoneczny said the school system is pleased to have been able to attract a person with the credentials and background possessed by Tibaldi and he welcomed him to the school district and his administrative team.

Altair/Augat gets BV ok

The last hurdle was passed Monday night when the new Altair/Augat plant which is being constructed in Boyne City was given a unanimous approval for the change in location from Boyne Valley Township to Boyne City by the township board at their monthly meeting.

The approval was requested so that the new plant could qualify for special tax incentives for the expansion of a plant in the new location next to the Air/Industrial Park.

With the approval, the plant announced an expansion to the workforce that will be employed at the new facility. They expect to employ between 130 to 150 people within the next two years, almost double their present number of employees.

The building is expected to begin being erected next week as the site continues to develop.

City may stop tax abatement transfers

Boyne City is taking a look at the transferring of Commercial Facilities Exemption Certificates (CFEC) that may end up making a moratorium on the tax abatements if the buildings or businesses are sold.

The action came at the noon meeting of the city commission when they decided to schedule a public hearing on the CFECs at the next Tuesday evening meeting which will be held next month.

The issue was raised by a commissioner who wondered if the tax abatements should be continued or transferred as the state has issued a moratorium on the CFECs throughout northern Michigan.

One of the issues raised was whether or not the price of the business usually includes improvements to the business when it is sold, and whether or not a tax abatement is needed to make the sale.

About 17 businesses in the Central Business District are involved. It was brought to the attention of the city after reviewing and okaying two requests that came in front of the commission last week. With no transfers being requested at this time, it was felt by the city that now would be a good time to decide the question of need for transferring the certificates to new owners.

The issue was planned for the evening meeting so that interested people, realty firms and the business community could provide some input prior to the city making a decision.

The commissioners then heard the request of the parks and recreation board to have a meeting with a member of the department of natural resources to clarify some of the issues raised by a group of citizens concerning the proposed docks to be constructed off the Peninsula Beach.

The parks board asked to have a public meeting with officials from the DNR so that all questions raised could be confirmed or ruled upon.

At a private meeting between the Harborage Marina, Northern Development and the city, an agreement was proposed that would answer many of the questions raised, but the entire parks board wants the DNR to issue a written ruling on the many matters.

One of the proposed changes from the actual permit is the length of docks that will be constructed. The permit says the docks may be between 40 to 60 feet long while the developer has proposed docks 36 to 40 feet long in the area that will be under the city control. The developer has four other docks that would be about 60 feet long planned for the area coming off the new peninsula. That and the fishing promenade are the two main issues the DNR will have to clarify, said an official

Board members decide to appeal recall

Boyne City School Board members who were up for recall have decided to appeal the wording on the recall petitions that were filed by Archie Lundy, the spokesperson of the drive to replace board president Richard May, and members, Dave Guznick, Thelma Behling, Bea Reinhardt and Judy Follette.

The appeal was expected to be filed this week with the elections board and the circuit court.

Board members had 10 days in which to apply for the appeal and decided to await the outcome of the special election covering busing that brought the recall campaign against the board members. The appeal will, if approved by the court, cause the recall committee to change the wording on the petitions to new wording that the board members would also have to approve.

It will take several weeks for the court to hear the case, and then there may be several additional weeks before the judge will make a decision.

The board members contend the wording is invalid, as the voters, not the school board, voted down the money that would allow busing. The wording of the petitions say that each

The home of Robert and Kathreen Wiles in Carson City was the site of the November 12 wedding of Mary I. Furgeson and Donald A. MacNaughton II. Community invited to share in Christian Science Thanksgiving service

When Christian Scientists in Charlevoix join with friends and neighbors for Thanksgiving services Thurs., November 24th, they'll be sharing gratefully what an understanding of God and His love has done for them, their families and their communities.

It's a tradition among Christian Science congregations to hold these special services each year for the community. This year the one-hour service at the Christian Science Society, 205 Clinton Street will begin at 11:00 a.m.

A large portion of the Thanksgiving service will be devoted to spontaneous sharing from the congregation. These services have always been a time when Christian Scientists may tell of their gratitude to God for present-day spiritual healing in their own experience. Christian Science teaching reflects Jesus' promise in the Bible: "He that believeth on me, the works that I do shall he do also..."

The church service will include hymns, prayer and readings from the Bible and from the denominational textbook, Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures, by church founder Mary Baker Eddy.

Commenting on the importance of letting our lives express our thanks, a selection from Mrs. Eddy's book says: "To keep the commandments of our Master and follow his example, is our proper debt to him and the only worthy evidence of our gratitude for all that he has done."

Local members of the Christian Science church warmly invite the community to join them in thanks to God Thursday, November 24th. Care for children too young to attend the service will be available.

Jottings

BY JIM SILBAR
It was really neat. It was also the first time I have ever seen a school board put into its place.

Its place happened to be the planet Mars, where a group of third and fourth graders took the board during a presentation held at the monthly school board meeting.

The serious part of the show was to show the board the work the two challenge groups have done so far this school year, but the presentation by the children led the board on a space trip to Mars.

They had the board eating "space food" and running blind. Now I have seen school boards blindly go where no men have gone before, but in most cases they were called to the carpet on some of the ideas.

But not Monday night, the kids even showed the board what the Earth looked like when they left the planet on the way to Mars. I thought it was nice they even left them there, but I may not have heard the pilot say they were returning to Earth.

But getting the board involved in the trip was a trip itself. I don't know what the "space food" tasted like, but some board members said it was awfully salty and tasted like broccoli.

When they were blindfolded, they were asked to eat some of the Martian specialties as they passed out special protein food (they said) of the Martian diet. (Just cause they were candy gummy worms really doesn't make much difference, the board members really ate the stuff.) But the best part was when the board members were served the Martian dessert...you know it had to be something special.

It was. A Mars bar. ***

A rumor was going around town Monday during the vote for school busing. The rumor was said to have the school system asking two questions on the ballot. The first was to approve or disapprove the millage for busing, but the second issue was to ask the voters to approve the converting of the school buses to motorhomes for the teachers if the issue failed.

Now some of the folks around this town have a good time thinking these things up, while others of us are all ears trying to hear these rumors. And I am sure that someone who did not vote may take it as gospel, but, no ballot question was asked to cover the conversion of the buses.

It made for some humorous remarks around the morning coffee table though. Each person having coffee had to add something to the rumor and you cannot believe the embellishments.

I can't, or won't print them here.

Must be accountable

Editor:
Well, the postmortems are over and the shoutings stilled. Perhaps now we should take a look at what we have wrought. I along with millions of others had never even heard of Governor Dukakis before the campaign, or had any idea what kind of a president he would make. He lost, but did manage to hang onto his honor at least. We all know about Bush though. He had thrown his honor and integrity to the winds when he joined the Reagan team. He won but has shown no inclination to reclaim them. It as the most shameful campaign in our history. We the people will have to wait a while - but not too long - to find out what happens when we allow our greed to cloud our better judgement.

We were willing to look the other way concerning all the scandals, corruption and sizzle of the present administration of which Bush has been part and parcel right from the word go. He promised to protect our pocket-books and we voted our greed. We have practically turned ourselves into a nation of prostitutes in our quest for the so-called good life. Will we have to pay for it? You can bet your sweet patootie we will. When? You ask.

When the pain sets in and we begin to hurt and our pocket-books begin to thin down a bit - then perhaps we will find the courage to look the truth in the face and admit we made a mistake. It sometimes takes one hell of a blow to get the people's attention.

I suppose it is every generation's right to make its own mistakes. But along with that right comes the responsibility of being accountable. The Reagan-Bush team has gotten our country in the worst financial condition ever by force feeding the economy. The better our economy becomes, the farther in debt we get. They all talk about the problem but no one has a solution. They claim a balanced budget amendment would do it. They don't tell us it would take years to get one passed - if ever. If they could get it in place today, it still would do nothing to reduce the present deficits. That's called lying to the people in my language. Our new president elect promises no major changes and stands before the American people and says "Read my lips - no new taxes." He proposes many new programs costing

This little ferry boat was a popular form of transportation in the days before there was a road between Boyne City and the Advance area. It carried passengers and was used to take summer people to their cottages around Haden's Point, north and slightly west of Whiting Park. Mary Town, who brought us this photo, remembers riding the ferry. If you have any old pictures of the area you think our readers would enjoy seeing, please bring them to our office so we may make a copy for this feature.

Remembrances

Marshall Sayles

Last week's offering was not enjoyed by all. And I've waited a week now for someone to come out here and tell me how to get down out of this tree.

With my head in one hand and my life in the other, I shall now speak of the national election:

Dan Quayle is vice-president of these several states. If the country can hang on for at least another week we will do our best to enjoy Thanksgiving.

When Mike Dukakis saw all the terrible problems now facing George Bush, he gave a deep, glad sigh of defeat.

Change the subject, you nut, before the Republicans grab a rope and come a running. Okay, I'll throw a barbed wire fence around me and speak of the weather.

The weather is trying very hard to push winter upon us. It hasn't done it yet, but one of these days it will slip over the edge and we'll have it on our hands.

It has snowed every year for at least ten thousand years and yet whenever it starts, daily newspapers front page it as though it were a freak of nature whipping across our bow.

The question was asked the other day: "Where is Boyne City's municipal parking lot?"

I believe the lot in question faces Park and Ray streets where several buildings used to be. It's about a block north of where the old high school used to be and across the street from where the city hall used to be.

Boyne City has developed so much within the last few years we now have more "used to bes" than any city north of Fife Flake.

And speaking of used to bes there's quite a bunch of us around town.

I have a pet peeve and here it is: Whenever I cash a check at the bank they always give me just barely enough.

Several years ago in a fit of juvenile editorializing, I seized upon an opportunity to write that half the city council was nuts. Following the mayor's fist-pounding demand for an immediate retraction, I obliged by writing that half the city council was not nuts.

Oh, oh, this column is getting too long. If I don't stop now the editor is liable to turn the key off while my motor is still running.

Even after the long summer drought, the bounty from our land is beyond description and at this time I am immersed in the beautiful scenery and the produce of our area and I am filled with thankfulness. This must have been the way our Pilgrims felt that first Thanksgiving Day. It was a traditional feeling that they inherited from their forebears as all literature and research show that man has been celebrating his harvest with festivals from the beginning of time. Thanksgiving celebrations certainly were not new to the Indians on that Thanksgiving day, they had been having their own special rites of Thanksgiving for centuries. This is a primitive feeling, and how right it is!

It is interesting to note what the Pilgrims did and did not have on that Thanksgiving Day. Governor Bradford sent "four men fowling and they returned with a great store of wild turkeys." We know that they had venison since another pilgrim recorded that Chief Massasoit sent braves into the woods who "killed five deer which they brought to the Governor." They had leeks, wild plums and dried berries but no apple cider, no milk, butter or cheese, since they brought no cows on the Mayflower. They had boiled pumpkin but no pies as they had used up all of their flour. They made round cakes from cooked corn and fried them in venison fat.

Mothers, fathers, and grandmothers are now planning that family Thanksgiving dinner. We must make it traditional, that is expected, yet we would like to make it just a little different because our bountiful harvest makes us feel creative. I have a few old time recipes with just an added touch. This next one is so old that it is new again. A few years ago we were all making chifon pies and cakes. Try this, you will be glad! This recipe is from an old cookbook published by the Chevrolet Motor Company in 1957. Businesses sponsored cookbooks like it for advertising purposes and the books were beautiful and free!

19" pie shell
4 egg yolks
1/2 cup sugar
1 1/2 cups cooked strained pumpkin (1 med. size can)
1/2 cup milk
1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
1/4 teaspoon ginger
4 egg whites beaten stiff with 1/2 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon ground cloves
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 tablespoon unflavored gelatin soaked in 4 tablespoons cold water.

Make custard in heavy pan or top of double boiler of egg yolks, sugar, pumpkin, spices and vanilla. Stir often until smooth and thickened. Remove from heat, add gelatin soaked in cold water for 5 minutes; then fold in beaten egg whites blended with 1/2 cup sugar. Pour into baked pie shell and chill for several hours. Top with whipped cream.

We must serve cranberries, and here is a new way. This is to be served with the turkey — not a dessert.

CRANBERRY SHERBET

1 17 oz. can whole cranberry sauce
2 tablespoons lemon juice (I used only 1 knowing about my family's sweet tooth.)
1/4 cup orange juice
2 tablespoons grated lemon rind & 1 tablespoon orange rind
2 egg whites, stiffly beaten

Crush cranberry sauce with a fork. Add lemon and orange juices and rinds. Pour into freezing tray and freeze until mushy. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites and freeze until firm. Serves 6.

P.S. I just tested this recipe and it received an A plus. My guests gave their approval. I did not roast a turkey but served it with pork chops, so do not save it only for Thanksgiving. It is delicious any time.

My family loves sweet potatoes and they expect them on the Thanksgiving table. This recipe dresses them up to perfection. I like the idea of making it in the microwave as the big oven is usually being used to heat rolls or other dishes after the turkey is taken out.

HOLIDAY SWEET POTATOES
3 cups canned sweet potatoes
1 cup sugar
1/2 cup milk
1/2 cup margarine melted
2 eggs, slightly beaten
1 teaspoon vanilla

Topping:
1 cup coconut
1 cup chopped nuts (macadamia or pecans)
1 cup brown sugar
1/2 cup margarine, melted
1/2 cup flour
Drain and mash sweet potatoes. Combine sweet potatoes, sugar, milk, margarine, eggs and vanilla in large casserole; mix well.

For the topping; combine all ingredients and spread over sweet potato mixture. Microwave 12 to 14 minutes on high or bake at 350 degrees until bubbly and lightly browned. (approximately 45 minutes.)

Bob and Larry Lenhart set up a telephone display in their new Radio Shack store in Boyer City.

Boyer City's new Radio Shack is a family affair

It has always been a family affair.

That is the philosophy of the family of Bob Lenhart, who this week is celebrating the grand opening of their third Radio Shack franchise here in Boyer City.

The first, opened in Petoskey several years ago, showed that the giant electronic firms wares could be successfully sold in a relatively small town like Petoskey.

Then, after getting the Petoskey store on solid ground, the family looked at both the Boyer City and the Charlevoix area for a second location. They settled on Charlevoix when a location next to Oleson's became available. That store opened two years ago and is being run by Lenhart's wife and a son.

But Lenhart still had in the back of his mind the idea for another location in Boyer City. He says he and members of his family have been looking at the community for three or four years. And watching the customers from the area shop at the other two stores.

The family, led by Lenhart, finally found a location in Boyer City and purchased the property from Bob and Roseanne Herman, the former Warm Spot located next to the Ruegsegger-Stanley Insurance location.

"It is just the right size for the kind of operation we like to have," said the newest store manager, Larry Lenhart. Larry is another of Bob's sons and has been looking forward to the grand opening for several months.

The store was completely refurbished and refitted. That process took the Lenhart family several months as they worked part and full time on the electrical, shelving, the painting and the planning of the new store.

The store will be selling the entire Radio Shack line which includes computers, radios, televisions, telephones, stereos, and electronic supplies for the hobbyist to the professional.

"We will be specializing in telephones and computers, as that is where we have seen the greatest need in the marketplace," said Bob Lenhart. "We can work out a telephone system, for example, for a small home to a small office, showing and telling the customer what is needed and how it should be hooked up."

"It is amazing how much money a customer can save when they hook up their own phone system," said Larry Lenhart.

It will be the same way when it comes to the purchase of a computer. The Lenharts will discuss what you intend to do with a computer, figure out what is needed, and will install the programs and connect everything up in your office. They will even arrange for financing or leasing if needed.

Another part of the new store would make even Santa Claus a little jealous. The store windows are filled with Christmas toys and games for youngsters and

For a lady who's about to become a celebrity, she doesn't appear to have much going for her. She looks a bit unkempt, her head-through-toe garb tattered in places. Her advanced years hardly qualify her for stardom in a youth-worshipping culture either. As for her name, Wenu-hotep, even put in the kindest light, it doesn't exactly sparkle. On top of these drawbacks, her face looks less than terrific, but this will be improved on by a facial reconstructionist who will do an artistic representation of it to be displayed at her upcoming celebrity debut. Why the fuss over the old girl? She's the only mummy in the world with three-dimensional pictures of herself and her coffin and they reveal valuable information about her culture as well as her body.

This 2500-year-old Egyptian had a CT scan done on her, the idea for which came from Robert D. Pickering, curator of Anthropology at the Children's Museum in Indianapolis, Indiana, where Wenu-hotep has resided for almost 30 years. He got radiologist, Dr. Ethan M. Braunstein, to do the job at the Indiana University Medical Center.

What Pickering learned from the scan shot down some theories formerly held by him and his colleagues. They thought Wenu-hotep died during her teen years, had a broken hip and likely walked with a limp. The scan showed that she lived into her 30s or 40s, hips bones intact. A slight spinal curve could have caused a limp. She also lacked a front tooth which hardly mattered to the scientists but probably did to her.

Wenu-hotep's coffin was scanned separately from her body and these pictures showed Pickering that the lady's father was a high priest to Thoth, a main deity of the time. His position accounts for her elaborate embalming the likes of which was only done on Egyptians with good connections. Thanks to dad's prestige, Wenu-hotep's body remains in pretty good shape.

CT scans for mummies excite anthropologists and archeologists. In the past they could only make educated guesses about what's hidden in coffins. Now Pickering talks of CT scanning all mummies in museums to get a clearer view of Egyptian life before records were kept.

Since scans cost hundreds of dollars apiece for pictures alone not to mention transportation and handling charges of getting mummies and the x-ray machines together for photography sessions, financing for such a limited interest project will be sticky. Perhaps, though, this could be considered universally useful as a study of a civilization that's endured for thousands of years and worth finding out about so we might do the same. Turning minds to embalming instead of bombing capabilities wouldn't do, of course, in today's world. Land conservationists would fuss about putting all our long-lasting bodies in, or perhaps above, scarce uninhabited land. On the other hand, the majority of us might live in peace long enough to argue about the matter.

In any case, Wenu-hotep will be back on exhibition at the Children's Museum before the end of 1988 along with her new 3-D pictures and her portrait. The portrait, an imaginative interpretation of how she'd look with flesh on her skull, Pickering feels will make her human again. True or not, Wenu-hotep deserves her fame for having held together so well throughout her examinations. May she have an appreciative crowd at her opening and a spokesperson who can make her name sound enchanting.

Sharkey predicts "big snow winter"

BY REG SHARKEY

Every year about this time I go out on a limb to predict what the coming winter will have in store for us.

Weather sage prognosticator — call me what you may—I mix observations of nature's critters, and whatnots, along with a dose of pure bull, to come up with what Dame Nature has in her bag of tricks.

Now the Old Farmer's Almanac seems to be the "bible" of weather predictions. If you believe that "sacred" paperback read no further.

So as your local weather swami I predict the following:

First of all I've noticed the crows carrying on this fall like never before. They have awakened me at the crack of dawn with their rancorous tirades, noisier than a Democratic convention. They gather in our large beech and maple trees. Observing, I saw them picking the burred nuts from the beech trees, hulling and consuming them with gusto. And the winged seeds of the maples are also gobbled up. It's the first time I've ever seen them do that. Meaning? They're stoking the furnace, building up fat for a rough winter.

Then, too, I've noticed the cedars are loaded with brown seedbearing cones. And that noisy woodland busybody, the red squirrel, is squirreling them away with a vengeance.

And our colony of chipmunks are freighting sunflower seeds and peanuts to their underground larders, working like Trojans to lay in enough chow to last through a tough winter, regardless of rain. They've even established a truce in order to fill their dietary needs while the snow piles up and up over head.

But, once again, my star indicator of winter's severity comes from our woodland pussy: the effervescent skunk.

This fall the one that comes for nighttime handouts has given mixed signals.

He's extremely belligerent pushing aside the two raccoons for handheld tidbits.

This one has the two usual divided white stripes running from the head to the rump. But one thing that's different is the distance between the stripes. It's exceptionally wide. Meaning? Two periods of moderate weather with big snow in between.

And, of course, the tail attitude is the clincher.

As if to back up those static indicators, his mobil tail is usually dragging when he first comes for his peanut butter sandwich. But then as he dines his tail goes up to full mast, held there until he's finished his nutty Big Mac. Then as he waddles away the tail goes down.

Putting all the readings and signals in one grab bag I come up with the Ol' Naturalist's Almanac forecast:

The first part of winter will alternate between periods of fairly warm temps and snow.

The second period from Mid-December to April will be snow, snow, and more snow, with a day here and there of respite.

So wax your snowshovel, lay in the groceries, get your TV in top shape and go into semi-hibernation 'til some one screams, "I saw the first robin!"

Hold everything! Lest I forget the foregoing weather seer's forecast was stimulated by the following vignette of nature as told to me by Carrol Tippett,

Lt. Col. Rowe retires after 23 years service

Lt. Col. Michael Rowe, retired from the Army Corp. of Engineers after 23 years service. His last assignment was as director of engineering and housing at Fort Belvoir, Virginia. His tours of duty included combat and overseas Vietnam, Germany, and Puerto Rico and various assignments in the United States.

He has accepted a position as director of facilities for the District of Columbia school system in Washington, D.C.

Col. Rowe is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Rowe, and grandson of Violet Manglos of Boyne City.

"Effe" the skunk shows what the weather may be will be two moderate periods of weather with big this winter as Reg Sharkey gives out his annual snows in between. Other omens of the winter are the predictions based on the signs of nature. In the number of cedar seeds on the trees and more as skunks case, the wide area between stripes means it listed in Sharkeys column.

who, with her husband Geroge, live north of Harbor Springs a spell.

Seems Carrol and her husband were awakened by the darndest commotion in their back yard; the squealing a carrying on of some critter in distress.

Peering out the window, there in the fringes of the year light they saw a great horned owl and a skunk locked in a death duel.

Clutched in the rapier-like talons of the owl a skunk struggled valiantly to break loose from the clutches of the night maurader. Round and round they tumbled. It was a battle unto death.

Finally the skunk gave up his ghost and the owl threw in the afterburner, trying to airfreight his smelly banquet to a secret dining room. But the payload was too heavy and the deacon of the night flew away, leaving the aerial trail of wild perfume.

Some story, Carrol, and it stimulated me into making my annual winter weather forecast.

Sec. of State Austin announces new plates

Secretary of State Richard H. Austin today unveiled three new special registration license plates honoring World War I veterans, Pearl Harbor survivors and combat wounded veterans who received the Purple Heart. The new plates are the result of legislation which took effect on Veterans Day.

An estimated 35,000 veterans are eligible to apply for the three plates which are available for an initial $5 fee, in addition to the owner's vehicle registration fee. The registrations must be renewed annually on the owner's birthday.

In addition to the new plates, the Secretary of State has altered the design of the prisoner-of-war license plate to read: ex-prisoner-of-war.

Secretary Austin noted more than 800 of the new EX-POW plates will be sent to vehicle owners who plates now read prisoner-of-war. An estimated 5,000 veterans are eligible to apply for the ex-prisoner of war license plate.

"Issuing new license plates is not an everyday occurrence here in Michigan, in fact just the opposite is true," Secretary Austin said today. "That is why the availability of these new plates is a noteworthy occasion and a fitting way to honor those men and women who so valiantly served their country."

While the Department of State will accept applications and issue the new plates beginning November 11, application forms will not be widely available at Secretary of State branch offices statewide until late November. Veterans wanting to apply for the special plates immediately may write the Special Registration Unit, Michigan Department of State, 7064 Crowner Drive, Lansing, Michigan 48918, or 900 Codes. To Block or Not to Block?

Soon, you'll be able to block access from your telephone to all phone numbers that require dialing a 900 code, including "dial-a-porn."

What Are 900 Codes?

When you dial any telephone number that starts with a 900 code, you hear information or entertainment provided by various companies not associated with Michigan Bell. The messages these companies provide range from weather information and lottery results to material known as "dial-a-porn." These calls cost from 20¢ to $35.00 or more per call.

Why Block These Calls?

Some of these 900 messages have provoked complaints. Primarily because children can easily call the numbers, running up large charges on their parents' phone bills. Parents have also complained about their children listening to messages that they feel are inappropriate.

Michigan Bell strongly objects to the presence of "dial-a-porn." And we worry about children dialing it. To prevent these messages from reaching children, we are offering to those who want or need it blocking of numbers starting with a 900 code.

Why Not Block Calls to 900 Codes?

If you elect to block numbers with a 900 code, you should know these numbers include sports updates, stock market information, weather, and many other services, as well as "dial-a-porn." Many people, parents included, will not have a reason to block these calls. Therefore, it may not be to your advantage to choose blocking.

What Else Should I Know About Blocking?

If you don't want 900 calls made from your phone, you'll soon have the opportunity to block them. That means no one will be able to call these numbers from your telephone.

Blocking will not stop incoming calls to your home or office, nor will it stop calls placed to your friends, family or to any emergency number. It will only affect directly dialed numbers that start with a 900 code.

Blocking will be available at no charge. There will not be a monthly charge for the service. Also, Michigan Bell public phones and all operator-assisted calls will have blocking.

If I Want It, How Can I Order Blocking?

If you would like to order blocking at no charge, or if you have any questions, please call the Michigan Bell Let's Talk Center at 1 800 555-5000.

(Note: Michigan Bell can provide blocking only where facilities permit.)

To Block or Not to Block. The Choice Is Yours.

In a way, I should be grateful to the Democrats for not getting out there in force and putting their man in the Oval Office. They had the ammunition but not the desire. I am sure to have plenty of things to keep my pen busy and the Democrats are content to relax and let the Republicans hang themselves with their own rope. It would be fun to watch if the consequences weren't so disastrous to us all.

from the parks board after the meeting.
In other action, the commissioners approved the use of the Veterans Memorial Park by the Antique Car Club for next summer in August.
They also heard a request from Mary Anne Watkins who asked where the former plaque that was in the old City Park listing the veterans from Boyne City in World War II had gone, and that it be restored and placed in Veterans Park.
She was told that the American Legion has the names of the people from the community who served, and the former plaque was torn down after vandals had almost destroyed it. The names were saved, and when the two service clubs built the new memorial in Veteran's Park, it was decided names would not be listed, but wording would be included that covered everyone who has served in the armed forces during all wars.
The city asked the service clubs to work together on restoring the plaque and maybe it could be put into the new historical museum.

BC girls beat Vanderbilt, 43-37; lose to Gaylord, 39-60

BY SCOTT KNIPE
As the girls' basketball season winds down, the Boyne City Ramblers managed to split the games they played last week, both of which were on the road. Tuesday the Ramblers met with Vanderbilt, a team they had no problems defeating earlier in the season. This time it was a bit closer, but Boyne pulled out the win, 43-37.

Thursday Boyne City was in Gaylord hoping to avenge the loss they had suffered at the hands of the Devils in a prior confrontation. The Gaylord team was tougher than ever, and Boyne went home on the losing side, 39-60.

Against the Vandy Yellowjackets, the Ramblers outshot and outrebounded their opponents to take the win. High scorer was Tysh Crozier with 14, followed by Mindy Stadt with 11. Kristen Harvey had eight, Dawn Archambault six and Nancy McCullough four.

The sides were reversed against Gaylord, where the Ramblers could not match the Blue Devils' shooting, and was barely edged out in the rebounding department. Crozier was again high scorer with 14 points, eight of which came off of free throws. Harvey followed up Crozier with 10 points. Archambault played strong defense, grabbing 12 rebounds, getting two steals, and having two blocked shots, all the while without committing a foul.

The Ramblers wrap up their regular season at home this week, and then head for district tournaments.

Burt misses school record by two points, but EJ takes Central Lake 75-53

BY PAMBURR
Jill Burt missed the school scoring record by two points Tuesday night as the Red Devils of East Jordan defeated Central Lake 75-53. "Jill had 24 points the first half and was aware of how close she was to the record. She forced her shots and couldn't loosen up in the third quarter. I left her in the game because I felt she deserved the record. She's worked and played hard this year," said Coach Hines.

Burt scored 37 points and had 11 rebounds. Also scoring for East Jordan was Sara Chase with 16 and Kathy Carson with eight.

East Jordan led by three at the end of the first quarter but opened it up to a 19 point deficit at the half. (Burt contributed 16 of her 37 points in the second quarter).

The Devils made 31 field goals and sank 13 of 22 from the charity line. Central Lake had 20 field goals and made 10 of 21 from the line.

The win rounded out East Jordan Ski Valley Conference schedule. The Devils (14-5 overall) ended up in a tie with Inland Lakes (10-4) for second place.

East Jordan also won the junior varsity game 44-33. Jen Sherman was high scorer with 14 points and Carrie Gee added 10 for the Devils.

East Jordan girls basketballers end season with win over Ellsworth

BY PAMBURR
East Jordan ended their regular season with a non-conference win over Ellsworth 68-50.

The Devils led by three at the end of the first quarter, and by five at the half. In the third quarter Christine Barbie went eight for eight at the line and added a field goal to put the Devils up by 11. In the fourth quarter, Jill Burt added eleven to put the score out of reach.

Scoring for the Devils were Burt with 29, Christie Barber 13, and Sara Chase eight. On the boards, Burt had 15 rebounds and Kathy Carson six.

East Jordan had 22 field goals, one three pointer, and sank 21 of 25 from the line.

Ellsworth had 13 field goals, four three-pointers and sank 12 of 17 free throws.

East Jordan also won the J.V. contest 39-31. Top scorer was Carrie Gee with eight, Jen Sherman and Angie Chase chipped in with six each.

East Jordan plays in District Competition Saturday night at 6:00 in Harbor Springs against the winner of the Boyne City-Rogers City game.

Boyne Falls jayvees take Wolverine 25-4

BY BECKY HAUSLER
From the very beginning of last Thursday night's game at Wolverine, the Boyne Falls jayvee girls' team was clearly the winner.

won the game 25-4.

North Point drive successful

The effort to raise nearly $700,000 to preserve North Point has been successful, the Little Traverse Conservancy reported today. "The North Point Finance Committee, composed of Charlevoix area residents, business people, resorters and service groups has organized the most successful and best supported community effort I have ever seen," said Conservancy Executive Director Tom Bailey. "The entire Charlevoix community gave from their hearts and their checkbooks to preserve an outstanding natural area." North Point comprises some 27 acres of property in Charlevoix Township. Consisting of delicate sand dunes, deep forest, and a half-mile of frontage on Lake Michigan, the property is home to three threatened species of plants and unique sand dune ecosystem.

It was only a year ago that efforts began to raise the nearly $700,000 required to purchase the property. In that time, Charlevoix residents and businesses have donated $300,000 toward the project, and the State Natural Resources Trust Fund has awarded a grant of $400,000 to support the effort. Bailey has difficulty finding words to describe the community response to the project. "I just cannot get over the response of this community," he said, "it has been tremendous, phenomenal, miraculous, generous, supportive - I just cannot find enough words."

Several events stand out in the history of the project. Before there was even a purchase agreement, Bailey noted that several key Charlevoix groups were lining up behind the effort. Keep Charlevoix Beautiful, the DUNE group created specifically to preserve North Point, WAT-CH, and others helped to lay the groundwork for the project.

The actual purchase of the property is expected to take place before the end of 1988. Formal dedication ceremonies are being planned for early spring or summer, and the construction of a nature trail on the property, funded by the Drenth Family and the Jeff Drenth Memorial Fund, is expected to begin in the spring.

board member acted wrongly in spending the money available in the past. In essence, they are accused of mismanaging the monies under their control.

Board members also said that the money issue is wrong, as they never had money for busing for this year's budget. That was separated out of the general operational monies and was not approved by the voters. Since it wasn't approved, the board could not spend money it did not have, and they stopped the school buses from running until the issue was resolved. The election Monday approved a millage request and the buses will restart next week.

In the meantime, recall drive supporters are waiting to find out if they have to change the wording before they can start collecting signatures.

They will need 470 signatures for each board member they wish to force off the board. If enough signatures are obtained, a special recall election will have to be held for voters to approve or disapprove the recalling of the five board members.

Tip of Mitt to develop protection, education program in 3 counties

The Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council, will develop and implement a comprehensive groundwater protection and education program in Emmet, Charlevoix, and Cheboygan counties. The project, funded by a $225,615 grant from the W.K. Kellogg Foundation of Battle Creek, will improve and protect groundwater quality and human health through heightened public awareness of the resource and protection strategies. This program will be part of the statewide Groundwater Education in Michigan (GEM) Program being carried out through Michigan State University's Institute of Water Research.

"Groundwater contamination has increased dramatically in the last few decades," said Gail Gruenwald, executive director of the Watershed Council. "Because the vast majority of northern Michigan residents rely on groundwater for their drinking water source, careful management is necessary to avoid serious water supply and public health problems. Cleanup of groundwater contamination is both difficult and expensive; prevention is the key."

The full range of groundwater problems found throughout the United States are also found in Emmet, Charlevoix, and Cheboygan counties. There have been instances of contamination linked to business and industrial activities. Leaking underground storage tanks are becoming more commonplace, and failing septic systems and agricultural activities result in a growing number of nitrate-contaminated drinking water wells. Northern Michigan's groundwater aquifers are especially susceptible to contamination because of the lack of clay layers in the soil profile.

In recent years, municipal water systems in Charlevoix and Petoskey have been found to be contaminated with trichloroethylene (TCE), and industrial solvent. Groundwater contamination has also been found at the sites of old landfills in Littlefield Township, Boyne City, and elsewhere. Unsafe levels of nitrates have been detected in area drinking wells.

All of these problems could have been prevented through more careful use and disposal of hazardous substances. A prevention program is badly needed to avert further disasters.

The Watershed Council's Groundwater Protection and Education Program will identify existing groundwater problems and inform affected individuals of the possible hazards and recommended alternatives. It will also help prevent future contamination by identifying hazardous situations and activities and by implementing protection programs. Comprehensive public education activities will educate both adults and children about the importance of protecting groundwater supplies.

In the first year of the project, the Watershed Council will implement a well water sampling program to identify nitrate contamination sites and to help citizens avoid drinking contaminated water. The second year will focus on a comprehensive fuel storage tank survey and education project. During the third year, a hazardous substance control program for businesses will be implemented. Throughout all three years, the Watershed Council will conduct extensive community and school age education programs on northern Michigan's groundwater resources and how to protect them.

Community activities will be coordinated with the local health departments, Cooperative Extension Service, Department of Natural Resources Waste Management Division, and the Farm Bureau. The Watershed Council will contract with Science and Environmental Education - North to implement the educational program.

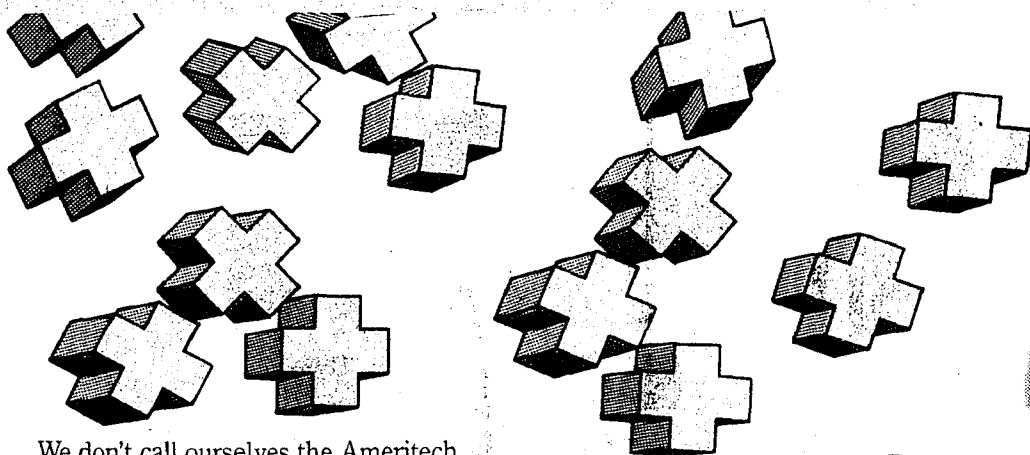

"In the past, the Watershed Council has concentrated its protection efforts on lakes, rivers, and wetlands," stated Gruenwald. "Through this groundwater project, we will be expanding our focus to a resource used directly by almost all northern Michigan residents."

The W.K. Kellogg Foundation, established in 1930 to "help people help themselves," has distributed more than $1 billion in support of programs in agriculture, education, and health. Areas of emphasis within those broad fields include adult continuing education; community-based, problem-focused health services; a wholesome food supply; and broadening leadership capacity of individuals. Projects in opportunities for youth are concentrated mainly in Michigan; support for economic development projects is provided only in Michigan. The Foundation is today among the largest private philanthropic organizations in the world. It supports programs in the United States, Latin America, the Caribbean, and southern African countries. Limited worldwide involvement is achieved through international networks of activities related to the Foundation's programming interests.
