

East Jordan PTO members learn about photography

The East Jordan Public School's Parent-Teacher Organization meeting held on Monday, March 27th, focused on Photography Techniques and Equipment. The meeting, designed to give PTO members, parents and school staff members an inservice in effective photography, featured area photographer Larry Wojcik, of Petoskey.

Mr. Wojcik showed many slides to highlight his presentation, and also reviewed a variety of cameras and lenses and their functions, for the group. Brenda Malpass, the PTO president, said, "Larry's presentation was excellent, and he provided us with an informative and fun evening."

The next EJ-PTO meeting will be held in the elementary school Library-Media Center on Monday, April 17, 1989 at 7:00 p.m.

Shari Leach, Larry Wojcik and Brenda Malpass look over some of the photographic equipment demonstrated for the EJ-PTO by Wojcik.

Lake Charlevoix health advisory lifted in E Jordan

The health advisory issued in East Jordan has been lifted according to Larry Levengood, environmental health coordinator for District Health Department No. 3. The advisory was issued last Wednesday, after a Department of Public Works crew discovered a sewer leak during a regular maintenance check.

Residents are again free to take as many showers and do as much laundry as they desire, with no fears of dumping sewage into Lake Charlevoix's South Arm. Fishermen no longer need avoid the area south of Dutchman's Bay Road, as was initially advised. Nor is it necessary to avoid contact with water in the area.

The sewer break happened because fill dirt had eroded from the six-inch pipe, located beneath the salmon weir on the north side of the East Jordan bridge at the mouth of the Jordan River. Battering water pushed the pipe outward, breaking a seal at the joint, allowing sewage to spill into the water.

City Foreman William Breakey coordinated the re-sealing and bracing of the pipe done by the DPW crew and drivers from Ryba Marine Construction Company.

Commissioners continue budget process

Boyer City Commissioners continued working on the proposed city budget covering six more departments at the Tuesday noon meeting this week.

Covered were the budgets of the public buildings, airport, marina, ambulance, parks and recreation and the major/local street funds.

The commissioners then heard a presentation by Jennie Feldmann and Mary Reilly representing the Northern Chapter of Don't Waste Michigan.

That group is trying to get the state to drop out of the proposed low level nuclear waste pact that would site a low level waste storage facility within the state of Michigan.

The women expressed concerns about the type of environment the state has and is trying to inform the people of the state of the progress being made by the government towards locating a site in Michigan.

They asked the city to write letters to those in government who are controlling the eight state compact and asking them to find a different place than the state of Michigan.

The commissioners agreed to discuss the matter as soon as all members of the commission are back from vacations and sick leaves.

Residents air road/water complaints

Evangeline Township officials will be talking with a resident who will be asked to find a different place to store his vehicles and equipment after resident complaints were brought in front of the board.

The resident is using a road right-of-way to get to his property and is causing the road to become eroded and pothole filled according to complaints. The residents are also worried that the heavy equipment driving over the road may cause an injury to the children of the area as drivers of the equipment may not see a small child playing in the right-of-way.

According to Supervisor Doug Shields, he said he was told the property in question was becoming a dumping grounds for stumps and other things. Township Trustee Bruce Janssen said the problem between the resident and the neighborhood has been going on for some time and needs to be dealt with. Trustee Mike Weeks said the board should try to talk with the resident to see what could be worked out.

One resident asked if the land was zoned residential and if it was, should remain residential. He added the owner should find another place to park his heavy equipment.

Shields was directed by the township board to meet with the Township Attorney Nate Stroup to see what could be done and determine a remedy.

In other action, the township heard a complaint about a water problem that has been going on for the last twenty years along Glenwood Beach.

The water from the spring melt-off has been flowing off the state park property and flowing down to residential property along the road and behind the homes. It pools behind the houses on the east side of the road and has caused water problems with the houses.

The board told the resident they will be working on a solution, trying to work with the state park on a means to direct the water to the lake in other ways.

The resident, Steve McCary, said it was the best news he had concerning the problem as he has been trying for the last many years to get some action.

The board then discussed getting bids for the three proposed dry hydrants they want to place to help the fire department. The hydrants are scheduled to be installed this summer if the bids come in according to officials. They said they are getting some contractor interest for the installations.

They then heard a report from Stroup bringing them up to date on several legal matters.

One of the matters involves the Glenwood Beach public access where Stroup told the board he needs to find evidence of work performed by the township or the public after 1907. Or, he said, the wording of a resolution saying it took over the access site. He has not yet found evidence of either.

Contestants sought for Miss East Jordan pageant

The young woman who is named this year's Miss East Jordan will win a $900 scholarship and the right to represent the city in numerous parades and civic events such as mayor exchange day.

The Miss East Jordan scholarship pageant scheduled for 7 p.m., Saturday, May 20, at the East Jordan High School auditorium is the first held in the city for many years.

Patti Tison, advertising chairman, said the eight-member pageant board hopes many contestants will take part in the event, which will combine some city history with the queen competition.

First and second runner-ups will receive $500 and $300 scholarships. Prizes will also be awarded to the young woman, selected as Miss Congeniality and the contestant who sells the most $3 tickets to the event. A People's Choice award will go to the contestant selected by audience vote.

All contestants will ride on a float with the queen at East Jordan's Freedom Festival parade on Saturday, July 1.

In keeping with the evening's theme, "Life Styles - Years in the Making", each contestant will be expected to research and write about a particular decade of East Jordan history. Decades will be selected and assigned by a chance drawing, and materials compiled may later be given to the East Jordan Historical Society.

The young women will have opportunities to demonstrate their public speaking abilities by talking about their assigned topics during the competition. They will appear on stage in both casual dress and evening gowns, but there will be no bathing suit competition.

The contestants will perform a group routine under the direction of Nancy Sherman, and each will perform individually in her particular talent area. Other guest performers will fill in during the intervals when the young women are off-stage.

The contest is open to any female East Jordan High School or former student between ages of 17 and 19 on the day of the event. Each contestant is required to obtain $100 in sponsorship fees, either from one or several sources.

Judges from Charlevoix, Boyne City and Elk Rapids will be looking more for poise and personality than for beauty, Tison emphasized.

Entry blanks may be obtained from the East Jordan Chamber of Commerce (536-7351) or from Kathy Sadlowski, the pageant's executive director, at Vibrant Custom Carpet (536-2750) on Main Street.

Some of the dead or dying Chinese Elm trees were cut down and removed from the Veteran's Park in Boyne City Monday, by city crews using chainsaws, backhoes and front end loaders. The trees have been on the poor condition list for several years, according to city officials who finally found the time to get them removed.

EMILY BURCHILL

New York coloratura to sing on Arts Alive stage April 7

Emily Burchill, lyric-coloratura soprano, will appear in concert for the Jordan River Arts Council "Arts Alive" series at 7 p.m. Friday, April 7, at East Jordan High School and Saturday, April 8, at Mancelona High School.

Both Burchill and her piano accompanist William Barto Jones are professional New York City musicians who are performing locally as a favor to Burchill's aunt, Fran Pietz, JRAC president.

Their repertoire will range from favorites like "Billy Boy" and "Ching-A-Ring Chaw" to music by Giacchino Rossini, Hugo Wolf and Leonard Bernstein.

Burchill, who has a Ph.D. in Music Education from New York University, will introduce her selections with background information on both the composers and the music. Her extensive experience includes soloing with the Kurt P. Reimann Opera Studio, the New York Sinfonia and the International Symphony.

Jones, winner of several distinguished pianist's awards, has served as assistant conductor for New York City Opera and chorus master and rehearsal pianist for Westchester Opera.

Their performance is the second of five scheduled by the arts council in two locations. Still to come are:

- Patty Clark, storyteller, in East Jordan April 14 and Mancelona April 15 (rescheduled from snowed-out dates, March 3 and 4)

- Anne-Marie Oomen and Raymond Nargis, poets and dramatists, in East Jordan April 28 and Bellaire, April 29, and
- The Fitch Dance Troupe in East Jordan, May 12, and Bellaire May 13.

All performances will begin at the high schools at 7 p.m., except Patty Clark's East Jordan appearance, which will be at the East Jordan Elementary School.

Tickets are available at the door ($5 adult, $3 student), and series tickets are priced at $8.25 per person, $11 per couple, or $16.50 per family. The programs are supported by the Michigan Council for the Arts and the Cheboygan Area Arts Council.

Invalids should contact sheriff's department

Citizens in Charlevoix County, who reside within a 10 mile radius of the Big Rock Point nuclear power plant, and who are of "an invalid status or who would be unable to evacuate in the event of a general emergency because of physical disabilities" are requested to contact the sheriff's department within the next 10 days. The sheriff's department would like the name, phone number, location of residence and type of disability of all area residents who would need assistance during an evacuation.

When the information has been compiled, the citizens will be "keyed" on the evacuation plan and arrangements will be made to see that transportation is available to remove invalids from their residence to a proper shelter.

FmHA emergency loans still available for eligible farmers

Farmers Home Administration emergency loans are still available for eligible family farmers in Emmet, Charlevoix, or Cheboygan Counties who suffered qualifying losses covered under last year's weather related disaster designation. In order to qualify, a farmer must provide evidence of having suffered a qualifying physical loss, or a qualifying production loss of at least 30% of normal per acre or per animal production in any single enterprise which is a basic part of the total farming operation. Among other requirements, applicants must be unable to obtain suitable credit from other sources.

The deadline for receiving applications is April 19, 1989. For further information, contact the local FmHA office at 2206 Mitchell Park Dr. Unit 11, Petoskey, MI 49770, or call (616) 347-4551.

The Boyne City Friendship Club met on March 27 at the city hall auditorium and the affable group shared their monthly noon meal. After dinner entertainment of songs and music was provided by the Boyne City Elementary School third and fourth graders. The Club members also enjoyed an Easter Hat contest. The hats were judged and prizes were awarded as follows: First place for the prettiest went to Pearl Frieden, with Evelyn Neville as runner up. First place for the funniest went to Phebe McCary, with Irene McGeorge as runner up. Hostesses for the next meeting on April 24 will be Evelyn Neville and Vi Manglos.

Billy Jo Duff and her daughter, Susan, spent the weekend in Grand Rapids visiting their son and brother, Kelly Duff, and family.

Gregg and Sharon McGeorge and son, Andrew, went to Mt. Pleasant on Sunday to attend a memorial service for Sharon's cousin, Shannon Rice, daughter of Jim and Kathy, who met with a fatal car accident this past winter.

USMC Dave McPhearson Jr. arrived home on leave from San Diego, California over the weekend and will be visiting his family and friends in the area.

Renee Mathers, daughter of John and Linda, was taken to Ann Arbor by ambulance over the weekend as she is fighting a bout with pneumonia.

Brian and Kammy Peabody arrived here over the weekend from Clearwater, Florida and are visiting her family, Wayne and Sally Kleinschrodt. They may be planning to relocate here.

We have had another community loss, as life-long resident Bob Capelin Sr. passed away at his home on Sunday morning. There are many thoughts of heartfelt sympathy and prayers for the Capelin family.

John Moorehead has returned to his Litzzenburger Place apartment after having spent several weeks at the Veteran's Hospital in Ann Arbor.

Chris Howard, son of Mel and Nan, who is a student at Adrian College, was among those participating in a history contest held at Central Michigan University in Mt. Pleasant on Saturday.

A welcome goes out to Rosalee Lamb, newest tenant of Litzzenburger Place.

Vi Manglos, who has spent the past two months in Alabama, and Bill and Thornita Rowe, who spent the same in Florida, have returned. Enroute home, they spent a few days visiting the Rowe's son, Mike, in Woodridge, Virginia.

Iva Fear entered the Provincial House Nursing Home in Gaylord for an indefinite stay on Friday.

After spending the past five months in Florida, Alice Lucas Fifer returned home Sunday. She was in Florida with her sister, Betty, and husband, Richard Pearson; her brother, Robert Marshall, all of Grand Blanc, in Daytona Beach, Florida, where she joined her husband, Doc Fifer. While there, the group enjoyed many other areas of the sunny state.

Bill and Elinor Hammontree have returned after having spent the past month in Florida visiting friends and relatives.

It was reported to be very disappointing that there was not a very good turnout for Saturday night's Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP) dance held at the Boyne City High School. The well-planned fund raiser meant to provide a great evening of fun, included a sixteen piece band and lots and lots of great food!

Thursday's bingo winners at the Boyne City meal site were: 1st regular-Mary Towne, 2nd-Lyle Ross, and 3rd-Eleanor Adams. The 1st special was a split between Jessie Padgett and Eleanor Adams. The 2nd went to Evelyn Stebbins. Evelyn also won the cover all and all games were called by Pansy Savage.

Boyne Valley Garden Club again offering flowering trees to beautify Boyne City

Continuing the program of beautifying Boyne City, the members of the Boyne Valley Garden Club are again offering for sale flowering crabapple trees for delivery this spring.

The program is being presented with the help of the Boyne Valley Greenhouse who will be distributing the trees once they arrive for the planting season.

The trees this year are a little different from the trees the club offered last year. This year the flowering crab has the white flower edged in pink.

The club hopes they will sell many trees so that the city will abound with color for many years to come. The five to six foot trees can be purchased for nine dollars by using the coupon placed by the club in the Charlevoix County Press.

Those who wish to purchase trees are asked to fill out the coupon and enclose a check, made payable to the Boyne Valley Garden Club to the address printed on the coupon before the April 22 deadline.

The trees are due to arrive in Boyne City in mid May. At that time, each person who ordered trees will be called or notified as to when to pick them up.

Now that spring has arrived, you can see all of the people who want to make sure that their yard is the best on the block. You see them out raking and cleaning up all of the mess they had over the winter.

In my case, I would have to clean up all of the leaves that never got raked, all of the branches that were torn off by my backing into the trees along the driveway, and all of the other accumulation of garbage caused by people driving along and throwing things out of their cars.

I did not do any of the clean-up last weekend.

The time change threw off my clock and all I wanted to do was sleep. And that was to make up for the hour I missed. In all, I think I slept an extra couple of hours over and above my usual, justifying it because of the lack of that hour.

Next fall, I guess I will have to sleep one hour less in order to even things out.

And as usual, there was one clock that did not get changed. I think there is one clock in everyone's house that doesn't get changed until someone remembers it a day or two later.

Even the city crews were out cleaning up some of the old dead trees in the Veterans Park. I hope they plant a few good trees to replace those they take out.

The new trees may make up a wind break for all of the snow that comes in over the lake and gets deposited in the street.

But whatever is planted probably won't work for a windbreak for the next twenty years. And hopefully, I will be retired by then so I can enjoy the winter like some of the other folks around town.

They enjoy the winter by leaving for someplace where the sun shines and tropical plants grow in the wild instead of in a pot somewhere in a warm room.

Yes, I want, someday, to be able to join them...at least for a couple of weeks. And then come back to the snow country, so I can go skiing and shoveling.

I won't say that I hate this time of the year, but early spring is not my favorite season.

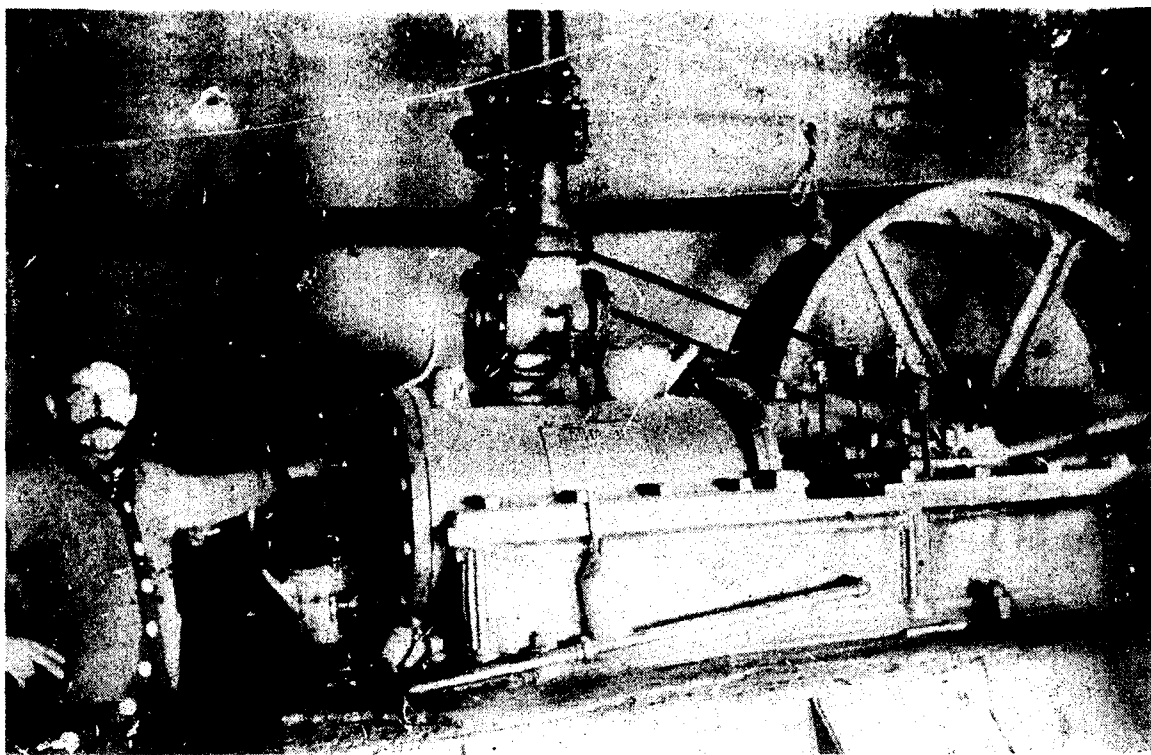

I don't like mud, and I don't like looking at black snow left in piles that require a long time to melt.

I can hardly wait for late spring. I like getting out into the woods to look at the emerging wildflowers and trying to see if I can see one of those mushrooms.

Speaking of that, I talked with one of the experts on growing morels the other day, and he told me to get the rainmakers to make lots of rain, a couple of in-

This is a picture of a Boyne City steam engine which possibly powered one of the sawmills about the turn of the century. The engine was a horizontal stationary type and looking at the size of the belt being driven, makes us think it was used to turn the large handsaw blade that cut the logs into lumber. The machinery above the main cylinder of the engine contained the mechanism to govern the engine's speed and controlled the amount of steam allowed into the cylinder.

Many of us were April fooled on Saturday, and on Sunday we chased time ahead one full hour. Next, we who dwell within the city of Boyne shall enter the garden of paradise with mushroom hunts and smelt runs and an artistic array of telephone pole garage sale signs.

I read in the Detroit paper yesterday that African monkeys are in danger of becoming extinct. Not wanting to miss out on how monkeys act before they're gone forever, I went down town and walked into...Oh, oh. My fingers and the keys of this typewriter are having an argument.

For many years I had a certain fault I could not seem to control. One day I went to a doctor who proceeded to cure me. I 've hated that S.O.B. ever since.

That Alaskan oil spill set me to thinking, especially after it was said that fuel oil prices may rise due to the accident.

I had heard that one gets better automobile mileage when alcohol is mixed with gasoline. So why wouldn't a person get smoother and cheaper operation from a furnace if you mixed the fuel oil with a little alcohol?

Only one way to find out. Try it. (Only a fool can find things out without trying.)

In one of my seldom fits of good intentions, I dumped a couple of quarts of cheap booze down the fuel oil pipe that leads to the buried tank next to the house.

After it had time to mix well with the oil I turned the thermostat so the furnace went on.

Unable to handle the authority inherent in good, old barleycorn, the furnace started with a blast that shook the house. One corner raised off the ground like a dog using a tree.

We have no close neighbors, so the far neighbors came a running to check out the big blast of '89. "What in the world happened?" a far neighbor asked.

"Look at that house," I said. "That's what one gets for trying to save a little money after a shipmate lays drunk in the hull."

A fair size crowd was gathering with much mumbling. I had a rather difficult time picking out the man who said that I had the makings of a damn fool.

When I was 24 I was very handsome, when I was 30 I was very strong, when I was 40 I thought myself very rich, when I was 50 I was chuck full of wit and wisdom. But now that I am a citizen of senior rank, I can't see where any of that stuff did me one darn bit of good.

I have a friend who writes a weekly column for the Houghton Lake Resorter. He never writes anything silly and everyone respects him.

Hospice says thanks for fundraiser help

Editor:
The Charlevoix County Hospice would like to take this opportunity to thank all the wonderful people who helped make our "Ideas of March" Fundraiser a success. First we know you all secretly wanted to win the Grand Prize of $10,000 - but we also know that you purchased the ticket to help the hospice to continue to be able to offer services to the terminally ill and their families in Charlevoix County. We truly thank you for we did make $4,750 after dispersing prize money of $10,750.

There need to be some very special thanks to people who worked very hard to make this fundraiser a success. First to the people who sold MANY tickets - Chris Carlson, Dan Engstrom, Camille Greene, Linda Mansfield, Sue Miller and Jim and Sharon White. A special thank you to the people who helped with publicity - Dianne Murray, Sheri Rhoades, KHQ and WMBN. A very SPECIAL THANK YOU to the organizations who purchased tickets with the express purpose of returning any winnings to hospice - Boyne City Lions Club, Boyne City Rotary Club, and the Northwestern State Bank in Boyne City.

You truly care!
Thank you to Stafford's Weathervane for giving us a special room to have the drawing, and for the wonderful hors d'oeuvres.
Now, for the winners. Norman Lindsay of Boyne City won the Third Prize of $250. Robert Ford of Petoskey won Second Prize of $500. The Grand Prize of $10,000 was won by a mother and daughter - Lillian Hawley and Mary Lou Tarrant.
You all won a prize of the heart - thank you for caring!!
Sincerely,
Margaret E. Lasater

The Charlevoix County Hospice is the recipient of $109.06 from Glen's Save/Share. Virginia Burns has just received the check for the Hospice.

This is one example of a non-profit group making use of the Save-Share Program to help raise funds. There are many more groups using it, too. Glen's wants everyone in Boyne City to know about Save-Share and hopes more groups will use it to raise funds. All a group has to do is register with the store manager and begin saving the green cash register tapes. Glen's will pay 1 percent of the total qualified amount of all tapes brought in by any registered group; and not just once, but each time a group brings in $25.00 or more worth of green cash register tapes.

New law concerns couples applying for a license

If you want to get married, you will need to know that starting March 30, all individuals applying for a Michigan marriage license must obtain a certificate indicating that they were counseled by a doctor or their local health department about the transmission and prevention of venereal disease (VD) and HIV (AIDS) infection and were offered tests for both VD and HIV infection. The new law replaces the former requirement that individuals have been certified free from venereal diseases. The new certificates will be valid for 60 days from the date of counseling. Old certificates obtained prior to March 30 will be honored for 30 days or through April 30, 1989.

"This change in the law mandates VD and HIV counseling. It does not mean that couples must be tested for AIDS (HIV infection) or venereal disease before they can get married, but they should be informed on where to get the tests," said Brian L. Youngs, M.D., Medical Director of District Health Departments No. 3 and 4. "Testing must only be offered." Youngs said that if a marriage license applicant does get tested for HIV and the test shows that he or she is infected, the results will be shared with both applicants and HIV counseling will be provided.

It is anticipated that, effective March 30, 1989, the process for application for marriage license relative to this portion of the law

- will be as follows:
1. Applicants will obtain new Health Certificate from county clerk's office, their physician, or their local health department.
 2. Applicants will obtain signature certifying counseling and being offered testing for venereal diseases and HIV from their physician, their local health officer, and return completed Health Certificate to the county clerk.
 3. County clerk will distribute license and package of educational materials including new brochure to applicants at the time the license is issued. The state health department brochure, "Because We Care

For Each Other", discusses prenatal care, VD and HIV transmission.

Youngs advised that if a Michigan resident is marrying an out-of-state person, it would be useful to send a copy of the new health certificate to that person which indicates the requirements of the new law.

Individuals who want to obtain a Health Certificate for Marriage License and counseling from the health department should contact one of the following county offices for an appointment: Charlevoix (616) 547-6523; Petoskey (616) 347-6014; Gaylord (517) 732-1794; or Bellaire (616) 533-8607. Offices are open 8:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. Monday through Friday. Group counseling sessions will be held during the day lasting for about one hour. The cost of the counseling will be $20 per individual or $30 per couple.

The new premarital requirements are part of a comprehensive set of laws going into effect March 30 to prevent and control the spread of HIV in Michigan. For further information regarding health certificate requirements for marriage, contact your local health department office or county clerk.

Michigan's largest meeting of senior citizens to be held May 6 in Lansing

Michigan's largest annual meeting of senior citizens will be held May 16, when more than 6,000 persons gather in Lansing's Civic Area for the 1989 Senior Power Day (SPD).

Chief Justice Dorothy Costock Riley of the Michigan Supreme Court, who is Honorary Chairperson of this year's event, said she is looking forward to participating in the state's largest advocacy gathering of its kind.

"As Honorary Chairperson, I am pleased to promote Senior Power Day because it gives senior citizens an opportunity to see how recommendations for change are put into action," the Chief Justice of Michigan's highest court said.

This year's platform, dealing with issues in the areas of health, housing, transportation, education and employment, is the result of months of thought and debate by the Senior Power Day Platform Committee.

The platform that will be presented to the entire assembly on Senior Power Day has been endorsed by the 56-member Senior Power Day Board of Directors.

Persons serving on the Board represent organizations interested in Michigan's senior citizens, including the Commission and Office of Services to the Aging, the State Advisory Council on Aging, the Area Agencies on Aging, UAW Retired and Older Workers, the Michigan AFL-CIO, the Michigan Teamsters Joint Council, the Michigan Senior Advocates Council, the State Employees Retiree Association, the Michigan Chapter of the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP), Michigan Education Association Retirees, the Michigan Society of Gerontology, the Senior Senate and many others.

Tickets to the day-long event are free of charge and are available through the state's 14 Area Agencies on Aging. In many instances, transportation is being arranged to and from the event. A boxed lunch served to the seniors by many of the legislators, is made available at a suggested donation of $2.

Dr. Daniel Thursz, President of the National Council on Aging, will be the keynote speaker at the opening session. Governor James J. Blanchard and leaders from both the Michigan Senate and the Michigan House of Representatives are expected to attend portions of the day-long gathering. There also will be a Consumers Fair where seniors can pick up free samples of products from various vendors, discount coupons and literature on a number of topics such as health care, travel opportunities and senior citizen housing.

For those arriving early, there will be a chance to speak out on any issue of concern to Michigan seniors with a public hearing convening at 8:30 a.m. Conducted by the Michigan Commission and Joint Committee on Aging, the hearing will provide a chance for seniors to bring concerns or problems to the attention of their state appointed or elected officials, or conversely, to compliment programs or services that seem to function exceptionally well.

Persons wishing to receive a copy of the 1989 Senior Power Day Platform or the location of their nearest Area Agency on Aging should contact Michigan Senior Power Day, Inc., 115 W. Allegan, Suite 610, Lansing, MI 48933.

Jottings

ches worth at least, about ten days before the annual mushroom hunting championships.

He said that if that happens, there will be a lot of morels for everyone to pick.

Ware-withal

The two ladies pictured, looking ever so healthy and charming in their becoming exercise togs, are striding through a sunshiny park. Their smiles indicate they're having fun so their clenched fists are puzzling especially since Woman's Day, the magazine in which the picture appears, is not given to advocating fistfighting. But the accompanying article explains that the ladies are just demonstrating dynamic-walking, which not everyone trying it feels so smiley about.

Walking expert Gary Yanker invented dynamic-walking, an aerobic exercise that is coupled with a diet for a maximum weight loss plan, but Yanker's walking burns plenty of calories all by itself. It's also intensive enough to need warm-ups for the whole body before taking the show on the road (should one feel so moved).

For the upper body, with arms outstretched and crossed (heaven only knows why crossed but maybe for luck) and with thumbs down, one grasps the edges of a door frame shoulder high and with rear end tucked and knees bent, leans back a bit. Then moving the arms above the head, this is repeated.

The lower legs get stretched by standing back a couple of feet from a wall and leaning into it with one leg straight back and the other forward and bent. Leg positions are then reversed for a repeat. For upper legs, one shifts all weight to one leg, grabs the toe end of the foot not occupied and pulls it straight up keeping the knee pointed downward. Standing on one leg feels shaky, but storks can do it. Why not people?

All warmed up, it's time for the real thing, dynamic-walking. The leg movements involve stretching again but dynamic-stretching now, something quite different (in many ways).

Taking a step, slide that foot three to eight inches forward, a tricky move with the obligatory rubber-soled walking shoes. Calculating inches on the floor while standing upright is no snap either. Anyway, the back leg follows the front one taking an equal stride (extra inches included) and so it goes.

The expanded strides call for a heel-toe step rolling the foot down along its outside edge, ending up on the toes. This doesn't come naturally for most people.

As for the upper body, those pictured clenched fists, loosely clenched the articles says, are a part of dynamic-walking. Why is not explained (as a threat to tittering bystanders does come to mind). In any case, the arms with elbows thrust forward pump shoulder high in front and almost shoulder high in back, staying parallel to the body. They move in unison with but in opposition to the same side leg.

Moving rapidly isn't called for, just that one works up to an hour on the road. Having the whole body in motion this way though seems to hurry one right along.

Reading about it, dynamic-walking sounds reasonable, but practicing it, putting arm and leg motions together or just doing the arm-pumping makes one feel incredibly silly, even without catching a glimpse of the spectacle in the mirror. In truth it makes some people feel like fools, utter fools.

The ladies in the park don't appear to feel foolish though. They look pleased with themselves in fact, but maybe they're unemployed actresses who see it as a chance to star in a road show.

Nature from your backdoor

Is it spring yet?

BY GLENN R. DUDDERAR

Is it spring yet? At the time we wrote this (March 27) and in the place where we wrote it (East Lansing), if someone asked me, "Is it spring yet?" I would have said, "Yes, right now, right here, it does appear to be spring."

After all, the temperature was in the 70s, the grass was beginning to turn green, the goldfinches were starting to turn yellow, the sandhill cranes were back, tulips were coming up, the frog chorus had begun in marshy spots and robins had returned to suburban backyards - all signs of spring, right?

But to the north, part of Saginaw Bay was still covered with several inches of ice, and in the Upper Peninsula, winter hadn't even begun to loosen its grip. So, when someone wants to know when spring will arrive so he can plant seeds, put up a bluebird house or an oriole feeder, or watch for woodchucks to come out of hibernation, it's hard to give a definite answer.

When spring arrives depends on where you are in Michigan and what the weather is like that specific year. If I give a definite date, it's very likely to be wrong for that particular person or in that year. If I qualify my answer with all the ifs and maybes that apply, it's likely to be so confusing that it's not helpful. Another possibility is that the questioner will decide I don't know what I'm talking about.

On the other hand, if I don't qualify my answer and I say that today spring has arrived, a resident of Hodunk, in Branch County, will probably agree, because there the frogs are peeping, the weather is balmy and it seems that every bush and fence post has a red-winged blackbird trilling from it. A resident of Herman, in Baraga County, might look out the window at the snow and ice and the thermometer and shake her head, wondering how I could be so far off base.

If I say the wildlife came through the winter in good shape, I'm right about southern Michigan, where it was another fairly mild winter. But in the northern Lower Peninsula and the Upper Peninsula, wildlife biologists are reporting that some deer and turkeys are dying from lack of food caused by the deep snows and cold of a lingering winter.

Of course, when people ask questions about topics like putting up bluebird houses, they want an answer they can use. So we rely on what's typical for that part of Michigan the questioner lives in.

In southern Michigan, for instance, male bluebirds usually arrive the second or third week of March, so I advise people to have their houses up by the 21st. Very faithfully this year, the male bluebirds, apparently newly arrived, were seen on the 15th. Then came the ice storm on the 17th, which turned their attention from procreation to survival until the ice melted. If your house was up by the 21st, it was ready when the bluebirds were. If you live in southern Michigan and you're just thinking about putting your house up, you're already late for that first nesting attempt.

In the Upper Peninsula, on the other hand, it appears there's still lots of time. But keep in mind that the recommendation is to have bluebird houses up there in the first week of April. It appears that that would be too early this year, unless the U.P. gets some of the 70 degree temperatures the southern counties have been enjoying. In that case, the first week of April could be just about right.

Bluebird house advisories are similar to such guides as planting zones on seed packets and in seed catalogs - they're based on averages and don't take into account the year-to-year variation in weather. The seed packet may say to sow outdoors April 15 in southern Michigan, but the weather may deliver 6 inches of snow on the 14th. So you have to temper that sort of advice with awareness of what's happening this year.

When you get involved with gardening or wildlife in your backyard, you learn that the human approach to scheduling doesn't always work with nature. You can make an appointment to get your car tuned up, for instance, and set your alarm so you're there on time. But nature doesn't work that way. It follows the same broad, general schedule each year, but the specifics are unreliable. You have to be prepared well ahead of time so you can take action - whether it's to plant seeds or transplants or watch for migrating songbirds - when conditions are right for your location.

That's why the answer to a seemingly simple question such as "Is it spring yet?" isn't all that simple. It really does depend on a host of qualifying factors. An equivocal answer often reflects not a lack of knowledge or information, but rather wisdom gained through continuing involvement with the vagaries of nature from your backdoor.

Goshawk disrupts morning calm at Reg's

BY REG SHARKEY

Sunday morning, the 12th of March: A beautiful, crisp sunshiny day; a forerunner of spring.

Around our domain wildlife sensing the prelude to spring and the coming summer — when livin' is easy — are responding to an unseen drummer.

Awakened by the discordant croaking of crows I opened my eyes to the sunlight streaming through bedroom windows.

Stimulated by sight and sounds of the outside world, I put my feet to the cold deck, dressed in a hurry, eager to pull the drapes on the picture window and see what was going on in our sun-dappled yard.

A bevy of crows was perched in the crown of a towering beech, telling the world that spring was ranking in their bosoms stirring the reproductive urge.

Looking towards the cottontail's brushy condo I saw the big doe sitting in the sunlight nibbling on a stem of alfalfa.

Evidently a coon, awakened from semi-hibernation, had shinned up the maple that held a suet feeder, and in the process of fishing out the contents some had fallen to the snow below.

Not missing a bet, one of the crows voplaned down to the tidbits, scooped one up and ferried it to a secluded dining site.

Anxious to see the black scoundrels come back for seconds, I tossed out a couple slices of bread.

News travels fast for crows seem to want to share food. Soon there were four more hungry customers eyeing the bread, and it disappeared in a hurry. Scooping up a chunk each crow flew away to dine in seclusion.

Soon they were back for seconds — and then it happened.

The goshawk that regularly patrols our property swept in, setting his sight on a crow. Squawking in alarm the crows accelerated into frantic flight. And the hawk's chosen victim screwed its way through the maze of limbs and branches, the hawk matching every twist and turn of the fleeing quarry. But time and distance ran out for the pursuing hawk as the fleeing crow flew into the canopy of a towering red pine. Zooming skyward, the hawk cackled in frustration.

Why the goshawk overlooked the black squirrels covorting on the crusted snow in courting antics is beyond me. But, perhaps, it is that crows and birds of prey seem to hate each others' innards.

Things like this are priceless. How can one compare life in the northlands, with its changing seasons, to life that exists for those who flee to Florida and the monotony of too many people, shopping malls, golf courses, bumper to bumper geriatric traffic and the likes.

Now if we could convince people to go to Florida for the summer we natives would have it made.

'Beginning Experience,' for newly single people, accepting reservations for weekend program

Beginning Experience, a healing program for divorced, widowed, or separated persons, is now accepting reservations for the weekend of May 19-21, 1989 to be held at Twin Lakes 4-H Camp in Traverse City.

Those formerly married and single for years, as well as newly single, will find the weekend rewarding.

Those formerly living, with time to be by yourself and time to share thoughts and feelings with others.

presented by a team of volunteers who are divorced, separated or widowed, and lasts from Friday evening until Sunday afternoon.

Cost of operating/maintaining new car has increased 12.1 %

The average annual cost of operating and maintaining a new model car increased $496, a 12.1 percent jump, according to AAA Michigan.

An annual AAA-commissioned study found the average operating cost for a late-model car driven 15,000 miles rose to $4,595 in 1989, up from $4,099 in 1988. The per-mile cost increased 3.3 cents to 30.6 cents.

Operating costs are based on average figures for finance charges (based on a four-year loan), depreciation, registration fees, license and insurance. Added are costs of gasoline, oil, tires and maintenance expenses based on 15,000 miles driven.

Figures were based on the testing of a 1989 Ford Escort, four-door, four-cylinder hatchback; a 1989 Chevrolet Celebrity six-cylinder, four-door sedan; and a 1989 Chevrolet Caprice eight-cylinder, four-door sedan.

Average national annual operating expenses include: Gasoline and oil — costs 5.3 cents per mile or $795 a year. Maintenance — 1.9 cents or $285.

*Tires — .8 cent or $120.

*National insurance costs climbed $89 to $645, a 16 percent increase. In Michigan, insurance costs increased 6 percent.

*Taxes, license and registration up $13 to $144.

Since 1980, the per-mile operating cost for new cars has increased 9.5 cents.

These and other interesting facts are contained in AAA's "Your Driving Costs" brochure, offered free to members.

Dept. of Education awards $25,000 grant to SEE-North

The State of Michigan Department of Education has awarded a $25,000 planning grant to SEE-North (Science and Environmental Education North) at the University of Michigan Biological Station. The grant — from the Department's Mathematics and Science Challenge Grant Program — will fund a science, mathematics and computer science education development project in schools located in Charlevoix-Emmet and Cheboygan-Otsego-Presque Isle Intermediate Districts.

The project is one of three being conducted cooperatively by members of the Northern Lower Michigan Consortium. Members include the schools in five intermediate districts, four colleges and the University of Michigan Biological Station. The Consortium has organized into three regions for the purposes of administering the grants.

A needs assessment will begin this spring in all three regions, according to William Kuhn, who coordinates the three planning grants. "We'll look at student achievement, course offerings, opportunities for professional development of teachers, and needs for equipment and supplies," Kuhn said.

The needs assessment will be used along with other information to develop a 5-year plan for science, mathematics and computer science education. Cooperative partnerships between schools and the private sector will be encouraged through input from a Local Planning Committee, which contains representatives from schools, business, industry and the community at large.

Lynn Osterbeck, of Boyne City, has been named to administer SEE-North's grant and will work with project staff in the Consortium's other two regions.

Cooking

BREAD

In times not too far in the past, bread making was a real art for bakers and housewives as well. Their locally milled flour was not always top grade and they had to make their own yeast. From Al Barne's "Vinegar Pie", Mrs. Conklin, a cook for the lumber camps recalled that "you just take some boiled potatoes, jam them good. You steep the hops just right and mix them, and there you have it." Sounds easy?

My Mother did not make her own yeast; she bought "east cakes" and I wish that I could make bread like she did. I never knew her to have a failure in bread baking — her bread was tasty and light with golden brown crusts. We had a hop vine on our farm, however she bought her yeast and we did not make beer so I used to wonder what hops were for. Mrs. Conklin said that she could "keep the yeast alive" for as much as 2 years. This was kept in a crock, always leaving a little bit in the crock and adding some fresh dough every time she made bread.

In Grandmother's time a woman was judged by the way she made bread. "Mrs. So and So was a wonderful person but her bread was always heavy or she did not have enough salt in it." Many modern housewives do not have the time to bake bread and they can buy delicious bread of all kinds at our special bakeries. We have a couple in our town. Here are two ways to use bread that you have made or bought at the bakery. My friend, Anne Jenkins, gave the following recipe. She said that her daughter June made this for a brunch and everyone loved it. "It's out of this world" says Anne.

STUFFED FRENCH TOAST
1 (8oz.) pkg. cream cheese, softened
1 teaspoon vanilla
1/2 cup chopped walnuts
1 (16 oz.) loaf French bread
4 eggs
1 cup whipping cream
1/2 teaspoon vanilla
1/2 teaspoon ground nutmeg
1 (12 oz. jar) apricot preserves
1/2 cup orange juice

Beat together the cream cheese and 1 teaspoon vanilla until fluffy. Beat in nuts; set aside. Cut bread into 10 or 12 1/2 inch slices. Cut a pocket in the top of each.

Fill each with 1 1/2 tablespoons of the cheese mixture. Beat together eggs, whipping cream, the remaining 1/2 teaspoon vanilla and nutmeg. Using tongs, dip the filled bread slices in egg mixture, being careful not to squeeze out the filling.

Cook on a lightly greased griddle until both sides are golden brown. To keep slices hot for serving, place them on a baking sheet in a warm oven.

Meanwhile, beat together the preserves and juice. To serve, drizzle the apricot mixture over hot toast. Or you may just use syrup of your choice.

Then there is a new recipe that I tasted in California this winter. This is especially good served with soup.

BROILED ONION TOAST
This mixture can be prepared ahead, then put on the bread at the last minute.
1 large Bermuda onion, finely chopped
3 tablespoons mayonnaise
Salt

Freshly ground black pepper
8 slices French bread cut in half, or party rye

To the onion add mayonnaise, salt and pepper to taste. Spread on slices of bread and broil until bubbly and brown.

Of course, we need at least one cherry recipe. For a quick bread try these tasty

CHERRY ALMOND MUFFINS
2 cups flour
2 teaspoon baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
6 tablespoons sugar
3 tablespoons melted butter
2 eggs, beaten
1 1/2 cups sour cream
1 cup chopped toasted almonds
1/2 cup glazed cherries, finely chopped

Combine flour, baking powder and salt. Set aside. Beat together the sugar, butter, eggs and sour cream.

Combine flour mixture and egg mixture all at once and mix until the dry ingredients are just moistened. Do not overmix. Add almonds and cherries and mix them in quickly.

Line 2 muffin pans with 24 liners. Fill each with a heaping tablespoon of batter.

Bake at 400 degrees for 20 minutes or until a tester inserted in the center comes out clean. Makes 24 muffins.

For that delicious aroma of cinnamon and fresh bread, you can make these easy cinnamon rolls, just something to pop into the oven for any time of day or any meal, and so easy to make. This recipe was on the box of a butter-milk biscuit mix.

CINNAMON ROLLS
My "kids" loved these when I served them for dinner and they took the left-over home with them. They said that they did not want me to gain weight.

Heat oven to 425 degrees. Grease a 13" x 9" pan or muffin tins.

2 cups biscuit mix
1/2 cup milk
1/4 cup soft margarine or butter
3 tablespoons sugar
2 teaspoons cinnamon

Blend baking mix and milk. Turn onto surface dusted with baking mix and knead about 20 times. Pat or roll 1/4" thick rectangle - 8" by 14". Spread with soft margarine and sprinkle with sugar and cinnamon mixture. Roll as for jelly roll. Cut into 1" pieces. Place in prepared pan. Bake 15 minutes. Serve warm.

If desired, dip rolls in syrup and roll in chopped pecans. Then bake 5 more minutes.
