EJ to ask June millage increase

With an anticipated seven and a half to eight percent 1989/90 budget increase and less than a three percent increase in revenues, East Jordan Public Schools is expected to ask for a millage increase on the June school election ballot.

Superintendent Chip Hansen told the East Jordan Board of Education Tuesday that more than 50 percent of school districts throughout the state were in the same boat. Nine out of 12 in the intermediate district will seek additional millage in June, he said.

Hansen said that unless a statewide initiative deals with the problem of school financing, or unless significant construction in the district happens, the problem of expenses out-pacing the district's ability to generate revenue is likely to continue.

Expense increases include an additional 8.4 percent for employee benefits. New items in the proposed budget are $38,000 for a middle school principal, $10,000 for asbestos related work and $6,000 for policy development.

Hansen said the district, which educates 1,142 students, could save $14,000 to $15,000 a year by investing in an in-house computer system. He pointed out that the district would need only to purchase software because it already owns the necessary hardware.

He said two outstanding systems being used by other area schools also have word processing capabilities, also needed by the school secretaries.

Now only two offices, Hansen's and business and operations director Ruby Dipzinski's, have word processing.

A summer collection of 50 percent of taxes could save the district from $40,000 to $50,000 by gathering enough revenue to prevent having to borrow and pay interest, as traditionally happens.

A change in insurance carriers for some employees could result in a $12,500 savings, he said.

Hansen said the fact that this is a negotiating year with several groups of school employees will have an impact on the proposed 1989/90 budget of $4,214,555 (a tentative number subject to change), up from $3,922,422 this year.

"Obviously we are looking at additional funding," Hansen said. "How much is still subject to question." He predicted two and a half to three and a half mills, telling the board the decision must be made at the May 8 meeting.

At Tuesday's meeting the board approved borrowing $1,350,000 against 1989 anticipated taxes. The action was necessary in April this year, as opposed to June last year, because the district does not have sufficient funds available to meet July expenses, Hansen said. Interest expenses are expected to be from seven and half to eight percent, as opposed to the five and three quarter rate from last year.

BC Schools grant tenure to five

Boyer City School Board members gave their approval granting tenure to five teachers in the system during the monthly meeting held Monday night.

The teachers included Nancy Cunningham, a teacher in the learning center, Sue Douglas, a first grade teacher, Linda McGeorge, a fourth grade teacher, Rebecca Palminter, the middle school and high school band director, and Julie Stabb, a kindergarten teacher. All were recommended by the school administration for the tenure agreement which recognizes them as full time, regular teachers.

The board also heard and approved a new policy covering the purchasing that is done by the schools. The board first heard of the new policy last month and with the second reading of the policy, adopted it without changes.

The policy puts the purchasing of normal items in the hands of the building principals with the school superintendent acting as the purchasing agent.

The administration is limited to the amount that can be purchased, however, with the limit set at $3,000. Anything over that amount has to be approved by the school board.

The new policy also covers the way bids are asked and what the bid process may be used for, such as school construction projects. It also outlines the general rules for the bidding process asking for formal competitive bids.

For amounts under $1,000, the building principal may be the authorized purchaser, while items costing $1,000 to $3,000 would have to go through the superintendent.

The purpose of the new policy is to allow the building principals to be able to purchase items they may need for their schools without having to go through a complicated and time consuming process that was a control of the previous policy.

The board then approved of the work being done by the superintendent, giving him a

Members of the Boyne City Fire Department, Boyne City Police Department along with the Boyne City Ambulance crews were called out Friday about noon to assist the Charlevoix County Sheriff Department's search for a person who was believed to have fallen through the ice somewhere off the corner of Front Street and Division.

After searching for a few minutes, with the searchers walking on the rotting ice of Lake Charlevoix, the sheriff's department asked that the East Jordan Fire Department skin divers be called for assistance.

Searchers from the city walked out on the ice in the last known position where he or she was noticed by a driver of a car that had stopped to adjust a car seat at the intersection. The driver said she saw someone out on the ice, took a moment to adjust a child's car seat and when she looked again, the person was missing. The driver assumed the person had fallen through the ice and called the police department. The call was transferred to the sheriff's department as they have jurisdiction on Lake Charlevoix.

As the firemen walked out to the location, they carried an air-filled hose to protect them if they fell through. They were shortly followed by other firemen pushing a small aluminum boat out to the area.

A call to Shelly Barnes had him flying his small plane over the ice to aid in looking for a hole or something where someone may have fallen through. He made several passes with his plane at high and low altitude before the U.S. Coast Guard helicopter rescue team arrived from Traverse City.

The helicopter tried to find a hole with the assistance of the sheriff's deputy and the witness on the shore of the lake.

When nothing was found, the search was called off about 2:15 p.m.

Ten wells slated to monitor EJ park

Ten monitoring wells will be constructed in the East Jordan Tourist Park to determine if contamination has been caused by seepage from gasoline tanks which have already been removed.

Request for city permission to install the wells came from the Grand Rapids engineering consulting firm, Kraus and Kriscuans, acting on behalf of Blarney Castle Oil, owner of the Amoco station at the E-Z Mart, 851 Water Street.

Asking East Jordan City Council to approve installation of the monitoring wells, City Superintendent Mike Dionne stressed that possible con-

News Briefs

With the grassfire season rapidly approaching, and Boyne City and East Jordan Fire Departments making runs to those and other fires, drivers are warned that they must stay at least 500 feet behind any fire fighting apparatus when it is traveling to a fire. It is also against the law to park within 500 feet from a fire truck when it is on location.

A new law went into effect that requires trucks carrying loose loads to have the load covered by a tarp. Those failing to do so may be fined up to $500 and serve 90 days in jail.

Applications for jobs in the Michigan Youth Corps are now available to those between the ages of 18 and 21. The applications can be obtained from the NESO office in Petoskey.

Mitch Possert of East Jordan was representing his school, East Jordan Elementary, as one of the finalists in Michigan's first National Geography Bee last weekend at Central Michigan University. The state bee is the second level of the national competition sponsored by the National Geographic Society. He was one of almost 100 finalists in the state competition.

Bea Reinhardt, Linda Simpson, Renate Smith, Karen Meads, Bill Korhase, Sr. and Lenore Landon have filed petitions seeking one of the two four-year terms on the Boyne City School Board. The petitions have to be certified before their names are placed on the June ballot.

Boyer City will again be hosting the northern tier of industrial arts students as they try to earn awards for the work they have done during the year. The public viewing of the displays will be held Friday, April 14, between 2 and 9 p.m. at the high school gym.

How can you guarantee that you could replace your home?

No problem.

Auto-Owners Homeowners Policy offers optional guaranteed home replacement cost coverage for homes that qualify. It's broader coverage—so you'll never run out of money for covered losses. It may be more economical than your current policy that doesn't include guaranteed home replacement. Just ask your "no problem" Auto-Owners agent to tell you how Homeowners protection can be no problem for you and your home.

Story teller/singer Patty Clark to perform on "Arts Alive" stage April 14

Children throughout northern Michigan who have enjoyed Patty Clark's school assemblies performances know she makes stories come alive with exciting narration and enticing songs. With her appearance for the Jordan River Arts Council's "Arts Alive" series, adults too will have an opportunity to enjoy Clark's expertise as a raconteur.

Clark will perform at 7 p.m. Friday, April 14, at East Jordan Middle School and Saturday, April 15, at Mancelona High School. The evening's stories will be a Yiddish story, "It Could Always Be Worse", and a Japanese story, "The Stone Cutter", both featuring audience involvement in acting out parts.

To complement the stories she will sing songs by the well known children's composer and singer, Rafi, including "Thanks a Lot" and "All I Really Need". Also in her repertoire is "The Turtle Song", popularized by singer Carol Johnson.

Instruments she plays include a mountain dulcimer, 12-string guitar and auto-harp. Besides her growing reputation as a storyteller, Clark is also making her mark as a lead singer for Blue Moon, a contemporary folk group which was opening act for folk singer Sally Rogers' recent Petoskey show.

Her performance, rescheduled after the original show dates of March 3 and 4 were snowed out, is the third of five scheduled by the arts council in two locations. Still to come are:

- Anne-Marie Oomen and Raymond Nargis, poets and dramatists, in East Jordan April 28 and Bellaire April 29, and
- the Fitch Dance Troupe in East Jordan May 12 and Bellaire May 13.

All performances will begin at the high schools at 7 p.m.

Tickets are available at the door ($5 adult, $3 student), and series tickets are priced at $8.25 per person, $11 per couple, or $16.50 per family. The programs are supported by the Michigan Council for the Arts and the Cheboygan Area Arts Council.

Did you ever eat vinegar pie?

Bea Smith will speak at the April 18 meeting of the Boyne City Historical Society. Those in attendance will be treated to a sample of old-fashioned Vinegar Pie, a pie similar to lemon pie that was made by the cook in the lumber camps in the early 1900s.

Bea will talk about the types of food served in the lumber camps and how the cooks prepared the meals for the hearty, hungry lumberjacks and will add her interesting anecdotes of life in the old days. Bea, as most know, writes a column for the Charlevoix County Press entitled "Cooking with Bea Smith". She has had two very successful cookbooks published.

Anyone who has old cookbooks or old time recipes they would like to share with the group is most welcome to bring them.

The meeting will be held in the Museum at 7 p.m. Everyone is welcome. Refreshments will be served.

There are many interesting items on display at the museum. We are very grateful for the generous donations of so many fine artifacts. Volunteers are needed to act as hosts and hostesses to greet visitors. Museum hours are noon to four daily. If you would be willing to spend some time at the museum, please call Stella Clute at the Museum 582-2839.

New EJ building honors donor Ruth Vincent

BY LENORE BECHTEL

The ambulance building to be built in East Jordan this spring will be officially named The Ruth Vincent Memorial Ambulance Building.

Before her death several years ago, Ruth Vincent became friends with the ambulance crew who were called upon to transport her many times. Her husband, Karl, who followed her in death a few years later, willed the city's ambulance department $10,000, which was earmarked for a new ambulance building.

The spring construction of the building became possible when city council approved an additional expenditure of $12,000 in the 1989-90 budget.

Ambulance Director Bernard Hammond asked council to name the building for Vincent, and his request was approved unanimously at the council's April 4 meeting.

Jottings

BY JIM SILBAR

With the start-up of a Sunday newspaper that will supposedly cover the region, I started to think about this newspaper as it recently added another year to the masthead.

As one of the north's older newspapers, the first issue was in 1879, a lot of thoughts have come to mind about the newspaper business over the years.

That was reflected in a conversation Tuesday morning with a businessman from another community who said "Advertising is sure getting expensive. I am glad I am able to use manufacturer's cooperative funds to stretch my budget."

I had to be the one to say, sure, advertising is expensive, but so are cars, food, taxes, and almost all other aspects of life.

I can remember driving all over the area where I used to live for about $5 or $10 bucks. Now, that amount of money might give me about a quarter of a tank of gas instead of a fill-up. I can remember going to Saturday matinees at the movies for a grand total of 50 cents. That covered the cost of a double feature, a mess of cartoons, a serial type of feature and a large box of popcorn. The JuJuBees were another 10 cents.

So things have gotten more expensive as I have aged, and I sometimes wonder what the greatest cause of the increase was or is.

I am beginning to think that our own government is the biggest cause of the increase of prices over the years. The additional programs we continually ask the government to provide mean the taxes have to go up. The increase in minimum wage is another reason of cost increases.

I can remember when they were first thought of and the amount of money was something like 50 cents an hour. Of course it has grown to be considerably higher and is supposed to increase another 30 to 50 percent if Congress has its way.

One of the problems I see with the minimum wage increases, is not the amount of money it will cost an employer to hire someone new, but what will the trained, experienced employee who has worked through and past the minimum wage think when they see someone walk in off the street to get a wage they had to wait a few years before they were earning.

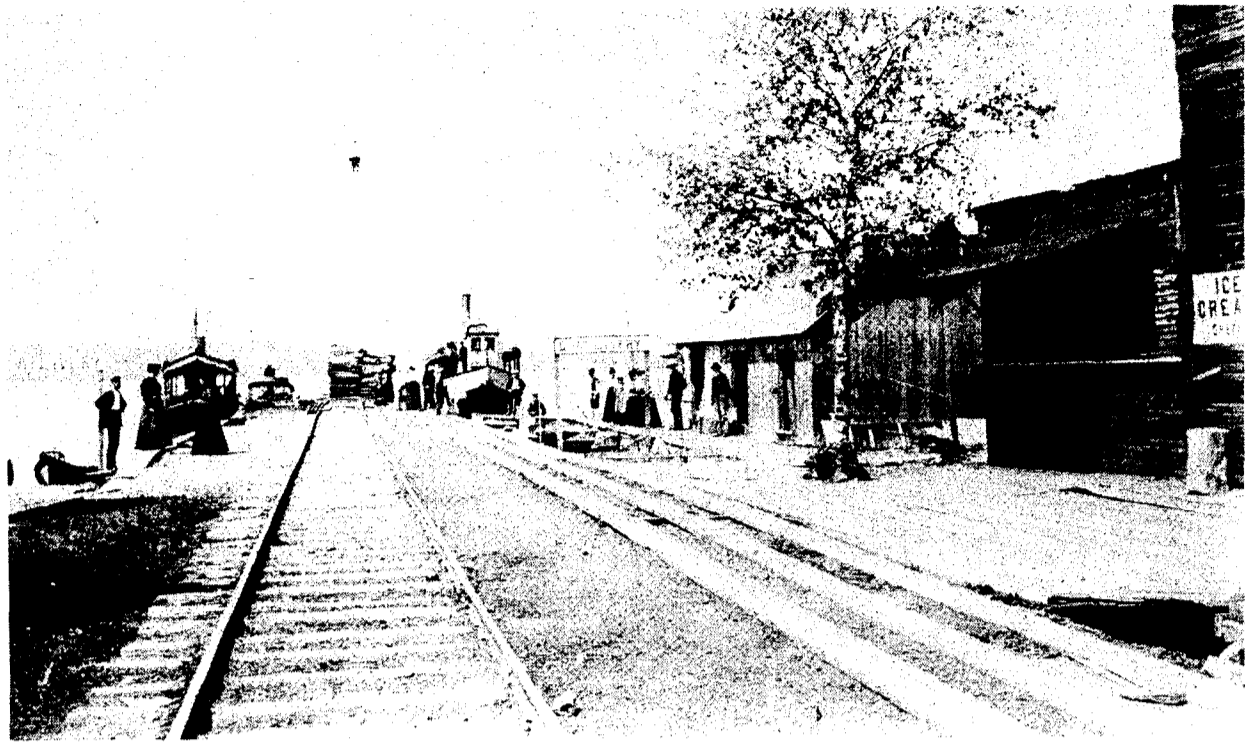

Is that employee going to think that he or she is worth the same 30 to 50 percent increase in their wages? And if the employer grants a wage increase across the board to all of his employees, how long is he going to stay in business before he has to raise his prices even more so he can continue in business?

Usually, a wage increase on the scale Congress is talking about will hurt, or eliminate small businesses. And when I say small business, I don't mean those businesses considered small by the government. Their definition is based on the number of employees (usually over 100), and the amount of sales (usually over $5 million per year).

It makes me wonder what they consider most of us in the north where we have about five employees and would be extremely happy to have about $500,000 in sales for the year. Are those size businesses "micro" businesses?

So, consequently, everything is becoming more expensive. Food, products, taxes, homes, or even advertising.

Remembrances

Back when the tourist trains used to bring summer vacationers up north to Walloon Lake, the train tracks came into the foot of the lake and stopped on the shoreline. There, the resorters would get off and all of their luggage would be loaded onto boats that would take them to their cottages around the lake. This picture shows the depot area where the trains would stop. It was located, according to picture, between what was then Masters Boatworks and the Village Store which was then on the lakeside of the present road.

BC resident says assessments unfair

According to one Boyne City resident, Lee Prested, there were lots of mistakes made in assessing the community, especially in the fourth ward area where he said he has found several glaring mistakes that cause the whole area to be overassessed.

Prested told the Boyne City commissioners of those concerns at the Tuesday noon meeting, pointing out that in one case, a sale of a home accounted for five percent of the weight that the assessor used to determine the worth of the area.

He said that one mistake caused the assessments to be about seven percent higher than what they should be.

Another mistake he found was where one sale showed the worth of land on 12 lots to be set at $900 while the house was assessed at a much higher than normal rate.

With just those two mistakes, he told the commissioners that the assessment district had about a two percent error for all properties within the ward.

He did not think it was fair to allow the mistakes to be used in determining the assessments which taxes are based upon.

He asked the city to think about using the county assessor in the future whether or not they want to continue to use them to determine the worth of the community.

City Manager Randy Frykberg said that without having the County Assessor here to defend the action, the commission could not take any action. He did suggest to the commissioners to have the county assessor attend a meeting to explain what was done about the assessments in the area. The commissioners agreed and will be setting up a meeting with the assessor in the near future.

The commissioners also held the last of their budget review in preparation of approving the budget at their monthly evening meeting Tuesday night.

The commission will also be adopting the General Appropriations Act at the same meeting and considering a resolution which will set up a public hearing for the April 18th noon meeting. The resolution will set the total millage rate for the city at 21.40 for fiscal year 1990. Of that total, 16.00 mills will be used for operations, 5.09 mills for the infrastructure - repairs debt retirement and .31 mills for the City Hall Debt Retirement.

The commissioners were also expected to discuss a proposed amendment to the zoning ordinance concerning non-conforming uses, lots and structures.

Commissioners have expressed some concerns about the controversial amendment and may be throwing it back to the planning board for revision. The planners have been working on the proposed change for the past few months and finally came up with a plan they think will allow for continued or changed uses within the conforming areas of the city.

As I write this we are twenty-five days into spring with the dregs of March threatening to slip over into Mother's Day.

So far, as president, George Bush seems to be whipping the world with a stick left over by Calvin Coolidge and picked up by Jimmy Carter.

Struck by rising costs, rising inflation, rising taxes and fewer paychecks, we decided that something would have to be done. Like cutting down on our grocery bill, for instance. Forty to fifty dollars for just the two of us to chew and swallow each week has twisted our budget all out of shape.

So here's what we figured: One of us would eat on even days and one would eat on odd days. There was some mumbling about who was even and who was odd. I knew what I was but I wound up eating on odd days anyway. I could tell you that I have lost seven odd pounds while we are still paying forty dollars per week for groceries, but I'm not going to. That's because some readers don't believe a thing I say.

It isn't what's past or what's coming that bothers me, it's this confounded wrestling with the stuff that's going on right now.

The worst jolt I've received came at a time when I was forced to think for myself.

He: Why don't you write a column on one subject instead of jumping from thing to thing?

Me: I'm not the only one who jumps from thing to thing. People all over town are jumping from thing to thing. Every time I go to town I see people jumping from something, but they are not all jumping from the same thing. And I've noticed that women jumpers jump from different things men jumpers jump from.

In Boyne City there are as many things to jump to as there are to jump from and that's a good thing because if there weren't very many things to jump to you wouldn't see Boyne City people jumping hardly at all.

He: What in the ever blue eyed world are you talking about?

Me: You asked why I jump from thing to thing and I'm telling you that if I didn't I wouldn't be living in the mainstream. Not Boyne City's main-stream anyway. Hey, where are you going?

He: I've had it. I'm jumping out of here.

My wife just came in yelling, "Crocus alert! Crocus alert!" So I've got to drop this bit of genius and go look at spring's first purple flowers on the side of the lawn.

MSU Symphonic Orchestra to give 'pops' concert at Boyne City High School

The Michigan State University Symphonic Orchestra will give a pops concert at the Boyne City High School on Friday, April 21 at 8 p.m. Featured will be the "Fight Song Medley". One hundred ten students, under the direction of Conductor Leon Gregorian will perform.

Dale Meyer and Dave Smith have solicited patrons for the event. These are East Jordan Iron Works, The Harborage/Water Street Inn, Stafford's One Water Street, NBD, Petoskey and Boyne City, Tallberg Chevrolet-Oldsmobile, Inc., Meyer True Value Hardware, Northwestern State Bank, Allied Signal/Guidance Systems, Industrial Magnetics, Inc., Glen's Family Center of Boyne City, Lake Street Video of Boyne City, Carters Market, the Petoskey News Review, the City of Boyne City and the Crooked Tree Arts Council. The proceeds of the ticket sales will benefit the music department of Michigan State University and the music and drama Department of Boyne City High School.

The 110 students will be housed for bed and breakfast in private homes in Boyne City. If you are willing to house a student for the night of April 21, please call Gen Varnum, 582-7138 or leave a message for Becky Palmiter or Bob Wollenberg at the Boyne City High School, 582-6578. Bob Wollenberg has arranged dinner for the orchestra members prior to the concert in the middle school cafeteria.

A reception for the orchestra, their hosts, the Boyne City Bank members, and the patrons is planned by Vicki Williamson and the Xi Gamma Sorority, Ralph Stowe and the Eta Nu Sorority, John Hunt and the Boyne City High School Boosters, and the Boyne City High School Drama Dept. The reception will be in the high school cafeteria immediately following the concert.

Tickets are available through the Boyne City Chamber of Commerce, McCune Arts Center, the Michigan State Alumni

Boosters Club and at the Boyne City High School Gym the night of the concert. Kathy Raney, Debbie Rohe and Dale Meyer will handle tickets for the Michigan State Boosters in Petoskey. Bob Wollenberg, Becky Palmiter and Gen Varnum will have tickets in Boyne City.

Crooked Tree Arts Council is the overall organizer for this multi-faceted event.

Tickets are available in East Jordan at the Busy Bridge, 207 Main Street, open 10-5 Monday through Saturday.

Ware-withal

It's not a bad idea putting a feature page on rainbows in the children's section of the April Land's End clothing catalog. The colorful illustrations around the border of the essay on the subject do justice to the theme too. What doesn't, for rainbow lovers at least, are the words. Clearly at Land's End there's no kindred feeling for rainbows and so it devoted the most words to the physics involved in their make-up. Kermit the Frog does have a kindred feeling for rainbows and his heartfelt view of them differs decidedly from that of Land's End.

The Land's End article starts out gently enough talking about the beliefs people have had, and many still do, about rainbows. For example, that they're a bridge between heaven and earth or that angels put a pot of gold at the end, wonderfully fanciful beliefs. Then abruptly the earnest little essay shifts to telling children, at whom the piece is aimed, that rainbows aren't magic as these beliefs assume. Their appearance is due to certain weather conditions which it immediately goes on to explain.

The explanation is a bit sketchy but the particulars are all there - the wavelengths of sunlight, the raindrops in the air and how they interact to produce an arc made up of bands of color that always appear in the same order. With the sun shining and the rain dropping and a person looking in the right direction, a rainbow can be seen. No mention is made about how people feel when they see one.

The way the muppet, Kermit the Frog, sees rainbows he laid out in his memorable song, "The Rainbow Connection", which debuted ten years ago in "Muppet Movie". He doesn't concern himself with the physics involved, might not even know about it and wouldn't care if he did, more than likely. He's focused on why they fascinate people and more important, what they mean. He knows that rainbows have something to say because he's heard them calling to him, but he can't understand the message. He feels though that they're telling him, reminding him of what he's supposed to be and do and knows that there's probably magic involved too. In any case, he's determined to discover the rainbow connection.

One thing he has no doubt of, that lovers and dreamers believe in the rainbow connections, and are looking to find it too. (He'd likely wonder if any of the folks at Land's End had rainbow connections, however, had he seen this catalog.)

Anyway, Kermit encourages those with faith in rainbows to keep on believing in them. Certainly the happy ending of "Muppet Movie" for Kermit and his friends, who endure many trials and tribulations on their way to Hollywood to become rich and famous, make a good case for keeping the faith. (In the end they all get to sign "the standard rich and famous contract".)

Kermit's view of rainbows may be too fanciful, but it does have more appeal, more challenge than the Land's End matter-of-fact version. Land's End does a fine job manufacturing and marketing clothes and it would do well to stick to what it's good at and leave the discussion of subjects like rainbows to those who care about such things, philosophers like Kermit who have more time for them and for rainbows especially, more heart.

E. Jordan Masons cited for service

BY LENORE BECHTEL

Board members of the Masonic Temple Building Association were honored by the city of East Jordan in a ceremony at city hall Monday, April 3.

Mayor Russ Peck presented the board with a citation for community service in recognition of $6,500 donated by the group to the East Jordan Ambulance Service. The money will be applied toward the purchase price of a defibrillator machine expected to be installed in a city ambulance by the end of April, said ambulance Director Bernard Hammond.

One city ambulance is already equipped with a defibrillator, which is used on people in the middle of a heart attack. The machine, which maintains a heart beat, has a computer-controlled device which analyzes the electrocardiogram (EKG). By guiding rescue personnel to administer a defibrillating shock when needed, it is often attributed with saving lives of people suffering cardiac arrest.

The Masons' donation came from the proceeds from the sale of their Main Street building, which was no longer needed by the East Jordan Masonic Lodge No. 379 after it merged with the Charlevoix Masonic Lodge No. 282.

The Masonic board also contributed $9,500 to the Jordan Valley District Library and $10,000 for a scholarship fund for East Jordan High School graduates.

Board members are Keith Anear, Don Bower, George Second, George Shank and Bill Sturgell.

Audience appreciates lyric soprano in "Arts Alive" concert at East Jordan

BY LENORE BECHTEL

An appreciative audience took lyric soprano Emily Burchill to their hearts Friday night at the Jordan River Arts Council's "Arts Alive" concert at East Jordan High School.

Introducing each selection of her repertoire with witty banter and translations when needed, Burchill charmed the too-small audience with her winning smile and unbridled joy for the music.

Because most of her program was in Italian, German and French, many numbers would not have been so well received without her explanations.

Because of her translations, the twirling, skipping and changing patterns of Giacchino Rossini's "La Danza" spurred vivid visualization of a dance done to the bite of a tarantula spider. Without an explanation that Hugo Wolf's "Mausfallen Spruchlein" was a miniature portrait capturing the essence of a mouse, the mouse imitations in the lyrics might have stunned, instead of delighted.

With an impressive voice rich in color and nuance, Burchill brought the proper personality to each song. She was a flirtatious, yodeling shepherdess in Rossini's "La Pastorella Delle Alpi" and a distraught, emotional Parisian in Francis Poulenc's "C," (pronounced "say") so-named because each line of the lyrics ends with C.

To portray an innocent young girl who had learned to love a more worldly life, Burchill assumed a spirited, seductive air as she sang "Glitter and Be Gay" from Leonard Bernstein's "Candide," a 1956 Broadway show.

Equally impressive was her mother and accompanist, Harriet Hillier Burchill, a substitute replacing William Barto Jones, who bowed out of the East Jordan appearance to accept a last-minute invitation to play at New York's Lincoln Center. She delivered the many exceptionally spirited, challenging piano renditions with an aplomb appropriate to the luster and buoyancy of the concert.

Burchill, a Port Huron native who now lives in New York City, has a Ph.D in Music Education from New York University. Her extensive experience includes soloing with the Kurt P. Reimann Opera Studio, the New York Sinfonia and the International Symphony.

contracts of Community Education Director Shelly Martin and Chapter One Director Sherry Sheldon. Both are expected to be rehired as soon as the funds that pay for them have been determined. Both are paid by funds that are not controlled by the district. Martin is paid by the St. Ignace Consortium while Sheldon is paid with federal funds.

The board also approved letting the Boyne City Little League and the city's parks and recreation board use the school's ball fields during the summer. Along with that, they approved having the Boyne City Swim School come under the Community Education Department for the summer.

School board members were asked by the administration to provide some input into what they would like to see as part of the graduation exercises. They also set "Truth in Taxation and Budget" hearing dates and appointed the firm of Robinson and Carpenter to do the annual school audit. The cost is to be the same as it was last year, about $6,000.

They also approved a service agreement with Johnson Controls which will have the company oversee the entire energy system including a total heating check-up prior to the heating season next fall and a spring check-up to see if there is any problem with the air conditioning systems.

Bonnie Thomas cited for service

BY LENORE BECHTEL

At her last meeting as East Jordan City Council member and mayor protem on Tuesday, April 4, Bonnie Thomas accepted a certificate from mayor Russ Peck in appreciation for her three years of city service.

Thomas resigned to move with her husband, Russell, to Grand Junction, Colorado, where he has accepted a new job. Before resigning at the March 20 meeting, Thomas made a motion that a request for a raise in council members' stipends should be put before voters on the November ballot.

"Council members put in a lot of time with meetings throughout the year," Thomas said. "Now they get only $400 a year, which is peanuts." Her proposal that members be paid $30 per meeting, not to exceed $1,000 a year was seconded by Jim Yettaw, passed unanimously and will be on the November ballot.

Thomas said she enjoyed serving on city council. "It was my first experience in city government, and I will miss it," she said.

She thinks the biggest problem facing the city is waste management. "We have one landfill in the area," she said, "and they control everything. I think we're going to have to get into recycling. I'm afraid it's going to be a major problem."

Thomas is a cosmetologist and with her daughter, Tinea Spence, is co-owner of Tinea's Hair Design on Esterly Street. She will be moving from the area between April 18 and 20.

NOTICE TO BIDDERS

Spring's true harbinger

BY REG SHARKEY

Anyone that believes spring is dictated by the calendar, or portly Punxsutawney Phil, that fat pampered pot-bellied chuck of Pennsylvania; or those that scream, "I saw the first robin!" best better change their ways of thinking about spring.

I've got some furry little friends that I'd bet my bottom dollar on that when you see them for the first time spring is here to stay.

The other morning I was up early to greet the new day. In the east the rising sun cast a rosy blush over the settling snow. And from nowhere, a little nine inch striped critter streaked across the snow, tail at full mast. Racing to a rick of firewood, the little blighter shinned up to the highest point, catching the warmth of old Sol's benevolence.

Now I knew spring was officially here.

That little harbinger was one of our chipmunks. I say our because over the years we've lived in our woodland retreat we have had a procession of the friendly little imps gladden our summertimes.

There was the Slasher. When you offered him an unshelled peanut you had better be ready for a straight in charge. He'd grab the peanut on the run, swap ends and make off with the goober. Sometimes, however, in his great haste he'd grab a finger. Hence the Slasher moniker.

Then there was PP. PP was a friendly little jigger who had the run of the house. With the back door left ajar, he'd come in, go into the utility room and help himself to peanuts left in a coffee can for his pleasure and cohorts.

At times he'd explore the house, planting peanuts in shoes, behind books in the study, or any place he considered a food bank.

But PP's inquisitive nature got him into big trouble one day that just about cost him his life.

I was out in the yard when my wife came dashing out yelling, "A chipmunk fell into the loo!" And in her hand wrapped in a towel was an inert, waterlogged chipmunk.

Seems the little chippie had jumped up on the throne seat, skidded across its slick surface and plummeted into the cold water. Luckily my wife heard the little blighter paddling for dear life, trying to escape from the porcelain monster. And he looked like a goner.

That's when I took over. Laying him on the towel, I administered artificial respiration and rubbed him vigorously to stimulate blood circulation that would bring warmth to his trembling body. Blinking his eyes he began to return to the realm of the living.

Soon he was up and about, frisky as ever. No need to say we kept the hatches on the loos bated down, unless when on active duty.

Over the years we've been blessed with a succession of the engaging little critters.

One little female we called Dummy, aptly named because of her inability to find out what her cheek pouches were for and how to use them according to chipmunk standards.

Chippies have two large cheek pouches; one on each side of their jaws, where they stash seeds and nuts to be freighted to their underground larders, to be consumed during long winters.

But Dummy never seemed to know what those two cheek sachels were for, or to use them according to chipmunk standards. Her standard counterparts usually stuffed an unshelled peanut into each pouch, then put one into the front of the mouth crossways before hightailing it to an underground pantry. Dummy seemed satisfied with a one peanut payload.

Then this spring Messy was the one that came back first. We knew it was Messy because she never carted peanuts away without first shucking them, leaving a mess to be cleaned up. Perhaps, though, we should give her credit for being a little smarter than her male counterparts. Why carry excess baggage?

I suppose to most people chipmunks are chipmunks, all looking and acting alike.

Taint so. When one becomes intimately acquainted with these engaging little animals, one notices physical and habitual differences.

Well there you have it. A spring, and summer, without chipmunks wouldn't quite be the same.

East Jordan raises transfer station fees

BY LENORE BECHTEL

Getting rid of unwanted items will be more expensive for people taking trash to the East Jordan waste management transfer station.

East Jordan city council voted Tuesday, April 4, to raise the prices to coincide with those charged by Waste Management of Northern Michigan when items are taken from the transfer station to the Ironton landfill.

The action came about after council member Bonnie Thomas said Rusty McIntosh, who contracts with the city to operate the transfer station, had attempted to overcharge her and Mike Burr for a load of items they were trying to dispose of. Shocked by the prices quoted by McIntosh, she and Burr showed him a copy of approved prices listed in his contract with the city. He then agreed to charge the lower contracted prices.

Thomas said she was calling the situation to council's attention because of her fear other city residents may be having similar experiences.

Dionne said that because Waste Management of Michigan had raised their prices, McIntosh was forced to raise his. Council voted unanimously to approve rate increases for the balance of McIntosh's contract, which expires July 8.

The price for a standard bag or can remains at $.75, but a leaf bag price has gone from $.25 to $.75.

White goods such as ranges and refrigerators, which used to cost $6 each, now cost $10, and larger items such as bathtubs and freezers cost $25 each.

The price for disposing of building debris, which used to cost $10 for two cubic yards, has doubled. If a boom truck is needed, there is a $35 vehicle charge in addition to a per item rate.

The good news is that small items such as chairs, television sets, twin mattresses and box springs, sinks and lawnmowers now cost only $5 per item, while they could before cost up to $6.50. The bad news is that couches now cost $10, as opposed to up to only $6 previously.

Council expressed concern about the waste management monopoly in the area, and Dionne said he was trying to get some competition and would have more to report on the subject later.

VEGETABLES

Our hunger for fresh garden vegetables is with us again as it certainly must have been for our ancestors when the first green shoots of vegetables begin to sprout. We can appease that hunger with just a trip to the produce section of our supermarkets. Grandmother did not "have it so good." She had to do with what was left of the winter's supply of vegetables.

She might have a few of these products left: dried corn, carrots from the root cellar, canned tomatoes, and dried beans. Squash unless it was dried was good only until about January or February, though onions were an old stand-by. She probably could put this next recipe together because cabbage kept pretty well and early Michigan towns had quite a few local cheese factories. This recipe comes from the "Oberg Farm" in Alaska where a friend of mine visited a few years ago and brought back a few recipes.

OBERG FARM CABBAGE CASSEROLE

Cut one large head of cabbage into 4 wedges and cut each wedge in half. Place in a pan with 1 to 2 cups of water. Cover tightly and parboil about 5 minutes. Cabbage should be at the al dente stage.

Make a sauce by mixing together:

- 2 eggs, slightly beaten
- 1 cup of mayonnaise (Grandma might use cream)
- 1/4 cup vinegar
- a dash of lemon juice
- 1/2 teaspoon seasoned salt (Grandmother would no doubt use a little lemon extract here and her own seasoning of salt and pepper.)
- 1-1/2 cups shredded Cheddar cheese

Drain cabbage; place it in a large casserole or a 9 x 13 inch baking pan and pour the sauce over it. Mix cabbage and sauce together. Sprinkle with 1 to 1 1/2 cups of shredded Cheddar cheese. Bake at 350 degrees for 20 minutes. This will make a heart-warming supper for a cool spring evening.

We can prepare our abundant vegetables in so many varied ways that our kids are eating them without realizing it. They will approve of this VEGETABLE BARS OR PIZZA

Although he is available to serve on city council during the upcoming spring, summer and fall, he said he will probably not be a candidate for city council in the November election. As a referee on Tuesday and Friday nights during basketball season, he will have a conflict with city council's regular first and third Tuesday meetings.

Burr is an independent casualty agent and owner of The Insurance Shop, dealing with automobile, home, commercial and life insurance. He and his wife, Pamela, live in East Jordan with their daughters Nikki, a junior, and Jennifer, a seventh grader. An older daughter, Tammy, is married and living in England.

Burr was appointed by city council to fill the seat vacated by Bonnie Thomas' resignation until the November election.

Acting upon Mayor Russ Peck's recommendation, Burr's appointment was unanimously approved at council's meeting Tuesday, April 4. He took the oath of office in a short ceremony following the meeting.

Burr was involved in city government in the mid-70s when he was chairman of a four-member bipartisan group overseeing the distribution of a $70,000 HUD grant earmarked for local home improvement loans. He currently serves on the

1 envelope Italian dressing
1/4 cup green pepper, chopped
1/4 cup tomatoes, chopped
1/4 cup cauliflower, chopped
1/4 cup carrots, grated
1 cup shredded Cheddar cheese
Spread roll dough in a 9 x 13 inch pan.

Bake at 350 degrees 7 to 9 minutes until lightly browned. Cool. Mix softened cream cheese, salad dressing and Italian dressing. Spread on dough. Sprinkle with vegetables and cheese. Pat down, cool and serve. May use any variety of vegetables you like. Serves 8. From Anne Jenkins

Sometimes broccoli salad recipes call for just the buds. When that happens, don't throw out the stalks. Make this tasty SWEET AND SOUR BROCCOLI

Stems for 1 lb. of broccoli
2 tablespoons white vinegar
2 tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons sesame oil
Peel the stems and cut into diagonal slices, about 1/8 inch thick. Combine the vinegar, sugar and salt in a large jar. Add the broccoli and shake to coat well. Cover and refrigerate overnight. Shake occasionally. Drain and place in serving dish. Pour the sesame oil over. These are great as an appetizer served with toothpicks or as a vegetable dish for dinner.

The men in my family, and many friends, all like to cook, and in doing so have discovered vegetables, even those that they did not think they liked before. This next recipe is the kind of meal in a dish that my son-in-law, Don, likes to put together.

QUICK AND EASY SPINACH SPECIAL

1 pkg. chopped, frozen spinach or 1/2 lb. fresh spinach, chopped
1 medium onion, chopped
1 clove garlic, finely minced
2 tablespoons olive oil
1 lb. lean ground beef
Salt and pepper to taste
4 eggs, lightly beaten

Thaw spinach and drain well, or cook fresh and drain well.

In heavy skillet saute onion and garlic in oil until transparent. Add beef and brown thoroughly.

Sprinkle with salt and pepper and stir in spinach. Keeping heat high, add eggs to the skillet, stirring constantly until blended and cooked. Adjust seasoning and serve at once.

Mike Burr appointed to East Jordan City Council until November election

BY LENORE BECHTEL

north and south side of M32, which is Water Street.

Dionne said a problem was first suspected when Fire Chief Richard Barnett reported smelling vapors or fumes in the area. City officials then met with the state fire marshal and DNR officials, who spurred further investigation.

The ten monitoring wells will be constructed in clusters of two at five locations between Blarney Castle Oil property and Lake Charlevoix's South Arm to establish the extent of impacted groundwater emanating from the property.

John G. Kraus, consultant retained by Blarney Castle Oil, said his firm will also attempt to evaluate other potential sources of impacted groundwater in the immediate area. "We have reason to suspect, although as of yet not documented, that there are other potential historical sources of lost gasoline," he said in a letter to Robert Wagner, Environmental Response Division, Michigan Department of Natural Resources.

Kraus approximated that the wells would be installed between April 7 and 14. The survey analysis and summary report to the DNR would be ready by approximately May 15.

Dionne said if leakage is determined to be seeping toward the lake, the soil would have to be excavated. He said all liabilities, damages, clean-ups and property restorations are the sole responsibility of Blarney Castle Oil or their agents.
