

Boyne Marina may get experimental breakwall

Boyne City may be getting a new experimental floating breakwall to go along with the new docks the city intends to install at the City marina this fall, according to City Manager Randy Frykberg.

He told the city commissioners of plans being made and recommended by the Department of Natural Resources at the Tuesday noon meeting of the commission.

Frykberg said that the DNR had recommended that a breakwall be installed to help protect the boat slips that will be installed in the marina. The DNR proposed the city be allowed to have the experimental breakwall system that is being perfected by Floatation Dock Systems. The firm is providing the docks and slips for the marina.

According to Frykberg, the first attempt at making a floating breakwall was not successful enough to get approval from the DNR, but this would be a new design that the company thinks will meet the requirements of the DNR.

Frykberg said that the breakwall will have some conditions on it, one would be the cost.

He said the total estimated cost of the breakwall would be $168,000 of which the city would have to pay $84,000. The payment would be conditioned on the breakwall meeting the requirements of the DNR at the end of a three year period.

Frykberg estimated that with the new boat slips, the income over the next three years would cover the cost of the city's share of the breakwall. That is, if the breakwall proves to be successful.

If the breakwall does not meet the requirements of the DNR, then the costs of removing the breakwall would be borne by the DNR and the city would not have to pay anything.

In the past, the DNR had said the city would have to have a breakwall in order to expand the marina. Cost estimates at that time were as high as one million dollars which the city said they could not afford.

When the opportunity came up to trade the seven slips being constructed at the Peninsula Beach site with the developers of the Harborage Marina and the Harborage purchasing the docks for the city, the city decided expansion of the City Marina was possible.

The city then applied for a grant which would provide additional slips at the marina so they could expand it to hold more boats and rebuild some of the current slips.

With the likelihood that the city would be able to get an experimental breakwall, the DNR also gave them permission to enlarge the amount of the grant being asked.

When Commissioner Bill Grimm asked what would happen to the docks if the breakwall doesn't work, he was told the docks would remain. Frykberg told him that the company installing the docks doesn't think the city needs the breakwall but added that it would help protect the boats better if one were installed.

He asked that some sort of agreement be made with the DNR that would allow the docks to remain, even though the breakwall may not work out.

With that as part of the motion, the commissioners approved of the concept and will allow the engineering study to be completed this summer. Construction of the docks is hoped to begin this fall.

In any case, the cost to the city residents should be nothing according to Frykberg. Those using the slips will be paying for the costs of the breakwall and the Harborage developers would be providing the rest of the city's share of the grant money.

In other action, the city approved some lot splits for Herman Rasch, approved the closing of about 60 feet of Houghtlin Street, an undeveloped road between

BC Planners nix McIntyre six duplex project

Boyne City planners spiked a request to build four duplexes on the McIntyre Boatworks property Monday evening after deciding the density of the four buildings would be too small for the four fifty foot lots.

The denial of the request caused the developer, Mrs. Elizabeth McIntyre to walk out of the monthly planning meeting before the planners approved building three duplexes on the four lots.

The move ended a controversial development problem the planners had been facing for several months as the developer tried to get the land given a conditional use permit which would have allowed the building of the eight individual units.

Architect Jack Begrow had prepared the plans which were given to the planners shortly before the meeting. He told the planning body that this was the latest revision in the proposed development that would have allowed four buildings 30 by 57 feet to be constructed on the property, allowing a 12 foot setback from the neighbors and 15 feet between the buildings. The zoning rules call for a 7.5 foot setback for the sideyards.

The plan would have had nine 40 foot boat slips which would have been sold along with the duplex units. Other amenities included in the proposal were a pool and garages for each unit.

According to the developer, the plan met with all conditions required by the zoning code.

Members of the planning board thought the density was too great a problem and disagreed with the proposal.

A large group of neighbors turned in a petition explaining their cautions with the proposed project saying that the dock had never been permitted to be as long as was drawn on the plan, noted the change in the square footage of the units making them bigger, the ownership consideration of the duplexes, the lack of a construction schedule and the sewer needed to be provided for the project.

They said they wanted answers to those questions before giving their approval to the plan.

City Manager Randy Frykberg reminded the planners that they were only to look at the conditional use part of the project, not the site plan as that would have to come back to the planners for approval later.

When the motion was made after some discussion as the best way to proceed, the planners tried to approve the four units. That was turned down by all members of the planning body. A second motion was made to allow three units on the site and that was approved.

After the approval of four duplexes was turned down, Begrow said there was no sense pursuing the project.

In the second major request for the evening, the planners approved the expansion of the Boyne City Motel. The owner, Russell D. Otterbine intends to construct a new two story eight room motel building on the adjacent lot north of the present motel. He is also planning to construct a second story to the existing southeast building which will contain another eight units.

When completed, the motel complex will have 36 units. According to the site plan presented, the complex will have room for 49 cars.

The plan was approved pending the siting of the screened dumpster and satisfying the city with the proper sewer and water hook-ups.

Another approval was given to Thomas Shaw who intends to build a 40 foot by 35 foot hangar at the city's airport. The hangar will be located north of the airport terminal building at the end of the present grass runway. It will be set back 50 feet from Kunert Street and will have a greenbelt to protect the view from the street.

The approval was given with the conditions the builder will use prefinished metal panels on the building that would match those presently on the airport and will have to pave the apron to the building when the taxiway is finished at some point in the future.

Another approval will allow the first bed and breakfast tourist home in the city.

The approval will allow the B&B to be at the home now occupied by the Rob Polleys family at the corner of East Street and State Street.

Plans show the home will allow for three guest rooms as well as other changes being made to the home to allow for better use of the structure.

The parking area will be expanded by three feet to allow for the five cars required under the new ordinance. This was the first time the planners have had to consider the bed and breakfast rules since they approved them last year.

The purchaser of the home, John and Sandra Duley of Detroit, said they would have no problems complying with the rules that were developed for B&B's. They hope to have the home ready for occupancy by the ski season.

Fred Franchino was also given an approval to build an addition to his home on Line Street and create a duplex dwelling. He will be

Royce Rolls resigns Melrose Township position post

Saying he wanted a "legal" board, Supervisor of Melrose Township, Royce Rolls, submitted a letter of resignation to members of the township board June 15.

Rolls said in the letter that he thought apparently some of the board members did not want to follow state and township laws and regulations as they do not apply to them. Rolls said he feels differently and tendered his resignation to be effective June 30 at 12:59 p.m.

He stated in the letter that he felt he did not get any co-operation from some of the other members of the board and that is why he was resigning.

The resignation will still some of the voices that were considering a recall campaign against Rolls, according to some of the rumors that were floating around the Walloon Lake area.

When the motion was made after some discussion as the best way to proceed, the planners tried to approve the four units. That was turned down by all members of the planning body. A second motion was made to allow three units on the site and that was approved.

After the approval of four duplexes was turned down, Begrow said there was no sense pursuing the project.

In the second major request for the evening, the planners approved the expansion of the Boyne City Motel. The owner, Russell D. Otterbine intends to construct a new two story eight room motel building on the adjacent lot north of the present motel. He is also planning to construct a second story to the existing southeast building which will contain another eight units.

This is what the proposed duplex development would have looked like if they were completed on the former McIntyre Boatworks property on Lake Charlevoix. The project was turned down by the planners who said the density of the four duplexes were too much for the size of the property. The developers had proposed to construct the four buildings on four 50 foot lots. Planners then approved three buildings on the four lots, but the developer had left the meeting after the four were turned down.

EJ Schools looking for middle school principal, counselor

The East Jordan Board of Education will accept applications for the position of East Jordan Middle School principal through July 7, will interview candidates from July 10 through 14 and plans for the new principal to start work on August 1.

The board started the hiring process in motion at their meeting June 13, just one day after local voters approved a 3.95 millage increase which made the position possible.

They also posted an opening for a K-8 counseling position.

In other action, the board again joined the Northern Michigan School Food Service Consortium for the 1989-90 school year, with

East Jordan art auction spurs controversy

Organizers of the art auction scheduled for 7 p.m. Saturday, June 24, at the East Jordan Civic Center say they are disappointed in the local controversy the event has caused.

The East Jordan Chamber of Commerce received a letter expressing concerns of Portside Art Fair officials about the legitimacy of the Oxford Art Galleries of Detroit, which will supply the signed etchings, lithographs, serigraphs, woodcuts, batiks, oils and original water colors for the auction.

Rumors that the auction is a scam have abounded, but Barbara Worgess, chairman of the event, says the claims are unfounded. Worgess herself was involved with the gallery ten years ago when she bought for $90 a matted, framed picture with an authenticity certificate verifying that hers was 129 out of 200 available.

Worgess says buying limited edition prints such as these is a way to enjoy beautiful art at the fraction of the cost of an actual original Renoir, Picasso, Norman Rockwell, Leroy Neiman, Joan Miro, Matisse or Chagall — all whose work will be represented at the auction.

She said the auctioneer is completely honest in telling the audience what they are buying, and starting prices range from $25 to $85, with investment art at higher bidding.

She said she received glowing references for the organization from the Business and Professional Women in Houghton Lake, who sponsor an auction every year, and the Avandale Fine Arts League in Rochester, Michigan. The gallery has also conducted fundraising auctions for Plymouth Newcomers Club and Grosse Isle Historical Society.

Oxford Art Galleries, which has been in business 15 years, makes its living having shows and auctions as fundraisers for non-profit organizations. Worgess says she finds it hard to imagine such a prolonged hoax, as objectors claim, could be pulled on so many different non-profit organizations.

A donation of $3 covers punch and hors d'oeuvres during the preview of the art from 7 to 8 p.m.

East Jordan Garden Club members exchange plants, hear speakers

More than 40 East Jordan Garden Club members and guests gathered at Elm Pointe Tuesday for their annual plant exchange and potluck luncheon.

The variety of plants available attested to the impressiveness of many of the group's personal gardens.

Members could choose from irises, bromeliads, tulips, lilacs, dahlias, black-eyed susans, shasta daisies and mums, along with cacti, hens and chickens, ivy, yew, impatiens and snow-on-the-mountain.

Gardeners who like to mix edibles with beautifuls could help themselves to tomato plants and the herbs, thyme and mint. Organizer of the city's planting project, Deanna Hurwitz brought a basket of bunches of parsley, fresh from her own garden—enough for each person present.

Members who had attended the Port Huron convention of Federated Garden Clubs of Michigan reported their experiences.

Club president Thelma McKinnon gave details of the hospitality extended throughout the city, including on a Star of Detroit luncheon trip.

Martha Annear spoke about environmental problems caused by the difference in the way the earth works and the way people live. She said we need earth doctors to prescribe holistic medicine for the earth—doctors who look at the whole environmental picture instead of the individual parts.

Engaged? Making wedding plans?

The Press would like to print your announcement and picture

The Charlevoix County Press publishes engagement and wedding announcements without charge.

Pictures are welcomed, but we do suggest a few guidelines. Good quality black and white photographs, either of the couple or bride-elect are preferred. All photographs are kept on file in the Press office and may be picked up at any time following publication. Those pictures not picked up after six months will be discarded.

Wedding and engagement announcement forms are available at our office or will be mailed upon request and the receipt of a self-addressed stamped envelope.

While we try to publish each announcement the week that we receive it (and in the case of weddings, the first publication date following the ceremony), space constraints sometimes force us to delay the printing of the announcement for one or two weeks. Therefore, we ask that information be received at least two weeks before the intended publication so that we might better plan for its publication.

We will not accept wedding announcements received more than four weeks after the wedding.

Jottings

BY JIM SILBAR

And what did you do over the Father's Day weekend?

I saw many fathers around town working, doing the chores that they would have done if it wasn't Father's Day that the kids helped celebrate.

Many were out mowing lawns, after the dew had dried, and were working on getting the house ready for painting or something else that requires a lot of work.

Myself, I turned on the television, found out that the Detroit Grand Prix was preempted by the Detroit Tigers, turned off the television and took a nap for the first time in a long time.

I guess admitting to taking a nap is the first stage in saying you are getting older. Several other things also occur in growing older, like problems with eyesight, hearing, joints, muscles and condition.

For those of us who elect to take naps as a plan to fend off the aging process, I think we are just smarter than those who elect to fight old age.

After all, we know we can't lift that two ton refrigerator from the kitchen to the bedroom. We just opt to go to Sears and get one of those apartment fridges the kids like to use at college and get that set up right by the bed.

That way we don't have to walk very far after taking that nap to get something to drink.

We nappers know that we can't solve all of the little problems of the household that become critical almost every weekend when we finally get some moments to relax. We happen to think it is better to go to bed than to decide which child gets to play with what toy.

And speaking of children, those of us that are really, really smart, know how to get the kids to do the yard work, the house cleaning and get the car washed for the week.

I can't say that I am like that, I have a hard time getting the kids to listen to me at all now that they have driver's licenses.

So we almost smart ones just head for the bed and a short nap to refresh ourselves on occasion.

The only problem is that the occasions get closer and closer as we get older.

Sure we still get the work done, the yard mowed and the houses painted, but there comes a time when napping sounds a whole lot better.

Maybe my wife will let me sleep on another Father's Day in the future. I have to get going so I can mow the lawn, weed the garden and do the rest of the chores that I didn't get to because of napping.

It just proves the old adage, the work never stops. Especially if you try to get a nap once or twice a year, and the sun is shining outside, and the wife comes up with a thousand things that have to be done, and only the male species of the family can do them because the female species ordered it.

After all, we let her sleep in a little bit on Mother's Day.

Before we got her up to do some of the work the male part of us did not want to do, but wanted done.

I think I had better quit now, before I alienate all of the women and most of the men.

duty of the local press, in behalf of the business community to do something about the situation.

We have had a number of enterprises close doors on their activities at what is called "Water Street Mall", which is a somewhat erroneous address since it is located on Main Street.

Presumably, the developer (and I don't know who he, or she, or what corporate body it might be) wanted to cash in on the quality image of the "One Water Street Restaurant" and at the time it probably was a good idea. But ideas prove faulty oftentimes, too often many times.

When enjoying a fish dinner with some friends, also lovers of fish, the conversation drifted to markets. Surprisingly, they were unaware that a small shop in the mall, carried a complete line of local fish as well as frozen salt water species. And the root of the trouble was the title. They couldn't find a Water Street Mall on Water Street.

They could probably easily have found a Main Street Mall on Main Street.

Gregg Smith
Boyne City

When it was announced that Boyne City was to receive a national award for its cleanliness and up-to-date appearance, I felt a lump in my throat as large as a store-thumped watermelon.

I have no idea what the weather will be like when you read this. But for the last week or so the Lord has been fiddling with his wonderful arrangement for watering the earth. And I mean watering. It rained so hard for a couple of days everyone laid aside their business and watched the performance.

How delighted we are to see summer spring from the closet. The wrinkled dillydallies among us spent the winter missing the charms of those young loveies basking in the warm sunlight, minus ski suits, minus turtle-necks and minus other garb thought proper when Phoebe was queen of the bloomer girls.

Yes, after all those dark days of sleet, ice and snow, we who subsist on social security and government cheese now are wide-eyed to the dizzy heights of a day at the beach. There is a wonderful bonus to this. It helps to assure our wives that we are, after all, still conscious.

Are you having a difficult time since you were laid off?

I sure am. But I am doing everything possible to change my luck.

Like what?

Well, the other night I went out and planted some chicken heads by the light of the moon.

Did that change things for you?

It sure did. When I went up for my unemployment, they told me it had run out.

The bill Congress passed to raise the minimum wage to four dollars something per hour was immediately vetoed by President Bush. When asked why this was thus, Mr. Bush said that he did not want to throw a monkey wrench into America's mainstream of proud minds and empty purses, especially after the Pentagon paid two million dollars for the monkey wrench.

South Arm Township bows to EJ zoning on industrial park

After a zoning variance request from East Jordan City Council for the proposed industrial park on city-owned property within the township, South Arm Township officials agreed to give the city zoning control.

The matter came up at the township meeting Wednesday, June 14, as the township board discussed questions raised in a letter from attorney Timothy Arner.

Arner is drafting a contract which will transfer authority over a 40-acre parcel accessed by a road off M-32 adjacent to the city airport, as allowable under Public Act 425.

Township trustees, who had expressed concern about the proposed 1-acre lots instead of the two acres required by township zoning, decided after discussion to recommend that the city control the zoning. Bob Strehl, member of the East Jordan Industrial and Economic Development Commission, said the commission would like the park controlled by city zoning.

At a June 5 commission meeting, city mayor Russ Peck expressed bewilderment over the idea the city felt it necessary in the first place to ask the township for zoning changes, saying that the city jurisdiction over the property should include zoning.

The bottom line is that the 25-foot rear and side setbacks requested by the city on March 15, in lieu of 50-foot setbacks required by the township, will now be automatic. Lot size will also no longer be a matter of debate.

The board also agreed to instruct its attorney to include a clause protecting the township from liability over the property and to specify that any utilities built on the property remain with no expense to the township if and when the property reverts to the township. They also discussed the possibility of asking for more tax money than the one mill specified in the contract proposed by the city.

Pletz recommended a 25-year contract with renewal options, but Malpass contended such a short contract would not show a lot of confidence in the city's ability to develop the park. The consensus was that the only reason the township would not want to renew the contract would be if the city were unsuccessful in developing it as an industrial park. The board approved Malpass's motion for a 50-year contract.

Pletz expressed the desire for quick action between the city and township in finalizing a contract.

He said he might call a special meeting to go over the contract before the next regular meeting July 12, if the contract were completed by the attorney in time.

Vandalism at East Jordan cemetery

Even after Sunset Hill's manager reported to East Jordan police that vandals had toppled some tombstones at the peaceful, serene cemetery on Thursday, June 8, the vandals returned on Friday, June 9, to wreak more wreckage.

They struck the cemetery's old area, where many tall tombstones mark graves of early 19th century East Jordaners.

Officer Robert Christensen said the police department has no leads at this time concerning who is responsible for the desecration. Although police are watching the area, he said about the only possibility of pinpointing the vandals would be from a knowledgeable citizen. Anyone with any information should contact the police department.

Christensen said that city superintendent Mike Dionne is making arrangements to have the headstones righted.

Condominiums coming to South Arm Township

Plans are in progress for 34 single-family, free-standing condominiums on acreage on the south arm of Lake Charlevoix off M-66 between East Jordan and Ironton.

South Arm Township Board discussed communications from the Department of Natural Resources and District Health Department No. 3 concerning the complex's proposed sewer system and dock at their Wednesday, June 14 meeting.

Township Supervisor Harold Pletz said so far the plans comply with the township's zoning ordinance. He said the method of dividing the proposed lots circumvented the subdivision control act.

Township zoning permits only one home on the single piece of property that is zoned R-2 and R-1. Pletz said the owner could deed parcels to new owners, and assuming the new lots meet township requirements, a new dwelling could be built on each.

Board members expressed concern about a few of the proposed plat's lots, which used a road easement as part of their square footage to make them comply with township requirements.

The complex has petitioned the DNR for permission to build a 100-foot long, 5-foot wide floating dock for eight boats.

None of the condominiums will be on lakefront property. The 600 to 700 feet of lake frontage will be used for a beach house and a common area.

Boyerne City Commission Minutes

WEEKLY MEETING, MAY 2, 1989 - NOON: All Commissioners were present. There were 19 people present at the meeting.

A 12 month liquor license was approved for Pippins Restaurant at 5 West Main St.

Contract 11 for the 1989 infrastructure work was awarded to C.H. Smith for installation of materials purchased by the City in the total amount of $243,000.00. Material costs by the City will amount to $71,363.00.

The question of the City policy of paving streets was brought up. The City Manager pointed out that the City does not pay the full amount for paving streets. It is either through a cost-share program or a special assessment district. Meeting adjourned at 12:17 p.m.

WEEKLY MEETING, MAY 9, 1989 - NOON: All Commissioners were present. There were 16 people present at the meeting.

United Technologies Automotive Group presented a check in the amount of $1,000 to the Boyne City Ambulance Department to purchase a Heart Monitor Fund.

John Scott, representing Rural Housing Corp., advised this his firm is interested in constructing a 24 unit senior housing development in Boyne City. Many questions arose over this matter. Consensus of opinion was that Boyne City did not need additional senior citizen housing. There was a bigger need for 2 and 3 bedroom homes.

The land dispute between the City and Dr. Victor Thomas was resolved when the City agreed to accept $8,000 for the disputed land in north Boyne.

It was announced that the Executive Committee of the County Planning Board denied approval of the expansion of the City Marina to the Waterways Commission. A resolution was passed to the County Board of Commissioners that they allow the expansion of the Marina. Meeting adjourned at 12:47 p.m.

MONTHLY MEETING, MAY 9, 1989 - 7:00 P.M.: All Commissioners were present. There were 6 people present at the meeting.

A request was made to brine streets more often in the City to avoid dust problems. The City Manager stated that the City can no longer use as much brine as before because of the ecology and State regulations.

The First Reading of Ordinance A-56-1, Cable TV Ordinance, was approved and scheduled the Second Reading for next month.

Nancy Cunningham was re-appointed to the Library Board and Christopher Bandy was re-appointed to the Economic Development Corporation.

The City's retirement program was upgraded to Plan B-2 with MERS. Meeting adjourned at 7:25 p.m.

WEEKLY MEETING, MAY 16, 1989 - NOON: All Commissioners were present except Mayor Fitzpatrick. There were 13 people present at the meeting.

The Police Department was awarded a certificate from the Chamber of Commerce for outstanding community service for all the work they have done for the people of Boyne City.

The Commission voted to go into closed session to discuss an upcoming suit against the City filed by former Treasurer Carl Dulin for being discharged without cause. Meeting adjourned at 12:32 p.m.

WEEKLY MEETING, MAY 23, 1989 - NOON: All Commissioners were present except Mayor Fitzpatrick. There were 19 people at the meeting.

Because both Boyne City and Boyne Falls Fire Departments have the same fire frequency, problems could arise over this situation. The Commission passed a resolution asking that the County Board of Commissioners see to it that the radio frequency is changed for Boyne Falls in the best interests of public safety.

Water and Sewer rates were increased by 2% in order to avoid any further deficits in those departments. The average bill will be increased by only about $2.00 per month.

The City Manager and Mayor were authorized to sign any contracts with MDOT regarding the M-75 construction through Boyne City.

A section of Escape Street between Silver and Court streets was closed. A section of Willow Street was closed. Meeting adjourned at 12:40 p.m.

WEEKLY MEETING, MAY 30, 1989 - NOON: All Commissioners were present. There were 12 people present at the meeting.

An architectural design booklet was presented to the Commission for their inspection. They ordered filed. Meeting adjourned at 12:35 p.m.

Division Street and Edmund Street, and learned the paving of the second course on Michigan Street is just weeks away.

The commissioners then learned that the city will be sending out letters giving residents 30 days in which to clean up junk in their yards, followed by a letter from the city attorney. If at the end of a week from the second letter, the junk is still not cleaned up, the matter would immediately go to the courts.

Ware-withal

by Gail Ware

What with the size of the national debt being such a big concern these days and the Defense portion of the Federal budget being an appreciable chunk of it, legislators are paying closer attention to how the Pentagon, which is the purchasing agent for the Defense Department, does business. Political and military minds clearly don't see eye to eye.

Pentagon officials go in for many and exact specifications, since most politicians don't deal with details, such precision annoys them, the majority of them annoyed with the hardware regulations. But Senator William Cohen of Maine has struck out on his own, found his own point for pique — the cookie specs.

Cohen complains that 15 pages of specifications just for cookies is overdoing it. (Perhaps he doesn't know that with many government contracts, often this number of pages is only the beginning, the prologue.)

Cohen cites the specs for type 1 cookies, oatmeal with chocolate chips, as an example of his point: "They shall be browned on the bottom surface and outer edges, but not appreciably browned on the top surface. They shall be wholly intact, free of checks or cracks."

He says the specs even give the exact required minimum weight, 13.7 grams; the maximum moisture content, 5.0 percent; and the minimum diameter at its greatest dimension, 2 and 5/16 inches for each cookie. He further quotes: "These cookies shall be tender and crisp with an appetizing flavor, free of burnt or scorched flavor."

The specs for type 11, sandwich cookie, cover the same areas plus two more. The color of the base cakes can't be lighter nor darker than the specified color chips, with the comparison to be made "under sky daylight with the objects held in such a way as to avoid specular refracture (glossiness)." Furthermore, the filling can't "protrude" beyond the edges of the base cakes.

While these specifications show Pentagon officials' zest for minute detail, they also show that the officials have had some bad experiences, charred cookies and sloppily filled ones clearly having been two of them.

All this care is taken for a worthy cause too, providing good food to those serving in the Armed Forces. For those who served during the years when military service was compulsory, meals seldom shone. But once the military became voluntary, service-related benefits were upgraded, food among them, in order to get people to sign up or reenlist. Good food has helped turn many Americans toward patriotism, especially younger, hungrier ones.

Then too, most Americans love cookies and take them seriously. With oatmeal and chocolate chip being two of their favorites and Oreo and wafer sandwiches big sellers too, the Pentagon considers such cookie care crucial.

Senator Cohen may have been drafted into the Army in the '50s and '60s and can't quite believe all this fuss about food. Or maybe he just doesn't like cookies. At any rate, he's fed up with them right now, and he hasn't even touched on the specs for their ingredients yet.

He might want to take a break and hang out with the gang in the hardware a while first, though. At least they haven't become so annoyed or haven't complained as loud as he has anyway, loud enough to reach the Michigan newspapers.

building a 24 foot by 36 foot addition.

In other action, the planning board approved a lot split for Herman Rasch in the Haute Vue Estate Subdivision. Rasch asked the planners to okay the making of four lots into three. Two lots would be 187.5 feet wide by 132 feet long while the other lot would become 275 feet wide and 132 feet deep.

Planners also approved vacating Houghtlin Street between Division and Edmund streets. The city will still keep an easement and keep on record an agreement between all parties concerned with the closing of the street. The recommendation of the planners will now have to go in front of the city commissioners for their approval.

Planners then set up a committee to go through the present master plan and zoning rules to update them. Appointed to the committee were three planners, Bub Dunnette, Dale Parsons and Mark Kowalske. They will be working with Sandra Stanley, representing the city commission on the committee developing the upgrade. The action came after the planners decided several months ago that they should be looking at the master plan and see what has been done by the city in following the recommendations.

The planning board then accepted the resignation of Chris Bandy who will be moving out of the city.

Fishing: the way it was and the way it is

BY REG SHARKEY
I finally managed to go fishing the other evening.

Although I'm a retired Dept. of Natural Resources (Fisheries & Parks) person, I find little time to dunk a line, although I only live a stones throw from Crooked Lake.

However, the other evening, after supper (now called dinner), I donned waders, grabbed my rod (alias fishin' pole) and hied myself to a spot that no one else seems to think is a good place to pop a bug or dunk a garden hackle.

Not bothered by other anglers, I proceeded to catch 18 gills and sunfish; and as I fished I revived memories of boyhood angling and how things have changed.

As an overalld, barefoot younker during the "Roaring '20s", fishin' was a pleasurable obsession, and the gear used was a far cry from today's sophisticated, expensive gear.

I remember my dad taking me to Bill Day's hardware where out in front, leaning against the buidling, was a rick of bamboo cane poles of various lengths.

With an almost ceremonial ritual poles were inspected for cracks, lengths and straightness, and my dad said, "You pick the one you can handle — and get a good straight one — and don't take forever and a day. We've got to buy the rest of the stuff to rig it."

Inside the cluttered store I inspected the fishing things in the glass-covered counter. With dad's help I selected a heavy cuttyhunk line, some hooks, sinkers and a bobber. Total outlay? Around six bits (75¢).

But it was a sacrifice on my dad's part for it took three hours of hard work in the flooring mill to earn that much.

Once home the pole was rigged and I was rarin' to go fishin'.

Like other youngsters of the time panfish, bass, catfish and suckers were my forte. It wasn't long before I was bringing home enough fish to feed our family of four on a fairly regular basis.

Bait was no problem. Bait dealers were as scarce as hen's teeth. Most fishermen rustled up their own bait, and it conserved hard-earned money.

Horse and cow barns in a small town had plenty of handy manure piles with garden hackles lurking around them.

Nearby creeks furnished chubs caught with a tiny hook attached to a line and a willow switch.

As my creel filled with panfish, I compared those wonderful boyhood days with today's hectic rather expensive passtime.

Now in order to fish, you have to have sophisticated, expensive gear. Where can you buy a simple barebones cane pole? Where can you buy a good, heavy linen cuttyhunk line?

And who fishes in overalls covering a bare butt anymore? Those makeshift 98¢ waders are now replaced by $50.00 waders.

And when one gets into big lake fishing sophisticated depth and fish finders attached to a 15 to 20 foot miniature yacht, propelled by a motor costing a grand or two is a must. Then there are the dowriggers and all the rest of the junk that manufacturers and the so-called fishing experts say you have to have in order to have a good time fishing.

And those dang fishing derbies, like bassin' where they rush about like loonies seeing who can catch the most fish in a given time.

Is that the relaxing fishing of my boyhood? 'ell no!

The early Michigan farmers and their families did not worry about cholesterol in their diet, they did not know what it was. They did not do anything about a fitness program except to give the kids their sulphur and molasses as a spring tonic after a winter without fresh fruits and vegetables. This was to clean out their systems and give them energy for the work ahead.

They did not jog, lift weights or ride a stationary bicycle. Grandfather walked miles in the furrow of the plow and the muscles in his arms guided the plow through the rough and thick sod with ease after a winter of sawing wood in the lumber camps or in his own wood lot.

I think of my father, of his knowledge and love of his land and I feel that I must have inherited his excitement of the first day to plow. There was a security of knowing that the land would produce in spite of all the possible draw-backs. Seeing a newly plowed field still gives me that excited feeling. I am sure that this is universal every spring to people all over the world.

Grandmother also worked off all of the cholesterol that she did not know about. She helped to milk the cows, rubbed the family laundry on the old wash board, churned the butter, worked in her garden besides all of her daily household duties.

The whole family worked hard and there were always jokes about the lazy hired man. This came from a 1915 Ranson's Family Receipt Book.

"Well did them moving picture people get pictures of everything on the farm?" "Everything but the hired man," said the farmer. "Heck, they couldn't ketch him in motion."

Here are some "good-for-you" recipes.

LILLIANS BEEF AND VEGETABLE SOUP
1/2 lb. lean ground beef
1 med. onion, chopped
2 cups water
1 (15 oz.) red kidney beans (do not drain)

2 med. carrots, sliced
1/2 med. head cabbage, cut in chunks
1/4 cup macaroni, dry
2 chicken bouillon cubes
1 tsp. basil
Dash of pepper (The bouillon cubes give enough salt, taste.)
1 — Brown beef and onion in large pot
2 — Stir in all other ingredients
3 — Cook over medium heat until macaroni and vegies are soft; about 20 minutes.

This is a thick soup and very tasty. Basil gives it a good flavor. Serves 6 to 8.

Asparagus is always good for us, so rich in vitamins and low in calories.

MARINATED ASPARAGUS SALAD
1 lb. (1 1/2 cups) fresh asparagus
1 med. tomato, chopped
1/2 cup red onion, thinly sliced
1/2 cup celery, sliced
1 hard boiled egg, finely chopped
1/4 cup Italian dressing
Garnish with roasted sunflower seeds

Wash asparagus gently. If thick ends of the spears are tough and woody, peel off or trim. Cook asparagus in small amount of boiling water until tender-crisp (4 to 6 minutes). Drain and cool. In a large bowl combine all remaining ingredients. Add asparagus and stir gently. Cover and refrigerate several hours or overnight. Stir before serving.

My brother-in-law, Ellery, makes this easy and very good dessert.

ELLERY'S DESSERT
32 oz. vanilla or plain yogurt
1 box pudding mix, the instant kind
He likes the pistachio or butter-scotch flavors. Just add the dry pudding mix to the yogurt and 1/2 of a large banana or 1 small one.

I would like to thank those people who brought me some local fish after my recent story. I just fried a fillet each of bullhead and one rock bass. They were delicious. I loved them. Thanks again.

Local IYGC tournament fills up with teen golfers

Many young Northern Michigan area golfers have entered the local qualifying tournament for the annual Big "I" Insurance Youth Golf Classic, the nation's largest teen golf event which pairs PGA golfers with young players for the final round.

The local round, sponsored by the Independent Insurance Agents of Northern Michigan, will be held at Michaywe' in Gaylord on June 26. Late registrants who are 17 and under may enter by contacting the Northern Michigan area IYGC Chairman, James Lindsay, Jr. of Campbell-Lindsay Agency at (616) 582-6512, or a local independent insurance agent.

"More than 900 Michigan youngsters entered 22 local tournaments around the state last year," Lindsay says, "and six state finalists went on to the national finals where they have the chance of a lifetime to play with a touring professional such as Bill Rogers or Tommy Armour, III."

The state final for winners of local qualifying rounds, including Northern Michigan will be played in Cadillac on July 17, with the national IYGC final scheduled for August at Texarkana Country Club in Texarkana, Arkansas. The national IYGC winner is also eligible to compete as an exempt amateur in the 1990 Independent Insurance Agents Open (formerly the Houston Open).

Last year's IYGC attracted more than 10,000 youngsters to 800 local and state tournaments organized by independent insurance agents as a community service.

The Big "I" is sponsored by the Independent Insurance Agents of America and a number of leading insurance companies.

Personalized license plate change coming

The Department of State is making changes to its personalized license plate program that will culminate later this year when vehicle owners will be able to request a maximum of seven letters and/or numbers on personalized license plates.

The changes were authorized by Public Act 419 of 1988 which took effect April 1.

While personalized plates are still limited to six letters and/or numbers at this time, the law eliminates the restriction that personalized plates carry a minimum of two letters and/or numbers.

Persons wanting to apply for the personalized plate may obtain an application form at any Secretary of State branch office or by contacting the Special Registration Unit in Lansing. After an application has been submitted and approved, the Department of State will bill the requestor for the appropriate payment, which varies under the new system.

Under the new law personalized plate and amateur radio operator (ARO) license plates have staggered registrations similar to other passenger vehicle registrations. Personalized and ARO registrations for all individually-owned vehicles, except motorcycles, will expire on the owner's birthday and, therefore, will require that month tabs be displayed on these plates. Previously all personalized plates expired and were replaced each March 31, and the month tabs were not used.

Personalized registrations for motorcycles will continue to expire on March 31.

Personalized registrations for company-owned passenger vehicles will expire April 1, while company-owned pickup and van registrations will expire each February 28.

The special registration fee for these plates will be based on the number of months the plate will be valid as opposed to a flat $25 annual fee. The special registration fee will be $3 for the first month and $2 for each month thereafter, in addition to the vehicle registration fee.

Once a request for a personalized plate has been approved by the Department of State, a bill for the payment will be forwarded to the applicant.

The Department of State issues between 15,000 and 17,000 personalized plates annually.

Accidents rank 3rd as death cause

Injuries are a significant public health problem. As a cause of death, age adjusted death rates from accidents rank third after cardiovascular disease and cancer. Sixteen point three percent (16.3%) of nonvehicular accidental deaths were designated as occurring in the home. The very young and the elderly are at greatest risk of home accidents because of limitations related to developmental processes and disabilities due to aging, and because they spend the greatest proportion of their time at home.

Falls are the leading cause of nonvehicular accidental mortality. Falls cause few deaths before age 65, but after age 65, falls result in three times higher death rates than motor vehicle accidents. In a recent study of falls in senior citizens, injury occurred in about 24% of falls. The risk of falling increases as the number of risk factors, like sedative use and balance or gait abnormalities increases. In children, falls are the leading cause of emergency visits for an injury.

Housefires are the cause of the majority of burn deaths for all ages, especially in young children and the elderly. A study of fatal housefires in Baltimore suggested that 55% of these fires were started by cigarettes. Tap water scalds is another category of burn that warrants attention. A third degree burn can occur in 5 seconds in water at a temperature of sixty degrees celsius. A new type of scald burn emerging is the use of the microwave oven to heat up nursing bottles where the liquid becomes dangerously hot while the container remains cool. Both mouth and splatter burns have been reported.

The majority of poison exposures have been reported to involve children under five. Accidental ingestion of poisons by children is most often a result of inappropriate storage of the agent. Most poisoning deaths occur in people 25 to 65 years of age. In seniors where case fatality rates are higher, confusion over dosages of prescription drugs, mistaking one drug for another or mistaking household products for mouth-wash, food, etc. can cause the majority of unintentional poisonings. Other accidents include choking and suffocation with 62% of choking deaths due to respiratory obstruction from food.

Most literature on injury prevention advocates the "passive" approach which offers automatic protection regardless of individual efforts. Examples include the Poison Prevention Packaging Act, 1970 which reduced poisoning deaths of children under 5 by 70% from 1970-87.

Next in effectiveness are measures that require action only once on the part of the individual, like installing smoke detectors or lowering the setting of hot-water heaters. Least effective, in general, are measures that require frequent action.

Home accidents are a significant cause of unintentional injuries.
