

The addition of an aquarium has enhanced Science Education for one first grade classroom in East Jordan. Betty Walker, the teacher, says that the aquarium will allow students to observe the fish up close, and on a daily basis, allowing them to learn while they watch. The aquarium was installed for the class by Mr. Tim Leach, a resident biologist and the father of one of the class members. Residing in the new aquarium are many neons, two danios and two glass catfish. There will be new additions throughout the year to enhance the first grade science curriculum.

Harborage announces phase two development

The Harborage developers announced the beginning of phase two of their large condominium project here in Boyne City at the monthly Boyne City Planning Board meeting held last Monday night.

The developers presented a site plan which calls for 30 condominium homesites on the property that is south of the current waterfront phase. Rick

Smith said that the waterfront development is about finished as they have constructed their last building along the waterfront. When finished, there will be 90 attached condominiums in the first phase. The second phase will start as soon as possible, although it may be some time before any of the ground is developed.

Smith said after getting the first approval for the site plan that was presented Monday, the plans have to be sent into the state for their approvals. That could take some time he added, and said no ground would be worked until they have the approvals.

The condominium homesites are rather unique, he told the planning body as he showed the site plan.

The current idea is to have a potential buyer purchase a site that allows them to construct a home on a certain portion of the site. Each site will have a 20 foot setback from all boundaries.

Within that interior area, the home builder will also have to comply with the rules of an architectural committee that will help the landowner decide the use of the property.

All of the remaining land not utilized by the homesite will remain in the hands of common owners.

Roads will be constructed into the property and will be only about 18 feet wide and will work their way around trees so to allow as many trees as possible to remain on the grounds. Owners will have to appeal to the architectural committee to remove trees from the site other than the ones that have to be removed to build the home.

The entrance for the drive will be off Front Street although there will be two emergency entrances from Division Street, Smith said. The emergency entrances will be gated to control ingress and egress.

Owners will not be allowed to park on the narrow roads that lead to the homesites, they will have to park their vehicles on the space allowed for that purpose on their interior lot area.

The road width brought several concerns from planners and city officials. Fire Chief Nord Schroeder wanted to be sure that the turns provided on the main access road will be large enough for fire vehicles. That thought was reiterated by City Engineer Dick Young. He asked for several changes in the site plan, including enlarging the radii of the two emergency entrances so large trucks could get into the 27 acre site in case of fire.

Smith said the narrow roads were necessary to develop the natural feeling the developers want to portray. They said the area would be as natural as possible and they would rather run the main roads around trees than cut them down. He said there would be no shoulder to the road and it would look more like a driveway than a road.

There would also be no sidewalks in the site. The developers would rather let the owners be able to walk around and through the homesites in order to get to the other amenities.

Those amenities include a clubhouse and additional tennis courts on the south side of Front Street. Smith said the owners would have access to the lake on the western shore past the present attached condominium units. He suggested several ideas for the common lakefront area but said nothing was settled as to use. He did say the developers would be adding berming to the lakeside property as it narrows to the in-

BF gets good audit report from CPA

Boyne Falls schools anticipated a slight loss of fund equity last year, but after the annual school audit, came out adding a few dollars to the good according to Niles Hill of Hill, Woodcock and Schroeder, the accounting firm that audited the books for the school system.

Hill gave a review of the annual audit to the board members Monday night as they learned the school finances are in good shape, even with the increased amount of payments for the new school addition that is being completed this fall.

He told board members that they did a good job in watching the budget as the year progressed. Superintendent Chuck Smith said the board allowed him to cut the budget in certain areas in order to make room in other areas during the school year.

The only shortfall that required fund transfers from the general fund were the athletic and food service budgets.

The school had several new funds to consider this year as the building program bonds required separate accounts for each phase.

Board members accepted the audit and went on to other business. They approved two requests for fund raisers. One for the Junior Class so they could earn money for class activities and the other to the local Brownie Scout troop so they could sell t-shirts, sweatshirts and tote bags with a Logger logo.

Board members were given an update on the school's building project by Smith who said there were many things that were not considered as part of the program that he has had to purchase. He said the miscellaneous items would require an additional amount of money from the special account set up for those types of purchases. The board gave their approval to spend up to $10,000 more. Items on the list included signage for the bathrooms, tables in the teachers' lounge, additional desks and chairs, along with other small items.

Smith said the project of rebuilding the gym is ahead of schedule and it is starting to look like a gym. He said the contractor will be starting to work on the gym floor shortly and the rest of the structure is almost completed.

The board then approved the contract for the new school principal, Chuck Dobson, and gave approval for a Schedule B position of Senior Class Advisor to Lee Prested.

4 injured in Saturday accident

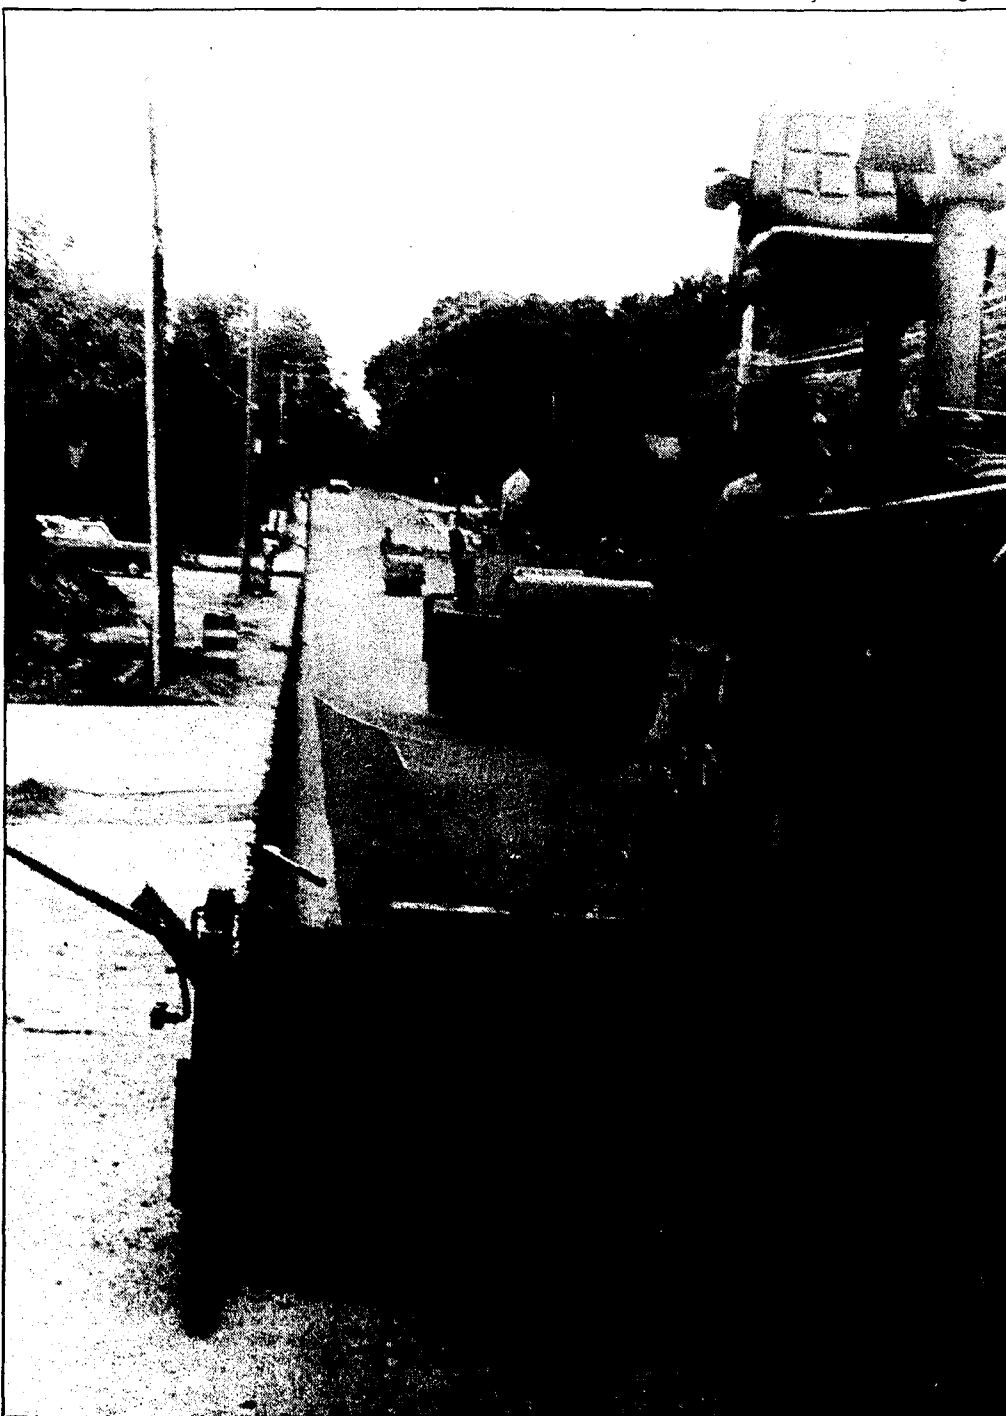

Four people were injured in a two car accident that occurred Saturday morning about 1:45 a.m., when a car driven by Greg John Dixon, 25, of Charlevoix, failed to negotiate the curve at the corner of Michigan, Lake and Groveland Streets in Boyne City.

Injured were Dixon, a passenger in the Dixon car, Calvin Willis Simonson, Jr., 24, of Central Lake and the occupants of the second car, Michael Scott Kitson, 17, and Angela Sue Boden, 16, both from Boyne City.

Apparently the Dixon car took the corner wide and hit the Kitson car broadside. Kitson and Boden were taken to Charlevoix Area Hospital by the Boyne City Ambulance while Dixon and Simonson were taken to Little Traverse Hospital in Petoskey. Simonson was treated and released Saturday morning while Dixon was transferred to a Grand Rapids hospital. Boden was treated and released from Charlevoix, while Kitson was admitted with multiple injuries.

The Boyne City Fire Department was called out to assist in removing the injured with the help of the Melrose Township Fire Department who had to use the jaws of life as the scene. The accident is still under investigation by the Boyne City Police Department, who were assisted by the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department and the Michigan State Police.

Charges against Dixon will be sought with the County Prosecutor as alcohol was believed to be a factor in the accident. No one was wearing a seatbelt.

Asphalting was completed last week on Michigan Avenue by H & D, Inc. They will be continuing to pave different portions around the city. According to city officials, they will be back in town later this week to complete other streets throughout the city.

Opinions

We need more homes

We applaud Harborage developers for the second phase of their condominium project that will start a new subdivision of a sort in Boyne City.

The 30 homesites that are planned for the vacant property the development owns on the south side of Front Street is one of the many things Boyne City needs to continue the idea of controlled growth.

While we may not like the idea that each homesite will have to undergo a review by an architectural committee, and while we may never be able to take advantage of constructing a home in that project, we think that there are plenty of others who will.

Maybe it is time for other developers to consider the developing of other subdivisions in the area. City officials have long suggested that our community needs middle income housing, and this community has plenty of land that just begs for development.

While we like the idea of having homesites for the upper reaches, we think it is also important to develop some homesites for the middle class and those that are moving into the area to work on some management level at the new manufacturing plants.

They are the ones looking for housing and not finding it among the available houses on the market, and they are the ones that should have a subdivision slanted for them.

The city could do a little to help in that they could install water and sewer lines out to be able to serve those new homes. They could pave and gutter roads to get to the homesites.

But our city is just coming through a major infrastructure repair and probably won't have the available money to develop their own resources for some time.

That puts the onus on the developer who won't come to an area without the amenities.

Jottings

BY JIM SILBAR

With the growth of computers in the classrooms of the schools around here, I thought it was almost time to try to update our computer equipment so we can take advantage of my children's expertise in working with a computer.

Boy, was I in a mess.

The first thing was to subscribe to several magazines that cover the world of computers. That required at least two hours a week, trying to keep up with the technology that seems to change every few days.

Now we use a computer to write our articles on. Have for several years. And I am slowly getting used to doing things the way the computer tells me I have to when I want to do something different.

Like last week....

I received an updated software program of the same type we use. After spending a few hours trying to figure out the installation guide, I ended up calling the company because I didn't understand what exactly I should do.

The problem was that there is a paragraph in the guide that says, if you are upgrading, all you have to do is this and that.

I wondered if by doing this and that, whether the new program would "overwrite" the old. My questioning mind went even further and said if that program doesn't work like it should, what do I do about getting back the old program.

So I called the company and am glad that I did. They told me that the upgrade was for a later version than the one I had and it would be best for me to just install the whole program just like I was a first time user.

So I did.

But then I ran into another problem.

That problem was how to get to the program within the system so I could use it.

I have this device installed that is supposed to let me get quick access to the programs I want to use but finding the current program that I just installed and getting that to become organized into my situation took almost three hours of trying, and trying, and trying again to get the right commands in the right order so that all I would have to do is hit the button and the program would appear.

One part of what caused the problem is that I don't do that sort of thing very often, so I am not all that familiar with it. In fact, I hardly remember what to do at all.

So, between reading the manual over and over, reading another manual, and then finally a third, I was able to get the darned thing to work.

Sure is slick the way it comes onto the screen. Sure is easier than the other way when I had to wait about a minute or two to load into the computer memory all of the things that I needed, just to write an article.

All I have to do now is to learn or relearn all of the features this new program has so I can do a few more things that I couldn't do with the old one.

But, I figure I am set for the next few years as far as what we hope to do with this device. It will be updated tomorrow probably with something else that is new faster and better.

Just my luck.

Remembrances

Back in the days when Young State Park was just opened, the rather rustic campground looked like this as viewed along the shoreline from what will become a campsite for tourists. The park has changed considerably since the day that this picture was taken.

Genius: A person who knows what Blue Cross and Medicare will pay for after you leave the hospital.

Summer is wrapping its legs around the various colors of autumn and preparing to hit the road to palm trees, fake grass, and clusters of mobile homes.

Its true. Our daily sizzlers are drizzling off into the sunset. Fall will join our furnace and kick in officially Friday.

And what next? Zero to ten, twenty or perhaps thirty degrees above ground? What a disaster! I have been through too many snowstorms to believe in their respect for decency. Especially when they are as endless as a dish of macaroni.

BURRRRR.... Ever since I was at the nipple and trickle stage I've wanted to stick my head into a pigeon hole and refuse to withdraw until spring skims the rooftops.

Look, bub, if you don't like it here, why don't you go back to where you came from?

This is where I came from. How can I go back when I'm already here? People would think that I am as giddy as a goat if I tried to go back when I'm already here.

And let me tell you this: I find that staying here among the icicles when you dislike it is like pushing a wheelbarrow through the streets of Boyne City. Everyone knows what you are doing, but they don't know why.

Look, my friend, I think you are a little bit stupid when it comes to Boyne City winters.

That ain't all, I'm going to stay that way.

Speaking of selling drugs, as every television program in the country is now doing, let me say this:

If I were to build a shed out on our back forty, set up a still and sell whiskey at half price, the federals would come, sip at it for a while and then drag me off to jail, all within three days. Now, how come it takes the same people three months to tell which house is selling drugs?

Question: What are movies, radio, magazines, television and books doing to this country?

Answer: For one thing, they are making chastity seem more like a crime that it used to be.

Me: Everything costs so much these days I can hardly afford to live and I don't have enough holdings to pay for a final curtain. What can a body do to sail through this bungle? I'd like to do it without a scratch if possible.

He: Well, you can always move to Boyne Falls.

Me: I'll be darned. I never thought of that.

My wife read this column and ventured a guess that my comments would not be welcomed by any noticeable burst of applause.

BC approves assessment district for street paving

Boyer City commissioners approved setting up a special assessment roll for the paving of River Ridge Lane, a street that was considered for a special assessment district last August but was turned down after neighbors controlling more than 50 percent of the proposed footage along the street objected.

The neighbors worked out a compromise and again asked the city to set up the district so they can get their street paved.

The street is located behind Dr. Mansfield's office, one block off State Street.

The action took place at the noon meeting of the City Commission. Commissioners also heard reports on the D.A.R.E. program from Randy Howard, the officer trained in the anti-drug program. He told the commissioners that last year he taught 76 fifth graders that there are alternatives to drugs and they could make the decision to stay away from drugs themselves. This year, he expects to teach 120 fifth graders when the classes begin next semester.

Dick Beagle, the director of the Northern Lakes Economic Alliance also gave a report on the alliance and what it was doing. He told the commissioners of problems concerning the Department of Commerce and what they want that does not coincide with the confidentiality required when working with possible incoming businesses. He said the state was holding up some needed money from the alliance because of those problems. Beagle went on to explain some of the areas the alliance is working towards helping to get businesses to locate in the north.

In other action, John Howard asked the commissioners to consider not trading docks for docks, but rather look at the trade between the city and the developers of the Harborage Marina as a trade of dollars to dollars as they work closer to getting new docks at the City Marina.

A switch of docks at the Peninsula Beach Marina to the City Marina has been proposed as a way to develop more dockage in a better location for city workers.

Cooking

CHICKEN

We are getting to this place in time when we take chicken for granted. It comes to us in so many forms. Fresh, whole or divided in parts so that we can have any variety we choose. Frozen cutlets, nuggets and even cubed chicken all ready for our special casseroles and salads are on display in the frozen food sections of our markets. This is high quality chicken and is very important to our daily meal planning.

Even with all of this variety, I long for the taste of a good stewing hen cooked until tender then fried in a little butter with gravy made in the pan, served with piping hot biscuits and fluffy mashed potatoes. I can dream, can't I? Through the years this style chicken was America's Sunday Dinner.

The food writer, Craig Claiborne described chicken as one of the greatest foods known to man, and so many of us agree with him. It's a versatile bird, can be grilled, broiled, simmered or fried. Good hot, cold, creamed or in a salad.

Here is another special recipe from Helen Cible. It is one that is prepared ahead of time, and ready to pop into the oven on these busy autumn days.

HELEN'S CHICKEN SOUFFLE
About 12 slices white bread (crusts removed)

1/2 cup Miracle Whip salad dressing
3 to 4 cups cubed, cooked chicken
1/2 cup onion, chopped fine
1/2 cup chopped green pepper (optional)
2 1/2 to 3 cups grated cheese
6 eggs
3 cups milk
3/4 teaspoon salt and pepper to taste
1 can mushroom soup

Spread bread with salad dressing. Place a layer in bottom of a 9 x 13 in. baking pan. Mix chicken, onions and peppers. Top with one half of the chicken mixture and one half of the cheese then another layer of bread, then the rest of the chicken and cheese.

Beat eggs, add milk and seasonings. Pour over bread mixture and allow to set in refrigerator at least 2 hours or overnight. When ready to bake, spread top with soup (undiluted) Bake at 325 degrees about 1 1/2 hours.

Maybe we should have one recipe for broiled chicken. This is from a Tennessee finalist in a National Chicken cooking contest. My friend, Lillian Biggs, sent it to me. From "The Island Packet." Low country food.

SPICY HERB—BROILED CHICKEN

1 broiler-fryer chicken, cut in parts
1 tsp. poultry seasoning
1/2 cup dried mint
1/4 cup cider vinegar
1/4 cup soy sauce
2 tablespoons vegetable oil
2 cloves garlic, pressed
1/8 tsp. hot pepper flakes
1 cup chicken broth
2 tablespoons catsup
1/4 cup plain yogurt

In large bowl, make marinade by mixing together poultry seasoning, mint, vinegar, soy sauce, oil, garlic and hot pepper flakes. Add chicken, turning to coat and marinate at least 30 minutes. On broiler pan place chicken, skin side down; broil 5 inches from heat for about 15 minutes. Turn chicken, brush with marinade and broil for about 15 minutes more or until fork can be inserted in chicken with ease. Remove chicken to warm platter. Drain broiler pan; remove and discard any excess fat. To pan, add chicken broth, catsup and remaining marinade; simmer over medium heat until reduced by a third. Add yogurt and bring to a boil. Serve with chicken.

Remember: Remove skin when eating, and you cut the calories in half.

We can make our own chicken nuggets and honey dip in the microwave, this way.

GOLD CHICKEN NUGGETS

1 lb. boneless and skinless chicken breast, halved
3/4 cup milk
1 cup cornflake crumbs

1/3 cup grated Parmesan cheese

1/2 tsp. black pepper
Place chicken pieces on cutting board. Cut each one vertically to make 3 pieces. Then cut each strip horizontally to make 12 pieces. Try to keep the pieces the same size so they will cook evenly. Transfer the chicken to a mixing bowl. Pour milk over chicken; set aside.

Pour the crumbs, cheese, salt and pepper into a plastic bag, twist the top and shake it.

Line a large plate with 2 or 3 layers of paper towels. Drop about half the chicken pieces into the bag and shake it several times to coat the pieces.

Arrange the chicken on the plate in a spoke-like pattern to make half a circle. The pieces may be close together, but should not touch. Drop the remaining chicken into the bag. Twist and shake again. Arrange on the plate to complete the circle. Cover with a paper towel and microwave on High for 5 minutes. Rotate the plate a half turn, then microwave on High another 3 or 4 minutes until chicken is done. Let stand 5 minutes before serving.

Make this dip while chicken is resting.

HONEY DIP

1/2 cup honey
2 teaspoons lemon juice
Measure honey into a glass 1 cup measure. Add lemon juice. Microwave on High for 45 to 60 seconds, until hot. That's all there is to it.

For a more exotic dip try this. No cooking required.

BLUE CHEESE DIP

1 cup light mayonnaise
1 green onion, chopped
1 clove garlic, minced
1/2 cup chopped parsley
2 tablespoons fresh lemon juice
1/2 cup plain yogurt
4 tablespoons crumbled blue cheese
1/4 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper

Combine all ingredients in blender or food processor. Cover and refrigerate 1 hour before serving.

Tryo hunters big game

BY REG SHARKEY

I well remember as a beginning hunter my first encounter with brushland's "big game"—the prolific, enduring cottontail hare, alias rabbit or bunny.

It was a Sunday afternoon in mid-October. Earlier in the day our family had paid our respects to the Lord in His house of worship. Then despite some do-gooders looking down their noses at people who hunted or fished on the Lord's Day I was again hunting with my dad.

With my dad's blessing I had acquired a little 20-gauge single shot scatter gun. I was eager to prove my prowess as a deadeye Dick.

Taking into consideration that I had successfully graduated from the proper handling of a single shot King BB gun my dad figured it was time to induct me into the ranks of mature nimrods.

So it was that after a noon lunch we departed for a well-remembered milepost in my life.

Meandering through pasturelands fenced with pine stumps, reminders of the lumbering era, we prodded likely bunny sites amid the snaggly uptr-ned roots, hoping to roust a secreted bunny into the open long enough to get a shot.

Becoming impatient for lack of a bounding target I begged my dad, "Let's go down along the creek to ice man Bare's place. There should be bunnies sitting in the brush along the creek."

But my dad reminded me that never having shot at a moving target I wouldn't be able to hit a rabbit dodging through the brush.

Well, anyhow, we did amble through the creekside brush without jumping game, and the impatience of youth began to dull my zeal for "big game" hunting, for after all I could have downed a half dozen sparrows at the local livery stable by that time.

Crossing an open overgrown field we came to a fence line bordering a cedar swamp. Stopping at the fence I was reminded to break the shotgun and remove the shell. Just as I began to work the breaking lever a cottontail burst from a weedy clump and bounded for the swamp. Snapping the breech shut, instinctively bringing the gun to my shoulder, I snapped off a shot and the cottontail, partially hidden by burning semi-smokeless powder, cartwheeled to a halt.

Surprised by my success both my dad and I were momentarily speechless. Then my dad said, "Son you are now a hunter."

Field dressing the rabbit we started for home and I constantly admired my trophy. Arriving home a note on the kitchen table stated that mom and my sister had gone to visit my grandparents. Disappointed that I couldn't display my prowess as a hunter I lugged the rabbit a mile to my grandparents' place to proudly exhibit the success of my first hunt.

Since that time I have been on countless cottontail hunts. Maturing into manhood I acquired the merry little beagle hounds, masters of rousting out cottontails, listening to their excited tonguing as they go about the business they were created for.

And we'll never run out of cottontails as long as we give them half a chance at survival: a little cover and the protection of regulated seasons.

East Jordan loses in overtime

To say the Red Devils had their hearts broken is close, almost as close as the win they missed out on after coming from behind in the second half of the game between Inland Lakes and East Jordan that they ended up losing in the first overtime period the school had played in by one point.

That one point was a point after a touchdown by the Bulldogs that was good that came after their overtime TD that tied the game.

East Jordan lost the coin toss to see who would play first in the overtime, but won when the Bulldogs elected to defend the goal line stand. On the first play the Devils promptly drew an offside penalty that put them back to the 15 yard line instead of the ten.

But Ted Sherman ran off that 15 yards on the next play slanting off tackle. The two point conversion attempt failed when a pass between Scott Beal and Sherman was knocked down.

The Bulldogs scored on their first play and kicked the extra point for the win, 21-20.

During the game, the first half seemed to be all Bulldog as they led at halftime 14-0. The Devils couldn't get an offense working consistently during the first half.

Ted Sherman (42), slightly off balance but still driving forward, scored on this play as he ran in the East Jordan touchdown on the second play of the overtime period. The team lost a heartbreaker when the two point conversion pass was blocked by Inland Lakes while they evened up the match and hit their extra point for the win 21-20.

In the second half, the Devils started a comeback drive and ended up tying the score on a 74 yard pass play from Steve Poole to Sherman with only 33 seconds left in the game. Earlier they drove up the field for 66 yards to make their first score. Sherman ran in the TD, and caught the ball for the two point conversion.

Hunter's manual available from MUCC

As the days get shorter, the nights grow cooler and the leaves begin to turn with the coming of autumn, more than a million sportsmen and women turn their thoughts to some of Michigan's most exciting outdoor sports offerings—hunting for waterfowl, small game, upland game birds and white tail deer.

For young novices and seasoned hunters alike it is a time to carefully plan their hunting trip, clean and check their equipment and brush up on the important skills they will need to bring home their favorite quarry.

No matter what level of experience or expertise they may have, a valuable resource and planning guide for hunters of all ages is "Hunt Michigan! - How to, Where to, When to," the most definitive reference manual on hunting opportunities in Michigan.

Published by the state's largest sportsmen's organization — Michigan United Conservation Clubs (MUCC) — the 350-page book reads like an encyclopedia on Michigan hunting. Authored by Tom Huggler of Otisville, a nationally-acclaimed outdoor writer and photographer, "Hunt Michigan!" covers every aspect of sport hunting in the state.

The book includes individual chapters on how and where to hunt every game species found in Michigan. Other chapters are devoted to hunting opportunities in Michigan's state recreation and game areas as well as state and national forests.

Huggler spent more than a year researching and writing the book, which contains a county by county breakdown of terrain and conditions and detailed examinations of big and small game and waterfowl hunting opportunities for sportsmen and women.

The reference manual is generously illustrated with game and hunting photos and color maps of areas open to public hunting throughout the state.

Copies of "Hunt Michigan!" are available for $15.47 each, postage and tax included. They may be ordered by sending a check or money order to MUCC, P.O. Box 30235, Lansing, MI 48909.

All proceeds from the sale of the book go to support MUCC's conservation and sportsmen's education programs across the state.

"This has been a better opening than our first day in Mackinaw City," said Joel Hessel, one of the owners of the new Photo One store located in Boyne City.

The store started off doing about 15 rolls of film the first day and the number of rolls of film needing processing is growing every day, he continued.

The operation is based on the one-hour principle, but he said while the one-hour service is good, if the people want a little better quality, it takes a little more time so that the pictures are given individual attention with the operator of the machinery looking at things like color balance and color correction for some of the pictures.

The business, while it may be new to the Boyne City area, is really not new. They just recently moved to the Boyne City location from Mackinaw City where the shop opened for the summer tourist season last May.

The family run business, brother Chuck Hessel along with mother and father Ed and Mary Hessel, all work in the business although not always at the same time.

But the business is based on Joel's expertise. He started off in photography and graphic arts as a co-operative student at the Petoskey High School. After graduation, he went to work at the Petoskey News Review as a printing press operator and moved three years later to become the darkroom technician. He has spent the last six years as the supervisor of the darkroom of the daily newspaper before making the change to owning and developing his own business.

As to why he located here in Boyne, he said he looked around at many communities before deciding to relocate here. One of the reasons was the size of the community and the growth that is going on around the area.

He intends to keep the Mackinaw City operation as well, and will be buying additional equipment to process films for that location this winter. The Mackinaw City operation is primarily a summertime business.

Here in Boyne, the operation will be offering color development and printing of 110, 126, and 135 millimeter films and will be able to offer proof service for 120 size film.

The size of the prints can be available in 3 1/2 by 5 inch or 4 by 6 inch on a regular basis. Hessel said they can enlarge up to a 5 by 7 inch size also. He hopes to be able to offer larger sizes in the future.

The company will be offering specials, like Wednesday being the "Double Print" day and the firm is starting up a "Roll Club". That is where customers bring in or accumulate five rolls to be developed and then they will be getting a sixth roll done free.

They will only be charging customers for the pictures that are printed, no matter how many are on a roll or don't turn out after developing.

The Hessels first impression of the community was good and their store is located in Lakeside Plaza, in front of the Lakeview Mobile Home Park and is open Monday through Saturday.

Barbershoppers to appear

On Saturday, September 30, 1989 the Boyne City Chapter for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barbershop Quartet Singing in America will sponsor two performances at The Opera House in Cheboygan. This marks the fifth benefit in Cheboygan by the S.P.E.B.Q.S.A. for the Logopedics Institute. The Institute helps people with speech problems—whether its from cerebral palsy, strokes, or autistic people. Therefore, the Barbershoppers will sing so that they may speak.

The singing society has 39,000 members with chapters throughout the United States, Canada, and several other foreign countries. The amount raised since 1964 is in excess of $7 million.

The Logopedics Institute was organized in 1934 to work primarily with children who are af-licted with speech impediments. Much of the therapy used to teach autistic children and stroke patients to communicate is done through music. All donations to this organization are private. They receive no help from state or federal funds.

The Opera House will be filled with the melodious voices of people from all walks of life. Barbershop groups are composed of all kinds of people—doctors, lawyers, ditchdiggers—getting together to provide a unique, fun-filled evening of song.

There will be two performances this year with several quartets from all over the state. The matinee is at 3:00 p.m. with tickets priced at $8 general and $7 senior citizens. All tickets for the evening show at 8:00 p.m. are $10. For more information call the Opera House at 616-627-5841.

EJ-Pac sponsors 'potential'

East Jordan High School students enjoyed a high-energy movie, slide and music program on Tuesday, September 12, entitled "Shoot for the Stars - Reach Your Potential." The program, which was sponsored by the local East Jordan PAC (Parents for Alternative Choices) group, focused on positive decision-making skills for teenagers.

National concern about substance abuse made the program both informative and timely, and, according to Principal Keith Moore, positive feedback was received from the student body.

The presentation, a product of Motivational Media, Inc., lasted about 45 minutes and included high interest clips from successful movies, as well as interviews and narratives from individuals in the entertainment and athletic industries that are appealing to students throughout the nation, such as Michael J. Fox and Jason Bateman.

Mr. Moore indicated that the high school staff and students are deeply appreciative of EJ-Pac's support of such programs.

Boyne City Pizza opens E Jordan location

So far, not many people have asked what a Boyne City business is doing in East Jordan. But to Chris and Wayne Nelson, owners of Boyne City Pizza, setting up shop in East Jordan seemed to be the natural thing to do.

As to how a Boyne City business is doing in East Jordan? "We're doing a good business so far, not booming, but doing well," said Wayne. "We are happy with the business, and almost everyone in town has been appreciative we started over here."

Those appreciating include the East Jordan Police Department who like the idea that the kids have some place to go and are off the street. Other merchants like their being open also for much of the same reasons.

"We have video games for the kids, like our Boyne City location, and seating for 38 people at a time," Wayne added. Customers can eat their pizza in the location on Main Street that was formerly a carpet store, or take it out. The firm offers free delivery within a five mile radius of East Jordan for those who want to eat at home.

The two, along with plumbers, electricians and others have totally remodeled the interior of the store, giving it a nice clean, airy look. Work to remodel the outside of the building is in the planning stage and the Nelsons hope it will be done before winter.

The pizza firm says it is preparing the best pizza in town using the same high quality products they are using in their Boyne operation.

While this is the second operation the two have opened, it is not the last. The two are looking at other locations throughout northern Michigan and hope someday to have many Boyne City Pizza operations. The East Jordan location has been open for the last three weeks.

The stores now employ 35 people between Boyne and East Jordan, with most of them full-time, Wayne said. The firm is using mostly adults for delivery, but that could change as the need arises. The two want to make sure that pizzas arrive at a house hot

by Gail Ware Ware-withal

Poking developing offspring before the little ones can voice their protests may seem like a poor way to start a parent-child relationship. Still, obstetrician, F. Rene Van de Carr believes it works well, makes pregnancy more fun for moms and, along with a few other words and acts, gives the poked a social and mental head start in life.

Van de Carr's reasoning to reach these conclusions seems a bit loose, but compared to Pulitzer prize winning social commentator Dave Barry's pre-born training theory, Van de Carr's rationale holds together beautifully.

The doctor's program, of which communicating with fetuses by poking them beginning in their fifth month is the first step, is covered in a course for parents-to-be he teaches at the Prenatal University in Hayward, Calif.

Van de Carr dubs his first step responsive poking. It calls for parents, when the unborn kicks, to poke back and say: "Good baby. Kick again." Parents are to follow this procedure whenever baby kicks. In time, baby kicks whenever poked. Van de Carr claims that eventually baby sees the poke-kick sequence as predictable, and once it does, it has the basics for learning.

The doctor further claims that while parents are enjoying this poke-kick game, (he assumes they must be) baby is getting a blast of mom's pleasure hormones and thus is learning that socializing makes it feel good.

Going further still, Van de Carr says that the poked ones, once born, tend to enjoy social interaction more than material things, so they share toys more easily. (The man certainly gets a lot of mileage out of his poking.)

A tool he uses on older fetuses, the xylophone, goes on mom's tummy. A parent hits a note, then makes baby wait increasing seconds between the tone sound and naming it. This lengthens baby's attention span and gives it practice retaining information. (Baby waits patiently, of course.)

Then there's words like mouth and ear, spoken to baby shortly before birth. Post-birth they're spoken again while parents touch the baby's part named. Done during feeding time, this gives baby the idea that learning is as pleasant as eating (assuming baby connects the two).

In Van de Carr's eight-year study of kids of parents he educated, the parents say these kids are ahead physically, socially and mentally. (Proof or smiling through their bruises?)

Barry's unborn education program is simpler, made up of just one activity—yelling at mother's stomach. What's yelled are facts children need to know. He cites capitals of states as an example. (That the one capital he cites isn't one, clouds his credibility some. Still, his commitment to prenatal education is what matters here.)

Barry thinks dads should do the yelling since moms would look stupid yelling at their own stomachs. (How much thought he's given to how dads look doing it he doesn't say.)

He makes a good point when he says teaching unborns must be simple. (But his enlargement on it, saying you can't go in their premises with tools like slide projectors—no place to plug them in—is rather unsettling.)

Of the two men, Van de Carr clearly comes out the stronger reasonwise. Still, Barry reports that his son, on whom presumably he used this program, has successfully arrived at age 3, which counts for something certainly.

Boyne resorts rated tops

Boyne Mountain Resort has been named the number one ski resort in the Midwest, while Boyne Highlands was rated third, according to a study by Snow Country magazine. Both areas are owned by Boyne USA Resorts, Inc. Ski areas were analyzed according to the number of skiable acres, vertical drop, terrain, lift facilities and snow conditions. The results are listed in the magazine's September issue. More than 101 resorts were ranked in eight different regions of the country. The data was analyzed with formulas devised by the research department of The New York Times Co. magazine group. Boyne Mountain, founded in 1947 by Everett Kircher, remains one of the Midwest's most popular ski areas, with 17 runs served by 10 chairlifts. Boyne Highlands opened under Kircher's ownership in 1964, and includes seven lifts and 17 slopes. The two resorts hosted a combined total of 325,000 skiers during the 1988-89 season and more than 11,000 visited the areas during Presidents' Day weekend alone. Boyne USA Resorts also owns Big Sky, Mont., which was rated by Snow Country as the 10th best out of America's top 35 ski resorts. Snow Country readers, in the same issue, voted Big Sky as the resort with the shortest chairlift waiting time of all national areas. Big Sky also garnered top honors as Snow Country readers' number one choice for the best total mountain experience, including terrain that matched their ability, lift waiting time, ski conditions, eating facilities and ski school.

Ramblers dropped for third loss of year

BY JERRY FROATS

Goalline phobia struck the Boyne City Ramblers Friday night after progressing well on sustained drives that went scoreless inside their opponents 20 yard line. Twice the Ramblers were within striking distance, but both times Lincoln-Alcona took over possession of the ball, once with an interception, and the other on downs after an incomplete pass.

The Lincoln-Alcona Tigers won the match-up 26-7 with the Ramblers escaping a shut-out after the second offensive team took the field to begin the fourth period.

Improvements were evident though in other areas of the Rambler game. Far less penalties were committed, highlighted by the fact that on the second offensive drive for paydirt virtually no infractions were flagged on the part of the Ramblers. Another area of improvement included the Rambler kicking game. The Boyne City punts carried further and there was a considerable decrease in return yardage. The Ramblers were also better able to set up their own returns for more desirable field possession. Against the kick, the Ramblers literally poured through the Lincoln-Alcona line, blocking a punt and an extra point attempt.

The Tigers scored four touchdowns in the game, the first coming in period one by way of a quarterback bootleg carry to the opposite field of action for 17 yards. The other three TDs were long passing combinations that found little defensive secondary action to oppose the plays. Touchdowns two and three were the simple result of outrunning the Ramblers who appeared to be somewhat confused over whose responsibility each receiver should be. Touchdown number four resulted from an all blitz on the part of Boyne City who sent eleven players into the rush, but failed to sack the Tiger quarterback.

Aside from the Tigers passing game, the Ramblers were pretty much even up in the running game. From the opening play from scrimmage, Boyne City moved the ball well. Rambler Matt West opened the first series with a 20 yard scamper to the Boyne City 47 yard line, and from there the Ramblers sustained the drive all the way into Tiger territory at the 19 yard line. The drive was aided by a dropped punt by Lincoln-Alcona, and Rambler Roy Angel, on the punt coverage team, recovered the ball for the Ramblers. But on fourth and long, the Ramblers were intercepted and the play carried to the Rambler 43 yard line where the Tigers set up their offense and moved in for their first TD.

The second sustained drive for the Ramblers was set up early in the third period by a long kick-off return when Shawn Vondra nearly broke it loose with one defender to beat, but was tackled at the Boyne City 47 yard line. From there the drive featured West, Vondra, and Angel running the ball while eating up nearly seven minutes of the quarter. Two passes on third and long were completed by Rambler quarterback Bo Williamson to keep the drive alive, one to Vondra for 14 yards, and the other to Mike Kitson for 13 yards. The only penalty against the Ramblers inevitably was the cause for turning the ball over on downs. Closing in on the Tiger goal line, the Ramblers were flagged for illegal procedure, setting up a first and 15 situation that eventually ended the drive at Lincoln-Alcona's 16 yard line.

The Boyne City second team offense was sent into the game to begin the fourth quarter and ran off a few good runs against the Tiger first defensive team for 35 yards gained in four plays. Jim Bush carried the ball on each play, knocking off a 20 yarder, and two 7 yarders. Huge holes were blasted through the Lincoln-Alcona defensive by the strong side of the Rambler offense. With Shane Kevin Lockman takes off around the end of the line this play worked, the Ramblers still lost their third game of the season 26-7 to Lincoln-Alcona last Friday.

Heberling at tackle and John Karkosak at the guard, Bush was given ample room to maneuver up the field. Rambler head coach Jack Gebauer flip-flopped the strong side with the quick side of the offensive line on alternate plays and things happened exactly like a chalkboard drawn play. The strong side of the line blew open the holes, and the quick side of the line (tackle Greg Capelin and guard Jamie Shepard) were able to get down field for additional blocking responsibilities. From the snap of center Rich Erickson to quarterback Mike Feagan, to the hand-offs in the backfield, the Ramblers performed flawlessly. Runningbacks Angel, Jerry Babcock, Jason Hunt, and Bush, carried the ball 72 yards on the drive that culminated with Hunt diving into the endzone from the one yard line. Kitson put the boot to the ball for the extra point and a jubilant second offense excited the field.

The same offensive unit took over possession of the ball after the Ramblers had held off a long drive by the Tigers, and went to work again. Forty yards were rolled off behind the Ramblers featuring Babcock as the principal ball carrier, but with time running out, the Ramblers went to the air and were intercepted, ending the drive.

This Saturday the Ramblers travel to Battle Creek Penfield to take on an undefeated team. Things get tougher with each passing week as the Ramblers future opponents appear to be doing well in each of their own leagues, sporting respectable win-loss records. But with each game played, the Ramblers improve in one area or another, and eventually they will put it all together for a win.

Boyne City's girls' basketball team won two games last week beating Harbor Springs and Rogers City. On this play, Dawn Archambault goes for two against Inland Lakes.

Boyne Alternative Education program hopes to save students

Alternative Education. The newest buzzword going around Boyne City but hardly anyone knows what it is all about as far as being a different school program. People have heard a little bit, but school officials themselves haven't determined the exact program.

High School Principal Joe Tibaldi has said he would almost kill to get the program started as he thinks it is necessary for the community. Others working around the school agree with him and are working to discover and develop a program which would be an as part of the Boyne City School System.

The program is almost the same as a regular school except it covers more of the "real life" situations that a young adult is likely to be involved with as he or she matures.

The program is designed to provide education and guidance for problem solving for the students who are those types of students for whom school is not the place where they want to be. It addressed those children who are underachievers, have been involved in substance abuse, or are teenage parents, and have a general lack of interest in school. They may also have anti-social or delinquent behaviors and can cause problems when they are put into the mainstream.

In general, the type of student who may become involved with this program is one who hates school and can't wait to either drop or just quit going.

The Alternative Education program is slated to fill the needs of those types of children between the ages of 16 and 19 and are living within the school district.

They may also be failing to earn the needed amount of credits for graduation or promotion to the next higher grade and are having difficulty adjusting to a regular school regime.

According to a brochure presented recently at a City Commission meeting, the real thrust of the program is to try to reduce the amount of dropouts in the area.

Dropouts put a tremendous burden on the community.

For example, in Kalkaska County, where the idea for an Alternative Education program exists and Boyne City is trying to replicate, dropouts from the schools have reached as high as 10 percent. That represents as many as 48 students per year were dropping out of the normal classroom.

According to state statistics, those dropouts commit more crimes and make up close to 80 percent of the prison population. Department of Social Services are showing that almost 46 percent of the population do not have a high school diploma. The majority are under the age of 40 years. The DSS spends about $1,262,722 per year to support those families, not including the cost of Medicaid.

School and social workers figure that getting an education, even an Alternative Education, is cheaper than institutionalizing the youth. One northern county figures it has saved over $120,000 per year in placement costs because of the program that was started in that county.

Sending a youth to a different type of school may be the answer, according to school officials, and they are trying to develop the program so that it could be done in order to stop the direction the child is heading into, help reduce costs for social expenses and reduce the loss of human resources.

If all of the details can be worked out by the school system, the students that will be asked to join the Alternative Education program will find themselves in a school that features small groups, small class sizes with only 10 to 15 maximum.

They will learn the same basic skills as a regular student, but will be getting along with those skills, daily living and job seeking.

The students will have a strong voice in the school operation and hopefully will become better students because of it. They will be making up the rules for the school, as well as learning the responsibility of cleaning and maintaining the school. In Boyne City they will probably be helping to construct and make the school facility as part of their education.

The teachers will be helping to develop instruction for the student. They will be required to enroll in six classes per semester with the instructor developing reasonable and attainable goals for each student.

With the education that will lead to a diploma, there seems to be no reason for a student to drop out, according to some school officials.

Students who are interested in the program, once it is approved by the board of education, will be referred to the program and must have parental permission to participate. They will have to agree to abide by all school rules, and will be interviewed by the school principal before they are admitted.

tersection of Division and Front. He suggested to the city to have no parking along Front Street in that area of the project. There are plans for additional parking in the area of the clubhouse, he said, about nine spaces.

The homesites would vary in size from 9,800 square feet up to 17,700 square feet. Smith said there is also a maximum size home that could be constructed on each site of 4,500 square feet. All sites would be served by city water and sewer.

The land will allow homes to be constructed with basements, which will allow homeowners to build a bigger home. Each site will have room for parking three cars.

The city staff recommended approval of site plan, noting that this was the first request for single family residences. The staff report said about 66 percent of the 27 acres would remain as open space and that as much of the woods as possible would be retained.

Changes to the site plan included leaving 80 feet as a right-of-way, the specified roadway would be within that easement. Another change was the sewer, water and other utilities be subject to engineering review along with water runoff and soil erosion concerns.

That added to the site plan gave the planners their approval for the second phase to start with the engineering work.

Planners also approved a request that will allow the Headstart Nursery School to use the former Cedar Street Grocery location. The preschool program will have up to 20 children ages 3 to 5 involved in two classes, one morning and one afternoon session. Each class will be three and one-half hours long, planners were told, and the site would provide a less intensive use of the property than previously.

When Board Member Bob Dunnette asked about outside activities, the school administrators said that there was room for a play area outside behind the building, but that the children would most likely be bussed to another area for outside play. They also said that there would not be too many occasions when they would need to go outside for activities.

The children would arrive at the nursery by bus, and that there would only be three cars using the parking area.

Planners approved the use, making sure the property owner acknowledged that it could not return to become a store without another hearing. They granted a conditional use permit to allow for the Headstart program.

Planners then approved sending to the City Commissioners two changes in the zoning ordinance that tighten up the rules for conditional use permits.

Planners also recommended reappointments of Florida

Bowman and Sue Breidenstein to new three year terms. They also appointed Jeff Uloth to a three year term. Board members also accepted, with regret, the resignation of Board President Marty Paul, who resigned as of Monday's meeting.

Board members also had a short discussion with the Evangeline Township Planning Board expressing the two boards should open lines of communication to work with each other as projects are coming that concern both the city and the township.
