

Lookers filled craft show

Finding that perfect gift at this year's annual Craft Show sponsored by the Boyne City Community Education Department was a bit harrowing as the aisles were crowded most of the day last Saturday by thousands of people also looking for that unusual, homemade gift. Many craftsmen said they sold out of the good items early due to the large, early surge of people.

Boyne starts design work for Park St. bridge

City Commissioners in Boyne City approved the spending of $24,000 to start the engineering and design work to replace the Park Street bridge, at the Tuesday noon meeting.

The work will be done by Wade-Trim-Granger Engineering and will include all of the preliminary work needed for the bridge as well as the final design of the structure.

The bridge will be replaced under the Failing Bridge Grant program of the state now that the city has received a grant to have the bridge rebuilt or replaced. The state will be paying 95 percent of the cost.

The city is working with Granger to quickly develop the plans as the state does not have enough money to fund all of the bridges it has okayed for grants.

The state has told those winning grants that the funding will be available on a first in with the plans basis. Those who wait until funds become available before starting plans will be placed last on the list.

Tom Grant, a member of the engineering firm, told the commissioners that it will take about 28 to 34 weeks to get the plans done and approved. Included in that time period will be getting the permits from the DNR to bridge the river, and from the Michigan Department of Transportation on the design of the bridge.

Grant said the firm will be working with all parties to get the plans done as quickly as possible.

He said the preliminary work will start immediately with completion of that work done in two to three weeks. Then he said the rest of the time will be to get the permits from the different state agencies. Soil borings and survey work will be started as quickly as possible.

Commissioner Bill Grimm asked that the design of the bridge allow for larger lanes along the roadway. He was told the new bridge would be about 40 to 42 feet wide instead of the present 31-32 feet it is today. Pedestrian sidewalks would be about five or six feet wide crossing the bridge as well. Grant said the completed structure would have about three more feet per side.

When Grimm asked if the bridge deck could be lowered to eliminate the bump going over it, he was told that is one of the things that is being looked into. Grant said it depends on what the state and the DNR would allow as far as flood depths the bridge can handle. He said they would like to lower the bridge deck so that it equals the roadway it at all possible.

In other action, the city agreed to purchase a new police car through the State of Michigan Extended Purchasing Plan. The car would be the second police car that has been purchased through the plan although local firms were asked to see if they could match the bid the state can purchase the cars at.

The local firm was about $3,000 more than the state bid, so the

Snowmobile club to be formed in Boyne

Boyne City's hopes to get a new snowmobile club off the ground started with a meeting last Tuesday night when about 20 people showed interest in the formation of a club.

The club would be called the Boyne Valley Snowmobile Club if it is formed and would serve snowmobilers from the Boyne City, Boyne Falls, and Walloon areas of the county.

The first meeting of the group was held to express ideas about what the group should do for snowmobiling in this area. Joe Briedenstein, a promoter of the Boyne Country Rally who lives by Walloon Lake, is the person heading up the formation of the club.

Briedenstein said that the sport is making a comeback, and with the county approving the use of snowmobiles along county roads to get to trails, the growth of snowmobiling in this area should be guided by a snowmobile club.

Some of the attendees at the meeting were from area businesses that are hoping to generate some snowmobile tourist traffic, which relates into more spendable incomes for those who serve the tourist industry.

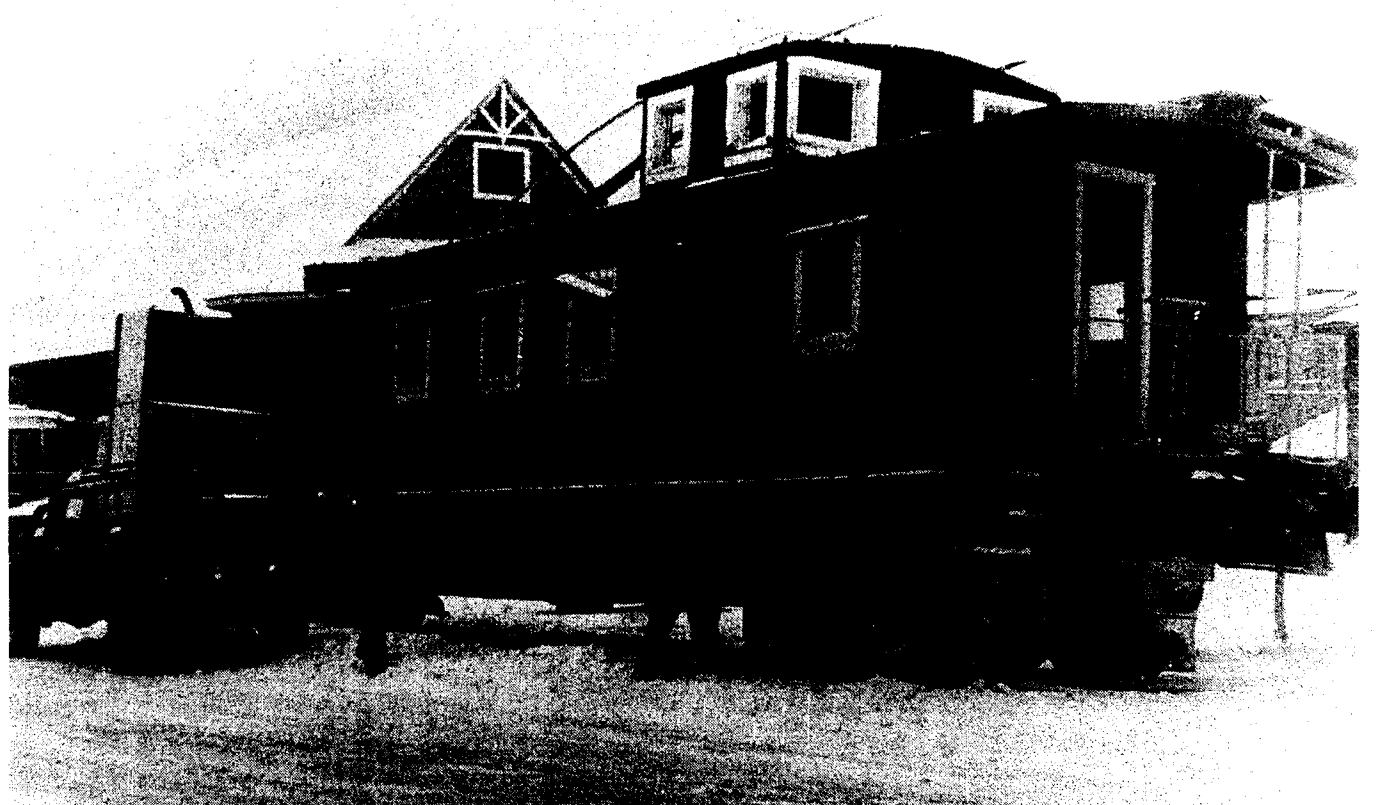

The group will be holding another meeting December 13th at the Wolverine Dilworth Inn at 7 p.m.

News Briefs

Boyne City High School students will be having a Christmas workshop December 20th when, under the direction of the student council, the entire school will be spending three hours in the morning making items for Christmas giving. They intend to make gingerbread houses, cookies, peanut brittle and popcorn balls. All of the items made will be given to the Community Christmas Basket program, the area hospitals, Grandvue and Litzenberger Place.

Boyne Falls PTO will be holding a Winter Sports Goods Swap/Sale at the Boyne Falls School between 6-8 p.m. Friday, December 8, and noon to 4 p.m. Saturday, December 9, in the school cafeteria. Items from Boyne Country Sports will also be available. Anyone wishing to donate or drop off items can bring them to the school between 3-6 p.m. December 8. Size and price must be clearly marked on each item and the PTO will be charging a 10 percent commission on all sold items. Items not sold must be picked up by 5 p.m. December 9 or they will be considered a donation.

Attention all Children! A special mailbox has been installed in front of the Boyne City Chamber of Commerce building for those letters to Santa from children of all ages. By a special arrangement with the North Pole Management Team that handles Santa's mail, the Charlevoix County Press has made arrangements to print the letters from area children. The Press will be publishing them with their annual Christmas issue.

One of the last cabooses to be made in the shops of the Boyne City, Gaylord, and Alpena railroad headed down the road on a truck trailer Monday to a new home as part of the Traverse Bay Railway Company. The caboose was moved to the restoration site of the railway near Alanson where it will be restored and may find a new job as part of the Little Traverse Scenic Railway tourist train. The caboose was moved by workmen from the tourist railway company who said they will be repainting it inside and out, adding items that were damaged by age or rust. They said the car will forever carry the name of the Boyne based railroad after restoration. The caboose was used as a museum for the past few years prior to the city constructing a museum for the artifacts of yesteryear. The car, along with the dining car, was donated to the railway by the new owners of the Station House, formerly known as the Depot Restaurant. The new restaurant hopes to be open soon.

Jason to serve on state committee

East Jordan school board president Mary Jason has been asked to serve on the State Board of Education's "Classrooms of Tomorrow" program advisory committee.

This committee will focus its efforts on technology in Michigan's public schools, developing recommendations for computer selection, acquisition and placement, as well as for teacher preparation, staff development and curriculum integration.

In appointing the 18-member committee, State Superintendent of Public Instruction Don Bemis asked them to develop a proposal for doubling the number of computers in Michigan classrooms and

Gebauer cited for Bay Twp. noise

Jack Gebauer, a Bay Township resident who is training sled dogs, pled not guilty of violating the recently approved township anti-noise ordinance at his arraignment last week in the 90th District Court.

Gebauer was the first to be arrested and charged with the ordinance and was representing himself in the courtroom. The township's attorney Seberon Litzenberger was not at the hearing.

Gebauer was issued two tickets recently alleging that his dogs were barking excessively on October 22. Gebauer said he will be asking the courts to decide the legality of the ordinance as part of his defense.

Gebauer stated that his dogs were not barking during the times listed on the arrest certificate.

The ordinance has raised some controversy within the township and was part of the basis for the recall campaign that collected signatures asking for a recall election of the township supervisor Allie "Bud" Chipman.

That issue is undergoing the process of certification of signatures. Only 51 names of residents are needed. Seventy-eight names were submitted to the County Clerk who turned them over to the Township Clerk for verification.

If the names are verified, the County Elections Board will have to schedule a recall election within 90 days.

Gebauer lives on a 120 acre farm in the township and has said that if he pushed the issue and received a license to raise dogs, he could have as many as 65. Presently he has about 15 that he is working with.

The sled dogs are a hobby of his and he has a goal of someday racing in the world famous Iditarod dog sled race that is held in Alaska.

The dogs did bark when he first moved to the area, he said, but since then the dogs have become conditioned to their surroundings and have not barked as frequently as some have suggested.

The ordinance calls for no noise in the township at any time. Those who are farming have the right to farm as stated in the ordinance and in the state law. Gebauer is considering that his home is also a farm and the crop he is raising is the sled dogs.

Area Lions Clubs follow motto

Two words "We Serve" have been the motto of Lions Clubs International for over 72 years.

The founder of Lions International built the present organization, now 1,600,000 strong on the idea that the business of Lionism is friendship; friendship to the world and friendship to our local communities. Lions International, the largest service organization in the world, exists for only one reason—to serve those less fortunate than ourselves.

Your local Lions Club conducts numerous fund raising projects to support their charitable activities. From those funds, they not only support local community projects they provide funding for Leader Dogs for the Blind. Welcome Home for the Blind, a residential setting for blind persons and Michigan Eye Research and Transplantation Center located in Ann Arbor.

The objective of each Lion and each Lions Club is to serve. Lions Clubs exist because collectively many people can do much more than the individual alone.

Head lice problem surfaces in area

Sporadic outbreaks and cases of head lice have been reported to the Health Department. For some parents it's a terrible shock to be told their children have head lice because they associate head lice with filthy living conditions. The fact is that head lice infestation is a relatively common condition and is not related to home hygiene habits nor housekeeping.

Children get head lice from close contact with a person who is infested or by sharing clothes or personal belongings such as combs or brushes. Lice are small insects that live on human scalp and hair and feed on blood. Their blood sucking causes intense itching that can result in bacterial infections at scratch sites. Head lice, however, do not transmit diseases to humans.

Called pediculosis, head lice infestation symptoms include severe and persistent itching of the scalp. If this happens to your child, make a close inspection of the hairs and scalp using a flashlight and magnifying glass. If head lice are present, you will be able to spot small, gray-white eggs (nits) attached to the hair. Actual lice are hard to see because they are tiny and often few in number. All family members should be checked.

There are a variety of medications that will treat head lice—some are available by prescription and some are over-the-counter medications at your pharmacy. Nit removal also required a special metal comb with teeth less than 0.3mm apart so nits can't pass through and remain on the hair. Medications should be applied strictly according to the instruction and schedule provided. Only use medication specifically intended for head lice treatment.

Never try home remedies such as kerosene or vinegar—they just simply don't work. At the time of treatment, all clothing and bedding used within the last 48 hours should be changed and laundered in hot, soapy water and machine dried. Dry cleaning will also be effective. Non-washable items can be sealed in a plastic bag and left at room temperature for 10 to 14 days or left in below freezing temperatures for 24 to 48 hours.

Papers shouldn't

It disturbs us as a newspaper to see another newspaper try to "make" a story, especially if it has some sort of sensationalism connected with it. It disturbs us because of the training that we journalists all get at some time in a career, that says just tell the story, don't try to embellish it, or try to make the news.

A newspaper should just try to report the news, fairly, with an impartial view.

So when we read about a drug testing program that has come to the front pages of a newspaper that really hasn't even been officially talked about, planned or proposed at this stage, we wonder the credibility of the rest of that newspaper that keeps trying to create controversy and thereby create news.

Especially since that newspaper has prided itself on being a self righteous entity.

That drug testing idea was just something that a former City Commissioner said would be a good idea for the future, just to show that the Commissioners were not afraid to be leaders and have such testing done.

That idea was brought up again by a current Commissioner who thinks it may be a good idea to have the City Commission be the first done, if such a program were to start.

Currently Boyne City has no program, but already the battle lines are being drawn between the city workers and the administration. It is a needless affair.

It's needless because the city has no program, and, even if they are planning on developing one in the future, they would work with all factions to see if it is needed.

Most administrators don't think there is a drug problem within the city staff. But if there is something, like an alcohol related problem, would rather work that out with the people involved.

Meanwhile, the offending newspaper is continuing to barrage the neighborhood with almost daily articles about the idea and who is for it or against it. Boyne City officials should chastise that newspaper as they are writing about an idea that has not been proposed, has not been developed, and has not been reviewed by the parties concerned, and definitely has not been approved.

Are you ready for the onslaught? The getting down to the real shopping for that elusive gift for your fourth cousins?

That is the way with Christmas. We seem to want to buy, but, but, but. And while we are buying up a storm, we are also spending tons of time decorating the house, buying Christmas trees, decorating them, and preparing a Christmas meal.

And while you are doing that, there are the open houses you can attend, the church affairs, the Community Christmas Basket helping, and, oh yes, the wrapping of all those presents you had to buy for the relatives, nephews, cousins and other members of the family.

I think this is one of the times of the year when many wish they could just go and hide out for a few weeks, just so they can get the work done that has to be done.

Others may just want to hide until it is over.

I am glad most of the Christmas shopping in our family is done. Done by the necessity of need. The kids already have their presents, they are hopefully using them to write term papers, or have warm outerwear.

Of course they seem to think that parents are able to just pick a few more dollars off the money tree to fill their whims. The only problem is that the money tree has been picked over too many times. Especially around these days prior to Christmas.

Sometimes I just wish that Christmas would turn back into Weather bulletin!

What are you worrying about? There's only 104 days left before spring. That's when the warm winds of March will shake every palm tree in Charlevoix county. Okay, maple tree.

End of weather bulletin.

I went down the other day and stood on the corner to see what was going on around town. A preacher friend stopped to ask if I was continuing to take his advice.

"Remember," he said, "you are supposed to hear no evil, see no evil or speak no evil."

After he left I figured I was wasting my time standing around here so I went back home.

I have let twelve years get away from me without using tobacco of any kind. The other day when I went by the store tobacco shelf to get that good smell I noticed how the price had doubled, tripled and flipped. That gave me an idea how I might make a little extra money without taking my hands out of my pockets.

I could contact a tobacco company and tell them that I was willing to rent the side of my house for a big painted advertisement: "Chew Peerless Tobacco."

I told this hot idea to my wife and she jumped nine feet, although our ceilings are only eight feet high.

"We may live in a barn," she said, "but in no way am I going to allow you to put a sign on it. If you want extra money you can shovel driveways or something."

No way! I am in the extra money business, not in the going to work business.

Back in the store again I picked up one of those tabloid scandal sheets while waiting for my wife to spend forty dollars on twenty dollars worth of groceries. I flipped through the paper and wow!

How it ranks my hackles when I read that a national celebrated high-binder's latest love is a beautiful all-American girl, free, white and pregnant.

High society folks drool over such stories. But not me. And I'm sure not you. Even if it happened here in our wonderful little hamlet,

I am sure you would be hard put to work up a decent froth. In fact, I find these high society stories so disgusting I have to sit right here and force myself to mention them.

This little piggy went to market; this little piggy stayed home; this little piggy had roast beef; this little piggy had none; and this little piggy cried, wee wee wee! all the way home. That's what happens when gas stations keep their restroom doors locked. (I wrote that a number of years ago, but I do not want my readers to forget what I wrote a number of years ago.)

I lied last week. I wrote that there were only four weeks left until Christmas. Actually there are only three weeks left before Christmas. Sorry about that.

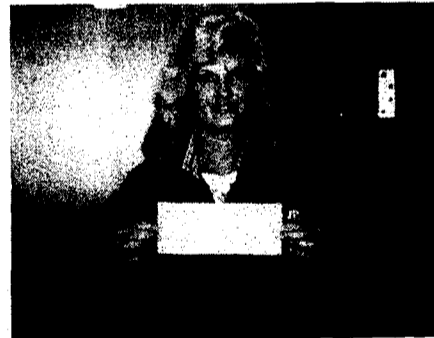

I found this column rather difficult to write. I have often wished that I had taken time out to get an education before I started using my head.

During the week of Thanksgiving, the East Jordan Elementary school had two visitors in the form of turkeys. Fourth grade teacher, Dennis Snarey, brought in his pets for the entire school to enjoy. This allowed the entire school to see what a real turkey looked like. The turkeys were kept in a fenced area outside Principal Don Peter's office. During the day, the turkeys and Mr. Peters were heard gobbling in conversation. At times there were over a hundred students and parents viewing the turkeys. Both turkeys are named Jason, after Mr. Snarey's son. Mr. Snarey explains that by naming both birds Jason, he knows which one is coming when he calls them.

YULE FOODS AND GIFTS

It seems that the Yule holidays really begin in the warmth of our family kitchens. This is an age-old tradition in most parts of the world. Gifts of food have always been prepared at this time of the year from the best of the Autumn's harvest. We are making cookies, candies and breads for our church bazaars and for our friends.

Before the Thanksgiving leftovers are eaten, we are thinking of the Christmas goodies and the preparations begin. Mother would be cracking the nuts and checking on the fruits for her Christmas cake. What better gifts to special persons on our list than something that we have prepared especially for them. Wrappings should be done with loving care in sparkling glass containers or home decorated baskets. How about delicious muffins in their colorful paper cups and toasted coconut banana bread?

Now, there are two ways to do your holiday baking; both are fun especially if you are having the right kind of help in the kitchen. First there are the people who really get a head start, they are organized, making a few things at a convenient time and have everything all made and wrapped a week or so before the big day. Then there are those of who wait until the last minute, the way my son-in-law, Don, and I did last Christmas; doing it all on a Saturday afternoon. This was fun, we worked like beavers, keeping everyone else out of the kitchen. However, I really do not recommend this method. You should have seen our kitchen—like a cyclone had struck it, and of course, we had to run to the store for last minute ingredients. Luckily, Don and I both have a sense of humor, which was badly needed at this point.

However, we made several different kinds of cookies all sampled and approved by my daughter, Gloria, and my sister, Margaret, who sneaked into the kitchen often to sample the goodies. Our chocolate cookies were deliciously chocolate made with the white chocolate bits and cocoa. We kept the oven busy; Don saying that next year he will have a double oven stove. He likes cooking this way.

PEARLS IN CHOCOLATE COOKIES

2 1/2 cups all purpose flour
2/3 cup baking cocoa
1 tsp. baking soda
1 tsp. salt
1 1/3 cup butter, softened
1 cup sugar
2/3 cup firmly packed brown sugar
2 eggs
1 (10 oz. pkg.) White Nestle Toll House Treasures

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. In bowl combine flour, cocoa, baking soda and salt; set aside. In another bowl beat butter, sugar, brown sugar, vanilla until creamy. Add eggs one at a time, beating well after each. Gradually add flour mixture. Stir in the white chocolate pieces. Drop by rounded tablespoonsful onto ungreased cookie sheets.

Bake 9 to 10 minutes. Allow to stand 2 minutes before removing from cookie sheets, cool completely. Makes about 2 1/2 doz. cookies.

These cookies were the favorites.

Now, I highly recommend that we prepare our "sweet successes" ahead of time. These muffins will keep in the freezer and are ready when needed. My friend, Amy Courtney, brought me a sample of her muffins, she made recently. I was delighted. They are rich, delicious, and not only that; they are good for us. Everyone in our town knows that Amy is a terrific cook. She is creative and is always adding something tasty to regular recipes.

AMY'S APPLESAUCE OAT MUFFINS

2 cups Cheerios cereal, crushed (makes about 1 cup)
1 1/2 cups flour
1/3 cup packed brown sugar
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
1 teaspoon baking powder
3/4 teaspoon baking soda
1 cup applesauce
1/2 cup skim milk
1/2 cup raisins
1/2 cup nutmeats
3 tablespoons vegetable oil
1 egg white

In a large bowl mix the above ingredients in the order given. Mix just until flour is absorbed. Bake in regular sized muffin pan about 15 minutes at 400 degrees or golden brown.

This is the way that Amy made these muffins: She used 1 cup finely chopped apples in place of the applesauce and used one whole egg plus the one egg white. She also added about 1 tablespoon of poppy seeds.

These muffins were delicious and will keep good. Freeze for the holidays.

If you make this sugar and spice popcorn ahead of time, it will be "all-gone" before the holidays. You can make some more using this easy recipe.

SUGAR AND SPICE RAISIN POPCORN

1/4 cup butter or margarine
1 tablespoon brown sugar
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon nutmeg
1 1/2 cups golden or natural raisins
3/4 cup walnuts
1/4 cup salted peanuts
8 cups unseasoned popped corn

In a small saucepan over low heat melt butter with sugar, cinnamon and nutmeg. In large bowl combine raisins and nuts. Toss with melted butter mixture. Add popped corn; toss to coat evenly.

Last but not least is a special banana bread; very good with a steaming cup of tea, coffee or cocoa, and so welcome on a cold winter's day.

TOASTED COCONUT BANANA BREAD

2 3/4 cups unsifted all-purpose flour
1 cup sugar
3 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
About 1 1/3 cups flaked coconut, toasted*
1 tablespoon grated orange rind
1 egg, well beaten
1 1/2 cups mashed ripe bananas (3 to 4 bananas)
1/2 cup milk

Sift flour with sugar, baking powder and salt; stir in toasted coconut and orange rind. Combine egg, bananas and milk; stir into flour mixture. (Do not beat)

Pour into greased 9 x 5" loaf pan. Bake at 350 degrees for one hour and ten minutes, or until cake tester inserted in center comes out clean. Cool in pan ten minutes; remove from pan and finish cooling on racks.

* Toasted coconut. Spread flaked coconut thinly in shallow baking pan. Toast at 350 degrees for 7 to 12 minutes, or until lightly browned. Stir coconut or shake pan often to toast evenly.

Happy baking!

Boyne Mountain opens new cross country ski center

Cross-country skiers who come to Boyne Mountain to try any of the resort's 50 kilometers of trails will appreciate the newly finished Boyne Nordic Cross Country Ski Center.

Boyne Mountain's cross-country trails all start at the Nordic center, which will also be a source for information, directions, lessons, equipment, trail tickets and refreshments.

Most of the trails will be groomed and tilled with a new Piston Bully snow cat that is outfitted with a power tiller and track setter. This new system will allow groomers to produce easy-to-ski trails in most weather conditions, including ice or powdery snow. A few kilometers will be left ungroomed for skiers who enjoy natural conditions.

Five kilometers of the set routes will be on the new Pancake Trail, a flat loop especially for first-time skiers, children and senior citizens. Other courses, like the five-kilometer Twister, will provide varying degrees of difficulty for advanced skiers who want to challenge their skills.

Permanent lighting has been installed on a 2.5 kilometer loop to provide more evenings of night skiing. Nordic skiers who choose to ski at night may also enjoy special night ski tours, hay rides, apres-ski picnics and wine and cheese parties.

Nordic skiers who travel to Boyne Highlands will find 28 kilometers of groomed trails. Some of the trails are accessible by downhill chair lifts and others begin near the lodge. Skiers can ask Boyne Highlands staff for information about trail lengths and difficulty.

For more information about Nordic skiing at Boyne Mountain, contact cross-country ski director Lou Awodey at 1-800-GO-BOYNE.

Police Department and the city administration recommended they buy through the state.

Burger Chevrolet of Grand Rapids won the state bid for this year, so the city will order the car through that firm. Chief John Talboys said that the car would probably be delivered sometime next March or April.

When asked what will be done for making Michigan schools "number one" in technology innovation.

Jason, a 12-year veteran of local school board duties, also serves on the board of directors of the Michigan Association of School Boards and chairs MSAB's ad hoc committee on educational technology.

A final report will be submitted to the legislature in February.

Also serving on the committee are representatives of higher education, business, industry and labor.

with the present vehicle this new car will replace, Talboys said it will continue service with the city as part of the administration's fleet of cars. The present car being used in the administration will then be sold to the highest bidder. The car that the city intends to sell will have about 120,000 miles on the chassis.

Talboys said that the police department keeps cars in service until they have about 90,000 miles on them. The department does not intend to replace any cars next year and this car was included in the city budget for this year.

Concerning the budget, the commissioners approved a resolution to adjust the present budget to more closely reflect some of the actual costs. The City Treasurer outlined some of the areas where the city has received additional revenues in some of the funds and has spent others allocated differently than in the present budget.

The city then approved allowing the consolidation of 14 city lots into one lot, all owned by the same person, so that a street could be closed.

The matter was asked by the developers of Hawkridge, a development of the Hawkins Development Inc. on land they own on the north side of town. The project calls for a group of condominiums to be built on the almost five acres of property within the city.

The street was approved for vacation several months ago, but according to Sally Hawkins, the State Attorney General wanted to have the street left open to allow for possible sale of lots. The State did not want to allow the street to be closed and to land-lock the lots. With the one parcel okay, the street will be allowed to be closed.

She said the project is underway and construction of the first units will start in the spring. Presently, the land is being cleared and surveyed.

Head of the Boyne City Ambulance Department, Henry Erber, showed the Commissioners the new Heart-Start machine the Boyne City Ambulance Crew presently purchased. Erber said the unit went into service last Thursday and was used on a run Friday.

He also said the crew is working to purchase a second unit and is about $2,000 short of being able to buy it. The second unit will differ slightly from the primary unit and is about $2,000 cheaper. It would be placed in the ambulance that is used for back-up.

State lists new toxic sites in county

Eight new sites where toxins may exist were added to the Department of Natural Resources list for toxic sites in Charlevoix County in a state-wide list of problem areas within the state.

The sites within the county included the Boyne Falls Park where underground gasoline is floating above the groundwater and has pooled in the area; Wickes Manufacturing, East Jordan, where an underground storage tank possibly leaked contaminants into the soil; a truck accident that caused spillage of diesel fuel by Ironton; Dockside Market in Charlevoix with an underground tank; Charlevoix Area Hospital, also an underground storage tank; Site Planning Development, Inc. an underground storage tank; the U.S. Coast Guard Station in Charlevoix with several contaminants listed; and the Horton Bay General Store, underground storage tank.

Most of the new sites are listed because of rule changes in the underground storage systems gas stations and other places use or have used.

The list is done annually by the DNR and is part of a preliminary study that will be changed after public comment is received. Some of the sites have been cleaned up or the process is underway.

Totally, the statewide list contains 2,687 sites where contamination has been found. Almost 900 sites are of the variety of underground storage tanks that have been found leaking.

The list is divided into two ranked on the relative importance of the toxins found and their risk to human health. All of the sites added to the list in Charlevoix County are part of the list one, but are group two, meaning a lesser risk.

Many other sites are still on the list, such as a sludge bed of the former Howe Leather Company in Boyne City, but those will probably be removed from the list after submission of proof that the problems have been corrected.

Employees to look for signs of dehydration

Employee education is vital so that workers are aware of the need to replace fluids and salt lost through sweat and can recognize dehydration, exhaustion, fainting, heat cramps, salt deficiency, heat exhaustion and heat stroke as heat disorders. Workers should also be informed of the importance of daily weighing before and after work to avoid dehydration.

Midener exhibit at McCune Art Center has family flair

The works of four members of a prominent Michigan art family will be featured in a one month display of sculpture, painting, dolls, fantasy boxes and collages at the McCune Art Center in Petoskey opening December 19.

The artists are Walter and Peggy Midener of East Jordan, daughter Wendy Midener Froud and son-in-law Brian Froud of Chagford Devon, England, who provide an international flair to this promising multifaceted art show sponsored by the Crooked Tree Arts Council.

The Mideners are well-known leaders in the Michigan art community and their work is featured in many leading national public and private art collections as well as overseas.

Sculptor Walter Midener, a practicing artist for nearly sixty years, is also widely known as a teacher and for his leading role in the development of the Center for Creative Studies in Detroit.

Born in Liegnitz, Germany and a graduate of the Berlin Academy of Fine and Applied Arts, Midener fled the oppression of Hitler in 1936 to teach wood and stone carving at the Henry Street Settlement in New York City where he also started free lance work in sculpture. He enlisted in the U.S. Army landing in Normandy on D Day, serving throughout the war in Europe and was decorated with both the Silver and Bronze Star and Purple Heart.

After the war Midener joined the faculty of the Art School of the Society of Arts and Crafts in Detroit in 1946 as head of the Sculpture Department and commenced an association that continued over 30 years. He eventually became President and was instrumental in the organization's development into the Center for Creative Studies, an accredited fine arts degree-awarding school. Meantime his work became featured in numerous collections, not only in the midwest, but the Whitney and Metropolitan Museum in New York City.

Peggy Midener, a professional painter also creates whimsical, fantasy boxes. She graduated from the Art School of the Society of Arts and Crafts in Detroit and later was a senior instructor of the painting department and also served as head of children's instruction for many years.

Her work has been widely exhibited in the midwest and honored in many competitions. It is part of the collections of the Detroit Institute of Art as well as private collections including those of Walter B. Ford and Wendell Anderson of Detroit. Her grandfather, W. Asa Loveday, started an opera house in East Jordan early in this century.

The Mideners summered in East Jordan for many years after their marriage in 1947 and retired there in 1979 where they now enjoy a residence with a studio which overlooks Lake Charlevoix and a sculpture garden.

Wendy Midener Froud, an Interlochen Academy graduate, studied fabric design and ceramics at the Center for Creative Studies in Detroit where her parents were faculty members. A lifetime interest in making dolls to fit the images of stories she read led to a professional career as a doll artist and sculptor for film and television when her work was discovered by Muppet creator Jim Hensen. He hired her to help make creatures for his film "The Dark Crystal". She then sculpted prototypes for the Star Wars films and her dolls are included in collections throughout the U.S. and the U.K.

Brian Froud, a noted English book illustrator and film designer met Wendy while they were both working on "The Dark Crystal" where he was a conceptual designer for the movie. They also worked on the film "Labyrinth". A new film featuring Brian's work, "Little Nemo" is soon to be released. His work is included in collections throughout the U.S., England and Japan. Brian is co-author and illustrator of a best seller and recently published book entitled "Faeries".

The Frouds son Toby, now five years old appeared in the film "Labyrinth" at the age of one.

Featured in the Midener exhibit at McCune will be wood carvings, metal sculpture and terra cottas by Walter Midener, a series of collages based upon Victorian engravings entitled "A Child's Book of Admonitions", fantasy boxes and selected paintings by Peggy. Wendy's work will be a series of fantasy dolls. Brian will display a series of drawings and paintings.

Works on display will be for sale.

The general public is invited by the Crooked Tree Arts Council to meet the Mideners at a reception and exhibit opening from 5 until 7 p.m. Tuesday, December 19 at McCune Arts Center 461 East Mitchell Street, Petoskey.

Alias: stachel schwein

BY REG SHARKEY

When I first saw the little fellow he was a prickly black ball sleeping in the tall dead grass of summer.

On a buck spotting foray the day before deer season I had failed to carry my little pocket-sized camera.

Mentally kicking myself in the keister I hoofed it back to my pickup and drove home, hoping the little porcupine would continue his mid-morning siesta.

For once I was in luck for the little stachel schwein—that's what my German grandma called them—was still in dreamland.

Approaching the sleeper I took a picture, then woke him up.

Instantly he flipped his backside towards me, quilled tail flailing the air: a silent warning, "stay away!"

No matter how hard I tried to get a head-on shot he kept his armed backside towards me.

Now that hand-me-down story that porkies throw their quills is partially right, for in the process of flipping his tail a couple of the spines were propelled a short distance in my direction.

I doubt if one of the quills struck me it would have penetrated flesh, or even stuck in my clothing. So lay that bit of ancient lore to rest. Porkies aren't natural born archers.

Wouldn't you know it? After a couple of frames the film advance lever said, "no more!"

I wanted more pictures and the little porky wanted no more of my attention, taking off for the tall timber. So the only solution was to catch him and take him home, reload my camera, then attempt to get the pictures I wanted.

But now the conundrum. How to get him in some kind of a container. Luckily I had a grain bag in the back of my pickup.

Hoping I would be able to locate the now traveling porky I made tracks for the pickup, got the bag and ran back to where I had left him, and he was gone. Casting in ever widening circles I located the little fellow making tracks in a waddling, pigeon-toed shuffle towards a woodlot.

Catching up to him he stopped and "presented arms," bristly backside towards me.

Now the question. How to get the little critter in the bag without getting harpooned by the thrashing tail.

Getting the bag near the complaining porky, I held it open, pulled the sleeve of my hunting coat over my hand and with one swift sweep propelled him into the bag. And then he began a baby-like crying. Dang!

Well, anyhow, I drove home, let the crier out in a fenced area, maneuvered him around like a lion tamer working spitting cats, took the pictures I wanted. Then back in the bag and transport back to a likely woodlot complete with a large hollow, porcupine-occupied beech tree. Releasing him in the hollow near the ground, complete with a mountain of porky pellets, the little bugger felt at home, and as I left he peeked out at me, and I swear I heard him say, "Good rideance of that two-legged varmint."

Registration Sat. for AAU girls' basketball

Girl basketball players from all over Michigan's Northern Lower Peninsula and Upper Peninsula will participate in Amateur Athletic Union basketball this winter.

Northern Michigan traveling teams will compete with other AAU teams from around the state.

Registration is Saturday, December 9, 1989 at the Gaylord High School gym. Girls age 11 through 18 should bring a copy of their birth certificate and a recent photograph. Registration fee is $25.00.

Coaches and others interested in helping with this program should attend registration. For more information, phone AAU Northern Region Director, Jere Krajniak in Gaylord (517)732-7732.

Showing the business side of a porcupine was a little tough on Sharkey as he ran out of film, had to bag the little critter, and bring him home for a good meal and a new place to live. Sharkey found out that while porcupines don't really throw their quills, some do shake out of the tail when the little porky swings it around to defend itself.

Health problem? Renew license early

Secretary of State Richard H. Austin is urging drivers who have a health problem that could affect their ability to drive, to begin the process of renewing their driver license early. A new procedure, designed to assure a more thorough driver review, may delay their renewal by up to two weeks.

Under the new procedure which is now in effect, the Secretary of State will continue requiring driver license applicants with medical or physical conditions that could affect their ability to drive safely, to submit a Request for Physician's Statement of Examination form (DI-4P). The forms are available at any Secretary of State branch office. The new procedure makes application of medical and physical standards more consistent throughout the state. To assure consistency, the form has been changed to request more explicit information from physicians regarding the applicant's medical condition and its possible effects on safe driving.

Under the new procedure, applicants who must submit the physician's form will have a notation placed on their driver record stating the form is required. Once a physician completes the form, it must be sent to Lansing where it will be reviewed by the Bureau of Driver Improvement staff.

Drivers will receive a written notice from the Secretary of State informing them that their license will be renewed, renewed with restrictions, or denied. That information will also be placed on file so when applicants appear at the branch office to renew, the renewal will be processed without delay.

Before these steps were added, applicants could circumvent the process by going to another branch office where staff would be unaware that the physician's statement had been requested. In cases where a physician statement was submitted, evaluation and review was completed by the branch office staff.

While a trained and experienced staff will review all physician See License/Page 6
