Bac-Pac group to declare war on drugs, alcohol

A group of Boyne City's leading citizens met Monday night at a forum held by Bac-Pac and decided the group would try to declare war on the alcohol related issues that are infecting the children of the community.

The group heard from four members of the court system, the schools and the police agencies who explained and told of some of the problems they are dealing with when working in the juvenile area.

Laurie Howell of the District Court office said that out of her caseload of 250 people, about 25 percent were female, and about half were between the ages of 17 and 30. She added that in almost the reason the individuals are now part of the court system and under the guidance of the court.

She said that most of the young people are very open as to how much they drink, when they got started drinking or using drugs, and, in many cases is a problem of degrees of abuse related involvement rather than just involvement.

She said what was needed was to have more community involvement so three basic questions could be answered as to how the alcohol or drugs were introduced to the individual, what was their lifestyle at home or work or school, and how they could change and get away from the problem.

She said kids process alcohol differently than adults, and that women also process alcohol differently than men.

In this area, she said that most children start learning about drinking alcohol when they are about 10 to 12 years old and become regular users of alcohol by the time they are 14.

She then added that some of the youths are receptive to help, but if the entire community could become involved with support, it would make her job much easier.

It was a gas of a Sno-Blast

There were activities for the youngsters, oldsters, and everybody in between at the East Jordan Sno-Blast '90 last weekend. If you sat around in the house, you missed out on some great times, said participants of the many activities.

Over 500 people did come out into the cold weather to watch, be involved with and just have fun during the weekend as events took place all over the East Jordan area involving snowmobiles and other ac-

The town was buzzing with snowmobiles trying to make it from one event to another. Many entered the annual Radar Run so they could get the bragging rights to having the fastest machine on the ice. While the snowmobile events were taking place on the lake, eight broomball teams were competing to take the city-wide honors for the festival. The event was won by the Boyne City Broombeaters, while second place went to Northport.

One new event for the Blast was the bowling on the snow packed alleys next to the East Jordan Tourist Park Pavilion. Bowlers had to finish out the last three frames of a game. Taking the top prize for the 12 and under division was Keith Rebec. Winning the 13-17 age class was Steve Lewin and taking the 18 and over class was Donna Lehto. All are from East Jordan.

Some very confusing problems are beginning to develop in Bay Township with its recently enacted noise ordinance. At the January 11, 1989 meeting, near the conclusion, Supervisor Chipman made a motion to pursue more complaints regarding the Gebauer situation. He (Chipman) stated to board he received a letter from the township attorney requesting the board to file more complaints against Mr. Gebauer. This motion was carried with 3 ayes and one no

I asked at this same meeting why the public hearing, that was voted on and approved, and never held. The answer I received was, to me, shocking. Supervisor Chipman told the audience the noise ordinance was enacted lawfully, and the general public needn't worry as it would be the board who would be responsible for issuing citations.

The following day these events began to preoccupy me, so I made a phone call to one of the board members. I questioned him on the letter that Mr. Chipman referred to the previous night. His reply was that he hadn't read the letter and Mr. Chipman would have to be contacted to verify its contents. This I have done and I believe the public will be very disappointed. This phone call to Mr. Chipman

I would like to commend Kris Swanguarin of the Petoskey News Review for his "Running Commentary" on Oct. 12 and 26, 1989 concerning sled dogs and noise ordinances. I believe he assessed the situation in Bay Township accurately - bad ordinance, poor neighbors, a hasty decision by planning commission and township board that will affect much more than barking dogs. It has created bad feelings and relationships that will take many years to heal. No one can assess the damage it has done. Hopefully, no one will be physically hurt before this issue is

A new idea, or rather, an old one upgraded from folklore, can calm you down or brighten you up and could even help curb violence, providing the method for accomplishing the latter can be worked out. In any case, those who are into it smell good as well as feel good, which explains why it's called aromatherapy.

For many years, there've been those who believed that odors affect mood, but only recently have scientists considered it, studied it and pronounced it valid.

Dr. Susan Schiffman, professor of medical psychology at Duke University, is one who's researched smells. She's discovered that certain odors make drivers more alert. She also believes that some smells can make people less aggressive and figures that violence in places like subways could be cut down if an appropriate scent could be pumped into the system.

Mood modifying scents sprayed in the air is only a part of aromatherapy, however. Candles, shampoos, detergents, household cleaners, bath oil and perfumes are sold to help people feel perky or help take the lumps out of their Purists claim that only products made from plants and not those synthetically manufactured are effective. Eugene P. Grisanti, chairman and president of International Flavors and Fragrances, Inc., says that both are chemical compounds, so it matters not whether people or plants produce them. Dr. Shiffman agrees.

Since the majority of aromatherapy users take their scents either in a massage or in a hot bath, both of which make people feel good, some argue that the scents are unnecessary. Dr. Susan Knasko, an environmental psychologist at Monell Chemical Senses Center, replies:

I sure am looking forward to all that work. I'll probably be cleaning it up until three or four a.m. some night as the job will get pressed on to completion by the boss.

The weasel is an assassin supreme

BY REG SHARKEY

The demon of the outback; the scourge of every critter from mice to rabbits and, yes, even poultry, visited our domain the other mor-

When first sighted by my wife the bloodthirsty little vampire was heading down a big maple near the

Evidently he had been in pursuit of red squirrels that frequent the environs of our homestead.

Wrapped in a snow-white coat with a black-tipped tail the 9-inch, 21/2 ounce least weasel is a fierce competitor, taking on much larger prey, and has even been know to take on man standing in the way of its intended target:

Well, anyhow, as I watched the beady-eyed little devil streak for a plastic-draped stack of deck lumber, probably looking for mice, I grabbed the camera, put on a telephoto lens, slipped on my boots and hied myself out to the arena of Patience is not one of my outstanding virtues, but I was encouraged by an occasional blip of action as the little assassin worked the stickered lumber, evidently looking for white-footed mice. With the camera cocked and switched to automatic focus I was ready to shoot the little blighter when he emerged. And that he finally did. Popping out from beneath the decked lumber he gave me the once-over, his beady black eyes fixed in his white visage, outlined by the black plastic. And I shot a couple of frames, then he was back in the stacked lumber. I could hear him working every layer, and I hoped that he would emerge and expose his full length long enough to get a full body shot.

Camera cocked and ready to go I waited. Not knowing just where he would exit I realized that it would be pure luck if I could shoot him full length.

Just about the time my arms were getting tired from holding the camera at eye level he popped out and streaked for a brush pile. Did I get a shot at the little streaker? Silly question. Did you Least weasels are found from Hudson Bay to Alaska and south to Pennsylvania and Montana. They inhabit just about any type of terrain, be it manicured lawns, woodlands, or swamps, just about anywhere there are mice, their staple. But the bloodthirsty little demons will take on much bigger prey. Once they fasten onto their prey, biting through the neck at the base of the skull, they hang on drinking the blood of their victim. Then it fills up on meat, bone and viscera. When in the excitement of the kill not even man can deter them from completing their mission.

My sister, a farm woman, had an unforgettable experience some years ago when a little killer visited a brooder house full of six week old chicks. Hearing a commotion in the brooder house she armed herself with a broom and sallied forth to do battle with whatever was molesting the chicks. Opening the door of the brooder she beheld least weasel in brown summer coat latched onto one of the chicks. Making a swipewith the broom she only smacked the chick and before she could recover for another try at the raider it had latched onto another chick. This went on until the little fiend had had his fill of blood and excitement for the time being, leaving the arena of action and a half dozen dead chicks.

And the little blighter came back a few nights later for another round of blood letting. Only this fime he ran afoul of a trap that ended his career as nature's most efficient killing machine.

Thank God this little critter isn't the size of a German Shepard. If they were a magnum calibered sidearm would be a comfort every time you sallied forth from your abode.

But be not too harsh in your judgement of this little dynamo for he is a mouser supreme for that is his place in nature's overall scheme of checks and balances.

being done. He said that it is more than just a drug problem. He told about a spinoff effect of a case of and enterings breaking throughout the county. When the people were arrested, they told the officers they were doing the crimes to get money to buy drugs and alcohol. He then gave a short review of the grand jury that the county used to apprehend drug pushers and users saying that they figured if they could arrest 10 to 12 people they would be pleased. When the cases were brought forth, the department came up with 49 people indited. All but three have been arrested and are going through the court system.

Lasater did have praise for some of the programs that have been instituted within the county, like the D.A.R.E. program that the department thinks is helping to make children more aware of the alcohol and drug problem.

Another program he was pleased with was the sending out of letters to parents of children caught at places where drinking was a problem. He said that his department has sent out over 250 letters concerning the youthful drinking. He expressed some disappointment that he has only received two letters back to his office expressing some positive

Then too, if you learn to associate the scent in your massage or bath with feeling good, whenever, wherever you smell that, your spirits rise. So you could carry a little bit of it in your pocket and when tough times came along, all you'd have to do is open it, take a sniff or two and it would help you muddle through.

Aromatherapy sounds like a fine idea and right for this driven, depression prone age. It would be a boon if it could cut down on violence too, and nice smells to cheer up and calm down aggressive people is worth a try.

As for those living in cloud shrouded states, the most needed scent - one that recalls the soulsatisfying feeling of sunshiny days - hasn't been offered.

Perhaps someday it will be though, and if it is, it's a good bet that a Michiganian will develop it.

hearing was never held. I also feel the county sheriff and animal control officer have chosen sides in this issue. It appears they take complaints from one side and tell the others not to call in any complaints. This issue has given them bad publicity.

I resent having my property tax dollars being used to prosecute this ordinance. I would urge the township board to repeal the noise ordinance, and work for a more neighborly solution, to unite the people of Bay Township.

I also resent having to pay for making the Bay Township cemetery a "showplace" as some officials choose to call it. I feel $896.70 to plant a berm, a $721.80 sign, about $3,000 for a tool shed, site planning, plus much more is out of line for a rural cemetery.

After the presentations were made, the group resolved to dedicate itself towards becoming a drug free community. They are planning another meeting and hope to have all sectors of the community present so they can get involved and help fight the abuse problems of the area.

Boyne City school in Citizen Bee competition

Boyne City High School studen ts will have the opportunity to participate in a unique social studies academic competition which could lead to a scholarship and a study trip to Washington, D.C. in June 1990. The school has registered to participate in the Close Up Foundation Citizen Bee.

The Citizen Bee is an academic competition that focuses on social studies and progresses through school, regional, and state events. Three Boyne City students will advance to regional competitions with top students there going to the state finals.

State winners earn a trip to Washington to participate in the Foundation's government studies program and the national competition. Winners of the national event receive college scholarships of $7,000, $5,000 and $3,000. The national Citizen Bee is funded by the Milken Family Foundation and Burger King Corporation, with additional support from KPMG Peat Marwick; RJR Nabisco, Inc.; and Kraft General Foods. JANUARY 16, 1990 - 12:00 noon: A 5-year Capital Improvement Program was introduced by the City Manager and tentatively approved by the Commission. It can be changed to fit the needs of the community and this year's program will not be officially adopted until the new budget year.

A Public Hearing was held to split a lot at the request of Mr. Peter Donlin. The split was approved as recommended by the Planning Board.

A set of rules and regulations for Avalanche Mountain Preserve, Warming Shelter and Ice Rink were approved. Copies of these rules and regulations will be supplied to school children to take home to their parents.

The City Commission gave an approval to sign a marina expansion and boat slip agreement with Northern Associates, Inc. They will install new boat slips at the marina at their expense in exchange for the Peninsula boat slips for which the City has exclusive rights.

A conceptual plan for a new zoned district known as a Waterfront Residential District was presented by Commissioner Stanley. The plan will be presented in full at the next Planning Board meeting.

Cebert Gillespie was present to express his feelings concerning reimbursement from the City for his investments in a former business.

WEEKLY MEETING, JANUARY 23, 1990 - 12:00 noon:

Consideration was given to purchasing identification decals for the North Boyne Launch Ramp indicating seasonal or daily nonresident fees being paid.

It was suggested that, in addition to fee decals, that a "Recreational Decal" be sold for $10 to cover the City's recreational facilities with revenues to be used to make recreational improvements. The Commissioners did not feel this type of fee is appropriate at

The printing costs were felt to be prohibitive. Commissioner Ruggles suggested that, instead of decals, one color printing be made on two colors of a better quality paper stock. This suggestion will be investigated.

City Manager Frykberg advised that the Loaner Skate Program at the Avalanche Ice Rink is going very well but more skates are needed and requested donations.
