Other politicians at the head table included candidate for Mitch Irwin's senate seat, Ken Kearney, John Haggard, County Chairman, Patterson, Congressman Bob Davis, and State Representative Ralph Ostling. About 100 people attended the Lincoln Day Dinner celebration sponsored by the County Republican Party.

Boyerne City hires new auditor, saves thousands

Boyerne City will have a new auditing firm after action was taken at the Tuesday noon meeting of the City Commission.

The commissioners agreed to hire the firm of Rehmann, Robson and Company of Cheboygan after receiving bids for the city audit from eight firms within the state.

The bid process required the firms to submit answers to questions which were then graded on a weighted scale. The many factors used, like price and other requirements such as computer experience brought the firm to the top of the list.

The bid for the work will cost the city $37,500 over the next three years, a savings of about $2,000 per year over the firm presently doing the work.

The firm will replace the Petoskey firm of Hill, Woodcock and Schroderus which has served the city for the past few years. They ended up being tied for second place with another firm out of Traverse City.

The two items that caused Rehmann-Robson to win the bid were that they would be using all Certified Public Accountants on the job and have a good amount of computer experience that could help the city. They were not the low bidder for the job as that was one by a firm with no governmental experience. The difference between the low bid and what the city will be paying the new firm is about $1,500 over the three year period. It was recommended by the city officers that the firm should have experience in the work they were asked to perform.

According to Carolyn Olsen, City Treasurer, the new firm will provide some fresh insight that could be helpful as the city continues to computerize the books.

The city commissioners also agreed to lift the moratorium on tax abatements for some of the buildings in downtown Boyerne City.

The action was asked by the City planning board who thought that by lifting the moratorium it would help the downtown stores find and keep tenants.

Some of the sales of property in the downtown area are contingent on the transferring of the abatements.

According to City Manager Randy Frykberg there are no new abatements allowed by the state at this time and the remaining years of the present abatements are very short. The maximum abatement given out was for ten years and most have less than five years remaining in which only the improvements they have made to the property concerned is given an abatement.

The commissioners then gave a 25 year service award to Kenneth Howard for his work as a Boyerne City Police Department dispatcher. The award was given to Howard by Police Chief John Talboys.

Residents hoping to get property taxes reduced

Some Boyerne City residents are ready to go in front of the Board of Review next week after getting their latest assessment updates from the City of Boyerne City. The city offices have forms ready and waiting for those wishing to contend with what they were told the property is worth.

The assessors, in Boyerne City's case, the county assessing department, has again targeted Ward

Four with the biggest increase in assessments with the district being raised about 6 percent overall. Some properties within the district will be higher, percentage-wise while some will be lower.

This is the second year in a row that residential assessments have been raised within the district, almost all due to housing sales that reflect the worth of the property.

News Briefs

A bill that would expand the Homestead Property Tax Credit was recently introduced into the state house which would provide homeowners and renters with about $349 million in property tax relief. The bill increases from 60 to 75 percent the amount of property tax exceeding 3.5 percent of income that is eligible for the credit. The bill would also raise the maximum credit from $1,200 to $2,600 annually and increases the rent portion used in the credit calculations from 17 to 20 percent.

Food Facts and Fiction will be a talk given March 8 at 7 p.m. at the East Jordan Family Health Center as part of the National Nutrition Month.

The Michigan United Way, in conjunction with the Emergency Food and Shelter National Board, has awarded Charlevoix County $15,284.09 to supplement food pantries. Specifically, Boyerne City's Community Service Center was given $2,903.98; East Jordan's Care and Share Program was given $3,973.86; while in Charlevoix the Charlevoix Community Food Pantry was given $3,973.86; and the County Department of Social Services was given $3,821.03.

Forms for Boards of Review are available from City and Township offices for those wishing to contest their property taxes. The boards all start next week.

Hi-jinks at Horton Bay

This participant tried to set a new world record with his attempt at Horton Bay's almost world famous luge run. He was pulling himself back to the finish line after escaping a red hole, picking up an American flag and sliding through the pathway.

The form of a world class fish tosser shows that he was in prime condition for the event. His toes was close to a world record for the event. He showed that even he was a better tosser than the guest appearance of Ivana Trump who disgustingly threw a package a caviar rather than a fish.

This little participant discovered a unique way of trying to knock down the bowling pins as he made his attempt. The youngster found he could not lift and hold the bowling ball, so he made do as well as he could with his father urging him on.

Perhaps this wall isn't as famous as the Berlin Wall, but it was finally torn down at the end of the Horton Bay Winter Games.

Reflecting on current issues

Editor:
 Tonight I've been reflecting on some of the issues that have been brought to the public's attention the last few weeks. The first and predominant issue is that of Bay Township's anti-noise ordinance, the Petoskey News Review has given me the impression that this is a feud between Lyle Barkley and Allie "Bud" Chipman. This is, as far as I'm concerned, not true. The recall of Mr. Chipman stems from the initial conception of the noise ordinance, the same ordinance that in Sept. a motion was made and passed to have a public hearing on. This public hearing to date still has not been held, yet some of the board members maintain a majority of people favor this ordinance. If this is the case why hasn't the board held a hearing, or better still a public vote to determine if a majority want this ordinance? To me the two primary reasons for moving into an agricultural zoned area are to avoid the congestion of an urban setting, the other to farm.

To many the word farm brings to mind the setting of cows grazing peacefully in a pasture, stop at a farm sometime when calves are being separated from their mothers, believe me it's not the peaceful, serene setting depicted in many storybooks.

I'm not trying to give anyone the impression that farms are the only source in the world for noise, the fact remains that a farm operation generates noise. This noise is turned literally into your bread and butter. To say anyone is exempt from a noise ordinance while being protected under the right to farm act then to say you are being prosecuted because you are working in your personal garden is totally asinine! I could go on at length about this noise ordinance, just remember the next time you're mowing your lawn, what if your neighbor had a real grudge against you.

The next issue I've thought about is the rail line between Petoskey and Charlevoix. It takes a real genius to figure out that the fuel and spent fuel generated at Big Rock Nuclear Power plant is much, much safer being transported by road than it ever would by rail.

Why, eventually we won't need license plates people can just follow our glow.

Last but not least is Emmet county's solid waste plan. The people in Charlevoix County are too misinformed to know the first thing to do in adopting a solid waste plan is you have to hire someone to tell you that you indeed do have waste.

The next step is to hire someone to tell you that you can recycle a small percentage of your waste with a very LARGE cost.

The third and final step is find a newspaper that reports only what the established government wants, to do otherwise would mean people would know what's going on thereby costing the established government votes, bad paper, bad, bad paper.

The basis of this whole editorial is that many of our local issues are being reported on by the Petoskey News Review, and as far as I'm concerned they won't dig into a story to find the truth nor do they have the guts to print the truth!

Back when the roads were being developed around the county, the wagon trails and two track pathways were slowly turned into roadways with the addition of gravel and clay. After the materials were spread, this Case steam tractor pulled a huge roller to compress the gravel to make a semi-hard surface. The new road improved transportation around the area so that a road trip to Charlevoix and return in one day was possible.

Hospice says thank-yous

Editor,
 The Charlevoix County Hospice, Inc. appreciates having this opportunity to be able to thank publicly Northwestern State Bank, their very dedicated employees, the merchants who donated prizes, the very talented people who dressed dolls, made toys and crafts, and all the wonderful people who bid and bought these dolls, toys and crafts for another successful Silent Doll/Craft/Toy Auction. Because of this joint effort, Northwestern State Bank presented hospice with $2,637.07! This is the seventh year the bank has had this fundraiser for hospice - and each year it gets better, if that is possible. The first year they raised $200 - you can see how it has grown!

First, I would like to thank the ladies in charge—Jeannette Avery, Rhea Carpenter, Donna Drenth, Sylvia Hebden, Joan Lemerand, Dorinda Piechocki, Laurene Telgenhof and Harriet Urman. They put much time and effort into this fundraiser.

Next, I want to thank the individuals who dressed the dolls and made the crafts and toys—Barbara Adams, Arletta Anderson, Norvieta Anderson, Jeannette Avery, Cat Bartreau, Jackie Bates, Iris Beebe, Alma Boone, Sue Breidenstein, Ellen Brouwer, Phyllis Burgener, Marilyn Cary, Anna Clever, Sally Clute, Hazel Colburn, Sandra Dean, Della Dixon, Thurleen Eaton, Carrie Edson, Lyzette Evans, Versa Fineout, Melva Fisher, Nancy Flood, Barbara Foster, Kathy Fuller, Sandra Gilmore, Ester Golf, Glenna Haney, Sylvia Haselhuhn, Janice

BY JIM SILBAR
 OHMIGOD! Another bastion of our society is hitting the dust. It seems that legal-sized paper is on the way out according to a news release.

What are the lawyers of the state going to do without having a special type of paper to put into the word processors?

And what are the file cabinet makers of the world going to do as they end up losing marketshare because they are still offering something that no-one wants to purchase?

It seems that the courts don't care, they are the ones who decreed that legal-sized paper is out.

With just a little decree, the courts have closed down an entire industry. The paper companies will be running close-out sales to get rid of available inventory they have built up over the years, the landfills will get a little fuller because the companies that use the legal size will be throwing it out, and during the whole process of the changeover, more workers will be displaced from their jobs and adding to the roles over at some social services office.

I don't think the legal beagles really took a good look at their action, they only saw it as a way of saving a few dollars on the cost of paper.

Myself, I think everyone should require the lawyers, and the courts to accept whatever is written, on anything. And if they don't, then the price of lawyering and courting should be reduced by the same percentage as the cost of the paper.

I also think that since the lawyers and the court officers don't have to read as much material per page, then we ought to force them to take a similar reduction in their pay scales.

After all, everybody thinks lawyers and judges make too much money for what they do. At least the general public thinks that. I am sure you would get a different answer from a judge or a lawyer who may just be trying to protect what income they have.

If the judges on the state level can just make a decree and the word becomes the rule, maybe we could get that same decree expanded into the use of wide computer paper, maps and the like.

We all need a little something to hang our hats on, and that project of getting things reduced to 8 1/2 by 11 inches seems to be a good place to start.

One of the hot topics of the day is the physical and mental power of older persons, older being defined as over 60, or 50, or 40, depending on the point of view, which is somewhat dependent on the age of those discussing it. In any case, current research shows that those formerly considered over the hill can still climb. While this reassures most folks, some oldsters view it as a mixed bag.

The focus on older people is due to there being so many of them now plus the knowledge that their numbers will surge shortly, the first wave of baby boomers having turned 40. This population bulge, whose members aren't much for sitting down and shutting up, are emoting in person and print about how 40 feels. They're also worrying aloud about what lies ahead having decided that even they, with their alfalfa and aerobics, can't avoid getting old, short of the less inviting alternative that is.

The latest research reveals that the former theories about the aging mind underestimated it. While older people have to work harder than the young to remember things short term, they can if they concentrate on it.

This may or may not come as new news to oldsters, but for some, publicizing it is not good news. Their forgetfulness has been forgiven, or tolerated at least, on the grounds that they simply can't help it.

Now that this theory has been revised, they have to start paying better attention. No more can they just shrug at the times when they stride purposefully toward another room, forget they they came once they arrive, make a few token gestures such as rearranging pencils or perfume bottles or opening and closing cupboard doors and then nonchalantly amble back to where they started.

Now they'll feel obliged to stay in the other room, try to remember their mission, which they doubt they'll be able to since experience shows that this kind of thing only comes to mind in the middle of the night.

Also, the new theories on their mental ability knocks out one of their favorite pastimes, one they counted on, waited on for years—the right to say exactly what they think on any subject, and get away with it. Now that it's assumed that they're well aware of

East Jordan Middle School holds Quest Seminar

Sharon MacJennett and Kay Holley, East Jordan Middle School's Quest teachers, held a seminar meeting to introduce parents of 7th and 8th graders to their school program. Quest is a required class for all seventh grade students.

The parents participated in activities that their students actually participated in during their Quest classes. These activities gave the parents an overview of the materials and activities covered in class.

Quest began as a "skills for living" class geared for high school students. The East Jordan Middle School Quest class is geared for middle school students and is also called "Skills for Adolescents." The East Jordan Lions Club provided the monetary means to train the teachers and sponsored the program by buying the necessary equipment.

The first seminar focused on building self confidence skills. The second seminar dealt with ideas for parents on how to maintain discipline and establish good communication with their children. The final seminar, scheduled for Wednesday, March 14, will begin at 6:30 p.m. in the East Jordan Middle School Media Center and will deal with "Talking to Your Teen About Drugs." All parents are welcome and encouraged to attend.

Other increases were noted in the commercial area as well, with those being increased an average of about three percent.

As usual, lakefront homes were raised the most in the residential area as the price of lakefront living keeps going up.

For those wanting to add to the list of property owners wanting to appear in front of the Board of Review, the procedure is to get a form from the city office, and then wait until the board can hear your case. They will be meeting Monday, March 12 from 9 a.m. to noon, then 1 p.m. until 4 p.m. Tuesday they will meet starting at noon to 3 p.m. and then again at night, 6 p.m. until 9 p.m.

If more people show up than there is time allotted for, those not heard will be invited to come back to another session on Wednesday. That day is usually utilized to finalize the actions of the board on the properties concerned.

The Board of Review is the first step a property owner can take to try to get his property taxes lowered. Those appearing will be asked to provide to the board what they think the current property value of their property is and on what criteria that estimate is based.

If the property owner is not satisfied by the board, they then may appeal the decision to the State Tax Tribunal for further consideration.

what they're saying and not merely engaging in old age garrulousness, they can't be so frank, thus depriving the world of the benefit of some of the best of their many long held views.

Then too, since it's now known that oldsters' physical capabilities haven't diminished as much as formerly thought, they'll have to commence again doing the things they ceased to do on the grounds that they weren't up to them. This will hit women where they live—at home. The wispy strands hanging from the ceiling, the grey fuzz covering the mantel, they'll have to attend to, or feel guilty about, or appear to anyway.

So the golden years have lost some of their shine for those who've played to the hilt the age-based perks. Still, they've had their ease, aired their views a time or two, and while the bumptious baby boomers rejoice at the brighter image of older persons, they'll never know the advantages of being considered doddering, doty old dears.

Schalk named executive chef at One Water Street

Keith Schalk has been named executive chef at Stafford's One Water Street Restaurant in Boyne City.

Schalk's promotion brings to One Water Street the "combined talents of a seasoned manager (Len Neeb), with the abilities of a rising young culinary star," said Dudley Marvin, president of Stafford's Hospitality, Inc.

Schalk, a 23 year-old Petoskey native, began his career with Stafford's when he was 15 years old. He worked his way up from dishwasher to busboy to waiter and eventually to cook. He spent one year at One Water Street as sautee chef, one year at the Pier as chef-supervisor, and in January of 1990 began his duties as executive chef.

"I'm impressed with how Stafford's let me progress," Schalk says. "They didn't set any barriers to my advancement. I got a lot of encouragement."

Schalk, a 1984 graduate of Petoskey High School, attended Ferris State College. One year of his study there concentrated on food service management.

In his new position the Boyne City resident is responsible for menu development and planning as well as staffing functions.

Travel prizes to be awarded at One Water St.

Two grand prizes are still to be awarded in the "Travel Night" dinner series sponsored by Andrew Kan Travel and Stafford's One Water Street.

Grand prize is a trip for two to Disney World, including air fare, hotel accommodations, rental car, and tickets to the Magic Kingdom, Epcot, and the new M.G.M. Drawing for the grand prize is Wednesday, April 25.

An overnight getaway at the Grand Traverse Hilton, with dinner at the Trillium and breakfast in bed, is the second prize, to be drawn Wednesday, March 28.

Ethnic and regional foods are featured at One Water Street each Wednesday during the Travel Night series. Travel Night specials begin March 7 with Chicago staple baby back barbecued ribs and apple pie; March 14 will be a culinary trip to Florida, with fresh fruit salad and red snapper; March 21 will feature West Gulf Coast Texas steak and gulf shrimp; and March 28 will bring a return to Michigan with a smoked duck salad, chicken morel, and cherry pie.

To enter the prize drawing,

Wednesday night diners fill out a registration card, and on the last Wednesday of each month, a winner is drawn from cards collected during the month.

Winner of the first "Travel Night" vacation prize was Lucile Perlberg of Standish. She will receive a getaway for two at Stafford's Perry Hotel.

Lake level lull is time to prepare for high water

Shoreline contractors can take advantage of the apparent lull between periods of high on Great Lakes water levels to prepare for the next wave of high water at two workshops that Michigan Sea Grant Extension is offering March 14 at the Bay Valley Inn in Bay City and March 16 at the Days In-Downtown in Grand Rapids.

Presentations on future prospects for both high and low water levels, a coastal processes primer, coastal site evaluation, and design and permit requirements for shore protection structures will be featured during the identical daylong sessions.

"Record high levels have subsided during the past couple of years and may have stabilized temporarily, but it's only a matter of time before the levels rise again," says district Extension Sea Grant agent Steve Stewart. "It's dangerous to inspect a seawall in the midst of a storm, or plant vegetation on a bluff when waves may wipe it out. Now is a very important time to assess and repair damages and to prepare for the next rise in levels."

"Coastal property owners rely on shoreline contractors for several important services, such as building seawalls and planting vegetation, to protect their homes and businesses," explains Sea Grant agent Chuck Pistis. "At these workshops we will provide the businesspeople who offer coastal contracting services with Michigan Sea Grant's most current research on coastal processes and an opportunity to discuss professional matters as a group for the first time."

Preregistration for the workshops is required, and the deadline is March 12. The $20 registration fee includes lunch, refreshments and workshop materials. For more information, contact Pistis at (616)846-8250.

Michigan Sea Grant Extension is part of the outreach of the Michigan Sea Grant College Program, a cooperative effort of Michigan State University and the University of Michigan in Great Lakes research, education and Extension.

EJ High School students hold successful blood drive

East Jordan High School's Student Council, in conjunction with the American Red Cross, conducted their annual blood drive at East Jordan High School on Thursday, March 1.

The success of this year's program is evidenced by two statistics. The drive exceeded the goal set by eight units of blood, but even more important is the fact that 29 students gave blood for the first time. While this blood drive is open to any eligible donor, the main emphasis is to encourage new donors. It is encouraging to see that so many eligible students took part in this program and there is evidence that most of these first time donors will continue to give in the future.

Members of the East Jordan Student Council took an active part in this program by working at the registration table, the canteen, handing out blood containers and assisting the nurses with the donors.

Interested in taking census? Recruiting begins soon in TC

The United States Census Bureau is recruiting Northern Michigan residents to work as enumerators and crew leaders for the 1990 census.

Congressman Bob Davis says the Bureau expects to hire about 3,500 workers for district offices at Marquette and Traverse City. "The jobs will last eight to ten weeks," Davis said. "Enumerators will be paid $5.00 per hour and crew leaders will earn $6.00 per hour."

The Marquette District Office is located in the Pioneer Square Mall in Ishpeming. This office will cover the entire Upper Peninsula. The office in Traverse City is located in the Templeton Building and will serve 22 counties in the northern Lower Peninsula.

"Because of the rural nature of Northern Michigan, the Census Bureau doesn't want to rely on mailed forms," the 11th district representative said. "So many of the addresses in our area are imprecise: rural routes, general delivery, etc. Enumerators will be used to go from door to door to ensure a complete and accurate count."

In addition to the hourly wage, workers will be paid 24 cents per mile for the use of their car.

Davis emphasized the importance that every resident be counted. "The difficulty in reaching many rural households has resulted in the populations in these areas being underestimated and, therefore, shortchanged," he said. "Because federal policy and funding decisions are based on the census, it's critical that everyone be counted."

He said it is especially important this year because projections are that Michigan could lose two seats in Congress.

Anyone in Northern Michigan interested in participating in the census effort should contact one of the following Bureau offices: Marquette: Pioneer Square Mall, 308 Cleveland Avenue, Third Floor, Ishpeming, Michigan 49849, 906-485-1035.

Traverse City: Templeton Building, 2466 South Cass Road, Suite 105, Traverse City, Michigan 49684, 616-922-2170.

Eric Smith hit 30 points in the drive towards a State Championship in the opening match-up between Boyne City and Harbor Springs. The game was the first step in the quest.

Defensive effort pays off Ramblers take first game in district quest Boyne City was faced with an interesting challenge in the last week. In their last regular season game the Ramblers were to face the Rams of Harbor Springs, a team that had overplayed most people's early expectations. That game was to be played in Harbor, but to make matters worse, the Ramblers had to come back just a week later on March 5 to again challenge the Rams, this time in the do-or-die atmosphere of the District tournament.

Boyne had a rough start to their final game of what had been a tremendous season. The Rams jumped out to an early lead, setting an up-beat tempo that befuddled the Ramblers. Boyne was not easily put away, however, as they stormed back to take a nine point at the half. The Ramblers never relented, sending a message to the Rams about how the tournament was to be played. Boyne won the contest 66-53, finishing off the season ranked 19th in the state with an 18-2 record, the best record any Rambler team had had since 1956.

Eric Smith and Wayne Avery provided the offensive punch for Boyne, as they each hit for 17 points. Kevin Smith also scored in double figures with 11, while Scott Knipe had 8, Scott Hammontree had 6, Bo Williamson 3, and Dean Alger and Shawn Vondra each scored 2.

A week later Boyne was again in Harbor Springs to play the Rams, who host the District tournament. If someone hadn't known better they might have thought the District opener was a repeat performance of the game that had transpired just a week before.

Boyne scored on their first possession, but the Rams scored the next 9 points to establish a lead that they held strongly until the last moments of the first quarter. Boyne never relinquished the lead after that, leading 20-18 after one period, and 36-28 at the half. The Ramblers then had to fend off another Ram comeback, but did so successfully on Eric Smith's offensive strength. Boyne led 52-42 after three quarters and continued to roll in the fourth, winning the game 69-54, thus giving them their semi-final berth.

Loggers finish season with loss

BY BECKY ANN HAUSLER
Boyne Falls finished up their 7-13 season last Tuesday night against Cadillac's Heritage Christian. The Loggers lost by a margin of 21 points. They fell behind 20-10 in the first quarter and were smoked by Heritage the entire game excluding the last quarter, always the Loggers best time of the game. In the second quarter Heritage Christian scored 20 while Boyne Falls made 13 points. At the end of the third quarter the score was 38-63. The final score of the game was 80-59.

High scorer for Boyne Falls was Chad Hanes with 15 points followed by Louie Sevanski with 12. Ryan Giem followed close behind them scoring 11 points. Steve Sparks made 9 and John Burns hit for 7 before fouling out. Mark Reynolds made one three-pointer and Ty Hawes added 2 points.

Eric Smith again dominated the scoring as he hit for 30. Wayne Avery also had double figures with 14. Scott Hammontree had 8 points, Joe Jankowski 6, Vondra hit for 5, Knipe had 4, and Kevin Smith scored 2. Boyne faces Onaway Wednesday night. Should they win that game then they advance to the finals which are to be played Saturday evening.

It was all elbows and body pushing under the basket as the two teams fought for position to get the potential rebound. The defensive effort of the Ramblers contributed greatly to the win.

Good steelhead runs predicted

Steelhead anglers may find this spring's runs slightly better than last year's average migration, AAA Michigan reports.

Consistent stocking levels during recent years is the main reason for the optimism, according to state Department of Natural Resources (DNR) fisheries biologists.

Additionally, a wet spring will stimulate runs and the National Weather Service has predicted above-normal precipitation in the next few months.

Some biologists did express concern about this year's migration, citing increased Great Lakes steelhead harvests in previous years. Dry spring weather also could hamper runs.

Steelhead—the name given to rainbow trout living in the Great Lakes—spawn in the stream where hatched or planted. The popular gamefish are magnificent fighters when hooked and provide a tasty meal.

Good steelhead fishing already has been reported on various Michigan rivers this year due to unseasonably warm weather.

But the best fishing should occur mid-March to mid-April in Southwest Michigan; early to mid-April in Southeast Michigan; mid-April to early May in Central and Northern Lower Michigan; and mid-April to mid-May in the Upper Peninsula.

Concentrations of 5- to 12-pounders are expected in the 51 rivers listed on AAA Michigan's 1990 Steelhead Guide.

West Michigan fishing is expected to be good on the Platte, Betsie, Big and Little Manistee, Pere Marquette, Grand and St. Joseph Rivers.

In East Michigan, recommended locations include the Au Sable, Au Gres (East Branch), Cheboygan, Oqueoc, Thunder Bay and Rifle Rivers.

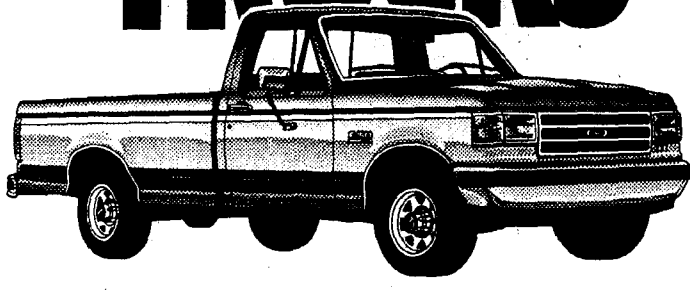

Southeast Michigan hot spots are the Huron, Clinton, St. Clair, Black and Belle Rivers.

Prime Upper Peninsula action should occur on the Chocolay, Anna, Au Train, Whitefish, Sturgeon, Sucker, Big Two Hearted and Huron Rivers, along with Marquette harbor.

The best bait for stream fishing is salmon eggs or the roe from a captured fish, tucked into a nylon sack. Bump the sack along the bottom near rocks, stumps or submerged logs. Artificial spawn, colorful yarn, spinners, flies and plugs also succeed.

Anglers should check the DNR's 1990 Michigan Fishing Guide for size, catch, season and consumption details.
