New Middle School, renovate others are recommendations

Group asks BC Schools to revamp system

Boyne City Schools would be completely revamped if voters approve the report and recommendations of the school's Facility Utilization Study Committee (FUS) after the committee made its report Monday evening to the Boyne City School Board.

The report calls for the building of a new facility for the middle school, grades 6 through 8, that would be connected to the present high school so some cost savings could be made in areas of common rooms like gyms, band rooms, vocal music room, shops, art room and home economics. The high school would still house grades $\bar{9}$ through

The present middle school would then become an upper elementary school and would house students in grades 4 and 5. The present elementary school would be for grades K through 3.

The report is the consensus of the committee which has been studying the housing problem since last October when the committee was formed and approved by the board.

Specifically, the plan calls for space to be added to the high school to provide classrooms for the 6th, 7th, and 8th grades in such a way that the two schools are together but separate. The common areas would be the classrooms listed above along with a school/community auditorium which could be well as for assemblies in the middle school As far as the present middle school is concerned, the building would be renovated to accommodate the educational program for the two grades. Along with the renovation, the present gym and cafeteria would be torn down and a new all purpose facility would be constructed as part of the renovations.

It has been determined by an architectural firm the board has hired to provide preliminary work, that because of the asbestos in the plaster of the present gym area, it would be cheaper to tear down that part of the building and build new rather than pay the costs of trying to comply with the federal laws in the future covering asbestos.

In the elementary school, additional space would be added to accommodate such educational items of computer aided instruction, special education, art education and general storage.

Parts of the high school would be renovated to accommodate facilities the arts, sciences and technology. It was the conclusion of the committee that the areas for instruction in science, computer applications, technology, distant learning, business lab and others along with instructional support areas are presently inadequate for a comprehensive high school program.

The renovated spaces would enable the school to offer better classes, especially in the sciences.

The report is the conclusion of committee and the administration which has been looking at the growth of the area and trying e out v hat could be be able to fit all of the upcoming students into classes. The school system has been projecting the increases for the past several years and that is proving to be the case as the enrollments of the lower grades have increased significantly within the past five years.

The committee concluded that both the elementary and middle school are critically overcrowded and each is in need of classroom space. Classes moving into the high school level with 80 students are being replaced with students in the 5th grade level with grade sizes between 110 and 120 students.

The committee studied the overcrowding problem from many different aspects, including the moving of the fifth grade or the eighth grade levels to the high school as the thought was that there were rooms available. But that, idea was eliminated when it was discovered that the present configuration of classes at the school would only allow room for 450 students.

By moving students into the building, it would be, at best, a temporary solution as the school would be at capacity in three to five years. It is expected to be at capacity within five to six years with just ninth through twelfth graders.

The report brings to conclusion the work of the committee which used several guidelines they had developed from the inception. The guidelines developed included the statement that enrollments support growth and need for classroom space, classroom space could be added at any building level, that grade level structure could make a difference.

Not only was Moore making history, but he was also showing that history repeats itself when he won a 1990 Dodge Shadow ES worth $14,289. On the May 12 show, he won his first prize on "Fame & Fortune," a 1990 Dodge Caravan worth $15,094.

And something told him it wouldn't be his last prize.

"After the first show in May, I went back to the hotel and told my family that this wasn't all. Something else was going to happen. I could just feel it."

News of Moore's double chance at fame and fortune has made "Fame & Fortune" tickets a hot commodity in his hometown.

In fact, Moore, 37, said, "After everyone found out I was going to be on the show a second time, I went to Par-T-Pac in Boyne City where I had bought my ticket and they were all sold out."

City replies to citizen concerns at noon meeting

Boyne City Commissioners took care of, or at least tried to answer concerns of residents at their Tuesday noon meeting after questions were raised at last week's meeting about the property taxes paid on condominiumized boat slips, the amount of money that was collected at the city launch ramp over the Memorial Day weekend, and the pond in the front of the Lake Street Plaza. The question on taxes for the marina slips was raised by John Howard who wondered why some of the slips were being taxed very low rates. He was told by City Manager Randy Frykberg that the city checked with the Equalization Department in Charlevoix and it was found that the taxes being paid were for the land portion of slips that were not installed at the time the tax roll was prepared. The slips are in the marina basin of the Harborage development and were not installed by December 31, 1988 when the tax rolls closed. The taxes were paid on the point where the slip will connect with the land and only cover the land value to which the docks will be attached once they are fully completed on the rolls.

According to the Equalization Department, there are 41 slips in-

In another matter relating to the Harborage development, Howard asked if the city would send a letter to the Corps of Engineers expressing their concerns over some fill that the developers put along the water-

The fill is not at the level called for by Corps rules, but is at the level the company received an okay from the Department of Natural Resources. The difference between the two governmental agencies is about one foot.

Because of the difference, the Harborage has filed for an afterthe fact permit and may have to remove fill to the level where the Corps determines. The matter was raised when, after a rain, fill material was seen washing into the lake and the city was alerted by concerned residents. A stop work order was issued by the Corps until the permit is resolved.

The city commissioners agreed to look into the matter within the next few days to determine if they should send a letter asking the fill be removed to the Corps level.

Another question raised by Howard was the amount of income generated at the launch ramp over the Memorial Day weekend when it seemed the ramp was very busy. He was told the city generated $244 in fees for the weekend even though the ramp attendent was

East Jordan Middle School science teachers met together and planned a science unit for their students which focused on Earth Day 1990, held April 22. The teachers, Bill Chase, Todd McNitt, and Teresa Noirot, organized a field trip to a local landfill. They contacted Barney Way from the landfill who spoke to all of the middle school students. As part of the Earth Day unit, the middle school students then took a field trip to the landfill.

One of the major projects of the science unit was to gather recyclable garbage to illustrate the point that we use and throw away garbage which in fact could be recycled into new products. The students brought in washed garbage and sorted it in the basement of the middle school. After five days of collecting and sorting, the basement had many bags of recyclable garbage which was brought to the East Jordan recycling center.

The middle school students also studied environmental issues such as acid rain, the greenhouse effect, and pollution. The students planted 300 trees on the school district's property as an Earth Day project.

Sheriff's Dept. concentrates road patrol program

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's office is presently participating in a new traffic safety concept of concentrated patrol to reduce accidents in Charlevoix County.

Any citizen of Charlevoix County who has a concern over traffic safety for any specific road, can contact Sheriff Lasater for concentrated patrol consideration. The traffic safety concern may be speeders, careless or reckless drivers, drunk drivers, etc.

One or more deputies in marked and unmarked patrol units will be assigned to the concentrated patrol for designated periods of time. The citizen or groups of citizens requesting the service will be supplied a written report after the concentrated patrol efforts as to the number of citations issued, number of patrol hours spent on the problem area.

When the citizen is requesting the service from the Sheriff's office, he or she should be able to supply Sheriff Lasater with the following required information: Specific roadway requested for concentrated patrol. The Humble Farmer

BY ROBERT SKOGLUND Conflict

Every day Gramp Wiley hears Harvey broadcast congratulations to a man and woman who have been married 70 years or more. But, according to the court record in my newspaper, people are now getting divorced after 30, 40 or even 50 years of marriage. In the 1980s it is statistically probable that after 60 years of marriage Gramp Wiley will divorce Gladys and not hear his 70th anniversary mentioned by Mr. Harvey in 1993.

"What can I do to help Gramp and Gladys salvage marriage?" I asked psychologist friend, Addler.

"If they can't resolve their interpersonal conflicts perhaps it's already too late," he sighed. "How often do they have a knockdown drag out fight?"

"Fight? I've never heard as much as a cross word from either one of them," I confeseed. "They seem quite devoted to each other."

Addler threw back his head and laughed. His beanie with the propeller on the top fell to the floor. When he picked it up he looked serious and said, "That's bad. A lack of open conflict is a sign of apathy and noninvolvement, which means they have an unhealthy relationship. Their failure to have conflicts and their obvious inability to deal with them constructively could destroy their marriage."

"Are you trying to tell me that they should disagree and fight?"

interpersonal "Constructive conflicts are inevitable in any growing relationship," he replied.
"I recently saved a marriage by telling the husband to fire three shots as his wife with a .38 every time she stabbed him with a fork.'

"I supposed conflicts can be fun if they're not taken too seriously," I said.

"Right. Many people feel that con-flicts are bad, but they encourage change.

"But will Gramp and Gladys want to change their ways after 58 years of happiness?"

"It could save their marriage and they do deserve to experience all of life's emotions," he shouted. Their simple lives would be enriched by hate, anger, fear and insecurity.

"A well rounded conflict would help them become complete persons," I agreed.

Addler nodded. "And a good argument can make two people trust and love each other more. After the last riot at the state prison I saw guards and prisoners embracing with tears in their

"But what can I do to help Gramp and Gladys?" I asked. "Each one thinks that everything the other one does is good."

"Thank God for young people," the psychologist cried. "Old folks usually have an over-simplified view of their conflicts. They don't realize that they're miserable and unhappy. I would advise Gramp and Gladys to join the younger generation and get their problems out into the open where each can communicate clearly with the opponent."

"How can two people who have been friends for years think of each other as opponents?"

"It may not be easy," he agreed, "but if they hope to build a climate of trust they've got to be willing to

All will miss Coach Gebauer

Editor.

I sit here thinking tonight with heavy heart, knowing that Boyne City Coach Gebauer, Bay Township musher, will soon be moving to his other coaching job for an out-of-state college. Knowing that we the people of Boyne City area and our children will be the losers, not Mr. Gebauer. He was a good coach and teacher with high respect for our school system.

Mr. Gebauer won the triple crown in dog sled racing last year. This is the first time anyone from Michigan has ever won. I myself am very proud of him and his dog team. especially with all the work and effort put forth by him and his son, at times in the bitter cold, to be able to have a good dog sled team and a winning team. We all will miss him in our own way.

It was a very sour situation for this family to be condemned and evicted from their home and driven out of the area all in one year. But how many other people has this happened to or will it happen to? Mr. Gebauer has been the victim and casualty of a few trouble plus an undemocratic and unresponsive township board. Under the present leadership the pattern will not change. When Mr. Gebauer leaves there will be more victims, probably the first being myself as I own dogs and live in the same area. Then others will follow as the in-stigators of the noise (dog) ordinance still remain to trouble the community. Then some day it might even by one of our children going through this situation. All because our Bay Township board and a few residents couldn't sit down and work things out.

I personally feel very bad because I fought in Viet Nam a year for Democracy against dictatorship. Now we have the same thing right here in BAY TOWNSHIP, a part of UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, which is supposed to be a free country. But it isn't. This is all based on poor leadership in government. In our case, township elected officials made laws everyone has to live with, but intended only for one man. Most of these men don't know any more about enacting laws and enforcing them than you or I do. Our township supervisor says the majority vote doesn't mean anything. He also stated at our Anmual Meeting that he hated the word DEMOCRACY (mob rule), yet this is what this country was made up of hard work, democracy, and a majority vote for all, which we are nied here in RAY TOWN SHIP, Charlevoix County, Michigan. I guess all I have to say is there are a few people, not all of us, in Bay Township that have to live with their conscience on this situation. I hope and pray that things will work out pretty soon.

Now, anyone can hit a fly when it has landed with a fly swatter, and I will admit it takes a little more skill to hit one with a rolled up magazine. It takes even more to hit one with a Sunday newspaper section, and even more to hit one with a Charlevoix County Press.

8th CCC Reunion this weekend near Roscommon

The eighth Annual Civilian Conservation Corps (CCC) Alumni Reunion, scheduled for June 7-9 at North Higgins Lake State Park near Roscommon, will bring together between 400 and 500 former CCC members and their families to share memories of their experiences in the conservation work program of America's Great Depression era.

Beginning at 1:30 p.m., June 8, 60 of the CCC's young counterparts in the modern-day Michigan Civilian Conservation Corps (MC-CC) will have a chance to swap job stories with them, compete in the use of the crosscut saw and handicraft skills, and discuss the mutual goals of the two work programs. Earlier in the day, former CCC members can take one of three school buses leaving the park at 8:30 a.m. for a tour of the MCCC residential Camp Vanderbilt and the new MCCC-constructed headquarters of the Pigeon River State Forest.

The reunion is sponsored by four chapters of the National Association of CCC Alumni (Chapter No. 29, Grand Rapids; Chapter No. 58, Flint; Chapter No. 129, Grayling, and Chapter No. 144, Dowagiac), the Department of Natural Resources (DNR), and the Department of State's Bureau of History.

"We owe a great deal to these veterans who contributed so much to the conservation movement," said Director David Hales of the Department of Natural Resources. To the benefit of our state, their hard work, and now that of the MCCC, has become an important part of our heritage."

Another special program for the two groups will begin June 9 at 1:15 p.m., with a memorial service conducted by the Rev. William Fraser of Grayling in honor of deceased CCC members. State Representative Thomas Mathieu, who introduced the legislation establishing the MCCC, will provide opening remarks for the program, which will include presentation of MCCC outstanding service awards.

Other speakers on the program will include, from the DNR, Frank Ruswick, Chief of the Office of Special Services: Henry Webster, State Forester and Chief of the Forest Management Division, and Dave Dilts, Acting Chief of Parks Division; James Schultz from the Bureau of History, and several veterans of the Civilian Conservation Corps.

The CCC program of the 1930s and early '40s was established to give young people jobs in the outdoors, planting trees, constructing park bridges and buildings, and learning other skills in the conservation field. The MCCC, administered by the DNR Office of Special Services, has some 500 young adults working on similar outdoor conservation projects in 60 Michigan counties.

"MCCC members take great pride in carrying on the CCC legacy," said MCCC Director Frank Ruswick.

For more information about the CCC reunion and to make late reservations, contact CCC alumni chapter officer Frank Munger of Grand Rapids, 616-453-8388.

Consumers Power/kites

Many an adult remembers that special feeling of flying a kite as a youngster, the thrill as it caught the wind, the excitement as it rose 50, 100 feet and more in the air, and the wish that you could glide with it as it soared above the ear-

If you intend to help a child experience the pleasure of kite flying this spring, help him or her do it safely, suggests John W. Hadder, Community Services Director for Consumers Power Company. The utility is asking parents and educators to teach children to keep their kites away from electric power lines.

Kite flying should be done in an open field, away from electric lines, trees or other obstructions, says Hadder, "The rule of thumb is 'look up, be alert and stay alive."

If a kite gets tangled in an electric line, don't try to get it out; it's better to let it go and buy another one than to risk a serious accident.

Consumers Power also advises children not to climb utility poles, trees or broadcast towers to retrieve a tangled kite. In the long run, buying a new kite can be a lot cheaper - and a lot safer.

Another popular activity this time of year, tree climbing, should be discussed with youngsters. Adults are asked to look over areas where children might climb trees to make sure there are no overhead electric wires. Children should be taught to look for wires in or near trees before they climb.

Some other rules that will help young kite flyers and tree climbers are offered by Consumers Power: *Keep away from overhead electric lines.

*If an electric line falls, keep away from it.

*When buying or making a kite, make sure it is constructed of wood, plastic and paper - don't use anything made of metal.

*Use dry string when flying your kite, not wire or anything metallic. *Fly your kite in open areas in dry weather. Avoid streets and highways and keep away from television and radio aerials.

Free films on electric safety are available to local schools and community organizations.

not at the ramp continuously as he had just started work that day. Commissioner Vic Ruggles had a question concerning the pond in front of the Lake Street Plaza which now appears to have stagnant water. He suggested that officials from the DNR take a look at the pond to see what could be done. He also suggested that the duck feeding in the winter time be discouraged, as in feeding ducks, residents are creating a cesspool.

He raised another concern over the amount of sprinkling being done at the cemetery and asked that the use of timers to control controlled.

The Commissioners then heard a report by City Housing Commission Director Todd Sorenson who explained what the city will attempt to do if they get approvals of a grant from the HUD Comprehensive Improvement Assistance Program for modernization and other improvements to public housing units owned by the city.

Frykberg then told the audience that if they knew of anyone who feels they were not counted in the 1990 census, forms were available at the city office.

Elise T. Chisolm objects to Barbara Ann Kipfer's book, "14,000 things to be happy about", and says so in her article which appeared in The Detroit News and made me object to Chisolm. But now I feel more kindly toward her thanks to the happy mood Kipfer's book put me in. Still, I wouldn't mind if Chisolm's discovering that, annoyed her too.

Chisolm finds fault not only with particulars in the book, - wet babies, circuit breakers, repairing a lamp - but with the sizable number of them. She says also that she worries there's something wrong with her for not enjoying everything Kipfer does but makes it clear which one of them she thinks is not quite up to snuff or, perhaps, sniffed more of it that she should have.

Chisholm does concede that she agrees with some of Kipfer's choices - sunsets, sunrises, trees, a good book - and then lays out her view on the matter:

"But mostly, waking up and finding that I am alive and breathing; that I can get out of bed; that my body is working - that makes me happiest."

That's nice. But if she'd read Kipfer's introduction to her book, she'd know right off that the items listed were collected over considerable time, 20 years. And also that while they conjure up happy pictures of the author, she doesn't expect they'll all do the same for readers. Shes confident some will though and hopes too that they help show that happiness comes from little things.

They did for me and helped me haul out treasures stashed in my mental attic as well.

that once I not only loved it but thought mom allowed me to do something rather wicked when she let me lick the mixing bowl and beaters.

White Castle hamburgers she lists. I don't like them, doubt now I ever really did, but just seeing them advertised reminds me of college days when a bunch of us would whoop down the block to buy these onion drenched, peculiar little squares. We always though we needed them late at night, went to sleep shortly afterward, thus abandoning our digestive systems to do battle with them

Some words delight Kipfer, soft, gentle words - hush, luminous, dawn. They warm me too. But then I get a kick out of snarly ones as well - contumelious, feckless, zarf · likely not everybody's bag. In fact some machines don't even like them. My computer beeps in disdain at zarf.

Although Kipfer doesn't expect readers to delight in all 14,000 things mentioned, she assumes that everyone will have good memories linked with at least a few. Since even Chisolm found some that please her, Kipfer's premise proves sound.

Of course if critical Chisolm had liked it, she might not have written about it. I might not have heard of it much less bought it, and I'm glad I did. I'm please too that my doing so gives Kipfer 14,001 things to be happy about.

Of course, with Kipfer's sunny outlook, she may well count Elise T. Chisolm number 14,001 for calling attention to her book. And that I wouldn't object to at all.

In reviewing the report with the school board members. Superintendent Bob Nakoneczny told the board Nakoneczny congratulated that "It was ironic how the good committee for their work. work of community-based committees can repeat itself. The final recommendation is living proof that community involvement reflects the basic beliefs and feelings of a community, our community.

"To wit: the FUS Committee's recommendation is very similar to, if not technically the same as, a Citizen's Facility Study recommendation made to the board of education in 1988.

He went on to say that the committee, headed at that time by Bill Casper, studied the pending space problem Boyne City is currently facing. He said they studied the problem for over a year and in 1988 recommended additional facilities be added to the high school to house grades 7 and 8 inclusive of similar recommendations of those of the FUS Committee.

He added that the FUS Committee recommendations are in the best interest of the community and would meet additional needs.

Local Ameritech Pagesplus directory printed on 100% recycled paper

While it may look familiar, there is something 100 percent different 1990-1991 about the new Charlevoix-Emmet County Ameritech PagesPlus (R) directory, the complete Michigan Bell white and yellow page directory. The new directory, currently being delivered to 30,000 area residents and businesses, is the first directory in Michigan to be printed on 100 percent recycled paper.

According to Jerry Moss, Ameritech manager Publishing's Traverse City office, the new Charlevoix-Emmet County Ameritech PagesPlus directory part of a five state trial by Ameritech Publishing in its effort to address environmental issues.

Five directories, one in each Great Lakes state, will be printed on 100 percent recycled paper. The recycled paper used in the directories was manufactured in part from 44,000 outdated Ameritech PagesPlus directories. "As a major directory publisher, we understand and support the need to reduce solid waste and find more ways to reduce waste materials," said Moss. "We are far from the day when economics and paper-making technology will allow us to print all directories on recycled paper, but we are taking an important step in the right direction with this project."

1990-1991 Charlevoix-The Emmet County directory will again feature the Info Pages section, which contains a wide array of useful information, including a community profile, maps, Michigan zip codes and senior citizen information. Emergency numbers for police and fire departments and other emergency agencies will be listed inside the directory's front cover. Michigan Bell's Customer Guide section in the front of the directory contains telephone repair, billing, service and calling HERBS AND SPICES We sometimes want to try something new to add a little spice to what can be humdrum meals. The word "spice" lends certain magic feelings to us and makes one think of far off islands with sandy beaches in the sun, palm trees and thick jungles. We can dream can't we, on these cold winter days? We talk about the spice of life. It is something that adds the finishing touch that "spices it up", and little girls are "Sugar and spice."

Spices have been especially prepared and used in the Far East for thousands of years. The riches of the Indies were known and had been know for centuries. Europeans wanted the silks and spices of Asia while Erope had nothing that Asia wanted in return. Pepper, the "King of Spices" has a story all its own. Pepper is small in quantity and great in virtue" according to Plato. It was the first oriental spice to reach Europe. Pepper meant money with a capital letter. Peppercorns were used for money in some places. Rewards and fines were payable in perpercorns. Throughout the middle ages Venice was the European capital of pepper when it was really big business; of about six million pounds annually.

We are becoming very spice conscious in these modern times as our Grandmothers were who used them for preservatives and flavor. They were shipped early to the American Colonies and it is said that every housewife in Connecticut bought nutmegs from peddlers. Thus it became "The Nutmeg State."

Our modern cooks are doing lots of experimenting with spices. I know that I am using more now that I never heard of before; a short while ago we were all buying and using Cajun spices and when I was young I never heard of oregano. It is a good idea to have your spice rack in an easily reached place, and where it is easy to read the labels. If they are back on a shelf in the cupboard they will not be used. I am getting to the place where I am always spicing up fresh cooked vegetables; a way to cut down on the salt and fats, and they taste very good. We all enjoy a dip for vegetables and chips; we are eating and enjoying more raw veggies now than we ever dreamed of doing.

TANGY VEGETABLE DIP Using lots of spices 3 cups Mock Sour Cream * 3/4 cup chopped green olives 11/2 tablespoons prepared horseradish

11/2 tablespoons Worcestershire

11/2 teaspoons caraway seed 11/2 teaspoons celery seed 1/2 teaspoon garlic salt

1/2 teaspoon seasoned salt

1/2 teaspoon hot pepper sauc Sliced green onions

Assorted vegetables In a large bowl, combine all ingredients except green onions and assorted vegetables. Garnish with sliced green onions and chill. Serve with raw vegetables.

MOCK SOUR CREAM 1 cup low-fat (2%) cottage cheese 2 tablespoons plain low-fat yogurt 2 tablespoons low-fat mayonnaise Place cottage cheese and yogurt in blender container. Process at STIR for 30 seconds, then at PUREE for 21/2 minutes. Add mayonnaise and process at STIR for 30 seconds. Regular mayonnaise may be substituted.

This next recipe is for a very impressive salad. I am sure that you will have the dry mustard, curry powder and sesame seeds in your spice rack.

CURRIED SPINACH SALAD Dressing:

3 tablespoons white wine vinegar 3 tablespoons oil

1 teaspoon finely chopped chutney

1/4 teaspoon curry powder 1/4 teaspoon salt

1/4 teaspoon dry mustard

1/16 teaspoon liquid hot pepper Salad:

1 lb. fresh spinach, torn into bitesized pieces

1 med. Delicious apple, chopped 1/3 cup dry roasted peanuts 1/4 cup raisins

11/2 tablespoons thin-sliced green

1 tablespoon toasted seasame

Mix dressing together and keep at room temperature for 2 hours before serving. Pour over combined salad ingredients and toss. Serves 6.

This next one is a "dilly"; another delicious way to feed our with a pound of ground beef. PICADILLO

1 lb. ground beef 1 med. onion 1 clove garlic 1/4 cup raisins 1 tsp. ground cumin 1 tsp. oregano 1 bay leaf 1/8 teaspoon cavenne Salt and pepper 1 fresh tomato or 2 canned 1/4 cup water 1/4 cup sliced almonds olives Brown meat in a frying pan, breaking it up with a fork. Chop onion and garlic and add along with raisins, cumin, oregano, bay leaf, cayenne and 3/4 teaspoon salt. Reduce to simmer, cover and cook, stirring occasionally, for 15 minutes. Chop tomatoes and add along with water. Cook covered for 30 minutes. Slice olives. Stir in almonds and olives shortly before serving. Taste and add salt and pepper if needed. Serve with a green vegetable and a roll or chips.

As welcome as the spring flowers are, they don't last long. A landscape with only springflowering plants in it soon turns an unrelieved green. Green grass, green shrubs and green tree leaves don't offer much variety to the eve of the beholder.

So I'm suggesting that you make this year the year for planting something different.

There's nothing wrong with the traditional forsythia, lilacs and crabapples - they're just done too soon. With a little forethought and some research, you can add other plants to your landscape that have more to offer.

Start by thinking about what you want plants to do in the landscape. Do you want flowers in the summer or attractive branching patterns or fruit for interest in the winter? Do you need a climbing plant to screen out a less than wonderful view or shade your patio in the late afternoon? Are you looking for a way to cut down on the amount of grass you have to mow, especially on sloping areas? Would you like a flower garden that provided color all spring and summer and didn't have to be replanted every spring?

Ive started taking management-by-objective proach in my yard. To the stanspring-flowering lilacs dard there-which I enjoy immensely for the two or three weeks that they bloom-I have added summer lilac, or Buddleia. It flowers

You can achieve these goals and many others with a wide variety of plants.

As you increase the diversity of plants in the landscape, you'll also increase the variety of creatures that will find your home grounds a desirable place to live - or at least

Mort Neff, "Mr. Michigan Out of Doors" discovers a well-hidden fawn

Don't be a 'fawn napper'

BY REG SHARKEY

It's that time of the year again. Whitetail does are dropping their youngsters, which usually extends over a period from the last part of May on into late Septem-

There is nothing more appealing than those brown-eyed little fourpound buggers with their dappled coats and spindley legs.

And therein lies a wildlife dilemma quite common during the fawning period.

With all the publicity that possession of these youngsters-and other wildlife species too-are a no-no it still goes on.

One of the most over-used "crutches" used by "nappers" when apprehended by DNR officers is, "The poor little thing was abandonded by its mother, or else its lost."

Yes, there is a faint possibility that it could be that way, but the determination should be made by a DNR representative qualified in such matters.

Over the years that I have been studying and writing about wildlife I've found my share of newly-born fawns.

Usually they are well hidden and seldom is the doe visible. But be not mistaken the doe isn't too far away. She knows where her young are be they a single, twins, triplets, and yes, even quadruplets. Twins is the usual norm after the first birth.

Newly born fawns lie motionless in well-hidden cover. I've discovered them curled up in deep grass not even blinking an eye with respiratory action un-believably slow. Even a pestiferous mosquito will get no response.

But mamma knows just where her fawns are, and when the coast is clear she'll come back to nurse and groom them, then saunter off

It isn't too many days later that the spindly-legged little gamins are able to follow mama around.

That's when they become highly visible, and if they aren't close to the doe they are considered lost by too many people and fawn-napping takes place.

So, once again, only a qualified person should determine if a fawn needs numan attention. More so if the mother should get killed by a vehicle, or stray dogs. Call a DNR rep, or local animal control officer.

They alone have the authority to take the appropriate action.

And if you should get caught with an illegal fawn you could be socked with a hefty fine, or possibly a sojurn in the local pokey, or both.

So, once more, people-leave those appealing whitetail kids where they belong: out in the boonies where Mother Nature will do a better job on her charges than some intentioned human.
