Acacia arrives to new home port

Charlevoix Mayor Gary Probert and the Rev. Bruce Hamilton hold up a Charlevoix Mayor Gary Propert and the Nev. Druce manufum nom up a Charlevoix flag that was presented to the captain of the Acacia after the ship formally docked for the first time using Charlevoix as its home base. The ship carries about 50 men, many who have moved with their families into the Boyne City, East Jordan and Charlevoix area. On hand for the presentation was Congressman Bob Davis, State Representative Ralph Ostling, political hopefuls, and other dignitaries who rode the ship into port after meeting it out in the big lake. Accepting the flag was Lt. Cmdr. James Dwyer and his wife. After unpacking, the ship will be moving out to work the buoys in the northern part of Lake Michigan.

Township considering moving transfer station

residents may be going to the voting booth this coming November to help the township officials decide whether or not to accept an offer from Boyne USA to build a new transfer station, or to keep the present station located on Addis

If the residents of the township decide to keep the present station, there is a chance the former landfill would have to be capped or upgraded with a hard surface and fencing to control the site.

Whether or not the residents will go to the polls will be up to the Township Board who is trying to make a decision whether to accept or reject the offer based on a series of public hearings. Monday night they said they just may turn the decision over to the voters.

The offer to build a new site came from Everett Kircher, the owner of Boyne Mountain and Boyne USA resorts, about two years ago by John Kajawski representing Kircher asking that the township's transfer station be moved. The reasons cited then included the volume of traffic on Addis Road and the poor condition of the road.

Addis Road has been designated as a natural scenic road and can't be improved to handle additional traffic.

Joe Tymoc, Supervisor of Boyne Valley Township added another reason to the possible move citing a move to a more central location could be beneficial to more township residents. He noted that any transfer facility would have to be more than 500 feet away from any residence.

In exchange for having the site relocated, Kircher offered to build a new site that would conform to current Department of Natural Resource specifications, putting in a concrete pad in the area of the containers. He would also provide the property on which the station would be located and deed that over to the township.

A site has to have at least five acres, according to state rules.

Three sites were originally considered, all in the area of Boyne Mountain. The sites would provide access to the stations off of M-75 or Deer Lake Road.

At the first of what may be several public hearings on the relocation, a series of 23 questions were brought up. Monday, the second public hearing tried to answer those concerns.

About 20 residents attended the meeting to learn more about the proposed relocation.

Going through the question list, Tymoc explained that the new site would be protected by pine trees and a chain link fence, that traffic on Deer Lake Road would not be changed much, and the township may have the expense of capping the present landfill site.

He also added that since the present site does not take in more than 200 cubic yards of refuse, it does not fall into the area where the landfills need licensing. He said under present rules, the present landfill may not be required to be capped as it is less than three acres in size, another criteria the DNR uses covering landfill and transfer site operation.

Tymoc said the present site is owned by the Village of Boyne Falls. A member of the audience lease of the present site provided it remain a transfer station. If it is closed, the property would revert back to village control.

A committee comprised of Bill Mauchmar, Walt Kondrat, Yvonne Metzger and Bill Carson was formed at the first public hearing and was asked to give recommendations on a site. The committee came back recommending the present site be retained and possibly improved.

While the public hearing provided a little more input into the decision the board will have to make, no decisions were made said the village is open to a 99 year other than it may be brought to a members are discussing the forming of a Community Education Consortium that would include Boyne City, Charlevoix, Boyne Falls as well as East Jordan. The formation of the consortium concept will be looked at for the next few months, according to Chip Hansen, Superintendent.

They then approved a request for a transfer of middle school teacher Pam Allen to a fifth grade position that is open, approved the sale of three school buses to the Smith Company Charlevoix, purchased two copier machines for the central office and the high school from Hovinga

Business Machines of Traverse City, and agreed to serve as the fiscal agent for the Char-Em Alternative Teen program.

They also appointed Kurt Lundgren as the varsity basketball coach and approved joining the Michigan High School Athletic Association.

Board members also received an update from Hansen concerning the progress the district is making with regard to the 1990 Board of Education goals. Board members then received a packet with the first draft of their Board of Education Policy Manual. The manual was prepared by school administrators in conjunction with the Michigan Association of School Board's Policy Customization Service. The board will be reviewing both with determinations to be made in July.

They then set a special meeting for June 28 at 7 p.m. to deal with end of the year topics.

BC Planners approve lot splits

Boyne City Planners approved the recommendation to split lots in the community and started some thinking about the future direction they may want to take as there are still some zoning changes the planning board wants to fine tune.

Items under discussion include the development of duplex rules off the waterfront in the R-2 zoning areas. Recently, the planning body developed new rules for the R-2 classification along the waterfront that are restricting development of duplex homes. This new idea would carry the restrictions inland. Another area where the planners are concerned is the development of time lines for zoning classification changes. The planners want to put a limitation on the time before the actual project is started so to help move the project to completion faster.

An example might be a new condominium/apartment project that was given permission to start, but the developer did not begin building for several years.

The planners wondered if they could do some follow-up requirements to urge the project getting started.

Planner Jim Knurick asked the board if they thought a one-year moratoriam on the site plan should be added to the review. He was also wondering if the approved project would follow an ownership change.

Walt Coyle suggested that perhaps a yearly review might be the answer while the city administration suggested sending a letter to the developer and finding out what the plans were for the project.

Another planning board member, Mark Kowalske, said that the board would have to look at each case separately and that may take up too much time.

The two reommendations for lot splits involve a request from James Grice, 443 Lewis Street, who wanted to split three lots into two, adding 33 feet to each lot. The two lots would each become 99 feet wide and 202 feet deep.

The second lot split involves lots owned by Brendon and Mary Lee. He wanted to change the lots running between Cherry Street and Division to one lot on Division and one on Cherry Street. The property line would be parallel with Cherry Street.

Both recommendations were to be approved at the Tuesday noon meeting of the City Commission.

In other business, the board learned of plans for an all day seminar with professional planner Mark Wyckoff, a short report concerning the steering committee for downtown revitalization, and the discussion of several nominations for the annual Marvin Loding

Community Pride Awards. They also named Joe St. Dennis to fill the vacancy on the board created by the death of Florida

Bowman.

The board also was asked to recommend an approval of a day care center that is going to be held at the Boyne City High School as party of the school's Kaleidoscope enrichment program. Shelly Martin told the board that the program has grown and changed from a latch-key type of program for children to a day care type. The board decided that a formal approval was not needed as the program will be on school property. The board approved a motion saying they have no objections to the granting of a license for the day care portion of the program.

Walloon Lake Ass'n. requests denial

After the Melrose Township Board unanimously approved a proposed boat launch and public access site at the foot of Walloon Lake in April, the Walloon Lake Association Board of Directors passed a resolution at their meeting of May 31 that says the proposal is unacceptable and would lead to hazards to both boaters and bathers.

The resolution also said that excessive use of the lake could have a devastating effect on the environment of this fragile body of water and adversely affect the future health of what they consider an

The association wants the parking area to be more defined, an environmental impact study done and more safety along M-75 which will pass in front of the proposed site. They also want clarification as to who would maintain and police the site.

Supervisor Township Deneau said the proposed boat ramp would be under the control of the township, although the land will be owned by the DNR. The township would be leasing the site from the state and would be listed as the Melrose Township Ramp. The association representatives met with DNR officials Tuesday, looking for a response to their resolution.

More on flies

Editor.

I expected you to write more about flies as you did last week. I had planned to tell you my experience with flies. You see I have been a cook's helper at different times and places. So once in '26 I was a cook's helper on the main line railroad between Phoenix and California. Our gang of perhaps 30 teamsters and nearly as many mules were excavating for small bridges or to bridge the small dry

Join the tax fight

There is a great problem in this state that most everyone notices at least once or twice a year, not necessarily because they are the ones directly affected, but because it becomes a 'newsworthy' issue. This problem is called: PROPER-TY TAXES. It is not that the entire property tax structure is wrong, but the funding of education through property tax is. This is an old system and as most things usually do, it has become outdated. It is time for a change! The majority of the funding for local schools comes from property taxes. This places the burden primarily on the home owners of your community. It is easy to say that it is their problem and that they chose to bear that burden when they purchased their homes.

but it is not fair to place such an enormous burden on so few. There is a group of taxpayers that are beginning the fight to take this burden off the property owners, our name is United Taxpayers. The goal of our group is to exempt real property from school financing. We need all the support we can get and are asking for your assistance in making this a reality. We will not attempt to say what the best way to fund education is, but will fight to eliminate property taxes as the primary way. If you are interested in helping our group in any way, or have any comments, please write to us at: United Taxpayers, 714 Maus, Ypsilanti, MI 48198.

The press gave grand coverage to First Lady Barbara Bush's commencement address a few weeks ago at Wellesley, a prestigious women's college in Massachusetts, just as it did to the fuss that about a quarter of the graduating class kicked up there earlier over choosing her as their

The students protested that she's not gained fame due to her own achievements, having dropped out of college to marry George and primarily spent her time since then taking care of him and their five children. This is not the sort of life that career oriented Wellesley graduates are trained to see as their destiny, or even desirable, they huffed.

Despite lengthy articles, newspapers failed to mention, and testy graduates failed to examine with their expensively educated minds, the Mermaid, who bowed early in the speech. And she made a lively point for Barbara Bush. and for many others too.

Mrs. Bush spoke of Robert Fulghum's Mermaid, or rather the story of her is his, Fulghum having told it in his book, "All I Really Needed to Know I Learned in Kindergarten". The Mermaid, a seven-year-old, clearly belongs to Fulghum met the child when he directed a crowd of seven to tenyear-olds in a game in which each child had to choose whether he or she was a Giant, a Wizard or a Dwarf. She insisted that she was none of the above but was a Mermaid and wanted to know where Mermaids stood in this game.

Beside getting her squared away (he immediately made himself King of the Sea and told her that the Mermaid stood next to him), Fulghum philosophized that she represented all who want to participate in society but don't fit culturally prescribed roles.

First Lady urged Wellesley graduates to do as Fulghum's Mermaid did, decide who they were and find their place to stand no matter what or where that might be.

Ignoring all Mermaid connections, the press highlighted the other point made, the value of family and friends.

"Your human connections with spouses, with children, with friends, are the most important investment you will ever make." the First Lady said, then enlarged on the theme:

"At the end of your life, you will never regret not passing one more test, not winning one more verdict or not closing one more deal," said Mrs. Bush. "You will regret time not spent with a husband, a child, or a parent."

Raisa Gorbachev, wife of Soviet Union President Mikhail Gorbachev, who was visiting this country at the time, attended the commencement with Mrs. Bush and made a speech also. All the graduates looked forward to her coming since she had been both a wife and a career woman. A university professor with the Russian equivalent of a Ph. D, she left her post when her husband became head of the Soviet Communist Party.

As it turned out, Raisa's speech was not half so good as Barbara's and even many First Lady detractors agreed.

No one has said why journalists and discontented students paid no mind to the Mermaid. Clearly they missed noting what some watchers did; Barbara showed feeling for, like a sense of kinship with, the Mermaid. And no wonder. This is an era when a woman, who devotes her time to her family. takes no paying job and yet unabashedly enjoys her life, is considered out of step to say the least.

A mermaid. What a lovely image for Barbara Bush to relate to and share with women who've done as she has and feel as she does. A mermaid conjures up sprightlier scene than housewife, certainly.

BY ROBERT SKOGLUND The Shoppers' Olympics

One of the fun things for writing for this newspaper is being able to interview people. This week I prowled Main Street to talk with clerks who are preparing for the upcoming Shoppers' Olympics.

Fred, who hasn't waited on a customer for three years, feels he will take the gold medal again this

"My strategy to avoid customers?" he asked. "You've "Му seen clerks simply turn on their heel and trot out back for a cigarette when a customer comes in the place? Or perhaps they just gather in a corner and stare at the customer in a disinterested way. Salespeople in my class consider them amateurs.

"Those simple tricks won't put off a customer with money who really wants to buy. In those cases even my reputation of never having smiled in years isn't helpful. I've had them grab me by the arm, stuff the bills in my hand, and sob, 'For God's sake, take my money so I can get out of here."

I said, "Some customers never go that far. They simply throw down the items they've intended to buy and stomp out of the store."

Fred solemly said, "Last week a man picked up a 10 foot length of plastic pipe, put it to his mouth, and shouted through it, 'Will someone please wait on me?' I pretended I was busy with another customer.'

"I thought that the 'other customer' ploy was beneath you experts. It seems to fit in the same category as dusting or pretending to be busy with the stock."

Fred squared his shoulders defensively. "An artist who is not allowed to exercise the full range of his talents soon withers. I have to run through the whole bag of tricks from time to time just to stay in shape."

There are going to be determined shoppers in here for the Shoppers' Olympics," I said. "They're going to do everything to get you clerks to take their money. Many of them are wise to all the ted over the years to keep from waiting on customers. Do you have anything new planned for this

Fred nodded modestly. "Lately I've been posing as another frustrated shopper myself. I stand on my toes and look all around the store while making remarks to customers next to me about how lousy the service is."

"Do young salespeople learn any of these tactics from you?"

Some are slow. One was here for a month before she understood that you must avoid eye contact with potential customers. She's the one who just couldn't bring herself to say, 'I'm sorry, my register is

Fred gritted his teeth and shook his head in professional agony and disbelief.

I said, "What answer do you have for the shoppers who come in with picnic baskets? They're prepared to spend a dayhere, if need be, to make a purchase."

'Hibernation-the only way to beat the picnic basket crowd is to use the old hibernation ploy. I simply go out back and stay here.'

'Didn't someone set a record on that last year?"

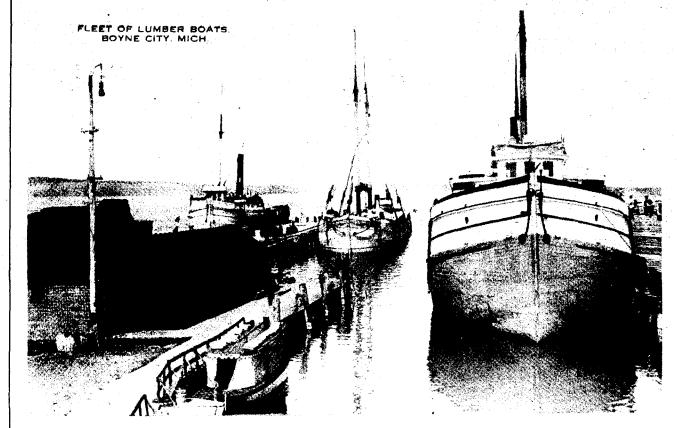

"Let me set you straight on that. Three years out back hiding from customers would certainly have set a record, but the clerk was disqualified when we found he'd been dead for two of the three

Before I could ask, "Which two?" the Main Street door opened and a man walked in. Fred rushed over to him, bowed politely and said, "Yes sir, what can we do for you today sir? Let's see if we can't fix you right up sir."

When the man left with his purchase I still hadn't recovered from the shock of seeing Fred not only wait on a customer but actually run over and greet him at the

"I don't understand...," I began. · Fred threw up his hands in an apologetic manner. "He's a lawyer. You either sell him what he wants

The women are also the ones who want to take the worst piece of meat, the one with all of the fat, while the kids and the father get the best.

They are also trying their darndest to keep the old man healthy while neglecting their own bodies.

Maybe we should not have holidays like Father's Day, Mother's Day, Grandparents' Day, Valentines Day, Thanksgiving, Christmas and New Year's. We should also skip Easter, too.

The reason to skip all of the holidays is that they seem to be just excuses to have a good meal.

Guarantees flies in winter

Dear Mr. "Jottings,"

I read with great interest and in its entirety your article on the introduction of a "new sport" to the sports hungry American multitude, that of "Fly Swatting." American It is a pregnant idea and may Merritt some further study. For that reason I would like to be in on the ground floor before it really takes off! We all know this is the season for the black fly in Michigan, but what do we do in the colder months that follow?

That is where my interest lies! I live next to a large horse farm down south and the large manure piles are a source of bottle flies, black flies and an unnamed species compregate around the two hole outhouse. I could supply any number of this needed commodity throughout the season.

If and when the sport is introduced to the eager public, I will fly up and buzz around the area to help with its promotion.

As an incentive I will

The old machine will be used as a trade in for the new one as part of the bid from Malette Construction Equipment Company of Sault Ste. Marie. The company was the lowest bidder with the city cash outlay coming to $29,590 after the trade in and a municipal discount of $6,000.

In order to approve the purchase of the new backhoe, the city had to adjust the budget as the purchase was not planned.

In other action, the city leaders approved a resolution asking the county to provide a full-time animal control officer. East Jordan passed a similar resolution recently and asked Boyne City to join in the request for additional county

Along with the resolution, the commissioners also agreed on a resolution to ask the county to provide one more additional marine patrol officer for the summer because with the growth of boating at this end of the lake, it was felt the county should provide more control. They also named Joe St. Dennis to the planning board, and reappointed Phil Johnson to the city historical board.

They then approved the two lot splits that were recommended by the planning board Monday evening.

After Gene Mont asked the board what action, if any, was taken at the planning board meeting concerning the proposed marina, he was told that the planners had not taken any action as it was not on the agenda. Mont told the commissioners that the planners said at last month's meeting they would be taking a stand this month. He was told that since the city had made a recommendation that the action of the advisory board wasn't needed.

Reg Sharkey's Northern Journal

Lancing leviathans

BY REG SHARKEY

They don't run silent; they don't run deep as those fresh water leviathans come churning into shallow waters in their annual late spring spawning frenzy.

I'm referring to those piscatorial immigrants from the Old World.

Actually carp are an Asiatic fish reaching the US by immigration through Europe and then to the New World as a cultured fish, but, alas, some escaped and some were deliberately released in some

In those early years of these piscatorial invaders sport fishermen branded the carp as junk fish; that they would take over America's fresh water lakes and streams, displacing game fish.

It didn't happen that way. Although there are very few bodies of water in the US that don't have carp, this so-called trash fish has found a place in our finny

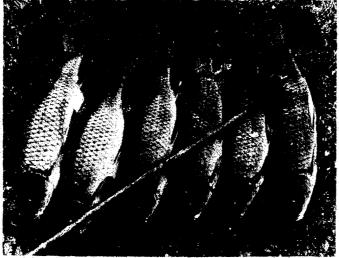

Not considered a game fish, nor are they in the top ten of the best eating fish, carp taken by spearmen, or archers offer an enjoyable

Get a 20-25 pound armored dreadnaught on the end of a spear, or tethered arrow, and you'll have your hands full.

Although I've smoked carp I can't say they're fine table fare. But the smaller ones prepared by Jewish people, who make fish balls, called Gefilte fish, think they are good eating.

Regardless of whether you attempt to eat them there's always a place for carp planted under a rosebush, or 'neath a planting of tomatoes or squash. 'Course you shouldn't be in 'coon country because they'll excavate around the "fertilizer."

But regardless of what you do with them it's pure unadulterated fun just to spear or arrow them.

While many consider the lowly carp a trash fish, others have found it to be delightful. Goldfish are members of the carp family, although these carp, speared and laying out, will probably end up in a smoker and then face a trip to someone's stomach.

Summer hosts needed immediately for students

Local families are needed urgently to host over 100 unplaced French and Spanish exchange students, mostly boys, who want to spend four weeks this summer experiencing American style living. Former participants report that hosting is a wonderful summer project, easy to do and rewarding for the whole family.

Evelyn and Julian Prince of West Bloomfield are the state coordinators for Nacel Cultural Exchanges. а non-profit organization, which this year is bringing more than 6000 French, Spanish and German students to live with American families, including 380 to Michigan.

The students are usually so polite and enthusiastic that they are a super influence on the whole family and lots of fun besides!" Evelyn Prince said. They share their knowledge of their own country and often invite the American family members back to experience it firsthand. Hosting an exchange student is the best gift you can give your family!" she said. It is not necessary to speak French or Spanish to host, since the students have had 48 years of English language study. Their parents supply the children with pocket money and pay for their transportation and insurances. Some American families take their guests on trips: others stay home. The program organizers match host families with students according to general interests and specific activities they would like to share with their guests, such as sports, water activities, computers, and music.

The Princes and local representatives throughout the state seek immediate responses Michigan families, because the students will be here soon. The first student group arrives on July 2 and stays until July 29; the second group will visit July 29 until August 25.

Hosting is an exciting adventure!" said Nancy Garber of Huntington Woods whose family is this summer. "Everyday family activities like baking cookies, going to the shopping mall, and playing ball become memorable events for the whole family and often amaze our guest. For example, last summer Peter from Spain was surprised to find out that in America it's normal to sit on the floor at gettogethers, to eat corn right off the cob, and for many American Moms to wear their tennis shoes to the grocery store," she said.

chose to bring his family chocolate chips, peanut butter, and a baseball bat. It's really the ordinary things that impress them. We have lots of fun just treating our guest as another member of the family, and it is an easy thing to do," Nancy said.

In the reciprocal program, Nacel offers American teenagers the opportunity to live four weeks abroad as part of a French, Spanish, or German family. Moreover, teenagers who host are offered a $200 Nacel hosting scholarship reduction from the price of their European Homestay either this year or in the future. The cost including transportation from Detroit or Grand Rapids is $1395 this year, or $1195 for families who host or have hosted. More than 130 Michigan teenagers will be going abroad with Nacel Nacel Cultural Exchanges, a non-profit organization, is the largest Summer Homestay largest program between Europe and the U.S. Nationally more than 80,000 students and families have been served since 1969, while locally there have been more than 2.500 participants since 1980 when the Princes first brough the program to Michigan.

Families interested in hosting one of the teenage boys or possibly a girl this summer should immediately phone Diane Viskochil 616941-0894 or the Princes at 313-

Cooking

Heat butter with water or bouillon. Place chicken on its side on rack in roasting pan. Roast in 400 degree oven for 25 minutes, basting 2 or 3 times with the butter mixture. Turn chicken on other side. Roast for 20 minutes, basting. Turn breast side up and roast for 20 minutes, basting. Cool.

Cut into 6 or 8 pieces and arrange in serving dish. Heat oil and saute mushrooms for 5 mintues over high heat. Add wine. Cook until liquid is reduced to half. ## Sailing program offered to both youth, adults

Charlevoix County Sailors, in cooperation with the Charlevoix County Youth Activities program will be sponsoring a series of sailing lessons for children and adults living in the Lake Charlevoix area this summer.

Children's classes are open to anyone over eight years of age and who is also an intermediate level swimmer. Students must provide their own life preservers while the classes are in session. They will start Monday, June 25 and will feature daily lectures, on-shore drills, and on the water practice.

Students can progress through seven levels ranging from seaman third class through skipper. It is expected the students will sign up for multiple sessions.

The program for Boyne City 2718.

and East Jordan youths will be held at Veteran's Memorial Park in Boyne City, Monday-Friday, June 25-29. Thanks to donations from Boyne Rotary and Lions Clubs, the cost will be only $10.00.

Boaters need to practice courtesy

tsmanship, or lack of it, forget that you have a curves in the road, more apparent than in the growing area of outdoor recreation.

Boaters, and fishermen in particular, are faced with an ever expanding population of sports enthusiasts who fill to overflowing the limited launching ramps and multi-use facilities of lakes and rivers across the country. Unfortunately, common courtesy is becoming most un-common when it is needed most.

Following are some "don'ts" and from the folks at Ranger Boat Company that can make your days on the water much more enjoyable and less frustrating. . for you and for the boat, motor and trailer behind your vehicle. That means a lot of additional weight that will tend to push you down the road while you're trying to stop. So be especially careful not to tail-gate the vehicle in front of you. Your stopping time is greatly lengthened, so back off a more than safe distance.

If you see that a following vehicle is starting to pass you, slow down enough to insure that the passing vehicle has plenty of room to get back into traffic in front of you. Keep in mind just how long an object to pass your trailer and vehicle swinging them into the on-coming lane and endangering other motorists. The reverse is true when thinking about the road shoulder. Nothing makes the guy behind vou madder than having your trailer tire throw a shower of road shoulder gravel all over his hood and windshield.

Launching Ramps These are the places that try men's souls. . . and women's too. More marriages go SOUT OΠ launching ramps than at any geographic location. And reasons are really from a lack of courtesy.

Approach the scene of launching activity slowly and scope out will have little interest in helping you to learn on the spot. My father taught me to drive a car and to back up a trailer in the local cemetery. . . because there, I couldn't hurt anyone and no one was watching, but him, to give instruction. So, practice the real skill of trailer backing before called upon to do it for real in public.

When the engine is started and the boat is launched (Always start the engine while still on the trailer. In case the engine will not start, you can pull out and off the ramp without having to retrieve a drifting boat first.) move the boat out of the way of other launchings while the vehicle driver is quickly parking the tow rig and trailer. Be to use only designated parking areas.
