

Polish Festival polishing up plans

While others are celebrating the Fourth of July, members of the Boyne Falls Polish Festival Committee work on some final details as they get ready for their summer celebration. New this year will be a garden-lawn tractor pulling contest and the festival committee hopes there will be some local entries coming forth to try their luck.

Boyne schools set $5,880,340 budget for '90-91

Boyne City School Board members approved the spending of $5,665,224 out of an anticipated $5,880,340 they will receive in local, state and federal revenues last Thursday afternoon as they closed out the books on the 1989-90 school year and started the program for the 1990-91 school year.

The budget reflects a 5.420 percent gain in income over the previous year.

Taking the most money on the expenditure side of budget will be the basic programs, which amounts to about $2.5 million. The budget reflects what is expected to be spent during the school year and is a guide the school administration follows as they expend the funds.

Local sources, property taxes on school district residents will bring in almost all of the money the school will be getting and is estimated at $5,589,036. State sources will bring into the district only $87,552 while the federal tax income will account for $130,511. Incoming transfer and other transactions will make up the rest of the income for the schools.

According to Superintendent Bob Nakoneczny, "If everything goes well, we'll have money left over to build back up the fund equity." For the past few years, the board has authorized the spending of the fund equity money to help pay for a portion of the program.

In the Debt Retirement portion of the budget, Nakoneczny said the school district will again need 2.1 mills to cover the costs of paying for the school buildings. The district expects to have an income of $345,842 while expenses amount to $330,044. The remaining money in that budget will be put into the equity fund at the end of the year.

Other budgets will see expenditures of $117,475 for the athletic program; $163,105 for the food service program, and an unknown amount for the co-curricular portion. The unknown amount is because the district has not yet settled with the teachers' union and the amount budgeted will be determined after the settlement.

In presenting the budget,

Nakoneczny told the board that the budget reflects the work and recommendations of a district-wide committee and he thanked them for their work on developing the budget.

His statement to the board was that the first two years the district focused on the fundamentals. Last year the district built on the foundations established and this year will see a continuation of building in some areas and a striving for excellence in others.

Other items to be approved by the board was the setting up of an organizational meeting for July 9th regular board meeting, the adjusting of the present school year budget to reflect what has been actually spent, and a recap of the district's insurance policies.

The board then approved staying with the Straits Area Consortium for another year while the details of a new Charlevoix County Consortium are worked out. The district learned that some problems have arisen between all of the schools that would be participating and wanted to allow time so the boards and administrators could work out the details.

They then appointed Pat Klooster to a new full-time permanent substitute teacher position and also named him to become the head football coach.

EJ board kills adult Ed consortium

East Jordan School Board members voted to not approve the concept of joining all four Charlevoix County School Districts in order to provide an Adult Education Consortium. The action happened at the end of the school year meeting last Thursday.

The board approved remaining with the present plan for adult education for one more year, preferring to operate locally and taking the time to study the issue of joining the schools together for adult education. East Jordan was supposed to be the fiscal agent of the new consortium and school administrators had some concerns about the risks associated with the venture.

The board also transferred money from the general fund to the athletic fund and approved tentative athletic and hot lunch fund budgets for the 1990-91 school year.

They then appointed Anne Dingman and Bill Lorne to the two vacancies on the Jordan Valley Library Board, and authorized the superintendent, Chip Hansen, to plan a workshop for late July to cover curriculum, policy development and facility review information.

The next meeting of the board will be held July 10, 1990 at 5 p.m. in the middle school band room.

Breithaup survives recall attempt

Chipman recalled by one vote in Bay Twp.

Winning a recall twice proved to Bay Township Supervisor Allie "Bud" Chipman a difficult thing to do. Chipman, who faced a recall election last February, which he narrowly won, lost last Thursday in the second election by just one vote.

The vote count was 191 to recall and 190 to keep him in office. A total of 384 ballots were cast in the election, almost two-thirds of the registered voters eligible.

Lyle Barkley, who headed up the two recall drives said that he is glad it's over, and happy at the outcome. The drive supporters were unhappy with the way Chipman was supporting the anti-noise ordinance and the way the township was spending money on Dyer Cemetery as well as the re-assessment of the township.

Also in the recall drive was Township Clerk Charles Breithaup, who survived the effort to displace him off the board. He won by a 191 to 173 vote and will remain on the board.

According to Barkley, with Chipman off the board, there may be no need for additional recall efforts. His group had gathered signatures asking the recall of James Vard Chellis but had never turned them in to the County Clerk.

With the second close election, observers asked if Chipman was going to ask for a recall but he declined saying that enough is enough. "I am just glad it's over," he added. Chipman said he will See Bay Twp./Page 6

Boyne to continue vandalism rewards

Boyne City will continue to use rewards as an incentive to help discover those who vandalize, after a discussion about the merits of the reward use on public property.

The discussion showed the use of a reward was instrumental in the investigation leading to the arrest of two individuals who damaged the city's gazebo in the Old City Park last year.

The reward totaled $700 and was paid out to an individual who gave the police department information that led to the arrest of the See Noon/Page 6

The Humble Farmer

his birthday is January 18th
BY ROBERT SKOGLUND
 Reeeny recently brought to my attention an afternoon soap opera character named Punky Paul, who fled to Bermuda for reasons too complicated to address here.

What does interest us, is that every day the dialogue delivered by Punky Paul and his friends includes something like this:

"Sigh, isn't it beautiful here in Bermuda."

"Yes. The beaches here in Bermuda are so white."

"Did you know that Bermuda's beautiful white beaches stretch on for miles and miles?"

"Yes, and the temperature here in Bermuda is always a perfect 72 degrees."

It would seem that subliminal advertising is not as subliminal as it used to be.

Oh yes, it must be advertising. Soap opera characters don't suddenly talk that way out of the goodness of their hearts. And I've never met anyone else who does, either. Somewhere, somehow, money, goods or services are being passed on to someone in the media for that kind of promotion. Very soon the whole thing is going to be exposed as an underhanded crooked scam -- and Punky Paul's ratings will immediately double.

Of course, if I could really believe that Punky Paul really felt that way about Bermuda, it would be different. For example, I don't think you can beat Coffin's Clothing store at 400 Main Street in Rockland if you're looking for excellent value in clothing. How well I remember my mother bringing me in there when I was little. Years after that we all got our uniforms from friendly Mr. Coffin when we were in the St. George High School band. No, no one tops Coffin when it comes to providing value in quality clothing. And while you're shopping at Coffin's you can chat with old friends, like Albert Overlock, who specialize in knowledgeable, friendly service. As an entertainer who is often on stage before thousands of people I can't afford to look almost good enough. That's why I always shop at Coffin's, at 400 Main Street in Rockland.

As a matter of fact, you might see me in there next week as I do need a light grey suit with 28 inch sleeves and I see Albert's got one in the window that I'd really like to wear to my birthday party on January 18th.

You can imagine I do a lot of reading with the nights being so long, but to me it's no problem. The Reading Corner at 408 Main Street in Rockland has just about every one of those wonderful books that you and I love to read. Yes, The Reading Corner has the most recent book by our own National Treasure, John Gould, and wouldn't I love to have an autographed copy. The Reading Corner is a place where it's fun to just come in and browse. You'll find many, many popular titles and a well-chosen selection of topics. And, if they don't have that special book you ought to have, Nancy Bryant will be glad to order it for you. Which reminds me that she ordered a dozen Agatha Christie mysteries for me a couple of days ago, and I really should stop in to the Reading Corner at 408 Main Street in Rockland to pick them up before my birthday on the 18th.

Have you treated yourself in Paul Devine's new dining room at the Navigator? It's conveniently located right across from the Vinalhaven ferry. Most of my friends from the islands stay at the Navigator when business or pleasure keeps them from catching the last boat home in the evening. The Navigator's split-level dining room features windows in a high ceiling, and brightly polished brass hand rails leading down a carpeted ramp to the elegant lower level. Elaine really did a fantastic job getting it together. The Navigator's new dining room is a great place for birthday parties or to entertain business prospects when getting that order really matters.

Although Lawyer Crandall and I have been enjoying fantastic meals there for weeks, the grand opening won't be for a few more days. A while back Elaine said something about hiring me and Muriel, The Midcoast Monster, to play for that opening. I expect she'll call me and firm that up any day now.

Then there's Wasse's Wagon where you can get the greatest hot dogs in the world. My mouth starts watering even before I get there, and...

BY JIM SILBAR

This will be a week to complain, only because I have another birthday coming up soon and while I will get another year older I figure I will also get a little more crab-bier, a little more irritable, and a little less tolerant of those in their youth.

Like I expect to get some gifts, like a shirt, given to me by some young member of the family. If I am really lucky, I will get a chance to wear the shirt at least once.

After that, it disappears, only to be seen draping the shoulders of the youngster who gave it to me.

Sometimes, I expect I will see it in the wash when I get asked to do a few loads to work down the pile sitting in front of the machine. I probably won't wash it though, as it will be made of some material that requires a cold wash and all I know how to do is the stuff that requires hot.

But the shirt does get washed, at least once in a while, as I will keep seeing it on my daughter at various times during the year.

Now I don't know what the thrill is of wearing "dad's" shirt, but I do know that it is not a current fad.

Back in my teenage years, almost all the girls also wore dad's shirts.

The only difference between back then and now is that the colors of the shirts are different.

Back then the girls wore their dad's white shirt, or maybe a blue one. Today, the girls wear the shirts with the mauve, the vibrant greens and the reds. Or any other shade that could be determined by the shirt designers.

Several years ago it was the fad to wear somebody's name on a pair of jeans. But with the number of names appearing on jeans now-a-days, I guess that is just too many brands to go around. After all, who knows what makes a jean by "Silbato" different than a jean by Wrangler. The only difference is probably the price and the more expensive one will wear out faster.

I guess it is the same way with mens' shirts these days.

Myself, I am not "into" the wearing of names. Just give me a

East Jordan Freedom Festival

This little petunia, part of the Elmira float fell asleep somewhere near the middle of the parade route. She had a comfortable seat on her mother's back though, so let the parade continue on without her help of waving to the crowds.

What would an East Jordan Freedom Festival parade be without the clanking, whistling, chugging steam engine of A.D. Graham. The engine has been a feature of area parades for many years and the way it was rebuilt last year, will be around for many more.

Cutting up and making tunes is the forte of the Scottville Clown Band, just one of the many bands that performed in the parade and at a special concert immediately afterwards in the park.

Another parade entry band, the Newman League band of Sault Ste. Marie, Ontario is made up of boys and girls between 10 and 14 years of age. The league marches in many parades each summer but one of the players says they rate the East Jordan parade as one of the best.

Taking a ride on one of the carnival machines provided by Arnold Amusements was an activity many visitors to the festival participated in. The carnival provided many rides and games for people to try.

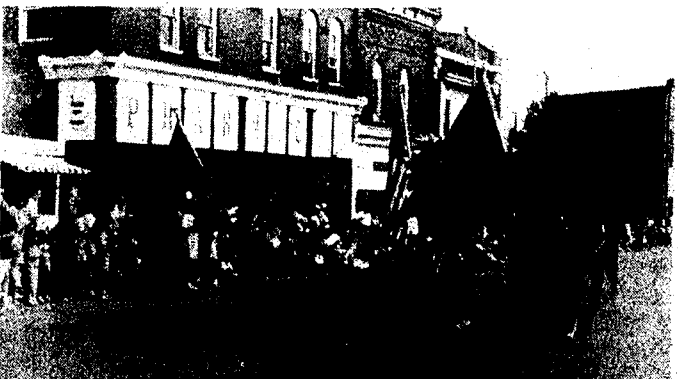

Children were kept busy at the East Jordan Tourist Park with plenty of skill games during the day.

Bagpipers are always a favorite of parade goers as this group from Sault Ste. Marie marched to the sounds of the pipes.

Even the Supremes, one of Motown's best known singing groups, entertained the judges at the Freedom Festival parade.

Taking one of the top honors in the parade was the honor guard of the Vietnam Veterans of America Post 519 of Charlevoix and Antrim County. They were joined in the parade by the Cheboygan Post, Number 274.

One of the fastest moving items of the festival is a chicken dinner prepared over the hot charcoal grills of the East Jordan Rotary Club. Every year the club sells out all of the chicken they can prepare.

No matter what your views on a woman's place in society and how well she's doing in the many roles demanded of her, if you are a she, likely men's magazines don't strike you as fine reading material. So it comes as a surprise that Esquire, a magazine that has served for 87 years as a bastion for words and pictures tailored to men's pleasures (while maintaining an intellectual stance), devoted most of the June issue to the American wife. Mostly affectionate, even glowing, some of it, women have given it mixed reviews.

Several weeks ago, feminist groups declared a boycott of Esquire based on a section with the demeaning title, "Your Wife: An Owner's Manual", a group of articles which includes "Her Handbag", "Her Bra" and "Her Plumbing", the latter showing a picture of women's internal organs portrayed as plumbing hardware. Tammy Bruce, a spokeswoman for the National Organization for Women, denounced it as putting women "on a subhuman level... into a thing mode."

Though the magazine explains the plumbing picture as a "schematic representation", even non-feminists who find the illustration humorous can see why feminists are offended.

Not all women condemn Esquire's June issue, however. Picking her way around the clearly labeled stereotypes of women such as attuned-to-nature, Organic Wife, and wonder woman, Robowife, syndicated columnist Suzanne Fields finds encouragement in Editor-in-chief Lee Eisenberg's comments on male and female answers to the magazine's recent survey on marriage views, the inspiration for the June issue.

"She is the overwhelming source of joy, inspiration, solace, guilt, passion, frustration and a balance in his life (a wife is)," Eisenberg says of men's responses.

He also reports that most men and women say they still marry

"for love", which Fields sees as a happy ending to the dreary days of the '60s and on when men viewed marriage as slavery, women chose "out in the world" over homemaking.

She sees in women's responses that they're weary of the sexual revolution and figures both sexes are ready to call off the war. (Men, maybe, but feminists, not likely.)

Detroit News columnist Ellen Berman, too, sees the shiny side of Esquire's June offerings although she understands that many won't due to the pesky "Owner's Manual" title and tone of pieces therein. Berman views the magazine as heralding "The Golden Age of Wifery" even, presenting the American wife as "smart, independent, quirky, hard-working, sexy, sometimes funny and hard to please."

Certainly quirky and funny is her handbag, its content as well. Esquire characterizes the bag as the "mother ship", because it often contains the "the cosmetics dinghy", a smaller purse holding enough for short trips to the powder room or solo at cocktail parties. The handbag's inventory shown is fair and gives marvelous meaning to Be Prepared.

Esquire has done a decent job of depicting women despite its sometimes smirky tone. Two fine articles that definitely don't smirk, one by a man and one by a woman, "Here Lies My Heart" and "P.S., I Loved You", look back on failed marriages. Both are bitter-free, heartbreaking and alone worth the price of a copy, $2.95 for June (up from $2.50) due to the unusually large size of the issue.

Does Esquire accomplish anything with this edition in terms of ending the battle, healing the wounds of the opposing sexes? Probably not, but it's an extraordinarily good read, a banquet for thought in this, the high season for love and marriage. For some of us, anyway, it is.

Charlevoix's 22nd annual craft show will be success

Combine one of the most picturesque settings in the state with a gathering of some 235 of Michigan's top craftspersons, and the result is Charlevoix's 22nd Annual Craft Show, this year Saturday July 14, a bonanza of opportunity for collectors.

Every available space in Charlevoix's East Park, Harbor Park and Bridge Park will be filled by artisans displaying and frequently demonstrating their crafts - wooden furniture, pottery, handmade stone jewelry, quilted purses, hardwood toys, original folk art, hand thrown stoneware, tile painting reminiscent of 18th century French work, decoys, dolls, stained glass, and, of course, mountain music as dulcimer craft show virtually has something for everyone, with prices beginning under a dollar.

The timing and setting of Charlevoix's craft show is ideal. The summer resort and tourist seasons have just begun, the local restaurants are in full swing, the downstate boaters are sailing in and out of the picture-book harbor enroute to and from Lake Michigan cruises, summer has found its way north, and the town is ready to celebrate.

Exhibitors come from a range of backgrounds, some full-time craftspersons, others retirees who have returned to a favored hobby. The quality at Charlevoix is very high. The park will be filled with music as dulcimer creators Jack and Shirley Folkertsma, of Alto, Michigan demonstrate their craft. "The dulcimer is a very easy to play instrument," suggests Shirley, who will play and teach while Jack carves the traditional Appalachian Mountain instrument.

This show provides an excellent opportunity to find that unique item just right for your home or cottage. It's a perfect place to buy gifts for special occasions like Christmas, birthdays, weddings or anniversaries.

The Charlevoix Craft Show starts at 10 a.m. on July 14 and promises to be an extraordinary shopping experience.

Life after retirement: managing a fixed income

Prepared by the Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants

Unless you've accumulated a bankroll that could rival Donald Trump's, retirement will almost certainly mean adjusting to a fixed income and altering one's lifestyle in ways never anticipated.

To understand the ways in which retirement can radically change your financial priorities, the Michigan Association of CPAs suggests that you look closely at what retiring on a fixed income means. You may no longer have to pay commuter costs or maintain a business wardrobe, but your credit card debts, mortgage or rent payments, and utility bills are likely to continue unchanged. At the same time, your entertainment, travel and medical bills may very well increase.

In the past, you may have counted on promotions, salary raises or bonuses to help you beat the race with inflation or credit card balances. But once you retire, your income may grow only by occasional Social Security cost-of-living increases. Moreover, the amount of risk you can afford to take in personal investments, such as mutual funds, generally decreases, along with the opportunity for dramatic appreciation of capital.

For the most part, living on a fixed income means accepting the limits and possibilities of the funds you have accumulated or earned during your working years. Judging by statistics of recent years, Social Security will probably remain a major source of retirement income—at least for individuals leaving the work force in the near future. The remaining funds usually come from an employer pension plan and such savings options as IRAs, Keoghs, or 401 (k) plans.

Ultimately, retiring with financial security means handling your fixed income with intelligence and care. Start by examining your income and expenses and formulating a realistic budget. Add up what you (and your spouse, if applicable) receive from such sources as Social Security, employer pensions, IRA or Keogh benefits, dividends and annuities. Next, total your fixed and variable expenses, such as mortgage payments or rent, utilities, medical expenses, credit card bills and recreation. Try to gauge which expenses may be affected by inflation and make adjustments to your budget accordingly. If you have duplicate credit cards, eliminate at least one.

When you have an accurate picture of your financial capabilities, consider how your lifestyle works with or against your budget. Some retirees live life to the fullest and spend lavishly on travel and entertainment, without realizing that they may outlive their capital. Other retirees are exceedingly cautious, scrimping and saving whenever possible. These people face another equally serious risk—they may never have the chance to enjoy their hard-earned savings.

Try to avoid either extreme. Remember that while budgets should not be created and revised on a whim, neither should they force you to deny yourself unnecessarily. For additional help in establishing a budget, consult a financial planner. In many cases, he or she will be able to analyze your economic situation and estimate how much money you can withdraw from your various investments each month without depleting your funds prematurely.

If, after careful consideration, you decide that your income remains insufficient for your needs, don't despair. You still have options available. Take a part-time job. You can generally earn several thousand dollars a year without affecting your Social Security payments. If you have a vacation home, consider renting it to others for at least a portion of the year. Alternatively, you can convert a garage into a rental apartment. If you are living in a home or apartment originally designed for a growing family, investigate housing alternatives such as a one-bedroom apartment or a condominium in a retirement community.

Although moving may seem an unwelcome prospect, weigh all the pros and cons before dismissing the idea. After all, moving to another city or state where the cost of living is less expensive can dramatically improve the quality of your retirement life. When contemplating the possibility of relocation, review all the financial implications of such factors as state income tax rates, utility costs, property tax and even climate. In addition, find out if the community offers retired individuals discounts on transportation, heating oil, property taxes or entertainment.

Another way to stretch your fixed income is by being aware of—and planning to minimize—your tax liability. Retiring usually results in substantially lower income and, thus, lower tax rates. But don't forget that pension income and IRA withdrawals are taxable. Take out too much money in one year, and you may end up paying more taxes than you anticipated.

For taxpayers who itemize, knowledge of the tax laws can mean more spending power. Find out about the deductions allowed as well as any restrictions that may affect your particular tax liability. For example, medical expenses are still deductible, but only to the extent that they exceed 7.5 percent of your adjusted gross income. As your income decreases and your medical expenses rise, this particular tax deduction may become more valuable to you. Keep this information in mind and you may be able to time annual check-ups and certain foreseeable medical expenses so that you can take full advantage of the deduction.

If you are considering selling your home, find out if you are eligible for the once-in-a-lifetime exclusion gain of up to $125,000 on the sale. A CPA will be able to further explain the various tax benefits available to older Americans.

Remember that being aware of your cash flow, tax benefits and community resources can go a long way in helping you enjoy a financially secure retirement.

CHERRIES
Could there ever be too many cherries? As a cherry lover from 'way back, I could never imagine such a catastrophe. Every farm in the early settled Michigan had an apple orchard and 2 or 3 cherry trees. The cherries were precious; Mother made cherry pies and cobblers and the rest were canned for the winter months. It is a little difficult for me to picture anyone, even George Washington cutting down a cherry tree or up-rooting it.

I still like to do as Mother did and can the dark sweet cherries; it is so easy to do and fun to drive to the orchards to either pick or buy them. Just wash them leave the pits in, and pack into jars. I use the pint size and use the cold pack system to can them. These cherries add a gourmet touch to any meal. Your guests from out of state or down state will appreciate our Northern Michigan cherries.

CANNING CHERRIES
The secret to canning is to have everything organized before you start.
1-For a thin syrup which is all you need for sweet cherries use:
4 cups water
2 cups sugar
Heat until sugar is dissolved and have ready to use while hot.
2-Fill sterilized cans, with washed cherries. (I do not pit them.)
3-Add the hot syrup, filling cans.
4-Put lids on cans. Have the lids

The University of Dayton is a private, co-educational school founded and sponsored by the Society of Mary (Marianists), a Roman Catholic teaching order. UD is the largest independent university in Ohio and the eighth largest Catholic university in the nation. Approximately 11,000 graduate and undergraduate students attend UD.

ready in hot water.
5-Screw the rings on but do not force for tightness.

6-Put in rack and lower into hot water in the canner which has about 4 inches water in it.

7-Add more boiling water if needed to completely cover the cans by 2 inches. (Do not pour directly on the cans.)

8-When the water comes to a boil again cover and time the process.

For cherries it takes 20 minutes to process pint jars and 25 minutes for the quart size.

After processing, as you lift the cans from the canner, complete seals at once by tightening the rings if necessary. Set jars upright out of a draft to cool; you will hear the lids pop as they seal. To test, press center of lid; if lid is down in center, it is sealed.

You can use this chart for other fruits when making your syrup. For medium syrup add 3 cups of sugar to four cups of water or syrup which makes 5 1/2 cups. For heavy syrup add 4 1/2 cups of sugar to 4 cups water for 6 1/2 cups of syrup.

There are many uses for the canned cherries. Here is a recipe from our Boyne Valley Garden Club's Cookbook. Try this elegant recipe, it will delight your family, guests, a bridge luncheon, brunch or just any time.

CHERRY WAFFLE CHATELAIN
Maryanne Watkins

8 frozen waffles
1 can (1lb.) pitted dark sweet cherries
1 can (1 lb.) light sweet cherries
1 cup sugar
1 tablespoon grated orange rind
Few drops red coloring
3 tablespoons corn starch
Vanilla ice cream

Drain cherries and save syrup. Pit if necessary. In large skillet combine syrups, sugar, rind and coloring. Save 1/4 to 1/2 cup of juice to mix with corn starch for thickening. Stir this into the syrup mixture in skillet. Bring to boil and cook until thickened and clear, stirring as needed. Stir in cherries.

Meanwhile heat waffles as directed on label. Spoon scoops of ice cream on warm waffle and cover with hot cherry sauce. May use a dollop of whipped cream if desired.

Also a variation: Spread softened cream cheese on waffle and top with hot cherries and whipped cream.

Now, you can be creative and try this sauce on sponge cake, biscuits or even French toast.

Let's not forget to visit our local orchards and country stores. There is no end to the delicious preserves, butters, jellies and jams already made for us. Now, don't wait too long to enjoy our cherries while they are ripe and fresh. It seems that the season has gone by every year before I realize it.

shirt that has buttons, a pair of pants that fit and will wear well, or a couple pair of socks.

That brings up another observation.

When was the last time you jumped into a mud puddle? I mean as kids, we seemed to do it on a regular basis. We did it to see how deep we could go without getting the shoes wet, or if we could jump across the puddle from a stand, or just to see how deep the puddle was.

Of course our mothers never knew how we kids could get so dirty. What she did not know was the challenges of youth that required one to jump into a mud puddle.

As we all know, adults would never ever do that, unless they were just overgrown kids and went to a mudbog with the family truck like those at East Jordan or the upcoming Polish Festival.

Then getting dirty is justified because it is just plain fun.

The sad tale of an orphan fawn

BY REG SHARKEY

A week ago last Sunday morning the phone jingled and Wilbur Ingalls, a good friend, living about a mile away as the crow flies, informed me that a doe with a fawn had been struck and killed by a motorist sometime during the night.

So I responded to Wilbur's request to look the situation over.

I found that the doe was heavy with milk, and knew the fawn must be nearby.

Luckily Boyne City Conservation Officer, Tom Sweet, and his assistant came driving by. We discussed about alternatives that could be used to locate and save the fawn. Before leaving Sweet picked up the doe for disposal.

A quick search of the nearby area did not locate the fawn.

I didn't sleep too well that night. I kept thinking about the fawn and its dependency on milk for survival.

So Monday morning I contacted Jack Balchik, Emmet County Animal Control Officer, and wondered if we could capture the fawn via tranquilizer dart method.

I called Dr. Zehnder, Bay Pines Clinic vet and discussed darting the fawn. He mentioned it would be touch and go as to the right dosage for a dehydrated fawn.

However, we settled on a dosage for an 8-10 pound fawn.

Later I met Balchik at the Lawrence Bedrick residence on Belmer Road where the fawn had been sighted. The Bedricks said they had seen the fawn nibbling on grass, so we delayed using the tranquilizer dart.

On Wednesday I looked for the fawn without success.

Then on Thursday morning Mr. Bedrick saw the fawn and located it hiding in tall grass under an old apple tree. Mrs. Bedrick said it looked bright eyed and alert.

This should be considered a miracle that the fawn was surviving without the mother's milk after a 120 hour period. Dr. Zehnder felt the same way.

Evidently the little orphan was getting enough moisture from the well-watered vegetation for survival.

But, alas, this little orphan wasn't destined to survive.

A couple days ago this motherless waif wandered onto the Pickerel Lake Pike, a short distance from where his mama was struck down, and died in the same manner: snuffed out by a speeding motorist.

A plea to area motorists: For God's sake take it easy up here in the North Country. Why drive like the devil to get to where you intend to go, and when you get there wonder how you are going to kill time. Mangled wildlife along our roadways is not a pretty sight.

Much of the carnage could be avoided with alert, common sense operation of motor vehicles. It could save human lives too.

Texas trained, Charlevoix grad is named Boyne football coach

Texas style football will be the name of the game this fall as the Boyne City School Board approved the hiring of Patrick (Pat) Klooster, a former Charlevoix/Albion graduate to become the new football coach for the Boyne players.

Klooster will be replacing Jack Gebauer who coached for one season and has accepted another position with a junior college in Minnesota.

The Charlevoix grad remembers playing a few times at the Boyne City field, especially the time when he intercepted a Boyne pass and returned it for a touchdown playing as a defensive back during a game his senior year in 1977. Klooster was a member of the team that year that ended up undefeated.

Now, Klooster will be trying to develop that same winning tradition in Boyne City after having played on winning teams throughout his playing days.

He was a member of the Albion football team for the four years he was in college earning a degree in physical education with a speech minor.

After graduation, he went into the banking business after moving to Texas. Five years later, he decided to use his education and went to work as head football coach and track coach for the 7th and 8th graders of the DeSoto Independent School District in Texas. There, besides coaching, he was a teacher and athletic coordinator for the school. He spent five years there before moving back to northern Michigan.

When he moved back, he did so without having a job guarantee. He only knew that this area was a great place to raise children and his commitment to the family was the reason he gave for coming home.

Klooster has two children, Mitchell, 4, and Justine, 1. His wife, Susan, agreed with the move.

Klooster is a familiar name in the north. His father owns Klooster Equipment in Atwood and he grew up in Norwood.

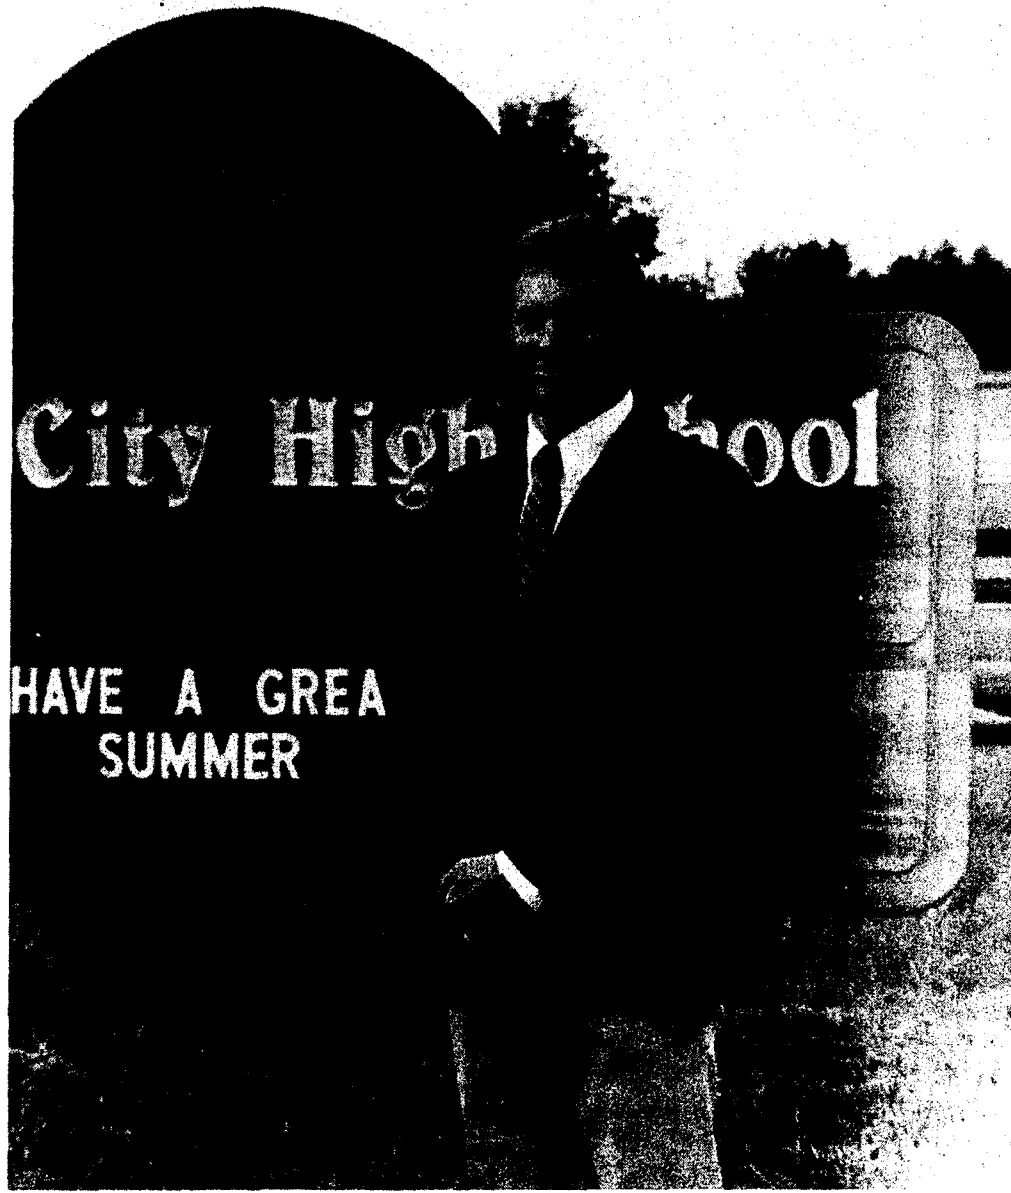

He said that before accepting the position as the football coach, he talked with many other coaches in the area discussing the move. They all agreed that the program was full of potential and he should take the position. Klooster applied for the position last year, but the communication between Texas and Boyne City was too long and he lost the position to Gebauer. When the position opened up again, he was one of the first applicants to apply.

Klooster knows he will be facing an uphill battle to make the team champions, but he is willing to accept the responsibility knowing that the program will take a few years to produce a championship team.

With his hiring, the school board also approved hiring him as a permanent substitute teacher working with both the high school and middle school. The position was created shortly before the same evening as his being named coach.

The school board feels the new position will give him high visibility in the schools and will help to get more students out for the sport.

Klooster says that the first thing he wants to do is to try to increase the number of students

Pat Klooster, the new Boyne City High School football coach in Texas for the past five years before desiring to return home to the area. The former Charlevoix player and graduate has worked as a foot-coming out for the team. The more students become involved, the better the team will be as there will be more competition to fill the spots on the team.

The second thing Klooster is going to develop is the fun of playing football and the respect that goes with the game. After that, he says, the winning will come along.

High School Principal Joe Tibaldi is especially high on Klooster, saying that he is of the same mold as Rob Neu, the basketball coach who put the team into the quarter final last season. "We are very lucky," said Tibaldi, when we called administrators in DeSoto, they said he was the best coach-teacher combination they have ever had. They also didn't want to see him move, but they knew of his wanting to get back to Michigan for the past three years."

"When you look at Pat's background, he has always been with a winning program," Tibaldi added. He also hopes that developing a winning tradition here in Boyne is sometime in the near future as Boyne City moves into a new league this coming fall.

Klooster started meeting potential football team members even before he was formally hired by the school board. Here, he met with Kevin Smith who was out hitting a few fly balls on the football field.

The aftermath of a car-deer accident usually means the deer ends up on the side of the road with a broken leg, back or dead. This deer was hit recently on a busy highway north of Petoskey. The doe also had a fawn which stayed near until the mother was carted off. The fawn might have survived but it, too, was hit by a car in the same general area several days later.

Without preventive medication, Michigan dogs are walking targets for a potentially fatal problem—heartworm disease, the Michigan Veterinary Medical Association (MVMA) reports. Mosquitoes can transmit heartworm disease, a deadly infection that attacks a dog's heart, lungs and other organs. After the pet is bitten by an infected mosquito, the heartworm larvae enter the dog's system. It may be four to six months before the disease is apparent. In 1989, a wet spring created a dramatic increase in the mosquito population in the state. With spring rains, mosquito eggs that were laid last year will hatch this spring and may create a severe mosquito season. "It takes the bite of just one infected mosquito to pass on the disease to a healthy dog," said Judy Hansen, president of the American Mosquito Control Association. "The bad news for dog owners is that the more mosquitoes present, the greater the risk of transmission of heartworm disease." Mosquitoes are the carriers of the disease. They feed on infected dogs and then transmit the heartworm larvae to other healthy animals when mosquitoes bite them. Signs of heartworm disease include a chronic cough, loss of appetite, weight loss and fatigue. These signs, however, usually do not appear until the disease is in the advanced stages. Heartworm is easily prevented, but once a dog is infected, treatment is complex and expensive. Veterinarians can perform a simple annual blood test to detect if the dog is infected with heartworms. If the test shows the pet is heartworm free, preventive medication such as daily or monthly tablets are prescribed to prevent infestation. And the preventive medication works, say Michigan veterinarians. "We are in an area where there are a lot of mosquitoes," said MVMA President Dr. Randall Evans, of Warren. "But 99 percent of our clients use preventive medication for their pets, and we see only about six positive cases a year." Veterinarians report that this is a dramatic decrease from the 20 to 25 percent infection rate of previous years. Mosquito control helps too. Mosquitoes that transmit canine heartworm disease are "container breeders" that reproduce in small bodies of water, such as cans, hubcaps and flower pots. Pet owners should remove any of these containers, no matter how small.
