

A Mid-town battlezone?

As part of the ongoing maintenance of the parks, the city crews added many loads of topsoil to the area around the Veteran's Memorial platform in the park Tuesday. The topsoil was spread out and will be seeded this week so that grass will be able to be in good shape next Memorial Day when the Vets hold their annual services. In just looking at the picture one might think that the park was the scene of a war itself.

Boyerne schools say no more than 2 mills for bonds

Boyerne City School Board members made a commitment to Boyerne City residents that the school system will not go over 2 mills as they pay off a bond issue they hope will pass the next few weeks.

The bond issue will sell about $121 million dollars that would be used to remodel facilities at the present elementary school, middle school and high school. The issue would also see improvements made to the sports facilities and build a new addition to the high school that would become the new middle school.

The present middle school would then become an upper elementary school and would be used to house the fourth and fifth grades.

The bond issue will be asking voters to approve the borrowing of money, not setting a firm millage amount to pay off the bonds. The board looked at three different ways of paying off the issue and decided that using a combination of capital appreciation bonds would limit the amount needed to 2 mills per year.

Superintendent Bob Nakoneczny told board members all of the figures presented by the bonding sellers could use as many as six mills for payback during the bonding period. That did not sit well with the board and they opted to limit the millage rate to two mills, even though it may take longer for the issue to be paid off.

The school system will be eliminating some debt retirement millage anyway as the school becomes paid off. They decided to keep that millage amount and only add the two mills extra. This means that the schools would be asking about 4.1 mills for paying off the bonds for the period it takes to pay them off.

The election this is all based upon is set for September 25.

In other business covered by the school board as they met in their monthly meeting, was joining with the out of formula school districts to sue the state over the recapture issue. The state wants out of formula schools, of which Boyerne City is one, to pay back to them the cost of social security and retirement benefits the teachers earn each year. In the past, the state has picked up those costs.

The board thinks that would be unfair to the school system and could cost the school as much as one mill could bring to the system.

The board also approved the spending of about $10,000 for improvements to the Advance Board of Commerce Building that they are using for the Alternative Education Program, fulfilling a promise they had made to the commerce board for the use of the building. Some of the improvements include a new furnace, additional insulation and windows as the school could not keep the building warm last year.

They also approved the purchase of gas and diesel fuel from Bay Oil as they were the low bidder, approved the bid of 6.35 percent interest from the First State Bank of Charlevoix for the new busses the school has ordered, and agreed to look into a land swap where the school system would be trading their Building Trades constructed home for the Jablonski property which is next to the football field.

In the land swap, they will be condemning the property, getting an appraisal based on a commercial use value and having the Jablonskis paying for the finishing of the new home.

The board also approved the purchase of four acres of land for $9,000 which they will use in the future for the building trades classes to construct housing. The property is on Anderson Road.

The board also agreed to purchase a new duplicator for the elementary school, appointed election inspectors, and approved the audit report by the school auditing firm.

They also discussed setting and revising board goals, heard a report on the property transfers approved by the Intermediate School District, and made plans for attending the fall Michigan Association of School Board conference.

In the reports from the principals, the board learned the school opened last week in a "phenomenal way" according to Nakonecny. He told the board the school system has never had a school opening go so well with learning starting from the first hour of classes.

The first preliminary count of students shows the system is growing at a fast rate. The elementary school (grades K through 4) now has 590 students with 180 in kindergarten. At the middle school, the count for the first days was 414 students (grades 5, 6, 7, and 8) while the high school had 311 students for grades nine through 12.

City to rebuild N.Lake, Groveland streets

Just like almost all of the other communities in the area, Boyerne City will also have a major street program that will cause detours, delays and other construction problems this fall as the city officials showed plans to the Boyerne City Commissioners at their Tuesday noon meeting.

The plans show the renovation of Lake and Groveland Streets starting at the corner of North Lake, Groveland and Michigan Avenue as it heads south into town.

Starting at the corner, the city will see H&D Roadbuilders totally redoing the intersection adding storm sewer, water lines and sanitary sewer connections as well as curbing and gutter. That part of the project will cause the detour around the project area for a few days, according to Randy Frykberg, City Manager.

Then the road will be widened to 30 feet of drive area, four feet of paved bike path on each side, and gravel shoulders. The roadbed underneath the present road is concrete and that will be torn out for about 300 feet. In the rebuilding, curbing and gutters will be added along with storm drains to catch water runoff. The road will get about three inches of asphalt to replace the present roadway.

The work will continue down to Line and Groveland Street which will see improvements to that intersection with curb and gutter.

From that intersection, the road will be widened, again with curb and gutter and storm drains as it comes down the slight hill to the Lake Street intersection.

From Lake Street to United Technologies, the road will be redone to eliminate the standing water by adding storm drains and curbing. Near the entries to the boat launch, the road will be raised slightly to eliminate those low spots.

Around the plant, the storm drains which are presently in the road will be moved off to the side and a low rolling curb will be added to delineate the roadway from the parking areas of the plant.

One part of the project still to be determined is an agreement with Glen's Market has not yet been worked out, would be to see a new entrance to the Glen's complex with a slowdown and turn lane that would be extended all the way to Vogel. The new entry may double in size for Glen's, Frykberg told the commissioners.

The project will end at Vogel Street as that is where the money will run out for the project the city has been wanting for several years.

Since the money to pay for the rebuilding of the street will be coming from an Economic Development Transportation Grant, which will figure out to about $210,000, the total project will have to be completed in phases. The next phase, which will cost about as much, will see the street improved from Vogel to the Boyerne River bridge.

Frykberg hopes the city can get that grant next year so the project could be completed. He did say that the dips and bumps in Lake Street from Vogel to the bridge will be fixed still this fall.

Another part of the rebuilding project will see the completion of the Altair Drive in the Air/Industrial Park. That street will get the top coat of asphalt and will get shoulders added to the drive.

H&D is supposed to be starting towards the end of the month with completion expected by the end of October. If the project is not completed in time, the work will end wherever at the end of the construction season, he added.

In action at the Tuesday evening meeting, the city discussed the annual fall leaf pick-up program which will be slightly different this year. The city will be announcing when the pick-ups will start about a week or two ahead of schedule and this year, the city will request the use of degradable bags for the leaves. The city will be selling the bags at a cost of 20 cents each.

Frykberg said the city will not be using the East Jordan vacuum truck like they did last year. He also said he expects to have the city workers take about a week on the north side of town followed by another week on the south side.

The city will be using the chipper to chip up small limbs and brush he added.

In other action, the commission approved the appointments of several people to various advisory boards.

East Jordan to hold hearing on city street parking, open burning

East Jordan may be changing street parking on several streets, if Police Chief John Imeson and the city's public safety committee decides at a public hearing set for Thursday, September 13th at the City Hall.

The hearing, set to start at 4 p.m. is looking into the recommendations of the chief after he had presented a map to the city council last week showing streets he believes need new or different parking regulations.

The streets concerned include a two block section of Main Street between Division and Hurlbert that was recently posted with no parking signs although several residents have asked the council to rescind the new rules.

Other streets include sections of Second Street, between Division and Nichols and between Garfield and Esterly. Both sides would have a no parking regulation if approved. Another section of Second Street, between Garfield and Nichols, would see parking allowed only on one side of the street.

Additionally, areas of Third Street from Williams to Mill, Esterly from Second to Fourth Streets, would be changed to allow parking on only one side.

At the north end of town, two blocks of Main Street north of Division and one block of Mary Street would also be closed to parking. Spring Street, by the Ironworks is also expected to be closed to parking.

Another action referred to the Public Safety Committee would be to pass an ordinance that would control open burning within the city.

Fire Chief Dick Barnett, along with Councilman Howard Hosler asked the city to eliminate or control the burning of such items as treated lumber, chemical containing cans and plastics as well as construction materials and garbage.

Barnett also suggested the elimination of burning of leaves, trash and brush as the city provides bags and send out crews to pick up those materials at different times of the year.

Only the fire chief can issue open burning permits in East Jordan, although many homeowners don't get the permits, they just burn the refuse, Barnett added.

Opinions

You can help decide

Perhaps one of the more important votes is coming up September 25th which could determine whether or not Boyne City Schools continue on a path toward educational progress.

The voter will determine whether or not the school system will be overcrowded and have to spend, no, waste money, buying portable classrooms and remodeling with limited funds in order to house students.

Sure, the school system looks like it is not overcrowded, at least at the high school where there are still small class sizes, but when you look at the middle school you can see that they are almost crowded out into the halls. Even so, they have had to move out the band program and transfer students to the high school for their one-hour classes.

And with a kindergarten class of about 130 children, the elementary school is extremely tight with classroom space. Several years ago, the crowded conditions of the incoming larger classes caused the movement of the fifth grade to the middle school classrooms. Now the crunch is hitting both school buildings and will soon be at the high school.

It is up to the community to decide whether they want overcrowded conditions and all that comes with a school system like that, officials say. What they don't say is what they will have to do if the proposed bond issue fails.

Will they have to transport students to Boyne Falls or East Jordan, paying those school systems tuition?

Will they have to eliminate classes like band, science, and such, so they can have the classrooms to teach English in?

We think the school system is in trouble, if only because of what they may have to do to keep up with the growing population coming into the school district.

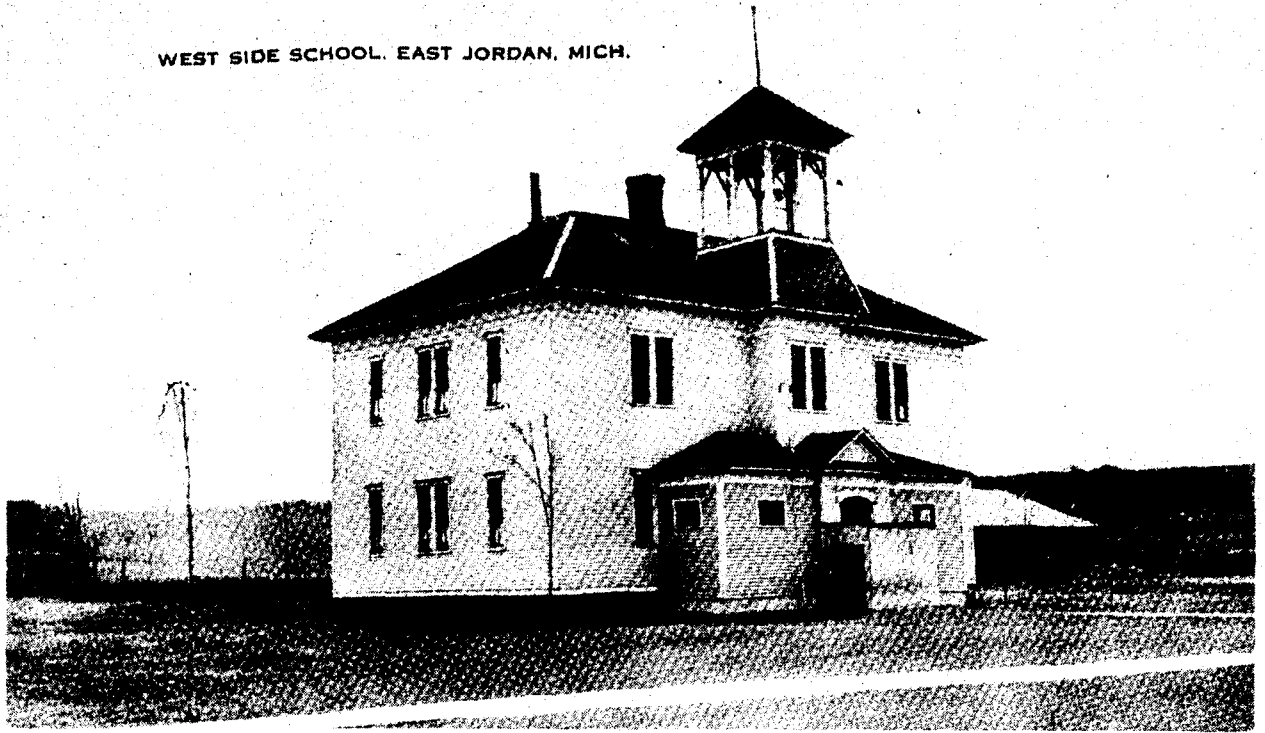

The only plan of attack they have is to build, and that is something voters and taxpayers may not let them do.

If any voice is important for the growing number of students, it is the electorate. Only they will decide the program Boyne City Schools will follow.

And like it or not, the only real answer is to see them build, remodel, and reform the schools into something that will allow the system to sustain a good education for the students for the coming years ahead.

Says "People do care!!"

Editor,
The Charlevoix County Hospice would like to take this opportunity to thank Boyne Rapids Adventure Golf for holding a Miniature Golf Fundraiser for us the weekend of August 17th, 18th and 19th. For each coupon turned in, they gave hospice a dollar. We thank Brian Williams and his father Glenn, as they approached us about having a fundraiser to help hospice. People really do care!!

As with all fundraisers, there are people who had to set it up, so I would like to thank Barbara Polinski and Edith Todter who worked with Brian, and to Sue Miller who designed the special tickets that we used.
And thank you to everyone who played for hospice that weekend.

I see where the county, along with Emmet County, is going to participate in an emergency drill, or exercise. Boy did that set my brain a thinking.

I could see all kinds of possibilities that they could have for some disastrous event. But all they could come up with was a tornado or something.

If I were the disaster chief, and someone came up with just a tornado disaster, the first question I would have would be where did it touch down? Was it on Lake Charlevoix, where it would turn into a water spout? Or was it someplace in sparsely populated Chandler or Hudson Township, where it could do little damage to humans?

If it land in the water, was the emergency crew ready to pump out basements of homes that would have been deluged with water? Or were the woodcutters at the ready with their chain saws to cut up all of the windblown trees for firewood?

Now, you have to remember that this is a drill so we can simulate the pumping of basements, the cutting of trees and saving of the lake.

Of course, if I were the person helping to decide the disaster, I would make it a multiple type of thing.

There were thirty-five touch-downs of tornados, or we could have a hurricane come in off of Lake Michigan with sustained winds of 135 miles an hour for about 15 hours, complete with a downpour that would bring about 22 inches of rain inside of three hours or something.

But, in reality, maybe we could suggest a blizzard with snow drifts up to your armpits, and have the County Road Commission on strike wanting more money before they plow. And along with that, have a few chimney fires, one house fire and a leak in some gasoline storage tank. With this scenario, we could also have a gas leak caused by the frost heaving of the pipeline that flows through the Chandler Forest.

Of course, we would have to add a few car crashes since the roads would be filled with snow, and have at least one expectant mother who has to go to the hospital to have her baby.

Now that would be something the emergency crews could sink their teeth into as they worked through all of the problems.

As it is, with just a tornado, it seems like the disaster training will be too easy. After all, the most deadly tornado that has ever hit Michigan hit in the Flint area some years ago and took out a few blocks of houses. Now that was a tornado disaster.

I am glad though, that there are people who can practice on these simulated disasters. You never know when we will have to face the real thing. And it is nice to know that we have trained people who do know what to do to bring us through the problems.

Hawk provides rare sight in Regs' backyard

BY REG SHARKEY
I was admiring the cardinals at the bird feeder when a winged hunter swept around the corner of the house and the panicked songsters winged for cover. Too late to gain the safety of a nearby bush the trailing drab youngster was plucked off in mid-air, and the aerial courser settled to the ground with his victim. Dashing for an ever ready camera, I was able to snap a couple frames of the sharp-shinned hawk before the little raptor took off into the bushes with his prey. Sharp-shinned hawks are woodland birds of prey that subsist mostly on song birds which might conflict with those of us who set our standards for wildlife department.

However, we must realize that hawks, like the little sharp-shinned, have been around for centuries, yet the song bird population seems not to be in decline; and if it is, more than likely it is caused by human interference, such as habitat destruction or indiscriminate use of pesticides.

When I was a youngster I recall that every hawk was considered a chicken hawk or vermin that should be eliminated. Shooting on sight was common and traps on elevated poles were set around homesteads having free roaming poultry.

It was difficult to believe those who were ahead of their times in realizing the birds of prey were part of nature's checks and balances.

So how do you know when you see a sharp-shinned hawk? This fierce little accipiter runs from 10-14" in length; wingspread 20-27". It has a rusty-barred breast. Adults have a dark back, and the tail folded is square on the end, which is a sure way to separate it from the near look-alike, but larger Cooper's hawk, whose tail is rounded on the end.

Then, too, the sharp-shinned seems to be able to navigate the brush and thickets in pursuit of small birds better than the larger Cooper's.

Regardless of whether the hawk you see is a sharp-shinned or a Cooper's consider yourself lucky to see them.

And if they should make an aerial reconnaissance around your bird feeder and pluck off a sleep-at-the-switch songbird, and you are witness to the drama, you will have been doubly blessed, and the songster that provided a chicken dinner for the hawk was a dummy unfit to beget offspring.

In nature, unlike in human society, only the fittest survive to reproduce their own kind.

Addendum: Last Wednesday, I tooled over to the DNR Higgins Lake Conference Center for the annual DNR's retiree get-together.

It was nice to renew old acquaintances and rehash accomplishments by us old-timers.

Seldom does the session expire without words about former deceased DNR Director, Ralph "Mac" MacMullen.

In light of listening to the present DNR Director, David Hales, expound on "Where Are We Going," for a solid hour, and then another 20 minutes answering two questions, one about the "Rotenone Fiasco," I thought about Mac, and how he could have educationally entertained us covering the same subject in nothing flat.

If we only had Mac back in the director's saddle again, his dynamic leadership would put a lot of interdepartmental bickering and foot dragging to rest. And I'm sure he wouldn't be in the Governor's hip pocket.

Boyerne plays tough but loses to Rogers City

Boyerne City's football team spent too many minutes on the field trying to protect their endzone as they ended Friday night. This week the team will be heading to Mancelona for a must win game to protect the season. up losing to the highly touted Rogers City Hurons last

To say that Boyerne City lost another game would be only partially right, even though they played one of the best teams, the Rogers City Hurons, in northern Michigan last Friday. The Ramblers ended up on the short side of a 34-8 loss, but the final score was not the game as the Boyerne team showed local fans a lot of improvement over last year.

This was the second game of the season for the Ramblers, they had won last week against a team that was supposed to beat them and came out on top.

This week it was the other way around as the only touchdown scored, came in fourth quarter after the team finally started to move the ball. Roy Angel carried it into the zone with a reverse run around the left end. Kevin Smith busted through the line for the two point conversion.

The game started off with the Ramblers only making 18 offensive plays in the first half as the Rogers City team had too much experience to let the up-start Rambler team play the same control kind of ball they played previously.

According to Coach Pat Klooster, there were two main items that caused the team to fail. He said the defensive effort of the secondary level of players defending was not up to snuff, and the offensive penalties, mistakes caused the team to try to play "catch-up" ball.

The defensive team was on the field most of the game trying to contain the onslaught that the Hurons tried to provide.

About the only thing that Boyerne could do to stay in the game was their punting which continued to put the Hurons deep into their own territory. That they worked themselves out almost every time was to their credit, as they connected with passes and runs that gained yardage and first downs.

Klooster said that the game saw some improvement in the players in that they played better fundamentally, but seemed to lack the discipline that they had last week. He says the team still has a long way to go, but he thinks the Ramblers will win some games this season, now that two of the best teams are out of the way.

Kevin Smith had 19 carries for a total of 43 yards while Matt West carried eight times for 30 yards. Roy Angel had seven carries for 59 yards and the TD. Quarterback Mike Feagan had two carries for 12 yards but only had one completion for eight passing attempts.

Defensively, Eric Kujawski and Kevin Smith played good solid games while on the offensive line Kevin Lockman and Kujawski did a good job.

This week, the Ramblers travel to Mancelona to play what Klooster says will be a good even ballgame.

Record now 0-2

Devils drop game to Rayders

East Jordan came up on the low end of a 34-13 score last Friday when they met the Rayders of Charlevoix, putting their second loss into this year's record books.

Charlevoix scored first in the first quarter with a 24 yard run by Brian Coolman with Dan Terryberry adding the extra point. That was followed by East Jordan coming right back with a long drive and a one yard run in by Scott Beal for the first Devil score. Tom Zipp added the extra point.

The game went back and forth until the second period when Charlevoix came back with a TD by Terryberry running the ball in from a couple of yards out. He also hit the extra point attempt.

But the Devils came back again with Beal running the ball in for another TD but this time the extra point attempt failed. An additional drive ended when the Devils fumbled the ball and Charlevoix recovered on the EJ seven yard line. They quickly ran the ball into the goal to make the score at the half 22-13.

Another touchdown by Charlevoix in the third quarter came on a 25 yard scoring pass from Terryberry to Eric McElroy. They added to the score with a touchdown in the fourth quarter when Scott Campbell ran three yards to the paydirt.

Coach Bob Rebec had told the players they had to improve over their performance of last week and it showed in the results, even with the loss.

Beal, a fullback, led the EJ offense with 101 yards in 14 carries while Zipp hit for six of eight passes. Beal also took the top honors defensively with 14 tackles.

Dominates Boyne Falls, Charlevoix to open season

Boyne girls win first two games

Boyne City girls' basketball team started off this season where the boys almost ended, on a winning note after taking two easy wins where they dominated both Boyne Falls and Charlevoix.

The girls jumped the commanding leads in both games taking an easy win over the lady Loggers, 62 to 17, and 63 to 30 over the Rayders.

At Boyne Falls, the Rambler girls caused the Loggers to make turnover plays happen with frequency as the inexperienced Loggers ran into a half court trap game the Ramblers used during the first half. That helped cause 40 turnovers as they could not get by the defensive effort of the experienced Ramblers.

In scoring, Dawn Archambault and Chrissy Gervasi dropped in 14 points each, while Christen Harvey added 12 more to lead the scoring for the Ramblers. Joann Bears hit for seven of Boyne Fall's points to lead her team.

Boyne hit for 30 field goals and made two out of five foul shots. The Loggers only had five field goals, seven of 27 free throws.

Over in Charlevoix last Thursday, the Ramblers experience showed as they ran up against a team consisting mostly of sophomores and juniors. Boyne dominated the entire game, letting the Rayders have hardly any offensive effort, coming up with 23 steals and out rebounding the Rayders throughout.

Leading the scoring for Boyne were Archambault who hit for 20 points, Christen Harvey with 19 and Gervasi with 10.

The Ramblers took the lead from the beginning, running up a 24-9 advantage in the first quarter, then to a 39-17 lead at the half and 55-17 at the end of the third period.

Coach Russ Harvey said it was a good night for the team as they all had a chance to play and make scores.

NW Mich. Habitat group looking for homesites

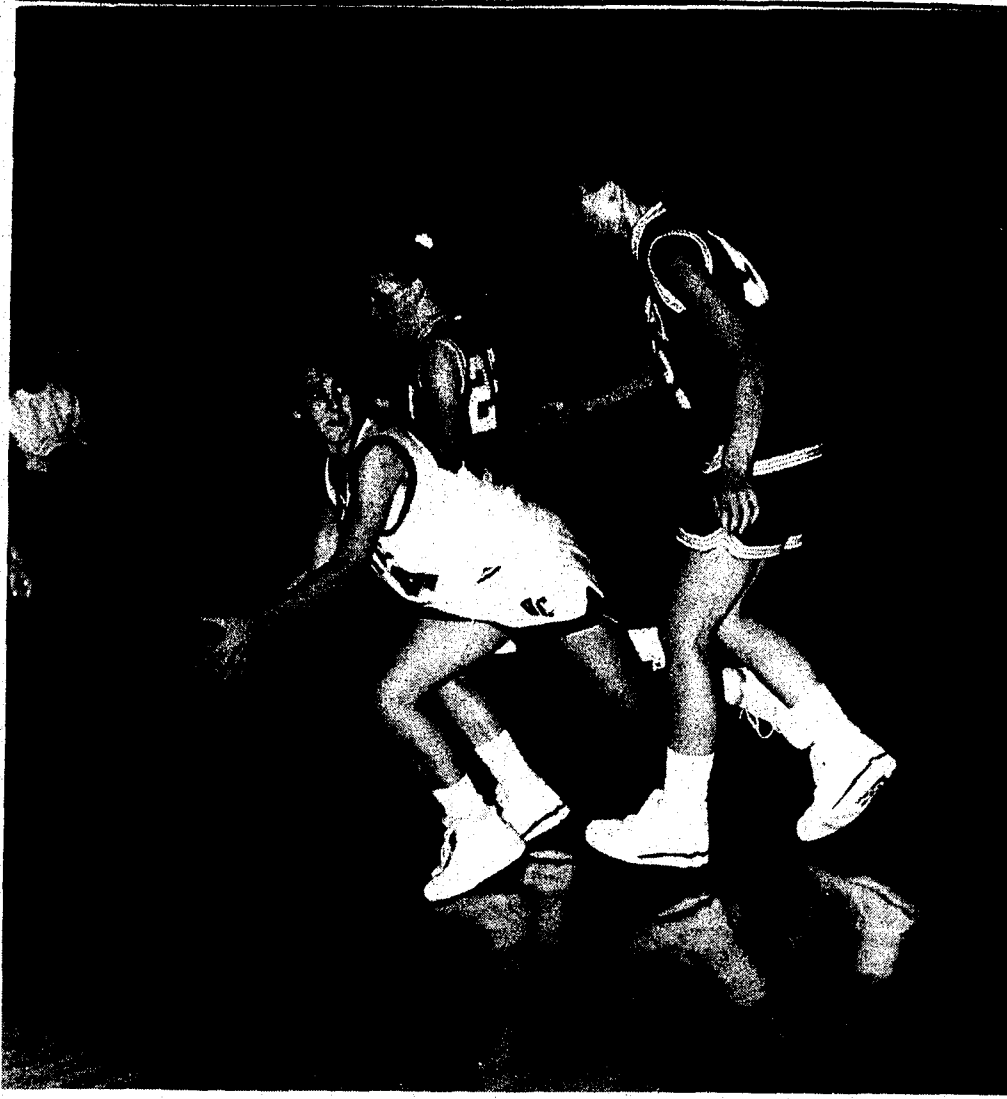

An informational meeting of Northwest Michigan Habitat for Humanity was held in the First Congregational Church, Charlevoix, on Monday evening, August 27, with Stan McDougal, chairman, presiding.

McDougal reported that about half of the $3,000 required for affiliation of the local chapter with International Habitat has been attained. When the total amount is received, the local chapter may then proceed to implement its goals of building one new house in both Charlevoix and Emmet counties within a year.

Anneka Dhasleer, treasurer, reported that donation monies have been received from both individuals and churches.

Jackie Koehler-Miller, chairperson of the fundraising committee, informed the group of the information and fundraising mailing sent out this summer and stated that special projects and presentations will begin in the fall. T-shirts bearing the Habitat logo, the banner which was carried in the Petoskey Fourth of July parade, and donation boxes, which are available for distribution to local churches, were displayed during the meeting.

Dave Knight, member of the family selection committee, informed the group of criteria the committee will be using, for selecting Habitat families for the two houses. Knight also reported meeting with some local realtors to explain Habitat's needs and criteria for site selection.

Dawn Archambault looks for someone to pass the ball during the game last Thursday with Charlevoix. The Rambler girls dominated the game on both ends of the court as they posted their second win of the season.

Michigan farmers are eligible for disaster assistance

Congressman Bob Davis today received word from the U.S. Department of Agriculture that six counties in Northern Michigan have been designated natural disaster areas. "Fruit and vegetable farmers in Antrim, Benzie, Grand Traverse, Leelanau, Manistee, and Mason Counties may qualify for Farmers Home Administration emergency loan assistance," Davis stated. "Growers in this region were blasted earlier this year by waves of harsh weather, including heavy rain, frost, freezing temperatures, hail and high winds... all that having occurred between May 2 and July 4."

The Agriculture Department has determined the above counties sustained sufficient production losses in fruit and vegetable crops to warrant designation as primary county natural disaster areas. In addition, a group of nine contiguous counties have been designated such that fruit and vegetable farmers in those areas may also qualify for emergency loan assistance. Those areas include Charlevoix, Crawford, Kalkaska, Lake, Missaukee, Newaygo, Oceana, Otsego, and Wexford Counties. This disaster designation makes FmHA emergency loans available in these fifteen counties. Loan applications will be evaluated on a case-by-case basis taking into consideration the extent of losses, the availability of loan security, repayment ability, and other eligibility requirements.
