

Team salute

In a complete turnaround from previous seasons, Boyne City has been winning a few football games, three so far this season with only one loss. The Boyne players all raised their helmets in a salute to the crowd for getting behind the team this season as the game against Harbor Springs last Friday ended up with a 14-7 score in the rain.

BC bonding issue defeated by 122 votes

"The community is going to have to tell us, the Facilities Utilization Study Committee and the students how they are going to solve the space problems the school faces," Superintendent Bob Nakoneczny said after learning the $12.4 million dollar bonding issue was defeated by a vote of 711 no votes to 589 yes votes.

Nakoneczny moments later said that the election results just showed that the people of the community just don't want to pay higher taxes. "And I can't say I blame them. In Boyne City they are paying five mills for sewers. I just can't understand why they could not see the needs of the school system for an extra two mills that would ensure the future of the children," he added.

In reflecting on the failed issue,

Nakoneczny said that buildings for education are a community concern. If the sentiment of the community is not to build, then we will have to start spending money to buy portable classrooms if we can't come up with another answer.

He also said that any other answer means that the problems of today will not be able to be solved, even with another election covering the same costs and ideas, until the fall of 1993.

Nakoneczny said that is the length of time that is required to produce the plans, get the bids, and start construction in the springtime.

He had figured that if the bonding issue had been approved, the board would have met Thursday to set the tax roles to start the process so bonds could be sold. Other meetings were planned with the architectural committees to start work on the proposed changes that would have added additional classrooms and made other improvements to the three schools.

Nakoneczny figured that if the school system had gotten 600 yes votes the issue would have passed, but he had planned on the 600 votes based on the number of voters of the past three elections. In this election, 1315 voters came out to voice their opinion. That number was more than those who had voted in the past three regular school elections.

Nakoneczny doesn't know what the school system will do to meet the classroom needs next year, he said the board will have to start studying the issue to come up with a solution.

Nakoneczny said he felt bad for all those people who devoted time to draft the plans the school needed.

He added that it has been a very energetic two years for Boyne City, committee people, staff and others who worked very hard to determine the future of the students in the school system. He reiterated that now those who voted should come forward to let the system know what they want for the future.

Boyne City going after grants

Boyne City will be going after some grants from the state, thanks to action from the city commissioners Tuesday during their noon meeting. The grants, if approved by the state, will allow the city to start a glass and plastic recycling, along with a compost recycling program through Department of Natural Resource grants.

Other grant requests include asking for money from the Department of Commerce so the city could start an economic strategy study. A fourth request will be submitted to the Department of Transportation which would provide additional monies to pay for the rebuilding of Lake Street from Vogel to the Boyne River.

All of the grant requests have the same due date, according to Sue Hobbs, who has been filing the grant applications for the city. If approved the grants would bring about $318,800 to the city to use for fulfilling the grant approvals. The city share for the grants would total $77,450.

If approved, the first grant request would provide a leaf loader and a brush chipper to the city, a first stage in developing a recycling program for the development of composting materials for city and resident uses. Previously, the city has worked with East Jordan on leaf and brush pick-up, using equipment rented from East Jordan. That city received a grant last year to purchase the equipment.

Because of the co-operation of the cities, it was determined that having the vacuum leaf truck and the chipper was not enough equipment for both cities to use in order to get the work completed before the winter set in.

Boyne City will opt for a special piece of equipment that will pick-up leaves in rows and move them by conveyor belts to waiting trucks who would take the leaves to the North Boyne leaf and brush landfill area. The brush would be chipped up and blown into a truck similar to the way it is presently done.

The second request is also a "first stage" as part of the process of gathering equipment to start a recycling program. The city wants to get a large dumpster that would have compartments for various types of recyclable materials. The city plans on going to a bag system eventually, where the sale of bags could defray the expenses of transporting the recyclable materials. According to the grant request, the city figures this to be about four years before the program is self sustaining. In the meantime, they hope to find volunteers to run the operation.

The third request will be to allow the city to develop a study to determine the direction they want the city to go as far as economic development is concerned. The request would allow the city to be able to pay experts in the field to write the study and determine what the strengths of the community are and how they can be developed.

The last request is really a continuation of the Lake Street rebuilding program which is slated to begin next week. The street, from Michigan Avenue to Vogel is slated to undergo reconstruction, widening and allow for special curbing and a bike path. This year the city received a grant from the state which will only allow them to complete the street to Vogel. If approved, the grant would complete the rebuilding of the street from Vogel to the river.

The final item on the agenda for the commissioners was to announce a detour for the area of Michigan and Groveland streets when contractors will be connected up sewer and water lines for the new Hawkridge Condominium project.

The detour will take cars and trucks from the west onto Court Street and over to Park Street before coming into town. It is expected the road will be closed for several days while the connections are made.

Parking rules almost adopted in E.J.

It's almost official in East Jordan that action is expected to be taken Oct. 2nd for new parking rules on several streets near the downtown area, after the city council agreed to the recommendations of the parks and safety committee last Tuesday, Tuesday.

The city will be taking down the no parking signs on the northernmost block of Main Street, but parking will still be against the rules on both sides of the street between Division and Hurlbert.

No parking will also be enforced on Second Street between Garfield and Nicholls or on Nicholls Street between Main and Second. During the winter months, parking will be allowed only on one side of the street of Main Street between Esterly and Garfield.

Other street concerns where parking rules were supposed to be employed will be under further study this winter. Those include Main Street between Nicholls and Division and around the intersection of Third and Esterly.

The city also heard an update on another highway project slated to begin next spring at the corner of M-32 and M-66. City Superintendent Mike Dionne said the intersection will see a right turn lane for those turning north on M-66 and a right turn lane for those turning east onto M-32.

Jordan River Arts Council elects new officers

Howard Ellis was elected president of the Jordan River Arts Council board at the Tuesday, September 18 meeting, replacing Fran Pletz who had served as president since the organization's founding in early 1988.

A teacher in East Jordan's PREP program and an adult foster care aide at Charlevoix House, Ellis has been an active board member for two years, heading up both the nominating committee for board members and the committee to establish the board's official goals. He is also chair of Jordan River Players and a member of Jordan River Community Chorus.

Because the council's bylaws limit consecutive terms of office to two years, all offices changed hands. Pletz will serve as vice president in charge of membership. A retired executive director of the Michigan Library Association and a former Crooked Tree Arts Council board member, Pletz was also instrumental in launching a new established East Lansing arts workshop.

Tom Teske will serve as vice president in charge of finance, replacing Cindy Dalian whose board term expired. Teske was fundraising coordinator for the board's recent trip-to-Paris raffle.

Todd Malpass will replace Rita LaVictoire as secretary, and Betsy Peterson will replace Sharon Jackson as treasurer. Both LaVictoire and Jackson remain as board members.

Ellis announced that three committee chairs will continue their duties: Denise Steely, program advisory; Lenore Bechtel, public relations and Frank Hessel, house.

Dawn Johnson will coordinate volunteers, and Jerry Aydlott will head the finance committee.

The fundraising committee chair is still to be named, along with the parliamentarian and historian.

Board meetings are held at 7:30 p.m. on the third Tuesday of each month, the next meeting being October 16. The public is always welcome.

"Flowers in Needlework" topic of East Jordan Garden Club talk

"Flowers in Needlework" was the topic of Marian Veryzer's talk before East Jordan Garden Club members when they met Monday, September 17th in the District Library's meeting room.

Mrs. Veryzer and her husband, Bob, both artists, have recently retired to the area from Purdue University in Lafayette, Indiana. She is an avid collector, a basket maker, lace maker, weaver and artist. Her extensive lace collection was displayed as she explained the intricacies of lace making.

Veryzer told how lace making is an International Guild, showed the use of bobbins and explained the different types of lace. She brought some beautiful needlework samplers she had made and introduced "Victoria," a large old Teddy Bear, dressed in a lace christening dress, wearing a colorful flowered hat, tiny glasses, and carrying an antique beaded handbag.

President Shirley Butcher chaired the business meeting that followed. New members were introduced by Vice-President Jean Muha. They were Bonnie Bosley, Nancy Elliott, Delores Hodge, Alice Fazlollah, Ann Clever and Mable Hudkins. The latter was named to replace Marge Smith as Historian.

It was voted to change the official calendar year from April to September and to keep the present slate of officers. Five new programs to fill in the additional months were announced by Program Chair Cyg Riley and her committee.

The District V annual fall meeting is scheduled to be held October 16 at the Embers in Traverse City.

A report on the Farmer's Market was given by Bernie Greig, chairman. The market had a very successful year and at two summer sessions a guitarist and singer performed, to the delight of buyers.

Green's Market Chairman Eleanor Van Dyke announced the Green's Workshop would be held December 3rd and the Market on December 7th.

A report on the Brown's Creek project was given by Patty Hodge. The project, which is looking forward to a grant plus private donations, has been turned over to the school system.

Hostesses at the meeting were Martha Mathews and Mary Clough.

Trade landfills for warehousing?

With Boyne City starting to look for grant money so they can start a recycling program, and other Charlevoix County communities also starting some type of recycling, maybe it is time someone should sit down and take a look at what the program should be doing.

Sure, recycling makes some sense, but to those of us who already use recycled newsprint and other recycled materials, we think the collecting of materials that can be recycled is premature.

Just taking newsprint into consideration... Plenty of studies have shown that used newsprint can be made into many items, from animal bedding to insulation.

But, right now, there are few if any companies taking the great amount of material generated each day for those and other uses.

In fact, you almost just can't give the stuff away, you have to pay to have it removed. It wasn't the case several years ago when a ton of newsprint would bring about $25 to the person who collected it. Today, if you can find a company that will take the material, you have to deliver it to them in quantities they want or else they will not even talk with you.

What this community should be doing is getting a grant to study and determine what products could utilize the household, the industrial and commercial recyclable materials. And then they should develop plants in this area to handle the material and make it into new and different products.

What we are afraid is going to happen is that we are going to just be transferring landfills from the ground to some warehouses.

With the state taxpayer paying for the warehousing. Yes, we are running out of landfill space, but maybe someone should think of better ways material could be packaged. Like a collapsible, foldable milk jug. The same could be done with other plastic bottles that may not be right for recycling. Then landfill space would not be filling as fast.

We hazard a guess that even after being compacted, there are thousands of voids in the landfills that will never see dirt tightly packed around them.

We would rather see money spent on research and development to solve a problem than just to store it as the proposals seems to initiate.

Remembrances

A fire in 1907 changed the look of the foot of Walloon Lake. This picture was taken the summer after that fire. It shows where the trains brought the resorters from the cities to the area for their summer vacations, before they boarded boats that took them out to their cottages.

Jottings

BY JIM SILBAR

Well, it is officially fall, and you mean to tell me you still haven't worn your shorts or gone for a swim? Pretty soon those summer whites will be called winter whites and you will again be in fashion, according to some of the magazines my teenage daughter gets.

The only problem is that the clothes you wear in the summer may let you freeze in the winter if you try to wear something that is not made of good old wool.

Or at least, have on a pair of long underwear to go along with those white clothes.

That is what the weather tells me as I get myself out of a nice warm bed on a Saturday morning faced with left over rain from the football game.

This weekend, I just wanted to lay in bed and try to sleep until noon, but then I remembered I had a few appointments and forced myself out of the warm sheets.

I figure in my next life, I should be allowed to sleep in almost anytime I want, after working some of the hours I have during this life.

Of course, most of the late night efforts are caused by no one else except myself as I am prone to procrastination... especially on a cold, wet Saturday morning.

I always thought that those kind of mornings weren't allowed to happen until November, or at the earliest, late October.

But according to the new almanac, this is supposed to be a cold and long winter, and me, not having my wood cut to ward off the chill.

I keep hoping, along with, I am sure, several hundred other residents, that we will get that Indian summer everyone tells me is coming.

It is, after all, the best season of the north.

But if things keep going the way they are, we won't get a good color season as the leaves will just get started to turn and another killing frost like we had recently will cause them all to fall to the ground still green.

And then they'll be covered with an early snowfall that will probably last until next July.

I haven't seen any woolly caterpillars, or squirrels hiding nuts, or any of the other winter prognosticators, but if I can believe my early season cold, we are in for a winter soon.

That the soon may be in December like it always is, is irrelevant. We northerners just expect a winter like we always have, just like we expect a summer, spring and fall.

The Humble Farmer

BY ROBERT SKOGLUND

If there is any activity on this green Earth that is more useless than genealogical research, I don't know what it is. A book on recreational activities for salt water clams would be of more use to the planet.

And why anyone would want to compile a catalog of their relatives is beyond me. Like surprising your wife by coming home from a business trip one night early, there is the intrinsic danger that you will learn something that you really didn't need to know.

Unfortunately, in a weak moment last fall I started to put the descendants of Samuel Gilchrest into my computer. Months later I had 125 pages of assorted cousins and there seems to be no end of them. Then Alice Smalley gave me some information on Noah Andrews so I put his tribe in there, too. My great-great-grandfather, Peter Hilt, attracted my attention about the same time, so I made a chart of the Hilt.

Yesterday, while desperately looking for something that would keep me from actually buckling down to work, I thought I'd tackle the Robinsons. My rationalization was that the August 19th Gilchrest reunion will be here soon, and although all Robinsons are not Gilchrests, all 125 pages of us who are descended from Samuel Gilchrest are necessarily descended from his wife's grandfather, Dr. Moses Robinson. I figured I'd collect what I could of the Robinsons and electronically paste that onto what I already had.

My sources were Eaton's Annals of Warren, Settlers and Soldiers of Cushing, Maine Before 1760 and Their Descendants Today by Bradley Beckett, and a whole folder of precious notes collected over the past 40 years by my brother Jim. Eaton's list of Dr. Moses Robinson's descendants went in first, providing the framework followed by Bradley's book, which brings us down to the present day in Cushing. Jim's contribution, in which he had recorded valuable comments ("it was believed that Alex Robinson pushed Hiram overboard") from neighbors born in the 1860s, went in last.

Among those papers, I found an interesting history of the Robinson family which was recently written by a distant cousin born and brought up in the far west. A comparison with Eaton's history (which he quotes) is certainly entertaining if not instructive. I quote from my cousin: "Recorded in the Annals of Warren: 'Moses Robinson obtained herbs from England and grew them on his farm and in his home and became the settlement doctor and along with his skill with the knife was the master surgeon and doctor for the sick in both the white and Indian population.'"

What East said (page 80) was, "Robinson, who first, a few years before the settlement here, lived in the present Cushing, made some pretensions to skill in medicine, and was the first physician in the settlement. His son, William, succeeded him in the practice of blood-letting and extracting teeth; and many medicinal plants long survived upon their farm."

Cousin: "During this time he designed and built a 14 family rooming home which was open to travelers and all new settlers while they were constructing homes on their allocated property. Dr. Moses and his family never wanted for anything. They were blessed with self support, probably one of the few of his time. Instead of needing help, they were continually helping others."

Eaton: (page 92), "Dr. Robinson had contracted with Waldo to erect a house, and have it ready for their reception on their arrival.... Robinson built the walls of logs, and partitioned the inside into fourteen rooms designed to accommodate the whole company, which contained that number of families. But from the want of materials, or other cause, the roof was never made, and the structure remained unfinished and unoccupied till the timber decayed. In consequence of Robinson's failure to complete his job, the emigrants scattered round and lived the first winter with the old settlers. Provisions were supplied them by Waldo."

But the Robinsons rallied quickly. According to my cousin's history, by the time only one of Dr. Robinson's grandsons sold out and moved west, it took six men just to carry the gold he turned over to the church.

Ware-withal

Late summer, time for catalogs to whoosh from the mailbox at each opening; after they are freed and then explosively unfurl from the tightly packed cylinder the mailperson rolls them into in order to force them in there, that is. Some good news - the suggestive red bows often appearing on their covers this time of year are blessedly missing. Alas, also missing is The J. Peterman Company catalog for fall. The summer issue still delights, though.

Catalogs use bright photographs, one pithy paragraph. Punctuation helps too in those selling small stuff, six items per page. This ad lead from Harriet Carter's catalog is in pro form: "Lifetime doormat stops mud in its tracks!"

Books advertising wares from higher class outfits like L.L. Bean don't get so excited. Still, they waste no words, get right down to glorifying their goods, just two goods per page, though. Bean emphasizes quality, uses modifiers like "durable," "supple" for material, "graceful draping" for fit, "classic" for style, to show its goods' superiority.

In The J. Peterman Company catalog, no photographs, and it's not concise either. Maybe that's why its cover says "Owner's Manual No. 6" for the summer issue.

At any rate, lightly leaning on simple language, it strolls along, lingering at each item the length of a page, in some cases, two pages. Oftentimes the text begins with an anecdote: sometimes a childhood memory, more with the British in the tropics, some historical incidents, people in the Arts. Whimsy, philosophical musings play here as well. What with this meandering, the sale item, shown in a color sketch, would get barely a nod without a full page's space.

The range of goods offered is wondrously varied: double lens flip-up sunglasses, motion sickness bracelets, pants skirts, shirts, coats, chairs, and luggage. An atlas, book catalog, blanket, basket, dinner bell, too, to name a few. The latter is a wrought iron triangle and striker, not a bell, bell. But such as it is, it fits in with this crowd.

So do the ladies' hats on the first two pages. All three are the same flat crown, medium wide brim style, but the shaping, the varied material such as damask and printed floral linen, varied trim too, widely separate them. The are intriguing. At $185, $195, a bit too much so, perhaps.

An umbrella sounds practical, reasonable. The text here starts out discussing a 25-year-old Bentley car, its timeless good qualities, reliability. Then comes the umbrella, the fact that the Queen of England owns one made by the same company, so it has to be good. This hints that it's likely not cheap too. Bottom line verifies it: $165.

Neither are boots at $238, nor "walking" tennies at $189. There are $11 suspenders. How did they get here?

The J. Peterman Company isn't meant to be a bargain business. Peterman started it because many folks liked his long coat, a duster, wanted one like it, so he obliged them. He says that they liked it because it's simple, well made, handsome, affordable ($165 for the coat) - and romantic, too. With this in mind, all his products have these qualities.

"Clearly, people want things that make their lives the way they wish they were," Peterman says.

He's right, of course. And if they can't afford to buy them, they can momentarily enjoy them in these pages.

There are those suspenders for $11. Come in teal, a blue-green. Nice color. Light hearted. Well, why not.

CMU to host wildlife exhibit by J.L. Adams

J.L. Adams of Boyne City will exhibit drawings and paintings in Central Michigan University's Creative Arts Gallery Sept. 24 to Oct. 5.

Adams was born in North Carolina and grew up among the horses and wildlife of northern Virginia. She went to Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., to study wildlife management and biology at Lake Superior State University, graduating with honors in 1979.

Adams said she works in black and white because the forms and light bring out her natural composition skills. The artist prefers oil on canvas.

She honed her craft by drawing and by studying the works of Georgia O'Keefe, Ansel Adams, Andrew Wyeth and the impressionists.

The Crooked Tree Arts Council awarded Adams third place in 1985 and first place in 1987 in juried exhibitions. She has displayed her talents in four solo shows.

Adams has traveled to Kenya, Alaska, Hawaii, California, around the Midwest and to the Florida Everglades gathering ideas for her drawings.

The drawings and paintings to be exhibited in the Creative Arts

Second magazine rates Boyne best in midwest

Boyne Mountain was named the top day and weekend getaway resort in the Midwest, according to a just-released reader poll in Ski Magazine's October issue.

Almost 1,300 readers evaluated 200 North American ski resorts, based on 13 categories including snow quality, terrain, lift facilities, family programs, ski schools and accessibility.

Boyne Mountain was termed "Tops in day hops" by the magazine, which reflected the resort's easy-to-reach location, close-by parking and consistent snow conditions.

Boyne Mountain also was rated number one for weekend ski trips because of its reasonable drive from Metropolitan cities, diverse ski terrain and efficient lift systems.

EJ eighth grade students learn kayaking

Eighth grade students in Bill Chase's Outdoor Education class recently studied a unit on kayaking. Whitewater kayaks are short, flat-bottomed boats which are designed to be maneuverable in fast-moving water. Gerry Brindel, a former mountain climber, came to Mr. Chase's class on Monday to discuss water safety and correct procedures for kayaking.

Mr. Brindel brought slides to share his past experiences with the students.

The students in the class were divided into smaller groups and began their kayaking experiences over a three day period. They began by meeting at East Jordan Tourist Park, paddling, and exiting the kayak underwater after purposely overturning it. Bill Drake of Petoskey, Bill Williams of Horton Bay, and Angie McClanahan, a student teacher in East Jordan, helped Mr. Brindel with the kayaking exercise.

Mr. Brindel has been white water kayaking across the United States and in Central America. This summer he paddled 30 hours non-stop across Lake Michigan.

Reg Sharkey's Northern Journal Hand-taming song birds

BY REG SHARKEY
What the old saying "A bird in the hand is worth two in the bush" meant can only be left to conjecture.

More than likely it had something to do with hunting, when one dead bird bagged was worth two that wouldn't end up on the festive board.

But let's talk about hand-taming wild birds.

About the best way to tame birds is through feeding.

First of all it takes time and patience. Some birds seem to respond more readily than others, and wintertime, when natural food is harder to come by, is the opportune time to try your "hand" at it.

Perhaps the easiest bird to hand tame is the friendly, confiding little chickadee. Then, too, the nuthatches, goldfinches and pine siskins also seem to respond to taming. Larger avians are a little harder in gaining their trust. But is time and patience are one's virtues, most any bird, according to the Audubon Society's Bird Encyclopedia, can be tamed.

Even the wary sandhill crane can be tamed to accept the close presence of man. The late Mr. Neff, during his tenure as Mt. Michigan Outdoors, filmed a crane that had been tamed by a farmer in the Upper Peninsula of Michigan.

Wintertime is the best time to attempt hand feeding when they are the hungriest, but success is

BC girls drop two in week's action

Boyerne City Girls' basketball players learned what a heart-breaking game basketball can be after coming out on the losing end of two games last week. The team lost against Traverse City St. Francis on Tuesday, 41-43 and again on Thursday to Elk Rapids 44-56.

The game against St. Francis had the girls leading throughout the first half hitting 22 while the St. Francis team only hit 15. Coming out after the halftime breakthrough, the team got slightly cold and allowed St. Francis to hit 28 points while the Ramblers could only tally 19. A last second shot won the game for the opponents and made a long drive home for the team.

Taking top scoring honors for the Ramblers was Kristen Harvey with 19 while Dawn Archembault added 10.

At the home court on Thursday, the Ramblers ran into the cold fourth quarter, only hitting two points to allow the Elk Rapids girls to take commanding lead. Boyne again started off well, but fell behind in the second period, played even in the third and sat on the bench during the final quarter.

Harvey and Archembault shared the top scoring honors with 14 points followed by Kris Crozier with eight.

Devilettes 1&1 for week

BY JENNIFER BURR
The East Jordan Devilettes hosted the Harbor Springs Rams on Thursday while absorbing the defeat of 59-57. East Jordan played neck-n-neck with the Rams throughout the first half, and by the end of the third quarter held a slim three point lead.

It was anybody's ball game going into the fourth quarter as the Rams pulled ahead by five points, due in part to East Jordan fouling. With 32 seconds left Carrie Gee put up a three pointer that was good, bringing the Devilettes to within two points but that was the last of the scoring for the evening.

For East Jordan, Danielle Looze had a stellar performance with 20 points, followed closely by Buffy Kooyer with 15, and Gee with seven. On the defensive side Looze led East Jordan with 11 rebounds assisted by Kooyer, Gee, and Dwanya White with three each. Both teams committed 19 fouls apiece by Harbor Springs led the free throw shooting with 11 of 21 while East Jordan only hit 8 of 14.

Junior high girls open season in E.J.

The local junior high girls' basketball program got off the ground on Friday, September 21, at the East Jordan Middle School Gym between East Jordan and Boyne City.

In the 7th grade game, East Jordan dominated in the first three quarters. Going into the final stanza, the host team was ahead by seven points, a sizeable margin for a 7th grade team.

In the final stanza, however, Boyne City's Trista Simon and Mandy Belford combined for 10 points and Boyne City edged out East Jordan by a final score of 24-23. Team leaders for Boyne City were Mandy Belford and Trista Simon with 10 and six points

Boyerne pulls out win with strong quarter beating Harbor 14-6

Mentally, the kids were more ready for Parents' Night than they were for playing football. Rambler Coach Pat Klooster said after reviewing the game film Saturday, "It took us a few minutes to get us going."

Even some Boyne City fans may have been provoked at the way the first half of last Friday's game with the Harbor Springs Rams was played, as neither team could move the ball except between the 30 yard markers during all of the first quarter and most of the second.

Sure, they moved the ball, but each team failed to get a sustained drive going until late in the second quarter when the Ramblers started a drive that flustered out on the Ram 11 yard line, turning the ball over on downs.

But starting with that series of plays, the Ramblers knew they could possibly make things happen on the field.

From that point, the Rams then started trying to move the ball up field, but they couldn't get anything initiated. When they kicked, a roughing the kicker penalty gave them another chance.

Devils drop fourth game

BY JENNIFER BURR
The East Jordan Red Devils traveled the sixty five miles to Onaway only to record their fourth loss of the season 33-8. The Onaway defense continued to shut down the Devils all night except for one series which was capped off by a 42 yard Tom Zipp to Jim McWatters pass good for the TD.

The extra point option by Scott Beal was good making the score 14-8 just before half. The Devils kicked off and Onaway moved the ball down to the seven yard line before fumbling over to the Devils. On the first play by East Jordan an intercepted pass spelled doom as two plays later Onaway scored for a 20-8 halftime lead and a long road back for the devils.

For the second half East Jordan's offense was put to a stop every time while their defense was put to work. Onaway scored two more touchdowns on us during the second half while our defense tried to put up a challenge.

Top tacklers for East Jordan were Scott Beal with 13, Mike Muma with 9, and Gale Ramsey and Dan Freel both brought down eight apiece.

Offensively for the Devils, the highlight was Jim McWatter's pass receiving with three catches for 73 yards. On the ground Beal had seven carries for 41 yards, while Jon Wilson carried for 13 yards.

East Jordan will travel on Friday night to the Home of the Manelona Ironmen. In Junior Varsity action on Wednesday East Jordan lost 29-6, with Lyman Harris getting 77 yards rushing and Corey Chambers leading the defense with nine tackles.

The second four plays ended almost with the same scenario, including another roughing the kicker penalty which put the ball on the Boyne 21 yard line as the time ran out for the half.

That was when Boyne City Coach Pat Klooster took over, giving the players a talking to out of the old school of coaching, he says, as he urged the players on the team to start working towards winning the game. Klooster said he was really mad at the play of the Ramblers up to that point, even talking them into another penalty caused by his not getting the team back on the field to start the second half on time.

Klooster seems to think the team listened, although he had some second thoughts when the Rams took the kickoff and drove down the field to a touchdown to start the scoring for the game. A kick for the extra point was good, putting the Rams ahead 7-0.

From the Ram kickoff, the offensive squad started thinking about what Klooster had said in the locker room as they started their first long drive of the evening. The Ramblers made 18 straight plays with the ball and ended up with a touchdown to bring them back into the game. Eric Smith carried the ball into the payoff from about one-yard out.

The Coach then told the team to try for the two point conversion for the lead and Smith again sliced off tackle for the two points making the game score 8-7 in Boyne's favor.

That drive and the eight points was the momentum changer for the team as they started to play like the fans hoped.

After a bobbled kick-off, the Rams tried to get things going for themselves but a pass attempt was intercepted by Rambler Roy Angel and that started another 16 play drive by the home team, aided by a pass interference call on the Rams. It was the first pass of the evening thrown by the quarterback, Mike Feagan, who later completed his only other pass attempt of the game with a 15 yarder to Angel which helped set up another Smith touchdown with about 1:30 left in the game.

When the Rams took the ball on the kick-off, the Rambler defense stiffened up and would not allow anything from the Harbor players.

The game ended with the Ramblers taking their third win of the season, more wins than many fans can remember in recent history. The win took the Ramblers into second place in the Lake Michigan Division league standing behind Charlevoix.

Klooster said after the game that every time, almost, the Ramblers started to get a flow of plays, there was a penalty to slow the team down. He said the penalties called on both sides of the field caused a lot of head shaking by both coaches.

"We moved the ball well every time," he added, "But penalties were again a factor for the opposition." Klooster said this week in practice he will again be working on trying to keep the team from making those kinds of mistakes.

Klooster remarked that the defensive effort of the team was really good for the fourth game of the season, citing Eric Smith, Joe Jankowski, Eric Kujawski and Shane Heberling for their good efforts.

Offensively, Smith carried the ball 39 times for 99 yards while Matt West had 48 yards for his 16 carries. Klooster said having two good producers of yardage was another good factor in the teams' win.
