Queen Lori Chanda and King Rick Gotts were crowned during ceremonies at halftime of the East Jordan-Harbor Springs football game.

Going to Homecoming? The Boyne City Nativity Episcopal Church is offering a chili dinner in a bag before the game this coming Friday. They will be serving from the curb of the church located next to the Boyne City Library between 5:30 and 7:30 p.m.

Scott paper product labels are wanted by Mrs. Dunne's Resource Room at the Boyne City Elementary School in order to participate in the Learning Tools for Schools program. Interested savers are asked to cut out the little apples appearing on the products and drop them off at the elementary school office. Carter's Food Market or Glen's Market. The labels are then turned in to raise funds for computers, telescopes and other educational equipment.

Area realtors will be collecting children's coats this week until October 26th. The collection boxes, donated by DeNoyer Moving of Traverse City, have been placed in all offices of members of the Antrim Charlevoix Board of Realtors. The coats, after collection will be available for kids needing a coat beginning Monday, October 29, at Northwest Michigan Human Services Agency located at 822 Charlevoix Ave. in Petoskey.

Drivers going through Charlevoix should be aware of a new traffic light placed at the intersection of M-66 and U.S. 31. Currently, the light is just blinking, but city officials will be making the change to the normal redyellow-green action in a few weeks after drivers get used to having the light at the intersection.

BC School officials take wait and learn stance about election

Boyne City School officials bers that any temporary move, to decided to take a wait and learn stance as they discussed the failure of a bonding issue that have created new classrooms and alleviated the crunch being caused by additional students coming to the school

The members decided they will be attending various meetings of PTOs, clubs, and senior groups to try to determine what the community wants from the school system so they could come back in the future with the same or a different request to find a way to eliminate the overcrowding.

Comments made at the end of the meeting Monday night by Superintendent Bob Nakoneczny indicated that the problem of finding room for students for the next two years or until a building program can be completed is

He said one option that may have to be considered would be to move the fifth grade to the high school building. That would solve the problem on a temporary basis, he said, as the class sizes coming to the high school would fill it up by the end of the second year.

He added that any change made of moving a class would be construed as a threat to the residents of the community to get the school bonding issue passed by the voters.

Another option that may have to be considered would be the purchase of two or three portable classrooms, just to cover the expansion in the next year. He said those would be placed at the elementary school and at the middle school. The system is already using one portable at the middle school which in the past was used as the base for the Boyne City Nursery School program.

Whatever the superintendent's suggestion may be, some board members have expressed they would vote no to changing classes to the high school.

Nakoneczny told board memportables or to a class, he guaranteed the community would call it punishment for the failure to pass the bonding issue.

The failure of the issue also brought Karl Waldner to the board meeting where he accused the school board of being victims of either an intentional school building fraud, or an awesome display of mismanagement.

Waldner then asked the board to consider firing the high school and elementary school principals listing six reasons why.

He said the school administration schemed to falsify or be blind to the number of students able to be instructed in the three schools of the district.

He said that the school system, in a 1979 Open House brochure, stated that the elementary school student capacity was listed at 700 students, the middle school at 420 and the high school at 570. Currently the district has 577 students in the elementary school, 414 in the middle school and 310 in the high school.

Waldner said the system should move the 119 students of the fifth grade back to the elementary school or move the seventh and eighth grade to the high school.

With those changes, Waldner figures the school system could save one-third of the cost by eliminating one school and the administrative, custodial costs involved.

According to board members, Waldner was not accurate with the amount of classroom space available as the state has mandated classroom size and added several special educational programs which are using up classrooms. The board also said they wanted to keep the class sizes small enough to be able to have the students learn.

In other action at the monthly board meeting, the school system approved the bid for snow removal to R&B Excavating, accepted the Single Audit results, approved a new transportation handbook and agreed to form a Partnership In Education program for those who

With the Partnership, the home would be "presold" and the costs absorbed by the owner.

The board also finalized board goals for the year, discussed several conferences they will be attending and set up coffee hours for the annual board-staff

If you have tried to drive out N. Lake/Groveland Street this is what you would have found during the past weeks. The intersection was completely dug out to replace a sewer manhole, add water lines on Groveland and N. Lake, and install storm sewer catch basins and other work in preparation for the rebuilding of the northernmost block of Groveland. The detour it caused is expected to be open by Wednesday night or Thursday, city officials said. Then Groveland will be torn up again as the city starts installing storm drains and repaving of the street. The work is expected to be completed by November 1, with another section of the street scheduled to be replaced next spring.

BC Schools to survey parent attitudes

Trying to find out what residents and students think about the Boyne City Schools has caused school officials many hours of thinking over the years, but next week, the results of a search for a survey will be distributed to a sampling of parents, and students that may help the school system learn more about itself.

The survey will be sent out to 570 parents in the elementary school, middle school and high school. In addition all students in grades seven through twelve will be asked to participate with the survey.

For parents, the survey will include 47 questions that will be used to determine attitudes about the school and to give feedback to the school improvement team that has figured out the questions.

The students will be asked 100 questions on their survey, ranging from discipline questions to

The Cheboygan Area Arts Council is pleased to announce its 1990-91 Concerts Series. Tickets are now available for this exciting season lineup. Adult tickets for four concerts are $30 and student tickets for all students up to senior year in high school are $20. Tickets may be purchased as a series before the date of the first concert on October 22, 1990. This will result in an overall savings of $20 for adults and $30 for students. Take advantage of this outstanding bargain.

The first concert of the Series will be October 22, 1990 at 8 p.m. The Acting Company, founded by John Houseman, America's only permanently touring professional repertory theatre company will present a full production of Shakespear's classic "Romeo and Juliet." Don't miss this opportunity to see the most famous tragedy in Western world, Shakespearean drama about sacrifice made in the name of love.

This production is made possible by a grant from Arts Midwest.

On Tuesday, January 8, 1991 at 8 p.m. from New York, The Opera House is proud to present Rodgers and Hammerstein's "Oklahoma!" as our second offering in the season's series. Beyond a shadow of a doubt, "Oklahoma!" has been one of the most popular, most beloved, most widely produced around-the-world musical shows in theatrical history. Don't miss this New York-based company, the Northeast Opera Company, revive such classic tunes as "Oh, What A Beautiful Mornin", "The Surrey With The Fringe On Top", and "People Will Say We're In Love." This is the musical that most theatre buffs feel revolutionized the form of the American musical comedy.

On Saturday, February 16, 1991 at 8 p.m. White Water will appear for the third concert of '90-'91. White Water is the oldtime string band that makes its home in the small Upper Peninsula town of Amasa, MI. The trio plays traditional, old-time and folk tunes and teaches folk dancing. White Water emphasizes the music of the ethnic groups that lived and settled in the Great Lakes area. The trio uses hammer dulcimer, guitar, upright bass, banjo, mandolin, fiddle and a variety of kitchen instruments in their musical arrangements. The last concert of the Series on

The survey is based on the Connecticut School Effectiveness Questionaire through a program developed by the ISD. The school, upon learning the results, may use the information to institute changes in curriculum, discipline or make changes to the school buildings themselves if the results call for change.

Boyne City Historical Society hosts The Shanty Boys

On Tuesday, October 16 at 7 p.m. the Boyne City Historical Society will meet in the Community Room at the City Hall.

The program for the evening will be given by "The Shanty Boys." They will take us for a journey through time as they present a living history program of Michigan's White Pine Era. Through story, tall tales, and with the use of artifacts of the era, the shantyboy/lumberjack legacy is relived. Appearing in shantyboy costume, they will present a program that entertains and educates about Michigan's forgotten pioneer. Catch a glimpse of the timber cruiser, the iron burner, the sawyer, the big push, and the river pigs as they take the stately white pine from a tree to lumber that helped build a nation.

They will relate the saga of the men who cut the trees, hauled them to rivers or railroad sidings, rode logs down the Manistee, Pine. Muskegon and other rivers, worked the saw mills or cooked in the camps.

This will be an evening that residents of the area must see. Everyone is welcome. A donation will be appreciated.

Why are we behind?

We see where downstate Michigan has done it to us again with the publishing of average incomes for selected cities.

The article said the average income for the city of Detroit was $27,315; Flint, $27,297; Ann Arbor, $25,773; Saginaw-Bay City-Midland, $24,651; Lansing-East Lansing at $24,531 and so on down the list.

The Lansing area had the highest increase of any metropolitan area within the midwest of 6.4 percent.

Now we all don't mind the announcing of the wage earner average down below, but what we do mind is that someone of the high paid political bureaucrats even decided that such a list should be made.

Of course Lansing is where the highest increase is shown. That is also the state capital and the place that has the most

And state workers don't necessarily work for free do they? They seem to get pay raises automatically, led by the politicians who read such lists and say, "We have to keep up with the crowd."

We have always wondered about the affront publicizing such a list is to the workers of the north.

We have all heard the sage advice that "You have to take a cut in pay for a view of the bay," for many many years.

What we need to hear is that "We should make the norm for the state for the sake of our sanity."

It is also a fact that food, fuel, taxes and the such are higher in the north than those areas where the averages are

And it costs more to live in the country than in the city.

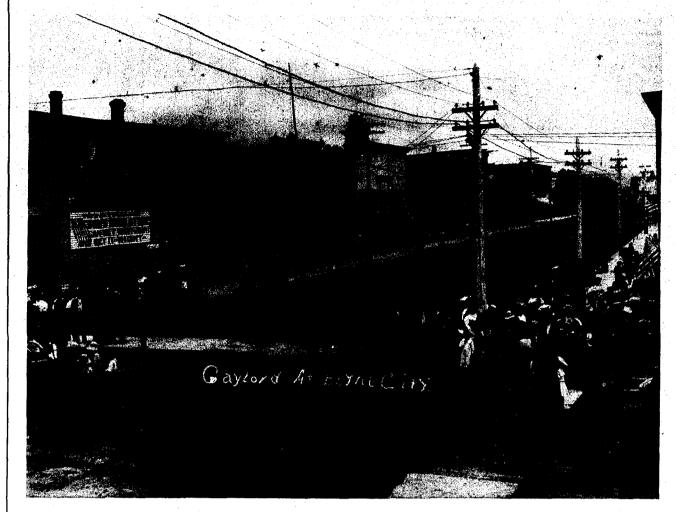

Sure we do have some benefits, clean fresh air, unchlorinated water, easy supply of wood to cut to supplement the heating costs, and everything else that can make for what some think is a better life style.

But all the free fresh air, the wood, the hunting and fishing don't mean much more than existence to many people of the north. They can't buy a cup of coffee when they don't have a livable income.

Perhaps that is why we see so many on the welfare roles in this area as compared to areas slightly south of us.

Maybe it is time for the employees to try to do something to better their life style besides going out into the woods.

Budget deals aren't the only mess

Editor,
Well what do you know. Those wonderful get rich now and pay later Reaganomics are beginning to come home to roost. The Golden Age of Greed is starting to crumble. The question now is - who is going to pay the piper? Guess who the politicians want to make the sacrifice. You are right.

Our great and noble politicians cut a deal on the budget where by half the Republicans and half the Democrats would O.K. the deal but when the folks back home found out what was in the package they went to the phones in droves. The Republicans reneged. They feared the wrath of their constituents and thought there might be some teeth behind the back.

enthusiastic Now these Reaganites desperately wanted to get the budget deal passed but wanted the Democrats to do it so they could say they voted against it. They all wanted to go to heaven but didn't really want to there. They just wanted to go home with their halves intact and get themselves re-elected. The Democrats didn't buy that little ploy so the whole deal fell through. What honorable people we have running our affairs.

If that budget is the best that our present crop of politicians can put together, then we just plain need a new crop. They want to put the burden on the working people and senior citizens leaving the wealthy - the very ones that benefited most from Reaganomics off free and clear. They don't want to kill the goose that lays their golden eggs.

They bally-hooed the fact that their plan would cut 500 billion from the deficit over the next five years. What they didn't tell us was that the S. and L mess alone will cost us at least 500 billion and possibly much more. They can shift the deficit from pocket to pocket all they want to but all the pockets are in the same pair of

I have said it before and I'll say it again. If we are to get the big money we really need - we have got to go to where the money is and that is the people and corporations that managed to corner the wealth of this country over the last decade. This would certainly be a bitter pill for our politicians to swallow. They are afraid they might gag to death on it. If they hit the rich their campaign dollars will dry up and they just might not get re-elected. Now that is the number one nightmare in any politician's life. On the other hand it is the

I read in one of the daily newspapers that the price of oil incoming to the US of A has dropped a couple of bucks. Now I wonder about the gas companies that were so quick to raise the prices. Will they now be as quick to lower

In reality, I think the chances of that happening as quickly are somewhere between fat chance and nowhere, and I bet I could find a few gas station owners that would agree with me.

They have said that the gas will probably go up even more as the gas companies try to increase their bottom lines to help pay for potential spillage of one of their ships.

It's funny though, for an industry that has said they work on a first in pricing structure, where they increase or decrease the price based on the cost of an incoming tanker on the spot market, why they won't decrease those prices at the pumps.

Here I always thought the companies were in the bad public relations business instead of trying to help out us poor folk who have to buy gas in order to get anywhere... like to work or play or shopping for food.

Oh well, at least I had the energy to start on the raking of the leaves that are already starting to fall down.

In just a few short weeks, we will probably get snowbound, about the time we have to change the clocks and lose an hour of sleep.

I just hope I can get all of the rest of the chores done before winter sets in like a blanket.

I will have to say I always get envious of those out cutting wood, stacking it up neatly on their porch or next to the house. There was one wood stacker a few years ago whose porch I wanted to get a picture of. Seems he had stacked enough wood on the porch to make a wind break for the front of the house. It looked kinda weird but it was probably the smartest thing the person could do. It sure made getting another log for the fire more convenient.

And then there are those guys who get a load of wood in the pole cut length thinking it is cheaper. It probably is if you don't consider the labor of cutting it down to size to fit into the woodburner, and the time it takes to split the logs.

Me. I don't have the time. I also don't have the wood yet, either. And you can guess who is doing the most yelling about me getting off the couch and getting some for

I keep telling her that it will get done, yeah, like all of the other things I want to do around the home and the office.

Heck, I am still trying to get out of sanding and finishing some doors I bought a few years ago. And I want to rebuild an old automatic popcorn machine that has been sitting in the storage place waiting for me to get the motivation to tackle the job.

But I can think of several other things I would rather not do, so nothing gets done. Now I ask you, is this any different from anybody

The Humble Farmer

BY ROBERT SKOGLUND We've been hearing a lot about the oppression in South Africa and it's a lot worse now than it was fact, because my young friend Peter was in here yesterday telling me all about it.

I don't see Peter as much as I used to, except when he can get home for an occasional weekend, because he goes to one of those fancy Ivy League colleges now, and in the summer he works in New York City. That's how he met the South African woman. He had just stepped off the train in New York City and she was standing on the street crying and asking everyone who passed by for help.

You know what a good boy Peter is - do anything to help you, and he just couldn't pass her by like those cold-hearted New Yorkers were doing. When she has his attention she stopped crying long enough to explain that she'd just arrived from South Africa and she couldn't find the church where she was supposed to stay. Peter already knew how bad South Africa was because they talk about it a lot where he goes to college, but the oppression and suffering she described was worse than anything he had ever heard.

Just talking about it got her crying again and she said that she could see that he was new in town and wouldn't be able to help. So she reached out quick and grabbed a man who was passing by. And would you believe it? He had on an Amnesty International pin just like the one Peter was wearing. His name was Charles and he worked at the post office and had just stepped out for lunch.

Well, Charles and Peter talked Amnesty International and inside of a few minutes they were getting along like long-lost brothers. Charles didn't have much time, but after he heard that poor woman's story, he wanted to help, too.

They went to a restaurant that had a telephone book but couldn't find the address of the church where the poor woman was supposed to stay. By this time she had told Peter and Charles that when she came through customs, the officials there had made her leave a heavy package of gold Krugerands with them. Some new government hovcott keeps South Africans from bringing their bags of gold into this country until some mysterious forms are filled out.

Charles and Peter thought this sounded pretty fishy and agreed that it was probably a scheme on the part of some crooked customs even a year ago. I know this for a officials to steal the poor woman's

You can believe that woman was some grateful to Charles and Peter for figuring that out. But what you might not believe is that she reached into a package she was carrying and peeled 10 one-hundred dollar bills off a big roll. She tried to give Charles five of them and Peter five of them for helping her. But of course they wouldn't touch her money, and after a short argument she snapped them back onto the roll and put the roll back into the package.

You've guessed it. That big package was right bulging with hundred dollar bills that she had managed to scrape together before escaping. You can see the problem they had now. They all agreed that they had to go back to customs to get the package of gold coins from the crooked customs official. And they had to do it quickly before the officials had time to get off duty and go home and hide the gold. But if the woman took the bag of money with her the inspectors might seize that, too.

They decided that Charles would go back with the woman because he had a car, and Peter would wait at the restaurant and guard the bag of money. With so much gold at stake, Peter was kind of worried that Charles might rob the woman - even if he did belong to Amnesty International. And the woman must have been thinking the same thing because she suddenly wanted to know what would keep Peter from running off with her bag of money. All he had in his wallet was a couple of hundred and a few credit cards, but she said she knew he was honest and wouldn't go anywhere anyway, so she'd settle for that.

Well, three hours later they still hadn't come back, so Peter had to accept the grim facts: the customs people had stolen the gold and Charles had forgotten where they'd left him. That's when he took a peek in the bag. And you know what? Those crooked customs officials must have pulled a switch on that poor, unsuspecting woman when they inspected her package because it was stuffed right full of clipped up newspapers.

The week was filled with many fun activities. Throughout the week there was a different dress up day: Monday was pajama sick day with the winners being Dwanya White and Amber Grutsch. Tuesday was Bobsie Twin Day with Billie Stott and Kathy Kenney the winners. Wednesday was Backwards day with everything being put on wrong, the winners were Bridgette Armstrong and Michelle Sullivan. Thursday was 50s Day where the kids raided their parents clothes locker and went back in time: winners for this were Pete Inman and Bridgette Armstrong.

Other activities were Hall Decorating which was won by the senior class. The challenge course was also won by the Senior Class, and Spirit week which brought a tie between the juniors and the Time was, when customs and places stayed much the same year in, year out - stores, for instance. Old favorites felt comfy as home. But that was before K mart decided to change its logo, and its style. Now K marts are getting all slicked up, make folks feel they ought to, too. Not Sunday best, but shopping there in baggy sweats won't do anymore.

The new logo, a year in the making, recently showed for the first time on a restyled K mart in Oak Park. Ken Love, New York consultant-design team leader, ex-

"K' is one of the most assertive letters found in the alphabet." (Whatever. It is his logo, after all.)

To portray this view, the new K mart "K" is not only still red but more dominant now, chunkier. It's wide enough, in fact, to easily contain the new, scripted "mart," diagonally rising from lower left to upper right corner.

It looks artier than the old, but hardly illustrates all that K mart Chairman Joseph Antonini sees in

"The adrenaline in my body is pumping more than it ever has in my 25-year career," he told The Detroit News' Bill Vlasic at the band-playing, smoke-billowing, colored streamers-flowing unveiling ceremony in Oak Park. "This logo is a symbol of and a catalyst for change.

Meantime, back in the store, hat's happened? Nothing said in The News about inside changes at Oak Park, but if it's anything like other refurbished K marts, lots Aisles are wider, brighter, white floors waxed gleaming and kept that way by young men wielding mops, not happily, but pushing them, nonetheless, during business hours.

Likely because of the aforementioned, the popcorn machine with its lovely odor and bagged produce is gone, as is the icy sweet juice dispensed from another machine. No point in taxing the moppers with such potential challenges.

The cafeteria has disappeared too. Nothing replaced it for a time, but recently, a Little Caesars Pizza counter moved into the stores. Carry-out, of course, containers likely stapled shut to keep food from spilling on floors.

Ware-withal

Changes occurred in department names in refurbished stores as well. The curtain department is now "Window Decor." Fake oriental rugs hang there too. Interesting.

Even more interesting, in the clothing area, there's a ladies department like in the good old days. Then there's "Women's World." Nice looking fashions there also, weird numbers on the sizes, though. Turns out they're disguised, extra big sizes. A thoughtful arrangement, this one.

Another clothing change, the light green jackets that employees wore, mostly they've disappeared. Clerks and checkout girls wear nice street clothes, have their hair done. All male employees, even listless moppers, wear ties, dress shirts and pants, a few rebel jeanswearers excepted.

That's the new look behind the new logo. A far cry from the early years when K mart, heir of the S.S. Kresge Co., delighted low budgeters with packed shelves of low cost items plus cheaper prescriptions, home improvement things.

Sure it's brighter, cleaner more spacious, gracious even, now. But K mart isn't about grace; it's about the stuff of daily living longjohns, coffee mugs, birthday

Time was, when one could make a run to K mart dressed in garage sweeping clothes, and bump into half a dozen others similarly garbed in its dim, narrow aisles. But no more.

petizers; hor d'oeuvres with a bowl of punch makes any gathering of friendly people a real party. We all love to dip our favorite raw vegetables or crackers in a tasty dip. I think that this must be basic since the beginning of time when spoons and forks were not yet used. We love to dunk; let's face it.

We also love the dainty appetizers in the form of cheese balls. or fancy spreads served on pretty plates. Hot appetizers can now be served directly from the

We did not know about many of these special foods when I was growing up on the farm. We had to wait for dinner when we went to Grandma's or aunts' and uncles' homes for dinner. It seemed forever waiting for dinner with all the appetizing aromas from Grandma's kitchen whetting our appetites. If we asked for something to eat, they said, "Not now, it will spoil your dinner." Then when dinner finely arrived and you could hardly wait for dessert, they said, "Eat your vegetables first."

Children are now eating their vegetables dipped in their favorite cheesy sauces; they love raw broccoli, cauliflower, celery and carrot strips. I believe that carrots are the most popular and they do not have to wait for dinner.

We were served a dip something like the following recipe while sitting around their picnic table at Gorham and Belinda Bird's home in Muskegon. Their three little boys helping themselves between practicing on the jungle gym or swinging. A summer afternoon to remember.

SPINACH PARTY DIP Makes 8 to 10 servings.

- 1 round loaf (1 lb.) crusty bread 2 packages (10 oz. each) chopped
- spinach 2 packages (8 oz. each) cream cheese
- 1/4 cup finely chopped green onion
- 3½ tablespoons milk 1 teaspoon lemon juice
- 1/2 teaspoon dried basil, crumbled ½ teaspoon salt
- 1 small clove garlic, minced
- 1/8 teaspoon pepper Pinch of ground nutmeg

Cut 11/2 inch thick slice off top of bread. With thin-bladed knife, cut out center of bread; leave sides of bread shell 1 inch thick and bottom 2 inches thick. Cut center pieces and top slice into about 1-inch

Microwave spinach in packages at High power until soft, 41/2 to 61/2 minutes; turn packages over after about half the time. Drain spinach in sieve, pressing with back of spoon to extract as much moisture as possible. Discard Microwave cream cheese in medium bowl, uncovered, at High power until softened, 30 to 45 seconds. Stir in spinach and remaining ingredients, except bread cubes.

Spoon spinach mixture into bread shell; place on plate lined with paper toweling. Microwave, at Hig bread is warm... 45 seconds to 11/4 minutes. Serve with reserved bread cubes for dipping.

(When bread cubes are used up, cut the bread shell itself into additional cubes, starting at the top.)

I was inspired to check out our local supermarket for dips and found many. One can buy them already to use in the refrigerated section; French onion, bacon and cheddar, mixed vegetables, dill and others; all good. I find these small cartons of dips are great for one living alone. They keep well in the refrigerator for a snack when you think that there is nothing in the house to eat.

When I have guests, I like to make this Mexican dip served with crackers and corn chips.

East Jordan rolls past Harbor for 2nd win of season

After spotting Harbor Springs a quick six points in the first period, East Jordan unleashed an offensive flurry in the first half not seen around town for a few years and went to the locker room at half, in charge 296. Coach Rebec praised the offensive line efforts of center Chance Potter, guards, Cliff Russell, and Gale Ramsey, and tackles Ross Miller and Tom Reid.

It's that time of the year again. I'll go out on the limb to join the Farmer's Almanac and a host of other prognosticators predicting, or forecasting, what the coming winter will be like.

I can't truthfully say that I've out-guessed Farmer's Almanac in their forecasts, but I'll bet my bottom dollar that if they used the same criterion I use I'd best them every once in awhile.

Most everyone is familiar with the Isabella moth, alias Wooly Bear which, according to some prognosticators, says that the amount of black on each end of its body foretells the severity of the coming winter.

As far as I'm concerned, this year just forget about the Wooly Bears. I haven't seen one yet.

So, I'll go back to my old stan-dbys: The effervescent, night wandering woodland pussies we call skunks.

My usual criteria for making my coming winter prediction is based on the coloring (if black and white is considered such) of the little crit-ters pelt. Lots of black: long, hard winter. Lots of white: an open, sunshiny winter.

However, I'm in a quandry this fall. We've had a couple of the little stinkers coming for handouts so generously supplied by my wife each evening. They usually show up shortly after dark.

But they have me confused. One is mostly black and the other one is mostly white.

So, now what? Well I went into a sort of a trance and finally arrived at the following conclusion: The mostly black one usually shows up first. To me it means an early, heavy snowfall winter, and the mostly white stinker says we'll have a mid-winter spell of fair weather with little snowfall.

And to sort of put the "frosting" on the cake the two stinkers follow about the same pattern in showing up each night: Blackie first, Whitey

So, wax the snow shovel and get ready for that first blast of crystalized rain. To most of us old-timers, we take winter in stride, cussing it out like we've done for many years. It makes one feel better even if itdoesn't melt the snow.

> On East Jordan's next offensive series starting at their own 37 yard line, they marched right down the field capped off with a 10 yard reverse by John Wilson for the TD. Extra point was good with Steve Poole picking off the pass for a 166 lead.

East Jordan next took over on Harbor Springs 44 yard line after a good defensive series by the Devils and on the first play Beal galloped 44 yards for another TD. The extra point kick failed leaving the score

The Devils began their 6th offensive series of the first half starting at their own 41 with 3:13 left in the half. The high light of this series were Poole's diving catch of a 23 yard Tom Zipp pass and Beal's power run up the middle for 23 yards and another TD. Again the Devils stumbled with the kick and went in at half with a 296 lead.

The third quarter was sluggish for both teams with Harbor Springs picking up the only score with 20 seconds left. East Jordan took the kickoff and marched down the field moving the ball with ease. Poole's pass reception of 33 yards and Tim Freel's burst around right end for 25 yards were the big plays. Beal finished the drive up with a dive off left tackle for 14 yards to pay dirt and another TD. making the score 35-12. Harbor Springs added another TD late in the game to make East Jordan's. The team will be traveling to Boyne City to renew an old rivalry between the two schools.

Boyne blasted by St. Francis 0-45

"We're not making excuses," said Boyne City football coach Pat Klooster after taking a 45-0 shellacking by the Traverse City St. Francis Team last Friday. "Sure, we had some kids hurt in previous games, some sick, and some get injured during the game, but even if we were playing at 100 percent, they would have still beat

Klooster went on to say, "They are about two levels higher than almost any other team in Northern Michigan. It just shows that our program still has a long way to go to be competitive with a team of that magnitude. They are just a good team that is well coached."

Klooster said the game started off with a thump and ended that way as from the opening moments, St. Francis blocked punts that led to scores, had big pass plays and just did everything a football team is supposed to do when they get on

"Their defense won the game for them," Klooster siad, "They had multiple kinds of line-ups that just frustrated us offensively.'

With their defensive effort, and good offensive plays, the Gladiators had the game under control for all quarters.

For Boyne City, playing without Roy Angel and trying to play with a sick Eric Smith, the team had to make some adjustments to their methods of play. The adjustments were too much against a team like St. Francis.

Klooster said afterwards, "Their defense was unbelievable."

For Boyne City, Matt West played a good 100 percent game, Klooster said, adding that Joe Jankowski also played well until he got hurt.

But the team played ball, all game long, keeping their heads up and trying to get the job done. West had 16 carries for 61 yards to lead the team offensively, while

Dusty Patton had seven carries for 15 yards, quarterback Mike Feagan took two carried 17 yards and was three for eight tries in passing for 16 yards. Smith, playing over the flu, had nine carries for 10 yards while Bob Mc-Cullough carried once for eight

Klooster also praised junior Dan Polleys for his effort coming off the

Defensively, Eric Kujawski and Jason Joles tied for the number of tackles, each having five, while

Smith, Jankowski and Chuck Frisk had four each. But, said Klooster, the team

East Jordan will be ready for us, coming off of two wins, said Klooster. He hopes to bring the team back emotionally and physically against them for the homecoming game.

Klooster added he likes being in the position of being able to put someone else down, as the Ramblers are not heavily favored as much as the maturing East Jordan team.

Both are 2-1 in the new conference and it should be an exciting game.

East Jordan went on the road last week and managed with no problem to swipe two more victories from Gaylord St. Mary, and Mancelona. On Tuesday East Jordan had a great start with a 15 point lead over the Snowbird's in the first quarter 22-7, and upped the lead at half by 19 points.

Defensively and offensively rebounding was a big advantage for the Devilettes while having three players in double digits: Danielle Looze and Buffy Kooyer had 12, while Barb Lercel brought down 10.

East Jordan held a 21 point lead at the end of the third quarter and finished up with a final score of 62-40. Kooyer lead the team in points with 20 followed by Looze with 16, and Renee Ruhlman with 14. Ruhlman and Angie Chase were both credited with five assists each. East Jordan was four for eight at the line with 23 fouls while St. Mary's shot 10 for 23 at the line with 12 fouls. In JV action, East Jordan won 53-40, led by Katie Malpass with 21 points, while Kellie Barber chipped in with 10 points and a big 25 rebounds.
