Boyne Schools to ask for $9 million

Boyne City School District residents will be asked to approve a $9 million bonding proposal after school board members finalized what would be constructed if the proposal is approved by voters Monday night.

The proposal is a large reduction from the originally suggested building program of $14 million that the board first wanted the voters to approve. The $14 million proposal was the same as was turned down by voters in an election last fall that would have cost $12 million. The increase in costs was due to additional construction costs and interest payments that would have to be made due to law changes.

The new proposal was worked out after a series of meetings the board has held over the last few weeks, trying to figure out what could be cut from the original proposal and still fill the needs of the growing school population.

The new proposal which voters will be asked to approve April 9th will allow the school system to grow to the projected 135 students per grade and have enough classroom space to house the high projection of 1.895 students in the year 2000/2001.

The proposed bond issue, will allow the school system to do some changes at each school within the system and will create a new middle school building which will be constructed and connected to the present high school in the area where the parking lot is located today. The two buildings will see some shared facilities that will be utilized by both schools.

An area where cuts were made include dropping a new auditorium and the new high school track along with changes made at almost every school building.

Specific changes for the elementary building include the addition of a new kindergarten room and adding some storage/receiving space along with some additional parking area. The building will retain the existing 22 classrooms and would be converted to a kindergarten through grade three building and would accommodate 540 students. The present classrooms are further broken down into 18 general classrooms and four special education classrooms including the Chapter 1 program.

One idea being presented statewide would see the inclusion of special education students to different facilities. If that happens, then the school could house up to 600 students with a class size reduced by 1.5 students.

The school would also retain two kindergarten classes, art and music rooms and would upgrade the heating, ventilation and air conditioning in interior spaces and the cafeteria/auditorium to solve some health code issues.

Deleted from the proposal was the conversion of existing space for Chapter 1/gifted and talented for-a-new computer room and some additional specialized space for conferences and storage.

Projected cost for elementary changes is $142,000.

The present middle school would be converted to an upper elementary school to house the fourth and fifth grades. The school would be able to handle 270 students with a 22 plus students per classroom.

Changes at the upper elementary school would include the upgrading of toilet facilities and fixing the structural settlement problem at a cost of about $130,000.

With those facilities, the board will have to create and build a new middle school which is projected to cost about $4,521,400. The new building would house the sixth, seventh and eighth grades with a student capacity of about 405 students, figuring a class size of 135 students and about 25 students per classroom.

The building would contain three classrooms per class, a science class for each, a greenhouse for science classes, a life skills classroom, team planning area, three classrooms for special education, a computer room, media center, 8,000 square foot gym seating 400 for physical education, locker rooms, storage rooms and cafeteria. Also included are rooms for administration, specialists and

If special education inclusion occurs, the building could house a projected population of 450

The other new construction would include the shared facilities to serve the 450 middle school and the 530 high school students. Those facilities include band rehearsal room, vocal rehearsal room and support facilities, art room, receiving and maintenance areas, and a staff dining area.

Cost projections for the shared facilities are listed at $1.3 million.

Changes at the high school would accommodate 500 students and are projected to cost about $600,000. The architect said the board and administration would meet to determine another $330,000 in cost reductions at the high school.

Top O'Michigan gets major electric construction loan

Congressman Bob Davis today announced that the Rural Electrification Administration has approved a long term, low interest loan for the Boyne City-based Top O'Michigan Electric Company.

"The loan will total $5.3 million, payable at five percent interest over thirty-five years," explained Davis. "It will allow Top O' Michigan to construct 143 miles of new distribution line and make other improvements to their twelve-county service area."

twelve-county service area."

Mike Hansen, Top O' Mich Manager of Member and Public Relations, said they are proceeding with engineering work. "We expect to begin construction as soon as the weather clears enough," stated Hansen. "These improvements will enable us to provide electric to 2,300 new customers, primarily residential."

Top O' Mich currently has about 41,000 residential, business, and commercial customers. The company is a member-owned cooperative that buys wholesale electricity from Wolverine Power Supply Cooperative which is based in Carillac.

after the city received and has had several discussions with the consulting firm representing the park asking to join the system.

The consulting firm has been looking at ways to improve the sewage situation at the park for several months and the option of connecting to Boyne City presently has the best merits, city officials told the commissioners.

Present plans have the park using a pump system and a force main coming into the community to connect with the present system lines on Michigan Avenue by coming into town along Boyne City Charlevoix Road.

Commissioners asked that the state look into an alternative plan which would allow the line to come into town along Glenwood Beach to be able to serve those along the lakefront.

The state, according to City Manager Randy Frykberg, has looked at that possibility but has not decided whether that would be the best way due to wetland considerations.

In making the motion for approval to let the state connect the park, it was noted that the present plant is working at less than 50 percent of capacity and with the additional wastewater coming from the park would only add a maximum daily flow of about 32,000 gallons of sewage during the peak month of July. The park is open for camping from May to October.

City Commissioner Bill Grimm asked that the city take the lead and hold a meeting to include the state and township officials as well as city officials to work out the feasibility of the plan to include Glenwood Beach and Michigan Avenue residents. The Glenwood Beach residents are outside of the city also.

One past proposal to allow sewage from outside the city limits to be approved was turned down after the city decided the project was not included in the service area of the plant. Other reasons for the turndown included the condition of the infrastructure at that time which caused the plant to be

nominees

Senior citizens from across Northern Michigan have been nominated for the 1990 Concerned Citizens Award, announced Shella A. Wright, program coordinator for the Awards.

Conducted by Citizens Insurance Company, the Concerned Citizens Awards are given annually to recognize senior citizens who have made outstanding contributions to their communities.

A panel of judges comprised of local senior citizens advocates and Citizens' agents will select the winners in each of Michigan's six regions. The six regional winners will receive a cash award and a personalized wall clock. A $250 donation will also be made to the community organization of the winner's choice.

From the six regional winners, a statewide winner will be selected as the "Concerned Citizen of the Year." That person will receive an all-expense-paid vacation for two to Hawaii or comparable destination.

Following are the people from Charlevoix County nominated for the award: R. W. Tainter, Sr., of Boyne City, and Marie Zoberski, of Boyne City.

"We are extremely pleased with the volume and the enthusiasm of nominations generated from the Northern area," says Wright. The region's community spirit is well represented in the number of outstanding entrees we've received.

"We've heard from volunteers who work with seniors, children and the underpriviledged members of their communities in various capacities. Each of the Concerned Citizen nominees are good neighbors and the true backbones of their communities."

EMU scholarship winners announced

Eastern Michigan University's Office of Financial Aid has selected approximately 136 students to receive the University's 1991 Recognition of Excellence Awards.

Most awards are given to Michigan students although out-ofstate awards are distributed as funds permit.

Renee Ruhlman, of East Jordan, will be a recipient of the scholarship.

Winners of the $1,000 scholarships must have earned a 3.3 grade point average in high school or at a community college and demonstrate outstanding leadership ability. Preference is given to high school students who score at least 21 on the American College Test or 950 on the Scholastic Aptitude Test.

On Dean's list

Trisha Fox, of East Jordan, Timothy Johnston, of Boyne Falls, and Joey Nave, of Onaway, have been named to the Dean's Honor List for Fall Term 1990 at Northwestern Michigan College.

The Dean's Honor List recognizes outstanding academic achievement of full-time students who do unusually well in their studies. Published at the end of each term, the list includes the names of those students who have ahcieved a current grade point average of 3.5 or above out of a possible 4.0.

JAMES T. STEWART

James T. Stewart, 76, of East Jordan, died Feb. 18, 1991, at Grandvue Medical Care Facility, East Jordan.

Mr. Stewart was born Dec. 23, 1914, in Oakdale, Tenn., the son of Frank and Jeanie Curry Stewart. He grew up in Burnside, Ky.

On Dec. 28, 1938, in Rossville, Ga., he married the former Sudie B. Clark. The couple moved to Detroit in 1947 where Mr. Stewart worked as an inspector in quality control for Chrysler Corp. He retired from Chrysler in 1977 and moved to East Jordan in 1978.

Mr. Stewart was a veteran of World War II, serving in the U.S. Navy. He was a member of the VFW Chapter 19 in Detroit and also belonged to the Disabled American Veterans. He enjoyed fishing and hunting.

Survivors include his wife; one daughter, Mrs. Larry (Betty) Nietupski of East Jordan; two grandchildren, Christine Nietupski and Timothy Nietupski, both of East Jordan; two sisters, Mrs. Ernest (Mary) Sanders and Mrs. Edward (Martha) Donaldson, both of Hixton, Texas.

Simple answer to rising taxes

If area residents want to stop complaining about tax increases, all they have to do is to attend the various boards and agencies setting budgets to spend taxpayers money.

It is a simple answer to a complex problem, but if people would just stop asking for new and additional programs for the state, county, city and school to provide, then the budgeting agency would be able to reduce the amount of money they are spending.

Like in the state, one of the biggest budget items is the welfare department. Some would like to see the welfare payments to people cut down so the state would not have to contribute as much as they have previously.

While we applaud the idea of reducing state spending, we also have to consider local spending as well.

The local governing agencies control a large amount of your tax dollars. By asking them to spend less, the need for taxation becomes less.

Sure that will not sit well with those who want the government or school board to provide everything, but people should realize that the money to spend comes from their own

So it's simple... Ask for less, pay less.

Just go to the many boards and tell them to spend less, eliminate programs, or stop increasing programs.

At a time when the men and women in our armed forces are facing their greatest test, we at home are facing a test as well. Our test is to maintain our unity and resolve, as our troops are doing in the Persian Gulf.

We don't want Saddam Hussein to take this country's tolerance for anti-war demonstrators as a signal he should wait out our resolve in a long and bloody war.

I'm outraged at the brutai treatment of our POW's. And I'm saddened to see the media give so much attention to the small number of anti-war protesters who have sprung into action. It seems that every time a few protesters pick up their signs, the cameras swarm around them, and they end up on the news.

Our soldiers have said that they have a job to do and are going to get it done. I feel I have a job to do, too. And that's to stand up in strong support of our troops.

I want them to know that I and the American people are very proud of them. We are all inspired by their bravery.

I hope that you'll print my letter, and others like it, in the days American newspapers are reaching our men and women in uniform every day. Your newspaper may be one of them. I want the troops to know that we hold them in our thoughts and prayers every day.

Remembrances

This picture of Mill B in East Jordan shows a little bit of what the waterfront was like around the turn of the century. The mill existed until the lumber supply was depleted and the ground, we think, was taken over by the East Jordan Iron Works.

Jottings

Some of the things I am wondering about as we continue the war in the Mid East...

We have shown lots of support. like the rally held last Saturday for the many young men and women from our area serving their country, but to my memory of past rallies, just one thing was missing.

In World War II, when they held a rally, they also sold War Bonds. So I wondered about how long it will take for our government to change the present name of Savings Bonds back to the name they had during the Big War.

I can remember as a child, of course, the issuing of ration coupons, saving the grease from bacon and other foods, stamping on the tin cans to flatten them out so they could be recycled into artillery shells and some other

I wonder if the country will bring back some of those ideas for all citizens in these days. Sometimes, the old ideas can still be used to help the effort.

Then I remembered one of the "forts" my brother and I dug in the back yard. A few weeks ago, I was reminded of that when I watched a video converted from some old movies my uncle made during one of his leaves from the war.

There are still times when I wish I could spend my time "digging in," adding some used planks to make a top to the hole, and developing a secret spot to hide some real important items. like a rock found along a beach, a feather from a bird, a secret decoding ring from the cereal box, or just listening to the radio to hear the latest news.

Today we have CNN, complete with rumors, quick dispatches and the like bringing the news of any and all actions to our living rooms almost instantly.

We also have plenty of places to "dig" our own forts, and still can flatten cans for recycling.

But buying War Bonds is still a long way off, I hope, even though the government is spending a billion or so a day to try to regain what was a sovereign state.

The whole idea of paying for the war effort probably hasn't had too much impact on those of us who will have to pay for the next umpteen years with money earned by sweat, hard work and toil. That doesn't set too well with me, although I probably won't ever make enough money to have to pay one-hundredth of the tax required to reduce the debt.

If I could make that much money, I would be proud to pay my fair share of taxes, just like anybody else. With a grimace, but I would do it just the same.

In the meantime, I think I will just go to the friendly bank down the street and buy a few "war" bonds with any extra money I may accumulate. After all, the interest rate isn't too bad, you don't have to pay federal taxes on it. and it would force me to save.

The city told the developers that since the project was turned down by the township the city would also, but left open the option of connecting to the system in the future after the infrastructure problems were contained.

When originally constructed, the waste water plant was intended to serve an area along the lake from Advance to the state park along with a fully developed city

While the plan is still preliminary at this time, officials noted that if approved by all agencies, the project would begin sometime this fall after the tourist season. When a resident asked if this was to cost the city anything, he was told the state would be paying for the connection at no cost to the city. The city in turn would be creating a revenue situation where they could be charging the state 150 percent of the residential costs.

The city made it clear from the beginning that the entire cost would have to be borne by the state in order to hook-up to the

The changes made would allow for present interior lit signs to be grandfathered and if they needed to be changed or upgraded, they would automatically be changed to a conditional use sign.

Another change will allow businesses to maintain a lit neon or other interior lit sign up to three square feet in size for letting customers know whether or not the business is open.

No new interior lit signs would be allowed if the ordinance amendment is enacted by the com-

Congressman Bob Davis today said the Environmental Protection Agency has taken action to speed up construction of a new drinking water intake to serve Charlevoix area residenta.

"The existing Lake Michigan intake has been plagued by clogging since it was installed four years ago," Davis said. "In December we were able to convince the EPA that the intake design flaws were primarily an EPA responsibility. That was half the battle. Now we're working to get the intake fixed as soon as possible, and I'm pleased to report the EPA is cooperating."

Reconstructing the 1,400-foot intake and filter bed will cost about $400,000 with the federal government covering ninety percent of the cost, and the state covernment picking up the remaining ten percent.

The EPA has decided to conduct what they call a 'removal action', which puts the intake project on a more urgent level because of potential public health affects," explained Davis. "We expect reconstruction design work will be starting very soon, and the work itself will likely begin late this spring."

Charlevoix's Lake Michigan intake and filtration plant replaced groundwater wells the city was relying on for drinking water. The groundwater was found to be contaminated with a toxic solvent,

Trichloroethene (TCE). "Last summer, the EPA was disputing whether it would be responsible for the intake repairs,"

WITH GAIL WARE

By now everyone has heard about, likely noted sypmtoms themselves of (some popping up, in fact, in reaction to so often being lectured at about) - stress. Granted, many people feel pushed, overloaded with the by-products of today's society. But mental health experts aren't helping forever poking at resulting stress. Besides, mind experts haven't dealth with a longtime, big-time stress producing category - the innate perversity of inanimate objects. A main mover here, because it so often doesn't, is the zipper.

In earlier years, the prescription for stress called for sitting back, relaxing, thinking pink thoughts. These days it calls for action: get organized; take charge of your life; remove the clutter in it, the mess on your desk for example. Then, more time, energy, serenity will whose natural bent is symbolized by a desk, the kindest comment on which would be that it looks very busy. Still, even they might agree that the remedy makes some sense. Or not.

In any case, on to the perversity of inanimate objects beginning with those other than zippers that illustrate the category well too. Things that do disappearing acts can fling many a whole family into a frenzy. Missing keys, shoes, caps, scarves, mittens, library books, whatever galvanized households every morning all over the land.

Indeed, car keys have caused such universal unrest that various means for locating them have been invented including those that involve whistling and hand-clapping. It's unclear as to how these sounds make missing keys suddenly reveal their hiding places. Still, supposedly they do. But perhaps they don't if the car keys are out of hearing range, so to speak - up and concealed themselves outdoors, in the vehicle's ignition switch for instance.

The most unsettling of all household inanimate objects, however, the zipper, doesn't do much speaking off. In the first place, the ones that make the most misery are the ones attached to heavy outerwear, most of it too bulky to easily conceal itself. Besides, hide-and-seek is not its game; immobility, and foiling attempts to make it otherwise, is.

Doubtless when the zipper first appeared in the early 1920s (on rubber boots), it was hailed as a wonderful idea, an easy way to close and seal things tight. And it can be that, when it works. But stuff happens with it.

For example, threads from the material it clenches together get. caught in it. It takes only one thread to stop a zipper cold, no movement up or down, no way, Jose. Brute force, along with snipping the offending threads, usually gets it moving again; that is, if no teeth have been bent, broken or yanked out in the vigorous pursuit

But the biggest hang-up comes before it gets far enough to get tangled with anything, right at the point of inserting the part with the handle into the holder that anchors it. That handle part has to get all the way into the holder part, not a whit less, or it won't go up. And with two-way zippers, it must go clear through both holders.

Then, say you have done it, completed this preliminary. Up she goes, right? Not necessarily. If you're talking warm coat or jacket, heavy material, the zipper material and tape it's attached to have to be tough stuff, not pliable pushovers. Seldom do the sides lie flat, ready to be joined. The only way they can be forced to is to grasp both sides of the garment in one hand and pull down hard while trying to hustle the zipper handle upward with the other.

Likely mental experts don't hit a stressor like the innate perversity of inanimate objects because they can't explain it. Me too. Glad I have two costs. Seen my keys?

Boyne girl skiers finish fourth

To paraphrase the Harbor Springs ski coach, Boyne City girls had an excellent season and one bad day while the Harbor girls had a terrible season and one good day.

That summed up the action for the Boyne City girls' team last Thursday at the Region Four regional ski meet held at Schuss Mountain when the girls' high hopes of finishing well enough to get a chance to ski in the state finals slipped through their skis. Petoskey and Harbor Springs girls took first and second to qualify for the state finals.

The Boyne girls finished in fourth place, though, their best regional finish in years behind the Class A team of Traverse City Central (third place), Harbor Springs (second place) and Class B Petoskey who won the meet with a low 77.50 points. Boyne finished with 152 points.
Individually, the Boyne girls placed well in the slalom event with Christina May earning a spot in the state meet at Nub's Nob February 25. She skied to a sixth place in the slalom event with two fine runs down the almost 55 gate course. Placing second for the team was Kelly Copeland who had an eighth place finish just a tick behind May. Finishing third for the team was April Silbar in 22nd place. Cris Crozier finished in 27th place followed by Denise Coon in 36th and Hilary Bradford in 57th after a long climb because of missing a gate.

In the giant slalom, Copeland had an 8th placing, Silbar a 17th, Bradford 26th, Amy Barnes 38th, and Kathleen Johnson 43, May finished 69th after having to climb back up hill after missing a gate.

Although just as disappointed with the final results as the girls, Assistant Coach Robin Simpson said that the girls are still a great bunch of ski racers and she has enjoyed working with the predominately senior team for the past four years.

Her remarks were echoed by Head Coach Bob McCullough who said the girls may have qualified, but the winning schools had more depth and could afford to take some chances in order to win as a team. Those chances just worked out for the winning teams, but not to Boyne City's benefit. He said that he was happy with the girls improving their finish result over last year when they finished in sixth place at the regionals.

While disappointed with the girls' result, he was pleased that the young boys' team had a 10th place finish in the standings out of 17 schools, which should improve in the future years.

Placing for the boys in slalom were Dennis Moore in 18th, Chris McKenney 24th, Richard Hartwell 26th, Dan Polleys tied for 66th, Steve May 80th and Collen Stackus disqualified and did not finish the second run.

In the giant slalom, Moore took 28th, followed by Hartwell with 37th place, Polleys 41st, McKenney 42nd, May 68th and Sky Stackus 89th.

All in all, it was a good ski season for the team and the coaches are looking forward to next year. Only one event remains for the two teams and that is the annual banquet which will be held

For a first year volleyball team. Boyne City blew out the candles of East Jordan last Monday, winning the match 3-2 over the Red Devils with some hotly contested games.

East Jordan took the first game with leads of 40 and 70, but the Ramblers then scored a few points that were matched by the Devilettes who went on to win 15-5.

The second of the five games also went to the Devilettes on a comeback set of plays after the Ramblers took a 41 lead and came out on top 15-10.

The third game was the start of the downfall for the East Jordan netters, when the Ramblers took a two point lead and never allowed the Devil girls to catch up, only letting the Devils score one more point. Boyne took the game 15-3.

The next game was also Boyne's even though it was a little closer with the score tied for a few moments. Boyne then took the lead with seven points and went on to win 15-9.

The last game saw the Ramblers take a quick five point lead and enlarged it to 10 while the Devil girls could only hit for three. The Ramblers continued to add to their lead while the Devils added five more points. Boyne went on to take the game and the match 15-8.

The junior varsity saw the Devil girls taking all three games, 15-5, 158, and 156.

EJ girls continue losing streak

BY MARGARET WORGESS

East Jordan's girls' volleyball team continued their losing steak last Wednesday when they met Elk Rapids who took all three games to take the match.

They started off on a winning streak by taking a quick win in the first game working up to a 123 point lead before the Devilettes could score a point. The Elks then took the game 15-2.

The second game was closer, but the Elks stayed on top even though the Devils worked to get the score almost even. The Elks took the game 15-9.

In the third game the Elks took the lead from the start when the Devilettes came back to score three in a row to make the score 5-4, the scoring then was Elks, Elks, and so on until they hit 15 while the Devils could only add one more point. The final score was 15-5.

The junior varsity played an outstanding series of games with two players out of action. They allowed the Elks to win the first game 15-7 and then came back to take the second and third games,

Clam-like critters causing concern in Charlevoix County

BY REG SHARKEY Mussels are beginning to show

Mussess are beginning to show their muscles in our Great Lakes waterways.

Yep, this tiny clam-like critter, about the size of a navy bean, is threatening to raise hob with the life styles of humans dependent on those waters, not only for sustenance, but also for recreation.

Somehow this foreign zebrastriped invader, as larva, hitchhiked a ride in the ballast tanks of foreign freighters; and when ballast water was discharged into the Great Lakes the tiny larva found the inland seas of the New World to their liking, maturing into hordes of reproductive adults.

Now their population has exploded into millions, or more likely billions, and like our national debt, there is no end in sight unless we do something about it.

Anything below the water line is housing for the invaders. They attach themselves to boat hulls, propeller shafts, and according to a news bulletin from the University of Michigan the larva even enter into the cooling systems of marine engines causing overheating. And their massive build-ups on pilings and docking facilities can cause damage to boat hulls as well as injuries to humans coming in contact with their razorsharp shells.

But, perhaps, the greatest threat of this minute mussel is their ability to plug up intake of conduits that supply water to municipalities, or power plants and industries that need large volumes of water for processing or cooling.

Big Rock nuclear plant, as well as the Charlevoix city water supply system, are prime candidates for a mussel invasion. So far these invaders haven't shown up, or been discovered in this area of Lake Michigan.

But you can bet your bottom dollar that they will be making their appearance in the near future. And Petoskey city fathers are now considering tapping Little Traverse Bay for life-sustaining water.

According to the mentioned bulletin, adult mussels can coloninize breakwaters, docks, beaches, creating foul-smelling masses of up to 100,000 mussles per square meter (1550 sq. in.).

Taking it all into consideration the biggest threat is to municipalities and industries that depend on large volumes of water for human welfare.

of course the recreational aspects of the Great Lakes waters can also be adversely affected by this tiny giant. Even the recreational boater traveling With the courts

DISTRICT COURT

Judge Harvey C. Varnum recently heard the following cases in Charlevoix District Court:

Debra J. Fortune, 39, Boyne City, malicious use of phone. $205 fine and costs, one year's probation, court referral program, and 10 days in county jail, held in abeyance.

Michael J. Koch, 36, St. Clair Shores, operating motor vehicle while under the influence of alcohol. $430 fine and costs, six months' suspension of driver's license with restricted license, and 10 days in county jail with credit for one day served; nine days held in abeyance.

Dorothy D. Seage, 61, Battle Creek, impaired driving. $350 fine and costs, 90 days' suspension of driver's license with restricted license, one year's probation, court referral program, and three days in county jail with credit for one day served; two days held in abeyance.

Benny C. Ingram, 29, Boyne City, impaired driving. $380 fine and costs, six months' suspension of driver's license with restricted license, nine months' probation, court referral program, and three days in county jail with credit for one day served; two days held in abevance.

Lori J. Kuehnle, 26, Boyne City, embezzlement under $100. $205 fine and costs and $160 restitution to injured party.

Craig O. Petrak, 23, St. James, impaired driving. $330 fine and costs, 90 days' suspension of driver's license with restricted license, nine months' probation, court referral program, and three days in county jail with credit for one day served; two days held in abeyance.

Great Lakes waters will find out, first hand, what this small mussel

Without a doubt this invader will find its way into inland waterways either by larva ascending up connecting streams, or be transported by boaters who go from one of the Great Lakes to inland lakes or streams. All forms of aquatic recreation will be affected.

In an attempt to get a "handle" on this problem, Michigan Sea Grant Extension is offering a conference on the topic March 14th at the Midway Motor Lodge in Lansing. For information call Chuck Pestis at (616) 846-8250 or Walt Hoogman at (517) 362-3449.

I would think that any municipality, especially those boarding the Great Lakes would send a representative to that meeting.

There may be a war in the Persion Gulf, but it looks like we've got one right here in our own back yard

PANCAKES AND LENT

Shrove Tuesday, the day before Ash Wednesday which is the first day of Lent is the traditional day to serve pancakes. These cold winter days we are beginning to look forward to spring. The word lent intself is an expression of spring taken from the Old English "Lenten" meaning spring. I am sure that the old timers had a much deeper longing for spring days than we do; their winters must ahve seemed longer without central heating and they counted the 40 days before Easter which they knew was the real beginning of a little warmth in their days. I still do not know why pancakes are to be served on Shrove Tuesday, though I love pancakes and think that they are delicious any day of the year, especially when fresh maple syrup is available.

I often like to buy a quart of buttermilk to make buttermilk pie and ranch style salad dressing. Then I wonder what to do with the rest of the buttermilk. I wanted a recipe for buttermilk pancakes, knowing that old-time housewives all made them for their families' breakfasts. However, I could not find any recipe for them in any of my old cookbooks. Then it dawned upon me that the writers of those books took it for granted that everyone knew how to make buttermilk pancakes as they expected everyone to know how to make white sauce and gravy. So I converted an old recipe for oatmeal not recommending this recipe because I am afraid that our snow is polluted.

SNOW GRIDDLE CAKES

To 6 tablespoons flour, add a little salt and 6 tablespoons of light fresh-fallen snow. Stir the flour and the snow well together and add a very little sweet milk. Bake the batter in small cakes on a griddle, using only a very little butter. The cakes may be eaten with butter and sugar, or with syrup, and are very delicate. I can imagine that pancakes using buttermilk into the following:

BUTTERMILK PANCAKES

1 cup buttermilk 1 egg, beaten

1 cup flour

1/2 tsp. salt 1/2 tsp soda 2 Tbsp. sugar

Mix together the above ingredients; it does not hurt to let the batter set aside a little, while you fry bacon, sausage or ham. If it is too thick add a little more buttermilk and if it is too thin, add a little flour. Fry with a little butter in a non-stick pan; do not have the pan too hot as the sugar in the recipe causes it to brown quickly. These pancakes are very light, lacy and beautifully browned; besides they have a delicious
