East Jordan schools getting growth crunch also

East Jordan Public Schools is "Not at a crisis stage right now," said Chip Hansen, the Superintendent of the school system after hearing of the Facility Review Committee Update last week.

He continued that although the school district is in pretty good shape right now, "We are expecting to be feeling the pinch in our middle school and in two years, we will be in the crisis stage.

schools are facing today. "I am glad we are not at the crisis point because the economic conditions the area is facing right now give us a couple of years of leeway to allow the conditions to improve. Hopefully, time will help us."

The report showed the elementary school at this point in time has a current number of classrooms that are acceptable for the type of instructional load being provided as well as room for the type of instruction the school is anticipating in the future.

They do need classrooms for some current programs that are "homeless," including Pre School and Parenting, Chapter One and select hours of music and art instruction. The report also suggested the resource rooms need to be located in the elementary wing of the building.

Storage areas are limited throughout the building and conference areas for teachers and parents are limited so they would like to see additional rooms for those programs.

There is also some concern with the heating, ventilation and lighting or some other energy problems the school needs to upgrade.

And the areas that are shared with the middle school, like the cafeteria, music room, art room, media center and playgrounds are feeling the pinch of growth.

The real concerns come in the middle school area where the system is expecting a growth of seventy students in just four years. Right now, they have no classrooms to cover the growth.

Storage space is also limited throughout the building, along with teacher-parent conference

The high school is in good shape for the upcoming growth of the district, according to the report made by Interim Principal Steve Hines. He did say that additional space will be needed for a technology lab and for more computer assisted instruction.

He also told the committee that storage areas are limited and the library-media center could benefit from being enclosed. The school will also be needing conference areas as the present conference rooms are being utilized as offices and isntructional areas.

The committee will continue to review the needs of the district and will be making a proposal sometime in the future as to what the district will be facing in a few

Boyne to let courts decide suit against planning board/city

After a short closed session Tuesday, Boyne City Commissions agreed to enter an agreement that would require Circuit Court Judge Richard Pajtas to make the decision as to whether or not Elizabeth McIntyre would be allowed to construct duplex condominiums on property owned by the McIntyres and known as the former McIntyre Marina.

The McIntyres had sued the city after her requests to construct four duplexes on four lots in 1989 and a revised plan which would have allowed three duplexes on three lots in 1990 were denied by the planners on the grounds of density and other considerations.

matter into the hands of the court without having to go to trial on this part of the suit. It would make the Circuit Court act like an Appeals Court in the matter with Pajtas reviewing all of the information concerning the case and making sure that the denial of the planning body was complying with the Constitution and laws of the state, is based on proper procedure, is supported by substantial evidence on the record, and represents reasonable exercise of discretion granted by law to the Boyne City Planning Board.

The city will turn over to the courts all of the information it has concerning the decision of the planners as well as the information from the McIntyres.

The eventual outcome of the project will be dependent on what Pajtas says and could allow, depending on which case stands up in the courts' eyes, three duplexes on three lots, four duplexes on four lots, or three on four.

The city had agreed to let the the four lots, but McIntyre never presented a site plan for approval.

If Pajtas agrees with the city's contention that all was proper, then McIntyre could drop the suit and be allowed to come back with a site plan for three duplexes on four lots which would meet the present zoning codes for that type of property.

eeep awards go to 15 michigan

Fifteen Michigan communities will be presented the 1990 economic development awards Monday, March 18, at the sixth annual Communities of Economic Excellence Program (CEEP) award ceremony in Lansing.

These winners have done an excellent job in forming cooperative, broad-based organizations to achieve economic success in their own local area. They represent the best economic development planning and implementation among communities across the state.

Receiving 1990 Overall Excellence Awards will be Oakland County and the cities of Adrian, Ionia, and Midland. The counties of Berrien, Manistee, and Muskegon and the communities of Boyne City, Frankenmuth, Greenville, Hillman, Kalamazoo, Portage, Tecumseh, and Zeeland will receive recertification of their 1986 and 1968 CEEP Overall Excellence Awards. These communities are recognized for continuing to implement and improve their economic development programs.

CEEP, created in 1983, recognizes individuals and communities which play a unique role in economic development, such as identifying and fostering potential entrepreneurs, building and capitalizing on a community's strength to increase economic opportunities and jobs, and responding to the current needs of area businesses and attracting new ventures.

A passenger boat service to establish regular cruises between Boyne City and Charlevoix has been hailed by a group of Boyne City business people as "probably the most positive thing that's happened in a long time to bring business to Boyne City.'

WITH BEA SMITH

ST. PATRICK'S DAY It's a double celebration for the O'Donnell family on St. Patrick's Day and for a good reason. The late Pat O'Donnell was born on Beaver Island on St. Patrick's day. I think the year was 1898. His parents, good Irish people were patriotic Americans and they named their son Patrick Henry O'Donnell. Pat lived up to his name in so many ways. He was a fun loving, family loving man and what stories he could tell his children and grandchildren about life on the Great Lakes.

At a very young age he passed his navigational exams and was later Captain of the Coast Guard Flagship on the lakes for many years, except during World War Two, when he was a Lt. Commander in the Pacific theatre of war. For some time after the war he was on the East Coast servicing the light houses from Maine to Florida. Even after he retired to his home in Bendon in the Interlochen area he was called on to pilot a car ferry across Lake Michigan.

Pat was also a talented artist, he loved to paint pictures of the lighthouses and the special ships that had been his home for a large part of his life. I am sure that it would be sad for him to know that those beautiful lighthouses are no longer necessary and he would be campaigning to preserve them.

St. Patrick's Day parties are planned from one year to the next, by the Irish and their friends. A short time ago I received a request for a recipe for Irish stew for just such a party. I thought that would be easy. However, I went through hout 10 old and new cookbooks for Irish stew before I discovered two in my "Whitehouse Cookbook" published in 1926. I guess it is really a lamb stew. Here is the fir-

IRISH STEW Time about two hours 21/2 lbs. mutton chops 8 potatoes 4 turnips 4 small onions

"Take some chops from the loin of mutton, place them in a stewpan, cover wtih boiling water and simmer one hour. Add turnips, onions and potatoes cut into pieces, pour in nearly a quart of cold water; cover stew pan closely, let it stew gently till the vegetables are ready to mash and the better part of the gravy is absorbed; season with two teaspoons of salt and onehalf teaspoon pepper, then place in a dish; serve it up hot. A cheaper cut from the fore-quarter can be used if the meat is trimmed in neat pieces."

This next recipe is in the same book, so it seems that it does not make too much difference what vegetables you use. Years ago there were old jokes about what all went into Irish Stew. Remember the song, "Who put the overalls in Mrs. Murpheys chowder?"

IRISH STEW FOR TWO Cut 11/2 lbs. of lamb in cubes. Put in kettle, cover with boiling water, about three cups, and cook slowly until the meat begins to tender. Add two onions, sliced, two carrots diced, and three potatoes cut in pieces the size of meat cubes. Simmer until the meat and vegetables are tender. Season with salt and pepper and stir in two tablespoons of flour mixed to a smooth paste with a very little water. Serve with dumplings.

With Irish Stew I would serve this salad:

On individual salad plates layer chilled crisp pieces of fresh spinach, then a layer of sliced red onions, then scatter sliced mushrooms over all. Serve with a vinegar and oil or French dressing.

For dessert serve apple pie or this... BLUSHING APPLE TAPIOCA

1/2 cup sugar 11/2 cups boiling water

1/2 small lemon thinly sliced 2 Tbsp. red cinnamon drops 4 large apples pared and cored

2 Tbsp. minute tapioca 1 Tosp. lemon juice

Combine sugar, water, lemon, and cinnamon drops. Cook until drops are dissolved, stirring constantly. Add apples, cook until tender. Remove apples, strain juice into a measuring cup, add water if necessary, to fill cup. Bring quickly to a full rolling boil over direct heat, stirring constantly. Remove from fire, add lemon juice. Stir occasionally, mixture thickens as it cools.

When ready to serve, fill chilled apples to overflowign with mixture. Garnish with a mint leaf, if you wish and serve with whipped

Opinions

Our roads need repair

We will be glad when the state finally gets to replacing M-75 or Boyne Avenue as it comes to the downtown of Boyne City this spring and summer, but we wonder when and if the state will also replace or repair the road the rest of the way to Boyne Falls.

That road is starting to break up with the winter frosts and now with spring we are sure to see potholes at every crack in the roadway.

It kind of makes one wonder where all of the highway money the state gets from our gas taxes go when you have to travel a road that is falling apart.

It was just a few years ago the voters approved the raising of that tax, just so roads similar to M-75 could be in good shape. Perhaps all of the money went to pay off the bonds on the Zilwaukee Bridge or maybe I-96.

Whatever, it sure looks like Charlevoix County ended up on the short end of the stick as far as getting money from the state to keep our roads in good shape for the ever growing tourist trade.

Maybe it is a part of a great plan by the state to drive residents out of the north country.

Maybe another part of the plan was to raise the assessments to where people can't afford to live around these parts.

The way the assessments are coming in, almost everybody should make an appearance in front of their local board of review.

Perhaps then with several thousand people complaining at each and every board of review, they will get swamped with requests to lower the assessments and just start doing it.

Then we have to start a letter campaign to the representative and senators. Not just our own, but every one of the politicians in Lansing to get them to move in the direction of reducing the assessment factor they seem to use to raise the taxes.

If every board is besieged with complaints, every politician the same, then maybe we can start to get the roads back in shape in every county, not just the few below the 45th parallel.

Jottings

Last week I attended a grand opening of sorts for the new cellular phone system that has started up in the area, one of two franchises that are approved for

As I looked around the room, I noticed several people who brought their portable phone with them for the dog and pony show the organizers presented, all of them looking like they were waiting for someone to ring them up so they could look important.

Myself, I don't think I will ever get to wearing a status symbol like a phone wherever I go.

That's because I feel my own time is important to me, and I do not necessarily want to be disturbed while I am trying to get creative in my mind while driving.

I am also of the opinion that while I am at a restaurant, I don't want to hear the phone ring at the next table. That's because I was brought up to answer the darn thing as quickly as possible.

Even at home, where I just know that one call out of 20 may, just may, be for me and not the kids, I still get up, cross the room and answer.

So if I hear a phone ring at the next table, I will probably reach right over to answer it, even though it is not my phone, or my phone call.

In a way, we are possibly going to write to Miss Manners or somebody to start a phone etiquette proposal in public places, so as to not disturb those eating and wanting a free hour away from phones and disruptions.

The proposal I would like to see presented is not to bring the phone to lunch or dinner, leave it in the car and install an answering machine.

There are few things so important as a phone call that can't wait, unless the person with a phone is a doctor on call.

Even then, the doctor should have the presence of mind not to eat out on those days and times.

There are a few of us left, I hope, who do not want to be disturbed from the pleasure of eating.

Remembrances

Around the turn of the century, Boyne City found that the water system needed to be better to serve the then 10,000 residents of the community. So the city authorized the building of a new reservoir on one of the hills near town. That reservoir is still in use today, located high on the hill of the Avalanche Preserve. It must have taken the workmen some time to build the structure using the equipment shown in the picture above as the forms were placed and the cement mixer moved across the forms to dump in the cement. This is another picture from the collection of Stella McPhee.

Only Headlee tax cut is right for state

Editor

"Some legislators are conducting confusing workshops in their districts promoting Gov. Engler's cut in school tax as a supposed way of providing needed property tax relief," Bill McMaster, campaign director of the Headlee Tax Cut Initiative told 450 local homeowners meeting last night in the Lake Orion High School gym.

"They're distracting angry taxpayers who just received notice of whopping annual increases in property tax assessments on their homes and businesses from the pending implementation of the Headlee Tax Cut Initiative," Mc-Master said.

Taxpayers United, the largest non-partisan grassroots taxpayer group in Michigan, is sponsoring the Headlee Tax Cut Initiative. The group collected and filed (last September 11) more than 224,000 of the 191,726 petition signatures required.

"The Board of State Canvassers is expected to certify the sufficiency of Headlee Tax Cut Initiative signatures Monday, March 4," McMaster said. "The legislative initiative will then be sent across the street to the State Capitol where Gov. Engler has said there is bipartisan support to adopt the Headlee Tax Cut Initiative within the 40 day requirement," McMaster said.

Once the Headlee Tax Cut Initiative is adopted by majority vote in the legislature, every property tax assessment increase notice in the state will have to be rescinded and recalculated to reflect the December 31, 1990 effective date of the first 10 percent cut in property tax assessment mandated by the Headlee Tax Cut Initiative," McMaster said. "That's the property tax cut Gov. Engler promised Republican, Democratic and independent voters last fall, and the reason Gov. Blanchard was narrowly defeated."

The Headlee Tax Cut Initiative

A. Cut each property tax assessment 10 percent retroactive to December 31, 1990 and another 10 percent December 31 this year. B. Force the state legislature to fund from the State General Fund any local revenue lost by the 20 percent cut.

C. Allow any taxpayer to bring suit in his/her own County Circuit Court to enforce this statute with attorney fees paid by the taxing body at 150 percent of actual expenses if the taxpayer prevails. No cost of any nature shall be levied against a plaintiff taxpayer.

"In contrast Gov. Engler's recently introduced substitute proposal for the Headlee Tax Cut Initiative is very iffy," McMaster explained. "Gov. Engler's Republican Plan seeks a Constitutional amendment which will require a petition signature campaign to collect half a million signatures in time to put the issue on the November 1992 ballot. If the Secretary of State Bureau of Elections and the Board of State Canvassers take six months to certify Engler's Constitutional amendment signatures as they have with the Headlee Tax Cut Initiative, Engler's chances aren't very good for even getting his proposal on the 1992 ballot."

"Taxpayers can't afford to wait a minimum of two more years for Engler's plan which provides a paultry tax cut of $30 per year per household," McMaster stated. "More than 56,000 Michiganians have already lost their homes to State Government tax sales in 1990.

"There will be little credibility for Gov. Engler and legislators who ignore voters' expressed trust that property tax assessments will be cut this year if Gov. Engler, the State Senate and the House don't act on their commitment of support for the Headlee Tax Cut Initiative," McMaster said.

"It would be helpful for homeowners to call Gov. Engler's office and their State Senator and State Representative," McMaster added. "Tell them you want the Headlee Tax Cut Initiative implemented now because it is the only way to cut property tax assessments this year."

The only way to effectively alleviate the taxpayer revolt in Michigan is swift implementation of the Headlee Tax Cut Initiative in March 1991," McMaster concluded.

WITH GAIL WARE

A grave mental disease - what Plato called it. Rude, but then his goal was the rational society, which being "in love" has little, if anything, to do with.

Likely the renowned Greek philosopher is whirling in his grave today as researchers recently found that the condition he considered cuckoo helps make the marital mixture a lot less lumpy, the more the better too. And, lacking any "in loveness," marriages have a hard way to go.

Sociology professor Martin K. Whyte and his colleagues at the University of Michigan set out to discover if any particular courtship style, dating practices, influenced the success or lack of it in marriages; that is, whether couples spent their courtship routing out weeds in the rutabagas, waltzing at the Waldorf, munching burgers at the malt shop or sipping cappuccino at a sidewalk cafe, bowling, or ski diving perhaps, related to marital sink or swim.

To do so, they interviewed 459 women who were married from the 1920s through the mid-1980s, years that included various states of society from war to peacetime, depression to boomtime plus you name it that went on in the 60s.

Along the way they found much to support conventional wisdom. For instance, adolescence seldom supports marital survival. In other words, best hang tough there, young ones, until you grow up a bit, and one or the other, preferably both, can hold better paying jobs than those depending on free room and board at the parental nest to make ends meet. It helps also if one partner learns hazily at least how to use a frying pan and make a pot of coffee.

Then too, similar family backgrounds help stabilize a marriage. This doesn't mean there has to be a match in family income or social status. Rather it's a customs' fit.

For instance, if her father often belched after dinner, she may not be delighted but is less likely to be outraged if her spouse does. Likewise, if the bathroom is hung with her hand-laundered underthings, he may complain of being tortured by the constant drip, drip, but if his mom did the same, he'll likely be more philosophical about living with his bride's liquid lingerie.

Common values about money, shared control also, open up potentially sticky wickets. Same leisure time activities help too: a "those who play together stay together" irrationality, preceding many marriages and often lasting into them, which comes with being in love, is the common food that nourishes unions, keeps them strong and intact.

Odd that no one has seen it, given credit to it before. But likely it's because no one suspected that some head-in-the-clouds stuff can help loads to keep alive such a fragile institution as marriage.

Another companion finding about the value of being in love is that if or when it passes, some of its aura still lingers. Just the memory of the feeling of being in love keeps a marriage going, some of its hopes and dreams too.

The message: loony in love a wedded winner. Pass it on.

As for Plato, no one can argue with him his view of being in love in light of the recent findings about it, his having been dead over 2,000 years. He might lose some of his high standing now, though, saying what he did, which he had no business discussing anyway. Not only a bachelor, but his writings don't mention his ever even having so much as dallied a while with a member of the opposite sex.

So while those who know the wonderful wackiness of being in love delight in its new respect, Plato may be forgiven some his hard line on it based on his inexperience. But still - a grave mental disease - indeed!

EJ barely beats Charlevoix

BY JENNIFER BURR

East Jordan traveled on over to Charlevoix on Saturday and came home with a victory of 62-61.

The game started off like any normal Charlevoix vs. East Jordan game, the Rayders leading 20-9 and the Devils were really going to have to work to get ahead.

Going into the lockerroom at half-time, Charlevoix led 39-30, and when the Devils came out, they knew what had to be done.

The third quarter was a catch up and strong defense quarter, but at the end of three quarters of play, the score was 53-46, and Charleyoix was still ahead.

The final score tells exactly how the game was played... close. East Jordan played great defense and smart offense and came out the winners in the end.

Leading scorer for East Jordan was Ross Miller with 18, followed by Pete Inman and Kris Snyder both with 11. Dave Patton and Snyder both added four assists. Inman led East Jordan in

Saw-whet owl has strange call

BY REG SHARKEY Skreigh aw, skreigh aw, skreighaw followed by a whew!

If one is fortunate enough to hear this unusual sound, just after dark, or on into the night, it is not the sound of a sawyer filing (whetting), or sharpening a saw; it is the voice of a saw-whet owl.

This small 7-81/2" nocturnal owl seems to prefer the dense woods or swampy conifer areas where it is seldom seen. However in the courting season its distinct rasping song is heard indicating that this miniature bird of prey is about.

The flight of this owl is rapid seeming to float on noiseless wings, dropping on insects or even mice in grassy openings. And they take small song birds, making no distinction between song birds or what we consider nuisance avians.

The saw-whet nest is usually in abandoned woodpecker holes, natural cavities, or even in wood duck nest boxes, and contain 5-6 white eggs

Unlike the young of larger owls, saw-whet owlets are airborne around a month after hatching, making it possible for them to follow migrating song birds southward before the on-slaught of in the spring.

Satisfied with my examination of this fascinating little creature, I put it back into its daytime retreat where it resumed its daytime siesta.

Fortunately this tiny bird of prey is never seen by most humans, for if it were there would be abuse through ignorance.

This little saw-whet owl sits politely on the finger of a brave person. The bird eats insects, mice and other small creatures. After the picture was
