With a record turnout for a school election, 1903 voters soundly defeated a proposal which

B.C. school board sets meeting to figure 91-92 student housing solution

Boyne City School Board members were given the challenge of determining the direction the board will have to go to determine the student housing for the 1991-1992 school year at their monthly meeting held Monday evening.

The board will have to determine where the growing number of students will be holding classes whether or not the district approves a new millage proposal Tuesday.

The school system is finding itself with two scenarios, according to Superintendent Bob Nakoneczny, one, if the issue passes, and one if it fails.

the overcrowding is tending towards the elementary levels with the system needing two additional classrooms for next year. One solution may be moving the Chapter One class out into the halls of the school, he said. Another way may be to move the present portable classroom at the Middle School over to the Elementary

He told the board the schools will need one additional classroom at the Middle School and will need another the following year.

If no solution is found for the classroom overcrowding, he consider split sessions for the district. Another possibility is to move a class, like the seventh or eighth grades to the high school where there is not yet a crowding problem

That move was rejected by the school board several years ago when they did not want the younger students mingling with the older. Even if they decide to move a class, the board knows that the solution will be temporary at best as the larger class sizes start to move into the High School in the 1993-94 school year. The board may have to consider moving the seventh or eighth grade social studies or english classes to the High School as soon as next year in order to have room for the incoming fifth grade.

The board, knowing it will have up a special meeting for next Monday to set up a cross section of the community to help in the decision.

They then approved a new curriculum for kindergarten through the eighth grade in language arts. The move was lauded by Nakoneczny as another step in making education for the students better.

"Everyone who worked on this program should be commended,"

The curriculum committee has been working on the new program for the past two years, trying to align and coordinate the teaching of language arts from the time a child begins school. The completion of the project, ninth through the twelfth will be developed next, he

News Briefs

Boyne City Firemen will be working this coming Saturday from 6 p.m. to 2 a.m., but not at a fire. They will be hosting a Vegas Night at the Boyne City Eagles Hall in the hopes they will raise some more money to be able to purchase extrication equipment (jaws) the department needs. All of the proceeds from the night will go towards that effort. The equipment costs about $19,000 and the department has gathered about $7,000 towards the purchase. The public is invited into the private club with only a cover charge of $1.00 for the evening.

Boyne City Schools will be holding yet another Inservice training session Tuesday April 16. Because of the training, students at the Middle School will be dismissed at 11 a.m. and the Elementary and High Schools at 11:15 a.m. There will be no afternoon kindergarten classes.

Boyne City Schools have another winning team as a group of ninth graders qualified for the state finals in the annual Future Problem Solving program. The team consists of Dale Owen. Dan and Matt Nakonezny. They will be going to University of Michigan for the contest. The team is just one of the many teams in the state wide program and include students from Boyne City's Middle School classes as well. Only other team to qualify for the state from the area was Charlevoix.

Boyne City Ambulance was given a suction type machine that was purchased by the Allied Signal Company. Presenting the machine to the ambulance was Terry Kidwell, the Senior Safety Administrator of the firm. The machine is similar to one purchased previously and will be used in the second ambulance of the city.

B.C. approves revised waste code changes

Since the State of Michigan did not agree to all of the stipulations of the Charlevoix County Solid Waste Management Plan, the county has had to review and rework several sections of their plan in order to get the states' ap-

In the process of reworking the plan, the county committee had to get an approval from all of the governing bodies, including Boyne City, Charlevoix and East Jordan as well as the townships before the plan could be resubmitted to the

The refinements in the plan were approved by the Boyne City Commissioners at their Tuesday noon meeting and include an amendment to develop better criteria for the placement of Type Two (Household waste) and Type Three (Construction waste) landfills that are more stringent than the state codes for such landfills.

With Boyne City's approval, along with the other townships and communities, the plan will have to be approved by the full

County Commission before being resubmitted.

The commissioners approved the setting up of Drug-Free Zones around the schools within the community after the school board had approved the action the previous night. The drug free zone will help local law enforcement concerning the punishment for those caught and convicted according to Randy Howard, Police Chief. He also said the city will be patrolling the school grounds and area better, now that this has been approved by the city. Howard said the zone will strengthen the citys' efforts to provide a better learning environment free from drugs at the schools.

In other action, the Commissioners learned the city is intending on holding another leaf and brush pick-up week this spring with the residents north of the river being able to put leaves and brush out for pick-up the week of April 29. Those south of the river will be able to have their pickup the week starting May 6.

was not that the people did not want classrooms, but rather that the people just did not want to pay more in taxes.

He said he believes the community understood the need for the new classroom space and he now hopes they will come forward to help with solutions to the growing space problems the school will be facing starting next year.

The proposal if approved, would have allowed the construction of a new Middle School that would have been connected to the high school and would have allowed for the sharing of common facilities like the kitchen, cafeteria and some classrooms. The defeated proposal would also allow for some renovation of the proposed Middle School which would have become the new upper elementary school for the fourth and fifth grades. It would also have added one additional kindergarten classroom to the Elementary School.

With the defeat, Nakoneczny felt a little disappointed but he had said earlier in the evening that he knew it would be a tough battle to have the measure approved by the voters.

He said that the Boyne Pride Committee did a good job in getting out to the voters and asking them to vote in the election and thanked them for their work.

It will be up to the school board to determine what action will be taken to solve the classroom space problem as the number of students is continuing to grow towards the

NOTICE OF ACCEPTING BIDS

Bids are now being accepted for the replacement of a roof on the County Building Annex, Charlevoix, Michigan. Bid specifications may be obtained from the office of Building Inspection, 208 Mason Street, Charlevoix, Michigan, telephone number: 616-547-7236. Deadline for completion of project is June 15, 1991. Bids are being accepted until 12:00 noon on Friday, April 19, 1991 at the Charlevoix County Clerk's office. The Board of Commissioners reserves the right to accept or reject any and/or all bids.

How can you guarantee that you could replace your home? No problem.

Auto-Owners Homeowners Policy offers optional guaranteed home replacement cost coverage for homes that qualify. It's broader coverage—so you'll never run out of money for covered losses. It may be more economical than your current policy that doesn't include guaranteed home replacement. Just ask your "no problem" Auto-Owners agent to tell you how Homeowners protection can be no problem for you and your home.

Opinions

Saying no starts in Lansing

With the defeat of the proposed bonding issue that would have allowed the Boyne City School district to expand, several lessons can be learned by politicians everywhere.

One is that the residents who have to carry the load in taxes are almost to the point where they want to have a "Tea Party." Only this time they are taking it out against education, about the only thing the local taxpayer can have control over.

If state officials are reading, they should be working hard to develop a tax savings plan for the property owners.

We think it would not really take much more than to say enough is too much and reduce the amount that the government can figure taxes upon as based on state equalized assessments.

Presently, that is set at 50 percent of total value. The state could, if the legislature had guts to face up to their peers and special interest groups just pass a ruling that would lower the amount of assessments the taxes are based upon.

Or they could just revise the state school aid formula so that schools like Boyne City, Charlevoix and others would come back into the formula and would allow the local school system to be able to use the money in any way they see fit.

Or they could just require the state to fullfill the requirements of the Headlee Act and pay back to the local school systems and local government the money spent on state mandated programs, like special education, for example.

Boyne City has been lucky in the sense that we are a growing community and school system because people want to live in these parts.

Having one of the better school districts helps create even more pressure as more want to move into the area.

The Boyne school board is going to face some tough decisions in the very near future, trying to figure out how to run a school district with little help above the present levels of taxes.

The voters have told them so in no uncertain terms.

We hope they can come up with some solution we all can afford.

Urges pet control

Editor,

April has been designated a "National Prevent a Litter" Month by the Congress of the United States.

The Charlevoix County Humane Society would like to remind all the residents of Charlevoix and surrounding counties of the benefits of having your pets spayed and nuetered.

The basic disposition and temperament of your pet will not be changed by removing his or her reproduction capability. Nuetruing a male can make him more tolerant of other males, but neither nueturing or spaying will be itself turn your pet into an obese, lazy animal. That is the result of excess food and insufficient exercise.

Benefits of spaying include not having to worry about accidental breedings, the strees and inconvience of confining the female in season and unwanted puppies or kittens. The spayed female dog will not develop uterine infections or tumors of the reproductive system as do many older unspayed females.

Nuetered males will not be stressed and upset by the scent of females in season, and are less tempted to wander. The nuetered male will not develop testicular cancer, and the risk of prostate cancer is lowered.

Pet overpopulation is a national tragedy, but also a tragedy in nor-

In Charlevoix County alone last year, 357 of the 683 animals that came through the doors of our shelter were euthanized because no good homes could be found for them.

Pet owners need to understand that they contribute directly to the problem if they let their pets have even one litter. There simply aren't enough homes for all the dogs and cats that are born every hour of every day. For every puppy or kitten that survives to maturity, about four others will not.

We don't want the message of Prevent a Litter Month to be that shelters have to euthanize millions of animals, even though that's a reality. The real message is that we all can help prevent this tragedy in the first place, simply by having our pets spayed and nuetered.

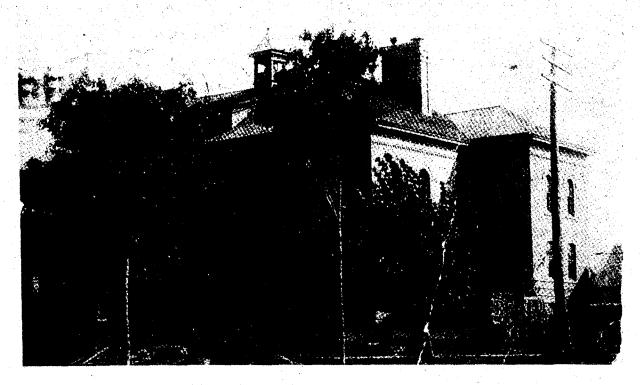

The Charlevoix County Humane Society is holding a Bowla-Thon, Sunday May 5, at the Paul Bunyon Lanes, to raise funds for our spay/nueter program. For more information about this event and our program, contact Pam at the Shelter, 547-9711. Hours are Monday thru Friday 18 p.m.

Remembrances

It seems like Boyne City has always had a problem finding space for students. This was the first High School which was constructed in Boyne City near the turn of the century and was used by Boyne City students up until the late 50's. It was torn down after the present High School was built and now is the playground for the present Middle School.

Jottings

WITH JIM SILBAR

Alright, everybody can come back to Boyne from all those places they went for the winter. The ice is out of the lake.

Of course it only took a couple of 80 degree days to do it, and a few gusts of wind, but you all can head on home and help us get ready for the summer season.

Now onto the business at hand... According to a release sent to the office the other day, if everyone would just go out and buy a new car, the reduction in fuel consumption would be greater, and the reduction of several different chemicals which have been know to harm the environment and it would help strengthen the economy.

You can't argue with those facts, they said, and they then cited a solution that was done many years ago in Britian when Winston Churchill supported a proposal to stimulate new car buying by offering a special rebate from excess government funds for those who traded in their old cars for new ones.

But another company, Unocal of California had a better idea.

They purchased, on the open market, 7,000 used cars from the years of 1970 and older for $700 each in order to scrap them. Then they gave each person selling the old car a pass on the transit system good for three months.

Ford then jumped into the program and offered $700 for those selling their old car and buying a new Ford.

That got my heart to a fluttering when I thought of the possibilities for those of us around these parts.

All we would have to do is to get some company, like Unocal or Shell or Marathon to offer some amount for those old cars. I even have a couple I would like to see thrown into the scrap yard.

Then we would need someone to work out a deal with the Charlevoix County Transit to give them free rides for a period of time, and someone like our car dealers to offer even more of a rebate if they purchased a new

And we also need the banks and finance companies to come up with a plan where people could actually afford a new car.

Of course, a government rebate could help also.

But all of this could be put together by the car companies, the dealers, the banks and the government working together.

The banks could free up their credit limitations, the dealers could give realistic prices and the manufacturers could also reduce their prices.

eir prices. What a promotion.

The gas company, besides buying the car to get it off the road, could sweeten the deal by of fering 100 gallons of gas for those with new cars.

The junk yard, oops, excuse me, the recycling center for automobiles, could give the gas company something more than $50 bucks per car and the steel companies could then give something more to the scrappers.

It could be a heck of a program and would help out those concerned with the emissions of cars, those concerned with the amount of fossil fuels we have left in the world, and those concerned with the increase in gas mileage per automobile or truck.

It may even take the government off the backs of the car companies for increasing the fuel mileage of cars, and increasing the cost of them also.

So all we have to do is to get some of the companies around these parts to start a promotional program like this...I might even then be able to buy a car or two.

Congintives, anyone?

It has been a spell since psychologists presented a shiny new theory on human behavior. Then, a short time ago, they came out with one, and a humdinger it is too, which is not to say it's smashing, certainly startling, though.

Actually, it's not a new theory but an expansion of one that's hung around for years; that is, when in doubt, best stay with the first answer you thought of on test questions despite second thoughts to the contrary. Leaping from this, psychologists now reckon that most people think too much.

Cognitive psychologists (they don't deign to define the "c" word, but the dictionary says it's "capable of being reduced to empirical factual knowledge" - got that?) have proposed that we all have a stock of implicit knowledge. (Hang on now. The cognitive persons explain this one.) It means feelings, visual memories and innate (part of your gene package) mental abilities. And this may conflict with rational analysis of a question or situation and still be right. So best not think deep enough to catch the conflict.

Psychologists didn't just dream up this theory. Well, perhaps they did, but before they went public with it, they conducted studies on it that they feel prove their case.

At the University of Virginia, a group of students were asked to pick their favorite poster from five possible selections. Then the study conductor asked half of them to write down justification for their choices. Those who did so ended up less pleased with their selections than those who didn't have to stick up for their picks.

In another study, two groups of men had to taste-test five brands of strawberry jam, one of the groups having to explain as well why they liked the ones they liked. The explainers chose differently from the nonexplainers, whose choices matched those of a group of jam experts.

Interesting studies, no doubt about it, but it's hard to figure how they prove to psychologists, even if they are cognitive psychologists, (maybe that means that they're thinking persons' psychologists) that most people think too much. Seems more like it proves, if anything, that people think so shallowly that they get bent out of shape, thrown off track, when they have to give reasons for their

Doubtless there are those who get so wound up in thinking, analyzing, probing all possibilities, that they get paralyzed with pondering. But this sort of thing doesn't appear to be common, especially among Americans, especially when they're irritated by anything or anybody. It's neither in the air, the genes nor the training. Speak up, stand up for your rights, sound off, is more our style, our background, foreground too.

In such a long silence, it seems as if psychologists could have whipped up a sturdier, more forceful new theory. But maybe they feel less confident these days after having to admit their years of counsel to dissolve marriages that didn't "satisfy" one or both partners was a miserable, mistaked idea. Anyway, this is bold, flying in the face of the long accepted theory of esteemed Greek philosopher Plato (he of the lofty being in love is a grave mental disease" notion,) who said: "An unexamined life is not worth living.

But what I mind is it mocks current writer/philosopher, Garrison Keillor, who's aired his views in funny but kindly tales of the singular ways of folk in his native Lake Woebegon, and has said: "I write to find out what I

I do too. Odd thing is, often what I thought I think, when I've written it, I see isn't what I had in mind

I shudder to think what psychologists would make of this.

Jones to face trial in stabbing case

Jeanette Lynn Jones, 24, of Court Street, Boyne City will be facing trial on a charge of manslaughter after it was determined in a preliminary hearing that there was enough evidence to warrant

Jones is accused in the stabbing death of David Allen Lambert, 26, after his body was found in the alley behind Main Street in Jones was bound over to the 33rd Circuit Court last Thursday after the preliminary hearing was completed. She was ordered to appear April 22 for her arraignment. Currently, she is free on bond.

Lambert and Jones were roommates and Jones allegedly stabbed Lambert numerous times on November 25, 1990 in Boyne City. Lambert died of complications from the wounds 12 days later, authorities said at the exam.

Boyne City Police investigated the death and according to Ken Schrade, a Boyne City police officer, Jones admitted to police she stabbed Lamber, but claimed it was in self-defense.

She was arraigned January 15, in district court on two felony charges of manslaughter and resisting and obstructing a police officer.

If convicted, she could be facing punishment of up to 15 years in prison and/or a $7,500 fine. The second charge carries a punishment of up to two years in prison and/or a $2,000 fine.

The case has been complicated by the facts that Lambert did not report the stabbing to police after seeking medical help, was involved in a automobile accident which could have complicated the injuries, and did not seek medical help after the accident.

The vote to decide whether Boyne City Schools would be allowed to expand classroom space was heavy when this picture was taken about 10:30 a.m. Tuesday as many people waited to cast their ballot at the

Don't let ATV's start a fire

Exhaust sparks from a trail bike kindled a 1,180 acre wildfire near Rapid River in July of 1988. People had been climbing a hill behind the school with their bikes, and hot carbon particles were released from the exhaust system of one of the bikes, starting the fire.

As the use of trail bikes, fourwheelers, and ORV's becomes more popular, this activity is responsible for starting more wildfires. Fires caused by ORV's, ATV's, and other motorized equipment tend to be larger, and more difficult to suppress.

Motorized equipment, including trail bikes nad ATV's, cause fires when they emit hot carbon sparks through their exhaust systems. Any condition that stimulates the formation of carbon deposits in the engine can potentially cause a wildfire. An out-of-tune engine, long periods of idling followed by high power output, or using an improper fuel-oil mix with two-cycle engines are some of the conditions that can lead to carbon deposits which can cause wildfires. Any alterations of the muffler of exhaust system will allow sparks to escape

Help Smokey prevent wildfires by keeping your engines in proper condition. It is against the law to operate an internal combustion engine outdoors, including a trail bike, an ATV, or a chain saw, without an approved spark arrestor on the exhaust system. Violations are punishable by a fine of not more than $100 and/or 90 days in jail. Further, if your motorized equipment is found to be responsible for starting a wildfire, you will be held liable for the costs of suppressing the fire.

To prevent your ATV or ORV from starting a wildfire, don't remove or alter your exhaust system. Also, keep your engine properly tuned, and use the correct fuel-to-oil ratio. Avoid prolonged idling which can build up carbon deposits.

Don't let your ATV or chain saw be the one that starts a wildfire!

TC theater group sets programs[,]

Traverse City's Michigan Ensemble Theater (MET) promises to entertain audiences with quality and innovative theater during it's premiere summer season which opens July 2 at Northwestern Michigan College's new air-conditioned Museum Center.

MET will kick off their 1991 season with the musical production 'A...My Name is Alice," July 2 through July 27. "The Boys Next Door," a social comedy, is slated as the second show and will run from July 30 through August 10. The season will finish with the comic farce, "What the Butler Saw," August 13 through 31.

Summer performances at the MET will begin at 8:00 p.m. Tuesdays through Saturdays, and 2:00 p.m. matinee performances will be held Tuesdays and Thursdays. Reserved seat ticket prices are $14 and $12 for evening performances and $12 and $10 for matinees

The Michigan Ensemble Theater is a new non-profit professional summer stock theater, although many of the principals involved in MET's development have been active in Traverse City theater for over five years. They previously performed under the name Tempest Productions and may be remembered for such shows as "Evita," "Children of a Lesser God" and "Baby."

The MET's Board of Directors is headed by President Barry Cole, a professor at Columbia University in New York and a part-time resident of Traverse City. Other board members include Frances Cole, a costume designer who has worked with Tempest as well as with various other Michigan, New York and Washington D.C. area theater groups, Vice-President: Gary Garrison, co-founder of the former Tempest Productions and currently Director of the Dramatic Writing Program at New York University, Secretary; June Neal, a co-founder of Tempest Productions and a Traverse City teacher who has been active in the local theater for many years, Treasurer; and Barbara Guile, founder and Director of Chicago's Steppenwolf Theater Student Series and Director of the Interlochen Arts Camp Shakespeare Division for several summer seasons.

The ensemble's staff currently includes Garrison as Artistic Director, and both Guile and Maggie Lally, a Director with the New York Repertory Theater Company, as Associate Artisite Directors. Working on the business side are Neal as the Administrative Director; and Joseph Callari, who has managed the Big Apple Circus in New York City for three years, as General Manager. Jeanne Curtis is the Administrative Assistant, and Deborah Hawkins is Publicist.

Auditions for the 1991 season have been held in both New York City and Traverse City; the actors and technicians will include professionals from both areas.

The MET opening coincides with the completion of Northwestern Michigan College's new Art Museum Center, a project that has been underway for several

Photographer interviewed on national program

Jerry McCreena of McCreena Photography in Charlevoix was interviewed on Omniverse, a Business Radio News, network broadcast. On March 23, 1991, Mr. McCreena was interviewed at length by Pete Waner, the host of Omniverse. The interview covered such topics as McCreena Photographys unique approach to photography, their pre-portrait consultation, and their designer portraiture. Of special interest to the host of Omniverse was the time Mr. McCreena spends before the actual photograpy session discussing details, observing mannerisms of his clients and planning all the fine points that can go unnoticed by some photographers. The interview, which lasted nearly 15 minutes, was broadcast live nationwide on March 23, and was replayed on the 24th. Locally the interviewed was heard on AM 1270 WMKT.

SALADS

It's the first of April and there is a scent of Spring in the air. The aroma of the awakening earth and; new growth inspires us. Spring is salad time and how lucky we are that we do not have to wait for our gardens to grow that way our grandmothers did. Our markets are filled with the colorful makings for salads.

This is from one of my mother's old cookbooks published in 1923: "To make a perfect salad one should be a miser for oil, a spendthrift for vinegar, a wise man for salt and a madcap to stir the ingredients and mix them well together."

Also from the same book: "The kitchen is a country in which there are always discoveries to be made." I'm convinced that it is especially true with salads. Here is a new approach when making spinach salad with grapefruit and strawberries.

SUNBURST SPINACH SALAD WITH POPPY SEED DRESSING Salad:

2 ruby red grapefruit 1/2 lb. fresh spinach, torn into bite

1 pt. fresh strawberries

Finely grate 11/2 teaspoons peel from the grapefruit; set aside for salad dressing. Combine grapefruit sections, spinach and strawberries in a bowl; toss gently. Serve immediately with poppy seed dredding. Makes 6 servings.

POPPY SEED DRESSING

18 oz. bottle red wine vinegar and oil salad dressing, or mix your own with red wine vinegar and your

1/2 cup sugar

1/2 teaspoon dry mustard 11/2 teaspoons finely grated grapefruit peel

1/2 cup grapefruit juice 2 tablespoons poppy seeds

Combine all ingredients in the container of an electric blender, cover and blend well. Regrigerate several hours before serving. Makes 11/2 cups.

I like to make the following salad when my son-in-law come to dinner because he loves radishes.

RADISH AND EGG SALAD 1 lb. red radishes, cleaned, trimmed and sliced 3 hard boiled eggs

1/2 C. sour cream 1 bunch scallions trimmed and chopped

Salt and pepper to taste Garnish with fresh dill. (I use a little dill weed) Just mix all the ingredients, except the dill and serve.

I think that the restaurant salad bars have taught us that almost anything goes when putting a salad together. For vegetables I like the ranch or French style dressings. However this winter at The Seabrook on Hilton Head Island I have discovered that I really relish a honey and mustard dressing for cottage cheese and any mixture of fruit. After coming home I mixed up this:

HONEY-MUSTARD SALAD DRESSING

1 C. sour cream

Mustard to taste. Some like more than others, and I used a mixture of the dry mustard and prepared kind. The prepared mustard gives it a rich color. Then sweeten it to your taste with honey. (one tablespoon per cup was sweet enough for me; so create your own very special dressing.)

Now, for an old family recipe that I have made through the years for special occasions.

NEW ORLEANS SHRIMP SALAD

1 can medium size shrimp, cleaned or prepare frozen or fresh shrimp. 4 T. salad oil

1 T. prepared mustard 2 T. lemon juice or vinegar

2 green onions, top and all, minced. Combine the last 4 ingredients to make a dressing and pour over the shrimp and set in the refrigerator for at least 2 hours. Mix well and serve with a tomato slice on a bed of lettuce. Serves 2 or 3.

Why rush, file an extension today's tax filing deadline, the Michigan Association of CPAs suggests that you consider applying for a filing extension. After all, deadline anxiety can make you sloppy and careless - and even inadvertent mistakes, like failing to sign your tax return, can be costly. In most cases, the average taxpayer will benefit more by applying for an automatic filing extension than by submitting a hastily prepared return.

Don't worry that an extension will increase your chances of an audit. CPAs say that such fears are not based on the facts. On the other hand, they warn that the IRS may pay closer attention to a return that lacks proper documentation, such as a W-2 form, or is fraught with mathematical erros.

Requesting an extension Requesting an automatic extension is fairly simply: just submit Form 4868 by the original due date (April 15, 1991.) The one-page form asks you to estimate your 1990 tax liability and pay any tax due. By submitting the form, you automatically push the filing deadline to August 15, thus gaining an additional four months to prepare and file your tax return.

Another option is available for those who live and work outside of the United States or Puerto Rico as of April 15. If you fit this category, you have an automatic, two-month reprieve for filing your return. This exception used to be available to those traveling abroad on the filing date but tax reform changed this. Now your home and main place of business must be outside this country to qualify for the automatic extension. An automatic extension also applies to military personnel on duty outside the United States. While this gives you extra time to get your return filed, you will generally be charged interest on any unpaid tax from the April 15 due date to the date you pay the tax. Filing extensions is not a payment

While the IRS allows an extension for filing completed tax forms at a later date, any tax due must be paid at the time you request an extension or you will face interest and possible penalty fees, including 5 percent of the unpaid amount for each month or part of a month, up to a maximum of 25 percent of the tax due. In addition, the IRS will charge interest on back taxes.

What if you simply cannot pay your tax liability at the time you file for an extension? In such cases, you can submit a second form: Form 1127. Unlike the form requesting a filing extension, this one requires you to document the details of any extraordinary hardship preventing you from paying your taxes on time. In other words, if you don't pay on time you have to prove that borrow the cash, capital or assets needed to pay the amount of tax owed. Arguing that you cannot pay your taxes because you need the money to purchase a new car or a trip to Hawaii will not win you a delay

Calculating tax owed

The filing extension form requires you to calculate whether you have paid 90 percent of your 1990 taxes. This can be tricky. especially if you have many deductions and several income sources. However, if you have only a few deductions and one principal source of income, the calculations are relatively simple.

To estimate whether you meet the 90 percent requirement, you'll need a 1040 or 1040A form at your side. Check the W-2 mailed to you by your employer to see how much tax was withheld from your paycheck and how much income you received. Total any additional sources of income, and then calculate your adjusted gross income by subtracting such items as deductible IRA contributions. Refer to your tax form and follow the next three steps.

First, compare your total itemized deductions with the amount of your standard deduction (formerly called zero-bracket amount) and determine which is greater. Second, add to the higher figure the monetary value of any personal exemptions to which you are entitled. Finally, subtract the total arrived at in step two from your adjusted gross income. The amount calculated in this step will be your taxable income. Check the 1990 tax table (or the tax rate schedule, if applicable) to estimate what your income tax bill will be and compare this number to the amount you have already paid through withholding or estimated tax payments. If that amount is at least 90 percent of the figure in the tax table, you are safe from the underpayment penalty.

Now, let's assume that you apply for filing extension and when August 15 rolls around, you are still unable to prepare your tax return. You can request a second extension by filing Form 2688. If granted, the second extension buys an additional two months, making the filing deadline October 15. But remember, the second extension is not automatic - this grace period is granted only to individuals proving hardship or reasonable cause. Incomplete reasons such as "illness" or "practitioner too busy" are not acceptable. You will have to supply detailed explanations, so don't count on a second extension unless you have a legitimate claim.

If you need help completing Form 4868, contact your local IRS office or your CPA for additional Teachers on the committee working on the project said that this new program will help students become better readers and has an emphasis on writing as well. They also said the program will align all of the classes involved so all teachers will become responsible for their portion of education of the students.

The board then approved and extended the contracts for the school administrators setting the pay scale for the High School Principal at $54,084 per year, the Middle School Principal at $54,573 and the Elementary Principal at $54,369. The pay is based on a formula that includes the number of students in their school, the length of service and other responsibilities. The contracts were extended to the end of the 1992 school year.

Board members then approved the setting up of three Drug Free Zones for all of the school buildings. The drug-free zone extends to 500 feet from the school grounds and doubles the penalty for those convicted of selling drugs or alcohol within the zone.

In other action, the board set up meeting dates for the annual Truth In Taxation hearing on June 3rd, the annual budget hearing on June 27th, and the dates for the annual school board/staff coffees with each school.

The board then heard the names of five candidates for the upcoming school board election to be held in June for the two open four-year term board seats. Those with valid nominating petitions include Steve Voice. Ira Brenneman. Tammy Smith, O.D. Sayles, and Linda Simpson. The board is trying to arrange for a Meet the Candidate Night sometime late in May.
They also approved the nonrenewal of contracts for the Chapter One Director and the Community Education Director, something they have done every year for the past ten years. The two will be hired back when the government and the Consortium Hydroplaning occurs when your car's tires lose contact with the road because of standing water, creating a "floating" effect.

High School with larger classes.
This year, the High School was the only school building that had room available due to the small numbers of the senior and junior classes. The growing class sizes have caused the school system to add one additional section each year as the class gets moved through the system.

School board members were disappointed in the results and will be meeting next Monday to discuss the election results along with finding room for students for next year.

Even if the issue had been approved, it would have been about a year and a half before any new school building would have been completed.

The next step is that the board will figure out a plan the voters would approve to alleviate the classroom shortages.

If the board can come up with a solution, they will have to wait a minimum of 45 days before holding another election. In order to hold an election in that short of time, the board will have to come up with a proposal that is at least 25 percent different than what was presented to the voters Tuesday.

Reg Sharkey's Northern Journal Burns Clinic offering memory Our backyard wildlife improvement course for seniors

Black Bart hits the deck for Breakfast

Our winter was filled with delight from wildlife

By Reg Sharkey
As a prelude to National Wildlife Week, April 21-27, I dedicate this column to the wildlife we have known and enjoy at the present time.

I was awakened on this drab, dewy, overcast Sunday morning by the rasping call of angry crows. They were "our" crows, Black Bart and his mate Mandy. Whatever was riling their bile I was unable to determine.

But, nevertheless I made a quick survey and tossed out a couple dog food sandwiches in an attempt to appease their ire, which they ignored until they had exhausted their bile on whatever had upset them.

And I got to thinking how our lives seem to be dominated by wildlife that seem to gravitate to our little acre, a part of their

We've had a succession of chipmunks that have kept us entertained with their unpredictable antics. A couple Saturdays ago one appeared in the garage, rummaging around in the fireplace wood for stored sunflower seeds. I haven't determined which one of the last summers crop of chipmunks it is.

Then,' too, we've played host to three skunks most of the winter, and in their intermittent nightly visits they too are hand fed via a basement window. And on warmer nights an opossum shows up for a handout.

We've had a fox that made regular sundown visits for handouts a couple years ago during the winter. We still have them making nighttime visits, only visible by the tracks they leave in the snow.

Then there is Big Mamma; a buxom female woodchuck that made her domicile under a woodrick beneath a towering maple. For four years she produced a brood of rolly-polly youngsters, so tame that they would sit in my lap, chomping on proffered greens.

Squirrels we had, and have in profusion: blacks, grays and the busy hyper-active little reds.

Presently we have two unusual orange and tan fox squirrels. One we call Mamma, a female of course, who comes up over the roof, down to the deck where our large bird feeder is. How she solved access to the feeder remains a mystery. However, what makes Mamma different is her habit. After gourging on sunflower seeds, she comes to the patio door and shinnies back and forth on her hind legs, begging for a going away present. When the door is opened she takes a peanut from hand and then departs for her own bailiwick.

Then there is "The Ball Player," a large, handsome male fox squirrel who stands upright looking up to the deck, front paws together, shifting back and forth like an outfielder looking for a fly ball. A tossed peanut, of course, is never caught. But it is his method of panhandling.

One of our most endearing wild critters was an orphan flying squirrel, dubbed Fly-By-Night. Reared from a suckling to adulthood this little night flyer, so trusting, was returned to the wild after a winter under our care, disappearing a few days later.

Everyone is welcome.

"I can't remember." We have all made that statement. Sometimes you forget things you've known all your life. Other times you can't remember where you left your keys or your glasses. It is frustrating, but you can improve your memory with this course offered by the Burns Clinic Foundation. The Memory Enhancement class is set for Wednesday, April 17, 10:30 a.m. at the Burns Clinic Medical Center, 560 West Mitchell in Petoskev Designed for senior citizens and other interested persons, the one time, free of charge class will be taught by Burns Clinic Health Educator Therese Green, who says you can remember her name by thinking of "green trees." This memory improvement technique, among others, will be discussed by Mrs. Green.

Also instructng the class is Kate Snow, R.N., M.S.H.A., Executive Director of the Living Room, an adult day care program. She will discuss Alzheimer's disease and other memory related illnesses.

The three types of memory: sensory memory, short term memory, and long term memory, are also important topics in the

Your sensory memory is what you receive by the five senses: taste, smell, sight, sound, and touch. Many times we don't remember what's going on around us because we don't pay attention. Also, as we age, and our hearing or sight isn't as sharp, our sensory perception lessens. Thus, our sensory memory is not as capable as it once was.

Short term memory lasts from a few seconds to a few minutes, and is a conscious thought process. For instance, you're introduced to someone new and a few minutes later you cannot remember their name. The name was in your short term memory bank, and you lost it after just a few minutes.

order to remember something from your short term or sensory memory, you must store it in your long term memory. This is by making use of the information and making other associations to remember the event. Techniques such as plays on words, ie, "green trees" for Therese Green, paying close attention to surroundings, and visualization are useful in storing events in your long term memory.

There is no charge for the Memory Enhancement Program sponsored by the Burns Clinic Foundation, but pre-registration is required. Call the Burns Clinic

Department of Health Education and Nutrition at 616-348-2134 to register and for more information.

Diabetes kids day to be held in Gaylord

A Diabetes Kid's Day for diabetic children and their parents will be held in Michawye in Gaylord on Saturday, April 27 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. The day will include fun activities such as swimming, games and movies in addition to brief classes on diabetic care, including topics such as diet, exercise and general information.

Diabetes educators Janet Baillod, RN, CDE, and Linda Bratsis, RN, CDE, of Munson Medical Center have organized the event through the northern region of the Michigan Organization of Diabetes Educators. The program will be staffed by health professionals from across northern Michigan, including nurses and dietitians. A local pediatrician will serve as medical director. For information, call Baillod or Bratsis at Munson Diabetes Education, 922-9595.

Now you have a choice of long distance companies for Dial 1 Plus service. Don't leave that choice to chance.

Watch the mail and make your choice soon.

If you have not already received it, you soon will be getting complete information from Michigan Bell by mail, along with a ballot listing your choices of Dial 1 Plus long distance companies. Your Dial 1 Plus options and the steps you should take are described in detail. And you will be given the date by which you must make your selection to avoid having a long distance company randomly selected

If your phone number does not begin with the number above, don't worry. You will be notified when your area is ready for Dial 1 Plus service.

What is Dial 1 Plus?

Dial 1 Plus is simply dialing "1," plus the area code (when necessary), plus the telephone number to complete a long distance call outside of your LATA. Companies offering long distance service can now offer you the same Dial 1 Plus service previously available only to customers of AT&T.

Don't give up your right

As part of the restructuring of the telephone industry, you must choose a company for Dial 1 Plus service or such a company will be chosen for you. Should this happen, it will be a random selection by computer. We urge you to make your own choice—because a company selected at random will not necessarily be one that best serves your specific needs. The information you receive will include telephone numbers for the various long distance companies, so you can easily look into their services and charges before you make your
