Talboys given Liberty Bell award

John Talboys, Boyne City's recently retired Police Chief, received the annual Charlevoix-Emmet County Bar Association's Liberty Bell Award last week at ceremonies held at the Perry Hotel in Petoskey.

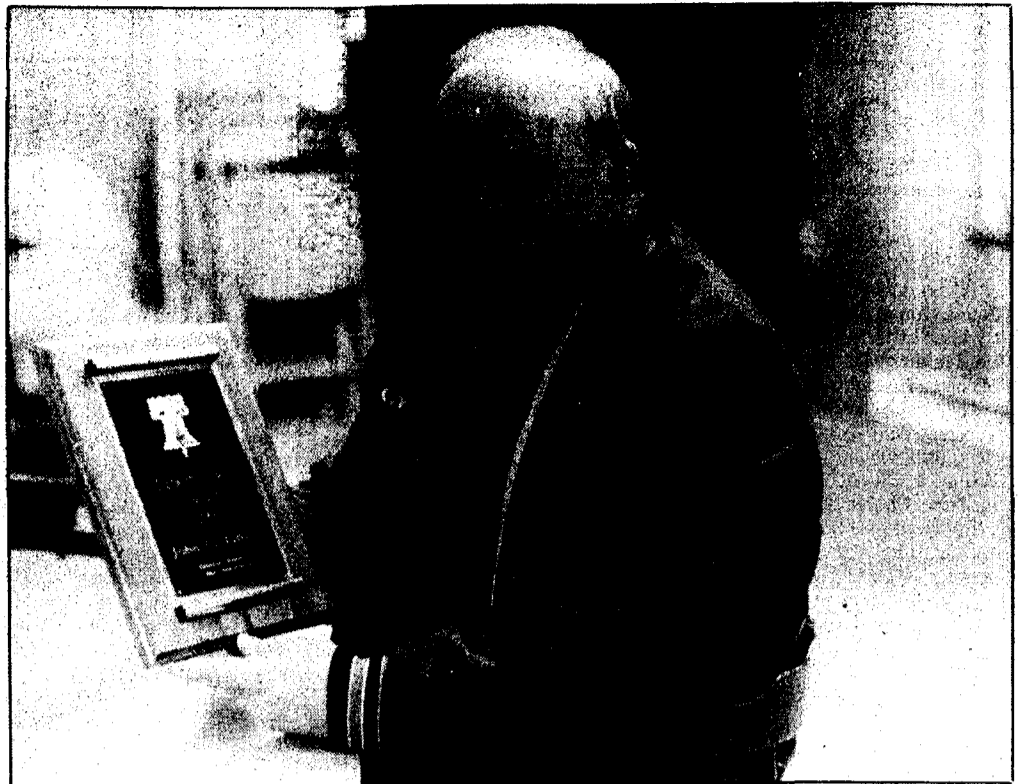

The award, given to a member of the community who is not a lawyer but who has made an outstanding contribution to the legal justice system was made to honor Talboys for his involvement to help found the Straits Area Narcotics Enforcement team, and for his bringing the D.A.R.E. program to the Boyne City Schools, one of the first school-law programs in northern Michigan. He is also a guardian working with the 7th Probate Court.

Diane Smith, Emmet County

Prosecutor said Talboys had an impact on the legal system in his job every day. "He always went beyond the call of duty," Smith added.

Talboys began as a dispatcher for the Boyne City Police Department back in 1957 and ended up spending most of his working career with the department.

Boyne City's retired Police Chief John Talboys looks over the plaque representing the annual Charlevoix-Emmet County Bar Association Liberty Bell Award. The award was presented this year to Talboys for the work he has done in furthering law enforcement in the area.

We have an exchange student in our top 10, that is why we have 11 students listed.

Boyne revises recycling program

Because of recurring problems with the recycling program, Boyne City officials Tuesday announced a cutback in the hours materials may be dropped off at the Waste Management containers located next to City Hall.

The problems ranging from people dropping off trash, not putting the recyclable materials in the containers and the amount of time it is taking for the containers to be emptied and returned, the commissioners agreed to only open the containers for materials on Thursday and Fridays from 7 a.m. to 9:30 p.m.

The containers will be locked up the rest of the time except when they are removed for emptying each week.

Commissioner Vic Ruggles said that it "is too bad, the cheating on what the program is supposed to do just ruins it for all." He continued that it would be a shame to

Morel championship to be held

Mushroom madness hits Boyne City this weekend when the National Mushroom Hunting Championships contestants come into town to try their luck and abilities of trying to find as many morels as they can during the two 90 minute picking time periods.

The first period Saturday will be the big one as over 100 contestants are expected to try for the finals which will take place on Sunday. The contestants should be signing up early Saturday morning at the Veteran's Memorial Park.

From there, they will move to the Boyne City High School parking lot to form up for the parade of contestants through the community before heading out to a special designated picking area.

have to have an attendant at the bins when they are open.

City manager Randy Frykberg said if an attendant was required, then the city would have to charge people to drop off items that can be recycled.

Frykberg did say that the city will start enforcing that has a penalty of a $500 fine and or 90 days in jail for those caught dumping items next to the containers.

BC pastor arraigned in Manistee

"There seems to be more emotional support within the church," said Linda Mansfield, Pastor Parish Chairperson of the Boyne City United Methodist Church after their current pastor was put on indefinite leave of absence imposed by order of the Bishop, Judith Craig.

The pastor, John Backoff, 47, of Boyne City, was arraigned last Monday in Manistee Circuit Court on an amended charge of Criminal Sexual Conduct (CSC) IV involving a minor. The charge stems from when Backoff was a pastor at United Methodist Church in Bear Lake, near Manistee.

Backoff served that church for several years before being transferred to Boyne City in 1990. Up until his suspension by the church, he was serving the Boyne City and Boyne Falls parishes. Backoff's activities with the Bear Lake Church recently surfaced in March when he was accused of an incident that allegedly happened in 1987.

Backoff was originally charged with CSC II, but through an agreement with the prosecution entered a no contest plea to the amended charge of CSC IV. The offense carries a maximum two year jail sentence.

He is currently free on a $1,000 personal recognizance bond and will be sentenced following the development of a presentence investigation report by the court.

The matter has split the local church, according to members, but they hope when a new pastor is appointed, the church will come together under his guidance.

Currently, a retired minister is leading the church and a new pastor has been named and will start in June. The new pastor is Gary Bondarenko who will start as soon as the bishop's yearly conferences are held.

As to Backoff, it is expected that he will be withdrawing his ordination from the Church after the sentencing.

When they arrive at the picking site, they will be told a final reminder of the rules and then a siren will sound announcing the beginning of the qualifying round.

After ninety minutes, the contestants will turn in their bags to officials from the Boyne City noon Lions Club where they will be taken and counted by other members. The contestants will get their pickings returned to them about 2:30 p.m. when the list of qualifiers will be posted at the park.

While all of the pickers are at the contest, the Schmidt Amusement Carnival will be operating for those not wanting to be in the contest. The Library will be holding a book sale and the Boyne City Police Department will be holding an auction starting about noon.

Saturday evening the Masons and Eastern Star will be hosting a swiss steak dinner for the public and area restaurants will be serving morel dishes.

Sunday, the qualifiers will be taken out to another spot and given 90 more minutes to pick morels.

Those will be counted as soon as the picking is over and the winners will get their awards about 2 p.m. at the pavillion in the Veterans Park.

Those not wanting to be involved with the contest will probably be out picking themselves as this year it seems like the mushrooms are out in abundance.

Township residents may be asked to pay for sewer

Glenwood Beach residents may have to pay up to $9,500 if they want to connect to a sanitary sewer line from Boyne City that has been proposed for the area according to initial cost estimates.

The sewer line, which would connect the residents along the lake in an area which has been called the worst polluter to the lake, was part of a proposal asked by Boyne City officials after giving permission to allow sanitary sewage from the Young State Park to come into Boyne City's treatment facility.

City officials asked the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) to check on the feasibility of bringing the line from the park along Glenwood Beach so the residents could tap into the line.

After two meetings, DNR officials said that bringing the line along the road would be to expensive and would have caused inter-departmental problems as the officials did not think another agency of the department would allow passage through portions that have been deemed wetlands.

Rather than delay the sewer line, the parks division said they would come along the Boyne City-Charlevoix Road into town where it would connect to the city system at John Street and Michigan Avenue.

Township and city officials urged the DNR to reconsider and gave them a few more options to consider. One of the options would be to create a separate line for the residents along the Glenwood Beach, Michigan Avenue roads.

At a meeting held last Wednesday evening between the city, township and the DNR, the first cost figure were presented to residents and officials by an engineering firm from Lansing.

That initial estimate was reinforced by City Manager Randy Frykberg who said he had asked Wade-Trim Granger, the city's engineering firm to come up with potential costs. They were in the same range or slightly higher.

Township officials are now trying to determine if the 30 some residents would be willing to pay that amount to join in with the city sewer system.

Doug Shields, Evangeline Township Supervisor, told the residents in attendance at the meeting it would never be less expensive than it is today.

He also said it would be beneficial to the residents to capitalize on the offer of Boyne City and do the job.

If the residents approve, each homeowner would have to provide a pump which would force the sewage into the line which would then go to a lift station that would be installed somewhere within the city.

The residents would most likely have to pay for the sewage line through a special assessment district which would be set up by the township for those residents that the line would serve. City residents in the area would also be part of a special assessment district as well. Presently, the homes in that area of the city are not served by sewer lines and all use septic systems.

Several of the septic systems have failed over the years and have caused the homeowners to develop mound systems or another septic field off premises. Others have had faulty systems for years, health department officials have said.

If approved, residents outside of the community would be paying higher rates than those inside of the city. Township residents would be paying $2.70 per thousand gallons of water while city residents would only be paying $1.80 per thousand.

If the special assessment district is approved by the township, Shields says the township is charged with finding a way to finance the district making sure the residents are not financially strapped. He said a district could be set up with the residents paying off the project over a 15 year period.

City officials are still working with the DNR to try to urge them to reconsider their plans so only one line would be needed. One of the objections was the Corps of Engineers would have to approve, although the Corps just announced a blanket approval for utility lines through wetlands.

News Briefs

Charlevoix County is one of two counties selected by Ameritech Publishing to recycle old telephone books when the new ones arrive this May. The firm has arranged with a recycler where the old telephone books can be dropped off. The books will then be turned into animal bedding according to Ameritech. In the county, books can be dropped off at Northwest Recycling Center, Charlevoix, Monday thru Friday, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. and on Saturday, 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. Another drop point is the Charlevoix High School where books can be dropped off between 7 a.m. and noon, Wednesday, May 15.

Boyne City Elementary School will be holding their annual Book Fair next Tuesday, May 14th from 6:30 p.m. to 9 p.m. and on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday from 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. The Book Fair will be held in the elementary media center. Funds raised from the books will be used to support the RIF fund.

EARL J. PARKS JR.

Earl J. Parks Jr., 49, of East Jordan, died May 4, 1991, at his home.

Funeral was held Tuesday, May 7, at the Paullin Funeral Home, East Jordan. The Rev. Robert L. Herbon of the Evangelical Lutheran Church officiated and interment was in Sunset Hill Cemetery, East Jordan.

Mr. Parks was born Nov. 12, 1941, in Grayling, the son of Earl J. and Mary E. (Goulding) Parks Sr.

He grew up in East Jordan and graduated from Roseville High School. He joined the Air Force in 1960 and served and worked as an air traffic controller from 1960-68. At that time he moved back to East Jordan and worked at the East Jordan Iron Works as a supervisor for 21 years.

On Oct. 23, 1976, he married the former Karen Anderson in West Branch.

Mr. Parks enjoyed fishing, golfing, bowling and mushrooming.

He is survived by his wife; two sons, Justin Michael Parks and Joshua Alan Parks, both at home; his mother, Mary Parks of West Palm Beach, Fla., his grandmother Clara Goulding of Vanderbilt; one sister, Mrs. Vince (Deanna) Jacobetti of Jupiter, Fla.; three brothers, Dale, Richard and William (Billy) Parks, all of West Palm Beach, Fla.

He was preceded in death by his father in 1959 and a sister, Wendy Lou Parks in 1953.

The family suggests memorials to Charlevoix County Hospice. Envelopes for that purpose are available at the Paullin Funeral Home, East Jordan.

Noon Meeting

In other action at the noon meeting, the commissioners approved the second reading of the ordinance which changes some of the rules for the Lake Street boat launch. The major change is that instead of the infractions being misdemeanors, they will now be civil infractions which will allow police to give out tickets for illegally parked cars.

They also approved the spending of $10,000 out of the infrastructure funds to allow for some changes in the North Lake Street project. The changes involve the moving of storm water through drains.

Along with that request, they then agreed to pay an additional $4,000 to the engineering firm for the additional work caused by the changes.

The Commissioners tabled a request from the Park and Recreation Board to move the city ice rink next season and asked the parks board to come up with a site plan where they want the rink.

Ruggies suggested rather than move the rink, which is not in the budget that was recently approved, the city should look at some other options that may be less costly. He suggested fencing, building of berms or a two level rink set up.

The Commissioners did approve the setting of time limits at the Lake Street boat launch with hours from dawn to 10:30 p.m. They also granted the County Sheriff Marine Patrol the use of a slip in the city marina for the summer when it was needed.

Police Chief Randy Howard, after being told of prize companies calling area residents offering them a fabulous prize, not to give out any information as to checking account, credit card numbers or other personal information that might have a use.

Charlevoix County Celebrates Transportation week

Charlevoix County will again be celebrating Transportation Week starting May 12th to May 18th, according to Art Sawarski the Director of Charlevoix County Transit.

The public transportation system will be offering free and reduced price rides during the weekdays of the week with Adult Foster Home Day on Monday where all adult foster home adults clients will ride free to area senior citizen centers for lunch.

Tuesday will be Senior Citizen's Day with all senior citizens only having to pay 10 cents per ride anywhere within the county.

Wednesday is Commuter Day where all commuters with a pass can ride for free one way to their destination between the hours of 6 a.m. to 9 a.m. and from 3 p.m. to 6 p.m.

Thursday and Friday are slated to be Get Acquainted Days when all non-seniors may ride free between the hours of 9 a.m. and 12 noon on Thursday and from noon to 3 p.m. Friday anywhere within the county up to five miles from point of pick-up.

In addition to the days, free commuter passes valued at $16.00 will be given away to the person who can best guess the total ridership of the Transit System from May 17th, 1990 through May 17, 1991.

Every day the Transit will be drawing names from all the paying customers who leave their names with the bus driver on the entry form provided each passenger. The winners will receive a commuter pass worth $16.00

In addition, every 150 passenger each day will receive a free pass.

A group of 30 attended the Annual Mother & Daughter Banquet at the Free Methodist Church on Friday night. All enjoyed the spring atmosphere of flowers and coordinated pastel shades of the table decorations, including the delicate name cards and gaily wrapped party favors of chocolates, done by Sally Seeley, and the light buffet luncheon of salads and sandwiches. A special and unique dessert was also provided by Sally. The evening program, in tribute to mothers and daughters, was held in the sanctuary, where the role of life, beginning with the baby stage on into the elderly, was enacted, with Ramona McGeorge as narrator and Glenys Eddy as song leader. Those participating in this special program were; Baby-Crystal Evans, School Girl - Chrissy Nicloy, Teenager - Wendy Evans, College Graduate - Leslee McGeorge, Bride - Sharon McGeorge, Mother - Betty Nicloy, Middle-Age Women - Sally McGeorge, and the Elderly Lady - Carmelita Nicloy. The program concluded with the theme that you are never alone and that the best is yet to be! The evening was hosted by the Free Methodist ladies of the WMI (Womens Missionary International)

On Tuesday, the client/workers of Bergmann Center attended a special matinee showing of "Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles II" at the Charlevoix Cinema. They were joined by a group of the East Jordan Elementary School.

Aren't they doing a wonderful job in caring for our elderly! Let's hear it for the Grandvue Auxillary and keep our continued support of their projects coming!

Florine Davis was called to Lansing over the weekend due to the death of her brother in law.

Leona Griffen has returned after having spend the past couple of months in St. Johns visiting her daughter Leathann.

Cristy and Louann Davis of Jackson were here over the weekend visiting relatives and to attend the Barbershopper's show.

Mary Bray and her daughter of Alpena spent the weekend here visiting her mother Pat Conkle.

Floyd Cooper went by ambulance to Northern Michigan Hospitals on Friday as a medical patient.

Howard and Peg Crozier have returned after having spent the past month in Florida.

Zada Moyer is recuperating at her home after having spent the past several weeks as a medical patient at Northern Michigan Hospitals. Her daughters are staying with her during her recuperation.

Judy Shiotelis has returned after a 5 day stay in Marquette where she visited her mother, Mrs. Helen Elder, and her sister, Diane Botsford. While there, they celebrated their mother's birthday this past Sunday.

As of this past weekend, Irene Sayles still remained a medical patient at Northern Michigan Hospitals.

Thirty-three piano students of Dava Maat and Paygie Willson held their annual recital for their parents and friends on Sunday afternoon at the Presbyterian Church. All enjoyed the various performances of poplar and classical music, which was followed with refreshments in the Banner Room, and a time of congratulating each of the students who come from Elmira, Boyne Falls, Boyne City and East Jordan to enhance their musical talents.

Scores of the Boyne Senior Bowlers were: Nyle Gould-505, Eunice Bradshaw-434, Ken Dyer-420, Pros Blackkaert-411, Beverly Dyer-369, Tied, Irene Brannon & Jean Marcham-366, Jan Krussell-364, Clara Kimble-252, Cliff Bradshaw-491, Ardyth Dorgan-422, Cleo Davis-417, Dick Brannon-393, Jack Krussell-368, Mildred Sheldon-332.

Winners for Senior Bingo were: Reg-Minnie Martin, Special-Ann Cooper, Reg.-Mary Kritcher, Special-Jean Korthase, Reg.-Susie Walley, Jean Korthase, Coverall-Minnie Martin, Mary Town, Mary Kritcher, Susie Walley, Special-Rose Reinhardt. All games called by the handsome and lovely Lyle Ross.

Staffords to hold herb bazaar

A bazaar featuring fresh herbs and herb-related items is scheduled as part of a Spring conference for herb gardening enthusiasts. The conference, scheduled for Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, May 14, 15, and 16 at Stafford's Perry Hotel in Petoskey, is called "A Spring Tonic: Planning, planting and tasting your herb garden."

Classes, herbal cooking demonstrations, the "Scarborough Fair" herbal bazaar, and hands-on take-home projects are scheduled for the conference, which is sponsored by Wintergreen Herbs and Potpourri in cooperation with the 90-year old landmark hotel.

Speakers at the conference include Beverly Anderson, whose herb garden business, Illusions in Thyme, is located in Williamston; Carol Czechowski, owner of Herb Wreath in Pontiac; Linda Wells, a culinary artist from Birmingham; Steve Fouch, MSU Cooperative Extension Service agent for Emmet County; Val Sterzik, culinary artist from Petoskey; and Mary Lee Huber, proprietor of Wintergreen Herbs and Potpourri of Charlevoix.

Mary Lee Huber will conduct two sessions: one a companion planting and square foot gardening lecture, and the second a hands-on potted herb garden planting. She and her husband, Bill, have operated Wintergreen Herbs and Potpourri since 1985, tending gardens of fresh cut herbs and herb plants, and stocking a shop with gifts featuring herbs and everlasting blooms. Huber speaks on a wide range of subjects dealing with herb growing, gardening, native plants, and herb use. Huber's lecture on companion planting and square foot gardening is $5; for her take-home project of building a potted herb garden, the fee is $25 including materials.

Carol Czechowski will lead a hands-on session, helping students create a fragrant and colorful wreath of herbs using culinary, decorative and medicinal plants. The Pontiac teacher specializes in craft shows and classes focused around her primary loves: topiary, wreath-making, and growing foxglove. A member of the Herb Society of America, she is a popular speaker in the metro area. Fee for the workshop, including materials for the take-home project, is $20.

Val Sterzik, widely known in northern Michigan as an amateur chef extraordinaire, will lead a dinner demonstration entitled, "Take a Wok with Herb." Sterzik, who has studied culinary arts in the orient with food author Ken Hom, will show how to incorporate cooking as part of entertaining by using a wok to prepare a flavorful herbed stir-fry meal for guests. Her entree will be ginger-orange roast chicken, served with rice and herb stuffing, and stir-fried summer vegetables with Chinese vinegar. Students will become dinner guests, enjoying Sterzik's recipes following her demonstration. The fee for Sterzik's class and dinner is $22.50.

Linda Wells also comes from an impressive culinary background, having studied in this country and abroad. She is a member of the Women's National Farm and Garden, Herb Society of America, Michigan Herb Associates, and several international culinary organizations. The Birmingham woman will share her expertise in a favorite venue: "Designer Greens." She will make a variety of salads combining exotic lettuces, flowers, herbs, vinegars and oils, which guests will sample for lunch along with a perfect soup for Spring; chilled Pear-Leek Soup. Wells also plans a tasting of several oils and vinegars, so students can sample the difference. Fee for the demonstration and luncheon is $16.95.

Beverly Anderson, an academic advisor for the agricultural engineering department at MSU, lectures on a vast number of herbal topics. For her Petoskey appearance, she will focus on creating herbal theme gardens, such as the Beatrix Potter "Peter Rabbit" garden. Fee for "Theme Gardening" is $5.

MSU Cooperative Extension Agent Steve Fouch will speak to gardeners about composting and natural insect control. Fee for this practical and informative class is $5.

Full packages including classes, materials, lodging and meals, are available for the three-day mid-week conference. Students may also sign up for individual classes, on a space-available basis. Pre-registration is encouraged.

The public is invited to attend the conference's herbal bazaar, entitled "A Scarborough Fair," on Wednesday, May 15, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Exhibits will include floral motif porcelain by Steve and Deanna Kostyshyn of Charlevoix; basketry by Carol Madison of Petoskey; herbal culinary condiments by Dixie Stephen of Sutton's Bay; decorative, wearable and fragrant herbal designs by Mary Lee Huber; dried and potted herbs, topiary, wreaths, posie holders and Herb Society shirts by Carol Czechowski. Reservations are not necessary for the Scarborough Fair, and there is no admission charge.

Agencies working to provide septic system

Two agencies, the Charlevoix County Department of Social Services and the Boyne City Housing Commission will be providing the funds so an elderly Boyne City resident can get the $5,000 he needs for a new septic system and to stop the possible prosecution and eviction from his property for violating health laws.

The man, Lloyd McClintock was cited recently for allowing raw sewage to leak out on his property. He has been searching for a way to get the $5,000 needed for a new septic system from area banks but was refused by all he approached.

The DDS officials and the housing commission acted under emergency guidelines to provide the money.

Transportation week

Riding a bus may not seem like an act of freedom and independence but to many older adults and people with disabilities around Charlevoix County, it is a way to reach out to the rest of the world.

Last year, Congress passed a new civil rights bill for disabled citizens. This year, most of the provisions of that bill take effect, especially those for wheelchair users, blind citizens and people with hearing impairments.

Those people are expected to begin using public transportation as a means of getting to and from work and with next week being Transportation Week, Charlevoix County Transit is expected to be playing an essential role in providing transportation to those people with disabilities. To the disabled community, employment and the spending power that comes with it will hopefully, allow a certain amount of independence that most take for granted.

The public bus service can be an important tool to helping those and others in our area to gain this freedom.

The older adult population in Michigan cities has also grown to rely on local bus service. More than ever, and especially during the off-peak periods, older adults are using the transit service to go shopping, visit the doctor, take care of personal business or just to see a friend on the other side of the county.

Our local transit system is providing service directly, contracting with private providers or working with human service agencies to be able to offer transportation services.

One result of having a transit system is the mobility that many older adults can use, whether they stay in their homes longer and continuing to be productive citizens of the community.

During "Transportation Week" in the state, observers should note how public transportation affects the freedom and independence of older residents and people with disabilities.

The future may be riding on a bus.

road system was not as developed as it is today. A trip to Charlevoix by horse might take all day while today, it is just minutes.

Jottings

WITH JIM SILBAR

One man had a fleeting chance at posterity this past weekend who, now it can be told, almost became a resident of the area.

The man, Vice President Dan Quayle, according to what former owner of the County Press, Gregg Smith told me some months ago, almost became the owners of the Press.

I don't know all of the details, but Smith said the Quayle family, which owns a newspaper in Indiana, had approached him to purchase the publications he owned as a place for Quayle to learn the business or something.

I don't know how far the conversation went as to the possible buy out, but the deal did not fly.

Probably because Danny, at that time, wanted to go into politics instead of newspapering.

That is only my guess, as this business is something you have to be slightly crazy to get into, let alone continue.

But anyway, the time of history passed by for Quayle becoming a Boyne City resident and he did go into politics and has become a Vice President.

Not bad for a small town type kid, I guess.

Along with the Vice Presidency, I am wondering why he has always been bashed upon by the press in general. Is it because he looks to be about 22 years old?

Or is it because he spent time in the Indiana National Guard?

And since he is getting bashed about by the press and concurrently by the citizens who read and believe all of the press attacks, I started to wonder why.

To me, I think he has had as much experience in running a country as a Jimmy Carter, possibly more than a Ronald Reagan, much more than even an Abraham Lincoln.

He served in the senate and learned there how the country was run and by whom, and surely has had time to develop a strong staff that is behind every politician making the decisions for them.

After all, you can't possibly think a President or somebody in all that power knows everything about everything. He has to rely on the words of the close advisers before making the final decisions.

What I figure I should do would be to make a suggestion to the Veep's staff that maybe he should restart the negotiations to purchase the paper. Say about 1996 or so, if he doesn't get the bid to become President.

I figure by that time I will be ready to retire and join the coffee shop crew as they go from restaurant to restaurant picking up all of the information and rumor of the community.

I also figure by then he will have learned the zillions the paper would cost by then. I would be able to afford my retirement in the manner of which I could become accustomed very quickly.

Then I would buy a boat, park it at the city dock in the summers and sail off to the sunshine in the winter and never have to worry about paying property taxes again, just rental slips for the slips along the way.

And of course, be able to pay Mel Howard for all of the fuel it would take to fill the boat.

I figure I could live pretty good on a 80 footer, no make that a 110 foot boat. Then I would not have to worry about all of those little boats that would be getting in the way when I try to dock the darn thing.

Ahh, such things dreams are made of.

Peanut Butter Therapy
Lunching on a spirit-renewing sandwich while cruising through news of crime, food, led to the maxim: We are what we eat. And so connects the decline of food formerly favored by children (still big with wistful grown-ups) to violence in our culture. I figure there's a line between the failure of society to deter crime today and the fall from grace of what once childhood cherished - peanut butter.

Clearly the Detroit News considers peanut butter's fall serious also because it printed its story, plus big color photo of a smiley child clutching sandwich made of same, on page 1A recently. And the text presented some grim facts.
It seems that peanut butter has long been mixed up with politics. Crop size due to weather does play some part too.
Drought last year pushed up the price of peanuts, thus peanut butter, 15 percent. This gave the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) pause on its offering peanut butter to schools as part of its school lunch program at 25 cents for a six-pound can. Nutrition and economy in mind, USDA decided last fall to drop peanut butter and offer cheese instead.
A USDA spokesman indicated that likely the price rise alone didn't cause the switch. Dairy lobbyists pushing the sale of their surplus products entered into it as well.
Those lobbyists might not have won the day had USDA been able to import peanuts whose prices average 50 percent less than U.S.'s. But a 1990s law all but bans importing raw peanuts, no doubt due to peanut lobbyists of that era.
Another puncture in the peanut butter container has to do with kids' current food tastes. With families eating out so much, and at a variety of ethnic places, children have acquired tastes for a diversity of food, like nachos with cheese, prefer them not to peanut butter sandwiches. In fact, Detroit school kids, given a choice between crackers with cheese or peanut butter, options when school lunches don't arrive on time, mostly pick cheese today.

Clearly peanut butter virtues must be aired, and fast. For instance, most often, moms let kids make their first sandwiches with it. That they poke holes in the bread, squash it too, in no way mars their sense of accomplishment.
From the first messy go at it, peanut butter becomes a steady companion. It's sandwiches, with or without jelly, accompany backyard picnics for the sandbox set. Later comes berry picking, fishing trips, hikes afoot or on bikes, all unthinkable without those wonderful, mangled sandwiches.
Peanut butter nutrients encourage stretching out on the ground cloud-watching, or slowly back-scratching against a tree while trying on when-I-grow-up-I'm gonna be dreams.

Such a sweet, gentle food - soul food - goes from hand to tummy as smoothly as it spreads on bread. No sharp edges or taste to annoy senses or organs as it moves along, so it can't put one in the mood to pick fights or stick up stores.
As for nachos and cheese, they have a sharp, aggressive flavor, rough toughness too. It's hard to imagine settling down with them on lazy days to dream or gaze at the sky.
If only the USDA, mothers too, saw it this way, kept in mind also that generations of children made it through adolescence fairly calm, healthy, became productive adults as well, with bodies and spirits nourished on peanut butter. But maybe they'll see it now, and push more peanut butter.

In any case, heaven knows it cheers those who left their youth long ago. Many turn to a peanut butter sandwich whenever they need a wisp of childish wonderment to wrap around themselves, protect them from the harshness of life. It always works too, a spirit-renewing sandwich, a pure one does anyway, one without any silly jelly on it that is.

The devotion and contributions of Matthew and Ellie Hohn to the Central Michigan University Biological Station at Beaver Island were recognized by CMU's board of trustees Friday.

Trustees unanimously approved a resolution that the Biological Station conference center on Beaver Island be named the Matt and Ellie Hohn Conference Center.

The Hohns have long been associated with CMU's biology and Beaver Island programs. Matt Hohn, an authority on water quality, joined the CMU faculty in 1961 and was director of the Biological Station and its programs from 1966 to 1983. Ellie Hohn cooked and supervised the kitchen operation at the station for many summers.

The couple, former residents of Mount Pleasant, live year-round on Beaver Island.

CMU purchased the land on Beaver Island in 1942 from the Department of Natural Resources for $1. It remained undeveloped until 1959 when the main lodge was constructed. The facility was designed for class use and as a conference center.

Today, the CMU Biological Station includes a main lodge and cafeteria, student dorms, faculty cabins, a campground, labs with office and research space, reference collections, a library, photo darkroom and approximately 45 acres of land.

More than 500 students take courses at Beaver Island each summer.

Second place winners were given an audio cassette and book of The Jungle Book while third place winners were given a large story of the Jungle Book.

Video on Charlevoix County to premiere May 9

Northern Lights, a video panorama of life in Charlevoix County, premieres for business, industrial and governmental leaders, Thursday, May 9, at 5 p.m. at the Argonne Supper Club in Charlevoix.

A 15 minute video program, Northern Lights captures the business and recreational life of Charlevoix County in a kaleidoscope of images, vignettes, music, interviews and scenic shots.

Designed to serve as a marketing tool for business, industry, government, and other organizations seeking to promote Charlevoix County, the video program is a production of National Video Communications Inc., a company directed by George Colburn, an internationally known producer of documentaries.

According to Colburn, Northern Lights can be used to recruit employees, promote products, encourage business growth, and attend interest in life in Charlevoix County.

The producer explained that businesses and organizations will be licensed to use the program by NVC. The program will not be for sale to the general public.

Licenses will be awarded for three year periods at a rate of $50 per month and will include the right to access NVC film archives for the 10 to 12 hours of raw footage shot during the making of Northern Lights. This raw footage can be added to the video program or used with other presentations.

"Northern Lights is intended to make viewers say, 'I want to know more about Charlevoix County. I want to come to Charlevoix County,'" Colburn said in an interview.

Colburn, who maintains a home in Marion Township, founded International Video Connection in 1982. National Video Communication is a division of the parent company as is Contemporary Learning Systems, Inc., a producer of books and educational materials linked to television programming.

Colburn, Director of the National Media Program at the University of California San Diego (UCSD) from 1978 to 1982, produced such well known video telecourses as Carl Sagan's Cosmos and The Voyage of Charles Darwin.

His interest in Charlevoix County began over 20 years ago when he started skiing at Boyne Mountain. From 1977-1981 Colburn was a co-owner of the Charlevoix County Press. This May, NVC's documentary entitled Dangerous Years: President Eisenhower and the Cold War, on the life of President Dwight Eisenhower will premiere at the Eisenhower Institute. It will air nationally on the Discovery Channel in October.

Colburn who maintains offices in Los Angeles, San Francisco, East Lansing and Charlevoix, won three Michigan Emmys for a series broadcast on WDIV in Detroit last year. Among the educational companion books his firm has produced for Public Broadcasting programs are The Mini Dragons, set to air May 27 nationally on PBS, The Heart of the Dragon, and The Day Universe Changed.

Another Colburn produced program, What of Tomorrow, a 30 minute pilot about people with disabilities, premieres May 16 at Washington, D.C., and will appear nationally this fall on The Learning Channel and major PBS stations.

Representatives of business, industry, government and civic organizations are invited to the open premiere of Northern Lights at the Argonne on May 9. Colburn will be on hand to answer questions and explain what other services of NVC are available for promotional assistance.

Reunion for navy shipmates

Former shipmates who served on the USS Franklin D. Roosevelt CV-42 are invited to attend the fourth annual ship's reunion, to be held May 16-19 in Pensacola, Florida.

John Still, a Navy veteran from Petoskey, is looking for other Michigan residents who served aboard the Roosevelt during its four decades in commission. Anyone interested in receiving literature from the reunion committee, or in joining the ship's alumni organization, are invited to contact Still for information by calling (616) 347-3890 or writing 4766 Pickerel Lake Road, Petoskey, Michigan 49770. Still says the organization often get requests from lost shipmates who want to get in touch with each other again, from family members seeking stories about deceased servicemen, and even from veterans who experienced UFO sightings and want to confirm the experience with others who were on board at the time.

Eastern Airlines is sponsoring the reunion by providing up to 50 percent discount on air fare to and from Pensacola. Reunion headquarters are the Hilton.

Events during the reunion include shopping tours, golf tournaments, fishing tours, a banquet and dance, a night at the racetrack and a sightseeing tour.

John Crossley, the Pensacola reunion chairman, has established a toll-free number for reunion information: 1-800-484-2073.

Michigan magazine seeks World War II info

Secretary of State Richard H. Austin, Michigan's longest-serving elected official, is asking Michiganians to share some of their vivid memories of World War II.

"Michigan residents who remember the bombing of Pearl Harbor and World War II are invited to submit articles and brief recollections to Michigan History Magazine, the state's most popular history magazine," Secretary Austin said. Selected articles will be included in a special November/December issue, commemorating the 50th anniversary of the bombing of Pearl Harbor.

"World War II affected the lives of most Americans, whether a person was stationed overseas or stateside, worked in a war supplies factory or held down the homefront," Secretary Austin added. "In this special issue of the magazine, we want to capture a variety of aspects of the wartime effort."

Consideration will be given to articles or memories of the battlefield, reaction to the bombing of Pearl Harbor, as well as reminiscences about the homefront which give a glimpse of everyday life under the stress of war. Either the author or story must have a Michigan connection. (The author may have moved to Michigan after the war.)

In addition to feature articles and recollections, Michigan History Magazine is interested in wartime diaries, letters and photographs. Please send photocopies rather than originals.

All contributions to the special World War II issue should be mailed to: Michigan History Magazine, Michigan Department of State, 717 W. Allegan St., Lansing, MI 48918-1805. Contributions must be received on or before August 1, 1991, to be considered for publication in the commemorative issue.

Magazine contributors are not paid. If you have additional questions, call the magazine at 517-373-3703.

Michigan History Magazine is available by single issue (2.95) at many bookstores across the state, and by annual subscription (9.95).
