H & D workers laid down the first layer of asphault and opened up another section of M-75 by the post office last week, much to the cheers of Century 21 Kowalske realtors who held a small celebration in front of their offices to honor the workers paving. The finish coat of asphault will be applied when the entire road project of rebuilding M-75 is almost completed. The next section will see curb and gutters installed, perhaps as soon as next week. Contractors say the remaining mile of roadway will be completed faster than the first quarter mile as they do not have to dig out the old road.

Boyne City to provide water, sewer to Hawkridge

Boyne City may be providing water and sewer service outside of the community to the developers of Hawkridge, city commissioners decided, after details between the development company, the city and the township are worked out.

The decision followed a discussion at the noon meeting Tuesday as the commissioners first had to decide whether the proposed development would have enough water capacity for the number of units that could be constructed.

Developers told the commission the maximum number of dwelling units that could be built on the 28.8 acres in Evangeline Township was 144. They are proposing to build considerably less units, approximately 95, when they have finished the project over the next

Drug bust finds 25 lbs. of marijuana in county

Approximately 25 pounds of marijuana was seized in a drug bust last Sunday when officers from the Michigan State Police Criminal Investigation Division out of Gaylord and Traverse City, along with members of the Straits Area Narcotics Enforcement (S.A.N.E.) arrested Alan Craig Smith, 42, of Charlevoix at his home in Hayes Township.

There were assisted by the Charlevoix County Sheriff's depar-

This was the second arrest of Smith, who was indited previously by the grand jury back in 1988. He served time in jail for that offense.

Also seized in the raid was drug trafficking paraphenalia and other assets acquired from the sale of narcotics valued at over $7.300. The street value of the marijuana was set at about $50,000 according to arresting officers.

Smith was arraigned Tuesday, June 25, and bond was expected to be set by Magistrate David Kurchinski at $25,000.

Smith's arrest came from information leading to a search warrant by detective Whale from the Traverse City Narcotics Team.

If found guilty, Smith could be facing double penalties because of the second offense.

Presently, the developers have installed enough water capacity for the 20 units they plan on constructing within the city. In an agreement the developers have with the city, the development firm will upgrade the pumping station so as to provide enough water to meet fire and safety specifications. The developers also told the commissioners that they designed the system and paid for it just so it could be expanded in the future.

Commissioner Sandra Stanley told other commissioners that they should go slowly on approving the expansion, wanting to make sure the developer gets permission from the township which would allow for both single family and multiple family dwellings on the

She said the city shouldn't hold up the project and asked that the three groups work out the details and report back to the commissioners. The commissioners would then approve the request.

Sets budget at 7.7 million

Charlevoix schools end VanWieren era

From the 73 applicants, the Charlevoix School Board has narrowed the list down and interviewed eight as they continue to search for a new Superintendent to take over administrating the Charlevoix School system.

Monday night was the last Board of Education meeting of retiring Superintendent Gordon VanWieren. After 14 years of service, VanWieren said he is planning on mixing business with fun and sun as he sets out in the boat chartering business.

Business Manager Richard Kelly was appointed as interim superintendent for the Charlevoix school system. Kelly noted that he expects to perform both jobs through July and August at which time the new superintendent will assume the responsibilities.

Appreciation and thanks were expressed to vanwieren by board members for the job he has done and the standards he has set for future superintendents.

The board then approved the new school budget for the 1991-1992 school year with $8,777,356 of expected revenue and $7,730,950 expenditures. These estimated budgets are proposing nearly a 12 percent revenue retention at the end of the school year. "25 percent would be ideal," VanWieren said.

Two big bites out of the budget are the normal operational expenses for the elementary, middle and high schools and the operation and maintenance fees. Included in the $816,250 allocated for maintenance fees, is the replacement of a portion of the high school roof. In other action, the board agreed to rent the old Ironton School, which has been vacant for several years, to the Northwest Michigan Human Service Agency for their Head Start program. "It's better to have it used and used productively than let it sit," board member Scott Beatty said. A $250 per month plus utilities rent has been agreed upon for the next two Hot lunch prices will increase for students next year. The Parent-Student Hot Lunch Advisory Committee has set the prices agreed upon by the board. Elementary students will now pay $1.15, Middle and High school students $1.40 and adults $2.00 These fees for food had not been increased since the 1988-89 school to halance the hot lunch budget. "Even with the raise in prices, we are still going to finish in the red." Kelly said.

The believed revenue will help

Included in the food service budget, is a new dish washer for the high school. The current one has been inoperable for "at least six to seven year," High School Principal Dave Smith said.

Smith and two other volunteers, possibly a board member, will be sent to a five day seminar in Grand Rapids this summer to study leadership skills for school improvement. The board will be paying the $275 per person registration fee as well as the costs of the hotel as long as the participants will offer their time salary free.

According to Smith, the seminar will have and promote, "teachers leading teachers" while looking at where the school system presently is and where they would like it to be after school improvement programs have been implemented.

E.J. cancels jet ski event

East Jordan Freedom Festival's fight to hold the July 6 jet ski competition has suffered a knock out after event organizer Kevin Steely made the final decision last Wednesday to cancel the competition due to the lack of time available to obtain sanctioning and

"Everyone was disappointed," Gloria Carl, Assistant Executive Director of the East Jordan Area Chamber of Commerce said. We're hoping to try again next

Time was the main constraint the Freedom Festival Committee faced due to the denial of the initial permit from the Department of Natural Resources (DNR.) "It was just too late to get the event together," Carl said. "None of it would have happened if we would have gotten our permit."

When the first sanctioning committee, the International Jet Ski Association, turned down the competition due to the lack of promotional time, Steely began the bleak investigation into private insurance by the Freedom Festival Committee. "Not even Lloyd's of London will insure an event like this without more time," he said.

Even through the lost time, energy and money, Carl is still looking forward to the remainder of events that will take place at East Jordan's Freedom Festival. We still have a great Freedom Festival going," she said.

Dr. Porter has had a dental practice in Charlevoix for many years and has been active in the past as a board member of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce, past president of the Downtown Development Authority, and served two terms as first ward city councilman. He has also been active as past president of the Board of Deacons of the Congregational Church.

Al Ranger, president of the hospital's board of directors, said, We are so proud to have Dr. Porter head up this important campaign. He has been a good friend to the hospital and his insight and civic-mindedness will be wonderful assets at this time." On accepting the position Dr. Porter said, "The physical health of our community depends upon the health of our local community hospital. Keeping Charlevoix Area technology has a direct and profound influence on our lives in Charlevoix, East Jordan, Boyne City, Ellsworth, northern Antrim County and Beaver Island. I hope everyone in these communities will join me in support of this expansion campaign to help an old friend, Charlevoix Area Hospital."

At the same time the hospital campaign administration announced the campaign goal will be $1.4 million. This will represent approximately one-half of the total $3 million cost of the renovation and bulding program. The campaign is expected to be completed in the fall with construction to begin in the summer of 1992.

The key aspects of the program include a new surgical and ambulatory care addition, a renovated obstetrics unit, and remodeled admitting and emergency waiting areas. The building program will place the hospital in line with the current emphasis on outpatient care in farsighted small hospitals.

This is the first time the hospital has conducted a building campaign in the past decade.

by Jar e Fronts

Compassion for low vision individuals has extended into Charlevoix County with the formation of a support group formed to offer fellowship to low vision or blind persons.

The non-funded organization is raising funds through the sale of plastic canisters to cover the expenses of their meetings and a planned trip to Sault St. Marie for those with the handicap, "It's a way to get them out," volunteer Group Coordinator Helen Bishop

Bishop leads the bi-monthly meetings which are held at the East Jordan Senior Center on the first and second Wednesday. The group discusses their experiences and offer suggestions on ways to integrate themselves into a sight oriented world.

"Due to the attitudes of people, those with vision problems have been hurt and some have become withdrawn," Bishop said.

The meetings have guest speakers who address issues such as coping and attitudes of people.

Currently there are 25 members involved in the fairly new group. "We are still in our infancy," Bishop noted. Through community support and awareness, Bishop is looking forward to seeing the support group grow.

Tables with attractive floral arrangements were set on the deck overlooking a special view of Lake Charlevoix. Delicious foods were prepared by co-hostesses Thornita Rowe, Vi Manglos, and Juanita Erber. Opinions

Traffic problems are cause of comparison

We don't want to say Boyne City is becoming like Charlevoix, but this year we have had to stop and wait at intersections, traffic lights and corners more than ever before.

Perhaps it is due to the increase in tourist traffic within the community or just because of all the construction work that has narrowed down the choice of roads you can take to go from one side of town to the other.

In any case, we aren't up to the traffic flow problems that Charlevoix faces every summer, not being located on a major highway with only one way through town. But it sure does seem like it, especially when the plants let out in the after-

If the increased traffic flow is from tourists, then the merchants should be happy. They will probably be happier if all of the construction work were completed this week instead of sometime in August.

In the meantime, those of us who have to use the roads everyday, will just have to sit and wait, appear to be calm, before making that turn to downtown or wherever.

The construction this summer is the most this town has seen over the years, as the road crews continue to rebuild the major trafficways in and around the community.

Sure, all of the work previously done was completed in the fall, after the tourist season, but last year, contractors were caught short due to the weather and had to leave the job until this season.

One thing we will all be happy about though, is when it is all over and done.

Then we will have a "bright new face" we can show to the many visitors coming from the cities to enjoy our water, our scenery, and our many attractions.

So while we can damn the construction now, we only have to wait a few more weeks before it is all completed as then we can go back to normal business.

Remembrances

With workers replacing the second Park Street Bridge this summer, we thought you readers should see what the first one looked like. This postcard was lent to us for a Remembrance picture by Major Keith Fitzpatrick who asked at a noon commission meeting if the completed bridge would look the same as the first bridge. He then passed around the postcard and was politely told the bridge would be a lot different than the old wood structure the recently dismantled bridge replaced. This picture shows the bridge looking toward Water Street. The building in the right background was a hardware store at the time and is now the Boyne Country Party Store. This picture is from around the turn of the century in Boyne City. If you have any old pictures you would like to share with our readers, bring them to the office and let us copy them.

Jottings

If there is one thing I can't stand in the summer time is a summer

Yes, I came down with one over the weekend. And I have been spending a lot of time blowing the nose, sniffling, walking around bleary eyed, and all of the many symptoms that are developed when you have a cold.

One of the problems with a summer cold is finding a store that has all of the cold remedies still on the shelves, I am finding out. As if I am the only one who could come down with a summer cold and the stores evidently think that no one catches a cold in the summer so they put all of the remedies away

Of course, my old tried and true remedies haven't worked, but that is because I haven't had time to try them out. Things like spending the week in bed sleeping the cold through, eating a few dozen oranges, popping Vitamin C, and trying almost all of the cold remedies on the market.

That is one thing about a cold, I have found out, the medicine bought for the last cold won't work on the one you just came down

I think it is because the virus or something is different than any other cold you may have picked up

It must be something like that, or else the medicine is out of date and not as potent as it was when it

Now, I figure that I can catch a cold at least once a year, usually in November, and that cold stays with me until about May. I get used to having one since I spend a lot of time outside during the winter. Or at least, I used to before I started catching colds every year. So during the summer, you can't just bundle up with clothing, or else you would sweat to death. especially this summer when we have not had very much rain or cold weather changes. Maybe that was it.

The weather did change recently, for a couple of hours or so, and dropped the temperature down to

Yah, that's what I blame it on. Not anything else like staying up late or not getting enough asleep, not getting over-stressed or any of the other things that can cause a cold. It was just the temperature change, you see, that caused all of this commotion.

About the only good thing about a summer cold is that it will least about a week and then go away.

And I'll be able to enjoy the summer like everyone else.

EJ Iron Works proposes addition to foundry

A proposal for an addition at the East Jordan Iron Works to be located on the west side of the main foundry was discussed during Superintendent Mike Dionne's report to the East Jordan City Council last Tuesday, According to Dionne, the only complication he sees to the addition is at a sewerage lift station, owned and maintained by the city, must be moved.

Commissioner Russ Gee expressed a desire to inspect the site of the proposed building and lift station before voting to let construction begin. The board decided to agree to the foundry's proposal contingent on the review of the site by the council members.

The addition will serve as an enclosure for dust collection equipment. "It will give a better view from the lake," Plant Engineering Supervisor Al Hettig said.

Like Boyne City and Charlevoix, East Jordan city commissioners have voted not to hold a presidential preference

Ties Get Speaking Parts

Father's Day has come and gone, but the memory lingers on. Indeed, solid remains of the day stay on to startle conservative dads every time they go to the closet; that is if they received neckties to mark the oc-

And chances are they did, tie displays attracting customers of all ages this year. No signs or arrows point to them, usually. But none are needed; the arresting color, imaginative design, in a word spendor - draws a crowd.

One wonders if women, who buy 65 percent of all ties sold, had a hand in creating the new styles hanging in the marketplace. Likely they came up with some of the designs. In any case, many of the baby boomers have taken to them.

A review of the ties came out as a TV news item a few weeks ago. Just after Persian Gulf reports, it led the national news line-up, showing the matter's importance (or a lack of hard news, or an otherwise depressing news day.)

A fortyish fellow appeared on the newscast wearing a tie with various objects pictured on it, and chest puffed out, proclaimed': "I like to make a

The newsman reported that this fellow's point is what the new ties are about. Take the tie, "A day at the Beach." It show folks laid out on towels, beach umbrellas too, and various shapes too small to make out, doubtless picturing other beach paraphernalia. Wearer sees himself as a serious chan at work, but wants all to know he's fun off duty. Red or royal blue background further the impression.

Then there's the "Kite", picturing three kite types. This suggest a high-spirited type wears the tie. Blue kites on pink or violet background suggest lightheartedness.

On Friday, June 21, Ralph and Yvonne Metzger celebrated their 44th wedding anniversary with a catered dinner at their home from One Water Street with their guests, Tom and Pat Needy of Conway and Anne Jenkins. On Sunday, Gary and Karen Metzger, and children Kevin, Brian, and Michelle, and Sam and Linda Kosc and children Matt, Sarah, Steve, and Beth, Ralph and Yvonne Metzger, and the Zaremba family of Elmira gathered at Whiting's Park Gary Metzger's daughter, Michelle and also to share in a family celebration of Ralph and Yvonne's wedding anniversary.

A survey of stores show a grand assortment of ties featuring flowers too. Small bright blue and orangey red flowers on a white background make a striking tie. Reddish brown roses on a purple background knock one back a bit, but in time, it might be easier to tolerate. Not so, likely would the tie with the big, bright purple roses and smaller hollyhockshaped pink and white blooms on black background.

Black is big this year (was in the 1800s too when a black satin tie created a sensation). So is brown, both in background and in patterns, most all including curly tails.

Also, into this hodgepodge of new neckwear, some ties that resemble modern art canvases have sneaked. Splotches of pushy red, blue and black leap from these ties. If modern art is one's bag, such could serve as decorator accents too.

In some flowered ties, soft colors speak softly but forcefully. Delicate pink and coral blossoms compliment a pink background on one tie. Teamed with a light pink shirt, as displayed at one store, the wearer is ready for a garden party, or perhaps attend a string quartet concert in a

So ends an overview of men's ties this year, except for the state of stripes. They alternate the wide with the narrow, making the ties look bolder, more aggressive. The colors, too, come on stronger with lots of gold and purple and bright red. Green's grown gaudy, shed its forest image.

Clearly 1991 isn't a year for conseratives' comfort. In fact, one shopper reported being shocked at seeing a deep burgundy tie with serious slim grey strips hung on a rack amid current styles. He said it looked awfully lonely.

MUNCHIES Munchies; kids and grown-ups alike love them. Our grocery store shelves are lined with crackers, cookies, puddings, fruits, and juices all in individual sizes for that little pick-up or a planned party. We are a munchie generation. I love all of those fancy crackers with sesame seeds, cheese and many of them are low-calorie and cholesterol free. We used to be told not to eat anything before dinner, "It will ruin your appetite." Now, we are advised by researchers of kids appetities, not to

We all know that kids have the craziest eating habits. Their favorites today might be hated tomorrow. Recently the New England Journal of medicine study shows that eating habits of preschoolers might not be as bad as they seem. If children skimp on one meal, they will make up for it on the next. The children in these studies were given a set menu and were offered a selection of foods such as macaroni and cheese and peanut butter and jelly sandwiches. They noted that even though the children were allowed to east as much as they wanted, they did not eat to excess. Maybe these kids know something that we oldies need to learn.

The researchers found that each child's energy intake was highly variable, but when each child's calories were added up for a 24 hour period the total number of calories consumed varied only about 10 percent from day to day. The study concluded, "The successful feeding of children is best accomplished by providing them with a variety of healthful foods and allowing them to eat what they wish." Their findings support the suggestion of "The existance of some orderly control mechanism" that keeps children's appetites in line with what is needed to sustain good growth.

Personally, I am convinced that adults could take a lesson from this. I believe that we have a control mechanism also, for our daily intake of food, if we listen and watch for it.

All of us, including the kids love our raw fresh vegetables and fruits when we have an appetizing dip. Our happy hours can be good for all and there are many non-alcholic drinks available.

What would our munchies be without our favorite dips. Here are a few recipes which have been given

The talent found on the field that day didn't just appear. Smith is responsible for combing the central part of the United States looking for potential Bills material. "I look at all the college seniors in my fall traveling," Smith said.

Although player scouts like Smith have a lot of territory to cover, They work in collaboration with college coaches and the national combines to schedule their fall trips.

"As soon as practices start, we take off and start evaluating talent," Smith said. A day of evaulating a prospective player leaves Smith talking with coaches, viewing video tapes and observing afternoon practices and sometimes

Of course an athlete must be competitive, smart, coordinated and quick, but raw talent and physical conditioning are not all that Smith and his fellow scouts feel make up a successful athlete. "We talk to their coaches to get an idea about the kind of person we're getting as well as their talent,' Smith said.

According to Smith, the club "has a philosphy," "We don't waste time trying to put players on the team that don't fit," he said.

Besides attitude, the key factor Smith seeks is "production." Smith noted that a player can have all the essential skills and still be unable to make the plays. "We don't draft anyone who we don't think can upgrade our team," he said.

After the initial evaluation of athletes done in the fall, the beginning of the year finds Smith switching territories with another team scout and preparing a review of the players already noted as possibilities.

According to Smith, the early spring traveling is a type of "cross check." During this check, the switched scouts take a look at the players found favorable by the initial scout.

"The guys we are interested in are the ones we look at on our cross check," Smith said. "Before we go into a draft, we have observed the player at least three

After choosing the players that would fit the criteria for becoming a Bill, Smith prepares for the draft. Prospective rookies are then left to the chance of the draft as coaches strategically choose their picks at each round, hoping the player wanted hasn't already been signed by a competitive team.

When the picking and choosing is yesterday's business, Smith puts the nine months of traveling to rest. "The day after the draft, we come home and are on vacation.' Smith said.

Home is located on Lake Charelvoix near Boyne City where Smith and the other half of his traveling team, wife Judy, will have two and half months before gassing up the car and heading out again

Upon Dave's retirement, Judy is looking forward to bringing her laundry, grocery shopping and cooking duties home. A settled lifestyle to Judy means the ability to develop relationships beyond the present "casual fun" type while also becoming more involved with the community.

The life of a professional football scout may sound like a full time vacation. Judy noted that she has

"As you travel, you find there is a lot of God's country all over the place," Judy said.

Some may wonder what type of qualifications a professional foot-ball scout should have. Well, before the eight year marriage with Judy, Smith lived a life full of athletics.

His participation in sports began during his early days at Charlevoix High School where Smith played football and basketball and also ran track. Upon graduation in 1948, Smith turned in his maroon and white uniform and picked up a green and white one when he became a Michigan State Spartan where he played end and outside linebacker on two Rose Bowl teams.

Before joining Buffalo in 1979. Smith spent 11 years coaching high school football at Walled lake Schools. During this time Smith's teams earned a 113-36 won-loss record and captured 12 champion-

Coaching college football was his next step when he returned to Michigan State University as an assistant coach on Duffy Daugherty's staff. Six years later, Smith made a move to Ferris State to become the Bulldogs head coach.

During his years as a college coach, Smith fine tuned his eye for talent. Coaches do more than just coach, they also have to continually find new players. Recruiting is a major part of getting the available high school talent to attend your school. Smith no longer has to entice players. "When they (college athletes) see a pro scout, all they see is millions of dollars." Smith said. They're trying to impress us, not the other way around."

Judy and Dave Smith enjoy the early summers at their Boyne City home although they usually have a short vacation as the football season starts about the middle of July for most collegiate teams. Smith has to determine who might be a draft choice for the Buffalo Bills Football Team as one of the four scourts the team uses for the United States.

There once was black bird who decided he liked the taste of fish and even if he wasn't real good at fishing, he would poke his bill into the water and come out with a minnow or something else. This blackbird was fishing in the spillway of Walloon Lake earlier this spring. It is unusual for birds of this family to eat fish, according to experts.

This is what a Superbowl Ring looks like, even though it is for the losing team, the Buffalo Bills. They lost in the final game of the professional season, but each player, member of the staff each received a ring for them to wear the rest of their lives.

Can you retire early?

If you dream of calling it quits before the traditional retirement age of 65, you better start planning early, advises the Michigan Association of CPAs.

The first step is calculating how much money you will need in retirement. A rule of thumb is that you will require about 70 percent of our current gross income to maintain the standard of living you now enjoy.

How will you obtain that 70 percent goal? The keystones of most people's retirement plans are Social Security, an employer pension, Individual Retirement Accounts (IRA), Keoghs, 401(k) plans and personal investments.

If you plan to retire early, you should be aware that the youngest age at which you can collect Social Security is 62. You should also know that your age at retirement affects the size of your Social Security benefit. If you begin to collect at 62, your monthly check will be permanently set at 80 percent of the full benefit. You receive your full benefits only if you wait until you are age 65 or older to

The maximum monthly benefit a retired worker could expect to receive in 1991 is $1,022. For an estimate of how much you can expect to receive in your monthly benefit check, call the Social Security Administration at 800-234-5772 and ask for Form SS-7004, the Request for Earnings and Benefits Estimate Statement.

Pension payments vary from company to company. To get an idea of how much you can expect to receive when you retire, you should ask your company benefits counselor to figure this amount for you based on the job tenure you anticipate.

Another important source of retirement income will be one of the tax-favored investment vehicle - including IRAs, Keoghs, and 401(k) plans. Although IRAs no longer provide a tax deduction for everyone, they still allow you to defer taxes on interest or dividend income in your plan. Keogh plans provide similar tax advantages for the self-employed. CPAs recommend employees take full advan tage of 401(k) plans whenever possible. The salary you contribute reduces your current taxable income and tax is deferred on investment earnings. Bear in mind that IRAs, Keoghs and 401(k) plans all come with stringent withdrawal restrictions that discourage you from suddenly deciding to use your retirement savings

Primitive birds surviving

Again, this year, the Round Lake (Emmet County) loons have been able to hatch a pair of chicks despite the press of lakeshore development and increasing boat

Up to this point there are very few bodies of water, similar to Round Lake, that have been able to boast about having these primitive acquatic birds continuing to survive in the face of encroaching humans and their ac-

Perhaps this years hatching success can partially be attributed to the concern of a member of the Round Lake Club Condominium Association who purchased four marker bouys placed in a perimeter away from the loon nesting platform, warning boaters not to enter the area. Now these markers are costly and must surely be appreciated by the loon lovers of this area.

As a Round Lake loon watcher since 1947, I would like to extend my personal thanks to this gen-

I did, early the other morning, put my small john boat in near the marked area with the intention of photographing the female bird on the artificial nesting raft. This raft solved the problem of fluctuating water levels that had wiped out nesting attempts in the previous

Screened by dense advestion fog I made a silent approach, dropped anchor and waited for the fog to burn off while being straffed by hungry mosquitos intent on penetrating clothing, or finding an area of flesh bereft of mosquito

With rising temperatures and sunlight the fog was dissipated then with my long lens I was able to shoot a dozen frames without alarming the old bird.

I spent a good hour observing the old birds and believe I witnessed the hatching of one chick, and the male bird swam over from the middle of the lake to give me the once-over, then went over to his mate for a security check. That's when I saw one wobblyheaded chick peeking out from the oldsters feathers.

Slowly pulling the anchor line I eased away from the vicinity. Upon reaching shore I saw both old birds in the water with two Radio Clubs held contest in B.C.

Two amateur radio clubs, the Straits Area and the Chain O-Lakes, joined together over the weekend in Boyne City for a national contest to try to reach as many other amateur radio stations as they can during a 24 hour period.

The two clubs reached over 500 other stations throughout the United States, U.S. Territories and Canada during the timed period that started at 2 p.m. Saturday.

The clubs arrived early Saturday morning at the Veterans Memorial Park in Boyne City to set up for the contest using some Boyne City equipment to held hold up antennas and make connections to the portable trailer the club uses for emergency and training exercises.

The purpose of the contest is to train amateur radio clubs so they can help out in the case of an emergency situation by keeping the area in contact with the rest of the world, one club member said.

There were about 85 members of the two clubs working the event with members coming from across northern Michigan.
