Will it be ready for the party?

While it may not be completed by the time of a scheduled party this Friday, workmen are trying to get the new Park Street Bridge in shape so that residents can make the trip across it as pedestrians. The paving and allowing cars to cross will come in about a week or two.

Boyne asks MDOT to study for third traffic light

Boyne City will be trying to get another traffic signal to be located at the corner of East Street and Water Street if state highway officials decide it will be necessary.

The city announced at the Tuesday noon meeting it is making

The city announced at the Tuesday noon meeting it is asking the state to start a study to see if the intersection warrants a traffic signal. The city has considered the idea since the road was to be reconstructed this past summer.

The idea is not new, the state performed a study several years ago and decided there wasn't enough traffic at the intersection to require a traffic light.

The new study being asked for by the city, notes that traffic counts are up considerably in the past few years and may now qualify for a traffic light.

City officials had hoped the study could be completed soon but was told by Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT) officials that the soonest a study could be made would be next summer. They also wanted to wait until traffic counts and other criteria they use to determine whether a light was needed would be at the highest possible

Boyne City Police Chief Randy Howard said MDOT considers high volume, a counting crew for 24 hours to observe the intersection, the amount of cars turning and other things before making a detertraffic accident at that corner many years ago.

Other considerations of the city will be the problem of having three traffic lights in a row within three blocks. Officials said the light at the corner of Park and Water may have to be removed, depending on the amount of traffic at that intersection after the new Park Street Bridge is completed. Officials also had some concerns about the timing of the lights in order to have a good traffic flow through the downtown area.

Commissioner Vic Ruggles wondered if additional signage would be required indicating turn lanes, parking zones and other traffic control devices.

If approved, the new light would mean the elimination of parking in front of the post office as that lane would become a turning lane, Dennis Jason, the head of the street department added.

While on the possibility of a traffic signal at that intersection, city officials noted they may ask MDOT for permission to paint a pedestrain crosswalk at the corner of Boyne Avenue and Division. The city officials are noting an increase in foot traffic at that point as students are making the trip to the new Mc-Donald's for lunch. They are also wondering if additional sidewalk would be needed to direct the pedestrian traffic and keep them from walking in the roadway. Commissioners then were given a construction update on all of the were told the only things left to be completed on the M-75 upgrade was some seeding and mulching work and the painting of lanes and centerline. That is supposed to be done next week Jason said.

He then said the completion of the Park Street Bridge will be delayed a little bit as the pipe to carry water across the bridge is on a truck coming from Alabama and is not expected until late Tuesday evening. He said it would be installed on Wednesday. After the installation, guard rails could be completed and sidewalks, curbing and gutter would be started. The final paving of the street will come later this season.

The proposed South Park Street sewer project will get underway September 30, Mike Banfield told commissioners. The project has a two week limit and will shut down the street during that time.

Jason also announced that MDOT will be coming back into town to fix the pavement on the East Street Bridge this fall. MDOT is waiting for the Park Street Bridge to be completed before having to shut down the East Street Bridge for a short time while they repair the surface of the bridge.

Randy Howard announced the city, in conjunction with the Boyne City Schools will be hosting a bike registration clinic on Saturday. September 28 at the school bus garage parking area. He said notices will be going to the elementary school children asking them to bring their bikes to the clinic for inspection and registration. The children will also be given classes on the rules of the road, street safety and other with the police department. Each bike will get a sticker that can be installed on the frame.

Howard said the department is still finding lost and stolen bikes and the storage area for them is being filled again. This past summer the department held an auction which sold all of the bikes they had been storing over the years.

You're all invited

Boyne City business owners wants everyone to come enjoy a party as the community helps celebrate the end of the construction season.

The party will be held September 20th at 2:00 p.m. with festivities slated to start at the Old City Park.

Boyne City's High School Band will be marching downtown from the high school over the new pavement and will be playing while ribbons are cut and refreshments served as the community celebrates the opening of the bridge.

Of course, the bridge itself will not be completely open to vehicle traffic as the paving for the bridge deck will not be completed, but people will be allowed to walk across the new bridge to the downtown area.

Boyne City officials have asked the state to start a study to determine if a traffic light is needed at this intersection, the corner of East Street and Water Street. While there is not much traffic after the holiday, the corner does need some controls during the summer months, they say.

Confrontation still at Bay Twp meeting

Upon learning that the city is desiring a light at the intersection, Commissioner Thelma Behling said she hoped it would happen during her lifetime as she was involved in a

So far the continuing political controversy in Bay Township has recalled members, and last week, caused Trustee Lee Ekstrom to call it quits saying that is wasn't any fun.

The continuing controversy has also caused a mutual agreement to release township attorney Seberon Litzenberger from his duties as board members said "he is too nice." Reflecting that he hasn't won a case for the board. Also included in the reasoning for the change was the increase in costs the attorney was charging the township.

Board members said they are starting a search to replace Litzenberger and are interviewing attorneys. Litzenberger still may help out the township since he is the attorney of record for an upcoming case which goes to trial soon, board members said, and the township may have to pay for two attorneys during the transition. The upcoming case involves all of the board members jointly and individually and was the point of some discussion last Thursday as the board tried to figure out who may want a different attorney to represent them. All board members and some former boards members are involved in the suit.

The meeting started off on a controversial note when the minutes from the previous meeting did not reflect some of the people who attended the meeting. One person objected that he wasn't included although several others were also not included in-minutes as guests.

After adding the people who wanted to be noted into the minutes, a question was brought up by Floyd Johnecheck which asked about the bill that was paid to Litzenberger as reflected in the minutes.

That brought other comments as board secretary Pat Johnson explained the bill and why it was without questions. paid Johnecheck then asked if the entire board saw the bill or just the amount and asked what was all included.

It took several minutes for the board to explain the procedure before finally getting the minutes approved.

With the minutes approved Supervisor Bob Schmoldt told the audience "If the nit-picking keeps up, I will starting running the meetings by using Roberts Rules of Order, I don't think you will like it." The meetings are being run where residents can ask questions almost any time during the discussions in front of the board.

Johnecheck then asked a question about who is enforcing the zoning requirements. He said that if no one is doing anything, about the problems, then there shouldn't be any rules.

Board members listened to the complaint which brought up several others dealing with zoning rules

Finally, resident Virgil Johnson stood up and told the board, "This is just not working. I propose the board set up a committee of three named by the board to meet with a committee of three from Lyle Barkley's group to see if some of the matters can be resovled. After all, we are all humans and we should act like humans towards others. There is no need for the confrontation every month the board has to face."

Barkley agreed with the proposal and will meet with the three appointees from the board.

Johnson added, "There should be a truce."

The board has had confrontations almost every meeting for the past year from residents and has had to deal with the many issues which are bringing complaints to the board, along with potential legal actions as the residents feel the board is not following the correct procedures in some cases.

Boyne Falls adjusts bus runs, hires aide

In a relatively short school board meeting, the Boyne Falls School District heard a report on the schools bus runs, approved the hiring of a Chapter One aide, accepted a resignation, and approved the second reading of four policies.

All of the reports were made without much discussion as the meeting moved quickly through the agenda.

After starting school using the bus run schedule of last year, one bus was found to have too many riders to meet current laws so the routes were adjusted to eliminate the overload. Presently, Boyne Falls buses are eight riders under maximum., Superintendent Charles Smith told board members.

In the same area of transportation, Smith told board members the Intermediate School District is looking into adding radio repeaters on the radio towners PACE will be installing throughout the area. Smith told the board that this looks like it would be the lowest possible cost answer to eliminating some of the "dead" spots within the district and would be considerably cheaper than cellular phones, which have been found to have a lot of "dead" spots in the eastern half of the district.

The board then accepted a bid of $200 and sold one of their old trucks. Smith said the truck was pretty well rusted out and the bed of the pick-up had been replaced.

Board members then approved a resolution asked by the ISD to set up a Alternative Program for School Age Parents. The ISD wants to have all schools in the county use the East Jordan School District as the base and the fiscal

Planners discuss Boyne's future needs, goals

Boyne City Planners accomplished a lot of forward thinking last Monday as they continued to review and discuss the goals which were established at the Strategic Planning Workshop. This month they worked on goals of getting and keeping business and industry with emphasis on keeping a viable business district in the downtown area

The discussion centered around ideas the city and planners might develop that would increase the industrial and business base for the community.

They also discussed problems with exterior lights on driveway entrances and exit signs. The new McDonalds signs were the base of the discussion. McDonalds wanted originally to have interior lit signs at the driveways, but ceded to city rules that there be no interior lit signage.

The signage they did install is lighted from below and according to McDonald's officials, may be hazardous as children could destroy the arms which hold the lights.

But planner Todd Sorenson said if the Planning Board did anything different, "It would feel like we'd be going back on what we started to do." The planners would like to eliminate all interior lit signage throughout the city.

While the planners discussed possible remedies, they did not take any official action which would allow the lighting to be changed.

Planners did approve a request from the Sportsman's Bar to add a portable temporary partition on the summer deck. The bar wanted to increase the use of the popular deck by adding the partition to the area presently covered with an overhanging roof. Bar officials said it would help break the wind an would allow them to use the deck a little longer in the fall and spring.

Planners had no objections to the partition and approved the building of the partitions to be used from Labor Day to the first of May. The reason the plan was brought before the planning body was the original site plan gave no indication such a partition would be installed. City Manager Randy Frykberg wanted to make sure the idea was brought before the planners before it was done.

In other discussion, the planners are thinking about adding a section to the ordinance that would establish guidelines or mininum standards for rental housing within the city. Another need they want to look at is to set up guidelines for site condo development. Both ideas were brought out in discussion that is working to update the Comprehensive Plan for the city.

They also approved the reappointment of Edward Grice, Tom Neidhammer and Todd Sorenson for another 3 year term on the planning board. The City Commissioners will have to approve the appointments at their monthly meeting.

Sometimes when you are used to use a single edge blade shaving after getting up in the every day. When he died, my mother had a morning, the best thoughts of the day occur. That happened to me whole mess of blades he had saved, purchased and used through the the other day as I wondered how many shaves I would be able to get years. I wish I had some of them today as they are bringing good out of the razor before I was marked up with cuts and such. money on the antique circuits. Buy anyway, Old Mr. Gillette

My mind went back a few years changed the way most men spent ago when men used to get shaved at the local barber shops, but I their money when he developed a haven't asked any barber when disposable blade system and the last time they were asked to became a millionaire several times shave anyone was. I would hazard over. a guess it has been years.

ويراحكها والمعارية والمعالية فالدمم أعلها عمد فالماع الألال المالية المراجر الالا

Such is the growth of progress. A razor back then had to be honed frequently on the razor strap, a piece of leather that helped put a fine edge on the blade. Of course I was privy to the other uses of the strap as well, thanks to my grandfather who

EJ may change graduation rules

East Jordan schools may be looking at modifying graduation requirements at the high school. The proposal will have to be approved by the school board before being put into effect.

The changes were proposed by Kenny Kent, the new principal and Anne Dingman the Curriculum Director and include changing the required credits in social studies from 4 credits to 2 credits, adding one credit in fine arts, practical arts or performing arts, foreign the physical education area to change it to one credit of physical education/health classes

Another change would be in language or vocational education.

Part of the problem today is that the company's involved with making disposal blades are making them to good. You can get a couple of weeks worth of shaves out of the present day systems, and not have to spend much to replace them.

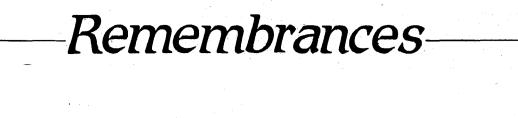

I am sure the marketing geniuses didn't plan on people using the blades as many times as some are doing today, but anyplace you can save a buck, some are.

In my case, I have to fight off others using the razor for such things as legs. Before the kids went away to school, I could figure on changing blades almost everytime after they had a big date. I could always tell the moment I put the blade to my face and proceeded to cut as it dragged its way across the beard.

Now that they are gone, I will be able to have a blade last like others are telling me about. I look forward to that aspect of my life.

Students would still need the same number of credits to graduate although the new proposal would give students the ability to take more varied classes, said Principal Kenny Kent.

The social studies change would be from taking two credit hours in the junior and senior years to taking one class per year. Administrators feel this would free up student time to be able to take another type of class. Like an art class or language class for those going to college.

The board took no action on the proposal wanting to study it further and searching additional background material to see what the change may do to help future graduates.

Board members also learned the school system is in better shape than it was last year and has improved over the last two years. The auditors told board members the administration also kept the budget and reality to within a one percent factor for the year.

In other action the board approved a request for child care eave for Heather Prater to cover the first semester of the school year and appointed Ray Fisher to See EJ Schoole/Page 7

Ware-withal WITH GAIL WARE

Remine With an Old Friend Flipping through limp pages in the dentist's waiting room, the ad grabbed me. It's a two-page spread of a shiny green cornfield, and folksy style text about the nutritive value of this specially bred lysine-filled crop, so tasty that Iowa pigs, having tried it, "turn up their noses at regular corn." Last paragraph: "So keep the Post coming to your door (renewal or new subscription) and we will set a FREE bag of high-lysine corn (meal) in your kitchen cupboard.' Subscription form appears below.

What's this, my old friend, peddling corn? Nope. It changed some since last we met, but still sells heart only.

Although the size of the bag is unstated and doubtless small, "A penny saved is a penny earned" Benjamin Franklin, is likely reeling in the hereafter at this money drain. Yet he'd be pleased that the Saturday Evening Post with "Founded A.D. 1728 by Benj. Franklin" on its masthead survives still. (Cover picture often hides masthead but Index pictures him.)

My reunion with the magazine in the dentist's office was short, but as an old-time, reasonably well behaved patient, my request to take the droopy, dated publication home was granted. And so I had time to note the frivolous tone that once allowed the "Tugboat Annie" and "Captain Hornblower" adventure series to appear and provide such a rollicking good time, gone. Yet, the level-headed one that replaced it, still allows for humor and silliness. It also grants a safe haven for those weary of ruder publications.

Long owned by Curtis Publishing, The Saturday Evening Post (SEP) has been run since 1982 by The Saturday Evening Post Society, a division of the Benjamin Franklin Literary & Medical Society, so it now leans toward fitness and matters related to health. Before that, a medical missionary and her husband, the Corvs. bought its remains from Curtis, who declared it dead in Feb. '69. Reviving it as a quarterly, summer 71, they kept it alive till present agent for the program. Boyne City and East Jordan also passed the same measure recently.

owner bought it. Soon after, it became as now, an eight-timesyearly journal.

A delightful report on White House Youth Fitness Day written by 10-year-old Emily SerVass appears in July/Aug.'s issue. More taken by Macaulay Culkin, star of "Home Alone", than by the business at hand, she commences her piece:

Macaulay Culkin is ten years old and so am I, even though I look a couple of inches older!"

She does note that the President and Barbara Bush were also present, even quotes the President a bit. Then it's back to Macaulay, who on the bus ride back to their motel, played a form of "I Spy" with her and other Crusade guests.

"He always picked hard things, like a girl's hairbow."

A serious but sprightly article on race walking and its benefits by Michael Allen, was followed further on by a humorous treatment by SEP regular, Maynard Good Stoddard, on his wife's and his adventures while power walking. Time and blood pressurewise, their outing was a failure, but he lost three pounds. He makes it clear who got them too - dogs and bulls encountered along the way. A dear funny man, Stoddard.

Cartoons dot many of the Post's nages. Typical is one showing a man speaking to seated lady with legs stuck straight out. Ankles and feet serve as stand for book she's reading:

"Bifocals, Velma, are merely one of life's transitions."

Fiction? Kurt Vonnegut yet, but not the dark writer of yesteryear. He writes a good tale of selfcentered, willful teens whose parents foil them by taking them at their word.

Also Georgie Ann Geyer reveals an unknown side of Fidel Castro: his work on genetic engineering - did it with cows.

Fine writing here. I'll buy it. Combread I love. New issue offers Beano, a gas basher, a social helper. I'll trust gas to luck, and if that fails, sit home with my corn.

that can survive our northern climate in the Great Lakes area. The best idea about what to serve with our fall fruits no matter how you prepare them came to me in the mail today. It was a request for an old fashioned sugar cookie recipe from Jean Koschade of Elk Rapids. She said that it was used in this area around 1920 on. "They were large, round cookies with a raisin in the center and sprinkled with sugar. Everyone stored them in a crock, and Torch Lake Inn had them on the table at every meal."

I remember my mother making 'White Cookies" as she called them, always with a big raisin in the center. The only thing that I can recall about her recipe was that she made them with thick cream. I have never found her recipe. I doubt if she ever had a written one as she made them almost every week, and did not need a recipe. I hope, Jean, that this next recipe is what you are looking for.

SUGAR COOKIES

"Lowney's Cookbook" From published in 1912. 1/2 C. butter 1 C. sugar

1 T. milk Flavoring 2 eggs

2 t. baking powder 1/4 t. salt 2 C. flour

Cream butter; add sugar, yolks well beaten, flour, baking powder and salt; milk and eggs whites beaten to a stiff froth, and enough more flour to make of consistancy to roll. Cut off a small piece of dough, roll on floured board, sprinkle with granulated sugar, shape with a cookie cutter and bake 10 minutes. Save all the trimmings until the last. Do not mix trimmings with fresh dough.

They did not give oven temperatures then, though nearly all cookies were to be baked in a "quick oven", probably about 400 degrees.

Don't forget to make home made applesauce with those harvest apples. Many of us like them neeled and cooked until tender. Mash them a little bit but leave in small chunks. Season with cinnamon and sugar to taste; Serve warm with pancakes one of these first cool nights. Now is the time when apples taste their very best.

Do this, if you want your applesauce cold. Just freeze applesauce made like the above, then when you want some; partially thaw for a delicious dessert. A dab of cream topping or a scoop of ice cream for a delightfully special serving any day of the year. The applesauce can be thawed in the microwave for a last minute idea when friends drop in.

Devils trounced by Rayders 45-0

Perhaps the best way to explain the East Jordan-Charlevoix game from the East Jordan standpoint was that the best time on the field was when the parents were announced with the athletes at the halftime ceremonies.

Other than that, Charlevoix totally decimated the Devils, not even considering the game they played the week before. Charlevoix seemed to find holes throughout the line the whole game and went on to take the Devils 45-0 before the home crowd. Leading the attack for the Rayders was Brian Coolman who ran for 256 yards, including one 96 yeard scamper for one of his three touchdowns for the evening. East Jordan couldn't find a first down during the whole game, although they tried several ways to move the ball. All ended with the team having to punt it away or turn it over on downs. The game opened with Charlevoix taking the ball and running four different backs on plays that ended up with a score. The extra point attempt went wide, but that was about the only thing that went wrong for the Ravders.

From there, they just fine tuned the game into a rout, scoring almost every eight plays after the Rayders got the ball. They spent a lot of time during the week practicing for the Devils, and it worked out as they played with intensity from the first string to the last stringers.

Charlevoix ran the ball for 535 yards in the ground attack.

East Jordan fumbles along with Rayder interceptions helped give the Rayders scoring opportunities which they took full advantage of, scoring almost every time they got the ball.

The Devils were held to less than 50 yards rushing but had plenty of opportunities for tackles. Mike Noirot led the team with 15 including a sack, while Matt Diller had 11. The team did not get out of the game without injuries, and this week they may be playing without the services of Diller, Cliff Russell, Mike Muma and Scott Chanda when they play against Elk Rapids this Friday at home.

Junior Mike Noirot takes off around the end as he tried ped for a loss. Boyne dropped by Hurons 49-6

Boyne City is learning some tough lessons about the game of football as they ran into a real powerhouse last Friday in Rogers City and came away a 49-6 loser for their second loss this season.

The Rogers City attack was just too much for the hapless Ramblers as they combined a fine passing game with just enough running to keep the Ramblers guessing what was coming at them next.

Boyne trailed 21-0 at the end of the first quarter, and 35-0 at the

According to Coach Pat Klooster, Rogers City just took their time bringing the ball down the field, and each time they did, they scored. Boyne only had the ball for 33 carries so the team spent most of the game on the defensive side.

Rogers scored off of three Rambler fumbles including one the first time the Ramblers had the ball.

One highlight in the game was a 36 yard run by Kevin Smith which went to the goal line in the third quarter that put Boyne on the scoreboard.

That seemed to life the spirits of the team as they then started to tighten up defensively and held the Hurons to only one more scoring drive. Smith led the team with 58 yards in six carries while Roy Angel had 14 yards in four carries. Quarterback Bob McCullough had one carry for eight yards and was 2 of 4 in passing, both completions went to Steve Seelye.

Klooster gave honors to Smith, Angel, Andy Vondra and Mark Reynolds for their defensive efforts.

He added that the team is starting to be a better ball club than last year defensively, but the offense is still to inexperienced on the line to get the ball moving.

The team will face the Mancelona Ironmen this Friday at Home.

Gas leak in BC

Boyne City residents averted another possible tragedy last weekend when a police officer noticed a leaking gas tank at the Bay Oil Company. About 360 gallons of gasoline was found leaking out of 12,000 gallons into the diked area around the tank.

A response team was called, along with the fire department to contain the spilled gasoline which will be cleaned up within the next few days by A-1 Co. of Kalkaska.

The police officer was filling up a patrol vehicle when he noticed the leak from the tank. The DNR Hazmat (Hazardous Material) team from Gaylord arrived shortly after to inspect the spill along with Terry Kidwell, an Allied Signal Areo Space employee who has been specially trained in Hazmat spills. He helped advise the fire department on handling the spill. No one was injured in the accident which happened about 8 p.m. Sunday evening. Extension Service is working with volunteer, Annette Wilson, A Boyne City provider to start an ongoing organization that provides education and support.

The first meeting is being held at the home of Annette Wilson at 602 E. Main in Boyne city on Thursday, September 26 at 7 p.m.

Please call Annette at 582-6123 for directions. The first meeting will be to gather information on the needs of local providers and to share free resources available to providers from the Cooperative Extension Service.

Hard to stop nature's engineer

The beaver, the largest rodent outside of the South American capybara, has fallen from the most valuable fur bearer on the North American Continent to the status of a pest.

Beavers are the engineers supreme of the animal world. Using branches, acquatic vegetation and mud, they construct dams in places that human engineers would shun.

They are not deterred by humans destroying their nighttime building efforts. Even dynamiting the tightly woven structures is only a temporary solution to releasing waters flooding roadways and properties containing human habitations.

Often times the only solution to solving a beaver/human relationship is to destroy the chiseltoothed offender.

I always remember the old-time Emmet County Conservation Officer Tom Koboski, and his story about the stubborn, persistant beavers of a northern Emmet County stream who bested the efforts of a State trapper to oust them from their watery domain.

No matter how many times the dam was breached, the following morning, after a night of labor, the dam was repaired.

Finally someone came up with the bright idea of hanging a lantern on a stake near the torn out section of the dam, thinking the light would scare the nighttime engineers from repairing the break

Lo and behold upon visiting the dam the next morning the lantern had disappeared.

Upon examination the trapper and officer found that the lantern had been used long enough to breach the gap, and as an insult put the light out and headed for their lodge and a much deserved

But, anyway, beavers helped build this country into what it is today.

When this country was first explored and settlement began, beaver pelts lured trappers and mountain men into the raw untamed wilderness to catch the richly-pelted beavers.

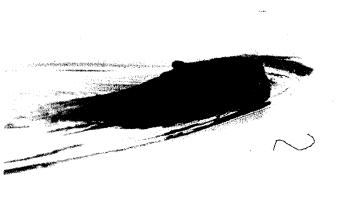

Huge fur trading empires sprang up and flourished. Beaver pelts became the measuring stick by which other furs were graded. Blankets, called Hudson Bay Blankets, named after the fur trading company, had marks woven into the fabric that were used to tell how many stacked pelts would be needed for a trade blanket.

But now the miladies fur coats going into decline, caused by the unjustified criticism of animal rights activists, beavers are becoming overabundant.

With the lack of natural preditors and man's continued encroachment into unsettled areas beavers have become an unwanted part of our natural heritage.

Addendum: Thank you Edith Kendig for alerting me to the beaver problem near your home where I was able to get a picture of a buck beaver that was causing a flooding problem in a man-made channel dredged from Pickerel Lake

And thanks to Clayton Smith, old time trapper of Charlevoix who said that beaver pelts only brought around $10.00 last fall at fur auctions. This relates to the increasing beaver and man conflicts. Trappers can't afford to spend time and money in a go broke situation.

The term busy as a beaver seems to be real as this beaver was trying to damn up a culvert recently. He kept swimming back and forth bringing more material to jam into the culvert to stop the water flow so he could have a home

Against Elk Rapids and Charlevoix Boyne girls lose two last week

BY: ANNETTE KNIPE

Boyne City's varsity girls basketball team had an off week as they lost both games, one against Elk Rapids and the other against Charlevoix.

Thursday, the girls had problems defensively and offensively against the Elks and that seemed to last throughout the entire game. The final score was Ramblers 25, Elk Rapids 81.

Aulani Kuheana hit eight points for the night while Katie Drury added five. Also contributing were Abby Crumb and Melissa William son with four points each, Kathleen Johnson with three and Kris Crozier with one.

Last Tuesday the girls got off to a better start against the neighbor at the other end of the lake, Charlevoix. The score was close at the halftime break, but the Ramblers were leading 17-16. The game was a hard fought battle with Boyne leading all the way until the fourth quarter. Then the team started to lose its composure and dropped the game 38 to 28

Leading Boyne City was Crozier with nine points. Unfortunately, she didn't play much in the second half due to an injury to her foot, but she still had an outstanding game. Adding to Rambler's total were Williamson and Kuheana with eight, Drury with 2 and Wendy LaCroix with one point.

In the JV contests, the Ramblers dropped the game to the Elks with the score 21 to 61, and to Charlevoix 54-25.

Plenty of squirrels & rabbits

Michigan's nearly 200,000 cottontail rabbit hunters and 170,000 squirrel hunters can expect excellent hunting as small game season began Sept. 15 - a result of our four recent mild winters.

The relatively mild winter and excellent brood-rearing spring in 1991 have combined to provide one of the highest cottontail populations in the past 10 years.

Rabbit hunters reported harvesting more than one million contontails last year, a dramatic increase over the 870,000 taken just five years ago. Cottontail hunters continued to spend more time than any other small game hunting group in pursuit of their favorite game animal. More than two million days were spent afield by approximately 204,000 hunters during the 1990 season, the highest number in 10 years.

Since most rabbit hunting takes place on private farmlands, those who are new to the sport, or who have not hunted small game in recent years, may want to get a list of farms leased by the state for hunting from a license dealer in the southern part of the state. The DNR leases nearly 135,000 acres of private lands for hunting through the Hunter Access Program.

An estimated 169,990 squirrel hunters reported harvesting more than 1,063,000 squirrels in 1990, one of the highest harvests on record.

The recent mild winters also have led to excellent populations of fox, grey and black squirrels across the state. Mast crops are good to excellent over most of the Lower Peninsula, providing good hunting opportunities on both public and private lands.
