BC's building trades class draws contractor ire

Controversy over the Boyne City School's Building Trades program brought out an area contractor who asked the board if they thought it is alright for the school district to be providing free labor to help construct a house.

The house is being constructed by students for Frank Shaler, who is putting up the money for materials and helping to train the students participating in the project.

The contractor, Jim Daniels, said the owner of the home is not going to be living in the house, but will be putting it up for sale when it is finished at a profit.

Daniels does not think the program is fair to the other contractors in the area who are building homes as those contractors have to pay normal costs of labor for workers, insurances and other costs involved with building. He thinks there should be no profit incentive allowed with homes being constructed under the building trades program.

Shaler is putting up all expenses, program director Tom Neidhammer told the board Monday night, and the use of the predetermined buyer program is saving the district considerable money as the district does not have to provide materials for the project.

The home, located on the corner of Division and Lewis Streets, has been under construction since the beginning of the school year and is being helped by Shaler as the work continues.

He said the pre-determined buyer concept is statewide as it frees the school district from the risks involved with the speculative building concept.

Board members then asked Daniels if he would participate with the committee that is overseeing the program. Daniels indicated he would participate as he thinks the program is a good starting place for developing building trades workers.

Another controversial item occurred when the board considered asking for legal advice and possible action against LGApS which has started a newsletter that according to the board is misleading and possibly libelous to the district.

According to Nakoneczny, the publisher of the newsletter is causing concerns for the children's education and disrupting the schools when he walks into the school and disrupts classes. He is also concerned with the safety of workers, citing the publisher walking in and around the bus garage with buses on hoists or being repaired.

While the board decided to get a legal opinion, they also decided to enforce a 1954 city ordinance that requires a person to appear at the building principal's office before heading into the school.

They also agreed to require excessive copying charges be used under the guidelines of the Freedom of Information Act for materials the publisher has asked for in his search for information. Jim Stackus, speaking from the audience, told the board that the publication is good media for across the coffee tables of the community. He added that most people take the publication with a large grain of salt. Trustee Renate Smith told board members that while the newsletter makes for that, it is difficult to ignore.

property. The city had asked the district share in the expense of snow removal for the new sidewalk leading from downtown to the schools. The opinion said the school can't spend money from the general fund for maintenance on other peoples' property.

The board then approved a request that will allow Boyne Falls students to participate in the Boyne City track program for the next two years. Boyne Falls school Board has already approved the cooperative athletic program at their last board meeting. It will now be sent to the Michigan High School Athletic Association for approval. It is expected Boyne Falls will be sending over several athletes for the spring track program. Boyne Falls is also participating with Boyne City for football.

Board members then approved the starting of the annual budget review process for the next year, and agreed to the sale of several used school buses.

They also approved the low bid of R&B Excavating for snow removal on the school grounds. The board will be sending a letter to interested parties concerning an existing easement to the school forest property on Erickson Road. An agent had asked for an additional easement so a prospective buyer of some property in the area could get to it.

They finished up by approving a request from school administration to hire a half-time person to take over the current HAP program.

Administrators said the current program, using an outside agency is not working out as the agency has a large amount of turnover which is not conducive to the program. The school district is intending on setting up their own program to fill the need.

In other action, the board set up almost "roughed" in according to Neidhammer.

Daniels thinks the home is being built using taxpayers money for such items as tools, and other materials used in the program.

Trustee Dale Owens asked Daniels what the difference is between building a home for a predetermined buyer or a speculative buyer. He said to him, the only difference was that the school district was not putting out money for materials during the school year and then having to sit on it until the home is sold.

Superintendent Bob Nakoneczny said that the money budgeted for the home was instead put into the bank to earn interest rather than being an expense item.

Owens then asked if Daniels ever considered a co-op program where the students would come work with a contractor on a parttime basis to learn the trade. Daniels said he would not consider it because of the additional costs and said he would not lay off his workers in order to put on a student. He told the board his workers also paid taxes into the system and if they were unemployed, they couldn't afford the taxes. He also said that when he hired some former students, they were not trained in working and were more concerned with when the coffee breaks were rather than getting the work completed.

Neidhammer told the board there are 12 Boyne City students and two East Jordan students involved in the program. They are

Owens added that the board should do nothing immediately, "Give hime enough rope, he'll hang himself."

The publisher, Karl Waldner, has been accused of using abusive language when he has visited the school buildings. Board President Robin Hissong said the board should limit the hours for pick-up of materials asked for to after school hours.

In other business before the monthly board meeting, they set up times for their annual board/staff coffee hours at the various schools and the bus garage, set up work sessions for board policy book updates, the recent Michigan Association of School Boards Conference to review materials each board member gathered, and a curriculum conference dealing with new school materials.

They then heard a legal opinion from the school lawyers saying that they could not participate with the city in removing snow from sidewalks not on school

This means the voting majority which approved a controversial law has been changed since the passage of the anti-noise rules last year. One member, the supervisor, "Bud" Allie Chipman was recalled by voters while Briethaupt, Ekstrom and Chellis all resigned. The anti-noise law has caused considerable argument within the township since it was passed and has split the residents into sides both for and against.

Chellis was elected to the board in 1988. He worked for Michigan Bell Telephone before he retired.

Chellis also gave no warning that he was going to resign, he asked the Township Supervisor Bob Schmolt and a member of the planning board to talk with him outside of the hall for a moment. When the three returned he submitted his letter of resignation to the board which they reluctantly agreed to accept. His letter said he would be resigning as of Tuesday, October 15th.

The board has started a search for a replacement. Applicants are asked to submit their names to the Township by November 7 with the board taking action to fill the seat on November 14th at the next regular meeting.

MacAdams had a short board meeting for his first meeting, others have lasted long into the night as residents and the board many times have argued over board matters. The meeting lasted only 90 minutes.

This home under construction by the Boyne City High not School Building Trades program drew the ire of a local student labor and not having to pay normal business contractor who told board members the school should- expenses a regular contractor would have to absorb.

County outlines surveying plans that surveyors may be making mistakes has led Charlevoix County into a 20 year project to remonument the county, this is what Mary Fiendt, the county surveyor, told Boyne City Commmissioners at the Tuesday noon meeting.

She said it was possible that errors have been made over the years that could cause concern for abstract and title companies, as well as land owners and governmental units as a survey is usually the determining factor where a house gets sited, or property lines are established.

The problem, she said, goes back to the survey rules established when the country was founded. She said problems may have occurred that would cause errors of as much as several hundred feet in some cases, inches in others as the surveyors may have used improperly marked monuments as their point of beginning when making a survey.

She told the commissioners the state was originally surveyed in the early 1800's by surveyors using compasses and a 33 foot chain to determine the location of corners of section lines and other

Concern over the possibility points where surveys begin.

Today, modern equipment such as computers, satellites and other means are available to determine property lines.

Fiendt is the head of a ad-hoc committee that has started to update the monuments used by surveyors as part of the 1990 Michigan Public Act requiring the entire state to be redetermined.

She said the county is starting to ask governmental agencies which corners are termed most important so the county will set those corners first. They will then work off those marked sites to determine other corners as the progress continues with the hope of completion within the 20 year time span.

The committee will then determine by agreement among the surveyors which point of beginning they will use when making surveys and oversee their actions.

She added that it is a case of agreed corners or decreed by the courts as to where they should be put.

It is the hope that the remonumenting will save time and money in the long run, she added, but she did say there are many concerns that will have to be addressed as the property lines are redrawn because of early errors.

There are approximately 500 monuments within the county that will have to be determined. She said some of the monuments have had agreement by the surveyors while others may become points of contention rather than starting points for determining property lines.

Jones pleads

no contest

A no contest plea bargain has all but ended the drama of facing a manslaughter charge for Jeanette Lynn Jones, 25, of Boyne City in the 33rd Circuit Court Monday.

Jones pleaded no contest to a reduced charge of felonious assault in front of Judge Thomas J. Foley who also heard no contest pleas to separate charges of resisting and obstructing a police officer. Foley set November 11 for the sentencing which allows up to four years in prison and/or a $7,500 fine.

Jones was accused of stabbing David Allen Lambert last November. He died of injuries 12 days later and his body was found in the alley off of Main Street.

Facts about chicken pox

East Jordan.

Chicken pox (varicella) has long been recognized as a mild childhood illness that usually results in few complications. However, in certain people, it may have more serious consequences. Since chicken pox is being reported throughout the area. Brian L. Youngs, M.D., Medical Director, is stressing the importance of being informed about the illness

Chicken pox is a viral illness with sudden onset of slight fever, few serious symptoms, and an itchy rash. The rash begins as a spot on the skin and progresses to a thickened elevated area and to a clear fluid filled blister like area, 2-4 mm in diameter. The area around the spot reddens and fades as the fluid becomes cloudy (purulent) and the spot crusts over. The crust may remain 1 to 3 weeks. There may be several crops of lesions.

The illness is easily spread from person to person with onset 11 to 20 days following exposure. Children are contagious for 1 to 2 days before and 6 days after onset of the rash and for the duration of the blister eruption or until the lesions become dry. During this period of time they should not attend school or day care and should avoid individuals who never had

There is an immune globulin called varicella-zoster immune globulin (VZIG) which may prevent or modify the disease in high risk individuals. It can be used for immune deficient individuals of any age, normal adults, pregnant women, premature and full term infants. Parents or individuals should contact their family physician concerning use of the immune globulin. Also, Reye's Syndrome has been associated with the use of aspirin in a child ill with chicken pox. Aspirin is not recommended for children incubating a viral illness such as influenza or chicken pox. Some dangers of chicken pox in-

Opinions

Good plan, but....

Charlevoix County's ambitious plan to remonument the county seems like a step in the right direction as the state and the county have done nothing to maintain the marked places where surveys begin.

We wonder what the move to remonumenting may bring when landowners find their property lines moved by several inches or a few feet.

In some cases, will the rules of adverse possession come into play as some landowners try to grab onto property they thought was theirs? Or will title companies bear the cost of possible litigation when a property owner learns he has lost several feet off the side yard?

We also wonder what planning commissions will do about properties which have been allowed to build closer to lot lines that the set back rules allow?

These are just some of the questions that may be coming up in the next 20 years as the process continues to reestablish the points of beginning for surveys.

The process of resurveying the ground may be enhanced by satellite and other modern means, but will this also cost more time in the courts to determine what will happen to properties?

We hope that everything gets figured out before it turns up in the courts. It could become a real mess.

Editor.

Regarding the "Opinions" column in the October 9 issue of the Charlevoix County Press: I can understand why the "we" and "us" holding those opinions were unwilling to sign their names.

As one of the people accused of "Looking for problems and trying to protect their own interests". I do not see why our library board should be allowed to do what they think is best. What has our board done for us lately?

1. Gutted the library staff (fired the two senior staff members.)

- 2. Cut library hours.
- 3. Cut library services. 4. Paid almost two thousand dollars in taxpayers money to a downstate attorney firm.

I could be wrong about this last Takes issue over library editorial item, I have been told that the public has no right to know about this expenditure. The other three items above are facts, not opinions. More facts: In June, our board met a perceived financial crisis by adopting a budget with a drastic cut in staff hours and elimination of cleaning services. Right now, they are shopping for a fortythousand dollar computer system. The two senior library staff ladies fired in July are to be replaced by a computer.

Opinion: I could deal with a computerized library, but I won't, not where library staff is fired so that the library can afford the computer.

Editor,

"It's illegal," says Charlevoix County Prosecuting Attorney Kraag Lieberman, regarding Boyne City's School Superintendent Robert Nakoneczny's demand for money, yes, money, for viewing, yes, viewing school PUBLIC documents in his office.

Nakoneczny is also refusing LGApS immediate access to ALL OTHER school PUBLIC documents, other than school board meeting minutes.

That is a petty precedent. It is being arbitrarily exercised by a hired administrator whose past performances have been against the election statements of his employers, a citizen majority. Very contrary behavior for an employee who professes to welcome citizen participation in the school process. A docile school board acquiesces.

He told me that if winter comes early, he will be able to drive around Boyne City without having to make a detour, or go through East Jordan without any delays.

He figures the work each community is doing on the roads would be all done if winter was here.

In fact, he said he is looking forward to being able to drive through East Jordan as he does daily on the way to work. "I got held up there for about a day and a half last week, heck, make that a week I was tied up waiting for some truck to move out of the way," he added.

"It's too darn bad these contractors can't do all of the work in a few days instead of all summer and fall," he continued, "I am growing older every day and I'll probably be an old man by the time they get things done." He just sat there thinking about what I said and came up with a comment that if the construction starts again next spring, he was just going to have to purchase a tank. That way, he thought, he would be able to keep up with bulldozers and other tracked equipment seen around costruction sites.

But then I told him he might have a problem finding a tank available, unless he wanted to have one shipped over from Iraq, and he would have to learn how to speak Russian or something to run it. I did not tell him the costs involved of shipping and duties as that would have dejected him even

A Bouncing Reality Check

100 years ago Mark Twain exaggerated some when he wrote that "There is no distinctly native American criminal class except Congress." Odd how many folks hark back to that now.

Not that members enjoying privileges of the House is against the law even - flaunts it good though. But worse is old hands' wide eyed wonder when citizens got outraged upon learning of the financial folderol Congressmen can revel in. That's what's made taxpayers so testy, set to toss them out.

House members can't see why such a fuss that many of their ranks write bad checks, which make nary a wave since their own private bank always covers them no charge, time limit. And what's the big deal, they are not paying House restaurant bills in a timely fashion - say, in a year or five? Then there's parking tickets. Theirs can get fixed in Washington, D.C. They've no time for such trifles with a nation awaiting their wise decisions; we should see that.

Sure do. More too. We see men and women valiantly voting themselves higher pay, one of the first wise decisions on this year's agenda. Then it's on to more of what we elected them for, representing our best interests. And so they vote to spend hundreds of thousands of our dollars to study airy cow emissions, then three million (so far) to fund midnight volleyball to decrease crime. 24-year Denver Rep. Pat Schroeder envisions millions of crime-bent youth happily shooting hoops instead of humans.

While these projects sound might flighty, citizens don't get all het up over them. But this House bank and restaurant deal, ticket fixing and who knows what other financial fix-ups, this we understand - not by way of first-hand experience, of course, which explains why we're sore. We didn't vote that they get them either.

What to do about it? Limit Congressional time in office to four two-year terms for Representatives and two six-year terms for Senators by law. That way Congressional members move back into the real world before they forget it isn't where they're at. An amendment would do it, and the mood is right to get it passed. So likely we shall.

But maybe we don't need to. Their failing stems from having lost contact with us, what we meet, how we live. They need what a wag dubbed a "Reality Check" to get them in touch with real people ways, real institutions, banks for instance. But they can now stay put for that as of now.

Speaker of the House Tom Foley has announced the cozy House bank is closed. A Reality Check will follow, many of them in fact, bouncing along the banks of the Potomac. But I'll not laugh, guys, honest. I remember too well by first bouncing check, remember like it was yesterday, which is likely why in the 30 years since I've had no more.

Picture a woman of thirty something, arrayed in assorted outerwear with clearly more articles of clothing underneath because she walked with a peculiar rolling gait. Of course, part of that was due to the wagon she pulled, or rather was prodded and pushed by, as she descended the hill.

The wagon held a couple of shapeless bundles. Actually, they were two approximately twentyfive pound children, at least that's what they weighed before she stuffed them into layers of clothing before setting out on this January day. Thus the bulky party proceeded the six blocks to the bank.

Why this mid-afternoon journey on such a day? The bank had called, said the milkman's check had bounced, her account being $1.43 shy of enough to cover it. Bank person said to come now, take care of the overdraft. So she did.

Yes, I remember, every shivery minute of it, which is why I'll not chance repeating it. "There are several good protections against temptations, but the surest is cowardice." Twain said that too, and that's no exaggeration.

GAME

It's hunting season time again; it starts with the bow-hunting for men and women alike yet it persistently seems a man's sport. Sometimes I suspect that many men just have an instinctive urge to be out into the woods and fields these invigorating days. Mother used to say that Papa and Uncle Frank went pheasant hunting just to sit on a log and re-hash old times. Sometimes, however they came home with a bird. Papa occasionally went out alone and returned with a rabbit or squirrel, and since that time I have learned that one has to be a real marksman to shoot a squirrel, and that they are not easy to dress. However they were often in greatgrandmother's stew-pot in the fireplace.

Every year my friend, Al Bostwick and his cronies take a hunting trip. Last year to Jackson Hole, Wyoming area and came home with elk, venison and lots of pictures. I do not know if Al and his friends would appreciate being called old sports. Yet according to Stan Perkins, author of the book "Lore of the Wolverine" states that, "For some un-be-known reason sportsmen have always been referred to as old sports. "Young sports seem to be as scarce as cock pheasants on the opening morning of hunting

These young or old sports like to cook their trophies as well as to hunt them. This is the way that Al cooks his elk or venison.

Al cooks both of them the same way but he does not mix elk and venison. He wants to retain the special flavor of each separately.

tor, from Charlevoix County's

He does roast venison steaks and roasts together and the same for elk steaks and roasts.

Cooking

AL'S ROAST VENISON OR ELK 3 to 4 lbs. venison roast and steaks or elk roast and steaks Sear the meat in olive oil to brown

Season well with Lawry's salt and pepper Put the roast in a medium sized roaster Mix:

1 can cream of mushroom soup 1 can cream of celery soup 1 large onion, about 1 cup coarsely chopped 1 soup can of water Add to the roast in the pan (if he is using steaks too he puts them on the top, and pours the above mixture over all, even putting a little bit of the sauce under the roast. Roast at 350 degrees $4 \cdot to 4^{1/2}$ hours. After about 3 hours of roasting he checks the juices in the pan, mixing it up. If there is a lot of liquid he will leave the cover off the pan for part of the last hour of cooking.

Remove the bone and cut the meat in the pan. Al says that it is not a beautiful roast, however the meat is fork tender and delicious. If the meat is dry he might add a little water instead of taking the cover from the roast and sometimes he thickens it with a little flour and water mixture to a gravy consistancy. There is not fat to drain off these roasts. I do not know how much hunting Al will do this year, however he has promised me a dinner using the above recipe.

Then there is Bill Harris who loves to bow hunt. He likes to put food in his slow cooker so he has something good to eat when he returns from a day in the woods.

This would be a good time to make Bill's Mucky Duck Beans along with these he-man recipes. He picked up this next recipe at a Buy Low Supermarket and made it for a family get together. It has been in demand ever since.

MUCKY DUCK BARBECUED BEANS

This amount will feed 24 people which could be about right for a group of hungry hunters. Bill cut this recipe in half.

2 lbs. bacon, strips cut into one thirds

1 large onion, chopped. Bill used 2 onions

5 lbs. canned pork and beans 1 24 oz. bottle catsup

1 lb. package brown sugar ¹/₄ C. Mucky Duck mustard (from the supermarket)

³4 C. Worchestershire Sauce

2 T. Liquid smoke

In a 4 to 6 quart pot, fry bacon, drain, leaving enough fat to saute onion. Add remaining ingredients and simmer uncovered 1 to 2 hours. Serves 20 to 25.

Bill used his slow cooker for this; he has also cooked it in a pot on the stove, both ways are good.

He also uses his slow cooker for venison steak made like Swiss steak by pounding flour into the steak, brown in skillet, add 1 can cream of mushroom soup and 1 can of water. Pour into slow cooker and cook several hours while he is out hunting, playing golf, mowing the lawn or watching the football games.

What a wonderful season this is; I just had a gift of our Great Lake's salmon. Some of the "Old Sports" are out fishing.

The lady Ramblers lost last Thursday night to Kalkaska, although Boyne City played a hard fought game, staying close the whole time.

The girls had a hard time with their defense and didn't receive the rebounds too well, the offense was enough to keep them in the game. But in the end the Ramblers came out on the bottom losing 41-64.

Kris Crozier was hitting the boards well Thursday night receiving 16 points and 8 rebounds. Also scoring for the Ramblers were Daphne Crozier with 10 points, Melissa Williamson with 6 points, and Abby McCrumb with 4 points.

But Harbor came back with a drive of their own to bring the Rams into the game when they only took three plays to move the ball for their only TD of the game.

The Devils came back in the second quarter threatening several times on a seven play drive that ended with another Zipp to Brennan pass to add another six.

The second half defensive effort by the Devils kept the rams from any scoring opportunities while the offense seemed to coast until late in the quarter Zipp intercepted a Harbor pass to set up their fourth touchdown and several penalties which moved the ball way back from the line of scrimmage. EJ Lady Devils trounce Mancy last week against the Rams moved the ball into scoring territory and Noirot took the ball in from the 12 yard line.

BY JENNI BARNETT With Dwanya White scoring first for East Jordan, the lady Devils went on to take another win against the Mancelona ladies basketball team last Thursday with a score of 70-39.

In the fourth quarter the Devils took total control when they moved the ball up field in five plays that ended with a Kent Gilmore run into the endzone.

Offensively the Devils ended up with 505 total yards with Zipp hitting 7 of 13 pass attempts for 146 yards. Noirot ran for a great 209 yards on 18 carries to lead the team in rushing.

Defensively, the tackling honors went to Ross Miller with 11 while Enos Bacon added another 8. This week the team will face

Boyne finds tough team in 47-0 loss

Boyne City if finding out what the word football means to several teams this season as they faced another powerhouse, Traverse City St. Francis last Friday. They came out of the game behind by a score of 0-47.

Boyne's offense could only hit 76 yards for the entire game as the level of play from the Gladiators is about three or four steps higher than Boyne this year.

According to Coach Klooster, the Ramblers only played one good quarter as the Glads seemed to be able to almost score at will after getting the Rambler defense tired in the second quarter. They scored only one TD in the first, but after that, they connected for three in the second, and another three in the third quarter. Both teams played even in the last period of the game.

Mark Reynolds led the offense statistics for Boyne with 37 yards on 14 carries. Kevin Smith added another 21 on his 10 carries. Reynolds was playing for the injured Roy Angel who usually gets the most yardage from his backfield position

CHARLEVOIX COUNTY PRESS-October 16, 1991 5

Bob McCullough hit for three of six pass attempts to Brandon Stadt while Jason Joles, Luke Hausler and McCullough each added the others.

Reynolds was also the leading tackler for the team stopping the Glads many times during the game.

Klooster added that even though the team has been losing, he likes the way they have been playing. With four sophomores on the varsity team, things look better in the future he added as the players gain the experience on the field.

The team hopes to convert some detractors this Friday when they travel to East Jordan for the game before the annual homecoming.

What Our Building Project Is All About...

Charlevoix Hospital Area /

Our current surgical facilities were built in 1954 and do not accommodate today's technology and staff to properly deliver modern health care. The major portion of the building project is to build a new surgical and ambulatory care facility which will allow Charlevoix Area Hospital to serve its growing outpatient population in a quality manner.

Also included is a remodelling of the obstetrical unit which is also four decades old and requires major repair. As we remodel this unit, we want to bring it into the next century by offering single-room maternity care.

In addition, cramped waiting areas for the Emergency Department and Admitting areas will be enlarged to provide improved patient convenience and privacy.

You Can Still Help...

The $1.4 million Capital Campaign for Charlevoix Area Hospital has been very successful. We have seen outstanding support from the communities we serve.

Many people have had the opportunity to participate in the future of our hospital, however, many have not had that privilege.

Because of the time factor for the campaign, it was impossible to reach everyone in the community. We know there are still many friends of Charlevoix Area Hospital who would like to be a part of this exciting time of growth for the hospital.

For that reason, we are providing here a tear-off form for your convenience in making your contribution or pledge. Your gift will be greatly appreciated by all the members of the area who have worked so diligently throughout the summer on behalf of the hospital.

Reg Sharkey's Northern Journal

Autumn's last hurrah

Autumn is like an aging beauty queen. Reluctant to relinquish the vibrance of summertime youthfulness she puts on one last raiment of colorful attire before slipping into the doldrums of winter

Wildlife, too, respond to the maturing season. Avians receive their winter plumage, often changing from summer time breeding plumage to the less colorful attire of winter's dormancy. And there is a movement of some from northern climes to warmer ones

Migrating geese in undulating waves clamor their way southward shouting to earthbound humans, "Come with us-come to where there is beauty and soft warmth of southernly breezeswhere livin' is easy."

Chipmunks, those endearing woodland busybodies, have their heavier striped hibernation "nightgowns" on, and one wonders how snug they are in their underground retreats, complete with bedroom, pantry and latrine, safely ensconced from winter's frigid breath.

Big foot, the varying, or snowshoe hare, is already showing signs of acquiring a winter coat which will match the driven snow of his winter habitat.

And the least weasel (ermine,) which preys on the snowshoe hare is also taking on the rament of winter; a camouflage that helps the blood thirsty little Mustelidae catch the hare

The whitetail deer have replaced their red summer coats with the drab brownish-grey ones of winter, whose dense hollow, airfilled hair insulates them against the frigid wintery blasts as they yard in cedar swamps.

But not all of summertime's beauty is sacraficed to winters drabne

With the coming of winter some of our avian songsters that winter to the north drift southward to sources of sustainance, and we see and enjoy them at our feeders.

beautiful The evening grosbeaks, the males in their striking gold and black vesture, brighten the sunless days of winter.

Cardinals, adapting to winter's severity in this area, brighten the winter days. The males in their fire truck red vesture are like flying sparks against the driven snow

And the eternal loud-mouthed blue jays liven the winter days with their vesture and grating salutations.

So despair not. There is some beauty in wintertime doldrums.

Sunshine-filled winter days reflect the diamonds in the snow. And a brisk outing of skiing or snowshoeing invigorates and stimulates the vital juices, followed by a tot of rum and a session at the festive board makes one realize that "When winter comes can spring be far away?
