

Weather

Drivers in the county plowed through 2-5 inches of white stuff on Thanksgiving Day going to and from church and 'grandmother's house' for turkey dinner. However, most of the rest of the holiday weekend was perfect for more visiting, shopping local stores and savoring the last days of autumn. That lasted through Sunday noon. Winds changed, temperatures dropped below freezing, snow and sleet blew through the county. Late Sunday, temperatures began to rise toward 40 degrees, snow turned to slush, and residents returning from downstate trips found driving treacherous. More up-and-down weather is forecast for the rest of this week, with the first day of winter only three weeks away.

EAST JORDAN, MICHIGAN

East Jordan arranges "developer friendly" deal

BY DEB SAYGERS HOBBS
Journal Editor

The City of East Jordan will borrow from itself to provide funds for water and sewer development in a project also financed by Noirost Enterprises.

The city council hopes to cooperate with Noirost developer Bryan Noirost to help him get started on his project, a $1 million-plus complex that includes a 50-room Days Inn franchise. Similar accommodations have been made in the past, specifically in the installation of a sewer line to the Indian Hills apartment complex on Erie Street in the mid-1980s, city clerk Kathy O'Rear reported.

DPW committee chair Brian Sweet said tax abatements are another common form of help that cities often give developers. He cited the East Jordan Iron Works, among others, as the beneficiary of the practice in the past.

"This is a common practice for any municipality that desires development and growth," Sweet added.

O'Rear noted that past commercial and industrial tax abatements the city offered were through a state program that is no longer available.

The Noirost development was the subject of some controversy in August and September, when the city council decided to approve the rezoning of about 13 acres of the property from R3 (multiple residential dwellings) to commercial despite adjacent homeowner objections. The rezoned acreage adjoins the Glen's Market shopping center on South Lake Street.

The present water and sewer service in the vicinity of the property is inadequate for the projected needs of the hotel. At the Nov. 15 meeting, the city council agreed to provide an 8-inch water main and an 8-inch sewer lead extension to the property line of the development, at an approximate cost of $27,000, according to DPW committee recommendations. Noirost will be required to pay $15,200 up front, plus a $1,200 sewer tap fee for the service. The final cost to the city is estimated to be less than $15,000.

DPW committee member Greg Chappuies said he feels there is justification for providing the funds.

"It's a good investment," he said at the Nov. 15 council meeting. He predicted a return on the investment in 1995 with a projected $29,000 in taxes expected to be generated by the development. Sweet expanded the point further by stressing that the payback through utility use fees would also return the investment within two years.

"This is a relatively short payback," Sweet noted. He said the committee preferred helping with the infrastructure for just that reason, as tax abatements tend to take longer to return the investment to the city. He said this method can also often help the developer by lowering the amount of financing necessary to begin the project.

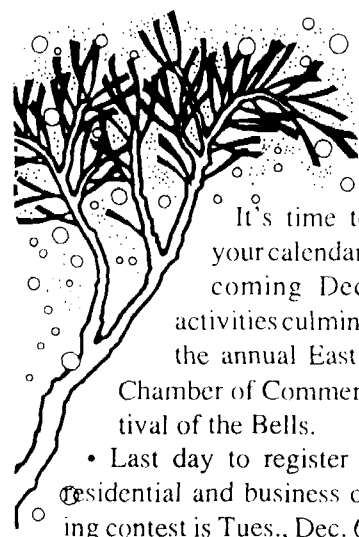

The council will finance the project through the city's rehabilitation fund. According to Sweet, the fund was originally instituted to offer low-interest loans in an effort to get businesses to renovate buildings in the city. He said in recent years the fund has been underutilized because many banks are offering similar financing deals. The fund presently has about $90,000, O'Rear said.

The city will pay itself interest of 5 percent over five years on each project. The loan payback will be budgeted into the water and sewer funds, beginning next year.

Touch of an expert

Deer processing is fast and clean when handled by the McKays. The family business just a few miles outside East Jordan is the only place in northern Michigan that completes the entire process by hand — which along with their reputation, makes their service sought after from hunters across the state. Keith McKay, shown here, demonstrates some of his technique in boning and trimming. See inside for more on the McKays.

Festival of the Bells preview

Arts Council annual Christmas show will open at 2 p.m. This year's display features crèches. The exhibit continues through Dec. 20.

At 3 p.m., the community band sponsored by the JRAC will present a Christmas concert at the East Jordan High School auditorium.

Festival of the Bells begins with the judging of business decorations, Mon., Dec. 12. The Senior Center will be open evenings from 5 to 8 p.m. for viewing the Christmas Wonderland animated characters display. Refreshments will be available.

The East Jordan Elementary School PTO will sponsor the annual Dinner with Santa, Tues., Dec. 13, at the elementary school from 4:30 to 7:30 p.m.

Community Night, Thurs., Dec. 15, will include the Santa Parade and an opportunity for children to visit with Santa and Mrs. Claus at the Senior Center, beginning at 5 p.m. The East Jordan Lionesses sponsor this annual event.

Storyteller Patty Clark will entertain children from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m., during Community Night to give parents a chance to shop locally without the kids along.

The East Jordan Police Department will hold an open house during Community Night activities, from 5 to 7 p.m. Stop by to look around and meet the staff.

The First Presbyterian Church, 207 Williams St., will present a live nativity from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m., Sun., Dec. 18. If the weather is uncooperative, the presentation will be held Wed., Dec. 21.

Look for the newest addition to our regular features — Jordan Memories — inside today's Journal!

It's time to mark your calendar for upcoming December activities culminating in the annual East Jordan Chamber of Commerce Festival of the Bells.

Last day to register for the residential and business decorating contest is Tues., Dec. 6. Entry forms are available at the chamber office, or any East Jordan FMB Northwestern or CB North bank office.

The East Jordan Garden Club will hold a greens market and bake sale Fri., Dec. 9, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the downtown branch of FMB Northwestern Bank.

Residential decoration judging will take place Sat., Dec. 10.

comment

A 1954 square dance at the high school gym (now the middle school) brought out couples from all over the East Jordan area. Happily, they took a moment from their revels to smile up for the camera, making it possible for observers 40 years later to identify some of them. Families represented on the left side of the photo are Gibbard, Clark, Van Loo, Griffin, Dubas, and Diller, while on the right side are Savory, Vance, Sinclair, Ray Olson, Bob Prebble, Bob Walker, and Norm and Jenny Bartlett.

Advice for local merchants and consumers

Each time I glance through an issue of the Petoskey News Review, it is full of letters and articles regarding the proposed Wal-Mart. Though normally not a very opinionated person, I have very strong opinions about Wal-Mart and Sam's Club, but I'll save that lecture for another time.

What I would like to address is the lesson we East Jordan merchants better be learning from all of this. Each time you read a letter from Joe or Jane Consumer they are saying they don't shop the downtown stores anyway because they can't afford them.

So many wonderful northern Michigan towns have gone the way of catering to tourists and trying to attract all the dollars they can from them, while forgetting who keeps them in business year round. We in East Jordan are going through a very important development stage right now. We need to pay attention to the cries of these consumers and hopefully make the right decision.

I am the first to admit you can't get everything you need here in town, but consumers, PLEASE, if you can buy it in East Jordan, do! Support your local chamber members. We are the ones who are here for you every day, bringing you the best product mix we can.

We are here for you in emergencies. Who are the ones who pay big dollars to have your son's ball games broadcast on the radio or to have the team's picture in the paper. We are the first ones your kids come to every time they need to be sponsored for some event. We must have your business in order to continue this practice.

Merchants, let's not get greedy. Let's continue to offer as much as we can at the fairest prices possible. Let's remember who keeps us in business year round and keep that business in town. Customer loyalty is something earned - we shouldn't just expect it. Let's never lose sight of our community. Thanks for listening.

Education

Potent weapon in fight against violence

In keeping with Charlevoix County's goal to focus priority attention to domestic violence this year, Prosecutor Richard May had a Charlevoix County Victim Advocate Sandra Ward attend a two-day session in Lansing directly aimed at educating the prosecutor's staff on domestic violence.

The Foundation for Justice Seminar, supporting Michigan's victims of crime was sponsored by the Michigan Crime Victim's Compensation Board and the Office for Victims of Crime, Office of Justice Programs, U.S. Department of Justice in Association with: Domestic Violence Prevention and Treatment Board; Governor's Task Force on Children's Justice; Michigan Coalition Against Domestic Violence; Michigan State Police; Michigan Victim's Alliance; Mother's Against Drunk Driving-Michigan; Parents of Murdered Children; Prosecuting Attorneys Coordinating Council; Save our Sons and Daughters; and Sexual Assault Information Network.

The seminar coincided with the recent National District Attorney's Association seminar on domestic violence attended by Chief Assistant Prosecutor, Mary Beth Kur. The hope is to bring as much new information as possible to the newly established Charlevoix County Domestic Violence Task Force established by the prosecutor.

May feels an established and well-known prosecution policy has many advantages to deter potential assailants and repeat offenders. Often, the certainty of application, rather than the severity of the punishment has the most deterrent effect. This again focuses on the goal to show people that domestic violence is a crime and will be treated just as any other crime, with prosecution.

The goal of the prosecutor's office is to assist victims in Charlevoix County. This goal is strengthened by continued education and allows staff members to better educate victims of crime. The victim must realize that without the defendant's conviction the assailant is unlikely to get counseling or treatment, and that without such counseling, the violence is likely to continue.

The Foundations for Justice Seminar was well attended with guest speakers: Governor Engler; State Senator William VanRegenmorter; and Dr. Marlene Young, Executive Director of the National Organization for Victim Assistance who was recently honored by President Bill Clinton for her work with victims.

school board briefs

The following business was discussed at the Nov. 21 meeting of the East Jordan School Board.

■ The board approved amendments to the 1994-95 budget including an increase in revenue of approximately $100,000, largely due to changes caused by the passage of Proposal A.

■ The final steps were taken in approval of district policy changes or additions. A policy for dealing with sexual harassment, and a non-discrimination policy addressing the disabled became official. The board also redefined the qualifications for valedictorian, making it possible for more than one student to receive the honor.

■ First readings were made public on changes in the district library board appointment process and the suspension/dismissal policy.

■ Approval for early graduation was granted to senior Kevin Bavers, who plans to attend college full time in the spring.

■ The board approved several personnel changes including an extension of hours for part time middle school mathematics teacher Matt Inman. Brad Jones and Cara Birdsall were appointed as coaches, and Gayle Roberts was appointed as a part time bus driver.

Tobacco reduction group seeks supporters

For the past two years, a Tobacco Reduction Coalition in Emmet and Charlevoix counties has been meeting and working to create a community standard that is less tolerant of tobacco use.

District Health Department No. 3 has been supportive of the coalition and recently received two anti-tobacco grants.

The coalition supports tobacco prevention and cessation efforts, and will be responsible for developing other strategies to decrease tobacco use and exposure to secondhand smoke, especially among youth.

Community leaders, business representatives, community groups, minorities, concerned individuals and youth are being sought to serve on the coalition. Anyone interested, contact Ann Smith at 616-547-6523, District Health Department office.

Family business serves hunters and needy

BY DEB SAYGERS HOBBS
Torch/Journal Editor

In the wee hours of the morning during deer season, when most of us are fast asleep, all is light and bustle at a small building on the ridge overlooking Ellsworth Road east of Ellsworth.

Deer hunters from all over Michigan and beyond know and appreciate the work going on there. It is the only place in northern Michigan Janette McKay knows of that processes deer meat completely by hand.

At McKay's Deer Processing, work begins late at night when the skinners come in. They do their job in the chilly barn, skinning at least 10 or 12 carcasses, trying to stay ahead of the efficient cutters in the cutting house. After skinning, the carcasses are washed down with a scrub brush.

Between 3 and 4 a.m., the cutters, Keith McKay, Chauncey Ingersoll and Janette's son John Sparks, and the wrappers, Janette and her sister Pat Ingersoll, come in. They are all related, by marriage or by birth, so affectionate joking and family talk mix in with the business at hand — to finish preparing at least 10 carcasses by noon each day.

Work goes fast. The men swiftly take apart the carcass with huge cleavers and knives, then get every bit of meat with small curved boning knives. Steak cuts go through a tenderizer and pieces into the grinder mixed with beef suet.

The women's hands fly as they wrap the cuts with hot plastic sheets, then a layer of paper. Each cut is identified with a stamp, numbered, and boxed. They keep a running count and include a list of all the meat to present to the owner, who Keith said can expect to receive about one third of the weight of the carcass back in meat.

"We all know what our jobs are," said Pat. "That's the best part of it being a family operation."

"Course, it takes all of us to keep each other straight." Chauncey kidded her.

Drop-off time

Around 8 a.m., the hunters start checking in. During just the first week of rifle season this year, that meant logging in 118 deer carcasses.

The check-in is very detailed. Each carcass is logged by name and date, with the sex and points of the deer, the license passbook number, and the cuts of meat desired. The list also includes whether the hunter wants the head, when the processed meat will be picked up, the amount due and payment plan. A DNR representative usually stops by once or twice every season to inspect the logs.

They've never had a citation, Janette proudly noted. They've even heard that DNR officials are recommending them to hunters.

Delivery priority is given to non-local hunters.

"Downstater don't have to wait," Janette noted, "which is one reason they like us." Locals are placed on a call list, unless the meat is needed immediately.

The log also tells the tag number assigned each carcass. That tag number is attached to every section of the deer — the head, the skin, the trays of cut and ground meat, the outside wrapping and the box the meat goes in. Everywhere any part of the deer goes, that number goes with it.

With all that information, the check-in process is understandably time-consuming.

"When you get in 30 deer a day," remarked Pat, "you can't get much else done."

Those numbers will generally only occur in rifle season — bow season brings a steady stream of customers, but without the hectic demand. But recent weeks have seen the family working until late afternoon to keep up with lucky hunters.

It's been a good year, both in deer size and numbers. Chauncey predicted passing 200 by the end of the season — 150 is more typical.

The weather this fall finally took a turn for the better, as far as the McKays and Ingersolls are concerned. Despite making their work conditions more challenging, Janette said they prefer the colder temperatures. With room for 60 deer in their cooler, without the cold the numbers of FEEDING STEAKS to the tenderizer, Chauncey Ingersoll is convinced, really improves the quality and taste of the meat.

WITH FLYING fingers, Pat Ingersoll (left) and Janette McKay make quick work of wrapping and packing the finished cuts and ground meat.

carcasses could challenge them beyond their space limits.

But it still makes for numb hands and feet in the cutting house, standing on the cement floor and working in temperatures kept purposely low with only a kerosene heater for a little relief.

"We go through a lot of coffee," admitted Janette.

Serving the community

McKay's grew from Chauncey and Keith occasionally processing venison for friends. When they acquired the old fish processing building that is now their cutting house, they decided to try the job as a business. The cooler came with the building, giving them an advantage in start-up costs.

It's been more than six years now, and they really enjoy the work despite the intensity of rifle season.

"You meet so many nice people," said Pat. "You listen to their deer stories — that's got to be done!"

Some of those nice people are also very generous. At least one or two hunters a year turn over the carcass to the McKays to distribute to those in need. Janette modestly explained the family processes the deer for free, then distributes the meat primarily to elderly people in the Ellsworth area.

The family has also been known to barter services for processing, or taking a portion of the meat as payment when the hunter can't afford the processing cost. Ribs are given away to anyone who wants them.

The word of mouth and repeat business they get speaks for the quality of their work. Regular customers include a well-known outdoor writer and several DNR officials.

The McKays process only deer or related species such as elk or antelope.

"We don't do beef or pork because it would require saw-cutting," Janette explained. "We don't like saw-cut because no matter how careful you are, bone marrow gets into the meat and gives it a taste."

Janette said all the family members enjoy venison, but usually avoid it during the season. After working in it all day, the idea of eating it doesn't really appeal.

Finally, sometimes as late as 6 p.m., the McKays and Ingersolls clean up for the night. Supper and bedtime comes soon after.

"We go to bed early around here!" smiled Janette.

Field dressing a deer

One of the most common problems the McKays deal with are improperly field dressed carcasses.

Janette McKay's advice for hunters:

- Take all the innards out.
- Be especially careful with the stomach — contents from a punctured stomach can contaminate meat.
- Prop the rib cage open with a sturdy stick.
- Wash the inside out — the cleaner the better.
- Hang the carcass, head above the tail.

The McKays obviously won't accept a spoiled carcass, but they are also reluctant to accept a skinned one. Janette said they check it over very carefully for hair, charge a higher price, or more often than not, turn it away.

Newsman finds novel new niche

BY MARY FREY
Editorial Director

Former editor and publisher Bob Eckhardt sold The Torch — Central Lake's hometown newspaper for more than 100 years — in 1991.

But that doesn't mean he stopped writing. Far from it.

Today, the 71-year-old man of words has tackled a new forum — children's literature. In fact, he's just published his first foray into that genre — Mama Bear Tells Stories to Jack & Jill.

Like its author, the result is a one-of-a-kind creation.

It's a unique coloring book that promotes a basic but important message — try to be a good person in everything you do.

Simple verses accompany each full-page illustration. Each has its own focus, reflected in titles like Truth is always best; Don't be late for school; Never swim alone; and Brothers and sisters don't always agree.

There are 21 such messages in the publication, inspired (as Eckhardt relates in the introduction) by an incident he personally experienced:

The concept of telling the Mama Bear stories occurred to me one day while eating in a restaurant and observing a couple of kiddies acting in a manner of which Mama Bear would never approve. I would suspect that Jack and Jill would never pull flowers off plants in a restaurant, and I know Mama Bear would never let them.

Also interspersed throughout the volume are "Bear Facts," informative tidbits on the bear population borrowed from Michigan Mammals.

The book is as different from the author's former specialty — editorial writing on international issues — as Central Lake is from Detroit.

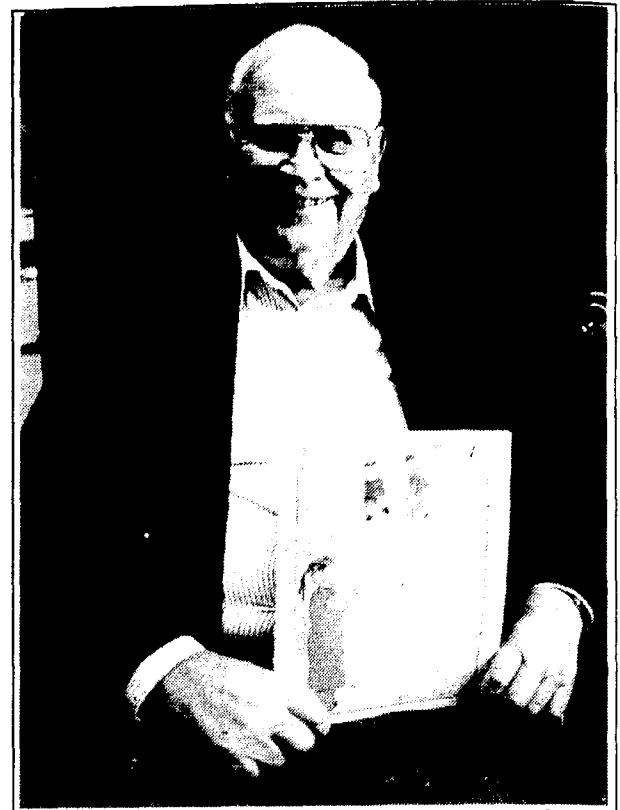

Eckhardt is the first to admit that composing verse for a coloring book might not have been his first choice, but the "excellent response" he's received from friends and retailers has convinced him it may be the most marketable.

"I would rather write about more serious stuff — the decline of modern civilization and the situation in the Far East, for example," he said. "But I suspect there are a lot more grandparents in the world who are interested in the Mama Bear message than people who care about the weightier issues."

Among those credited with helping the Mama Bear creative process are former Torch Lake cottage owner Priscilla Belden and Eckhardt's niece Phyllis Kittleson, who has numerous relatives in the Bellaire and Central Lake area.

Now that his coloring book vision has been realized, the challenge is distribution of a first-run printing of 1,000 books, Eckhardt said. While that effort is barely under way, Mama Bear has already found her way to homes in Tennessee, Indiana, Texas, Florida and Hawaii, where the reaction has been enthusiastic. And spurring dreams of broader success is the reaction of a Lansing Hallmark store, which recently snapped up a small stock of the books.

Produced by Up North Publications, Inc., Mama

AFTER A VARIED LIFE that's included occupations from logger to property tax consultant, Bob Eckhardt has launched a new career in children's literature. The descendent of Central Lake pioneers, Eckhardt served as editor and publisher of The Torch newspaper from 1984 to 1991.

Bear is also available for $6.95 at the offices of The Torch and the Antrim County News.

Additional retailers are still being sought. Interested parties can contact the author at Box 111, Lansing, Mich. 48917.

THE ILLUSTRATED BIBLE

The Battle of Pride Vs. Humility

"For every one who exalts himself will be humbled, and he who humbles himself will be exalted."

— Luke 14: 11

"Pride is hateful before God and man" it is written in the Book of Ecclesiastes. And it was just that sense of pride that Jesus denigrated in one of His parables. While it is true that we all like to reap a measure of respect for a task well done or for our mannered behavior, we must avoid such excess that can make us hateful to our fellows and to our God. A sense of humility to lighten the pride we might sometimes experience can be far more self-serving than all the boasting or trumpeting over our deeds or accomplishments. No man is that great or that complete that someone, somewhere, can't find a flaw or shortcoming to deflate such self-aggrandizement. We must remember that our virtues will be recognized and esteemed for what they are — not for what we say they are.

From Jordan Township Chatter
by Mrs. Vern Bundy
(Rosalind Westcott)

Mancelona Herald, Feb. 23, 1956

In this issue I will try to make you acquainted with the community as a whole, or perhaps I should say township, as our communities are seemingly divided by reason of our hills. There is a highland district on either side and a long broad valley district between. This is the district in which I live.

It reminds me of a gravy dish which was sent to me from Japan. There is no handle on it, but instead a lip at each end.

M-66 comes in at your end of the bowl, where it divides and the new road skirts the Hogsback range of hills all the way along the west side of the valley (or bowl), finally leaving at the north end and entering East Jordan in Charlevoix County. You can turn right at Chestonia on the Old 66 road and skirt the Bohemian hills which join the eastern side of the bowl. It also brings you out the northern lip into East Jordan.

The valley is about one mile wide at the widest point with the Jordan River flowing the full length of it.

Probably many of you are well acquainted with these facts, but to any of you who have not driven over these roads, let me tell you that the valley has very special beauty, both during the growing season and in the fall, when the hills glow with color and every road seems to call for exploration.

Have you ever sat down with an old atlas of our county (1910) and studied the old roads? Looked at the names on the old homesteads and tried to locate them on existing roads or to connect them with people now living?

I have, and to me there is as much mystery and romance to be found here as on our western frontiers.

What adventures in homebuilding they must have had, and where are they now?

Some of them are still here! We have some newer neighbors too, and some are merely visitors. Would you like to meet some of us through this column?

You might even see someone from home!!

Couple tell of Polish trip

Since 1990, shortly after the collapse of Soviet domination of Eastern Europe, the United States Department of Agriculture Extension System has held an ongoing working relationship with Poland's Ministry of Agriculture. The purpose of the cooperative effort is to provide technical assistance to Poland in its goal to move from a centralized, government-controlled agricultural production system to one focused more on smaller, private land owners.

On Thurs., Dec. 8, from 7 to 8:30 p.m. at the Elmira School, Phil and Phyllis Seitz of Iosco County will share their experiences among Polish farmers.

The couple lived and worked in Polish villages under local conditions for 18 months where Phil was a member of a two-person team working in outlying provinces with the Agricultural Advisory Services which is comparable to the Michigan State University Extension program.

The Seitzes experienced daily life in rural Poland. In the time the Seitzes were living in Poland, they observed startling progress in the economy and lifestyles of the people.

Youth work received unexpected attention and interest as Phyllis worked with the 4-H program by providing workshops and staff training in Poland's 4-H Youth Program. Following the Seitzes return to Michigan a 4-H exchange program was conducted between Michigan's and Poland's 4-H Programs in 1993 and 1994.

Seitz is presently County Extension Director in Iosco County where he has served since his return from Poland. In December Seitz will end his 22-tenion and has accepted a one year assignment in St. Petersburg, Russia, where he will work to develop an Extension-type technical and educational advisory service in that area.

The school in Elmira is just off M-32 on the west edge of the village, and the public is invited to attend. A question and answer session will be held following the meeting, sponsored by MSU Extension, 616-533-8818.

◀ Trophy buck

East Jordan hunter Larry Fay had a good day Nov. 21 when he took aim at this 11-point buck out on the peninsula. The rack spread measures 21 inches from the outside, and field dressed, the buck weighed 165 lbs. Larry has been hunting about 30 years and has been skillful and lucky enough to collect two other nearly as impressive trophies.

Until You

By Judith McNaught

Judith McNaught has written 10 novels beginning with her stunning best-seller Whitney, My Love. She has gone on to win the hearts of millions of readers around the world. She leaves no emotion untapped, no heart untouched.

Sheridan Bromleigh's early life had been spent as a happy vagabond, traveling around America with her father. Now as a teacher for wealthy young ladies, Sheridan is hired to accompany Charise Lancaster, one of her students, to England to meet Charise's fiancé.

Charise elopes with a stranger. Sheridan continues the voyage alone, wondering how she will ever break the news to Charise's fiancé. Three days later, she awakens in Stephen Westmoreland's London mansion, with no memory of who she is - the only clue is that everyone calls her Miss Lancaster.

She is living in luxury and falling in love with a wealthy handsome earl, who Until You, had remained unattached. Her life seems to be full of wondrous possibilities, until the real Charise Lancaster pays a visit, on the eve of their wedding.

Until You can be found in the new book section at the Jordan Valley District Library. Other Judith McNaught books that can be found in the fiction section are: Perfect (1993) also in audiocassette; Paradise (1991); Almost Heaven (1990); Whitney, My Love (1989).

Home Care Week sparks celebration

District Health Department No. 3, which serves the counties of Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet and Otsego, will join thousands of home care providers in celebrating the first annual World Home Care Week, Nov. 27-Dec. 3.

Proclaimed by Dr. Knight Steel, president of the World Organization for Care in the Home and Hospice, the event pays tribute to the dedicated physician, nurses, therapists, and aides who provide high-quality health care in homes around the world.

Since 1982 this celebration formally has been recognized as National Home Care Week by the President and Congress. The growing practice of home care around the world prompted Steel to expand the observance internationally.

"In addition to recognizing our talented home care professionals, World Home Care Week will address the widespread need and preference for home care services around the world," Steel said. "As global populations are discovering ways to live longer, it is important to identify the tremendous role home care plays in treating the acute illness and chronic diseases that accompany aging."

District Health Department No. 3 will celebrate World Home Care Week by hosting the annual health care luncheon for staff, local case managers and other referring agencies at Stafford's Bay View Inn on Thurs., Dec. 1.

It's time to begin making all those delicious holiday treats, but wait - if you plan to make your cookies with margarine instead of butter, there is something you should know. For best results, use stick margarines containing not less than 60 percent vegetable oil. Margarines with less fat have high water content and that results in droopy cookies!

Also, avoid margarines labeled diet, whipped, liquid, or soft as they are meant to be used at the table, not in your delicious cookies.

If you use stick margarine containing 100 percent corn oil, it will produce a soft cookie dough, so you need to adjust the recipe chilling instructions. For shaped or sliced cookies, chill the dough in the freezer instead of the refrigerator. For rolled cookies, refrigerate the dough at least five hours or freeze for two hours before rolling.

Peppermint Pats

- | | |
|--------------------------------------|------------------------|
| 3/4 c. butter or margarine, softened | 1/4 c. sugar |
| 1 large egg | 1 tsp. vanilla extract |
| 1 tsp. peppermint extract | 2 c. all-purpose flour |
| 1/2 c. crushed hard peppermint candy | Sugar |

Beat butter at high speed with an electric mixer until soft and creamy. Gradually add sugar, beating well. Add egg, beating well. Stir in flavorings. Gradually add flour mix well. Stir in crushed candy.

Shape into 1-inch balls and roll in sugar; place on ungreased cookie sheets.

Bake at 350° for 15 minutes. Remove immediately from cookie sheets, and cool on wire racks. Yield: 4 dozen.

Fruiteake Cookies

- | | |
|--------------------------------------|------------------------------------|
| 1/2 c. butter or margarine, softened | 3/4 c. sugar |
| 1 egg | 1/2 c. milk |
| 2 tbsp. orange juice | 1 tbsp. vinegar |
| 2 c. all-purpose flour | 1 tsp. baking powder |
| 1/2 tsp. baking soda | 1/4 tsp. salt |
| 1/2 c. chopped walnuts | 1/2 c. chopped candied mixed fruit |
| 1/2 c. raisins | 1/4 c. chopped dried pineapple |
- Powdered sugar

Preheat oven to 350° F. Grease cookie sheets. Beat butter and sugar in large bowl until creamy. Beat in egg, milk, orange juice and vinegar until blended.

Mix in flour, baking powder, baking soda and salt. Stir in walnuts, mixed fruit, raisins and pineapple.

Drop tablespoon-size rounded dough two inches apart onto prepared cookie sheets.

Bake 12 to 14 minutes until lightly browned around edges. Cool two minutes on cookie sheets. Remove wire racks, cool completely. Dust with powdered sugar.

Store in airtight container. Makes about 2 1/2 dozen cookies.

Nothing tastes better than a homemade cookie warm from the oven. We wish you much success in your holiday baking; next week we will give you some tips on storing cookies to keep them at their peak of freshness!

Winter events listing offered

Do you know of a winter event (Jan. 1 through March 31, 1995) in Antrim or Charlevoix counties that would be of interest to the general public? Then get the basic information to any Up North Publications office immediately!

We'll print all possible events on a first-come, first-served, space-available basis in our popular annual salute to the snow season: Winter Up North. Non-profit or community-enhancement activities will receive priority treatment.

There is no charge for this service - but you must act soon! Simply jot down the basics (who, what, when, where, why, how much and a phone number if appropriate) and include a daytime (not for publication) phone number in case of questions.

Mail your message to the Antrim County News, P.O. Box 337, Bellaire, Mich., 49615 - or drop it off at our offices in Mancelona, Elk Rapids, Central Lake or East Jordan no later than Fri., Dec. 9 at noon.

Apply for homestead exemption

Homeowners who owned and occupied their homes prior to May 1, 1994 and did not previously apply for the Homestead Exemption on their school operating tax may submit an application to their local unit of government in time for the December Board of Review. The exemption will be granted to qualified homeowners and will apply to all regular school operating taxes for the tax year 1994.

The exemption allows owner-occupied property (principal residence) to be taxed at 6 mills for school operations instead of the 24 mill tax on business and non-homestead property.

In some communities, there are additional "harmless" mills and/or "enhancement" mills that will be added to the 6 state mills for homeowners.

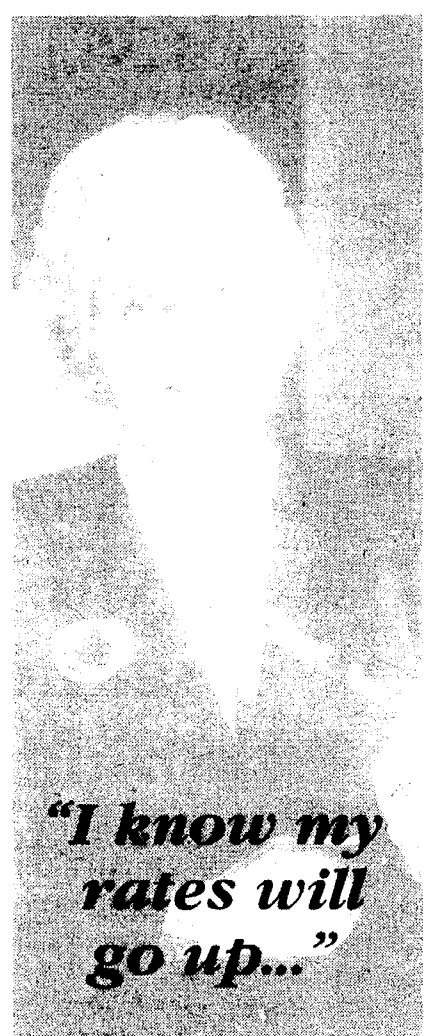

If a homeowner has paid the non-homestead school operating tax rate in the summer, the excess tax paid will be applied to the homeowner's winter tax bill or refunded by the local unit of government.

Qualifying homeowners should check with their local assessor's office to determine the deadline for application in each local community.

Introducing the...
Your Way CD

FMB's new Your Way Certificate of Deposit (CD) gives you great yields guaranteed for the next 24 months, with the freedom to withdraw your money every six months.

When you invest $1,000 or more in a Your Way CD you'll know in advance what your yield will be for the coming two years. But if you're not happy with your yield - or if you need your money for any reason - every six months you'll have ten days to withdraw your money without a penalty.

The longer you leave your money in a Your Way CD, the better your yield will be. The combined annual percentage yield for a 24-month term is 5.93%, effective 11/17/94.

For more information on FMB's new Your Way CD, or any other investment choices, visit or call your nearest FMB office today.
