

Weather

The unseasonably balmy temperatures backed off a bit last week, but remained above normal for mid-March. Following early-week readings in the mid-70s, daytime highs dropped to the mid-50s, with nighttime lows in the 30s. No snow fell in the past seven days, leaving year-to-date totals at 130.5 inches. All activity has moved off the lakes, which are showing water around the edges. Some snow remains in wooded areas; even that should disappear temperatures return to the 50s by the end of the week. LAST YEAR: Eight additional inches of snow brought totals to 169 inches by March 21. Highs were in the mid-40s.

Voters say no to new school

BY DEB SAYGERS HOBBS
Journal Editor

Like voters in many other area districts this year, the people of East Jordan have said no to the dream of a new middle school.

With over 1,200 people coming out to vote on the rainy Monday, the margin was relatively slim - 641 against, 577 for - the construction of a new middle school and renovation of present facilities at a cost of $5.3 million over the next 15 years.

A charter for the future

The proposed city charter includes many changes, some minimal and some radical. See back page for details.

The lack of support for the new building doesn't change the overcrowding problem East Jordan schools face.

"There's no question that we'll see continued growth," said disappointed district superintendent Chip Hansen, adding that the school board will resort to more drastic efforts to save space.

Hansen said programs such as art and music will be on carts instead of in classrooms, and portable classrooms will be necessary beginning in the 1996-97 school year at both district complexes.

Hansen promised another attempt to win voter support for new construction.

"It's incumbent on us to keep pace with the growth of the community," said Hansen. "The board and the facility review committee will go back to the drawing board on this issue."

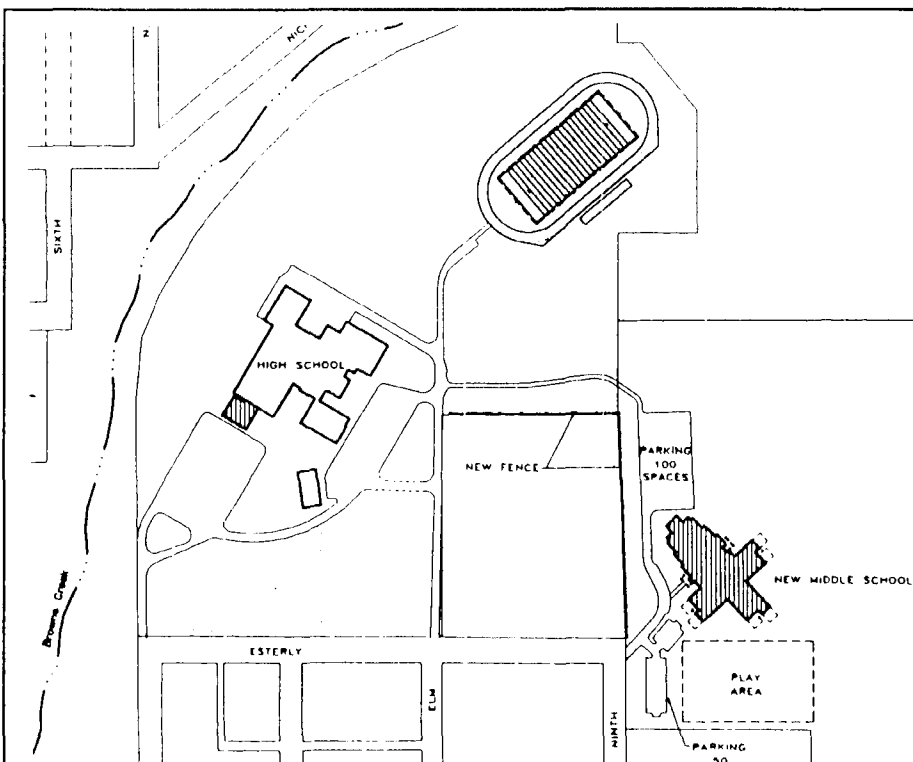

Hansen noted the costs of the project will only go up.

"This was the ideal time for construction," said Hansen. "The same project will cost more the next time around."

EAST JORDAN VOTERS said no March 20 to this dream for a new middle school near the present high school, as well as to renovations for existing facilities. The school board promises it will go back to the drawing board.

Sax Says...

By Gayle B. Saxton

At the turn of the century and until the mid-1920s, logging was the very life blood of northern Michigan. The lore of the lumberjack is almost forgotten as modern means of harvesting the forests have taken over.

Today's chain saws, heavy equipment skidders, loaders and trailer trucks have made a great deal of change in the industry. Only an occasional logger is to be found these days in northern Michigan. Gone are the railroads, banking grounds and saw mills that were so prevalent in the by-gone area.

As a young lad growing up in East Jordan, where there were two saw mills, a shingle mill and a flooring plant, I was privileged to mingle among these hearty souls, the lumberjacks, who wore bib-overalls and hobnail boots. As a kid I can remember my grandpa giving me a chew of red mule chewing plug, making me feel that I was a pretty rough character. This changed considerably when my dad found out my tobacco chewing episodes.

From time to time my dad served as a jammer operator, top loader, skidder, scaler, banking grounds supervisor, boarding house proprietor, cook and teamster. Of all the jobs he had, he liked being a teamster the most, for he loved horses.

A teamster worked six 12-hour days a week, and in addition had to care for his team on Sundays. He was up at 5 a.m., fed his team, had breakfast, grabbed his dinner pail and was on his way to Camp Nine, 27, or some other number, for most camp were known by their numbers. Two trips a day kept the teamster on the go, hauling sleds piled several logs high. In those days, many of the logs measured two to three feet in diameter.

The teamster generally arrived back at the barn well after dark, went home for the supper meal and came back to the barn to feed his team and bed them down for the night.

It took a rugged individualist to be a teamster. You may think he would look forward to the summer months, when he was assigned to a saw mill, but not so. The teamster for so loved his horses, and hated to be separated from them.

Those of us who lived during the lumber era have many fond memories of the lumberjacks. Tall half-rotted stumps dot the countryside of northern Michigan. They are about the only evidence of that era, but in my mind the lumberjack portrayed the "he-man" of my youth.

We can be thankful for such pioneers, who hewed out the forests, making it possible for farming and communities. It's a good thing that lumberjacks used huge cross-cut saws rather than the chain saws of today for the period was too short-lived as it was.

At the end of the lumbering days, my dad had only a letter of recommendation for his many years of service to the lumbering company. He treasured the letter until his dying day, for it read in part, "the bearer was a loyal, hard-working individual".

East Jordan native Gayle Saxton has been writing, reporting, and broadcasting sports for many years. Now a retired educator in Houghton Lake, "Sax" will share his memories of East Jordan and his many friends through this column in future issues of the Journal.

Support Drug Free program

The purpose of this letter is to inform our community that the House Appropriation Subcommittee recently signed a bill to terminate Drug Free School and Communities Funds and it is now on its way to the Senate.

In 1986 Drug Free Schools Act was born with the addition of Drug Free Schools and Communities Act in 1988. This act requires school districts to provide drug education to our children, develop policies for both the student and employee, form an advisory council, student intervention programs (commonly referred to as Student Assistance Program); and parent and community programs which include parenting and drug free activities.

Traverse Bay Area-ISD fulfilled a contract with our local schools from 1988 to October, 1994. In October, Char-Em ISD formed a separate DFSC consortium pursuing compliance of federal laws mandated for school systems. This DFSC Consortium consists of 18 school districts, both public and private.

The Drug Free Schools and Communities Act seeks to educate all students K-12 every year, and empower communities to take an active role in addressing alcohol and drug issues. I realize that we are only beginning, however the progress that we have made since October '94 is monumental compared to previous years.

If you would like the opportunity to continue the progress, we need your voice immediately. You can take a stand in fighting for our children today and our future tomorrow by calling Congressman Bart Stupak (202) 225-4735; Senator Spencer Abraham (202) 224-4822 and Senator Carl Levin (202) 224-6221. Make sure these people know that you are opposed to the elimination of the Drug Free Schools and Communities funds.

If you would like additional information regarding Drug Free Schools and Communities you can call me at (616) 547-1144.

March 1

A semi-tractor trailer driver ignoring the red light at the intersection of M-66 and M-32 resulted in the injury of a Central Lake woman.

Betty Jordan was injured at about 1:54 p.m., when the truck driver, Edward Wiseley of Bancroft, disobeyed the traffic signal, and proceeded through the intersection into the path of Jordan, who was driving a 1983 Chevrolet station wagon.

Jordan, who was not wearing a seat belt, was transported to Charlevoix Area Hospital by the East Jordan Ambulance, and later transferred to Northern Michigan Hospital in Petoskey.

March 7

Icy conditions contributed to a property damage accident on S. Lake St., about 3:40 p.m. Nicholas Swanson was traveling south on S. Lake in his 1986 Ford and was rear-ended by a 1983 Toyota driven by Patricia Shattuck as he slowed to make a right-hand turn on to Huron Street.

Both drivers were wearing seat belts and no injuries were reported.

March 8

Two drivers collided in a driveway at 500 Echo St., about 4:30 p.m. Nancy LaBeau entered the driveway in her 1988 Chrysler when William Dunson backed his 1989 Chevrolet pickup into LaBeau's vehicle.

A 1987 Chrysler belonging to Alexander Salinas was struck in the passenger side panel by an unknown vehicle while parked at East Jordan High School about 10:30 p.m.

March 11

At approximately 2 p.m., Sandra Clark, driving a 1994 Chevrolet van, collided with a 1983 Chevrolet station wagon driven by Matthew Daneff as Clark was backing out of a parking space on Main St. near Mill.

March 13

A two-car property damage accident involving a 1991 Chevrolet driven by Kathleen O'Rear and Lillian Bennett, driving a 1990 Chevrolet occurred on Water St. near Lake at about 5:15 p.m.

struck from behind by Bennett. Both drivers were wearing seatbelts and reported no injuries.

At approximately 6 p.m., Clifford Mayhew reported his parked 1994 Buick was struck in the rear by an unknown vehicle.

Coast Guard offers boating classes

Boating Skills and Seamanship classes will be offered by the Charlevoix Coast Guard Auxiliary at Petoskey High School beginning Tues., March 28. Session will meet on Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 7 until 9 p.m. Tuesdays a basic course will be offered, and Thursdays will feature more advanced subjects.

Students may take only the basic classes, or both for $22, which includes a manual and a student guide. Topics covered will include such areas as boat handling, safety and legal requirements, navigation rules, marlinspike (knots) and weather.

Michigan has more registered boats than any other state, and the number increases each year. With the waters becoming more congested, it becomes even more urgent that all boaters should seriously consider taking the course to help insure their own and their passengers' safety.

Operators of personal watercraft (e.g. jet skis) should also acquaint themselves with Michigan law and safety regulations. Both the law and the Coast Guard consider them boats; and, as such, they are required to follow normal regulations for water safety. Many insurance companies offer a discount in boating coverage to those who have successfully completed this course.

For more information call Nedina Wiltjer, 347-0737, or Roger Tyrrell, 536-2417.

Poison Prevention Week March 20-26

A caretaker may be distracted for only a moment. An elderly person takes his heart medication, in a dark room, not wearing his glasses. A child reaches inside a purse and swallows two little red pills she finds. A curious toddler drinks from a soda bottle on the kitchen counter only to discover it is a household cleaner. These are just a few of the accidental poisonings that can be prevented.

The Regional Poison Control Center at Children's Hospital of Michigan received more than 70,000 calls for help in 1993. "Everyone must take a responsible role to ensure a safe environment for our children, the elderly, co-workers, other family members, friends and neighbors," according to Dr. Ralph Kauffman, director, pharmacology/toxicology at Children's Hospital of Michigan in Detroit.

The Poison Control Center offers these tips:

- Rinse out containers thoroughly before disposing of them.
  - Keep emergency numbers including the Poison Control Center, (313) 745-5711, near the phone before an emergency arises.
  - Always keep on hand a one-ounce bottle of ipecac syrup for each child and call the Poison Control Center or your physician before using.
- During the National Poison Prevention Week, March 20-26, investigate your home for potential danger. For a free room-by-room check list on how to prevent accidental poisonings, send a stamped, self-addressed business envelope to the Regional Poison Control Center, Children's Hospital of Michigan, 3901 Beaubien, Detroit, Michigan 48201.
- Keep all medicine in child-resistant packaging and locked up.
  - Do not take medicine in front of children.
  - Do not call medicine candy.
  - Clean out old medications regularly and flush them down the drain.
  - Leave the original labels on all products and read the label before using.
  - Avoid bringing unnecessary toxic substances into your home.
  - Store cleaning supplies out of sight and reach of children.
  - Do not store medicines, cleaning agents or pesticides near food.
  - Keep all products in their original containers.

Nearly new prom dress sale in Ellsworth

It's the annual springtime dilemma: You want your daughter to look like a princess at her prom - but you don't want to spend a king's ransom.

Thanks to some innovative local thinking, you now have the opportunity to do both - at the first Nearly New Prom Dress Sale.

High school girls and their parents are invited to stop and shop for still-great-looking prom dresses and accessories at much more reasonable prices. Bring your dress, shoes and other items priced to sell, and pick up something different for this year's prom.

Held at the town hall on Center Street in Ellsworth, the sale will be Wed., March 29, from 3 to 7 p.m. For more information, contact Mary Peterson at (616) 588-6041.

The sale is sponsored by the Banks Township Community Center.

Jaycees sell discount cards

The East Jordan Jaycees are selling the Jaycees Gold Card, a card offering discounts on 15 area restaurants, merchandisers, Raven Hill Discovery Center, and the Jordan Valley Express.

Most of the discounts are for food and goods in the East Jordan area, although some Petoskey and Charlevoix businesses are included.

The card offers a discount for specific items at every visit throughout the year, until March 1, 1996. It can be purchased from any Jaycee member for $5.

Bodem serves as delegate

Gov. John Engler has appointed state Rep. Beverly A. Bodem as one of 17 Michigan delegates to the White House Conference on Travel and Tourism, scheduled to convene Oct. 30-31 in Washington, D.C.

Bodem, who chairs the Michigan House Tourism and Recreation Committee, said the landmark event will help federal and state officials develop a strategy to lead the industry into the next century.

"It's important that our country increase its share of the international tourism market. Considering Michigan's location, it has tremendous potential and we must pursue such growth," said Bodem, R-Alpena.

Nine key travel issues on which the conference will focus are product development, promotion, infrastructure, barrier reduction, training, research, technology, traveler safety and environmental concerns.

Before the White House meeting, delegates from many states are scheduling local conferences to gather testimony from those involved in travel and tourism. Bodem, a member of the Task Force on Environmental Concerns, has participated in a statewide series of hearings convening throughout the winter.

"The natural and cultural environments of many tourism destinations are part of the tourism industry's major assets," she said.

Bodem said Michigan is taking important steps to save these locations. Last year, she led a statewide effort to create the Genevieve Gillette State Parks Endowment Fund. The fund was a key part of Proposal P, which was overwhelmingly approved by voters in November.

"Without proper preservation of state parks and other natural areas, travel to these communities may decline. We have a responsibility to protect and ensure the appropriate use of these treasures. That's one of the messages I'll be sharing in Washington," Bodem concluded.

Anyone wishing to express a viewpoint on Michigan's travel industry can contact the lawmaker's Lansing office at 1-800-29-BODEM.

jordan memories

Naming the Jordan River

As he sat, leaning against a large elm tree, sometimes in prayer, sometimes in meditation, Amos Williams fell asleep. A bearded man with an old knit cap pulled in front of his face, Amos was a preacher who traveled with his trusty horse Annabelle.

Amos had to stop due to the thick fog and dangerous terrain. As he sat he remembered the previous night and the sound of rushing water that lulled him to sleep. Amos vowed that he would find the mysterious sound of water. When he awakened the sun had burned away the dangerous fog and it was safe for him to go on.

As Amos came over the hill, there before him was the most beautiful stream he had ever seen sparkling and splashing in the sun. Buttercups and evergreens lined either side of the stream, while fallen logs made little eddies and whirlpools with a whispering roar.

The crude map which Amos was using showed no stream, so, being a man of God, he scrawled in the name The River Jordan.

The year was 1856, and Michigan was only 20 years old. Our country was young and in the throes of growing pains. Franklin Pierce was president, and three states had seceded from the union. There was much trouble throughout the south over slavery. Here in this quiet peaceful valley God seemed very near.

Throughout the years the river has kept the name, however, townspeople have changed it to the more casual Jordan River. It is still one of the most beautiful spots in Michigan.

THE ILLUSTRATED BIBLE

The Lord Loves All

"The compassion of man is for his neighbor, but the compassion of the Lord is for all living beings."

Ecclesiasticus 18: 13

Ecclesiasticus — or as it is also known, the Book of Sirach after its author, the Hebrew scribe Joshua ben Sira (Jesus the son of Sirach) — appears in the Apocrypha, that selection of religious texts which somehow fall into no decided category within the framework of the Old and New Testaments. The meaning of the texts, however, is no less clear or explicit. As Joshua notes, the love of the Lord God is all-encompassing. Just consider your own likes and dislikes, not only among people but among the creatures of the field or the plants of the earth. Naturally, no one will make claim to a universal delight in everything, yet these are all things of God's own creation, things and beings which He has nurtured and which He holds dear. Consider yourself fortunate that humans are among the recipients of God's favor.

East Jordan Jaycees honored

BY DEB S. HOBBS
Journal Editor

The East Jordan Jaycees are having a very good year, and they are reaping the rewards of hard work in many ways, including recognition at their quarterly state conventions.

The leadership organization for people ages 21 to 39 is very goal oriented. Goal setting for both the individual and group is the theme of the organization. Organizational guidelines in individual and community development, as well as management and membership development help direct the focus of the activities, but from there each chapter is free to meet the guidelines through its own creative energies.

The East Jordan Jaycees excel in both defining and accomplishing their goals.

The chapter has qualified a number of times as one of the top ten chapters in the state in meeting their goals, and was named number eight at the February state convention in Battle Creek. That qualification came on the heels of another state award in November, the Presidential Award of Honor. Only three of these awards are given quarterly throughout the state, and are a recognition of achievements in the chapter's general programming.

The chapter's "All-Wheel Drive Extravaganza" at the Jordan Valley Express in November was named the "Best of the Best" at the state level in management development. The group's individual development projects were also recognized as among the best in the state.

At the district level, the East Jordan chapter received the "Go Get 'em Award" for the best recruitment record in northwest lower Michigan. The chapter recently passed Petoskey with the largest membership in the region, with 53 members in only four years of existence.

The chapter will also receive an award for its work in developing the Elk Rapids Jaycees, a newly-formed chapter of 20 that the East Jordan group were central in establishing.

The list of honors doesn't end there either. The group received a service award in community development for their many projects, including Community Pride Week, the Belle of the Blizzard and Winter Knight contest as part of the Sno-Blast, participation in the Freedom Festival and a new project discouraging youth smoking.

Even the youngsters accomplish their goals — six children of Jaycee members were awarded certificates for the special activities of the Junior Jaycees. Children as young as three years old can participate and receive recognition, as did Michael Bo Cardwell, Shayler Coulters, Aaron Hughes, Jaymz Hughes, Matthew Pater, and Zachary Pater.

With all these honors, it's not surprising Jaycees president of the board Russ Peck is looking forward to the next quarterly convention. Peck said the May convention will be especially exciting because it will take place at Boyne Mountain, right in East Jordan's backyard, and the East Jordan chapter will be acting as hosts, along with the rest of the region chapters.

The East Jordan Jaycees are open to new members, age 21 to 39, interested in individual development and community service. Contact Russ Peck, 536-7513, for further information.

JAYCEE HONOREES Russ Peck (left), LeeAnn Hughes, and Cheryl Drewanz show off their certificates of honor. Each was recognized for service to the community and the organization.

Jaycee members in the limelight

The East Jordan chapter of the Jaycees is well-honored, but it is the individuals of the chapter that make it so.

Three of those individuals have been especially recognized for their work, receiving special awards at the last two state conventions.

Both Cheryl Drewanz and LeeAnn Hughes were honored as the regional Jaycee of the Quarter; Drewanz in November at the state convention in Troy, and Hughes at the February state convention in Battle Creek.

Also in February, Russell Peck was named the Outstanding Young Governmental Leader of the year at the state level. Presently East Jordan's mayor, Peck has been involved in local politics since age 19, and was elected mayor in 1989.

Peck sees his role in developing pride in the community as especially important, and he takes part in many activities to promote that spirit, especially in the spring during annual Pride Week.

Peck was introduced at a special dinner along with other honorees at the convention, and received a plaque and special certificate of commendation from Governor Engler. He was also honored with a Presidential Medallion from Linda Nelson, 71st President of the Michigan Jaycees, the highest honor bestowed on an individual — 50 are awarded in the state annually.

Strep throat back in town

Cases of strep throat have been reported to the district health department.

A person with strep throat may have any of the following basic symptoms: fever, sore throat, enlarged and inflamed tonsils, swollen and red throat and tender and swollen lymph nodes in the neck area. High fever, headache, nausea, vomiting and collapse may accompany severe infections. Sometimes you can have a rash which is often mistaken for another illness such as roseola or measles.

Untreated people may develop middle ear infections, mastoiditis, throat and neck abscesses, pneumonia, and skin infections. Other serious problems are heart (rheumatic fever) and kidney disease and rarely, toxic shock syndrome.

The health department urges parents to contact their family doctors if they think their children may have strep throat. Individuals given an antibiotic must complete the full course of therapy, even if they feel better in a few days.

Children should not return to school, day care or nursery setting until at least 24 hours after beginning antimicrobial therapy, and until they are free from fever.

Tuning in for alien life

Star map for around 8 pm in mid-March. To use this star map, face south and hold it high in front of you.

For the past 35 years, radio telescopes have searched the sky, listening for possible radio broadcasts from intelligent forms of life on other planets, according to University of Michigan astronomer Richard Teske.

No conclusive evidence for radio signals of artificial origin has yet been found, but occasionally the sensitive radio receivers used in the search register unusual bursts or radio "noise" that have no known explanation.

In March, Michigan skywatchers can view some of the sky locations from which the signals were detected (they appear as small squares on the star map).

Radio technology is the best way to detect signals from distant civilizations. Stars, planets and most other natural sources of radio emission in the sky produce very weak signals, Teske explained. Artificial radio emissions are expected to be stronger than these cosmic sources and could be detected against the faint natural background noise.

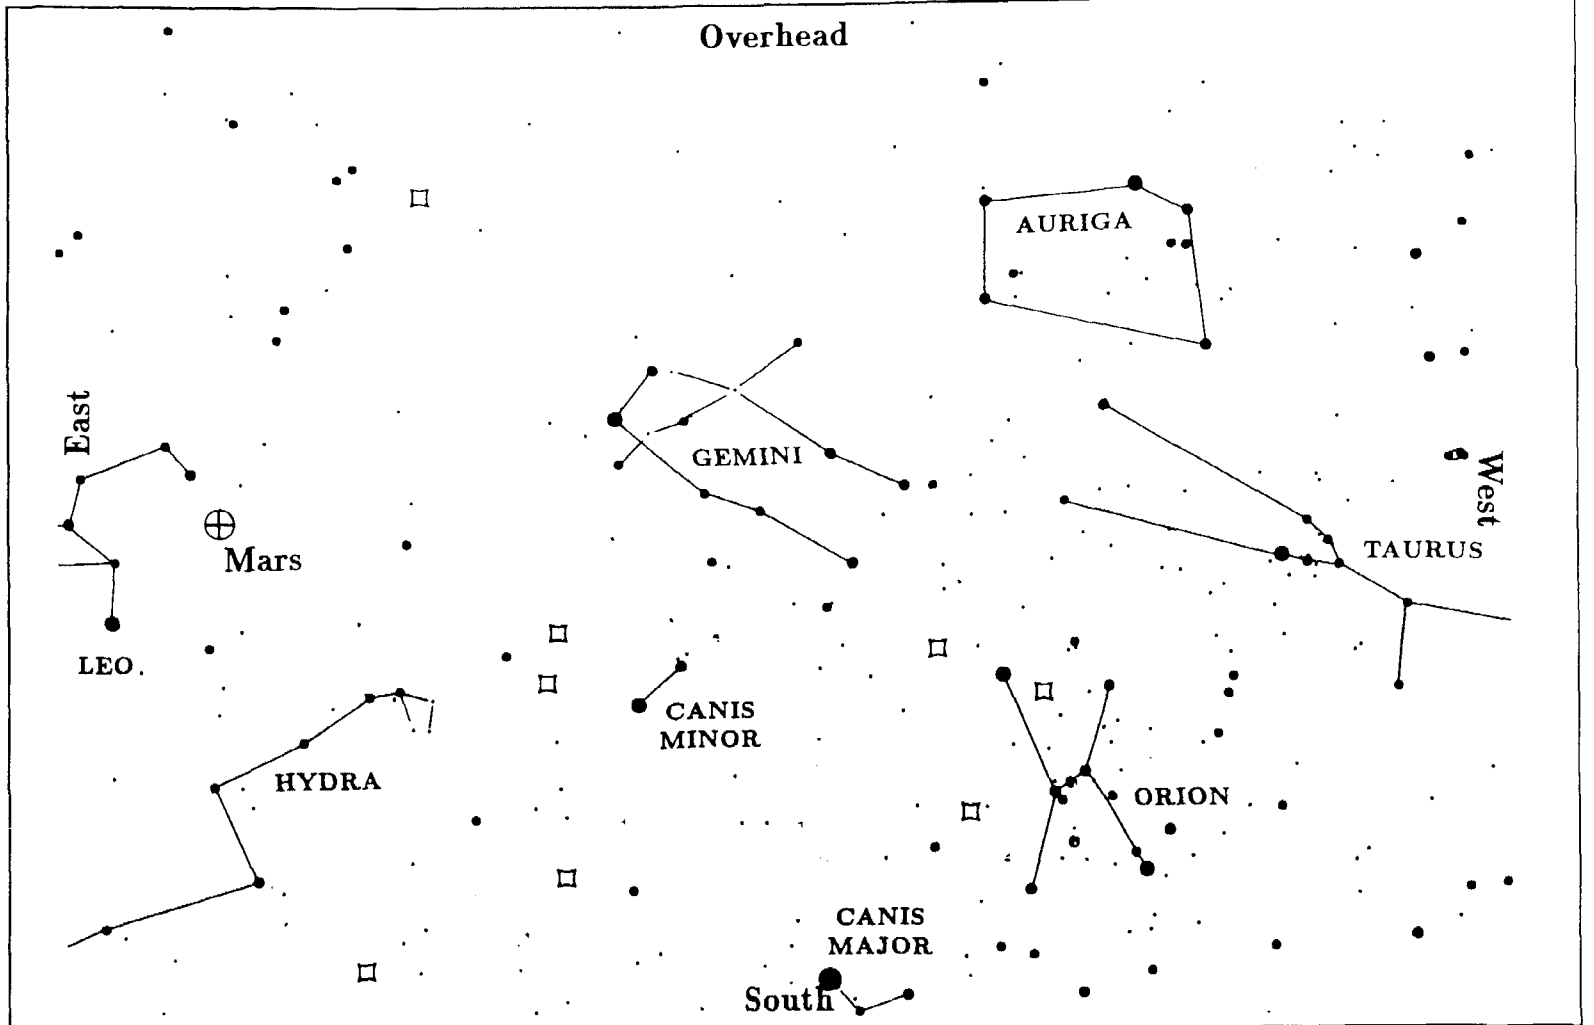

Scientists seeking faint and distant radio whispers from other civilizations use sophisticated techniques designed to minimize false alarms while maximizing the probability of detection, Teske said.

The sensitivity and sophistication of search techniques have improved dramatically since the first attempts 35 years ago. A single radio telescope now sifts many millions of radio channels simultaneously for evidence of artificial signals, and does it all day and night, automatically.

"These telescopes can detect a radio emitter with the power of a one-watt Christmas tree bulb at the distance of the planet Pluto — four billion miles away," Teske said.

Recently, scientists Paul Horowitz of Harvard University and Carl Sagan of Cornell University reported on five years of a project called META, which scans northern hemisphere skies for signals characteristic of an intentional, artificial radio beacon.

"They covered the part of the sky visible from Massachusetts three times at two different radio frequency bands, and stated, "We have not found convincing evidence of radio signals of intelligent extra-terrestrial origin," Teske said. "They noted, though, 37 one-time instances of reception, out of sixty trillion collected and tested, of a signal with the characteristics they were looking for.

"Upon numerous attempts to re-observe the 37 unusual signals, Horowitz and Sagan were unable to tune in on even one," Teske said. "They believe that no known cosmic process can account for the 'hits' registered by project META's equipment, but because the signals have never been repeated, the radio events can't be assigned an artificial origin, either.

Instead, the 37 'blips' must be considered by science to have been caused by some freak radio interference or other anomaly. Drs.

Horowitz and Sagan optimistically leave this door to detection open a crack, though, when they declare they have not found 'convincing' evidence." The positions from which the META signals might have originated are scattered all over the sky and show no obvious pattern. Eight of the locations are visible in March's evening sky in Michigan, according to Teske.

Red Devils fall in regionals

BY S.F. PUCKETT
Sports Writer

Coach Del Ingalls was concerned about the height advantage of the Rogers City Hurons, and for good reason; they used that height and some inside scoring to overcome the Red Devils in regional tournament play March 14.

East Jordan tried to outshoot the Hurons, and with Steve Wiltfong, Andrew Otis and Mike Newkirk trying their best, the Red Devils closed a 21-point deficit to nine midway through the final period.

That, however, was as close as they could get. The Hurons shrugged off the come-back attempt, pounded the ball inside as well as anyone has all year, and by the final buzzer had collected a 78-58 win.

The game completed the careers of senior starters Karl Redmer, Steve Wiltfong and Mike Newkirk, as well as Kirk Falco, Yaro Middaugh and Nate McWatters.

Rogers City won the regional, with a 20-point victory over Benzie Central March 16.

STATE HISTORY

Emigrants' map touted virtues of Michigan

There's no unfolding or attempting to refold "Farmer's Map of Michigan" while traveling the westward route. In fact, there aren't any routes drawn or pictured in the 1831 pocket-sized pamphlet.

But there are descriptions of the various types of terrain, settlements, villages, rivers and coastline of the Michigan Territory before it became the 26th state admitted to the Union.

Farmer, a Detroit resident and surveyor and preparer of "maps," had to issue a second edition of his original 1830 publication. He estimated 15,000 people moved into the territory in 1830 and expected double that number in 1831, adding to the already 35,000 people living in Michigan.

Farmer's "map" — one of the holdings in the University in the University of Michigan's Clements Library — divides the Michigan Territory into plains, opening, and prairies, all inviting adventurous people of western New York and the New England states to establish new homes to the west. The plains were described as containing some timber, but with no underbrush. They "wear the aspect of a cultivated forest," Farmer wrote.

The openings were just that, open land with patches of woodlands. And the prairies were described as having a heavy growth of grass and being free of timber. There were two types of prairies, according to Farmer, the dry prairie with rich soil and the wet prairie which he mentioned would be good for planting early pasture and as being excellent for growing hay.

"The prevailing wind is sweet," Farmer wrote, describing the same wind in winter as being "quite piercing." Considerable snow falls, he told his readers, but, "nevertheless, the area is favorable to wheat, rye, potatoes, and turnips."

Farmer gives a county-by-county description of the territory with populations, what will grow in each area, descriptions of the towns, the kind of timber found, and comments on the rivers. He predicted that the area watered by the Grand River, (the six or seven thousand square miles from Grand Rapids to Grand Haven with fertile soil and what Farmer called "a good and safe harbor") would "become one of the most important sections of Michigan."

"Wild land" in Michigan in 1831 was selling for $1.25 an acre for "ready" cash. It came with, Farmer wrote, "an indisputable title direct from the United States, under the seal of the President."

This was not the only publication about Michigan Farmer had on the market. This one, however, sold for six cents. His "Map and Gazetteer of the Surveyed Part of Michigan" sold for $2 and his "Gazetteer and Map of Michigan and the Contemplated Territory of Ouisconsin or Huron" sold for $3.

This Michigan History column is made available by the University of Michigan.

HOME HEALTH director Nancy Bottomley, RN, observes while Connie Mahoney, RN, pays a visit to Frances Durance in her Charlevoix home. Frances, about to celebrate her 102nd birthday, is one of many to benefit from the services commended in the accreditation process of the District Health Department #3 Home Health Care Division.

Home health services accredited, commended

Full accreditation with special commendations has been awarded to the Home Health Division of District Health Department No. 3 by the Community Health Accreditation Program, Inc. (CHAP), a division of the National League for Nursing.

The Home Health Division of the Health Department provides a full range of health care services, from nursing to IV therapy, rehabilitation to recovery services for home bound people, from senior citizens to newborns.

CHAP especially commended the Home Health Division for "providing quality services regardless of ability to pay."

According to spokespersons for CHAP, this accreditation "ensures that the care you are receiving is the best you can get."

"CHAP accredited organizations earn this gold seal by providing high quality care and having the financial resources to maintain a high level of quality."

CHAP's standards for accreditation meet or are higher than all government requirements for Medicare certification, according to the organization's literature.

Accreditation is only awarded after an exhaustive study of the agency and a complete review of all its practices, which includes unannounced visits.

"Accreditation tells our clients and their families that they are receiving the highest quality care in their homes and that our services are recognized and reimbursable by such insurers as Medicare, Medicaid, and Blue Cross-Blue Shield," according to Nancy Bottomley, R.N., Adult Health Services director.

Some 62 nurses, therapists, social workers, nutritionists and other health care professionals make up the Home Health Services Division. They work directly with a client's personal physician as well as the family to provide the best possible care for people in the comfort of their own home.

"It is well known that people get better quicker and are able to live independently for a longer period in the comfort of their own home," noted Bottomley.

She explained that while the majority of the Home Health Services clients were home-bound older adults, the services are available to people of all ages.

"A client may be an older adult who is recovering from a stroke, an auto accident victim who needs physical therapy at home, a newborn with special needs, someone dealing with a serious illness such as cancer who needs IV therapy, or a person with diabetes who needs help as they learn to manage their condition," the director explained.

"Our staff works as a team, constantly assessing how we can better serve our clients."

The team work of the Health Department's Home Health Services was commended by CHAP as one of its "organizational strengths."

"One of the first things we do for a client is assess their needs so we can provide all the help they might require and want in order to live the highest quality life at home."

Helmets offer biker safety

With spring just around the corner, bike riders will be jumping at the chance to ride on clear streets and sidewalks. Biking has become a popular pastime in recent years, whether just casual riding or serious trail riding.

Bikers of all ages need to be aware of biker safety, especially the importance of wearing helmets.

In 1993, 804 bicyclists were killed in bicycle crashes, mostly involving motor vehicles. Head injuries are the most serious injury type and is the most common cause of death among bicyclists. For survivors, even mild and moderate injuries can be disabling and long-lasting.

Thirty-eight percent of bicycle deaths involve riders 15 or younger. The death rate rises rapidly beginning at about age 6 and is highest among 11- and 13-year-olds.

Helmets provide an extra measure of safety for all riders. Parents should be especially adamant about their children wearing safety gear when riding.

It is still possible for biking to be a fun and safe pastime. Remember to wear the proper safety equipment, and make sure to wear a helmet at all times.

Diabetes outreach network launched at area meeting

Complications of diabetes, including hospitalizations, amputations, and death, can be dramatically reduced through direct education of both patients with diabetes and health care professionals, according to Michele Bonneville, RN, MSN, CDE, from Burns Clinic.

Bonneville and other regional health care professionals are part of the Advisory Council which helped launch TIPDON (Tip of Michigan's Diabetes Outreach Network) at an organizational meeting Feb. 28 in Gaylord.

The area was also represented by Peggy Spang, RN, CDE, Charlevoix Area Hospital; Mary Sciamanna, LNP, and mother of a child with diabetes, Petoskey; Mary Ward, RN, MS, Northern Michigan Hospitals; and Kaye MacMillan, RN, District Health Department #3.

TIPDON, which will coordinate this work in 28 Northern Lower Peninsula counties, is modeled on the highly successful Upper Peninsula diabetes outreach program, UPDON (UP Diabetes Outreach Network).

Since 1986, UPDON has seen dramatic reductions in complications from diabetes and has measurably improved the quality of life for thousands of people, according to Mary Snitgen, RN, UPDON director.

A major main goal of this program is to identify people who are at risk for complications from diabetes and provide them with both education and higher standards of care, explained TIPDON Director Ann Scott, RN, MSN.

Educating both patients and health professionals is crucial, Scott told the gathering.

"People with diabetes need specialized care for such conditions as hypertension, eye disease and foot care. Patients, physicians, and nurses can benefit from the up to date information this project will provide."

Complications for diabetes have caused thousands of hospitalizations, amputations, and deaths in this region in the past year, the project director revealed.

These concerns will be TIPDON's focus during its first year, Scott explained.

Funding for the diabetes outreach program comes from the Michigan Department of Public Health and the Healthy Michigan Fund. The increase in tobacco taxes, which were part of the Proposal A tax reform, passed by voters last year, help underwrite the project.

District Health Department No. 3 was awarded $165,000 to oversee the project in the 28 lower peninsula counties.

"Similar diabetes outreach coalitions are in the formative stages in other regions of the northern lower peninsula," Scott noted, but TIPDON is the first to begin work by forming this advisory council."

Winter bald eagle survey results reported

In response to a publicized request from the Department of Natural Resources, 541 volunteers contacted the DNR to report sightings of bald eagles during the annual mid-winter bald eagle survey in January. According to the DNR Wildlife Division, which conducts the survey, these volunteers reported a total of 751 sightings in 66 of Michigan's 83 counties.

Sightings in local counties included: four sightings in Antrim County, two sightings in Kalkaska County, 11 sightings in Charlevoix County and 13 in Grand Traverse County.

In the Upper Peninsula, volunteer counts came from 15 counties and included a total of 302 adults and 37 immature eagles. In the Lower Peninsula, counts from 51 counties produced a total of 351 adults and 61 immature eagles. Many of the sighting reports also included information on eagle activities, such as feeding locations and food consumed.

"Many of these bald eagles which are winter residents also nest here. Their opportunistic behavior found them feeding, resting and roosting at different water-associated sites and even on animal carcasses on highways," said Eve Rolandson, the DNR's Nongame Education/Promotion Specialist.

"This reflects their adaptability to human-induced changes to their habitat, and this also presents management challenges," she said. "As development occurs, bald eagles require greater protection due to changes in their habitat, environmental contaminants and reduced food supplies."

Michigan's mid-winter eagle survey was coordinated through the Wildlife Division's Natural Heritage program using Nongame Wildlife Funds. This survey continues to provide a valuable source of information for inter-agency management of the bald eagle, which is federally and state listed as a threatened species. The DNR thanks all those who so generously gave their time to help with this project.

Remember to "Look for the Loon" on your state income tax form and support the Nongame Wildlife Fund. Your help will keep the eagles soaring in Michigan skies.

KIDS' WORLD

SPOT CHECK! Two stacks of cards are placed on the table. "Pick a card from this pile, remember its value, and place it in the other pile," says the magician. At which point he or she searches through and finds your card.

Secret: In advance, prepare the piles as follows: All odd cards — ace (counted as a "one"), five, jack, king, etc. — are contained in one pile. All even cards — queen, ten, eight, etc. — are contained in the other. Thus, any non-conforming card is easy to spot.

HEAR THIS! Empty wagons make the most noise, says an adage. Here's another, in a similar vein: Alte rail issa idandc one, mor eiss aidthand one. Rearrange spacing for sense. Time limit: 2 min.

QUICK DRAW SHOWCASE

HOLD THAT POSE! A certain creature is putting on a show above. To catch the act, simply add lines in accord with letter-number coordinates.

Start at F-11, draw a line from there to F-8, to C-8, to C-11, to F-11.

Draw from F-11 to H-10, to F-6, to E-8.

Start again, draw from I-11 to L-9, to K-6, to G-3, to G-1.

Draw from B-8 to E-5, to E-3, to G-1.

Use a sharp pencil, draw straight lines.

Be sure to draw lines in accord with letter and number coordinates.

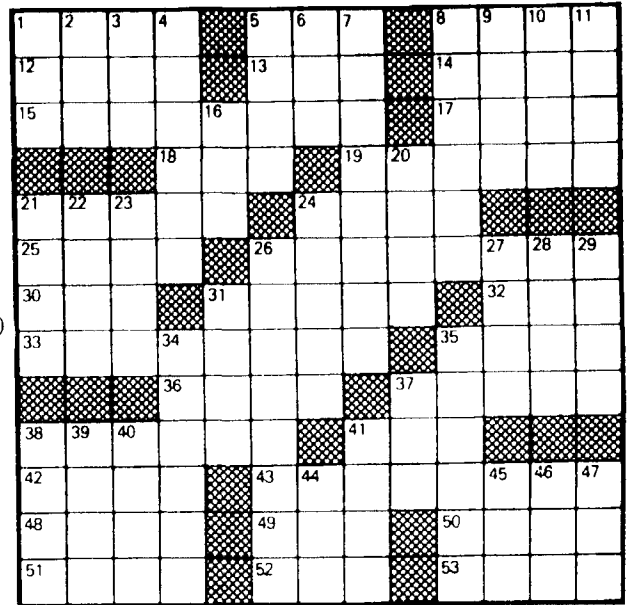

Add colors later, if you wish.

FLIPPIN' OUT! Our gymnast pal does some fancy twists and turns before landing on his feet. Can you trace his route?

New city charter one step closer

BY DEB SAYGERS HOBBS
Journal Editor

At a quiet public hearing at City Hall, March 14, the charter commission fulfilled another obligation in its effort to revise the East Jordan city charter.

There were no remarks from the few in attendance. The proposed charter has the support of city agencies, the Chamber of Commerce, and now has the approval of the governor's office, as well as the state attorney general.

With the public distribution of the entire document through City Hall and the East Jordan Journal during the first week of April, everything will be in place for the special election, Mon., April 24.

But commission members won't just be sitting around waiting for the election. They are working hard to continue to educate city residents on how the charter will effect them and why the commission thinks voters should say yes.

Commission chair Tom Sheridan said several service organizations have invited members as speakers. Commissioners will be available to explain the details right up to Election Day. They are Sheridan, Dorothy Archer, Ray Fisher, Joe Hammond, Dennis Jason, Jeanette Norton, Harry Pearsall, Connie Roberts, and Jack Vincent.

A charter for the future

The proposed city charter includes many changes, some minimal and some radical. Following are some details.

- ⊖ Mayor elected annually from within council membership by council members at the first organizational meeting after general elections; has one vote on council; serves as representative of the city
- ⊖ All city voters elect seven council members for 4-year terms
- ⊖ Seven member council oversees policies, ordinances and city manager
- ⊖ City manager administers all departments; executes policy directions of council; keeps council advised
- ⊖ Each city resident has seven representatives on council

Trudeau joins advertising staff

A new Up North Publications, Inc. advertising representative is serving the East Jordan, Ellsworth, Charlevoix area.

Shawn Trudeau took over the territory from Cyndi Husted March 20, allowing Husted to concentrate her own sales efforts nearer her Kewadin home.

An Ellsworth resident for the past nine years, Trudeau brings a potent combination of familiarity with the area and past sales experience to her new position.

"I can sell anything I believe in, and before I ever applied for this job, I believed the East Jordan Journal was a very good paper," Trudeau said.

The parent (along with husband Arthur) of four daughters, Trudeau is already familiar to many area residents as the Sunday School teacher for East Jordan's Evangelical Lutheran fifth- and sixth-graders.

When she's not on the road, clients will find her at the Journal's downtown East Jordan office Mondays, Thursdays and Fridays from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

"I'm really looking forward to this experience," Trudeau said. "I love working with people, so this type of work is just right for me."

Mailbox need a face lift?

It usually stands only about three feet tall, doesn't complain about standing in freezing rain or scorching sun, and doesn't talk, but helps you communicate with the world. Also, it can add beauty to your home, but in many instances is taken for granted and suffers from neglect.

Give up? Of course, it's your mailbox.

When was the last time you took a good look at your mailbox? Could it use a little sprucing up? Well, this is a good time of year to rectify the situation.

Regardless of the degree of attention you might wish to give your mailbox, the Postal Service offers a few tips: Make sure it can protect your mail from the weather, is neat in appearance, is conveniently located, and can be safely opened and closed by you and your letter carrier.

Don't put flowers or other plants around your mailbox because they may attract bees and other insects, creating a potential safety hazard. Non-flowering plants or artificial flowers are good alternatives. In addition, make sure your street number is clearly displayed.

Contact your post office to get information on recommended placement of curbside or rural delivery mailboxes.

New foundation officers named

The Charlevoix County Community Foundation has a new president for 1995. Vel Kammermann, partner in the CPA firm Mason & Kammermann, has been chosen to lead the organization during this year. Kammermann takes over for retiring president Scott Beatty, who served in that post since the foundation began in 1992.

Vel Kammermann

William Sherman, president of Burnett Foods, has been named corporate secretary for the foundation. Other officers who will continue in their positions are Vice President Mike Stowe, CEO of Industrial Magnetics, Inc., in Boyne City, and Treasurer William Lorne, vice-president for administrative affairs at the East Jordan Iron Works. Sherman and Lorne were re-appointed to three-year terms at the last meeting of the Board of Trustees, along with Lou Hollow and Scott Beatty.

"The Charlevoix County Community Foundation could never have come this far without the vision, dedication, and capable stewardship of our trustees," said foundation executive director Robert Tambellini. We're really fortunate that these busy people have chosen to take time to serve our organization." Tambellini praised outgoing president Scott Beatty's leadership, calling it critical to the foundation's success.

Started in 1992 by a group of civic leaders, the Charlevoix County Community Foundation receives charitable donations and manages them in a permanent endowment. Interest income on the endowment is used to fund a variety of projects in the area. To date, the foundation has given more than $95,000 in grants and scholarships to young people and non-profit groups in the county. A board of trustees, made up of 15 volunteers from throughout Charlevoix County, guides the foundation.

Did you know?

Environmental experts are trying to make people realize the true value of trees to the environment. For example, an acre of trees can absorb the carbon monoxide generated by a car driven 26,000 miles. Michigan farmers plant thousands of trees each year and maintain millions of mature trees in private woodlots.
