Board attempts to change opponent's road name

BY KEITH MATHENY
Contributing Writer

"This is harrassment. There's no need to do it, and nobody's requested it be done."

That's what Jim Galbraith had to say when he learned the Jordan Township Board had voted to change the name of the short two-track road he lives on - Galbraith Road, named after him.

Galbraith is the unofficial head of the Jordan Township Citizen Committee seeking to recall township supervisor Joseph Haney, Sr., clerk Leona Stanek and trustee Lucille Lercel - three of the board's five members.

He and other township residents learned of the road name change when the minutes of the regular May 22 meeting were read and approved at a special meeting June 5. Stanek said a motion by trustee Darwin Morris to change the name of the road had passed unanimously.

Contacted later, Morris said he did not recall making any such motion.

"Leona had said there were some residents on the road that wanted the name changed, and there was some discussion that the road may have had a name a long time ago," he said. "I think it was unanimous that we would look into if it used to have a name."

The road became Galbraith Road about three years ago, when addresses throughout the county were realigned for a possible 911 phone system. Jim and his wife Sue were the only residents living full-time there.

"We didn't ask for the name - the county road commission gave it to us," he said.

A second family has since moved into a full-time residence on the road, and several people own undeveloped parcels along it.

Galbraith's reasons for not wanting the road name changed are not egotistical. He runs a commercial photography business out of his home.

"I have more than $1,000 worth of forms, labels and stationary that say 'Galbraith Road' on them," he said.

"Her minutes, a lot of times, don't read like what went on."

Jordan Township Trustee Darwin Morris, on township clerk Leona Stanek

Morris said the more he thought about even researching the possibility of a new road name, the less he liked the idea. Alleged complaints by fellow landowners on the road cited by the clerk seemed less and less a legitimate reason for a change, he said.

"I don't think there's any reason for Native Americans celebrate their heritage

BY DEB SAYGERS HOBBS
Journal Editor

The exhilaration of the hunt ... the habits of the crow or fox ... display of a lovely new shawl ... retrieval of a lost eagle feather ...

All these stories are told in the majestic styles of dance unique to North American native cultures. And all are an integral part of the Anishinabe Inter-Tribal Council's Day of the Eagle Pow-wow, the annual East Jordan event every first weekend in June.

Born of a need to gather together peoples dispersed by the white settlement, the pow-wow is the one constant source of cultural continuity for members of the First Nations.

Pau-wau, meaning medicine man or conjurer, was misconstrued by Europeans to be a gathering. They observed the resident pau-wau frequently surrounded by the villagers seeking healing.

Now borrowed back from the English word, the pow-wow has become a weekly event where native Americans meet to share the bond of heritage.

East Jordan is just one stop. The pow-wow circuit extends throughout North America and occurs every weekend in the year.

To the uninitiated, dancing may seem to be what the pow-wow is about. Indeed, the songs and dances are spectacular, energetic, and creative.

The aggressive rhythms flow from the air and ground, through the body. Finally they force even the most hesitant observers to begin to sway, move the feet, and even join the dancers in the ring.

But there is a pervasive spiritualism that soon becomes evident. All events

City administrator search narrowed down to nine

A field of 56 applicants interested in serving as East Jordan's first city administrator was rapidly whittled down to nine candidates for the position.

Those nine have been interviewed by phone and if there is still a mutual interest, will meet with interim city superintendent William Hughes and Boyne City manager Randy Frykberg in a panel interview.

Hughes reported the progress at the June 6 meeting of the city council. Although Friday, June 9, was Hughes' last official day as a city employee, he said he will continue with the interview process as long as his time allows.

After the panel interviews, the full city council will interview the final three or four candidates. The council hopes to conduct these meetings as early as this week.

EAST JORDAN middle schooler Misty Callaway and friends were among the traditional dancers at the Day of the Eagle Pow-wow.

DANCERS FROM across the state took part in the variety of dances at the pow-wow. Because many are sacred spiritual ceremonies, photographs are not always allowed, but this men's special was an exception.

Because they divide, subtract officials

Voting citizens of Jordan Township will decide June 29 if supervisor Joseph Haney, Sr., clerk Leona Stanek and trustee Lucille Lercel will continue to sit on the township board.

The three officials' questionable actions are rather well-known by now. More important, we think, is the pattern of decision-making by the board members.

Jordan Township residents are frequently divided on issues, a situation that may intensify as population balances shift with the continued influx of non-farming residents into the township.

Arguably, the changing face of Antrim County is being seen and felt more here than anywhere else, and more of the same can be expected.

Staring into the face of such change requires a township board to provide wise guidance and strong direction. A board must lead the way in promoting a sense of harmony and conciliation among the township's increasingly diverse interests.

Joe Haney, Leona Stanek and Lucille Lercel have done none of the above. Indeed, they have acted to promote discord, mistrust and a further widening of factions.

The firing of longtime assessor John McDonald, only a month after the state ruled he had done a good job locally, seemed less an act in the township's best interest than punishment for criticism of the three officials' and review board's transgressions.

No reason was ever given to inquiring residents for McDonald's dismissal. However, the review board members — whose actions raised agricultural taxes — were praised for "finally doing something," and given new terms.

Blood drive response valued

Editor:

Three cheers for East Jordan!

On behalf of the many patients we serve, the American Red Cross would like to thank the people of East Jordan who helped with the recent blood drive which was held May 30 at the Harvest Barn Church. We collected 60 much needed units of blood, which helped greatly replenish the supplies after the Memorial Day weekend.

Under the direction of Linda Chase, the Methodist Women's group did a great job of organizing the blood drive and we are grateful for everyone who either volunteered their time by making phone calls, working at the drive, providing refreshments or, of course, by donating blood!

East Jordan's humanitarian spirit is both valued and appreciated!

editorial

This month, the board appointed a new firm from Gaylord to do assessing — for nearly $2,000 more per year than McDonald. Is that acting in the best interest of taxpayers?

Perhaps most outrageous is their most recent action — trying to change the name of Galbraith Road, which happens to be named after Jim Galbraith, a leading proponent of the recall drive (see article in today's paper).

This feeble attempt at revenge, at the expense of rational local government for all, shows the board members take political matters personally. It may also prove the assertions of former treasurer Laura Stanek (who quit when she'd had enough of this board's actions). One reason she cited for her resignation was that board matters seemed to be decidated before and between meetings.

Haney, Stanek and Lercel have even attempted to punish the Antrim County News and East Jordan Journal for "bad press," and "inaccuracies," and "not telling the whole truth."

Repeated attempts to contact these board members during the past half-year for news stories on even the most routine township matters have met with derisive comments and terminated con-

Anti-blight ordinance mulled by Jordan Township board

JORDAN TOWNSHIP – Repeated disregard for the township anti-blight ordinance by some property owners has the board discussing whether to reword the ordinance to make it tougher on violators and easier to enforce.

Fathers and sons

While having coffee and doughnuts one morning last week, I saw a refreshing incident. I happened to be sitting with a father and his son, a middle school student, and when the son got up to take off to school, the dad said, "Have a good day son." The son stopped, came back, patted his father on the shoulder and remarked, "You too, Dad."

This incident reminded me of the fact that I spent most of my two sons' earlier years with other people's children as a coach. One morning my wife asked at the breakfast table if I realized that I was spending far more time with other children than I was with my own.

As I look back now, I am thankful that soon afterwards I gave up coaching, as much as I loved it, and spent time with my sons before they got away from me.

I realize now that I short-changed my sons from their father's company. And the pity of it all is there was no way to make it up to them.

Children grow up all too fast and get away from you almost before you know it. Fathers should spend more time with sons. How much time have you spent with your sons lately?

Recently I came across an article by a writer who made a survey of a group of college freshmen at one of our larger universities. From the survey came the fact that approximately 95 percent of the boys' fathers had not averaged five minutes a day with their sons during their senior year in high school.

I want to add that as a former educator of 40 years, I can't tell you how important it is that fathers read to their sons when they are pre-schoolers. All the reading of childhood books shouldn't be left up to mothers. Fathers might find the reading designed for your children's world might be of interest to you.

Take time to be with your boys, fathers – and don't neglect your daughters either.

Because they divide, subtract officials

versations. Apparently it's easier to slam the press and slam down the phone than it is to explain irrational actions truthfully in a public forum like this newspaper.

The board even pulled its public notice ads from the Antrim County News. They're now being published in the Petoskey News-Review, which must be purchased daily if residents want to make sure they catch all of the notices.

Paving roads and collecting property taxes are not a township board's only duties. The problems in Jordan Township are to an extent due to these three officials, and it's now apparent the solutions to the problems do not lie with them.

To begin the process of getting everyone working harmoniously toward the future betterment of Jordan Township, this newspaper supports the recall of Joseph Haney, Leona Stanek and Lucille Lercel.

"We need something with bite," supervisor Joseph Haney, Sr. said at the board's May 22 meeting.

A property owner on M-32 between Marsh and Korthase roads was cited by board members. He allegedly has more than 20 junk cars on his property, and repeated requests by former ordinance enforcement officer Tim Morris to have the property cleaned up have gone unheeded. Morris resigned from his post in April.

The original anti-blight measures were adopted six years ago.

"When that ordinance was first put into effect, there was only a straw vote here in the township hall of about 20 people," said resident Charles Stanek (husband of clerk Leona Stanek) from the audience. "The whole township should have voted on it."

Resident Brian Meads said the board should be careful to see that enforcement does not involve litigation.

"If we start having a bunch of lawsuits to get these cleaned up, we'll never get the coffers filled," he said.

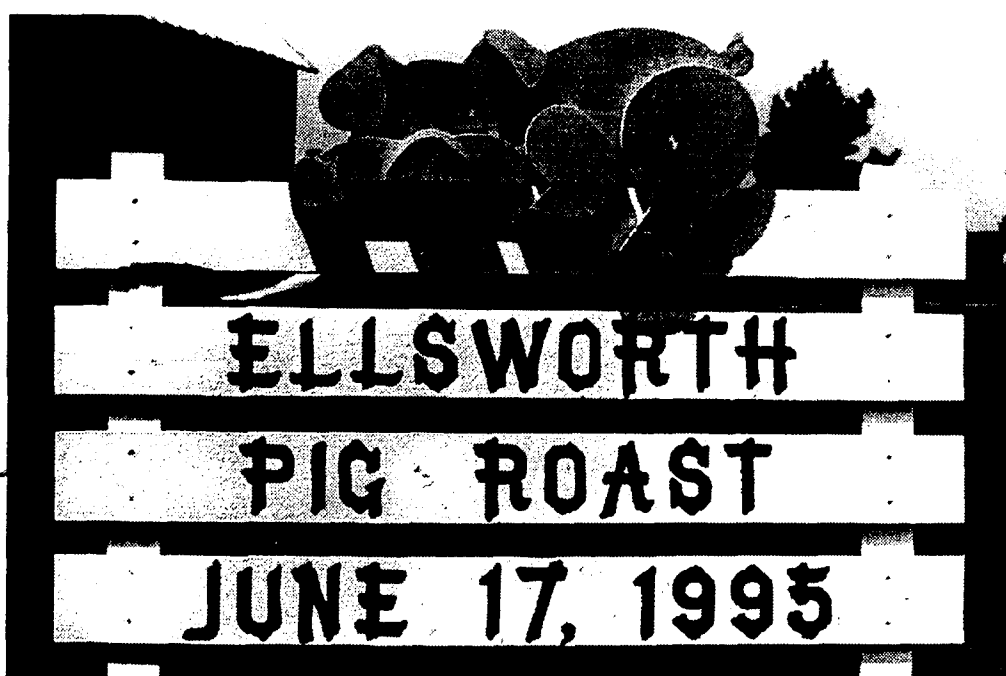

The board decided to have township attorney Jim Young explore rewording the ordinance, perhaps through examining those of other municipalities.

"There has to be a township out there that's been through this and solved it," Haney said.

Any new ordinance would be voted upon by residents as a ballot question at a future election, the supervisor added.

The next meeting of the Jordan Township Board is scheduled for Mon., July 24, at 7:30 p.m., at the township hall on Mt. Bliss Road.

Freedom Festival events planned

Organizers are gearing up for the Jordan Valley Freedom Festival. Events and entertainment are scheduled throughout the weekend of June 29 through July 2, and include two parades and a fireworks display.

• Don't forget to purchase a festival badge - or risk getting thrown in jail! Festival "police" will be looking for those unfortunates not wearing their festival badge, and will escort them to "jail" until the criminal bails themselves out by buying a badge!

All proceeds benefit the festival, and the badges can be purchased at many East Jordan businesses and the Chamber of Commerce office.

• Fund-raising efforts in support of the fireworks continue as the date nears. Canisters for contributions of money or Glen's receipts can be found at various business locations around town, or donations may be sent to the Jordan Valley Freedom Festival, P.O. Box 435, East Jordan, MI, 49727.

• The Festival 500 drawing will also benefit the festival, with all proceeds going to festival expenses. Each $5 earns a chance for the $500 grand prize or 10 $50 prizes. Contact chamber board or Freedom Fest board members to purchase tickets.

• Grand Parade and flea market openings are still available. Contact Jeanette Norton at 536-2400 for applications.

Care and Share needs help

The East Jordan Care and Share Emergency Food Pantry is having an emergency of its own. The organization is servicing an unusually large group of families in need this season, and is experiencing a rapid depletion of supplies.

The pantry especially has need for canned goods (commercially canned only,) soap, tissue and other sundries. Donations of money are always appreciated.

Although non-perishable foods are preferred, the pantry can handle some frozen foods, and will distribute produce and other perishables as well.

To help, contact the pantry at 601 Bridge St. (lower level of the health center,) or call 536-2206.

Massage therapy

The Northern Michigan Hospital - Burns Clinic Foundation is offering the Art and Science of Massage Therapy, a one-time free lecture and demonstration, June 28, in Petoskey.

Bring a spouse, friend or significant other to learn how massage therapy can benefit your physical and mental health. You'll learn basic techniques of head and neck massage, so remember to wear comfortable clothing.

Instructor is Renee Allen, M.A., from the Burns Clinic Health and Fitness Center at Boyne Highlands.

Correction

The East Jordan Garden Club Farmer Market will not be open Fri., June 30, as reported last week. It will begin Fri., July 7, from 8 a.m. to noon, at the FMB Northwestern Bank parking lot in downtown East Jordan.

Church sponsors free comic strip

The Harvest Barn Church of East Jordan, along with Northern Christian Radio, is again sponsoring a free, non-denominational, Christian comic publication.

The comic Strip Cardinal Adventures celebrates its fifth year of publication this summer by expanding from eight to 16 pages, and featuring a special guest-star. Christian super-agent, Captain Al Scabbard, will join forces with the strip's title character, the Cardinal, in this special issue.

Scabbard is the creation of Christian psychologist and author, Dr. Larry Crabb. Dr. Crabb is the author of such books as Inside Out and God of My Father, and director of the Institute of Biblical Counseling in Morrison, Col. He has been a guest several times on "Focus on the Family," with Dr. James Dobson, a radio program featured on Northern Christian Radio.

Cardinal Adventures is an annual publication, drawn in a newspaper Sunday comics section form. The comic is drawn by Gaylord artist Kurt Kolka as a hobby. Copies of the latest edition are available next to other free literature at Jordan Valley Pharmacy and Carey's Corner Market, East Jordan; and Central Lake Pharmacy and Central Food Center, Central Lake.

Harvest Barn Church is the comic's largest church sponsor and is located on the corner of Third and Nicholls. Rev. Kimon Criner is pastor of the growing congregation. Northern Christian Radio, WPHN, broadcasts on 90.5 FM.

Circus coming

The Charlevoix JayCees are sponsoring an appearance by the highly acclaimed Walker Brothers Circus, Sun., July 2, at The Castle Farm Community Center of Charlevoix on M-66. There will be two shows, one at 2 p.m., and one at 4:30 p.m.

The Walker Bros. Circus is the only totally brand new circus in America, and features elephants, horses, ponies, dogs, thrilling aerial acts and, of course, funny clowns.

Adults can help the projects of the Charlevoix JayCees and The Castle Farm Community Center, and save $2 by purchasing your tickets in advance for $6. Tickets for children under 12 are free. For more information call Norman Carlson (616) 547-1938.

Family Fun Day planned in Bellaire

Family Fun Day will be held June 29 at Craven Park Fairgrounds, Bellaire. It is sponsored by Antrim County Michigan State University Extension, with support from the Antrim County 4-H Leaders Association, and The Antrim County Child Abuse and Neglect Council.

It is a day planned with activities for the entire family to enjoy. There will be door prizes donated by local merchants, a barbecue luncheon provided by Michigan State University Family Nutrition Program and featured programs and events throughout the day.

One featured event is the Great Northern Reptiles Show. It consists of a 45-minute lecture showing approximately 30 different animals, including turtles, tortoises, frogs, toads, salamanders, several snakes and an alligator. Children and adults will learn the role these animals play in our environment and their importance.

Native American storytelling told by Carlo Carlino of the Grand Traverse Band of Ottawa and Chippewa Indians is another feature. There will be a variety of other activities as well, including crafts to create, games, and a petting zoo.

For more information, call Antrim County MSU Extension at (616) 533-8818.

THE ILLUSTRATED BIBLE

God's Plan Cannot Fail

"...for if this plan or this undertaking is of men, it will fail; but if it is of God, you will not be able to overthrow them." — Acts 5:38-39

Gamaliel, the Pharisee who spoke those words when Peter and the apostles were charged before the Sanhedrin for preaching the word of Jesus, was aware that a wait-and-see attitude toward the new teachings would either discredit or vindicate them. He was wise enough to recognize that if it were God's wish that the teachings Jesus had given His followers were accepted by the people to whom they were passed on, then nothing could interfere with divine might. Not many persons so readily make the distinction between the plans of God and men. It is an egotistic conceit that men feel they can best guide their destiny when example has proven that nothing can run counter to God's plan for the world and the people He created. ©1995 by King Features Synd.

Non-development mineral lease offered for cemeteries

Citizens and board members in Jordan Township wouldn't be caught dead drilling for oil and gas on township cemetery properties.

That sentiment was made clear at the May 22 township board meeting. However, because a mineral extracting firm is willing to give them money for their mineral rights without drilling there, the board voted to sign a non-development mineral lease at a special meeting June 5.

The township will receive a one-time bonus check of $50, plus monthly royalties based on the acreage involved and the number of producing wells in the gas development 'unit,' which also includes other nearby properties. Six units currently exist in the township.

Board members said they expect royalty amounts to be only a few dollars per month.

One reason cited for consideration of the proposal is the belief that no drilling can be done within a cemetery.

"You can go to jail for digging in a cemetery (illegally)," resident Al Chanda said from the audience at the May meeting.

Township clerk Leona Stanek concurred.

"They (the cemeteries) will never be touched," she said.

Graveyards in question include one on Morris Road, one on the corner of Stanek and Marsh roads, and a third on Mount Bliss Road, according to township trustee Darwin Morris.

Rick Scott, leasing properties for Oilfield Investors Ltd., said he believes cemeteries are considered "dwellings," thereby requiring pipelines and wells to be at least 200 feet away.

"We can't run a pipeline through a cemetery," he said. "There's no way. We can't do anything."

Oilfield Investments spokesman Dan Crawford subsequently confirmed Scott's assertions.

Why is the company offering money for property they can't use?

"The state requires that we try to lease everyone in our mineral units," Crawford said.

"This money won't build too many roads, but it's ours if we choose to take it," Stanek said.

Contractor gets nod on school upgrade

An East Jordan firm will oversee a multi-million dollar upgrade of some of Elk Rapids School District's buildings.

business up north

The Elk Rapids Schools Board of Education awarded the general construction contract for additions to the high school and Lakeland Elementary at a special meeting June 1.

Petrie Construction submitted the winning low base bid of roughly $4.30 million for the project.

As general contractor, Petrie will be responsible for the building of a multi-purpose room at Lakeland, along with the construction of classrooms, locker rooms, a multi-purpose room and a new auditorium at the high school.

The East Jordan builder is no stranger to the Elk Rapids school construction scene - Mill Creek Elementary was another Petrie project.

Last December, school district voters authorized the purchase of $5.65 million in bonds to fund the construction and related costs.

Also submitting bids were Comstock Construction, Grand Traverse Construction, Hallmark Construction and RCL Construction.

EAST JORDAN artist Marion MacKay with several of her paintings.

Artist's works return home

Marian MacKay, an abstract expressionist painter who spent many years living and working in the East Jordan area, passed away in 1993 — but she lives on through her collected works.

Now after a year-long series of exhibits, her legacy of colors and forms returns home for a final exhibition at the Jordan River Arts Council.

MacKay created many of the works in the exhibit in her studio on Cracker Barrel Hill. She studied formally, beginning in the 1950s, at the Society for Arts and Crafts with several very influential artists before settling in this area with her husband Basil.

She was recently named as one of Michigan's greatest artists by Petoskey's McCune Arts Center director Sean Ley.

After a year-long series of exhibits, her legacy of colors and forms returns home for a final exhibition

Despite a long illness, MacKay worked with young artists, and continued her own studio work. Her struggle to maintain a working schedule even when confined to the use of oxygen tubes and a mobile scooter, along with her exuberance and creative energy, inspired all who knew her.

With paintings exhibited and collected widely throughout Michigan for almost 40 years, MacKay was awarded Best of Show at the McCune's 1992 All-Michigan Artists show for her painting Susie's Sunflowers, one of the works included in the JRAC exhibit.

The exhibit continues at the Jordan River Arts Council, Main Street, East Jordan, through June 29, open daily from noon to 4 p.m. A short video of her works is available for review at the art center.

Cast announced for Children's Theatre play

The cast has been selected for the first play of Jordan River Arts Council's fourth annual Children's Theatre Festival starting this month. The Jordan River Players production will be at 7 p.m., Thursday and Friday, June 23 and 24, and at 2 p.m. Sunday June 25 at East Jordan High School.

The Boy Who Left Home to Find Out About the Shivers, adapted from a tale by the Brothers Grimm, will be directed by Terri Warnos with a cast of two adults, five teenagers and 12 children.

The play revolves around a teenage boy whose lack of fear involves him in some harrowing escapades. The boy is played by Jim Nowka, who was Dogkin in JRP's production of Baba Yaga two summers ago.

The boy's father is Paul Teske, who has played key roles in four JRP productions, including the lead in The Promises and the Wicked Prince. The boy's brothers are Sean Gee and Patrick Teske.

Many cast members try to frighten the boy to give him the shivers, including the Sexton and his wife, played by Billy Bavers and Suzi Malpass, and the Innkeeper and Alice, played by Dusten Kassuba and Beth Ann Leonard.

When the boy meets the King, played by James Gee, he is given an opportunity to win the hand of a princess, played by Jessica Nagel, if he can survive three nights in a haunted castle. It is there that he is confronted by a variety of spooky characters, including three menacing cats, played by Joey Goebel, Muriah Armstrong and Renee Nowka; a ferocious dog, played by Jerry Spears; a threatening ghost, played by Connie Nowka; and terrifying spectres of a bride and cousin, played by Lindsey Malpass and Peter Warnos.

Drake Nagel is the trumpeter who announces all the royal entrances, and Linda Franchino is the lady's maid who serves the princess.

The Boy Who Left Home was written by Max Bush, a Hamilton playwright who was a recent winner at the National Youth Theatre Playwriting Symposium in Indianapolis. He has had several plays commissioned by theatrical establishments.

In keeping with the arts council's tradition, all plays selected for the children's theatre festival are new and unpublished.

Tickets, which will be available at the door 30 minutes prior to curtain, are $3.50 for adults and $1.50 for children.

The productions are partially funded by grants from the Michigan Council for the Arts and Cultural Affairs, Charlevoix Community Foundation and the Malpass Foundation.

Roxanne Zell and Amelia Fleming

SADD leader honored

BY DEB SAYGERS HOBBS
Journal Editor

With the tough initial year as president of SADD (Students Against Drunk Drivers) behind her, East Jordan High School senior Amelia Fleming has ambitions for the coming year.

Fleming was recently honored by Charlevoix County Sheriff George T. Lasater for her efforts and those of her organization in East Jordan.

"I applaud their efforts and feel these groups make a difference in keeping our county safe," said Lasater. He presented Fleming with a plaque which is now on display at the high school. Amanda Roberts of Boyne City was also honored similarly.

The SADD group, with over 70 members, is one of the largest organizations at EJHS.

"The kids are really ready to get involved," said Fleming. She said the year was a challenge because organizational efforts have been somewhat uneven over the past few years.

SADD advisor Roxanne Zell, who teaches English at EJHS, agreed with Fleming. It was also Zell's first year in her role, and she said finding time to organize activities with such a large group was a factor in their slow start.

But Fleming and two other members, Kristy Bennett and Rene Perreault, got some resource help by attending a SADD forum at Northern Michigan Hospital in Petoskey this spring.

"They gave us lots of good ideas on activities," said Fleming. The group then put together some activities for this year's Junior-Senior Prom, including a SADD cake at the prom.

"The cake was another reminder to keep them thinking about the effects of drinking," explained Zell. SADD also sponsored a seminar at EJHS the day before prom, with speakers from the county probate department, the sheriff department, East Jordan Police Department, and victims of drunk drivers.

Fleming, who will continue to serve as president, said she has plans for a summer organizational meeting and lots of ideas for next year, including a Red Ribbon campaign.

The most dramatic activity planned for next school year may be the "white out." Fleming said members of SADD will put white make-up on symbolizing victims of drunk driving. As the day progresses, more and more students will be wearing white faces, to graphically convey the statistics. At the end of the day, an all-school assembly will be held to discuss the issues.

Zell said Fleming has been the leader in revitalizing the group, and they are both excited about the possibilities for the coming year, and all the support they are getting from students and staff.

"But Amelia was instrumental in getting us started," said Zell. "She's gotten a lot done."

Teen center hires director

The board of director of Charlevoix's Teen Center, Club 77, is pleased to announce the hiring of Scott Kelly for the position of Activities Director/Volunteer Coordinator. Kelly received his bachelor's degree in social work with specialties in children, youth and delinquency; and substance abuse treatment, from Ferris State University. He is in the process of completing his master's degree in counseling at Central Michigan University.

Scott has worked with young adults and teens in the northwest Michigan area since 1986. From January, 1992 until September, 1994, he worked as a secondary social worker at Boyne City Middle and High Schools where he was also the baseball coach. An unfortunate millage failure resulted in his lay-off from the school system and triggered the protests of nearly 100 students at Boyne City High School last fall.

Kelly is currently the Project Coordinator at Bay Area Substance Education Services, Inc. (B.A.S.E.S.), based in Charlevoix, and has agreed to devote 15 to 20 hours each week toward the development of a quality teen center in Charlevoix.

"I have three general goals for my employment at Club 77," said Kelly. "They include promote safe environments for teenagers, empower parents and communities, and keep it simple and make it fun."

Scott plans to keep the facility open, on a year-round basis, Monday through Friday from 2:30 to 5:30 p.m. each afternoon during what is commonly referred to as "latch-key" hours. The weekly dances from 7 to 10 p.m. will continue to be held on Friday or Saturday nights.

Kelly is working on establishing a life skills program to be held from 4 to 5 p.m. each day of the week. Outside speakers and area professionals will give a 15-minute presentation, then lead discussions with teens on a variety of topics.

"The greatest things I can give kids are my time and my attention," Kelly said. "I will do my best to maintain a safe and drug-free environment for the kids, and also provide structured opportunities for them to learn about getting along with themselves, other people and learning to accept and respect the differences within each and every one of us."

If you are able to devote some time as a volunteer or assist with financial support to this non-profit organization serving teens in Antrim, Charlevoix and Emmet counties, please contact Scott at Club 77 (547-2298) from 2:30 to 5:30 p.m. during the week, or at B.A.S.E.S. (547-1144) any other time.

Pulling their load

The annual horse pull is only one of the many entertaining events at the annual Ellsworth Pig Roast, this Friday and Saturday, June 16 and 17.

Horse sense!

East Jordan eighth-grader Holly Petkewicz "walked" the extra mile for her public speaking class assignment recently, when she brought her friend Sioux (Tippy's Boy Named Sioux) to school to help her demonstrate horse care. Sioux also co-operated for a riding lesson and took six of Holly's classmates and her principal, Shirley Bishop, for a test ride. Holly, who has been riding all her life, said Sioux behaved pretty well for a 22-year-old! Look for Holly at barrel riding events this summer, including the Emmet County Fair.

All will be helping teach and advance the softball skills of clinic participants.

The clinic will be at the Elk Rapids softball field, or inside the Elk High School gym if inclement weather occurs. Players should bring glove, cleats, sweat pants, gym shoes and a sack lunch (concessions will be available).

Cost is $20, $5 for coaches or parents interested in the clinic. Make checks payable to Elk Rapids Softball. Questions about the clinic can be answered by contacting Kathy or Steve Breece, (616) 264-5151.

Devils out of regional action

East Jordan's hopes for a regional baseball victory went up in smoke in Mesick June 10, as Rogers City ran over the Red Devils in their semifinal.

The Hurons had it all go their way, keeping the Red Devils at bay and rolling to a 13-2 win. Rogers City went on to defeat Meridian in the finals 3-2 to win the regional title.

The overall efforts of Tom Worgess, Karl Redmer, and Nate McWatters were just a few of the Red Devils who gave it their all. The long way they've come this year will only provide the basis for even greater possibilities next year.

Softball invitational

It's time to mark your calendars and make your plans for the Boyne City's 19th annual Co-ed Softball Tournament at Rotary Park, the weekend of June 23-25.

To insure a spot in the action, you must send in the sponsor fee - no spots will be held without this deposit. The entry deadline is Mon., June 19. Entries can be arranged by contacting Lynda Christiansen, 582-9555, or Dennis Kruzel, 582-2433.

NEWLY COMMISSIONED US Coast Guard Chief Warrant Officer Terrence Olson (right) is sworn in by his father Jerry, qualified to perform the appointment because of his own commission as a notary.

New officer takes oath with pride

BY DEB SAYGERS HOBBS
Journal Editor

On the sunny afternoon of June 1, with family and friends as witnesses, Terrance Olson moved from the ranks of the enlisted to become a commissioned officer in the United States Coast Guard.

His father Jerry could not serve as one of the witnesses, though. That was because he was busy administering the oath of his son's commission.

Jerry, a notary as well as a real estate agent, jumped at the chance to conduct what usually would have been done by the hand of a commissioned officer or judge. Terrance was able to plan a leave around the required commission date to return home for the special event. He was between assignments in Alameda, Cal., and his new post in New Orleans.

A 1977 East Jordan High School graduate, Terrance has been in the Coast Guard for 18 years. His new title is Chief Warrant Officer. His path to commission has been strewn with hard work, rewarded by many accommodations, his proud mother Nancy reported.

"We're just thrilled," said Nancy of the unique opportunity.

The short ceremony at the Olson's Mile Lake Road home was followed by a reception and many congratulations from family and friends, including Terrance's wife Laura, and 2-year-old daughter Katrina. The couple's other two daughters, Tiffany and Dominique, were unable to attend the ceremony.

The fish banquet

A new custom was established June 14, 1921, in the East Jordan High School, when a fish banquet was held by the students and faculty. It was requested by Mr. Keyworth that such a banquet be held annually. The student body consented that the Seniors plan the supper, the Juniors cook, the Sophomores serve and the Freshmen wash the dishes. It is a wish of the high school that this banquet might become an established custom in the future.

The first fish banquet was a success. School was dismissed Friday noon to give the boys a longer time to fish. At six o'clock on Saturday night the students and faculty seated themselves at the tables in the gymnasium.

After the banquet, toasts were given by representatives of the grades and members of the faculty. Fish stories were the object of the evening.

Mall sponsors relief effort

Grand Traverse Mall, in conjunction with the Salvation Army, will collect donations in the shopping center to aid victims of the Oklahoma City bombing.

The relief effort, scheduled during all mall hours through Wednesday, July 4, will provide area residents, customers, and mall shop employees an opportunity to provide relief assistance that is urgently needed in Oklahoma City.

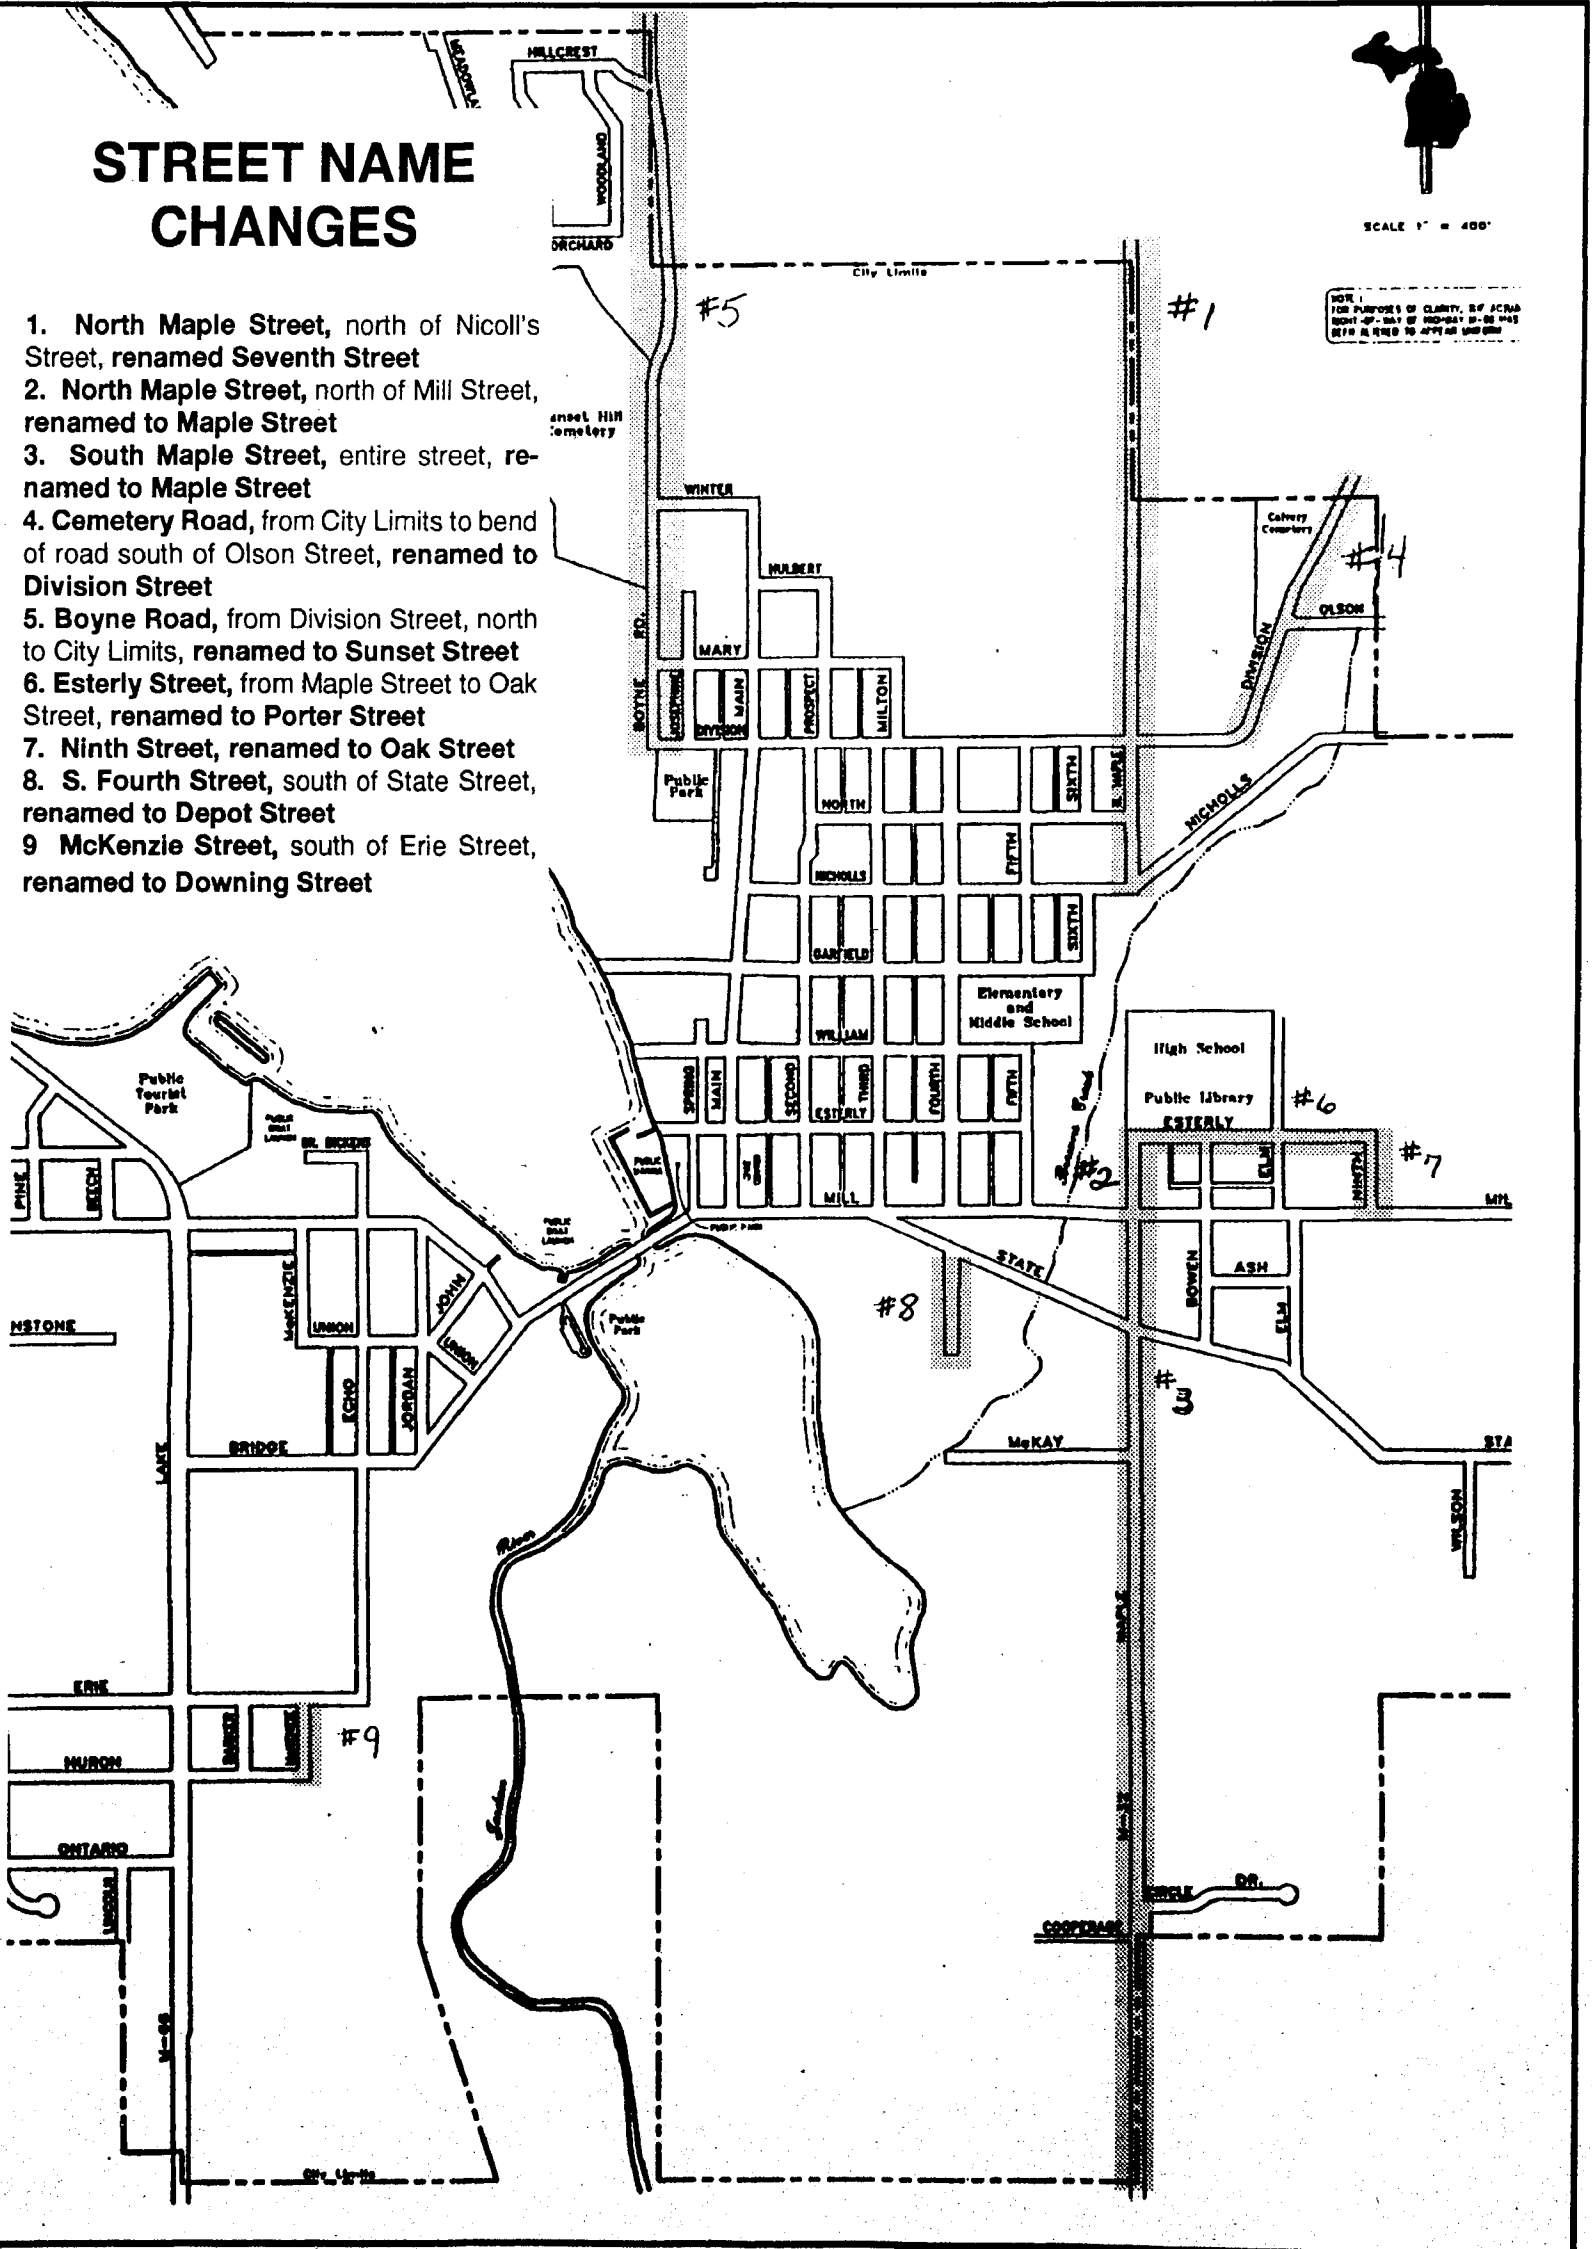

Shoppers may pick up a special donation envelope at prominent displays in most Grand Traverse Mall stores during the campaign period, or at the Customer Service Center located in the Food Court across from McDonald's. Donations of any amount will be accepted at the Customer Service Center or may be mailed directly to the Salvation Army using the self-sealing, pre-addressed envelopes available at the mall.

Since the April 19 bombing, the Salvation Army has distributed more than $3.1 million in relief in Oklahoma City. The assistance has included payments for food, travel for grieving families, hotel lodging, temporary housing, counseling, funeral expenses, prescriptions, and utilities.

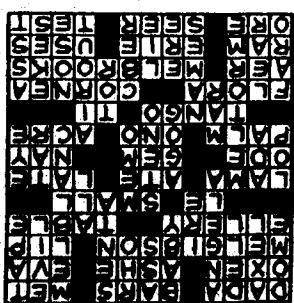

Officials for the charitable organization say they need to raise approximately $900,000 to achieve approximately $4 million needed to pay for the expected crisis support and recovery services provided to bombing victims and rescue workers.

Money can be made by recycling old newspapers

You're holding something valuable in your hands right now.

If you've been setting your newspapers out for curbside pickup you're throwing money away.

In the past several months the price being paid for old newspapers has skyrocketed to record levels, as demand has far outstripped supply on the market.

Once of little value, old newspapers have become valuable. Most people, however, don't know it, and are still having their old newspapers collected by the city or a private hauler.

Groups that have discovered the tremendous money to be made in collecting old newspapers are reaping incredible financial benefits, according to Craig Dumont, marketing director for Applegate Manufacturing in Okemos. For instance, Boy Scout Troop 33 has earned over $32,000 during the past year by collecting newspaper and selling it to Applegate, and the Presbyterian Church in Dimondale, has raised almost $12,000. With money earned through paper drives, the church has helped the homeless and paid 100 percent of the cost to send their church children to summer camps.

"We have many successful Boy Scout and church groups earning large sums of money through paper drives that are easily planned and coordinated," said Dumont. "For the most part, these groups simply ask their members and friends to save their old newspapers instead of throwing them away. Instead, they take them to the church or Scout collection point, and Applegate picks them up and issues the check.

It's the classic 'win-win' situation. The homeowner doesn't pay to have the newspapers hauled away, and the group or organization earns thousands of dollars for worthy causes."

With 55 percent by volume of all landfill space filled by paper products, it makes economic and ecological sense to give the newspapers to an organization that sees that they are recycled. All the papers collected by organizations and sold to Applegate are used to manufacture one of the best insulation materials available to homeowners: cellulose insulation.

"Cellulose insulation has been shown to be almost twice as effective an insulator as the once-popular glass batts, Dumont said. "It is also used for hydroseeding mulch and various other useful landscape products."

Applegate can assist you in setting up a paper drive, tell you who is collecting newspaper in your community, or may even arrange to buy direct from individuals. For information call Applegate, 1 (800) 627-7536.

it, other than the personal conflict between Stanek and Galbraith," he said.

When asked why he approved the minutes if that was not the motion he made, Morris cited Stanek's practice of reading through the minutes at meetings, and not supplying other board members or the audience with copies.

"She reads through them so fast, I just didn't catch it," he said. "Her minutes, a lot of times, don't read like what went on."

Repeated attempts to contact Stanek were unsuccessful. Lercel refused to comment, and Haney was unavailable.

Morris is confident the name change will not stand. No alternate name was decided upon, and he suspects a board vote will be necessary to give one.

"I don't think, as far into 911 (house numbering) as we are, that the county commissioners or the road commission will support a name change, unless there's a very good reason," he said.

Antrim County Coordinator/Planner Peter Garwood concurred.

"It took a lot to get all the townships working on addressing these smaller, unnamed roads," he said.

"To have them go back and change road names, unless there's a legitimate reason, would not be a good idea."

Galbraith said he would go as far as taking legal action against the township if the road name change stands. He hopes, however, he won't have to.

"The next board meeting is in July, and the recall election is June 29," he said.

The next regular meeting of the Jordan Township Board is scheduled for Mon., July 24, at 7:30 p.m., at the township hall on Mount Bliss Road.

Native Americans celebrate heritage are steeped in ritual. Even the drum, which encompasses the singers as well, has great symbolic significance. Drums are blessed and given names. It is said the drum is the heartbeat of the First Nations.

The dancing begins with the Grand Entry. This event includes all the dancers, but must be led by the Eagle Staff and flag bearers.

Originally, only the highest rank warriors could have the honor of bearing the Eagle Staff. Today this translates into veterans of the armed services.

The honor guard of staff bearers carries the Eagle Staff, oldest of native symbols. Also included are staves to honor various tribes, warriors and veterans. A special staff is carried for Vietnam veterans and those killed or missing in action.

The Canadian and US flags complete the honor guard.

Following the staff bearers are the head dancers, chosen by their peers to honor their knowledge and skill.

After all the dancers wind their way into the dancing ring, a quiet moment is taken to honor the flags. As all stand at attention, the flag song is sung. The staves and flags are respectfully posted. A special prayer is spoken by an honorable elder in native language.

One of the most moving rituals is the distinctive recognition given to armed services veterans. An honor song is played while veterans, all in attendance, both traditional dancers and members of the audience, peoples of all races and religions, are invited to pass around the dancing ring.

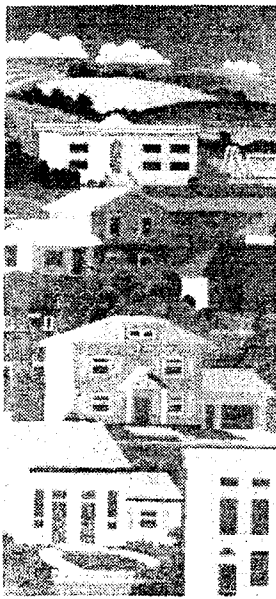

Then the dancers enter the ring and shake hands with each veteran, offering their personal tribute. The audience too, is given a moment to show their appreciation.

As the sun moves across the sky, many types of dances are presented. There are also many other honor songs. These call attention to newly-weds, or a special anniversary, new dancers or memories of a loved one who has passed on.

Anishinabe Inter-Tribal Council consists mainly of members of Odawa, Ojibway, and Potawatomie tribes. The word anishinabe may be interpreted as "one" or "many."

The annual Day of the Eagle has grown tremendously since its inception in 1981. This year's attendance passed 5,000, with about 250 registered dancers.
