Man arrested in connection with pipe bomb

The Charlevoix County Sheriff Department arrested a Norwood Township resident May 6 on three counts of possession of explosives.

Officers arrested Norman Gerard Tolman, 67, whose residence is on US-31 south. The arrest took place in connection with the April 29 discovery of a pipe bomb in Norwood Township and the subsequent investigation by the sheriff department.

Each count is a four-year felony with a $2,000 fine. The charges allege Tolman made the bombs with the intent to use them against persons or property. A personal recognizance bond was set by the 90th District Court at $50,000.

Tolman turned himself in to the sheriff's department May 7, accompanied by his attorney, Harry Golski.

Tolman was arraigned last week before Judge Richard May. The judge set a preliminary hearing date for Tues., May 21.

Golski told the court he will show there is no evidence of Tolman planning to use any of the bombs maliciously or against any person or property.

Sheriff's deputies conducted a search at the Tolman residence May 3, resulting in the discovery of three pipe bombs and various materials which could be used to construct other pipe bombs.

The sheriff's office sought assistance from the Michigan State Police bomb squad from Grayling to remove and dispose of the bombs for analysis and to provide information for further investigation by the sheriff's office.

Experts from the bomb unit confirmed the three bombs were in fact pipe bombs. Sheriff George Lasater commended the actions of Det. Sgt. Mike Wheat, Deputy Jim Owens and Deputy Rex Behling for a quick resolution to this complaint and subsequent arrest. Police believe Tolman is the man responsible for a live pipe bomb found April 29 near the Island View subdivision and another bomb which reportedly exploded near the same area on or about April 15.

He stated prosecuting attorney Mary Beth Kur was very instrumental in the resolution of the potentially dangerous situation by making herself and her office available at all hours for assistance and legal guidance.

The sheriff's office was assisted at the scene by the Sheriff's Auxiliary, Charlevoix City Fire Department and Charlevoix Ambulance.

City denies Shivley alley closing request

The owner of an East Jordan adult foster care home expressed frustration with the city's denial of his request to close off an alley near the home, located at 606 Second St.

Jim Shivley made his request at the May 7 city commission meeting.

He offered to pay $100 to the city for the right to close the little-used alley off for the season, but commission members voted it down after a brief discussion.

"No, we don't want to vacate age through traffic, a suggestion Shivley rejected as ineffective.

"I've tried to work with them and I've been shot down quite regularly by one or two council members and now it's time to play hardball," said Shivley after the meeting.

He explained many of the residents are mentally retarded adults, and he fears a few individuals who have been seen speeding through the alley put residents in danger if it's not closed off. not going to budge," he said. "Signs would not work – you know that and I know that – because people can't read."

4 •WEDNESDAY, MAY 15, 1996 • EAST JORDAN JOURNAL Small business loan program issues report

For the first six months of Fiscal Year 1996, the U.S. Small Business Administration's 411 guaranty loans for a total value of $84 million.

SBA District Director Dwight Reynolds said, "While this is 34% less than last year at this time, it is still the second-highest number of loans in our history. I look forward to an excellent second half of the year so that we can challenge last year's record loan levels."

In Antrim County the SBA approved two guaranty loans for a total value of $580,000 from Oct. 1, 1996 through March 31, 1996. These loans were made through SBA participating lenders Old Kent Bank & Trust Co. and FMB-Northwestern Bank.

Through SBA's guaranty loan programs, small businesses can receive financing for working capital, equipment purchase, plant expansion, and other business purposes.

These loans are provided through most commercial lenders in Michigan.

The most widely used SBA loan program is LowDoc. It features a one-page SBA loan application for amounts of $100,000 or less.

SBA provides a three-day turnaround after it receives an application from the lender. As in all other programs, the applicant must meet the lender's and SBA's credit and eligibility requirements.

For further information on SBA's lending programs, call (313) 226-6075, ext. 400.

Crop advisers have the agricultural answers

A select group of professional crop specialists are ready and waiting to help farmers tackle their every problem this coming season.

Certified Crop Advisers have been tested and certified by the Agronomy Society of America for their expertise in all facets of crop production.

The Certified Crop Adviser (CCA) program has been in existence for four years, and across Michigan there are more than 150 individuals who have met these rigorous certification procedures.

"Being a Certified Crop Adviser means that I have experience and the ability to help farmers and everyone involved in agriculture with their questions and problems," said Bob VanArkel, a CCA from Lansing. "This certification tells those I work with that I am able to help them, and that they have more than just my work on it."

The CCA program has clear standards for ethics and conduct, and also requires continuing education. in the four areas of crop production, pest management, soil and water management and soil fertility.

Police officers honored during memorial week

Sheriff George T. Lasater is reminding Charlevoix County citizens that the week of May 12-18 has been set aside to honor police officers throughout the nation at Law Enforcement Officers Memorial Week.

"The law enforcement profession has been tarnished recently due to the actions of a few bad apples, but it's important to remember that good cops are far more abundant than bad ones," said Lasater. "People must realize that every day, a law enforcement officer is putting his or her life on the line."

He noted that although today's law enforcement officer is equipped with the best that technology has to offer, too often criminals have access to the same technology. Lasater urged citizens to remember that officers are there to serve the citizens.

"I don't care what color the uniform is, I am asking that this week you remember the service that these dedicated young men and women perform for you, and maybe say thanks if you see one."

Memorial services are conducted around the country during Memorial Week, with the largest held at the Law Enforcement Officers Memorial in Washington, D.C.

Michigan held its memorial service on the steps of the state capitol in Lansing on May 6. The Michigan event was sponsored by Michigan Concerns of Police Survivors (MICOPS).

WHAT'S COOKING

Recipes designed in the kitchen of Debbie Chappuies, with East Jordan cooks in mind

When someone mentions it's their birthday, I think cake. I seldom eat cake, but everyone should have one on their birthday, shouldn't they? Since my mother doesn't live nearby, I don't usually get a birthday cake (Isn't that what mothers are for?). I guess if I want a birthday cake I have to bake it for myself. Since my birthday is May 15th, I've given some thought to what kind of cake I want. I've decided to revert back to my childhood (already?) and bake the cake I always requested Mom to bake. Red cake. This isn't your usual kind of 'kid cake', so I guess my request was always thought of as a bit odd, but...if truth be told, it was really the frosting I lusted after. The only time we got this kind of frosting is with Red Cake, so this is the way it had to be. It has been many years since I have dug into this fros-oops!, I mean cake, but the thought is really making me look forward to my birthday. To satisfy any curious minds, this is my 41st and I'm proud of it. As the new saying goes, "I'm not aging, I'm marinating!"

Letters to the editior Gen. Grant once rode "Hum"

Regarding the picture of the Steamer "Hum" in the May 1 Journal: It was once used as a pleasure yacht by Gen. U.S. Grant, and was purchased in approximately 1900 by Mr. Harry J. Price and named "Pilgrim." operating between East Jordan and Charlevoix, then sold to Mr. George Jepson and name changed to the Hum.

Captained by Mr. J.G. Partridge of Charlevoix, it made three 90-minute trips per day between East Jordan and Charlevoix with passengers and freight. This operation continued until approximately 1920. (Editors note: the above information was taken from "Pictorial History of East Jordan 1877-1970.")

Mr. Jepson's grandson is former East Jordan resident Mr. Gregory. Eugene Mr. Partridge's granddaughter is Ms. Rosann McPhillips of Charlevoix. I believe the picture was taken at the outlet of Lake Charlevoix into Round Lake, where the U.S. Coast Guard is now located.

Oh, by the way, the steamer would have a heck of a time getting to Lake City.

The picture of the steamer "Hum" brought back fond memories. I can remember my mother taking my brother and me down to a dock that Eveline Archards had on Pine Lake (now Lake Charlevoix).

We would run a white flag up a pole which signaled the Hum to stop and pick us up. If I remember correctly, the fare was 10 cents to take us to East Jordan. This would have been around 1916.

The early Christians certainly knew what it was to suffer for their belief in God and Jesus and many have been persecuted over the centuries since for their faith. Yet for those who hold true to God, no matter what their earthly tribulations, there is God's promise that they too shall be exalted in His kingdom Doubters may find little comfort in such a compact but mer and women of faith know that their eternal reward will be far more enabling for their mortal trials. Sax Says

By Gayle Saxton

This morning, I received this letter in the mail:

"Dear Mr. Saxton, It is so nice to hear you are enjoying your new home. Still keep in touch with your news in the Resorter, but with Mother's Day coming up I thought you might be able to use this newsworthy item that I clipped from 'Dear Abby's column recently. Keep up the good work, and take care of yourself – your faithful Florida reader."

Dear Abby: In a recent letter written by "Miserable in Missouri," the husband kept telling his wife, 'My mom didn't do it this way." I am 88 years old and have kept this poem for more years than I can count. It carries the same message:

"He didn't like my pudding and he didn't like my cake. My biscuits were too hard, not like his mother used to bake.

I didn't perk the coffee and I didn't make the stew, I didn't mend his socks like his mother used to do. As I pondered the answer I was looking for a clue. So I turned and boxed his ears, like his mother used to do." Thank you, friend from Florida; it's been a long time since I last heard from you. Here I thought you had "kicked the bucket" only to find out that you are still alive and kicking. You have done it again – you've supplied me with a starter. Here goes:

Dear Mom, my answer to your letter you wrote to me yesterday is a little late, in fact approximately 22 years and six months. I fully agree, Uncle Frank never was a carpenter and you were wise telling him to join you and Aunt Ella to celebrate his birthday, rather than complete the task of repairing the step leading from the dining room to the kitchen.

Speaking for myself, and your other sons and daughter, Tich, Charlie and Bob, and Virginia and Bill (both deceased), I want to tell you that in our way of thinking, you were the Greatest, the number one mother, not only to your children, but to so many of those children who lived and played with us like Chris Bulow, Bob Windstone, Chum, Bill and Dutch Simmons, Ralph and Ernie Stallard, Ernie Mockerman, Bill and Bob Bennett, Jim St. Arno, Eddie Bishaw, Jim Lilak, Art Quinn, Oggie and Bruce Woodcock.

The list of those who loved you goes on and on to include Harry Watson, Floyd Holly, Al Penfold and many others too numerous to mention.

I know you had a special place for me in your heart, being your oldest child. It seems that the astute, upright citizen, former mayor and undertaker and Rotary song director, in short a jack of all trades and master of none, once inquired of you, "Hello Mrs. Saxton, and how's that good-for-nothing oldest son of yours down at Houghton Lake?"

And your reply went something along this line, "You may say anything about my boys, but don't you ever say anything negative of Gayle, Mr. Watson."

That sums up what you thought about your children. You never showed favorites so what you said about me goes for the whole flock.

It's a little late to tell you, my dear Mother, but we all loved you dearly, individually and collectively. I am choking up and must close now. Like Paul Harvey puts it, the REST of the story can be found by reading Proverbs, Chapter 31, verse 10. East Jordan native Gayle Saxton has been writing, reporting, and broadcasting sports for many years. Now a retired educator in Alma. "Sax" will share his memories of East Jordan and his many friends through this column in future issues of the Journal. Area evergreen plants showing signs of winter damage

Many pine tees and other evergreen (conifer) tree and shrubs in the county are turning brown and off-color. According to experts at Michigan State University Extension (MSUE), this is result of damage from Michigan's prolonged winter.

"White pine, especially, is showing an extensive amount of damage," said Russell Kidd, District Extension Forester with MSUE.

"White pine is very vulnerable to winter desiccation or drying because of its thinner, more delicately-textured foliage. However, other conifer plants are showing signs of damage as well."

According to Kidd, conifer plants are injured when plants experience prolonged periods of windy conditions or warm, sunny days during the winter. Weather conditions such as these cause moisture to escape from conifer needles that simply cannot be replaced by their frozen roots. The foliage drys out(desiccates) and turns brown, yellow or even purple in color in some cases.

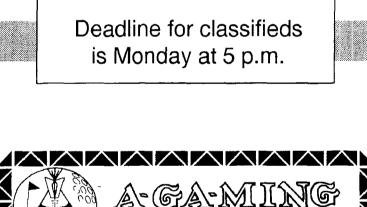

"Usually injury is limited to the existing foliage, but in extreme cases, buds may also be damaged from extreme winter weather," explains Kidd. "Typically, conifer trees green up as the spring progresses and appear to overcome the damage. But occasionally it can be sever enough to kill buds or twigs. Portions of plants above the snow line are especially affected by this type of damage."

Trees expériencing severe damage should be carefully monitored throughout the spring.

"If trees are showing signs of bud damage or are not greening up as they should be, then a light watering and fertilization is recommended," advises Kidd. "This is no doubt a stress on a tree and can lead to further problems if the tree experiences additional stresses throughout the growing season. Therefore, plants need to be carefully observed and treated quickly if additional stress from insect disease or other pests becomes severe."

For more information and tree and shrub maintenance, contact the Antrim County Michigan State University Extension office at (616) 533-8818.

From Looking Around Jordan Township by Mrs. Vern Bundy (Rosalind Westcott) East Jordan News-Herald-mid 1950s.

Mires And Kocher Families One of the few people living in our community today whose authority is recognized when it comes to the early lumbering era and coinciding events is Mr. Jim Mires of Chestonia.

So many people have referred him to me for particulars that it occurred to me that he himself would undoubtedly make an outstanding subject for review. I hope you will enjoy his story as much as I have.

In 1800 Jordan Township (as such) was a 5-year-old. But the population was small and concentrated largely in comparatively small areas.

One such area was on the north side of the Jordan Valley near East Jordan, and the other on the southern side near the heads of both the Jordan and Green rivers.

Between these two extremes of the township lay mile after mile of big trees. The railroad between Bellaire and East Jordan had not been built and Chestonia had not come into existence; but it was during this year that two families settled on and near what is now known as Chestonia Hill.

One of these was J.B. Kocher, who became one of the first men to take interest, and hold office in the civic affairs of the township. The other was Mr. Mires, father of the subject of this review. Mr. Mires filed for his homestead at the foot and in the shelter of a big hill. Kocher when he arrived preferred the fresh air and the good view to be had on the hilltop, and so they filed on adjoining homesteads and became close neighbors. Kocher was a farmer who had come here from Ohio. He settled about a half mile from the site where they built their permanent home eleven years later. If some of you who know the place have noticed a black walnut tree near the road, look at it again when you pass next time. And remember that the nut that tree grew from was carried here from Ohio in the pocket of a grandmother who hoped to bring one of the luxuries of her old home with her to this new land. It was her gift to her grandchildren - a gift that will keep on giving for many years. Jim who was only a few months old when his parents arrived here, learned to know the surrounding woodlands as well as we know our back yards.

He and a younger brother, Frank thrived on the simple fare of the country and they followed in their father's footsteps, as he cleared land and broke ground. He planted and hunted the hills for small game which gave both a variety to their menu and a welcome relief from the back breaking labor known by all pioneers. Happily for Jim and Frank, the Kochers also had children; and growing up together they learned to tell the maple from the elm and how to keep their sense of direction in the woods. Many of the fruits of the land found their way into the family larders as they learned the arts of woodcraft, where to find each edible berry in its season, and where the fish were liable to hide out in the heat of the day!

But all knowledge cannot be obtained from Mother Nature, and when a school was built near Pinney Bridge, with Mrs. Pinney in charge, Jim and Arthur and Alice Kocher were enrolled.

Each day the children walked the ridges to school. Many times in the winter the snow was hip deep and during summer months they had to keep a sharp look out, as an occasional bear was seen. On these occasions they lost little time finding the nearest place of safety.

But these were not unusual conditions for the times and school went on. It was just one of those things, it seems. Cold winds, deep drifts; nothing seemed to hold terror for the sons and daughters of our pioneers.

The next few years they studied under several teachers, including Ida Pinney, Mattie Kearns, and never to be forgotten, Nellie McEwen. Sometimes the old call of the woods and the leaves under their feet made it very hard to sit in school, so hard that at one time when the teacher was out of the room, Jim, Arthur and Alice climbed out a back window and skipped for home. It was a big thrill until they began to wonder what to tell the teacher when they would see her next. It was finally settled to tell her that their cows had strayed near the school house and they had gone to take them home. Of course the teacher's raised eye brows left little doubt as to whether she believed the tale but she did let them get by with it and it left them with a secret that often brought a chuckle or a hearty laugh though their glee was mixed with a feeling of guilt. Jim was ever full of mischief which sometimes stretched his teacher's patience to the breaking point, and Nellie McEwen had about reached that point one spring day when, as all tried and true punishments had been to no avail, she was casting about to find something new when suddenly her attention was attracted to the huge round oak heater which stood empty and cold in the center of the school room.

It was inspiration which prompted her then. She told Jim that she could see no other way than to shut him up in the big stove.

The sight of the big black interior of the stove was too much for Jim. And as she struggled to get him in the stove, he decided that anything was preferable to that indignity.

He humbly promised complete obedience to her rules. This meekness could not last, though it earned his freedom for a time. As Jim said, "It couldn't last, and the time came when I had to learn the hard way."

Jim outgrew the grade school and the punishments meted out for his boundless energy and his bent for leading others into mischief with him. But he never outgrew the energy or the ability to lead. And these, coupled with the knowledge and love of the woods, which he had learned as naturally as he learned to walk, combined to make him a natural woodsman at a time when woodsmen were most needed.

The greater part of Jim Mires life has been spent working in the woods of Antrim County and he has had a part in most of the major road and railroad projects, Another column will tell you some of his experiences on those jobs.

The East Jordan varsity baseball team picked up their first win of the year at Harbor Springs on a long homer by Dan Whiteford. The Devils earned a split in the two games, 3-6 and 8-5, May 2.

In game one Chuck Murray

The second game saw more offense as Whiteford had a three-run dinger that helped make the difference. Luke McLaren added two singles in support of winning pitcher Murray.

The Kalkaska Blazers were on the winning end of 10-1 and

Lady Devils split with Ramblers

BY RICH CLARK Journal Sports Writer

The East Jordan varsity softball team had a rough first game May 6, but picked up some offense and rallied on the defensive end to split a pair with the visiting Boyne City Ramblers, 5-9 and 11-7. The early game saw Heather McLaren give up seven hits and six walks, getting five strikeouts. Offensive support was supplied by Dawn Meads and Kyle Krause with two hits each. Kelly Woodard and Heather Jackson added singles, and Raissa Schroeder a double for the Devils.

The second game of the twinbill put Angie Snyder on the mound. She gave up 13 hits and four walks, striking out two for the win.

The offense picked up even more with Schroeder, Meads and McLaren collecting two hits each. Schroeder added a triple. Coach Meg Fowler was pleased with the Lady Devils performance in both games. "Boyne deserved the win (in game one), but our defense really rallied around Angie Snyder by playing smart and getting the outs in a pinch," Fowler said.

The varsity Devil baseball team couldn't get its offense going and wound up falling to the visiting Boyne City Ramblers in both games of a doubleheader, 0-14 and 1-14, May 6.

In the first game, Denzil Wilson suffered the loss. Ryan Antaya and Chuck Murray contributed hits, and Luke Pennington added a double.

Jeremy Andrew led the Ramblers with a two-run homer and Jason Richards accepted the win.

Game two saw Murray and Pennington again pick up a single each, joined by Luke McLaren. Chuck Murray pitched in the loss.

Richards again led the Rambler attack with a single, double, and a two-run homer. Dan Fiel added a three-run homer to help Jeff Giraid pick up the win.

Michigan Week 1996 is fast approaching

Governor John Engler declared May 18-27 as Michigan Week.

In addition to marking the official calendar, Engler has asked Secretary of State Candice S. Miller and Northern Michigan University President Dr. William E. Vandament to serve as co-chairs for Michigan Week 1996.

"Michigan is blessed beyond measure with natural wonders and man-made marvels, colorful seasons and diverse recreations," Engler's proclamation reads. "We should all be proud of our majestic state and ready to share with others the many reasons why we call it home."

The theme for this year's celebration is Michigan: Putting the World on Wheels, honoring the centennial of automobile manufacturing.

Michigan has so much to celebrate: A rich history, abundant resources and a prosperous future," said Miller, the state's official historian. "Michigan Week allows us to come together as one community to celebrate this great state."

The annual event, now in its 43rd year, encourages greater knowledge and awareness of Michigan and its history, and fosters a spirit of cooperation among all communities.

"One of Michigan's greatest assets is its amazing diversity,": said Vandament. "Michigan Week helps bring into sharper focus the state's blend of people, scenic beauty, natural resources and economic enterprise. Strep throat circulating in area

Parent should be aware that cases of strep throat have been reported to the District Health Department. Anyone can get strep throat, but the infection is most common in school-aged children.

An individual with strep throat may have any of the following basic symptoms: fever, sore throat, pain in swallowing, fatigue, enlarged and inflamed tonsils, swollen tonsils often covered by pus, reddened throat, and tender and swollen lymph nodes in the neck area.

There may be few symptoms. High fever, headache, nausea, vomiting, and collapse may accompany severe infections. Sometimes you can have a rash (scarlet fever) which is often mistaken for another childhood illness such as roseola or measles.

It is important to know there are many other causes of sore throat. The illness is usually diagnosed by a throat culture or a rapid test for streptococcal disease.

Untreated people may develop middle ear infections, mastoiditis (infection in bone behind the ear), throat and neck abscesses, pneumonia, and skin infections. Other serious problems are heart (rheumatic fever) and kidney (glomerulonephritis) disease, and rarely a toxic shock syndrome.

Parents should be aware strep throat is a treatable illness. Penicillin or other appropriate antibiotics should prevent most complications, including rheumatic heart disease.

The health department urges parents to contact their family doctors if they think their children may have strep throat. It is usually treated with a 10-day course of antibiotics taken by mouth or an injection of a longacting antibiotic. Individuals given an antibiotic must complete the full course of therapy, even if they feel better in a few days.

The illness is spread by respiratory droplets and direct or close personal contact with respiratory secretions of an infected person. Therefore, close personal contact with other children during this time should be avoided. Children should not return to school, day care or nursery setting until at least 24 hours after beginning anti-microbial therapy.

Individuals who are not treated may be contagious for several weeks. The practice of good personal hygiene, proper hand washing, and not sharing food or other common items may reduce transmission of the illness.
