POSITION COULD BE FILLED BY END OF THE MONTH

Administrator job attracts 15 candidates

The East Jordan city commission has received 15 applications for the full time city manager position. The deadline for applications was Friday, October 4th.

The next step in the selection process will take place on October 10 at 3 p.m. when the city commission review committee, consisting of Brian Sweet, Ruth Gee, and Dan McKinnan, will meet with Michigan Municipal League representatives and narrow the applicants down, deciding who they will choose to be interviewed by the full city commission.

"The Michigan Municipal League suggests that we choose up to five candidates at that point," said city clerk Kathy O'Rear.

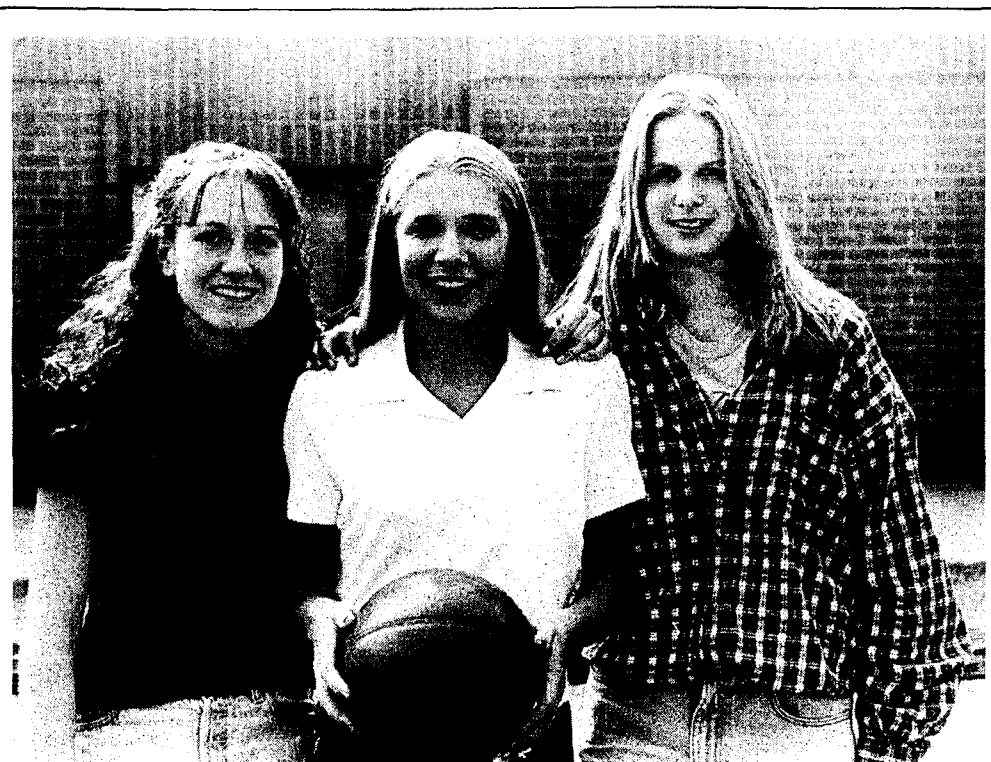

These candidates will then be interviewed by the full city commission on October 21 at 5:30 p.m.

"Although the commission hasn't set a deadline for a final selection, I would guess that shortly after these interviews they will reach a decision," said O'Rear.

Present interim city administrator David

White has applied for the position after serving in that capacity for a month, and realizing his interest in a permanent position in East Jordan.

"I have seen that East Jordan is in a position to move forward and get things done, and I'd like to be a part of that," White said.

On the basketball court and in the classroom, East Jordan's Amanda Pepin is ...

Committed to excellence

By KRISTEN KUBOVCHICK

"It's just so intense, I just can't explain it." Although Amanda Pepin is describing her love for basketball, this comment says more about her personality than anything else. She is an extremely devoted and dedicated person who demands far more than a quick surface explanation.

Amanda Pepin is a senior at East Jordan High School, and she has become a person that East Jordan, and northern Michigan, can be proud to call their own. Not only is she passionate about basketball, but also about her school, her family, and her friends, and about striving to be the best that she can.

Amanda is most readily known throughout the area for her success on the East Jordan girls basketball team, a success that has come through the hard work and diligence that has endeared her to her school, family and friends.

A member of the National Honor Society, and a student at East Jordan's new Math, Science and Technology Center, Amanda is also taking two North Central Michigan College courses and devotes her energy to her academic success as much as her athletic success.

In college, Amanda hopes to major in pre-med, so that she can some day go into orthopedic surgery. "I've been to so many (orthopedic surgeons) that I guess I've started to like them," Amanda said.

While many other EJHS seniors are still weighing their options for next year, Amanda has already made the decision about where she will spend the next four years.

"I got a full ride basketball scholarship to Lake Superior State University, my first college of choice," Amanda said.

While Amanda plans for next fall, and the challenges that await her in college, she hasn't let this plan keep her from her present commitments.

For four years, Amanda has devoted herself to learning and training for basketball, and through this perseverance, has found success.

Amanda and her family moved to East Jordan four years ago, right as she was starting her freshman year.

"We had lived in Frankenmuth, and had a second home here in East Jordan. We decided to move here after my dad retired because we love it so much," Amanda said. "Although it was a hard adjustment at first, I wouldn't move back for anything."

Amanda is thankful for this move for several reasons, the most important being the opportunities that were available to her in East Jordan.

"In Frankenmuth, girl's basketball starts really young and I just wasn't pinned as a player. When I came here, I was a new girl with a basketball background, and I had the opportunity to establish myself as a basketball player," Amanda said.

This opportunity was less what East Jordan offered Amanda, and more what she offered herself.

"I take basketball really seriously. I come in before school to work in the gym, and I don't slack off in the off season," Amanda said. "I work hard."

This hard work has enabled this 5'8" forward to score 24 and 29 points at her last two games, and be named as a TV 7&4 student athlete of the week.

Amanda's commitment to hard work has come through self-discipline, as well as training through one of her favorite teachers.

"My Dad is the assistant coach of the East Jordan girl's varsity team, and I wouldn't be as good without him. He has always helped me every time I've asked. He has pushed me to work hard and he's made me stick to my promises," Amanda said.

Many of these promises include strict training routines and disciplined exercises, including shooting 100 free throws, and 100 three pointers every day.

"I make him promise to make me get in there when I don't feel like it, because I know that I'll be glad that I did — and he always does."

Commission nixes Jordan Valley Estates

Although both East Jordan city officials and area developers tout the need for city development, a recent city commission decision has left citizens debating the best ways to achieve this goal.

Developers Calvin Gotts and Michael Barnard approached the city commission last Tuesday with their plan to hook up Jordan Valley Estates, their mobile home park, to the city's water and sewer system. The two developers asked that city tap fees be waived, in the faith that the park will eventually become a valuable source of revenue for the city.

The 179 lot mobile home estate is located on M-66, a site the developers feel is currently in need of development.

Barnard and Gotts were willing to extend the sewer line at their cost of approximately $125,000 in exchange for the city giving up the charges of $429,600 in water and sewage tap-in fees.

For the developers, the availability of a water and sewer tap was the main question they needed to answer before determining the cost effectiveness of the project.

"We think that this project will be good for the business and residential needs in the community. We also think that the additional taxes and water and sewage fees that the city can charge will bring in a nice additional income for the city," Gotts said.

After considering the request, the city commissioners voted 6-1 against the project.

"With the amount of taxes that the project paid, waiving the water and sewer tap was not in the best interests of East Jordan," said interim city administrator David White.

Arguing that this development would be good for East Jordan, and therefore in the city's best interests, Barnard and Gotts were discouraged with the city commission's decision.

"If the city is against development, what can we do?" said Barnard.

Future plans for the manufactured home park are uncertain, because the developers can not proceed without the water and sewer in place. "Right now, we aren't really doing anything, but we are hoping that the city commission will look into the facts and bring some compromise to the negotiating table," Gotts said.

"There is a lot of potential in East Jordan, but nothing can happen unless people are positive," Gotts said. "I think it's a real shame that we're at where we are at."

Recall petition drive backers 'trying to keep things quiet'

Although government was not designed to be a quick and easy process, it was designed so that people can choose how and by whom they are represented.

In East Jordan, several concerned residents have recently put a lesser known part of this governmental procedure into motion and have begun the procedures to recall City Mayor Russ Peck and City Commissioner Brian Sweet claiming they have failed in the responsibilities of their office.

In early September, the recall petitions were filed by a committee who organized and called themselves the East Jordan Citizens for a Responsible City Government.

After the petitions were approved, they were returned to the group which had 90 days to come up with the 164 signatures needed.

If the signatures are received and approved for authenticity, the recall will be put on a ballot and scheduled for an official vote.

Approximately 30 days into the time allotted for signature collection the group feels confident that they will be able to submit their votes on time.

"We are really trying to keep things quiet right now," said group member Mark Postma. "When the votes are filed, things will probably get a little louder."

"We are quiet, responsible people, just trying to do something good."

For now, the group is still collecting names, and hasn't been keeping a definite, running total.

"We are still collecting, and the results remain to be seen," said Dennis Archer, a member of the group.

If the signatures are not collected, the recall will not be put to vote.

"We won't know the status of the recall until the votes are filed, but there is still plenty of time," said Charlevoix County Clerk Jane Brannon.

East Jordan teen injured in car wreck

Jennifer Pinney was listed in serious condition at Northern Michigan Hospital after being injured Monday when her car hit a semi-truck trailer.

The Charlevoix County Sheriff Department said the two-vehicle accident occurred on the Boyne City-East Jordan Road, near Sloop Road, at approximately 1:30 p.m. Monday.

Pinney, 18, of East Jordan, was driving a 1989 Pontiac Grand Am when it crossed over the centerline and struck a 1991 Freightliner tractor-trailer, driven by Jerry Wells, 55. He was not injured.

Pinney was transported to the Charlevoix Area Hospital by the East Jordan Ambulance and later transferred to Northern Michigan Hospital.

Assisting at the scene were the East Jordan Police Department, the East Jordan Fire Department and Jaws of Life, and the Charlevoix County Road Commission.

The accident remains under investigation.

Harvest Festival just keeps getting better

Even road construction on North Lake Street couldn't keep visitors away.

In only its third year, the Boyne City Fall Harvest Festival is establishing itself as one of the nicest events the community hosts throughout the year.

It all seemed to fall in place for the festival this year, even with Lake Street under construction. Mother Nature cooperated, orchards were well represented and hardly a soul left Veteran's Park without a bag of apples, the music was great, and there were plenty of activities for families.

And what a great display of scarecrows. More than 70 seasonal residents were out and they all added to the festive weekend.

The festival is still young, but it keeps getting better. Next year should be even better. Now we have winter to look forward to.

THIS PAST week we enjoyed a great honor when The Citizen was named "newspaper of the year" in its circulation class. It's a good feeling when you're recognized by your peers.

We intend to continue to strive for excellence and we hope to bring the same degree of excellence to the East Jordan Journal.

IT'S ONLY LIFE

Compromise is key to positive growth

By ROGER HUCKLE

East Jordan needs affordable housing. East Jordan needs commercial development. During the past year the East Jordan City Commission has had the opportunity to review proposals in both of the above categories. Both proposals were denied as presented.

Projects such as a McDonald's restaurant and the Jordan Valley Estates housing development rarely come to fruition without a joint effort to find a suitable compromise agreeable to both parties.

Personally, I did not want to see a McDonald's restaurant erected in East Jordan's Tourist Park and I do not want to subsidize a housing development with my tax dollars, yet I believe both of the above developments would be beneficial to both the economic vitality and the citizens (present and future) of East Jordan.

I'm not an expert in Planned Unit Developments or municipal law, but it would seem that a compromise could be worked out on the tap fees. Maybe the city could let the developers begin construction, install the water and sewer lines (at their cost) but defer the tap fees until each unit is sold then collect the fees from the purchasers of the units. This would cut the initial investment required of the developers yet still allow the city to be compensated once the lines actually begin to be used.

I also have a problem with the property tax law that fails to classify these units as real property. This loophole is unfair to the conventional homeowners of a municipality, yet, is also one of the reasons pre-manufactured housing is so affordable. It would seem to me, given the fact that a majority of homes being sold today are pre-manufactured, that it is only a matter of time before enough municipalities exert the pressure required to mandate a change in this legislation allowing these units to be subject to city and school millage.

As far as the McDonald's proposal, I realize there aren't too many available, desirable locations on the M-66 corridor in close proximity to the M-32 intersection that would be suitable for a development of this type, and I don't know if the developers were willing to look at other locations, but, given the magnitude of the potential tax revenue generated by a restaurant, a committee might have been formed by the commission to pursue a compromise arrangement with the developers.

Successful economic development presents a variety of challenges to a community desiring growth and change without sacrificing its character and atmosphere. I believe the answers lie in creative and innovative problem solving techniques to arrive at the compromises necessary to encourage development yet retain integrity. The solutions are not easy, yet the potential rewards are enormous.

East Jordan, with its formation of the Downtown Development Authority, has indicated it desires growth and change. Unfortunately the city has not been very successful in encouraging the perception that growth and change is indeed wanted given the fact that neither of these developmental opportunities have been taken advantage of.

A MOM'S LIFE

Not all the what-ifs were covered

By CINDI PLACE

When we chose to have a large family, at least by today's standards, we thought that all the "what if's" had been covered.

What if we need a bigger house? What if college costs are too high? What if they all decide they need designer jeans on the same payday?

But what we hadn't considered was just how we were going to feel when we would mix with other parents who were just beginning to raise their families when we were finally seeing light at the end of the tunnel.

It's an oldest-youngest thing. Our youngest child is being raised along with the oldest children of, well, people we still remember as children themselves. We should have gotten a hint of what was to come when we took a peek at our kindergarten's list of classmates. My husband looked at me, perplexed.

"Who are these people?" he asked. As I scanned the list, I could recognize only a couple of names, but then they couldn't be who I thought they were because the parents would have to be...12, right? I mean, these people who I could still remember as middle schoolers, certainly couldn't be old enough to hold down a job, let alone raise a family. Could they?

Our fears of being the oldest parents alive were further enhanced when we began attending school meetings. These people, these young parents, could still actually fit in the tiny kindergarten chairs. Well, if they could sit there so could I. The problem was getting up, with some amount of grace at least.

Then I started paying closer attention to the parents of my child's new classmates. At soccer games, I realized that indeed there were an awful lot of young parents milling about. But, eureka, I found a small contingent of us oldies as well. We cheered our little guys on and reminisced about the antics of our older children. And we avoided the one subject that actually drew us all together, we had become the elder statesman, so to speak.

I can remember the first time our family went to a college reunion. As we watched the football game, I leaned over to my husband and whispered "aren't they awfully young to be beating themselves up out there?" Indeed, all the college students appeared much younger than they should have been. My husband, in that endearing way of his, simply answered, "Well, we're older now dear." He's a big help.

But one thing that I have observed as I watch these young people learning to be parents is that the example of the generation before them seems to have been a good one. Fathers being more involved with their children was still a pretty new concept when we were a young family. But as our generation struggled with working mothers and the ways that fathers became more involved in their children's day-to-day lives, we were being watched.

Now there are at least as many dads as moms at school, athletic and social events. I can see children being allowed to express their opinions even more than before and parents who, although not necessarily permissive, are at least more open to listening to their children before pronouncing judgment. These young parents seem to really enjoy their children, something we older parents have often times had to learn the hard way.

People I used to view as "just kids" are now my contemporaries, at least in the family sense. They may never be as old as I am, or as experienced, but we have a bond in that we have chosen to raise our families during this particular era in time and in that we are all the same.

Now I know how the parents of our oldest daughter's friends felt whenever we were around. I always wondered about the funny looks we got when we zipped out of those silly kindergarten chairs.

News from Bosnia: 'Everyone respects us'

TO THE EDITOR:

When last I wrote, I told you all about LA Diane and LA Demi.

Well, Diane is no more and a few other camps have been taken down. All part of the re-deployment plan. Diane was the first to close. It was nicknamed "Shawshank." It got its nickname because it was small with guard towers and floodlights. Although we could go on convoys, we had to have four vehicles and at least 10 people.

When we had the closing ceremonies for LA Diane (Shawshank), there were cheers and pictures and stories to be told.

When we left, Ben (sitting by himself on the roof) was waving good-bye!

You all don't know Ben. I'll fill you in on him.

Ben was a rat. He was about 10 inches long and 3 inches high. About like a small cat or dog. He was a smart guy.

Ben was caught in a rat trap about a month after Diane opened. My NCO saw him in it. He was swinging it around with the little Snickers bar in his mouth. With no stick or anything, he (Sgt. Meier) went to get a shovel. When he came back, there was silence. Sgt. Meier thought Ben was dead. Wrong! Ben freed himself. We joke and say Ben turned over and bench pressed the trap and crawled out. So, now you know Ben. Not like us though. I saw him a few times.

This deployment to Bosnia has been fun and educational. It's not like the Gulf war or any other war. It was a peace mission. We (the US Army's 4/12 INF Battalion) have had very few encounters with resistance. Everyone here respects us and enjoys our presence.

Today, Sept. 14, was election day for the Bosnians. NATO has worked hard to get the polling sites secured and set up. Three of my roommates are with (M.I.) Military Intelligence, they have been out since 5 a.m. getting set. It's 21:00 or 9 p.m. and they haven't returned yet. They should return by 23:30. Things should go o.k. We hope!

After we closed out Diane, we moved into Demi. It's a lot better at Demi. More room, showers, a running track, weights and a volleyball and basketball court. I know, all you vets of Vietnam and Korea are thinking we have it easy. Well, we do somewhat. But, we still work all day and have P.T. from 06:00 till 07:30. Guard is pulled by everyone.

Myself, being in the Recovery section, I have to be ready to roll out the gates within 20 minutes, from wherever I am. That's getting dressed, getting radio freq's from the "Took," putting in the freq's, mounting the 50 cal, and checking all of my track. It's a fun and challenging job. I like it. Having one of the army's most powerful Tracks under my control is great.

I wish I could bring it back to Boyne to show you all, but, I can't. Sorry!

Benefit a big success

TO THE EDITOR:

On Sunday, Sept. 29 a benefit was held for Lyle Walter, Sr.

This auction and raffle was put on by Lyle Walter Jr., in memory of his father who died on Aug. 10, 1996. Lyle wanted to do something very positive in memory of his father and he had much support from his musical friends, the businesses in East Jordan, and the Jordan Valley Express.

The benefit was called "Hot Country For a Good Cause!" and the beneficiaries of this benefit were the Charlevoix County Hospice and District Health Department No. 3 Hospice.

Lyle and his friends raised $1,300 for us, and we want everyone to know just how much we appreciate everything they did to make this a success. I know that Lyle Senior would have enjoyed this musical afternoon and evening!

A real-life experience

High school students will receive a sobering message

Two young people who know firsthand what can result from mixing drugs and alcohol with a motor vehicle will share their stories with East Jordan High School students on Oct. 17 at 9:40 a.m.

Rich Archuleta and Jason Feller from the nationally-recognized auto safety program, "A Fine Line," are visiting northern Michigan high schools during a two-week tour sponsored by the Michigan Association of Insurance Companies (MAIC). The Students Against Driving Drunk Chapter at East Jordan High School is co-sponsoring the event.

Although teenagers comprise only about 8 percent of the driver population here, they represent approximately 12 percent of all drivers involved in alcohol-related crashes.

Archuleta and Feller were like most young people and thought it would never happen to them. But it did.

Archuleta and Feller tour the country, speaking to high school students in hopes of preventing others from experiencing the same tragedy. Archuleta and Feller will spend two weeks appearing at high schools in Michigan under MAIC sponsorship.

"In their own words, they will share the pain they felt when they learned that their dreams were shattered — because of drinking and driving," said Lori White, MAIC communications director.

During the presentation, Archuleta will recreate the night when a drunk driver tried to run his motorcycle off the road. Archuleta, who wasn't wearing a helmet, was forced to jump off the motorcycle and then hit a curb, permanently injuring his spinal cord.

Feller's story is different. He went out partying and attempted to drive home. He wasn't wearing a seat belt when he lost control of the vehicle and was ejected through the back window. He now has a permanent head injury.

MAIC is a non-profit, public information organization representing property/casualty insurance companies in this state. This is the 17th year that MAIC has sponsored auto safety presentations in Michigan high schools.

Amanda

paid off, according to varsity basketball coach Steve Hines.

"Amanda is the kind of kid that you'd like to have more of, she really deserves everything she gets, and she has a great work ethic.

"She has really made a lot of sacrifices — every time the gym is open, she's here. She does have some natural ability, but she has put in the hard work to become as good as she can," Hines said.

Hines also credits Amanda with making an honest man out of him. "You always tell kids that hard work and constant practice are the keys to success, and it's good to see what you say will work in practice," Hines said.

"She has also done a great job of keeping her head this year, which is really a tribute to her character and personality."

Part of her continued devotion to the sport can be seen through her commitment to furthering girl's basketball in the community.

With the help of her father Dan, Amanda has been able to develop a few local programs that enable her to share her talents with others.

"My Dad started a Jordan Valley AAU program, that encourages off-season basketball. The program combines girls from other communities who can play together and get to know each other," Amanda said.

One friend that Amanda has made through her off-season efforts promises to be a lasting one.

"Anna Parker, a senior at Cedarville, has also been recruited to go to Lake State with me. We are rooming together, and we are excited to be on the same schedule, sharing the same adventure," Amanda said.

In addition to the AAU program, Amanda and her father have established a girls pee-wee basketball league in East Jordan.

"We had 72 third through sixth grade girls — just from East Jordan," Amanda said. "It's so exciting."

Amanda's enthusiasm branches into every area of her life, including one of the newest commitments in her list of priorities.

"Last summer I went to Spring Hill, a Christian basketball camp, and had the best experience of my life there. I realized that basketball could be taken away from me at any minute, and I needed something more," Amanda said. "I used to have a terrible temper, and I wasn't always a very nice person, but I've really changed since I recommitted my life to God."

Outside of basketball season, Amanda has proven her well-rounded athletic ability.

In the winter, Amanda plays volleyball — a sport with a different speed, but a similar commitment from Amanda.

"I played for the first time my sophomore year, and I was all-conference my junior year," Amanda said. "I also run track, and went to the state meet in the 100 hurdles and long jump last year."

Although Amanda's athletic interests take up the majority of her time, she also enjoys the free time she can spend with her friends and family.

"We are a very sports-oriented family. It seems like we are always playing, watching, or talking sports," Amanda said. "We also like to sail and ski."

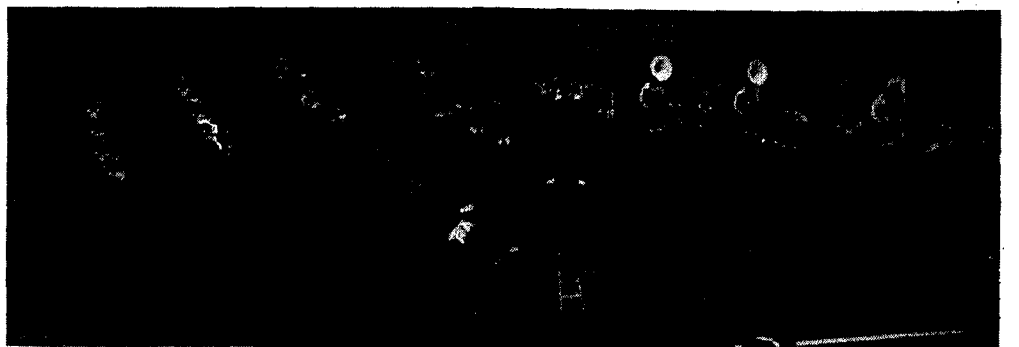

Amanda also enjoys her girlfriends, both off and on the court, and admits that one of her favorite past-times is just hanging out with her friends.

Very often, though, spending time with her friends doesn't mean time away from basketball.

"Last spring break, I took my friend Ann Hettig with me to Naples. We would lay out on the beach during the day and go down to the park to play basketball at night," Amanda said. "We played with all men, who weren't used to playing with girls at first, but by the end of the week, we were able to play right with them. My mom asked us if we wanted to take a night off, but we said 'No Way!' That was the highlight of our trip," Amanda said.

A valued member of East Jordan, Amanda has recently had the honor of being selected to the East Jordan homecoming court, and although she is pleased with the honor, she admits that she may be a little busy that week, having the Kalkaska game foremost in her mind.

More than anything else, Amanda has devoted herself to being the best that she can in every way that she can. "Most of all I've gained a lot of confidence. I want to be ready and able to be the one to be there when it is all on the line,"

The East Jordan High School band took the field early Monday afternoon for a brief performance.

East Jordan band hosts clinic

East Jordan High School played host Monday to five area marching bands working to improve their skills.

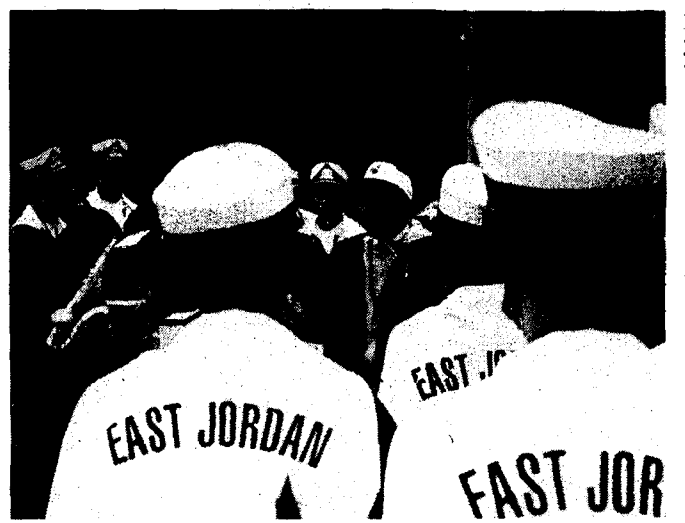

EJHS hosted the District II Michigan Schools Band and Orchestra Clinic at Boswell field from 11 a.m.-1:30 p.m.

The clinic was designed so that each band received a half hour of presentation time, during which they present their half time show and receive praise and instruction from the attending clinicians.

Joey Orefice, a Grand Rapids-based band clinician, watches each presentation closely and records his comments for the bands to review with their video tape at a later date. Orefice then works with the band, offering advice for improvements.

The clinic is designed with the smaller school in mind, and hopes to enhance both performance and enthusiasm throughout the school.

"We did this last year, and our kids were very impressed," said East Jordan band director Tom Steggall.

Joey Orefice, a Grand Rapids-based clinician, shares some insights with band members.

"We were really looking forward to it again this year." Participating schools included East Jordan, Boyne City, Traverse City St. Francis, Onaway, and Mancelona.

The Great Pumpkin Caper will be Monday, Oct. 28, at the East Jordan Elementary School cafeteria.

The caper begins at 7 p.m. and entries will be accepted until 7:30 p.m. Pumpkin lighting starts at 7:30 p.m. with judging to follow.

Pumpkin prize categories are: best carved, best decorated, funniest, scariest, and best of show. There will be games, prizes, free cider and doughnuts, and a bake sale.

Guess the right number of pumpkin seeds and win a library surprise

The Jordan Valley District Library is again sponsoring a "guess how many seeds in the Halloween pumpkin contest."

Every patron who checks out a book can guess how many seeds are in the 25-pound pumpkin. It will be carved on Monday, Oct. 28. A surprise will be awarded to the winner.

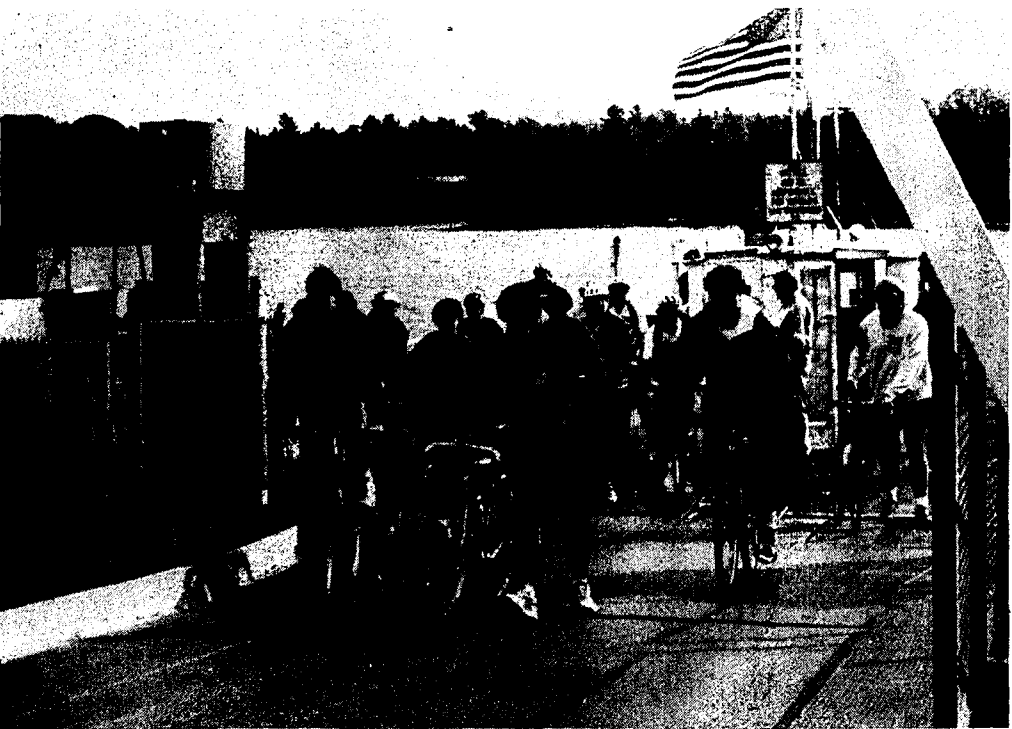

Karen and Bob Donaldson of East Jordan are displaying their landscaping photos in the library during October. A display of Karen's printing services are also on display.

Dial-in access to the library's database is now available by dialing 536-0089, via a modem. When connecting, type in LIBRARY. This will connect patrons to the library's database and allow patrons to put books on hold, see when their library card expires and when their books are due.

Other information available includes information on community organizations, agencies, and area libraries; an event calendar, dictionary word finder, dictionary abbreviation finder, and dictionary alphabetical search. Database can be searched by author, title, subject or series. A software program of either windows or DOS is needed with settings set at 8, none, and one. Modem should be at 9600 baud in ANSI or VT 100 emulation.

Jordan Valley District Library's homepage is also on the world wide web at <http://www.nlc.lib.mi.us/members/jordan.htm>. It contains hours, staff, trustees, policies and services.

Moonlight Madness is coming to town

This time of year, things always get a little spookier, and a lot more fun. In keeping with this tradition, downtown East Jordan is planning to make this year's Moonlight Madness a special event.

On Thursday, Oct. 17, downtown East Jordan will be alive with fall festivities, centered around an extensive children's program held at the East Jordan Senior Center.

From 5-8 p.m., the senior center will host programs for children, including pumpkin decorating, face painting, games and more. Debbie Peck, cook at the senior center, will also serve a sloppy joe dinner.

While these events take place, local merchants will be offering special savings and celebrations.

"It is a good time for people who work out of town to spend the evening in town, at the different business open houses," said Mary Faculak, East Jordan chamber of commerce director.

Look for more information and special attractions in next week's paper.

City leaders attend Municipal League convention

East Jordan City Administrator David White and city commissioners Lyle Etcher and Ronald Klooster were on Mackinac Island Sept. 27 attending the 98th annual convention of the Michigan Municipal League.

Nearly 1,000 local government leaders met to develop municipal policies and to help local governments respond to critical needs of citizens and communities.

The 1996 Convention of Michigan cities and villages brought municipal officials from around the state together to hear expert speakers from across the country discuss the problems of downtown redevelopment, environmental issues and juvenile issues. Officials also had the opportunity to discuss ethics and leadership issues. Sessions on citizen service, zoning issues, land use, grants and using consultants were offered.

Community Foundation gets a boost

Charlevoix County's education, environment, civic, cultural, and human service programs can look forward to some extra support in the next year.

The Frey Foundation has awarded a grant of $115,000 to the Charlevoix County Community Foundation to help underwrite operations, build a bigger endowment, and increase the local organization's charitable grantmaking.

This is the fifth consecutive year that Frey has extended support to the community foundation, bringing the total of its financial assistance to $500,000.

"We're extremely pleased that the Frey Foundation has continued its generous support," said Mike Stowe, president of the Charlevoix County organization. "Their funding has been critical in getting us off to a great start and allowing us to have an immediate impact on the communities we serve."

The Charlevoix County Community Foundation was established by a group of local citizens in 1992 to address local needs and benefit the area now, and for generations to follow.

Serving as a common "savings account" for many of the county's charitable funds, the foundation receives contributions from individuals and organizations and manages them in a permanent endowment.

Investment income from the endowment is used to support a variety of worthy programs, make scholarships, and enrich life for residents of the area. Sixteen trustees representing each community in the county — including Beaver Island — govern the organization.

Through the generosity of local contributors, and matching grants from both the Frey and Kellogg foundations, the community foundation's assets have grown to $4 million and the group has awarded more than $300,000 in grants and scholarships.

For more information about the Charlevoix County Community Foundation and its grantmaking activities call 536-2440.

Historic Beardsley House is adding rooms

Vicki Standen said the project has been "a little grander" than expected but she's still enjoying it.

By KRISTEN KUBOVCHICK

Street reconstruction has taken over a part of downtown Boyne City, but if you think that the only significant changes are the ones forcing you to detour, you are quite mistaken.

The Beardsley House, located on Pearl Street in downtown Boyne City, is presently undergoing a significant addition, without taking away from its original integrity.

The Beardsley House has been an important part of downtown Boyne City since 1898, when it was built by Alfred Beardsley, who followed his brother George north during Boyne City's railroad days.

After the Beardsleys moved back down state in 1903, the house was purchased by Bruce Catton, a well-known Civil War historian. Then, during the 1950's, the house was occupied by Harry Jannings, a Toledo police chief and US Marshall for the area.

Renovations on the house began in 1972 when the Tufolo family purchased the house, and undertook a majority of the renovation.

Four years ago, Vicki and Dave Standen were visiting Boyne City when they saw the house, and made a life-changing decision.

"We were on vacation up here during the summer of 1992, and we saw the house and fell in love," Vicki said.

Because the house was almost fully restored, the Standens only found it necessary to restore the living and dining room floors and install a tin ceiling upstairs.

After making these renovations, the Beardsley House was open to area visitors as a bed and breakfast. Because the entire house is used for guests, Dave and Vicki only had a small bedroom and bathroom for their personal space. These cramped quarters, along with the fact that upstairs guests had to share the downstairs bathroom made an addition necessary, Vicki said.

With these goals in mind, Vicki hired Floyd Wright to design an addition that could give the Standens more living space, and yet keep the original architectural lines of the house.

"We wanted to maintain the integrity of this turn-of-the-century house," Vicki said. "We are duplicating windows, trim, and adding space very carefully to preserve authenticity."

The addition will give the Standens a new bedroom, which will turn their old bedroom into a sitting/work room. In addition, each upstairs suite will have its own bathroom, and a shared laundry room.

The best part of the addition, however, is hidden from most people's view.

"We have such a great view of the Boyne River out the back, and I've always loved the idea of a wrap around porch, so we've combined them and built a porch with a built-in gazebo into the back of the house," Vicki said.

She hopes the addition will be completed by Thanksgiving, and admits that, "This project is a little grander than I anticipated, but I'm enjoying it."

BUSINESS

Carey's Market has new owners

A familiar business has gained a new name and owner in East Jordan.

Carey's Corner Market IGA was recently purchased by Tom and Arthur Yaldo of Petoskey. The brothers are not strangers to the retail food business. Within the past few years they have opened the 4 Corner Market and the 4 Corner Market Too in Petoskey and Bay Harbor.

Their plans for their new East Jordan location, to be named the 4 Corner Market III IGA, include remodeling and extensive product additions.

"We plan on adding a deli, as well as more wine and liquor, and more selections overall," said Tom Yaldo. "We also plan on being open earlier, and staying open later."

The 4 Corner Market III will also cater beverages for parties, as well as provide party trays.

'The Plaid Petunia' opens

"Upstairs at the Bridge," the antique and collectible craft addition to Busy Bridge in East Jordan, has recently acquired a new addition — The Plaid Petunia.

The Plaid Petunia was started by Cathy Cohen and Jean Alward, who first began crafting together at last year's Country Christmas Sampler. Their folk art and hand crafted items met with big success, and a partnership was born.

Open since July, The Plaid Petunia held its formal grand opening last Saturday during the Leaf Peckers festival.

"We have a pretty small room, but it is a good start for us," said Cohen. "We hope to do more, but keeping this room stocked is keeping us busy for now."

There are 5 different vendors at "Upstairs at the Bridge," whose products range from holiday and craft items, to antiques and collectibles.

"Upstairs at the Bridge" is located at 207 Main St. in East Jordan.

A big success

Immunization clinics full through December

Since Michigan was declared the worst of the 50 states in numbers of children who are up-to-date with their immunizations, area health care organizations have been trying to improve the record.

A partnership between Charlevoix Area Hospital and District Health Department No. 3 is proving to be effective in doing just that. For the past two months clinics have been held in Boyne City at the Charlevoix Area Hospital Boyne Rehab Center. Nearly 100 children of all ages have received their immunizations.

Jean McDonough, R.N., District Health Department Immunization coordinator, said: "We have received a lot of positive feedback from clients. They like the location as well as the evening hours."

The clinics, which run from 3-7 p.m., have drawn people from Petoskey, Boyne Falls, East Jordan and Walloon Lake, in addition to Boyne City.

The clinics are already full for November and December, McDonough said. Anyone wishing to schedule an appointment for after January, should call 547-6523.

Cleaning up the Jordan

Bags of trash and several big ticket items get hauled out

Old ringer washers. A hot water heater. An old clunker TV. Hundreds of junk shingles. These were items that appeared to have been dumped near the Jordan River - some years ago. Now they're finally out and hauled to a landfill - thanks to a group of hearty volunteers who participated in the semi-annual Friends of the Jordan River Cleanup in, at times, subpar weather conditions.

"The old ringer washers must have been dumped at the apple orchard off Cascade Road in the '40s or '50s judging by the amount of rust on them," said John Hummer, program director of Friends of the Jordan (FOJ). "We were fortunate to have a local waste hauler (Top Rank Disposal, Inc. of Charlevoix) offer their services for a free pickup the following Monday. The whole watershed community should be grateful to have a business put their heart in their work to help keep a public treasure such as the Jordan Valley clean."

All told, 11 volunteers were hard at it on a rather dreary Saturday afternoon. The weather - drizzly and in the 50s - was a factor in the rather low turnout of volunteers for the cleanup. "I think we did great for the small number of people we had out there," said Dick Bjorem of East Jordan, one of FOJ's board members who helped get the washers out of the watershed. "It was definitely a successful cleanup."

Another part of the cleanup

Four volunteers who helped with the clean-up show off part of debris they pulled from the river.

crew canoed down the Jordan and picked up trash along the banks. Doug Fuller, another FOJ board member who donned a dry suit, and his wife, Martha, braved the cold water to keep the river clean.

In addition to the "big ticket items," about 20 bags of trash were hauled out of the river and the surrounding watershed.

Despite the larger junk items hauled out, a newcomer to the FOJ board, Tom Durecki (who runs Arnold's Bait & Tackle in East Jordan), was surprised at what he didn't see. Durecki and Cheryl Matthews, of Petoskey, handled the stretch of the valley from Pinney Bridge to Jordan River Road in Alba. "What really surprised me was how clean the valley was. This was my first time in that part of the valley in a long time and I couldn't believe how litter-free it was."

Another FOJ member who volunteered for the cleanup, Bonnie Lent of Boyne City, worked around the Graves Crossing campground area. She had a little different story. "It was terrible the amount of trash we picked up. We could have searched for a lot longer and got a bunch more. Wherever we went, there seemed to be garbage. But I did enjoy it. We (her son Nolan also helped out) like being out in the woods anyway, so we thought this was an opportunity to do something good while being out there." Nolan, an 11-year-old, was impressed by the experience. "I'm looking forward to the next one!" he said.

Drug dog sniffs at BCCHS, finds some cigarettes

Astor came, he sniffed, and left without finding the scent of any illicit drugs at Boyne City High School last Tuesday.

Astor, a drug-sniffing canine for the Traverse City Police Department, was requested by the high school administration through the Boyne City Police Department. The dog and its handler, Traverse City Officer Steve Morgan, make occasional searches of the school, according to principal Xavier Gaudard.

Five lockers were "alerted" on by Astor, and search by Boyne City officers, according to police chief Randy Howard. No drugs were located, he said, but cigarettes were confiscated and turned over to school officials.

Officers also used Astor at the alternative education classes held at the library. No drugs were found, Howard said.

Stolen vehicle involved in wreck

A 1992 GMC "Jimmy" 4X4 was recovered late Saturday morning in Wilson Township by the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department.

The vehicle was reported stolen from the city of Petoskey at approximately 6 a.m. Saturday. It was found later in the morning when it was involved in an accident at the intersection of Pearsall Road and Sloop Road.

The driver of the vehicle apparently failed to negotiate a curve and struck a power pole. Witnesses, according to investigating officers, said three suspects got out of the crashed vehicle and fled on foot.

One of the suspects was arrested in a field approximately one mile west of the crash. Brent Lee Leech, 20, of East Jordan and Petoskey, has been charged with possession of a stolen auto, a felony.

The sheriff's department was assisted at the scene by the East Jordan Police Department, Department of Natural Resources, Michigan State Police and the East Jordan Fire Department.

The crash caused a power outage in the immediate area.

Boyne student attending young leader's conference Seeing the capital up close Whitney Schraw of Boyne City has been selected to attend the National Young Leaders Conference from Oct. 15-20 in Washington, D.C.

The National Young Leaders Conference is a leadership development program for high school students who have demonstrated leadership potential and scholastic merit. Whitney, a senior at Harbor Light Christian School, will be among 350 scholars attending the conference from across America.

The theme of the National Young Leaders Conference is "The Leaders of Tomorrow Meeting the Leaders of Today." Throughout the six-day conference, Whitney will interact with key leaders and newsmakers from the three branches of government, the media and the diplomatic corps.

Highlights of the program include welcoming remarks from the floor of the United States House of Representatives and a panel discussion with prominent journalists at the National Press Club. Scholars will visit foreign embassies and receive policy briefings from senior government officials.

Whitney may also meet with her Senators and Representative or an appointed member of their staff to discuss important issues facing Boyne City and the nation.

Whitney Schraw

To complement these special meetings and briefings, Whitney will participate in a number of leadership skill-building activities. In one activity, "If I Were President," students role-play the president, members of the Cabinet and representatives from Capitol Hill who must respond to an international crisis involving Russia.

Culminating the National Young Leaders Conference is the "Model Congress," in which scholars assume the roles of United States Representatives by debating, amending and voting on proposed legislation for an official language and immigration reform.

The National Young Leaders Conference is sponsored by the National Youth Leadership Council, a nonprofit, nonpartisan educational organization.

Whitney is the daughter of Tom and Marlene Schraw of Boyne City.

It wasn't easy

Ramblers put to the test by Harbor Springs and this week they face Charlevoix for its homecoming

By TED KARASZEWSKI

Boyer City met its first serious challenge of the season last Friday night at Harbor Springs as the upstart Rams tried to use the Ramblers as a sacrificial lamb in honor of their homecoming.

Boyer was ready for the "gut check" as it handed Harbor a 17-0 loss and remains undefeated at 5-0.

"Our kids learned that other teams can play up to our level when they have to," said coach Pat Klooster.

"It's not that we played poorly, it's that coach Brines had his team well prepared and motivated. He's turned Harbor's program around and created a lot of interest in football around Harbor Springs. One look at the size of the crowd will tell you that."

The Rams gave Boyer all it could handle in the first half as they twice moved deep into Rambler territory only to be turned back by a stiff Boyer City defense. Harbor fumbled on first and goal from the 6-yard line then later failed to convert a first down on fourth and inches from the Rambler 11-yard line.

Boyer City shot itself in the foot twice in the first half with turnovers; once on their opening drive as Dean Fiel fumbled at the Harbor Springs 42 yard line and again later when Steve Johncheck's pass was intercepted by Harbor's Garrett Krusel late in the second quarter.

Place-kicker Alex Berti's field goal attempt in the closing seconds of the half sailed wide to the right sending both teams into the locker room with a scoreless tie.

Boyer came out in the second half fired up as the offensive line started blowing Harbor off the ball and it was just a matter of time before the Ramblers would get on the board.

Boyer City's Jeremy Andrews set up the game's first score with a nifty 20-yard punt return to the Rams 23-yard line. Three plays later, Fiel scored up the middle from 15 yards out. Berti added the extra point kick for a 7-0 lead.

As he does after each game, Boyer City coach Pat Klooster took some time after the Harbor Springs' win Friday night to talk with his team. The win improved Boyer's record to 5-0.

Berti tacked on another 3 points with his first ever field goal with 9:20 left in the game for a 10-0 Rambler lead.

Harbor Springs still had some fight, though, as it moved the ball from its own 25-yard line to Boyer City's 45 where it stalled with a fourth and 8. The Rams tried a little trickery with a fake punt but ended up getting Matt Cupp's pass picked off by Josh May.

Three plays later, wing back Chuck Stanek took off around left end on a reverse and raced 23 yards to the end zone for a touchdown. Berti added the extra point for a 17-0 Rambler lead.

Boyer City collected 10 first downs as it piled up 210 yards rushing and none in the air. Fiel led the ground attack with 85 yards on 17 carries. Josh May gained 53 yards on 11 tries, Steve Johncheck rushed 5 times for 24 yards while Scott Karaszewski had 20 yards on 5 carries. Stanek had 23 yards on 3 carries.

For Harbor, David Crawford was the leading ground gainer with 63 yards on 13 carries.

Defensively for the Ramblers, Corey Lockman and Wade Leist each had 10 tackles while Cliff Bates and Jason Richards added eight tackles each. May had seven tackles and a fumble recovery to go with his interception and Brian Mapes and James Persons each had six tackles.

The Ramblers face another tough challenge this week when they travel to Charlevoix Friday to try and spoil the Rayder homecoming. Game time is 7:30 p.m.

Charlevoix impressive in win over Red Devils

By RICH CLARK

The East Jordan Red Devils varsity football team never got on track, as it fell to an impressive Charlevoix team 31-8 Friday night.

East Jordan had one big play from junior Scott Haley but couldn't capitalize on it or stop the host Charlevoix Rayders.

The big play was an 84-yard kick return by Haley, who broke a couple of tackles and had some key blocks for a touchdown. Parke Bluhm threw the 2-point conversion pass to Josh Luck that tied the score at 8-8 early in the second quarter. However, that's as close as East Jordan could get.

Dillon Antaya picked up 22 yards rushing to lead East Jordan, Shane Swan gained 19 yards, Parke Bluhm finished with 10 yards.

Matt Ingalls led the Devil D with 20 tackles, Amos Skrocki had 18 stops, Luke McLaren and Mike Mazzella finished with 12 each. Russell Goodburn and Rob Reid each had a fumble recovery and McLaren had an interception which he returned for 12 yards.

East Jordan, now winless in conference play and 2-3 overall, travels to Elk Rapids Friday night. The Elks are 1-3 in conference play and 2-3 overall.

Lady Loggers win a thriller

Boyer Falls evened its Northern Lakes Division conference record last Wednesday with a thrilling win over the Mackinaw City Comets, 34-33. The Loggers are now 3-3 conference, and 5-7 overall.

With 17 seconds remaining in the game, the Comets took a 33-31 lead on a field goal by Tracey Downing. Boyer Falls got the ball to Andrea Kondrat with six seconds left, and she drained a three pointer for the win, ending Mackinaw City's three-game win streak.

Two of the Logger starters, Penny Marchinkewicz and Karen Giem, got into early foul trouble and sat out most of the second and third quarters. Both players eventually fouled out in the fourth stanza.

Kondrat stepped up to lead the Loggers with 13 points.

Marchinkewicz added seven points while Beth Freck chipped in with six. Karen Giem was the top rebounder with 11 boards while Kondrat and Freck had four assists each. Marchinkewicz had four steals and Giem blocked three shots.

Downing led the Comets with nine points, Melina Scott and Dara Dessart added seven points each.

Mackinaw's record is now 4-2 league and 4-7 overall.

Boyer Falls made 10 field goals, two 3-pointers and was 8 for 23 from the charity stripe. The Comets had nine field goals and was 15 of 34 from the line.

Boyer Falls hosted Lake Leelanau St. Mary's on Tuesday, Oct. 8 in a non-league contest, then hosts Wolverine this Thursday, Oct. 10.

EJ runners turn in a strong showing

The East Jordan Cross Country teams traveled last Saturday to Charlevoix to compete among other class A, B, and C teams to improve their individual and team scores.

The boys' team placed third, with Nate Gagnon taking 11th place with a time of 17:34.

"Our captain Nate Gagnon is finally in shape and running as he should," said East Jordan coaches

Dennis Snarey and Matt Peterson. "This was a tough course, and we still had three runners under 18:00 for the boys. It's also exciting to know that we had four freshmen running today."

Other times include: Nate Sothard 17:49, Mark Penzien 17:58, Chris Bearden 18:07, Charlie Hague 18:15, Kevin Penzien 18:33, Matt Shaw 18:40, Dustin Tinney 19:15, Matt Birgy 19:25, and Chris Bacon 21:01.

Although the girls were unable to take a full team, and therefore did not place overall, the individual runners who attended ran well. Emily Niewendorp placed 27th with a time of 22:44, Beth Purvis placed 33rd with 23:11, and Debbie Bacon placed 39th with 23:46.

"Emily Niewendorp had her season's best today. She's been working on 'being tough' and it's starting to pay off for her," said Snarey and Peterson.

The East Jordan Middle School team also ran in Charlevoix, with Micah Middaugh taking first place, Tarn Leach 5th, Corban Shaw 17th, Peter Warnos 19th, Jeremy Booze 28th, Jim Nowka 44th, Jeremy Penzien 73rd, Joe Niewendorp 88th, and Chicory Dodge 94th.

East Jordan hands Lady Rayders their first league loss

This past week was a successful one for East Jordan girls basketball.

On Tuesday, October 1, the girls varsity basketball team defeated Bellaire 65-19. East Jordan was firing on all cylinders as Amanda Pepin poured in 29 points. Ember Ransom added 8 and Jenny Goebel 7 points.

"We played a great defensive game," said head coach Steve Hines.

Leading rebounders were Pepin, Ransom and Looze. The Lady Red Devils ran the fast break well and made good decisions on their passes, Hines said.

The J.V. team also defeated Bellaire 51-33. Jill Ciszewski was the leading scorer with 15 while Suzie Malpass added 14.

On Thursday, the Red Devils defeated Charlevoix in an overtime victory by a score of 46-45.

"We held a commanding lead at half-time but a cold shooting second half made it a close game," Hines said. "It was an exciting game, with a great comeback by Charlevoix."

East Jordan missed two free throws with 4 seconds left in regulation, and Amanda Pepin made the winning free throw with no time left in overtime. Ember Ransom and Jenny Falco both played well on defense.

"This was a big win because it was a home game, a league game, and Charlevoix was undefeated in the league," Hines said.

scorer with 10 points. Jenny Falco added 8. Ember Ransom led in rebounding with 9. Jenny Goebel and Jenny Falco pulled down 8. The win leaves the Lady Red Devils with a record of 6-3.

The freshmen girls hoop team improved to 3-5 with their 30-26 victory over Charlevoix. Lindsay Malpass scored 10 points, Renee Roberts added 7, Jennifer Goebel scored 5, while Robin Spears and Rikki Ford each chipped in with 4 points.

Cynthia Mazzella led the defense while Roberts and Ford controlled the boards.

The junior varsity girls lost a close game to Charlevoix 33-32. Suzie Malpass scored 9 and had 14 rebounds. Jill Ciszewski scored 7 and Rachel Ross scored 7 with 14 rebounds.

Logger runners in a battle for first place

The Loggers took home an important league win from Mackinaw City in a dual meet last Wednesday, downing the Comets 19-39. The win sets up a showdown this Wednesday against first place Wolverine at Boyne Mountain.

Curtis Hansen took first place with a time of 17:20 as he was 42 seconds ahead of the second place finisher.

Still in the second quarter, Persons added another Rambler score with a 2-yard plunge to the end zone. Future Ramblers

Several Boyne City High School football players visited Boyne City kindergarten classrooms last week and while there, they helped students design their own jerseys, and showed them a solid defensive stance. But trying on a helmet, assisted by Wade Leist (left) and Jim Cooper, was the most exciting part of all.

NEIGHBORS

By NANCY NORTHUP

A KELTS REUNION was held Sept. 22 at the home of Justin and Laurie Kelts on M-32. Seventy-two family members arrived from Petoskey, Davison, Newberry, Grayling, Kincheloe, Gaylord, East Jordan, Elmira, Johannesburg, and Grand Rapids, as well as those from the Soo, Ontario and Boyne City. The reunion was especially nice because many had not seen each other in years or had never met. A 1997 reunion is being planned to be held in Newberry.

A LONGTIME BOYNE City resident, Keith Stanley, is now residing at the Bortz Health Care Facility in Petoskey and would appreciate cards or visits from his many area friends.

JOSEPHINE JENICK of Knoxville, Tenn., and Aruba visited her Aunt Delcie Phillips of Boyne City this past week. They drove to the Soo, where they added Josephine's brother, Bill Robinson and wife, Jan, to the group. They traveled to Mantowac, Wis., to see their relatives, Margaret and Duane Greicer and Dick Schlieser and wife Mary Ellen. All enjoyed a dinner at the Greicer home. On Monday, they returned to the Soo and Josephine, who sings with "Sweet Adelines,"

LAST WEEK, Harold and Mary Bradford of London, Ontario spent several days here in Boyne City, touring the area fall colors and visiting their son, Jeff and Julie Bradford.

GUEST SPEAKERS at the Boyne City Free Methodist Church this past Sunday were the Rev. David Clay and wife Linda, church planters of the Escanaba-Gladstone area. They presented an interesting profile of growth taking place. A fellowship dinner followed the service.

MICHELLE AND KEVIN POTTER and daughter Sarah of Kentwood enjoyed the weekend of fall colors and visiting relatives in the Boyne City and Charlevoix areas.

PAT AND PRICILLA BRYAN of Palm Beach, Fla. spent from Thursday to Sunday with his dad, Garth Bryan of Boyne City. They also enjoyed family gatherings with Jeff and Julie Bradford and brother Mark Bryan and wife Jan of Petoskey. Pat's daughter Antoinette and husband Pete Knapp, and children Calvin and Sophia of Grand Rapids were also here.

BILL AND DORIS DELL have returned to their home in Flint after having spent 10 days here in Boyne City with his Aunt Billy Stanley. Bill enjoyed lots of fishing while here.

DALE AND MARTHA STOLT and daughter Katelin of Traverse City spent the weekend at the Boyne City home of his parents, Robert and Marie Stolt. Dale stayed for an extra day of successful fishing.

MICHELLE FELTON, daughter of Jim and Linda of Boyne City, has accepted a teaching position at the Pellston Elementary School. The fifth grade teacher lives in Petoskey.

LELIA VOELKER of Litzenburger Place was taken to the Charlevoix Area Hospital this past Tuesday and is now temporarily a resident of the Fuller Nursing Home on East Jordan's LaLone Road.

BUNNY GARLOCK, Ardith Hawley, and the Oral Sutliffs recently returned from a 5-day bus trip to Nashville, Tenn. They took in a lot of shows and also a three-hour tour of the "gorgeous" homes of the "Stars," which was also very interesting.

The Rev. Charles Fowler

The search is over for Nazarene Church, its new pastor has arrived

After three long years, members of the Boyne City Church of the Nazarene have finally welcomed a new pastor into their church, and a new parsonage.

The Rev. Charles Fowler moved his family to Boyne City two weeks ago, after hearing about the position and visiting Boyne City in August.

The Boyne City Nazarene Church has been under the pastorate of an interim pastor for the last three years, while the congregation built a parsonage, and looked for a permanent minister.

The Fowlers come from northern Indiana, where the Rev. Fowler pastored a church in Valparaiso for the past four years. He and his wife Pam, and their children Andy and Sarah, have already begun to adjust to Boyne City life, and are excited about the possibilities here.

"When we came up and met the church and people, we just fell in love with the area," said the Rev. Fowler. "We like the small town atmosphere, and we like Boyne City."

Although the Fowlers have found a slower paced lifestyle than the one they were used to, they are looking forward to taking time to relax and get to know the area.

"I can tend to be a workaholic, but I am hoping to take time to hunt and fish and get with people again," he said.

The Rev. Fowler first joined with his congregation last Sunday, as they celebrated a start of a new season for the Morgan Street Church of the Nazarene in Boyne City.

Fall Fix-Up SPECIALS

Stay Cozy Without Spending a Fortune

The record-breaking cold of last winter gave Americans a lasting reminder: record-breaking heating bills. Before the mercury starts to fall again, make changes that will keep you cozy and save you money.

A leading manufacturer of home controls and indoor air-quality products, Honeywell Inc., recommends four things you can do to control heating costs. In fact, you can get the equivalent of one month of free heat this winter when you:

1. Replace or wash the furnace filter monthly. It's cheap, it's easy, and it helps protect expensive heating and cooling equipment while extending equipment life. A dirty air filter restricts the air flowing through your home's heating system, causing your furnace to work harder and burn more energy to maintain a comfortable temperature.

Added strain on the heating unit can take its toll. Nine out of 10 mechanical breakdowns of heating and cooling systems are caused by dirt, dust, lint or soot.

2. Advance to a better air cleaner. If you use a standard, disposable furnace filter, switch to a high-efficiency furnace filter. If you already have a high-efficiency filter, invest in an air cleaner.

In addition to giving you healthier air to breathe and reducing problems with allergies and asthma, an air cleaner helps keep your heating system running efficiently. In standard oil- and gas-fired heating units, indoor air pollutants can waste as much as 20 percent of the energy by clogging the furnace filter.

Two types of whole-house air cleaners are available.

- Whole-house electronic air cleaners are the best, removing up to 95 percent of indoor air pollutants, including those as small as bacteria and some viruses.
- Whole-house media air cleaners are good solutions for budget-conscious homeowners.

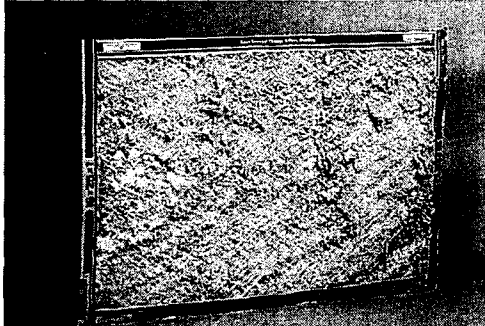

Portable room air cleaners are ideal for homes without forced-air heating or for those homeowners who want to augment the cleaning power of a whole-house air cleaner.

Portable air cleaners featuring high-efficiency particulate air (HEPA) filters are up to 99.97 percent efficient at cleaning the air in one room or area.

3. Have your heating and cooling equipment professionally checked and cleaned once a year. Have the heating coils cleaned. In just two years, dust on heating coils can rob performance by as much as 10 percent to 15 percent. And have the ducts cleaned every two to three years. Regular maintenance also reduces the risk of breakdowns and big repair bills.

4. Replace an ordinary thermostat with a programmable thermostat. A programmable thermostat can save up to 30 percent on energy costs by turning down the heat when you're sleeping or away from home. With simple, push-button programming, you set the times and temperatures to fit your schedule. Set-and-forget convenience means you save without sacrificing comfort and without the hassles of repeatedly adjusting the thermostat.

For more information about saving on heating bills, call Honeywell at 1-800-345-6770, Ext. 7120.

TAKE THE TIME to change or wash the air filter in your furnace, advises Honeywell Inc., a leading manufacturer of home controls and indoor air-quality products. A dirty filter restricts the airflow, forcing your furnace to work harder and use more energy. That costs you more money and aggravates allergies by allowing dust and other pollutants to build up.

Finishing House Repairs Can Help People Burn Calories

Many people seem to dread repairing minor problems that need to be fixed around the house. However, aside from the fact that making the necessary repairs will help improve a home or apartment, it also can help people lose weight.

According to Dr. Bryant A. Stamford, an exercise physiologist at the University of Louisville and author of "Fitness Without Exercise," the American home offers more forms of exercise than "any fitness device ever designed."

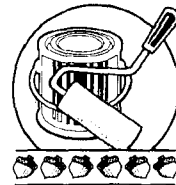

"As little as 30 to 60 minutes a day of light to moderate activity around the house and yard can reduce risks of fatal heart disease," Stamford says.

As annoying as home-improvement chores can sometimes be, they offer the perfect way to burn up calories, while getting housework done at the same time.

The following is an example of the number of calories that can be lost by a 150-pound homeowner:

Bricklaying	205
Carpentry	225
Chain-saw work	220
Electrical work (rewiring)	240
Gardening	300 to 450
