LETTER BOX

More About The Dog Situation In E. Jordan

Dear Editor:

Thank you for printing my letter about East Jordan's dog population a short time ago. The response to it has been gratifying. A few people called me on the telephone, and many more have discussed the subject with me. As I had strongly suspected, I am not the only one who deeply resents the situation and feels that something must be done about it.

I had hoped that some of these people would write to the Public Letter Box. Their grievances are many. Here are just a few:

A decayed deer head hauled onto the front porch.

Overshoes carried away from the steps and never found again.

Milk cartons broken open. I understand that the owner of the huge fellow that pulls this cute trick has stated that there is no dog problem!

Clothing soiled while hanging on the line.

Sheets and blankets completely destroyed by roving dogs.

A little girl bitten twice in one summer by the same dog — while playing in her own yard!

Dogs drinking from the fountain on Mill street!

Little children molested while playing outside. (I could put this in plainer, cruder language.)

A garden so thoroughly worked over by dogs that the owners could not eat the vegetables they had raised.

A physically handicapped woman who is afraid to go outside her house without a weapon with which to defend herself from an ugly brute that runs loose in her neighborhood.

Dogs hanging around houses, and at the school, and behaving in a manner which many parents do not like to have their children observe.

A newly planted apple tree chewed on so persistently by a neighbor's dog that it died.

There are more complaints: I could go on and on.

One thing that strikes me: Of all the people who called me and discussed this with me, not one single owner of an untrained dog spoke to offer a word in his own defense!

As for East Jordan being financially unable to contribute toward the upkeep of a tri-city pound and the salary of a dog catcher, I refuse to believe it. Money is being spent all the time to beautify our city and make it attractive to tourists.

We have a lighted ball park, a fancy tourist park, a new dock. Big plans are being made for improvement of the Sportsmen's Park. All of these have cost money. Why not spend some to make this a decent place for the permanent residents to live and raise our children? Perhaps it is not so much a question of not having the money as it is one of not wanting to spend it in this particular way?

One lady told me that after being chased to her very door by a dog with bared teeth and calling to report it, she was told that unless she had two witnesses, she could not sign a complaint against the dog's owner.

If this is correct, it makes it almost impossible to do anything through that channel. Anyway, Mr. Editor, when you live in a town the size of East Jordan, and expect to live there for a long time to come, you just don't go around signing complaints against your friends and neighbors.

I would do this only as a last resort.

The plain, cold truth is that it should not be necessary to do anything so drastic. We already have an ordinance to protect us against these outrages; it merely needs to be enforced as other city ordinances are enforced. None of us should find it necessary to sign a complaint against people with whom we would like to remain friends.

One young lady remarked, "My father says he isn't going to tie up our dog when nobody else does." This negative attitude is to be sharply criticized. In the first place, there are a lot of us who do respect our neighbors' rights and do tie up our dogs. In the second place, if each dog owner said, "I'm going to tie my dog whether anybody else does or not," there would be no dog problem — really!

To tell the truth, it was my hope when I wrote that letter that if people could be made to realize what a nuisance and menace their pets are, being mostly a pretty nice lot of folks, they would do something about it of their own accord. Maybe I was wrong to have confidence in the innate decency of my fellow humans.

In the September, 1954 issue of the Reader's Digest, an article titled, "Let's Banish the Nightmare of Rabies" appeared. It described what hydrophobia is and how it acts. It started out with a description of the agonies suffered by the victim whose nervous system is attacked by rabies virus — "The all time champion in the big league of torture." The first four paragraphs cover it in a manner that chills the blood. Could anyone who read that article possibly risk having it happen to his own child, or to a child bitten by his dog?

The rest of the article deals with the development of anti-rabies serum for dogs. On page 105, it mentions that paralysis in humans has resulted from rabies vaccinations. If anyone doubts this, I can give the name of a boy whose parents attended my church in Detroit. This lad narrowly escaped death after rabies vaccination, and suffered severe paralysis as an after effect.

If you have kept your back issues of this magazine, won't you please read that article again? Or go to the public library and ask for the September, 1954 Reader's Digest. Read it with your own child in mind.

"Maybe you can't take money with you—but where can you go without it?"

We started looking for the night's lodging almost at once for even The Milepost stated the Fairbanks offered her visitors "practically anything needed except plentiful accommodations." We had almost despaired of finding any vacancy when, at well past dinner time, we came to a lodge that did not advertise in the guide book. Apparently they catered to truckers as the yard was full of huge trucks and trailers.

We stopped anyway, and they took us in. We were pleasantly surprised to find that accommodations and meals were far better than the average — altho, of course, we still shared the one and only bathroom.

We reached Fairbanks fairly early the next morning, and our first stop was to leave the Ford at the Ford dealers for chance of oil, new filters, a grease job, a check on the springs, new headlights, etc.

Noting that our Ford rode so much lower than the local cars we thought we had perhaps damaged the springs. Then too, we had struck bottom so often and dragged, especially in sections where the road was being repaired — aid once near Whitehorse, had even scraped in going over a railroad crossing.

However we were told we should have had the car equipped with "Western springs" before starting out. The Ford dealer there told us that all cars shipped north and northwest were normally so equipped.

While the car was being repaired we walked around Fairbanks for our first view of an Alaskan city, and somehow we can't say we were very favorably impressed. Of course, we had anticipated a frontier pioneer type of city, with the often unobscured evidence of a phenomenal rapid growth, but somehow the narrow, lumpy, none too clean streets, the sidewalk crowds, the majority of whom were apparently making the rounds of the 80 drinking establishments, the "breed" girls plying their trade and picking up the air force men (tarpaper blondes — they look whiter with each drink), and the white men slouching along the streets with their snarls — all served to create for us a picture of a skid row area from one of our large cities. The rain, which continued both days we were there, added nothing to the scene.

At the same time, however, we felt a certain awareness of the subtle influence of Uncle Sam which is lacking in Canadian cities and villages. It wasn't so much the hustle and bustle usually associated with our cities as perhaps the feeling of progress — an elusive sense that here things are growing and advancing and tomorrow they'll be better.

Yet Fairbanks with a population of over 25,000 is already "modern" in one sense of the word. It has several industries, is an aviation center, offering daily service to cities in Canada and the U. S. from its municipal airport, as well as being the home of Ladd and Ellison Air Force Bases. It has a 100 bed hospital, 2 radio and 2 TV stations, 2 theatres, many churches, 2 banks, 2 newspapers, a railroad to Anchorage, a golf club, a dairy herd and the University of Alaska with its ten major buildings and 2250 acres. But in spite of all these facilities, Elmer was sure that he would shortly go "stir crazy" there.

As soon as the car was serviced, we started looking for a place to spend the night. We were lucky, late that afternoon, to find a motel which had one room not yet vacated but already reserved for the following day which we could have for the night in exchange for $15. It was a large motel, and here there were two bathrooms; one for men and one for women.

Once again here the influence of the states was felt. The rooms were tastefully decorated, there was central heating and each bathroom had two stall showers and three toilets as well as a large mirror. Such unheard of luxury! However, this was a very new and first rate motel, and we are sure that many of the others which we tried and which were already filled had no such extravagant features — except, probably, the price.

One motel woman, when she heard we had our own sleeping bags, offered to let us sleep under her roof for only five dollars each. Of course, she made it plain in advance that we were not to use her bathroom, that we were merely to crawl into our sleeping bags where we'd be out of the rain, sleep and get up and get out early the next morning.

We found prices about as high as we had been led to expect them to be. $3.00 for Elmer's haircut, 45c for a restaurant glass of milk, 50c for a head of lettuce, etc. Yet surprisingly enough, coffee prices compared favorably to those in the states.

We stopped at the post office when we first arrived, the last thing before we left, and several times in between. Not only were we hoping for and expecting mail from home, but our companions of the road had promised us a home cooked meal in Fairbanks and were to contact us through General Delivery.

The last time we checked, there were four stacks of mail piled on the counter marked, "general delivery," which had not yet been sorted. We itched to look it over, but had to accept the clerk's pronouncement that there was nothing for us. We left our forwarding address, however and eventually our mail from home and the address we were seeking in Fairbanks reached us back in Michigan.

The following day we drove back down the Alaska Highway about 100 miles to Big Delta Junction, which is the intersection of the Alaska and the Richardson Highways. Actually this last 100 miles of the Alaska Highway is in reality a part of the old Richardson Highway which was Alaska's first auto road from the coast to the interior and was completed in 1920.

There is a U. S. Army base — the famous arctic training center — located a few miles from Big Delta Junction, and where the boys must surely go stir crazy.

The Richardson Highway is an exceptionally beautiful route, leading through magnificent mountain terrain, over bridges, through tunnels, past cascading water falls, through a canyon with its leaning walls, past glaciers and in one place, up to the very face of one.

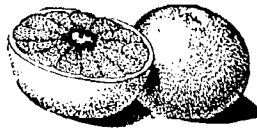

This highway is but partly hard surfaced, however, due to the extreme difficulty which has been encountered in its maintenance because of slides and washouts which occur each spring from two of the most rugged mountain ranges in Alaska. We found some sections of it badly torn up and most difficult to travel, but work is continually going on, and it is hoped that by rerouting some of the most troublesome areas eventually this entire highway will also be surfaced with black top.

On either side of the throne were three attendants, all in colored ski suits; the Misses Jane Davis, Betty Vogel, Marcella Muma and Virginia Bartlett as the Belle's court, Merle Eggert and Sally Campbell bearing the Crown and Scepter on cushions and at the right of the throne stood Principal Clyde F. Miss Eva Dennis, chosen Belle of the Blizzard in the recent contest ascended the throne dressed in a white wool ski suit with cap and mittens to match.

County Bus Drivers Complete Instructions

Charlevoix and Emmet County bus drivers climaxed their annual training school with a joint dinner-meeting at the 4-11 Center, Petoskey, Wednesday last week. A well-defined program marked this as the most successful program in years according to comments from many drivers.

Sgt. Don Downer, Michigan State Police, brought a warm response with his introductory talk on safety and his presentation of the film entitled, "A Day in Court."

R. G. Bennett, Supt. Charlevoix Public Schools outlined the responsibility of each and the close cooperative relationships that must exist between bus drivers and parents and teachers and the administration if the program is to be efficiently operated.

He emphasized the significance of each driver's mental and physical health, the altogether pleasant environment that must exist in order to insure the safety of boys and girls.

Alvin Zabriskie, Supt. Harbor Springs Public Schools, came up with some very interesting on-the-spot computations to show that the bus drivers represented at the meeting drive a distance daily equal to a round trip to

New York City carrying almost 3,000 children.
 Their total annual mileage would equal approximately 11 trips around the earth at the equator.

Bruce T. Blanchard, Supt. Emmet County Schools and Chas. A. Robinson, Supt. Charlevoix County Schools, presented every driver enrolled in the school (who had not had a chargeable accident for a period of three or more years) with a certificate of recognition.

As each driver accepted his award, P. A. Wickstrom, Specialist in Safety and Transportation, Central Michigan College, congratulated them on their achievement. Wickstrom was in charge of instruction. Special recognition was given Roy Emerson Pellston driver, for 20 years of safe driving and two Charlevoix County drivers Leslie Baller, Boyne Falls, and Ray Goodwin, Walloon Lake, for 16 years of safe driving. These three men represented the longest continuous service as bus drivers in the two counties.

In Charlevoix County, 11 schools cooperated in the program, but the honors go to East Jordan with 10 drivers enrolled. Schools with 100% enrollment were East Jordan, Boyne Falls, Walloon Lake and Chandler.

SPRING IS HERE!

ALMOST

In Spring a young man's fancy turns to thoughts of . . . new clothes . . . in fact the whole family is thinking in terms of something new to wear . . . something new for the house . . . a new coat of paint . . . wallpaper, curtains.

The whole world wants to match nature's dress.

The place to find your best values for Spring are in the advertising columns of the East Jordan News-Herald.

And remember, it pays to shop locally.

We have the following news release from the Women's Army Corps Center in Fort McClellan, Alabama:

Private Dolores K. Fairman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Fairman, Charlevoix, Michigan has been assigned to Fort George G. Meade, Md., for duty as a clerk-typist upon completing the Clerical Procedures, and Typing Course at The Women's Army Corps Center, Fort McClellan, Ala.

Enlisting in the WAC in October at Detroit, Private Fairman is a graduate of Banks Township Public High School, Ellsworth.

Clerk-typist training is from four to eight weeks in length and stenographic training is scheduled for a maximum of 12 weeks. Students having attained the proficiency necessary for assignment may be graduated after a minimum of four weeks. During that time they are taught subjects such as military correspondence, pay and allowances, office procedures, military security and military courts and boards.

Progress Made On Memorial

The Ladies Get Together Club of North Echo are announcing that the beautiful new Memorial set piece to be installed in East Jordan's Memorial Park will be ten feet long and seven feet high. It will be of attractive masonry construction.

The names of the more than 800 veterans will be enclosed under glass on both sides, and there will be a flower arrangement at the bottom of the structure.

The committee is especially anxious to assure the community folks that all the names that formerly appeared upon the white sign next to the City Hall, will be included in the list of the names to be engraved upon the soon-to-be-installed memorial.

This committee which consists of Mrs. Arthur Thompson, chairman, Mrs. John Umloer, and Mrs. Elzy Brinthal, has announced plans are definite to make use of $435.00 already available, as a starter.

The balance is to be raised by popular subscription. March 12 has been set for calling upon community individuals for pledges to the worthy cause.

The committee urges all those who want to know more about the project which is so close to our hearts, to call upon anyone of the three committee ladies. Mrs. Thompson's telephone number is LE 6-7128. All inquiries are more than welcome.
