Intentional Retake

KEEP OUR FOOD INDUSTRY STRONG

In 1965 the American consumer spent slightly more than 18 cents of his after-tax dollar for food, compared to 26 cents, fifteen years ago. In 1966 U.S. Department of Agriculture statisticians say, the expenditures will be slightly below last year, and by 1970 expenditure should fall to 17 cents.

This is positive testimony of industry's fine performance in supplying a great abundance of the most nutritious food the world has known, while keeping prices at a remarkably stable level.

C. C. Cook, President of General Foods Corporation, in a year-end statement said that U.S. food producers "have cooperated with government agencies to effectively safeguard the purity of grocery products and to control the information on labels. Food manufacturers and distributors recognize the necessity of a business-government working partner relationship."

"But sound judgment is needed," added Mr. Cook, "amid the current clamor for still more 'consumer protection.' The industry needs flexibility to provide the diversity of food products the consumer demands. The consumer must not be overprotected at the cost of being under-served."

He concluded that all segments of the food industry are essential to the inevitable task of feeding the increasing numbers of the world's hungry. There is a vital need for keeping the entire industry strong to meet the challenge in the years ahead.

Thank You!

The News-Herald wishes to express its appreciation to Martha Kamradt and Howard Porter for supplying the information and material which appears on page 10 of this issue.

Thoughts from Outer Space

By Marshall Sayles

How easy it is to become an outstanding figure in this land of canned pie dough and the free ballot box.

I learned this the hard way when a national magazine sent a young author-psychologist to write me up as an odder ball than most.

The magazine had heard that I had become a tremendous failure over night and they were pursuing the story like buried treasure.

People can not fail under our modern political guidance. But I had proven an exception to the rule, striking at the very core of our government philosophy.

"To what," the young fellow asked, "do you attribute your failure?"

"A number of things," I said. "I've been working at it off and on for more than thirty years."

"How could you have possibly failed in these times?" he gasped. "Our government has a thousand stop gaps that would have saved you." He reeled off fourteen agencies without taking a breath.

Heavens! For years I had trod the wine of life with both feet, mothered to my own wants and made sure there was a Sunday in every week. Certainly I was entitled to any failure I may have amassed.

"Those government agencies," I protested. "They are for the poor, the unintelligent and out of work television actors."

He pointed an accusing finger. "You might have gone heavily in debt," he said. "You could have starved this thing off for years."

Sitting there, listening to his wonderful message of truth, I became giddy and unsure of myself, feeling like a fool at the gates of wisdom. What in heavens name had I done?

I begged off. Told him not to write me up, confessing that I had no moral right to such selfish failure, making the government lose face like that.

Weeks later I saw the young fellow again and he asked if I'd come to any decisions after our talk.

"I've done some mighty deep soul searching," I said. "And I've decided that in these modern times a man should so live that when his government loan comes to join him he will have no fear of being wrote up."

Whereupon the young fellow threw up his hands. Somehow he had not gotten through to me at all.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Editor's note: The March 3rd column "Thoughts from Outer Space" with its humorous treatment of bankers generally, received much comment from News-Herald readers. Here are two letters from eastern United States:

Dear Editor

I have read your recent "Thoughts from Outer Space" on bankers, and being rather closely connected with bankers, both because of my position as a director and attorney for two banks, and also because I am forced from time to time to use their service and borrow from them and of course use them every day in drawing checks, etc., I am intrigued with the changes that have taken place in the past several years.

It seems with the advent of credit cards and various means of credit given by those not in the banking business that bankers are being forced to over extend their services to keep up with the times. No longer is the stiff, straight laced banker around. He is the go-getter who visits his clients and customers and sees what is needed and how the money that is lying around his vault can be put to use. I am sure that the modern day banker would have given you the money when you were a young man, and whether he would have gotten it back might be a question in your mind now, but with the drive you had and ability (as shown by your owning and editing your newspaper now) there is little doubt in my mind that he would.

May I subscribe to your newspaper for a year and my check to your order for $4.00 is enclosed. I trust that your paper will continue to prosper and your "Thoughts from Outer Space" continue. How about one concerning the poor country lawyer who is overwhelmed with the changes in the laws each year and almost impossible task of keeping himself adequately informed so he can at least keep his clients out of the clutches of the over zealous Internal Revenue agents, tax collectors, and other administrators of the government who have such power over our every day lives?

Sincerely,
Richard S. Woodman
Attorney and Counselor
at Law
Waterville, New York.

Dear Editor:

Unfortunately, I do not live in East Jordan. If I thought I could obtain a job that would feed the family and pay rent, I would be packing my bag to move as of now.

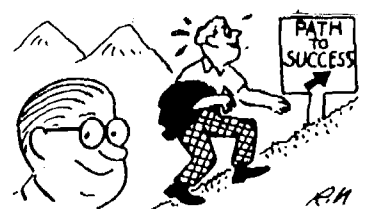

The next best thing is to subscribe to your fine newspaper in order to know what is going on up in the wonderful Jordan Valley.

Your recent Thoughts From Outer Space (March 3, 1966) regarding bankers intrigued me. I have the long, lean hunted look of a glass-eyed, conservative banker of the past, and you folks are fortunate to have the personnel that you do in the State Bank of East Jordan.

Recently, while waiting in the lobby for Mr. William Grauel, the cashier, I was made to feel completely at home and at ease by all the employees. (Some difference than in the days you wrote about in your Thoughts From Outer Space.)

When Mr. Grauel was able to see me, I was immediately put at ease even though I was unshaven and quite poorly dressed. The bank is fortunate to have a person such as he, and his personality radiates throughout his co-workers. No wonder the banks that have men such as he are as successful as they are today in helping people with their financial problems.

DRENTH INSTALL'S NEW MACHINERY

Drenth Brothers Brickcrete Co. of Ellsworth have announced the installation of an automated manufacturing machine. The equipment will produce a complete line of Brickcrete building units, patio blocks, drywell blocks and two additional products which the company will introduce this Spring;--12" x 12" decorative screen blocks for garden walls and a standard size 4" x 8" concrete brick.

The company has also been awarded the addition of Grand Traverse county to its manufacturing franchise territory. This franchise area now includes ten counties in the northern part of the lower peninsula.

"We always like these off-year elections. No matter how they turn out, both parties can always find something in them to be pleased about." Richard Mayer, Jr., The North Vernon (Ind.) Sun.

Are you paying more than 11½¢ a gallon for your residential heating oil?

If you are, you're paying too much to heat your home.

If you are now using natural Gas (or plan to) for cooking, water heating, clothes drying or Gaslights, and your use is equal to that of our average residential customer, you can get your Gas for heating under our special service rate at a cost equivalent to fuel oil priced at just 11½¢ a gallon. And the nice thing about our Gas rates is that the more you use, the less it costs per unit. That's a bargain in anybody's book.

(Can't pay for the cost of conversion right now? Here's good news: Whether you convert your present furnace, or even install a new Gas furnace, Michigan Consolidated will pay for it and its installation by a qualified heating contractor. And it won't cost you a penny until October 1, 1966!)

So why not make your present oil furnace more economical this winter? Have it converted to economical natural Gas. Then you can start putting your money in the bank for a change. Instead of in your furnace. For full details, call us or your heating contractor today.

Spring has sprung!

At least I think that the last of the snow has come for this winter.

One man who lives very close to me believes it is true, too. He has raked his entire yard and has fertilized it, too. Of course the rest of us are waiting a little before we jump that far into spring.

Another man in town has decided that it really is true that spring is here. He went fishing last week on Torch Lake. He was sitting in his shanty; the fish were biting pretty good, so good in fact that he ran out of bait and had to go back to his car to get some. He left the shanty, went to the car, got the bait, turned around---you guessed it, the shanty had went through the ice.

A week ago Sunday, the Charlevoix Sportsmen Club had sno-mobile races on the lake. They turned out to be almost ice skating races---the only thing you needed was a sander attached to the front of your machine, lugs on the belt, and blades welded to the front skis. If you weren't too careful you could even join the polar bear club as one racer did by falling through the ice on the creek.

Well, that was just a little too much for me and I stayed home along with quite a few others from East Jordan.

Well, 'til next time, take care.

East Jordan Lumber Company's RED MILL "B," WRECKED Monday, March 21st, 1892 8 KILLED, 5 INJURED.

HORROR!

INSTANT DEATH!

TERRIFIC EXPLOSION

Of the Boilers in the Red Mill, Carrying Suffering and Death into Many Homes.

The Mill a Complete Wreck.

On Monday morning about 7:30 o'clock Standard time the village, and indeed the whole surrounding section of the country was shaken by a terrific explosion and on looking out it was seen that the cause was the explosion of the battery of boilers at the Red Mill or Mill B of the East Jordan Lumber Company. There were thirty-five men employed in the Mill and yard and six of these were killed outright almost instantly and one more died in a short time.

The Dead:

AMZI CHRISTY, head sawyer, aged 36; unmarried
ALBERT COOK, aged 28, Trimmer; married.
JOHN BROWN, aged 23; helper; unmarried.
WILLIE BEACH, aged 16; teamster.
SIMON CARNEY, aged 26; cart-man; unmarried.
EMANUEL HUNT, aged 40 } bystanders.
PETER SHELDON, aged 27 }

Injured.

JOHN RINGLE, the fireman, scalded and bruised.
SANDERSON REINHART, driver, leg badly broken in three places, and scalded on head and body.
CHARLES CROWELL, log handler; scalded and bruised on head and hip.
JONATHAN KITSON, setter, scalded and bruised.
CHARLES BOWEN, severe wound in leg.
JAMES SMITH, log roller, bruised by flying piece of boiler shell.
CHARLES PROVOST, laborer,
TODD WILKES, laborer.

Some few others were injured slightly, and there were many very narrow escapes.

Immediately after the explosion friends were searching for the injured ones. "Sandy" Reinhart was found after quite a little time blown several rods from the Mill, his clothing mostly blown off and while badly scalded about the head and shoulders also had his leg broken twice below the knee and above the knee the bone broken and extending out through the flesh.

Andrew Parrish was driving one of the carts when the smoke stack fell on and instantly killed the horse but he was fortunately but slightly scratched.

The best information we can glean gives it that when the men arrived at the Mill in the morning the night watch was found to have let the steam get down and also the water in the boiler, the Engineer testifying that there was only one and a half gauges of water at seven o'clock mill time and he put on the inspirator and sent for fuel to get up the necessary steam before he left.

The mill had started and was sawing a small log but had to stop for want of steam and the fuel sent for having arrived the men, or quite a number of them, went down into the boiler house to get warm and help the fireman throw in the dry wood. As soon as the gauge showed steam enough to run the whistle sounded to go ahead, the men started to return to their positions and the steam turned on and the saw made perhaps a half dozen revolutions when with a crash like the cracking of a thousand panes glass and followed by a deafening roar the boilers exploded with the fearful results noted above.

The Mill, which was known as the Red Mill was built about ten years ago and was known as the Stoeppel Mill. Financial difficulties came and for four years the Mill lay idle the property being in litigation. It was then purchased by the East Jordan Lumber Co. and repaired, the boilers having been rebuilt except the shells and the drums. There were four boilers in the battery each 17½ feet long, three of 44 inch and one of 42 inch diameter. The boilers at that time (two years ago) having been tested to 150 pounds to the square inch, were considered as absolutely safe.

The explosion tore these shells all to pieces and the fragments are scattered for many rods about the site. The cause of the explosion is being thoroughly investigated by a Coroner and Jury, and all can rest assured that nothing will be left undone that will tend to locate the blame for this most heart-rending catastrophe.

Never before have our people been called upon to pass through such deep sorrow, and we hope and trust that they never again do so.

The Lumber Company, though sustaining a heavy loss in the destruction of the Mill, are doing everything in their power to alleviate the distress of the suffering and to properly care for the dead.

Up to this (Thursday) morning the injured are all doing well, and the list of fatalities will probably be no larger.

The Memory Lingers

Seventy four years ago next Sunday (March 20) an explosion at the East Jordan Lumber Company's Mill B killed eight persons and injured seven persons in an accident that has lived in the memory of area residents ever since.

Some years ago Bill Kamradt, son of Martha Kamradt did a booklet "East Jordan As Was" for a class at school and in the booklet was the "extra flier" (shown at left) published by the East Jordan Enterprise, a newspaper published in East Jordan at the time of the explosion.

Under the newspaper page in the booklet, Bill Kamradt made the following comment: This paper was published March 21, 1892 as an "Extra" by the East Jordan Enterprise. The publisher was my great grandfather, C. L. Lorraine, Sr. It tells of the blowing up of the boilers of the "Red Mill (Mill B). Soon afterward Sanderson Rheinart died, making a total of eight killed and seven seriously injured."

The photo at the top of the page shows the mill before the explosion and the smaller photo is part of the wreckage. Both photos are the property of Howard Porter.

Details of the explosion are found in the "Extra" reproduced on this page.

*Note: Date of explosion and number of injured in top photo are inaccurate.
