Chamber Seeks More Operating Funds

Ghosts, Spooks Will Parade

Ghosts and hobgoblins will be marching down Main street Monday at about 1:30 as the children of the East Jordan grade school enjoy their annual dress up halloween parade. Grade teachers will be in charge of the students march.

In the afternoon the East Jordan Rotary Club will again sponsor its annual halloween party for the children at school.

In the evening the Rotary members will be on hand to help with their annual halloween fun for the high school students, according to Rotary President Max Damoth.

Chamber of Commerce members have voted to adjust their business membership dues structure which will be assessed on a sliding scale according to the size of the business joining.

At present each member of the Chamber is charged a straight $36 per year and individual members, five dollars.

In their quarterly meeting at the Jordan Inn last week, chamber members approved a by-law amendment which paves the way for the dues structure change. The proposal was drafted by a committee including Sherman Thomas, Bill Bennett and Dennis Freeman.

In addition to adjusting dues for members, the new change guarantees business members that the chamber will make no additional fund solicitations throughout the year. Each member will pay his dues for the year and will not be asked to contribute to any Chamber-sponsored event during the year.

RIGHT ON THE HEAD

Winner of the weekly football score guessing contest last Friday at Glen's Market was eleven year old David Shippe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Shippe. The young boy guessed the actual score, East Jordan 14, Harbor Springs 13.

Charles Richter Suffers Heart Attack

A prominent East Jordan business man, 50 year old Charles Richter, of Ric's Boats, died suddenly with a heart attack Monday at Charlevoix hospital.

Mr. Richter was well known in this area and among a large number of summer visitors who made use of his boat facilities on the west shores of Lake Charlevoix.

Funeral services were set for Mr. Richter at 2 p.m. Wednesday at Watson Funeral Home with Rev. Daniel Axt officiating.

Bearers were members of the Gadabouts Round Dance Club and burial was in Sunset Hill cemetery.

Mr. Richter was born April 23, 1907. His mother, Mrs. Edward Richter of Detroit, survives.

On November 28, 1931 he married Irah Leene Pierce, who survives. Also surviving are two sons, Lt. Commander Ronald P. Richter and Karl E. Richter, five grandchildren; three sisters and two brothers, Joseph Richter, Anton Richter, Helen Futch, Dianne Cummings, and Louise Wilhelm, all of Detroit.

Chest Drive Hits $3,500

East Jordan Community Chest Campaign Chairman, Mrs. Richard Hamerski, said this week that $3,537.97 had been collected so far in the annual drive.

Workers are soliciting in every city ward and in the rural areas as the drive moves along with the hope of hitting the $7,300 goal.

Those residents who have for some reason may have been missed when the solicitor came around may make their annual contribution to the chest fund at the State Bank of East Jordan.

200 Boat Marina Going Up At Jordan Harbor

A 200 boat storage inboard, outboard Marina is under construction on the west side of Jordan harbor, first of its kind on the South Arm.

And it will be opened for business next spring with Richard Sligh as owner and with Bret Riley aiding him.

Dredging and straightening of the shoreline in front of the marina has been going on this fall and land cleared for construction of a 60 foot by 100 foot wood truss and steel building.

"Many people have been wondering about the shoreline work Bill Porter has been doing here," Sligh said. "And I would like to say that we have city, department of conservation and U. S. army engineer permits to do the development. Our city building code permit is number 976."

East Jordan Marina has been operating for several years on the east side of the harbor on the old chemical site and now the new site will be on property formerly owned by Eveline Orchards where the former apple house stands. It is located at 204 Water street. Both the old building and the one under construction will be used for boat storage and will handle boats up to 30 feet. In addition to storage the marina will offer complete overhaul and maintenance.

Sligh says the firm has about 50 year round customers now and about 100 more who call upon them for repair etc. The new development will handle inboards and outboards, offering rebuilding work and other work on all types of boats.

Sligh is a professional water skier and skin diver and hopes to hold water ski schools on the lake next summer. He is married and has two children and the family spends summers at their cottage on the west side of the lake. In winter Sligh is principal at Harbor Springs high school, a position he expects to maintain since the marina business is seasonal.

With Sligh will be Bret Riley who has worked some five years at the Marina.

The board of directors hope that by adjusting the dues among business members, it will be able to receive a total yearly income of about $8,000. Various funds from this amount would be spent on a chamber manager, clerical help, operating the information booth, and other things necessary for good chamber operation.

About 17 Chamber members attended the quarterly meeting in addition to other Chamber members from Charlevoix and Petoskey.

The group saw a color-slide program by Parker Seiler covering his walk to Fairbanks, Alaska.

The visitors were invited to hear the work of the East Jordan Chamber regarding an advertising movie film now under way which will detail the many attractions this area has for summer and winter vacationists.

John Kizer, a member of the Michigan State Employees association and an East Jordan summer resident, who is helping to promote this area, said prints of the film will be available for state-wide distribution.

Kizer asked the other communities for greater area-wide cooperation through advertising and the development of greater unity through "talking up" more than their own community.

Walter Thorsen, of the Charlevoix County Planning Commission, described the study under way by the commission. He said Charlevoix and Boyne City have already begun studies and that he expects East Jordan will join the program.

The study will include information on land use, the economic situation, population, industry and a long, detailed list of information necessary for state or federal cooperation in any future development projects.

Chamber of Commerce information booth attendant Mrs. Martha Kamradt said she answered 4,655 questions at the booth this past summer.

Mrs. Kamradt strengthened the belief that northern Michigan's resort and vacation season is lengthening when she described activity at the booth during September and October.

Activity at the information booth is so brisk during October that the Chamber is considering a proposal to keep the office open longer in the fall.

Big Money In Poverty...

A press dispatch from Washington quotes Congressman William H. Ayres, Ohio, a senior member of the House Education and Labor Committee, as describing the Office of Economic Opportunity as a huge bureaucracy creating a "fantastic leakage in funds intended to help the poor."

Congressman Ayres told the House that Sergeant Shriver's 7,484 permanent employees cost the taxpayers in salary alone $53,489,000. More than fifteen hundred of these poverty-fighting employees draw annual salaries of more than $10,619 each, greater than the basic pay of an Army colonel with more than fourteen years of service. Twenty-five of these poverty-fighters will be paid more than Gen. Westmoreland, who leads the United States forces in Vietnam (about $23,000). Five of these anti-poverty fighters will get more than the $26,000 paid to the United States Commissioner of Education.

In addition, there are more than one thousand non-federal community action employees whose salaries are paid from federal funds, who are receiving $10,000 a year or more, and two hundred of these are paid $15,000 a year or more.

Ayres said, "The word has gotten around among civil servants in Washington that the big money is in poverty." Ayres added, "Few know how big it is."

We don't know how the poor are faring, but the bureaucrats certainly are feasting. ---

BITS and PIECES

Around Charlevoix County

In order to head off the closing of the Charlevoix County jail at Charlevoix as threatened by the Department of Corrections, the county board of supervisors, meeting at Charlevoix last week, appropriated $2,500 to hire an architect and begin a study of the situation. Robert Russell, jail inspector for the department, said that certain major changes had to be made or the jail would be closed. Steve Gerganoff of a southern Michigan architectural firm, said that $120,000 would put the present jail in shape for possibly five years as a stop-gap measure or $240,000 would build a new jail if it were done right away. The board of supervisors is faced with making a decision regarding this issue within a reasonable length of time or have its jail closed.

Vern Whiteford has been named to the Charlevoix county welfare board to fill the unexpired term of Clarence Healey. Mrs. Garth Ryan of Boyne City was named at the same time to fill the unexpired term of the late Roy Scott which expires Dec. 31 of this year and to a three year term beginning January 1, 1967.

William Korthase Jr. of Boyne Valley township was elected to the Charlevoix County Road Commission, defeating incumbent Gerald Fineout of Melrose township by a slim 13-12 vote. He joins Leo Sommerville of East Jordan and Ivan Phillips of Charlevoix on the three-man commission.

Following the completion of a $75,000 road construction project later this fall, the six mile stretch of highway between East Jordan and Ellsworth will become a Class A road. The road is being widened and resurfaced. As a result, there will be no need for weight restrictions with the spring thaw next year as there has been in the past.

The smiling faces now in evidence at the Charlevoix county building in Charlevoix are the result of pay raises given all elected officials and other county employees during the regular meeting of the board of supervisors. Even the supervisors, 25 in all, gave themselves a raise from $20 to $25 per diem for board meetings; the salary remained the same, $20 for other meetings. No special appropriation was necessary because the additional funds will come out of the budgets of the various departments.

A hearing will be held in Charlevoix Nov. 3 as to whether or not the temporary injunction against Local 1403, United Auto Workers, at the plant of Courter productions in Boyne City should be made permanent.

The peaceful picketing restraining injunction against the union was handed down last week by Judge Charles L. Brown at Charlevoix.

The company sought the order, claiming picketing was interfering with the company's right to move in and out and with other workers not on strike. The injunction limits the union to three pickets at each of the plant's three entrances.

The plant has 212 persons on the payroll. Slightly more than 50 percent are women. It is not known how many are on strike. The strike was called by the union after negotiations failed to settle wage and union security issues.

The Emmet-Charlevoix Bar Association has expressed unanimous disapproval of the proposal to abolish probate courts and justice courts in this area and replace them with district courts.

It is their contention that the plans for Emmet and Charlevoix counties are not practical and will not provide for justice for the citizens. The local group proposes a district judge for each county instead of three for seven counties. The attorneys feel that fast arraignments in criminal cases would not be possible and, because of the geographic problems, the district judges case load would build up.

OUTDOOR SHOTS

Michigan's Department of Conservation has the "help wanted" sign out to recruit park rangers and forest fire lookouts for the 1967 season.

Persons hoping to land one of these jobs have until 5 p.m., November 7, to apply through the Department of Civil Service in Lansing. Those who meet minimum qualifications will be eligible to take written tests December 10 from which passing candidates are to be selected to fill the positions.

Applicants for both types of seasonal employment, which pay a bi-weekly starting salary of $189.60, must be at least 18 years old by June 30, 1967. Park ranger candidates are required to have high school degrees or equivalent educational standing. Those who expect to earn their high school diplomas by next June may also apply.

Openings for park rangers are located throughout the state. Successful candidates for these positions will be on the Conservation Department's work roster sometime within the March-to-November period.

The exact length of their employment will range from 2 1/2 to 7 months and in most cases it will carry through Labor Day or longer.

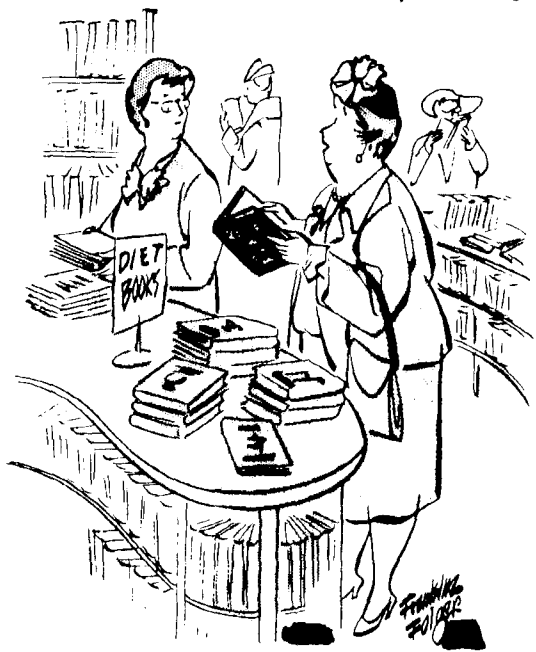

There are 60 positions in the Department's seasonal work force of forest fire lookouts for 1967. Only applicants who can serve during the entire period from April to November will be considered for hiring.

Further information on these openings is available from the Departments of Civil Service and Conservation in Lansing.

Application forms for the December 10 exams may be obtained from the Lansing offices of both agencies and at county clerks, all Michigan Employment Security offices, and the Detroit branch office of the Department of Civil Service.

Our children are not yet chaffing at the bit over Christmas. But they will soon as commercial America tells them to.

Not only our children, but most of us seem to be influenced by what commercial America tells us. Bit chaffing over things dangled in front of us is an old American habit.

It is something of a shame that we dangle Christmas in front of our children before Thanksgiving has been digested; it is too long for the kids to wait before the big

SHORT-LINE PROFILE

(From the Steam Locomotive & Railroad Tradition, Starrucca, Pennsylvania)

East Jordan & Southern

BY WILLIAM S. YOUNG

This history of area railroading, which began last week, will run several weeks until the story is finished. Publication here is with special permission of the author.

By the turn of the century Michigan loggers no longer had their pick of magnificent white pine—tall, straight and thick of trunk to heights of more than 150 feet, with the first branches some 75 feet above the ground. Gone was the virgin timber, often called cork pine because its logs floated high in the water during the drives. But in northwestern lower Michigan there were still billions of board feet in younger timber—mixed hardwoods and conifers—to be cut.

And, now that it was joined by two small railroads to three major rail arteries, East Jordan began to bustle. By 1906 it was a community of 2500 souls, and had two large sawmills, a large cooperage factory, a hardwood flooring plant, a lumber dressing plant, a shingle mill, a lath mill, two wood-working establishments, a brass and iron foundry, a brickyard, a large flouring mill, and a creamery. Despite sandy soil and a short growing season, some of the cleared land roundabouts was being put to profitable use for livestock, grain, and fruit trees.

Associated with EJ&S President and General Manager W. P. Porter were Charles L. Ames, a Chicagoan who served as vice-president of the railroad, and A. H. Frost of East Jordan, who was secretary-treasurer. (Both Ames and Frost later moved to California, their stock eventually passing to heirs.) To build and equip the road, East Jordan Lumber Company advanced more than $180,000, an obligation which was covered by the increase of EJ&S capital stock from $12,500 to $250,000 several years after the line was completed.

After buying three second-hand engines between 1898 and 1902, the lumber company ordered a new Baldwin Mogul for the road in 1903. By 1920 EJ&S had a roster of five 2-6-0's, all bought new. It usually maintained two or three passenger cars, and at the height of its operations owned more than 200 units of freight equipment, mostly log cars.

Unlike some lumber industry roads, EJ&S made money during the logging era. Besides hauling logs to the mills, as a common carrier it originated sizable shipments of finished lumber, and handled general commodities to and from East Jordan. There were two passenger trains each way until the mid-1920's, when one was discontinued. For a while the road moved more than 250,000 tons of freight annually, and in 1920 its gross revenues exceeded $180,000—an all-time high. Stemming from the 18.6-mile main line were between 7 and 31 miles of logging spurs—the latter figure reflecting the nature of operations in declining years, when the stands of timber hardest to reach were all that remained to be cut.

In 1917 costs rose faster than revenues and EJ&S, like many another short-line in that war year, surprised itself by losing money. Between 1906 and 1916, however, the company paid good dividends. Much of the timber was already cut off by 1918, according to the team who did the I.C.C. valuation of the road in that year. But EJ&S had a perspicacious management and sufficient money on hand to set up a depreciation reserve in 1921, against the time when lumbering would cease. Careful handling of its finances was to stand the road in good stead later on.

Detroit & Charlevoix Railroad—"The David Ward Line"—was not as fortunate. Builder Ward had died in 1900, the year before the road became a common carrier; but members of his family had seen the project through. From a Michigan Central connection at Frederic to the South Arm of Pine Lake at East Jordan, D&C stretched for 42 long miles across lands whose principal yield was timber. The year after it reached East Jordan D&C had 55 miles of track, including a branch to Blue Lake and other logging spurs. Ward probably intended to lay track all the way to the Lake Michigan town of Charlevoix, at the foot of Pine Lake, but construction stopped a short distance northwest of East Jordan. While there were logs to haul the Ward line prospered; by mid-1905, less than four years after beginning full operation, it had earned more than $75,000. A second passenger run was added, but the road was not besieged by ticket-holders, and soon went back to one train each way.

In May, 1907, Michigan Central obtained control of D&C through purchase of its entire capital stock from the Ward interests. The short-line continued to operate independently until September, 1916, when it was merged into Central. Concurrently D&C's Valley Branch, a logging spur near the Jordan River, was sold to East Jordan & Southern for $14,250.

Central was soon to ponder the wisdom of its purchase. The initial roster of the D&C had included two snow plows, and they saw plenty of use. At least one spring storm—the one that tied up the East Jordan branch in April, 1923—is still green (or, perhaps, white) in memory. But if the storms were costly, the predestinated collapse of the lumber traffic was to prove costlier. By 1930, when New York Central consummated its celebrated lease of Michigan Central, the branch was in a bad way indeed.

In October, 1930, Michigan Central filed for abandonment of the line from East Jordan to Marble. MC and EJ&S crossed at Marble, 6.7 miles south of East Jordan, and interchanged cars there. Marble also had a sawmill, but lumbering on a major scale, as Central explained to the I.C.C., had ended abruptly in 1928. Mixed train accommodations over the old D&C line had been discontinued on the last day of that year. The lumber community of Deward (D. Ward), 12 miles from Frederic, and once the site of D&C operating headquarters, was fast becoming a ghost town. One-fourth of East Jordan's population had left to find employment elsewhere. Central train service between East Jordan and Marble during 1929 had consisted of one trip in July and the movement of three cars of pickles in November-December, and in 1930 service had been provided on only 13 days, to handle 88 cars of logs and three cars of salt. (Central had also, despite the formal ending of passenger service, carried one passenger in 1929 and collected ten cents from him.)

Hi-School Notes

Nineteen Future Homemakers of America met at 7 p.m. Monday, October 17 in the home economics room to discuss the regional meeting held in the Alcona High School Saturday, October 22.

Ideas for the formal initiation decorations to be used in the elementary gymnasium are to be placed in the suggestion box in Mrs. Drapeau's room.

It was moved by Ann Hart and seconded by Ruth Ann Penta to meet Monday, November 7 at 7:00 p.m. in the home economics room for a degree-work program. The motion was carried unanimously.

The meeting was adjourned at 7:25 p.m. by a unanimous vote.

Wednesday, October 12 at 3:00 p.m. the student body attended an assembly at which Ernest Kober demonstrated his talent and skill of glass-blowing--European style. Mr. Kober formed Christmas tree ornaments, a weather forecasting swan, showed how to cut glass, and told about the necessary equipment which a glass-blower needs.

Mr. Kober stated that there remain only twelve professional glass-blowers in the world today. He knows only two others besides his father. Brian Sturgell assisted Mr. Kober in stretching a tube of glass the length of the high school gymnasium illustrating how thin glass can become without breaking. He also showed his audience that it is possible for him to crumple glass in his hands with-out cutting himself. The assembly ended at 3:45 p.m.

Report cards were distributed to all students at 3:45 p.m. Wednesday, October 19.

The junior newspaper staff met Thursday after school to staple their 14 page paper together. The members did not leave the school until 8:30 p.m. because the front page was delayed.

The juniors were busy selling their first edition of their unnamed paper throughout the school during first period. All 200 copies were sold by 9:00 a.m. The staff plans to ditto more than 200 papers for the next issue which will be sold November 4.

The varsity band, under the superb direction of Mr. T. Ray Uhlinger, performed exceptionally well Friday night during the half-time. The band marched from the north end of the field playing "Lee's Favorite." After forming a block-style "H" for Harbor, they played "On Wisconsin," to which the Rams sang their school song. They quickly marched into an "A" for alumni to play "It's been a Long, Long Time." While playing "Kids" in the beanie formation, the propeller of the beanie rotated twice. "Drifting and Dreaming" was played in the canoe formation. With the hands of the clock formation set at one o'clock, the band played "It's Later Than You Think." To honor the seniors the band played "Hey, Look Me Over!" while in the graduation cap formation.

As the queen's float passed by the grandstand, "Sweethearts on Parade" was played while the band formed a three-point crown. The "J" for Jordan was formed after King Don Gee presented Queen Cele Grutsch with a bouquet of flowers. After the traditional "Notre Dame Victory March," the band briskly marched off the field toward the grandstand while maintaining the "J" formation.

Former Athletes Are Honored

Three former Charlevoix County athletes were honored during the homecoming half-time ceremonies at Alma College last Saturday, as the Scots downed Hope College 13-6 in an M.I.A.A. contest. Tinker Kirby, Keith Carey, and Gayle Saxton were among the members of the unbeaten M.I.A.A. football champions (1941) who were honored Saturday.

Kirby and Carey are former Charlevoix high school star athletes, who went on to Alma College, to become among the Scots' great all-around athletes starting in football, basketball, and track. Carey later played with the Midland Dow A.C. professional basketball team when it was a member of the N.B.A. Many followers of high school athletics in this area still insist that Keith Carey is the finest basketball player, ever to come out of Northern Michigan.

Gayle Saxton was the first of four brothers to come out of East Jordan to participate for the Scots. He played on five Scot football teams, as a freshman in 1940, and a regular in '41, '42, '46, and '47. He was followed to the Alma campus by William, Charles, and Robert, all of whom were letter winners there.

Things Are Looking Up At The E. J. Iron Works

Production High

The East Jordan Iron Works has not turned away a skilled foundry worker in the last three or four years. Not since production has increased far beyond anything in past years.

The huge, rapidly expanding iron casting firm turns out more than 300 tons of metal per day in its recently expanded and automated operation along the shores of Lake Charlevoix. The firm looked most of the summer for extra help and at present is running a shift and a half a day, about 14 hours.

Fire hydrants, street castings, farm machinery parts and some auto parts are turned out at the 80 year old plant.

Nine huge trucks are in and out of the plant every day delivering to midwestern cities.

Most everyone in the midwest has walked on an East Jordan Iron Works street casting.

In its work of turning out more than 300 tons of metal per day, the plant uses 7 1/2 tons of limestone from Ironton; 33 tons of coke; 100 tons of scrap iron and 50 tons of pig iron.

Information concerning Iron Works operations was given to members of the East Jordan Rotary Club last week, following which the 40 club members and their visitors left the meeting place and toured the plant.

Rotary Visits

Plant President William Malpass stationed several guides at the door and the visiting Rotarians walked through in various groups as operation techniques were pointed out.

Distribution Wide

In recent months the Iron Works developed a small, second plant near Big Rapids where help is available to work with the cleaning and grinding of castings produced here. About 30 men are employed there now. The firm maintains "yards" at various sales points in Detroit, Grand Rapids and Chicago.

With its nearly two million dollar per year payroll, the Iron Works is a great economic factor in the everyday life of northern Michigan residents.

HUNTING
Permitted without charge on land in
CROPLAND ADJUSTMENT PROGRAM
Details at Farm Headquarters

IN COOPERATION WITH MICHIGAN DEPARTMENT OF CONSERVATION

Welcome Sign for Hunters

Thanks to the new federal Cropland Adjustment Program, Michigan sportsmen will find a good deal of additional private acreage open to hunting this fall where signs like this are posted. Under the program, coordinated in Michigan by the Conservation Department, about 1,000 landowners have agreed to provide public hunting access to more than 100,000 acres, mostly in the southern half of the state. In return, these landowners receive special fees from the federal government over and above payments they draw for diverting their acreage from crop production to conservation land practices. Some of the lands open to public hunting also offer public access for fishing, trapping, and hiking. Sportsmen are reminded that even where land is posted open to public use under the Cropland Adjustment Program they must first get the owner's O.K. before going afield.

Are you paying more than 11¢ a gallon for your residential heating oil?

If you are, you're paying too much to heat your home.

If you are now using natural Gas (or plan to) for cooking, water heating, clothes drying or gaslights, and your use is equal to that of our average residential customer, you can get your Gas for heating under our special service rate at a cost equivalent to fuel oil priced at just 11¢ a gallon. And the nice thing about our Gas rates is that the more you use, the less it costs per unit. That's a bargain in anybody's book. (Can't pay the cost of installation right now? Here's good news: whether you convert your present furnace, or even install a new Gas furnace, we will pay for it and its installation by a Gas Company approved heating contractor. And except for the Gas you use, it won't cost you a penny until May, 1967.

So make your present oil furnace more economical this winter. Convert to economical natural Gas. Then you can start putting your money in the bank. Call us today for the name of a Gas Company approved heating contractor and full details.

Children Should Wear White, Use Flashlights On Halloween, Police Advise

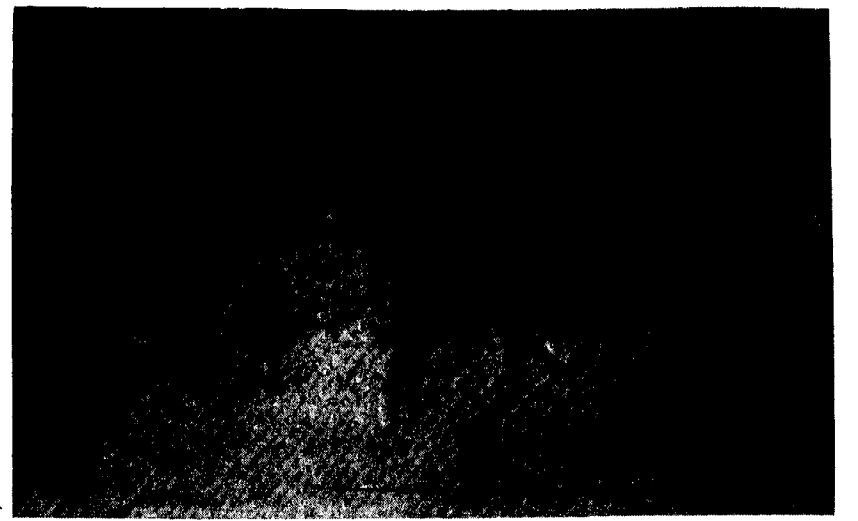

It's Their Big Night

Police Chief Joseph Hammond this week is advising area parents to give their children full instructions before sending them out on Halloween night, next Monday.

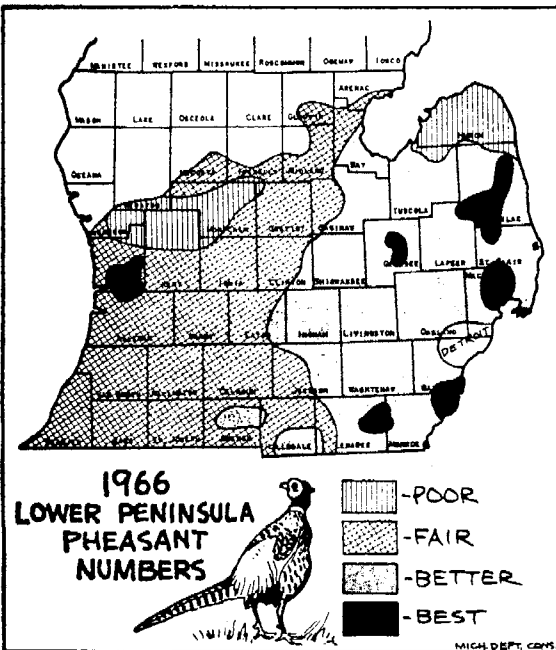

"Children," Hammond said, "should wear white during their nightly prowls. And when possible they should use a flashlight."

A call has also gone out by the police department to all motorists driving around town next Monday night. Motorists are being urged to watch out for the children.

"After all," Hammond said, "this is their big night."

East Jordan's World War I Company X marches down the street in this old time photo of East Jordan, loaned the News-Herald by Huckle's Studio. Old timers will recall the old company and some may recognize the street on which they marched.

Here, bird hunters, is how pheasant numbers stack up this fall for Lower Michigan's Oct. 20-Nov. 10 season on ring-necks. The categories from poor to best do not completely reflect hunting opportunities; they simply provide comparisons of pheasant populations from area to area. In other words, the "best" pheasant areas shown here are not necessarily spots where sportsmen will have field days in bagging birds. By the same token, some areas with lower ringneck numbers are not necessarily poor places for getting birds. Overall, pheasant numbers are down about 10 per cent from last year when some 684,000 of the birds were shot. Accounting for most of this is the 37-per cent drop in the Thumb area. The biggest pheasant slump has taken place in the tip of the Thumb area where the birds' populations have skidded to a poor level after being among the highest in the state only a relatively few years ago. Department game men trace a big reason for this to intensive "clean" farming which has destroyed large tracts of once-productive pheasant cover and food.
