

North State Snowmobilers Reject State License Proposal

Chester Walden
East Jordan, Mich.

BY MARSHALL SAYLES
TRAVERSE CITY... Northern Michigan snow machine operators, dealers and distributors in a six county area Saturday night voiced strong opposition to a proposed state legislative bill that would license the machines.

And they advanced their own ideas on how the rapidly increasing snow machine should be controlled.

State Senator Thomas Schweigert's proposal to license the units received rough treatment at the meeting with the charge that if the law is passed it would result in nearly $100 extra annual cost to machine owners.

Addressing more than 100 snow machine owners from a six county area annual association dinner meeting at Traverse City Saturday night, Tom Galmore of East Jordan said:

"Not many people realize how this proposed bill will affect machine owners."

An association spokesman from Bellaire cautioned those present not to "let the state kick in the head Michigan's fastest growing winter sport. Machine owners, representing 14 northern cities, agreed among themselves that snow machines should be registered and numbered after the small boat plan enacted by the state in recent years.

Galmore, who is treasurer of the new association, said the machines now are covered under regular homeowners insurance policies. A state licensing law, as proposed, would result in the removal of the machines from the homeowners policy. A state licensed machine, Galmore said, would require a different insurance policy, like an automobile, and the extra annual cost to the owner would be $75 or more per year.

Under Senator Schweigert's proposed bill, each machine would be licensed by the state and carry numbers on the side with owners paying an annual $5.00 license fee. Money collected would go to the state's general fund.

Several members of the new group took the stand to protest the proposed bill and to approve their own suggestion for control. The members said they would let the senator know how they feel through letters and telephone calls.

Widely acclaimed as a new and important economic benefit to Michigan winter sports activities, the heaviest concentration of machines in the lower peninsula is centered in the six county area represented by the association; Otsego, Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet, Kalkaska and Grand Traverse.

The group has retained a lawyer to help incorporate the organization as a non-profit unit; and although the association controls northern Michigan snow machine racing and dates, there is no profit.

John Apfel, of Bellaire, is president of the Northern Michigan Snowmobile Association; Melvin Kitchen, of Alba, is vice-president; Lloyd Starks, of Alba, is secretary; and Tom Galmore, of East Jordan, is treasurer.

The group has a 12 man board of directors which sets racing rules and sanctions dates and conditions under which events can be held. All northern Michigan sanctioned races are under strict control of the association.

Eugene Bloom, of Central Lake was presented an association trophy for having the most high points under stock class machines in races this winter. Melvin Kitchen, of Alba, received a trophy for having the most high points in the modified class.

The Saturday night annual dinner meeting was held at Shields restaurant with members attending from the following cities:

Alanson, Alba, Central Lake, Bellaire, East Jordan, Traverse City, Charlevoix, Houghton Lake, Elk Rapids, Kingsley, Eastport, Mancelona, Kalkaska, and Gaylord.

Monday's Water Vote Explained

Shall the city sell water to residents outside the city limit? That's a question that voters will be asked to decide upon at the polls Monday.

The question grew out of requests to the city by "over the line" homeowners who are having difficulty obtaining well water.

City water committee chairman William Morrison reports that if the issue is favored by the voters, the city will spend no money to extend water mains outside the city.

There will be no city construction of water mains outside the city or any maintenance of these mains, Morrison said. Those people outside the city wanting water would have to construct the mains and take care of them themselves.

The cost of city water used by outside residents would be set at double the rate paid by those residents within the city, Morrison said.

With the city establishing a new westside water well, it was said, the city will have plenty of water for city use; and extending water to outside residents would in no way shorten the city's supply.

Chest Seeks Helper

A search has gone out by the recreational committee of the East Jordan Community Chest for a summer recreational director for the coming season.

Those wishing to apply for the job may forward their applications to committee member Roman A. Dubas, Box 361, East Jordan.

Dubas said applications must be in his hands by April 10th.

County Tax Board Selected

Sherman Thomas, of East Jordan, has been named representative at large on the Charlevoix County tax allocation committee by Probate Judge John Makel.

Other tax board members named by Judge Makel are Donald Fox, representing the school districts and Edward Hansen, of Charlevoix, representing municipalities.

Queen Cathy

Charles L. Brown, circuit Judge of Traverse City, Monday night crowned Miss Cathy Malpass, 18, as "Miss East Jordan" after she was selected from a field of queen contestants at the high school. Judges were Mrs. Jack Rader, of Charlevoix; John Kennedy, of Mancelona; and Commander Dale Foster, of Charlevoix. Miss Malpass, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Malpass, will represent East Jordan at the National Trout Festival queen contest in Kalkaska, April 1st. Queen Cathy, a senior at school, will also represent the Jordan Valley Area at various north state festivals. Monday night's contest was sponsored by the Chamber of commerce. (Huckle Photo)

Two Proposals On The Ballot

One of the most important city elections in recent years will be held at the city hall Monday with two special issues on the ballot along with the selection of three councilmen and a Mayor.

The election is generating high interest throughout the community as residents mull the question of a city income tax and a proposal concerning the selling of city water to homeowners outside the city limit.

Voters will find the following proposal on the ballot: "Shall the city council be authorized to enact an ordinance for the purpose of collecting a city income tax."

The second proposal reads: "Shall the city council of the city of East Jordan be authorized to furnish water to consumers outside of the city limit."

In the first ward council race, present councilman Lyle Peters will be opposed at the polls by a newcomer, Howard Hosler; and in the second ward present councilman Howard Stanek will be opposed by Guy Vallance, a newcomer. Present third ward councilman Gerald Olson will be unopposed. Mayor Betty Robertson is running unopposed.

The core of interest in the spring election seems to be the controversy over the proposed income tax issue, although the proposal to sell water outside the city limit is a highly important city question.

Pre-election indications are that Monday's balloting will be the heaviest in recent years as the many decisions to be made are of great interest to the community, affecting the city's economic structure for years to come.

Petition Deadline Is May 13

School district residents wishing to run for a four year term on the East Jordan board of education have until May 13th to file a petition, according to Board Secretary William Braasch. The term of Dr. John Savory is expiring this year, Braasch said.

Petitions may be obtained from Braasch at his office at Mt. Clemens Metal Products from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily or at his home after that.

Braasch said those wishing to vote in the June 12th school election must be properly registered on or before May 15th. Registration may be made at the city hall in East Jordan or at the office of the township clerk in the township in which they live.

Co-Op In Annual Session

The annual meeting of the East Jordan Co-operative Company has been scheduled to start at 12 noon with a dinner at the American Legion Hall, Saturday, April 8th, according to secretary, Lewis Prebble.

The purpose of the meeting is for the submitting of last year's business report; to elect three directors for a term of three years each; to elect one delegate to attend the annual meeting of Farm Bureau Services, Inc., and to transact other business.

The company has arranged for entertainment following the business session.

Under the guidance of City Superintendent Russ Gee and W. A. Porter another city landmark was being removed from Main street this week.

The building, currently known as the "old Dye building" was removed by action of the city to protect the health and welfare of the community.

Located between the old bank building and the former Temple Theatre building, the structure for many years housed a bar with a lodge hall upstairs. It has stood empty for a number of years.

OUT LIKE A LAMB?

OUR INCOME TAX PROPOSAL

Northern Michigan Eyes E. J. Tax Election Results

All northern Michigan is keeping an eye on the outcome of East Jordan's annual spring election results Monday as voters go to the polls to decide whether or not this city will approve an income tax.

It is the biggest community issue to hit the north country in many years. City councils in Boyne City, Charlevoix, Petoskey and Gaylord are especially interested in the result of our income tax election results.

Although a "yes" vote at the polls would show approval of residents regarding the tax, the vote is not mandatory. It is up to the council whether or not they wish to enact an ordinance for the tax and then follow the law as set up by the state of Michigan. The city vote is not actually necessary. The council could enact the law itself, pass an ordinance and put the tax law into effect.

However, the vote Monday is set so the council may get the view of the people regarding the proposal.

The city income tax, according to state law, would tax one percent of the total annual earnings of those people residing within the city limit. Those people living outside the city limit, but working in the city, would pay one half of one percent on their total annual earnings in East Jordan.

It has been the feeling of council members that with an income tax enough money could be raised to allow for at least three mills less on property tax; a move that would especially favor the older property holder who is not employed and receiving only a small annual income. In addition it is felt that those people working in the city, but not living here should pay something toward the upkeep of the community, such as streets, fire and police protection etc. Monies paid the city on an income tax would be deducted from federal tax, the same as other deductions like medical costs, etc, according to the city attorney.

Those residents opposing the enacting of an income tax are quite vocal about it. Some resent the fact that city hall would know how much money they earn each year, saying the state and federal government know all their business now. Others feel we are already "taxed to death". We have those who feel new industry would hesitate to locate here because of a city income tax. Merchants living in the city feel that merchants here who live outside the city should not pay less tax. Others say the office procedure necessary to process the tax at city hall would be so great the tax would not be worth it.

And so it goes.

Communities around East Jordan may in some ways be guided in their future thinking about an income tax according to Monday's results at the polls.

History - Legend - Fact About the

Bohemian Settlement

... by Frank Kubicek

FRANCIS AND BARBARA PESEK

Chapter Two The Sixty-Niners

"Boze muy! Boze muy! When are we going to get some place so we don't have to get on these boats anymore," lamented Josefa (Josephine) Pesek to her husband, John, as she and the rest of the group of travelers were about to embark on a tiny sailboat at Charlevoix, Michigan. They had just disembarked from the Great Lakes propeller steamer, Sunny Side, which had brought them, a consignment of their household goods, farming equipment and food from Antrim City. This group of travelers were bound for their new homesteads in what was soon to become known as the Bohemian Settlement, which is located in Jordan Township in Antrim County, where one of the group, Josef Kubicek, had gone from Antrim City the year previous to look the homesteads there over. Liking what he found he bespoke homesteads there for the entire group, then coaxed them into leaving their homes with his glowing word pictures of the good soil and good location there. "High up, no crops will tend to freeze," he kept repeating.

Some of this group of near twenty Czech people had emigrated from around Tuckapy, near Tabor, Bohemia, Czechland in 1861 to Antrim City, Banks Township, Antrim County, Antrim City, a name not to be found on today's maps, was founded due west of Ellsworth on the shore of Lake Michigan, as by 1889 in its decline.

These homesteaders were composed of the above mentioned families. John was 41, Josefa was 29. They had several children. The oldest, Mary, married John Hyeck of Charlevoix. Another, Frances, married William Bashaw, a school teacher of East Jordan, years after when they grew up. Then there was a two year old girl Anticka, his brother, Francis, 35, whose wife, Barbara, sister to Josefa, was 27. This couple were as yet childless.

Then there was another sister, Marie, 38. Her husband Vaclav (James) Svager, 42, their two children, an unmarried daughter, Anna, 18, and son, Frankie, about 3. Vaclav Svager took up the eighty to homestead which is the east half of the northeast quarter in section four and which is now (1965) known as part of Mrs. Frank Haney farm. Their daughter, Anna, soon married Vincent Vanek and went to live with him and help work and build up a home on forty acres which he bought in 1878 from John Regle. It is the north half of the north half of the southeast quarter of section four. A fine home, barns and numerous other outbuildings were soon built. A larger fruit orchard was set out here, but after their death their only child by adoption, a son, Frank, sold out and all the buildings, having been left to deteriorate quite seriously in the first one third of the twentieth century, were wrecked for lumber so that today not a vestige of that fine farm site remains to be found. It is quite an example of how one man will strive to build something fine for himself which could last for future generations and another will stand by and watch it brought down to complete destruction and not move a hand to save it!

A fourth sister, Anna, who was married to Matej (Mathew) Rebec, was to emigrate to America in a year's time. However Mathew and Anna Rebec's oldest child, Anton (Tony), a seven year old lad came with his aunt and uncle, the Francis Peseks, a year ahead of his parents. Also of this group in 1869 from Czechland was Vojtech (Albert) and Johana Votruba, Barbara's parents. The grandfolds Votruba, Francis, Barbara and Tony came to Antrim City, from where the entire group set sail for their new homesteads via Charlevoix, and lakes and McLean's Landing on the Jordan River.

The grandfolds Votruba made their home with their daughter and son-in-law, Josefa and John Pesek, where they helped take care of their young grandchildren while John and Josefa worked to clear their land or when they went working away from the homestead to make a little ready money for the things they so sorely needed and where Grandfather Votruba, in years to come, was to practice his trade of boot cobbler. This homestead is the east half of the northwest quarter of section four and part of the holdings of a direct descendant, Jonathan Pesek, at the time of this writing.

The above mentioned Vincent Vanek emigrated to the Dakotas, but after a short time there as a business man, he removed to Michigan and took up the pursuit of agriculture. Three years later when Mathew Rebec and his wife arrived from Wisconsin, he homesteaded the east half of the southwest quarter in section thirty two, Wilson Township, across the county line in Charlevoix County. He built their homestead astraddle of the old Indian Trail. Each homestead was made up of an eighty acre plot, this writer should have mentioned sooner maybe. A homestead was a tract of land acquired from the government by filing on it, paying a very small payment, living on, and cultivating at least a part of it. It was created and protected by the Homestead Act, a law enacted in 1863 which protected the homesteading settler from attachment or sale, under execution for general debts.

Francis and Barbara Pesek homesteaded the west half of the northwest quarter of section four. This was later augmented by a purchase of 160 acres across the county line.

The "eighty" between the John Peseks and the Vaclav Svager homesteads was homesteaded by Josef Kubicek, 41, and his wife Barbara, 43. They had two daughters, Marjje, 16, and Tomicka, 15, (Antoinette). This homestead was soon augmented by the purchase of an "eighty" across the county line.

This group of Czech settlers were then embarking at Charlevoix, this beautiful sunny Sunday day in May, onto a small sailboat which was owned by a Charlevoix man, James Holden. These small twin masted ships were called a Mackinaw Boat. Part of their run was between Charlevoix and McLean's Landing, which was owned by Lawson, "Mac", McLean, a Scotsman, and located at the present day site of the Rogers Bridge or a little south of it. A bridge built where the Rogers Bridge is now by John Monroe was known as Munroe's Bridge. Monroe also dammed the river a few rods south of Monroe Bridge and built a small sawmill there on the west bank of the river. McLean also owned the farm on the four corners there later known as the Andrew Franseith farm and now as the Edward Thompson farm. The group of Czechs arrived at McLean's Landing 16 May, 1869. From there they set out afoot, first having engaged McLean to haul some of their more bulky possessions with a yoke of oxen, which they engaged to buy from him. Carrying all they could themselves, and led by Josef Kubicek, who considered himself a veteran there by then, to their homesteads, they arrived at late dusk, tired, hungry and ready for a night's rest after their roughly seven mile walk along the Mt. Bliss Road to Mt. Bliss, then east a mile across section eight to the Indian Trail, along this north almost a mile then across a little valley eastward and they were "home" just as darkness was descending down upon them.

Home consisted of a large widespread hemlock tree located on the homestead and homesteer-to-be of the Francis Peseks, under which they huddled together to sleep as best they could after a cold supper of bread, cheese, and water from a nearby spring.

On that memorable morning the seventeenth of May, which dawned bright and clear, fortunately, and in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and sixty-nine these very first Bohemian Settlement Pioneers began their new life there with a communal prayer, led by Vaclav (James) Svager, to thank God for their safe arrival and to ask Him to bless all their endeavor in their new homeland thereafter.

A breakfast fire was soon built by one group, while another group of men cut down a hemlock tree. This was at once shaped into one sill for a cabin.

"Daddy, Uncle, everybody is to come eat breakfast, it is ready, Mamma says, come on right away," little Mary Pesek came skipping and calling to where her father and the other men were busy sawing logs, chopping and shaping them for cabin wall logs and stripping bark off elm trees for the log cabin roof.

"What have you got to give us to eat this fine morning, eh?" asked uncle Svager as he strode in first amongst the busy women cooks, with a smile on his bearded face. "Is it fried canary tongues, or just some imported Russian caviar?" he joked.

"Here 'Venco', here is your caviar," his wife Marie answered him as she handed him a large bowl of cornmeal mush sprinkled with melted lard, brown sugar and with a dash of precious ground cinnamon, along with a slice of bread and a cup of hot tea.

"Please, Daddy, give me a taste of your mush," little Franje Pesek begged as she cuddled up to her father. She was his favorite and knew it, this four year old.

"Come away from your daddy and let him eat in peace, come over here now, and eat yours with Mamma," her mother spoke. "Oh, leave her be," Father John said as he hugged his little daughter to him, fed her and himself from the one bowl.

By midday enough logs were ready to build the cabin walls. The yoke of oxen bought the day before from McLean were driven up about then with a wagon load of supplies. The most welcome of which were two six-light window sash well packed in straw and a kitchen stove.

The driver, a McLean's hired man, was treated to as good a noonday meal with them as was possible under the circumstances to offer him. He was paid for driving up the yoke of oxen and expected to leave, but didn't. A tall stalwart Canuck, his help was invaluable to these folks hurrying to build a shelter before night and darkness came. "I, Jean LaBlance, a Canuck, I very strong. I work, I fight like two men, I help you today, then go. Got any whiskey? No? Too bad! With good drink whiskey I work like three men," he told them.

John spoke aside to Francis a while after. "I would give him a drink of whiskey, my wife has a bottle in one of her bundles, but I'm afraid he might get hurt and then what?"

"Give him a drink just before he leaves, he deserves it. Look at how he works." The Canuck worked indeed. He raised one end of those heavy green logs, just like nothing, while Josef and Vaclav Svager, far from weaklings themselves, had all they could do to lift and emplace the other end, while the oxen drew up another log. By midafternoon when they all paused for a quick lunch the womenfolk had prepared, the log walls were up, a doorway and window cut out and the work of getting rafter poles cut and placed was underway. Jean was everywhere, laughing, talking, working, teasing the little Pesek girls and little Frankie Svager, who all loved it, and him.

By dusk the roof was on the cabin. It was roofed with elm bark, some chinking was done with a mixture of clay and moss by the women folks. The stove was then set in place on which the cooks cooked and baked a hot supper. After supper, and before leaving, Jean was offered pay for his work which he refused with a hurt look. "Did you ask me to work? No! Then you no pay," he told them and turned to leave. "Pockey", pretty young Barbara Pesek called to him as she offered him a glass and spoke with a smile, "Na cestu". Jean took the glass, drew the aroma of it in with a long indrawn sniff, gave Barbara an ear to ear smile, downed the whole glassful at one gulp and to everyone's astonishment and Barbara's discomfiture, and before she or anyone could do anything to prevent it, hugged her up to him, gave her a loud kiss on each cheek, set her down, set his glass on a stump and with a loud, hearty laugh disappeared into the dark. They never saw this good-hearted French-Canadian again. For years after Barbara was teased with that episode which she enjoyed talking about afterwards, with the rest of them.

Before full dark those of their possessions liable to damage or destruction by rain were moved into the cabin into which the women and children also settled to sleep while the men made themselves a shelter out of a canvas a little distance off. An hour or so later an errant old hootowl, cutting loose a short way off in a tall hemlock, disturbed not one soul from their hard well earned sleep. Thus ended their first day in the new Bohemian Settlement.

As far as this writer's inadequate records go, there was only a William H. Jaquays, who preceded the Pesek group and that by only a few months as a settler in all of what was to become Jordan Township. He owned the southeast quarter, and southwest quarter (two forties) of the northwest quarter of section six.

Wish I'd Said THAT

"An American is the most ambitious individual on earth. He works from morning till night, then moonlights on the side to keep his earning power up to his yearning power."—Lee Call, Star Valley (Afton, Wyo.) Independent.

DIGESTION NECESSARY—In speaking on the new session of Congress, Sen. Mike Mansfield (D-Mont.) said, "We should exercise oversight over the programs which have been passed. We should assume the degree of responsibility that is inherently ours to see that the laws we have passed are carried out efficiently. We should not permit our responsibility in this respect to be delegated to the executive departments."

Thoughts from Outer Space

By Marshall Sayles

United States is now supporting an a-go-go government with a went-went tax money. Dancing, mind you, to the tune of our youth, and outspending them at every whirl.

Many of our young get their spending money from pa. But Uncle Sam gets his from pa and ma and such relatives who have decided at long last to go to work. Then we dance the federal a-go-go of the twentieth century.

We balk not at our youth or our federals having a little mad money; it's what they do with it that lifts the taxed eyebrow.

And sometimes I'm cranky over our soft spot for the non-worker. Whenever Uncle Sam finds one wandering aimlessly among our high employment figures, he puts an official arm around him saying: "Tell you what I'm going to do for you, buddy."

But, ha! And perhaps even, zounds! He who works his digits to the bone quick, supporting seven kids, one wife and a six pack, for him the cream is pinched off his paycheck before he can finger the froth.

I've hacked away at this taxing and spending and dancing for years and even recall bugging Uncle Sam to take the country out of the hands of the statisticians. Quit bureaucrating things up and making seven carbon copies of the whole works to be stashed away in the basement of the White House.

But I am softening. My head was not clear enough in those days to realize how much employment was created by the necessity for compiling such worthless facts.

And now, lately, the Republican cobwebs have been brushed and doomsday seems a little farther off. Which is something of a rarity, for light seeing has not been an outstanding Republican trait in the last thirty years.

And when I'm not alert I find myself dreaming like a Democrat to the expense of my Republican druthers.

For secretly I, too, want all the nice, wonderful things our confounded heavy, unfair federal taxes will bring me.

Let 'em dance.

A woman's body. Architecturally, quite interesting. To a man. But not to the woman who owns one. Most women tend to ignore their own bodies.

Do you? Do you check your body, particularly your breasts, every month, for any lump or thickening? You should. A lump or thickening in the breast or elsewhere could be a warning signal of cancer. And cancer is easier to cure when it's detected early.

Sophia Loren knows the seven warning signals of cancer. So should you:

1. Unusual bleeding or discharge.
2. A lump or thickening in the breast or elsewhere.
3. A sore that does not heal.
4. Change in bowel or bladder habits.
5. Hoarseness or difficulty in swallowing.
6. Change in a wart or mole.
7. Change in a signal lasts longer than two weeks, see your doctor without delay.

It makes sense to know the seven warning signals of cancer. It makes sense to give to the American Cancer Society.

SPORTSDIARY

C. D. asks: Could you give the top crowd for a championship bout in professional boxing?
A. 120, 737 for the Dempsey-Tunney bout on Sept. 23, 1926 at the Sesqui-Centennial Stadium in Philadelphia.

T. M. K. asks: Could you give me the location of the Scarborough Downs race track? Is it a day or night track?

A. It is located at Scarborough, Maine, eight miles south of Portland on U. S. No. 1. They race at night.

T. J. O. asks: Did Maury Willis play third base at any time last year for the Los Angeles Dodgers?

A. Yes, he played third base in four games.

F. P. C. asks: Who was the first to enter the National Basketball Association, Bill Russell or Wilt Chamberlain? In how many All-Star games has Russell appeared?

A. Russell joined the Boston Celtics for the 1956-57 campaign, Chamberlain joined the Warriors for the 1959-60 season. Russell has played in nine All-Star games, his first in 1958.

T. V. M. asks: Could you supply us with the racing dates in the New York area for June, July and August?

A. Belmont's meeting, at Aqueduct, starts June 1 and goes through July 1; Aqueduct starts July 3 and continues through July 29. Saratoga opens July 31 and goes through Aug. 26. Aqueduct has a 30 day meeting starting Aug. 28 and running through Sept. 30.

Struggle for Survival

The story is well known and despairingly understood by those who have seen it. The time is late March, early April in northern Michigan. The place is a secluded, silent swamp. The struggle to survive the long winter is coming to an end; it's the 11th hour, the last portion of the third act. Food rations of hungry deer are running short and only those animals with enough reserve fat, or enough strength to stand on hind legs and reach the lowest branches, can hope to survive. The little fellow (inset) lying down, his ears already floppy, will die where he is, within a few tortured hours or days. Others like him, their fur scuffed and stiff, will probably not make it. Some years, Michigan has lost 50,000 or more whitetails in northern deer yards. Under sound deer management, scenes of deer starvation have been less frequent than in years past. However, again this year, the ugly spectre of heavy losses hovers over the state's northern deer herd. Depending on how high the toll goes, next fall's deer hunting season will be that much the poorer from nature's death act in the woods. --Mich. Dept. of Conservation Guard those nylons, gals! Trout season opens this Saturday and that's no April foolin'.

We're talking, of course, about the early season of rainbow and brown trout in the lower reaches of streams flowing into the Great Lakes. Brook trout will continue safe till the regular trout season opens April 29, and all state waters are then open.

About those nylons, now. Inch-square pieces, cut from a sheer nylon stocking, are ideal material for using to tie up spawn bags for rainbow bait. Most husbands are willing to settle for an old pair of nylons for this purpose but in the fever pitch of getting ready to go fishing, they have been known to make mistakes. Don't say we didn't warn you, gals.

Getting hold of some trout spawn or eggs poses quite a problem, unless a fisherman is far-sighted. It is sort of like the old question of which came first, the chicken or the egg. The easiest way to get some rainbow trout spawn is to first catch a trout, but since this is easiest done with spawn or bait--well, you get the idea.

The fisherman who thinks ahead has probably saved some spawn, frozen since last year. This can be either rainbow eggs from last spring or brown trout eggs from last fall's late season.

Anyhow, say you have the trout eggs and your wife has given you one of her old nylon stockings and you have tied up a bunch of little finger-nailized bags of the stuff. What then?

Well, be prepared to lose a lot of terminal outfits because if you are going to catch big trout during the early season you will have to get right down on bottom. And, as you well know, that's where the snags are. If you don't lose 15 or 20 outfits the first weekend, chances are you are not getting down into the best trout territory.

To save your temper, tie up a bunch of spare outfits before you go fishing. If you are using 8 or 10 pound test monofilament line on your reel, tie two feet of lighter leader to the end of it. This should contain your hook and enough split shots to make sure the bait will roll along bottom naturally when you let out slack. If you get snagged up all you will lose will be the lighter leader. This way you can just tie on another ready-made one and be right back in business.

While natural spawn is the hottest spring-time bait, it isn't the only thing that will catch big trout. Commercially-bottled salmon eggs, night crawlers, minnows, wigglers--all take big trout every spring. So do artificial baits like Flatfish, Mepps spinners and streamer flies.

Flies, in fact, are greatly under-rated but deadly in the hands of an expert during the early trout season. A friend of ours, Ken Bailey, proved this rather conclusively last year by taking a 13-pound rainbow on a streamer fly.

This early trout season is definitely not for the faint-hearted or the thin-blooded. It's mighty chilly fishing in early April. Funny thing, though--once you get one of those silver-sided thunderbolts on the end of your line you couldn't care less about cold weather.

April 7, 1827 -- The first practical friction matches, called "Congreves" after Sir William Congreve, a rocket engineer, were sold in England by John Walker the inventor.

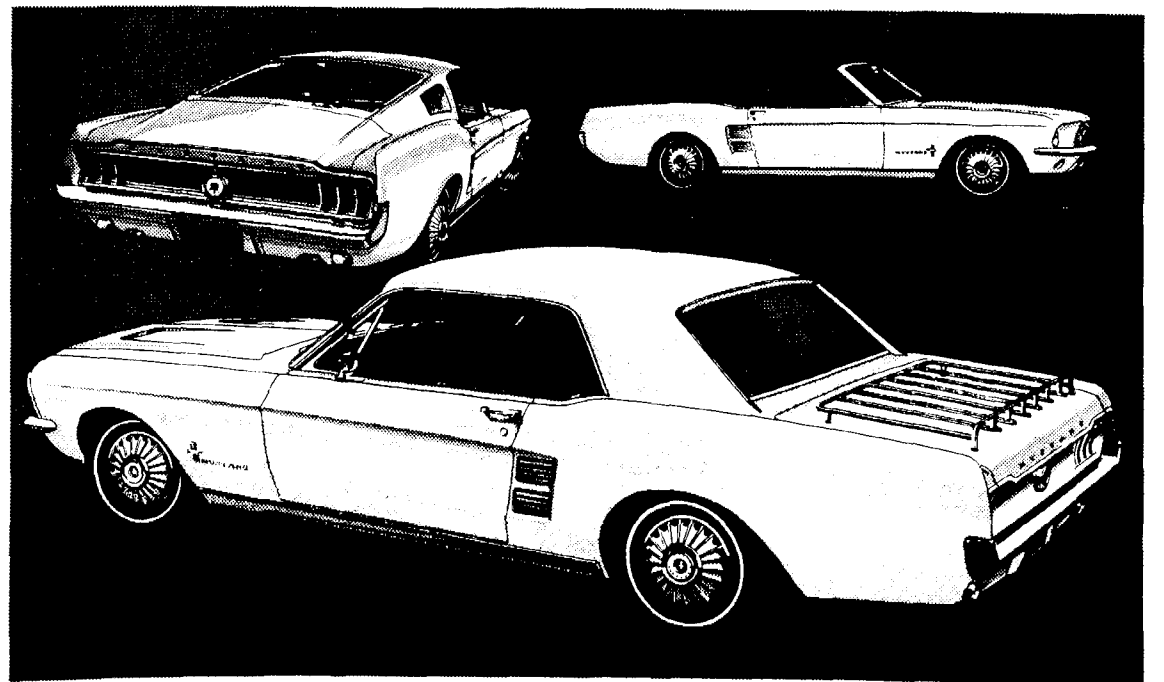

April 10, 1849 -- Walter Hunt of New York City was granted a patent for his invention of the safety pin. He later sold out his interest for $100.

April 14, 1910 -- Major league baseball opened officially with a game between Boston and Washington at Washington. William Howard Taft was the first President to lob out the season's first ball.

April 19, 1775 -- Patriot's Day commemorating the battles of Lexington and Concord.

April 25, 1901 -- New York State became the first to require motorists to equip their automobiles with license plates; total of 964 vehicles registered.

"One of life's briefest moments is the time between reading the sign on the freeway and realizing you just missed the off-ramp."—Donald M. Weaver, Winnebago (Minn.) Enterprise.

Area Economy Linked To Use Of Ohio-to-Soo Expressway

The Ohio-to-Soo Freeway, which runs a short distance east of East Jordan, is triggering a significant economic upsurge in this area.

Summer traffic volumes in this northern area have jumped 30 percent since the freeway was established in 1959.

State highway officials report our great boost in summer sales tax collections is due much to use of the freeway. And they report that during June, July and August of last year this area's food sales increased 39 percent.

Commission Vice Chairman Charles H. Hewitt of the State Highway Department said summer traffic volumes in the Northern half of the Lower Peninsula increased more than 30 per cent between 1959 and 1965.

Most of the increase occurred after 1962 when the final section of I-75 in the Lower Peninsula was opened to traffic.

Hewitt said the increase in sales tax collections on food during June, July and August between 1960 and 1966 was higher in 19 Northern Michigan counties than it was in the rest of the state.

The largest percentage increases in both traffic and sales tax collections on food occurred in the corridor of counties through which the Ohio-Soo Freeway passes.

"However, it is evident that all areas south of the Mackinac Bridge have benefited," Hewitt said.

Summer traffic volumes on the Ohio-Soo Freeway north of Clare increased from an average of 5,421 vehicles per day in 1959 to 13,800 vehicles per day last summer.

Sales tax collections on food increased 40 per cent between 1961 and 1966 in 10 counties between Clare and the Mackinac Bridge compared to a statewide average increase of 25 per cent.

"Unquestionably, I-75 is triggering significant economic expansion in the northern half of the Lower Peninsula," Hewitt said.

"However, it appears the Upper Peninsula is not benefiting fully in the summer travel boom that has occurred south of the Mackinac Bridge."

Hewitt said the long distances, the toll rates on the Mackinac Bridge and lack of an East-West Freeway in the Upper Peninsula are the principal reasons that similar travel-related economic expansion has not occurred in the Upper Peninsula.

The 45 counties in Northern Michigan and the Upper Peninsula were divided into 12 areas of similar size for a comparison of sales tax collections on food during June, July and August.

Counties in each of the 12 areas and the per cent of increase in sales tax collections on food during the summer months between 1961 and 1966 include (Statewide average increase was 25 per cent):

--Up 27 per cent in Arenac, Gladwin, Iosco and Ogemaw counties.

--Up 43 per cent in Clare, Crawford, Kalkaska, Missaukee and Roscommon counties.

--Up 25 per cent in Lake, Mason, Mecosta, Newaygo, Oceana and Osceola counties.

--Up 32 per cent in Benzie, Grand Traverse, Leelanau, Manistee and Wexford counties.

--Up 24 per cent in Alcona, Alpena, Montmorency, Oscoda and Presque Isle counties.

--Up 39 per cent in Antrim, Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Emmet and Otsego counties.

--Up four per cent in Chippewa, Luce and Mackinac counties.

--Up six per cent in Alger and Marquette counties.

--Up eight per cent in Delta, Menominee and Schoolcraft counties.

--Down one per cent in Dickinson and Iron counties.

--Up 10 per cent in Barage, Houghton and Keweenaw counties.

--Up four per cent in Gogebic and Ontonagon counties.

Snowcat Officers

John Apfel, left, of Bellaire is president of the recently formed Northern Michigan Snowmobile Association; Lloyd Starks, of Alba, is secretary; Melvin Kitchen, of Alba, is vice-president; and Tom Galmore, right, of East Jordan, is treasurer.

Retiring fireman Leon Peterson, right, was presented with a rod and reel by his fellow firemen when members of the East Jordan Volunteer Fire Department honored him with a banquet at the fire hall Thursday night. Fire Chief Bernard Hammond made the gift presentation. The firemen were entertained following the banquet with an address and colored slides shown by Dr. J. VanDellen, who recently returned from Africa following his work there in a mission hospital. (Huckle Photo).

Melvin Kitchen, left, of Alba, was presented a Northern Michigan Snowmobile Association season trophy, for having the most high points in the modified class. Eugene Bloom, of Central Lake, right, received an association trophy for having the most high points under stock machines in races this past winter.

The East Jordan News-Herald costs less by the year. $3.50 per year in the East Jordan area, $6.00 for two years. $4.00 per year outside our area, $7.00 for two years. $5.20 on the news stands per year.

BITS and PIECES Around Charlevoix County

Good news to visitors who utilize the facilities of state parks is the announcement that 170 new campsites and related facilities are being readied at Young State Park in time for the 1967 camping season. This will bring the total number of camp sites to 297.

Park supervisor Elmer Behling of Boyne City reports that the expansion project is the largest this year in a northern Lower Michigan State Park.

The park formerly had 127 campsites with related facilities.

News of the death of C. M. (Mike) Bice, 59, who practiced law in East Jordan when he came to Charlevoix county in the early 1930's, has been received here. He died unexpectedly March 21 at his winter home in Ormond Beach Fla. He later moved to Charlevoix and served as county prosecutor for a total of 19 years. He had been in ill health since 1962 following a stroke.

Of interest to Charlevoix county residents is the fact that the residents of the Ellsworth school district will vote May 1 on whether or not they want to annex to the Charlevoix school district. Earlier the Charlevoix board of education has voted to accept the district if its residents chose to annex to the Charlevoix district.

If the Ellsworth district votes to annex to the Charlevoix district tentative plans call for bussing Ellsworth's 145 high school students to Charlevoix. The 148 remaining students would continue to use the Ellsworth school.

Boyer City's teenagers may have their own Winchester Cathedral if plans of an understanding mother, Mrs. Warren Todter, come to pass.

She plans to purchase the Reorganized Church of Latter Day Saints building next to the Boyne City library, convert it to use as a teen-center and operate it as a private business. She is presently a member of the committee which has been operating a center on East St. This building has proven unsatisfactory and the committee has been unable to obtain financing to purchase the church building.

The announcement that the former church building was being considered as a site for a teen center had hardly been made than some Boyne City residents aired their views regarding the noise that might come from it. This related to blaring juke boxes and live bands that would disturb those utilizing the facilities of the library next door.

Charlevoix county has a goodly number of small businesses according to the results of a new federal study called "County Business Patterns" prepared by the Census Bureau with the cooperation of the Social Security Administration.

In fact, there are 301 separate businesses in operation including 202 that have from one to three employees each; 51 that have from four to seven; 26 that have from eight to 19 leaving 22 with more than 19.

Payrolls in the county last year totaled a record $13.8 millions and represented a 58.6 percent rise since 1959. During the same period the increase was 37.3 throughout the nation and 42.8 percent in Michigan.

The figures take into account all workers who receive wages or salaries from private, non-farm employment covered by social security. The number employed is given as 3,185.

Miss Lyn Ann Van Alstine and Samuel Reid were united in marriage Saturday, March 25 at 7:30 p.m. at the Methodist Church in Boyne City by Rev. R. J. McBratnie. The candlelight double ring ceremony was performed in the presence of 150 guests.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd L. Van Alstine of Boyne City, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Vern Reid of East Jordan.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an A line gown of satin fashioned with long sleeves and an empire lace bodice trimmed with sequins. Her train of lace and satin was also trimmed with sequins and fastened at the waist. Her elbow length veil was held in place by a double tier crown of lace and pearls. Her bouquet was of French carnations and lilies of the valley.

The maid of honor, Miss Debbie Trumble, a friend of the bride, wore a pastel blue dotted swiss floor length gown with a modified cage accented with a large satin bow at the high rise waistline. Her headpiece was a blue satin bow with blue veiling.

Bridesmaids were Betty Lou Fairchild and Wilma Lou Van Alstine. Eleanor Reid, sister of the groom, was junior bridesmaid. They were dressed the same as the maid of honor and all carried a single long stemmed red rose with white streamers.

Glen Reid, brother of the groom, was best man, and groomsmen were Peter Prebble and Jerry Donaldson. The junior groomsmen was Tim VanAlstine, brother of the bride.

Ushers were Glen Seagraves, John McKinny, Bud Carey and Bill Chase.

Timmy Reid, brother of the groom, was ring bearer, and Tammy VanAlstine, cousin of the bride, was flower girl. Terry VanAlstine, brother of the bride, lighted the candles for the ceremony.

The church altar was decorated with Easter lilies and candlebra.

The mother of the bride wore a pastel blue crepe and lace dress with blue and white accessories. Her corsage was white French carnations and a red rose.

The groom's mother wore a suit of beige lace weave over taffeta with beige and shocking pink accessories. Her corsage was pink French carnations and a pink rose.

Three grandmothers attended the wedding and all wore matching corsages of white carnations.

A reception was held at the American Legion Hall, which was decorated with pink and white streamers, white bells and Easter lilies. The four tiered wedding cake was served by Mrs. Robert Seagraves, aunt of the bride, and Mrs. Russell Hart, aunt of the groom, cut the groom's cake.

The bride chose a blue linen suit with navy accessories for a going away costume. Her corsage was a yellow orchid.

The bride is a graduate of Boyne City high school and is employed as a secretary at Courter Products. The groom is a graduate of East Jordan high school and is attending Ferris State College.

After a wedding trip to Kentucky, the couple will be at home at Hersey, Michigan.
