"HOME OF THE SWANS"

OVER THE BACK FENCE

BY MARSHALL

Deer Hunters, tourists and other travelers who become irked at the occasional long wait at the straits of Mackinac were given sound advice Saturday. Jump in and swim across. It takes only 2 hours, 36 minutes and 4 seconds. A 21 year old California blond, Barbara Leonard, proved it. She jumped into the water at St. Ignace and four miles later walked ashore at Mackinaw City. Nothing to it. She did it for a lark. Those bridge builders are crossing the straits for $100,000,000.

It was the first time in history that a person had swum the State Highway ferries. And the biggest water event since Leander swam the Hellespont to see his beautiful girl friend.

Like we've been saying right along. Big things are happening in the straits region.

Hey, Ma! Look at this. There are three kinds of ice cube villains. The one who doesn't refill the tray, the one who fills it only half, and the one who does not put the tray back in the refrigerator.

Parents take notice: School and childhood generally are glorified as the golden period of life before worry and stress set in. But take the case of the now famous Winston Churchill. It was the least agreeable time of his life. He was repeatedly beaten and humiliated because he did not like the routine of conforming to scholastic traditions. He was told that only an idiot could fail to pass the entrance exam to enter a military institution. But despite special teaching, he failed three years in a row. Later his skill at eloquent expression of great thoughts in simple English cheered and aroused the free world. So occasionally a dumb bunny can become a pretty sharp rabbit.

Is it easier for him who starts to make a fortune between the ages of 20 and 40; or between 40 and 60? At 20 he has no experience, no mature judgement. At 40, he has already tried several times and failed.

We never really understood the history of Labor Day until we read a recent article explaining that it was founded as a time of festivity for those who labor. Ignorant of this we worked.

A man said the other day. If you made a million dollars in East Jordan all sorts of people would criticize you, point at you and question your activities. Huh! Who needs a million dollars?

A fellow editor down in Central Lake took the town marshal to court for busting him in the nose. Waiting with baited breath to find out what happens in a case like this, we discovered that the whole affair wound up with a "hung" jury. And so we were disappointed. For we didn't give a hoot what happened to the individual members of the jury.

A man down at the boat races Sunday said it is better to get something in your eye and wink, than to wink and get something in your eye.

Some politicians are for high wages and a lower cost of living and other nonsense like that.

We've often wondered why people can't get tired without getting mad.

To Sponsor Benefit Supper

The Jordan River Lodge No. 360 IOOF will sponsor a ham supper. Receipts from the supper will be used by the hospital bed committee to improve and enlarge the facilities. The date for the supper will be announced later.

BIG BOWLING NIGHT: Officialdom reigned at opening ceremonies held in East Jordan's Recreation to mark the 1955-56 bowling season, September 1st. Twelve teams of the East Jordan Ladies league watched Donald Clark, president, East Jordan Businessmen's Association, throw the first ball after being introduced by Mayor Vern Whiteford who is at left in above photo. On hand were new owners of the alleys, Mr. and Mrs. Ode Walker. Standing next to Mayor Whiteford is Mrs. Emma Stewart, of Kalamazoo, treasurer, Women's State Bowling Association. Also present were Minnie Desjardins, president, Top O'Michigan Ladies Bowling Association and a board director of the state organization along with Marietta Walden, president, East Jordan Ladies League. Clark presented Ester Skop, of East Jordan, with pin award from the state association for having highest single game of the 1954-55 season—a 244 pin actual. Betty Robertson and Doris Huckle, league members, won opening ceremony door prizes. Managers of the newly redecorated Recreation building are Andy and Donna Anderson. (Photo by Huckle)

REBMAN THANKS RESIDENTS

Farm Agent Tells of First 10 Years in Local Area

A group of 100 Mexican Nationals stationed at the Charlevoix County Fair grounds at East Jordan for the purpose of picking string beans and cucumbers was the scene that greeted Ed Reberman, the Charlevoix County Agricultural Agent when he arrived here ten years ago September 1.

The end of last month represented the close of his first ten years of service as local county agricultural agent.

Since then, Reberman says, many things have happened. There have been some good crop years for farmers who received good yields and high prices and there has been years like this summer when drought reduced yields considerably and farm prices were fairly low.

Some years the turkey growers has done exceptionally well while other enterprises have not fared very well. In other years other enterprises such as fruit, dairy and etc. have done well.

In spite of all the happenings Mr. Reberman still points out that the people of Charlevoix county are very nice to work with.

The Charlevoix County Board of Supervisors have always been very cooperative to the County Extension Office he says.

Farmers and other people who represented the board of directors of the different agricultural organizations have also extended to the Extension Office the kindest and most helping hand.

Several organizations were started during the ten year period. In 1946 the Antrim-Charlevoix Artificial Breeders' Association was organized and furnished farmers in the south half of the county the use of superior dairy bulls for their herds.

The next year the Boyne City Artificial Breeders' Association was organized and also the Cow Testing Association whereby farmers could tell which of their cows were keeping him and which cows he was keeping.

The Charlevoix Soil Conservation District was organized in 1948 and Reberman has served as secretary from its beginning.

He also served as secretary to the Charlevoix County Fair from 1948 until it closed following the 1953 fair.

One of the outstanding happenings Reberman can recall is the epidemic of army worms that invaded several townships in the south part of the county.

Farmers in Marion and Eveline townships were hit the hardest with the damage of small grains amounting to about 15,000. Here the cooperation of everyone was very evident. Two oil companies furnished tankers to haul water, the City of Charlevoix gave the water and an impliment dealer and some farmers furnished tractors and sprayers, and everyone pitched into help fight the army worms.

Reberman is extending to everyone his thanks for all the assistance rendered him since coming to Charlevoix county.

GOP Meet To Boost Eisenhower

Barney Milstein, of East Jordan and Fenton Bulow, of Charlevoix, are accepting reservations for the Republican "Forward to '56" conference scheduled for Mackinac Island, September 17-18.

The session will feature nationally known speakers and workshops on political action and state governmental questions, according to Guy C. Conkle, Jr., of Boyne City. Conkle is Chairman of the Charlevoix County Republican Committee and a member of the reservations committee for the northern GOP meeting.

Michigan members of President Eisenhower's Cabinet will be present along with other high administration officials from Michigan and members of the congressional delegation.

The conference is being held to boost President Eisenhower's program and his reelection.

Woodcock To Quarter Back Red Devils

A probable line-up for the Red Devil opener September 17 was given by Coach Saxton this week.

Center will be D. Johnson and right guard, Sweet.

R. Wycoff will go in as right tackle and R. Walker as right end.

In the backfield, Saxton will use Woodcock as his quarterback with Cihak or G. Thompson playing left half. A. Ingalls may start at right half.

Streeter will fill the full back position.

Other strong possibilities are Shepard, Yettaw, Kramer, Snyder, B. Johnson and Crowell.

Saxton said two more lettermen were lost to the squad this week, E. Ingalls and Art Thompson, seniors.

Rotary Told Of Need For County Funds

Increasing costs of Charlevoix county government point to the need for more tax money and an eventual rise in county-wide assessments, Barney Milstein said Tuesday noon.

In charge of the Rotary luncheon program, Milstein outlined the work of the county board of supervisors and gave a run down on costs of local county government. He is a supervisor of East Jordan's third ward.

Rotary members were told that the board of supervisors will be faced with an approximate $17,000 jump in the annual county budget when it meets in October.

A budget of about $172,000 will be considered by the board. This year's budget was $155,000.

COMPLETE SIXTH TOUR

Pedaling Pair Visit Old Southern Battle Grounds

Parker Seiler and Lyn Neal recently completed their sixth annual bicycle tour. In contrast to previous 2,000 mile trips, this was a short 320 miles of pedaling. Following is their story of the trip.

"At St. Louis, Missouri, our starting point, we enjoyed a visit to Forest Park and the famous municipal open air amphitheater. Here we witnessed the musical production of "South Pacific" for which the 12,000 seats were filled. We were impressed by the fact that 1,000 seats at the back are free so that many might enjoy cultural programs regardless of financial standing.

From St. Louis we pedaled across the Jefferson Barracks toll bridge and entered Illinois. For the next 300 miles we were destined to be never farther than 30 miles from the Mississippi River, which we had just crossed.

Through corn country we pedaled to Sparta, Illinois and spent the night in an old hotel, which based its claim to fame on the fact that Lindbergh had slept there. You may think this rather comical but the leading industry within the city is a "funny book" publishing firm which employs nearly 500.

We passed through the fringe area of the great Illinois coal fields and saw some evidence of coal mining. The mines operate little during summer months, maybe 3 days a week, but from September until May they run more steadily and miners earn about $28 a day.

From Murphysboro we began riding through a very pretty but hilly section of southern Illinois known as the Illinois or Egyptian Ozarks.

AS ONE GOES south the twilight period grows shorter and darkness fell on us a few minutes after the sun set. We found ourselves at Alto Pass, a small village about the size of Ellsworth and soon discovered there was not a hotel, motel or tourist home in the area!

"Isn't there anybody who ever puts anybody up for the night?" I asked the proprietor of the only store open — a little place where talk was cheap but there wasn't much to sell. He thought a few minutes and then showed us a place down the railroad tracks a few blocks.

The woman gave us her own bedroom, changed the sheets and charged us a very reasonable 75c each. She and her husband then slept in the living room.

I was awake during the night, don't know whether it was the rumbling freight trains going by or the "ice cream supper" we had eaten just before retiring, when the door opened and a figure silently entered our bedroom and

CLARENCE L. (BIGGIE) MUNN, athletic director at MSU and John A. Hannah, MSU president, will be guest speakers at an MSU Alumni banquet at Boyne Mountain Lodge September 10th.

The meeting starts at one p.m. with family outings planned for alumni families from Charlevoix, Cheboygan and Emmet counties.

The banquet at 7 p.m. is open to the public and those wishing to attend are asked to call Boyne Mountain Lodge or Arthur K. Rouse in Boyne City for reservations.

walked past the foot of the bed. It turned out to be only the girl who roomed upstairs. It seems the stairway was in our room.

The next morning we pedaled through Jonesboro where one of the famous Lincoln-Douglas debates had been held nearly a century ago.

We learned that southern Illinois is called "Little Egypt" because back in the middle 19th century there had been a crop failure in northern Illinois and folks had come to this part of the state for food reminiscent of Biblical times when Joseph's brethren journeyed to Egypt to buy grain. Thebes and Cairo (pronounced "Care-oh" by the natives) are two southern Illinois towns given Egyptian names.

Our first flat tire occurred at a very convenient time and place. We had just entered Cairo at lunch time. A super market was on one side and a shady court house yard, complete with benches, was located on the other side of the street. We aren't always that fortunate.

It was here that we noticed several women carrying open umbrellas and there wasn't a cloud in the sky. They were being used to provide shelter from the blazing sun. If it's any hotter next summer, that idea may even catch on in East Jordan.

We crossed the Ohio River at Cairo, just a mile from where it merges with the mighty Mississippi and spent the night at Wickliff, Kentucky.

After changing another flat tire the next morning, we rode to the Columbia Belmont Battlefield State Park. From this high bluff overlooking the Mississippi River, Confederate soldiers had sought to prevent Union ships from going south.

We saw a portion of the huge chain which they had stretched across the river. How effective their chain and cannons had been we could not learn.

WE ATE our lunch in the little town of Moscow, Kentucky but no one could tell us how it got its name. At Cayce we stopped to view the monument erected to Casey Jones, the famous engineer, who had spent his boyhood days there.

We rode through fine cotton country and could also see great fields of soy beans. The cotton was just maturing and will be picked from now until December.

At Tiptonville, Tennessee, we were nearly at the center of the New Madrid earthquake which shook a large section of the United States at intervals from December, 1811 to February, 1812.

Had there been great cities in the region at that time, they would have been destroyed. It was the greatest quake on the North American continent witnessed by white men. The area was in such turbulence that for a time the Mississippi flowed upstream and a great slice of land dropped into some sort of underground abyss. Water rushed into the hole to create Reelfoot Lake which exists today.

The Tiptonville area is all alluvial soil which had come from the once great mountains of eastern United States. Here it is necessary to drill 2400 before hitting rock.

We gleaned more Civil War history from a man who told us about the battle for Island No. 10 which took place on the river nearby. There six Union ironclad gunboats had shelled the Confederate held island some 30 days before the historic battle of the Monitor and the Merrimack. The gentleman even showed us a shell which had been fired from one of the ships.

We crossed the Mississippi River on a unique ferry, consisting of a long pontoon barge, pushed by a diesel powered tug. Since the river bank varies with the season, there are no piers, docks or slips. The ferry just pushes up to the sandy beach and off you drive.

Soon we were riding through northeastern Arkansas, our 42nd (Continued on Page 6)

NORTHERN LIGHTS

(Compiled by the News-Herald Staff)

The U. S. Government wants to spend millions to protect northern Michigan from all possible enemies. But a lot of people have protested about putting a jet base in their "back yard." Everyone, it seems, wants to put a crimp in the base location. And the "Leader and Kalkaskian," Kalkaska's weekly newspaper says: "We propose the formation of a new organization—The Northern Michigan Loyal Order of Crimps."

THE KALKASKA jet base is just one of the many modern day developments that have come to northern Michigan in the past 10 years. And there will be a lot more developments in the next 10 years. But believe it or not, there have been a number of northern Michigan residents, who for nearly a half of century, have been openly, or otherwise, fighting development of this part of Michigan. Some of these people are in "power" and some of them are the "man on the street" person. They laugh at suggested development and discuss proposed projects in a highly pessimistic tone. In recent years these people have been gradually outnumbered, but many of them are still in evidence. Which is one reason why northern Michigan has not developed through the years in proportion to the rest of the state.

The type of people mentioned above are living in the past and do not realize that they can be a part of a great future, if they quit being selfish, stubborn and unsmart.

WILL YOU BE the next person killed in an auto accident? F. Granger Weil, president, Michigan Press Association, and publisher of the Port Huron Times-Herald says: "These summer months have brought to our great state a disgrace which even the years cannot erase. Hundreds have died on our highways and thousands have been so grievously injured that their lives may have been ruined, or they have been subjected to suffering, and their family and friends to sorrow or hardship. . . . What has gone on before (in traffic safety) has merely been a minor skirmish in the battle for future safety. The work is all to be done."

If you read the daily papers last week you learned that an entire family was wiped out in a two car crash at M-66 and 115.

East Jordan high school is reading many typewriters for students who wish to learn how to type and to perhaps later be able to run one at home or in business. But to own a typewriter in Soviet-occupied Rumania you'd have to have a special license from the police. Citizens are liable for fines from 50 to 150 lei if such a machine is moved from the house without previous consent from the police.

MAN SAID the other day, "Leave us not be so busy chopping wood that we have no time to sharpen our ax."

Connie Mack, Charlie Dresen, Casey Stengel and other baseball experts believe that pitching is 75 percent of the game, but even though I'm a broken down old pitcher myself, I don't believe it is quite that important.

What with the still-livelier ball and the shrinking of the strike zone so that a pitch only a little above the belt line is called a ball, power hitting plays a greater part in winning a pennant.

Consider the Chicago White Sox. Despite a first-rate pitching staff the past few seasons, they couldn't take the flag because of weakness at the plate. This year they have more power hitters and thus remain in the thick of the spine-tingling fight for the title.

Nevertheless, pitching remains by far the most important factor in baseball. If the Tigers had just a little better pitching, we'd be right there with the rest of them. We've lost some two dozen games by one measly run.

PREDICTS REPEAT TITLE
 O! Diz believes that the pitching staff that withstands the great pressure of the last weeks—among Chicago, New York, Cleveland and Boston—will win the pennant.

Al Lopez thinks so, too, and that's why he is predicting a repeat title for his Cleveland ball club. He claims his pitching staff has proved it can stand up under pressure, and in Ray Narleski and Don Mossi he has the two best "stoppers," or relief hurlers in the American League. We'll see.

What makes a good pitcher? Well, he must possess a strong, live arm, good control, a strong physique, power of concentration, fielding ability and desire to win.

That's a large order, of course, and that's why there aren't too many good pitchers around today. Most hurlers have one or more shortcomings.

A live arm means one that responds a few days after use and is ready for another nine innings. As pitchers age, their arms fail to respond for longer periods.

FIELDING IMPORTANT
 A strong physique is necessary to stand up under the punishment of a full game of pitching. Concentration is mind over muscle, which helps make control, and also keeps the pitcher from becoming rattled in tense situations.

A pitcher's fielding is more important than most fans realize. He must be able to hustle on a bunt, throw well to second base to start a double play (the ball must be timed to reach the on-rushing fielder just as he hits the bag) and cover first on a ball hit to the second or first baseman.

Control means getting ahead of the batters. If you can't get strikes across the plate, you have to come in with a fat pitch to avoid walking the batter, and then watch out.

The two types of control pitchers are spot pitchers and strike pitchers. The former tries to catch the corners, the latter seeks to get the ball anywhere over the plate with a lot of stuff on it.

Ed Lopat and Ned Garver are spot pitchers, Steve Gromek and Harry Dorrish strike pitchers. O! Diz was a strike pitcher until I started to lose some of my stuff, and then this Hickory and Horsehide reporter became a control pitcher in a hurry.

 state. We terminated our tour in Piggott, a little city of 3,500, in the heart of a wonderful agricultural area.

Piggott is a clean city and very unlike the "backwoods" villages strangers usually associate with Arkansas. Here we visited for hours with the friendly townspeople. Whittling red cedar and trading knives on the courthouse square seems to be the unusual hobby of the city's older set.

One of our interviewers was the editor of the Piggott Banner and he presented the Pedaling Pair with an interesting booklet he had prepared about the Battle of Chalk Bluff, a Civil War skirmish which had occurred near Piggott.

Before boarding the train that night we stopped in the most popular place in town and Cookie, the friendly young proprietor presented us with milk shakes on the house. Thus we left Piggott with a very good taste in our mouths.

Although we bicycled but five days we touched 5 states, made many friends and had more interesting experiences than we have space to relate.

Long live the bicycle!

Mrs. Lucille Bravi and children, who spent the summer with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Eggersdorf, left for her home in Chicago last weekend. The Adolph Bravi family and Miss Lynette Jehs, who have spent two weeks here, left with them.

LETTER BOX

Dear Editor:

I would like to answer the letter of Alvin Shepard in last Thursday's paper concerning treatment to customers, from a visitor's viewpoint.

In seven years of visiting your community I have nothing but praise for your merchants. Especially the filling station operators. After all they work 12 to 14 hours per day, seven days per week. Once in a while they are entitled to blow off a little steam although I have never seen evidence of it.

Visitors that need to be coddled have no place in a respectable community.

Just continue to work together in harmony as a community. I noticed an increase in this spirit last year. The flower boxes are part of the color of this community, so are the swan and the new city dock.

Continue to work in harmony as a community and the 25 percent of the year when visitors are here will take care of itself. See you next year.

Miss Folsom And Edward Thorsen Wed August 20th

Miss Virginia Irene Folsom, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Folsom of East Jordan, and Edward R. Thorsen, son of Emil Thorsen of East Jordan, were united in marriage Saturday, August 20th at 2 o'clock at the Lutheran parsonage of Boyne City by Rev. Richard Noffze in a double ring ceremony.

The bride wore a white nylon ballerina length dress with white accessories and a corsage of pink carnations. Elberta Messer, sister of the bride, was Maid of Honor. She chose a pastel blue nylon dress with a corsage of pink carnations.

William Thorsen, brother of the groom, served as best man.

Following the marriage a reception was held in the dining hall at the East Jordan tourist park for the families and a few close friends. Wedding cake, ice cream and punch were served. The couple received many lovely gifts.

Following the reception the young couple left for a wedding trip through Michigan's upper peninsula. They will reside in East Jordan.

The Wilson Ladies Aid will meet with Mrs. Nan Behling this Thursday at 2 p.m. at her home near Petoskey.

Who Said Hot Summer Means Cold Winter?

Old wives' tales to the contrary, you just can't predict a cold-cold winter coming up because of our hot-hot summer, says a University of Michigan meteorologist.

In fact, meteorologists aren't even sure yet that this will measure up statistically to be an exceptionally hot summer — the sweltering man in the street notwithstanding!

So says A. Nelson Dingle, research associate in the University of Michigan's Engineering Research Institute, who looks on summer and winter as separate entities significantly separated by the fall season during which anything can happen atmospherically, and usually does.

He explains this by pointing out that although there may be some continuity in weather pattern during the summer, a time of relatively few storms, changes in air temperature and other atmospheric gyrations make fall a turbulent period, disrupting what little order there might have been in the pattern.

Spring is the same kind of unpredictable season with a rapidly warming atmosphere making its weather changeable, he says.

"For some strange reason people expect the atmosphere to be a simple thing producing weather that follows logically day after day," Dingle states, "but it is actually highly complex, huge, and influenced by many forces—some of which we don't even know about."

Weather prediction beyond a few days is a pretty risky business, he declares, since "weather persistence," as it is called, can't be counted on as a guide for longer than this period.

Those Were Not The Good Old School Days

Grandpa isn't just spinning yarns when he talks about "my rugged days in school." Fact is, according to Michigan Department of Health records, young folks can thank their lucky charms that it's 1955, not 1900.

You see, back a half century ago, about one death out of every three was someone 15 years of age or younger. Last year, only one out of every ten Michigan deaths was in that age group.

Diseases going around at the turn of the century often meant much more than a few days out of class. Diphtheria, for one example, hit 2,706 Michigan people in 1900, compared with only 57 new cases reported in the state last year.

Measles and whooping cough, combined, killed 550 in 1900, but took only 34 Michigan lives in 1954. And scarlet fever, which caused 123 deaths fifty years ago, only killed three times in Michigan last year.

Sanitation, immunization and modern treatment methods are given credit for cornering the ails, "but no communicable disease can be counted completely out," the health department cautions.

Most of the diseases, the department goes on to say, may be merely marking time, waiting for "Thirty years ago I was a poor boy. Now, thanks to high income taxes, I'm a poor man!"

the pressure to let up. Like measles, whooping cough and scarlet fever, which caused few deaths last year, but piled up a combined total of 51,487 new cases in Michigan.

As the health department sees the situation now — with schools about to open — one of the worst hazards is complacency. The rugged days of Grandpa's youth may never return. But if the one time communicable disease killers should slip back to power, they could make rough going for generations now in Michigan classrooms.

John Lenosky of Detroit spent the Labor Day weekend with his parents Mr. and Mrs. Albert Lenosky.

Former East Jordan residents, Mr. and Mrs. William R. Patrick (formerly Lois Bartlett), had a hand in building the new $175,000 Fenway Church of God at Alpha St. and E. Cavanaugh Road in Lansing. The church was dedicated Sunday August 21st with approximately 600 persons attending the services. It was erected by the congregation of the former South Street Church of God.

Mr. Patrick is Chairman of the church board. Letters of greetings were received from Gov. G. Mennen Williams, Mayor Ralph Crego, Rev. John W. Claxton, president of the Lansing Ministerial Association and Rev. W. Dale Frye, Detroit, president of the State ministerial assembly of the Church of God. Rev. V. J. Gritzmacher is pastor.
