OH, SO CLOSE, IN BOYNE FALLS

New school falls four votes short

Boyne Falls School District voters said "no" to building a new $6.2 million educational facility by a mere four votes at Monday's school election in what was probably the largest voting turnout the district has ever had, said superintendent Pat Smith.

Nearly 50 percent of the district's 1,191 voters headed to the polls, casting 290 no votes and 286 yes votes.

The district decided to put the issue of a new school before the voters after investigations of the existing facility uncovered numerous health and safety codes, undersized classrooms, and an inadequate media center, science lab, art room and cafeteria. Estimated costs for renovations only were $3.6 million and for renovations and an addition were $5.2 million.

"The problems have not gone away," said Superintendent Pat Smith. "So the difficulties the district faces with the facility are still there."

"I don't know what the no voters want, because they didn't attend the 12 town meetings," Smith said. The district also distributed literature on the issue, as did the BEE Proud Committee, a group not affiliated with the school, but interested in constructing a new facility.

"It's disappointing in some respects," Smith said. "On the other hand, they are the voters and we have to listen to them and find out what the alternatives are."

"This is one of the difficult parts. The no voters won't come out and tell you why they vote no," said school board president Marv Schwem.

"This is one of the difficult parts. The no voters won't come out and tell you why they vote no."

-- Marv Schwem, school board president

He said the issue will be on the agenda for discussion at the next board meeting on Monday, June 15, at 6:30 p.m. in the school cafeteria.

"The issues have to be re-addressed because they haven't gone away," Smith said. "It's like anything. You have to find out what the voters want and from there go ahead."

Boyne River's friends plan cleanup Saturday

The Friends of Boyne River are seeking volunteers to help clean up the river on Saturday, June 13.

The group will meet at the old City Dump just past Consumers Power on the north side of the river at 10 a.m. The river will be divided into four sections: dams and ditches, upper river, Millpond, and lower river. Bring rakes and gloves. Trash bags will be provided.

A potluck barbecue will follow at 1 p.m. at 447 Pearl St.

The grass-roots organization, formed to help preserve and maintain the river and its watershed, will hold its third meeting on Wednesday, June 17, at the Wolverine-Dilworth Inn at 7 p.m. It plans to establish committees, nominate a slate of officers and adopt by-laws. The public is encouraged to attend.

For more information call Tom Sheets at 582-5824.

Items are rounded up, Hospice Auction now needs bidders

Whether you are interested in art, home furnishings, outdoor items, toys, food, or whatever, there is a good chance you'll find it at the Charlevoix County Hospice Auction this Friday at the Boyne Mountain Civic Center.

The event has been designed to provide an exciting auction experience and a fun, sociable evening. The event begins at 5 p.m. with a silent auction, followed by the verbal variety with Jim White and Jeff Macfarlane doing the honors with the gavel. Howard Richards will be playing the piano, hors d'oeuvres will be served and there will be a cash bar.

This year's theme is "Let's Make a Deal." Other items to be auctioned include gift certificate to area golf courses, restaurants, motels and beauty parlors.

A donation of $15 is the price of entry which also gives you a chance for door prizes and a $500 cash prize. Tickets are available prior to the auction from Boyne Country Books in Boyne City, The Clothing Company in Charlevoix, Busy Bridge Antiques in East Jordan, and from Hospice board members and auction committee members. They will also be available at the door, or call 536-2842.

The auction is an important fund raiser for Charlevoix County Hospice. The evening usually provides about 50 percent of its annual budget. The auction proceeds are needed to provide the materials and staff that assist those who need hospice's services.

COMMUNITY PORTRAIT

Officer patrols on two wheels

By GINA SOLTIS KENDELL

Dan Reece isn't a new figure on the streets of East Jordan. In fact he's been cruising around town for eight years in a police car. But now the officer is getting a little more up-close and personal, covering his beat on a bicycle.

Outfitted with a helmet, sunglasses, police radio and gun, and pedaling a black, 24-speed Trek mountain bike, Reece can already be seen winding his way through the downtown business district, city parks, the harbor and the school parking lots.

"We want to get out and let the community know us," said Police Chief Jerry Alward.

Averaging 11-12 miles-per-hour and with no car doors or windows between him and the rest of the world, Reece hopes people will be less intimidated and more inclined to approach him.

"It softens the whole appeal," he said of patrolling on a bicycle. Even his uniform by day, a yellow, embroidered, polo-style shirt and black shorts (when it's warm), is less daunting than the standard issue blues and metal badge he wears when he's in a police car. At night he wears black clothing with reflective lettering. He can be visible or incognito — whichever duty calls for.

But it doesn't make the patrol any less serious. On the bike or in a car, officers hold the same authority, including making traffic stops, and yes, issuing speeding citations.

But instead of only writing tickets, or arriving on the scene after an accident, Reece hopes to get to know his fellow citizens a little bit better and address issues before they become problems.

The department sees the bike patrol as a way for the police and community to work together instead of as separate entities.

Children aren't afraid to approach him just to say "hi" Reece said, or perhaps to confidentially report other youth getting into mischief nearby.

When he's out riding for fun on his days off work, a line of kids can be seen trailing him. "They think it's great," said Reece. But there are rules then, too — single file, stopping at signs and wearing helmets, if the kids have them.

The leading bicycle injury for children is head injuries, Reece noted, admitting that he didn't always wear one when he was younger.

Now, he said, it's second nature, just like putting on his safety vest.

Reece's pet project is a bicycle safety and awareness program, sponsored by the department. The June 20 event for 4-12 year olds will teach kids the right way to ride bikes — including the importance of wearing helmets. Already 100 participants have signed up for the June 20 program. Those first 100 will receive free bike helmets, compliments of the department.

As an offshoot of the program, this summer police officers will issue coupon-tickets to kids who are observed safely biking and in-line skating, redeemable for treats from local businesses.

With additional bike training himself, Reece can now leap over the handle-bars and ride down steps in the line of duty, and he has learned how to approach potentially dangerous situations differently than he would in a car. A few battle-scars on his shins attest to the intensity of his instruction.

The bike itself was custom made to department specifications by a Traverse City company, based on extensive preliminary

Academic improvement must result from any new school construction

TO THE EDITOR:

Schools are for educating kids. Brick and mortar, support staff and administration exist for that purpose. The comfort and convenience of paid personnel, thought important, are secondary to this principle function. Boyne City School District voters are wrestling with the task of achieving the best educational results with limited financial means. Most have been willing to stretch their resources if there were the likelihood of a desirable outcome.

In that context, the public should demand some answers before acceding to a construction millage request. While it may be difficult to quantify, the voters should expect an approximation, at least, of improvements to be anticipated in basic skill areas, i.e., science, English and math. Granted, the schools are receiving raw material [students] from a deteriorating society. It is still their job to educate; a job they are paid and expected to do.

Some school district residents have voted "no", because they don't like the administration, a teacher, the school board, a program or some other extraneous whipping boy, when the only rational consideration is good education within our means.

In all of the public and private discourse relating to our school dilemma, I have yet to hear offered any substantiated, quantified measure of academic improvement to be achieved as a result of new construction. Without being told what specific results they are to receive for their investment, school district voters are buying a "pig in a poke". The school board and the ad hoc committee should address this issue head on. For too long, school districts throughout the country have thrown dollars at their problems with no discernible, positive results.

I believe that we can improve our product, and, if concretely shown how, Boyne City voters will respond positively to the next building request. Architectural objections to portables won't fly. Measurably, better educated students will.

Hearing first-hand account enriches students' study of Vietnam Conflict

TO THE EDITOR:

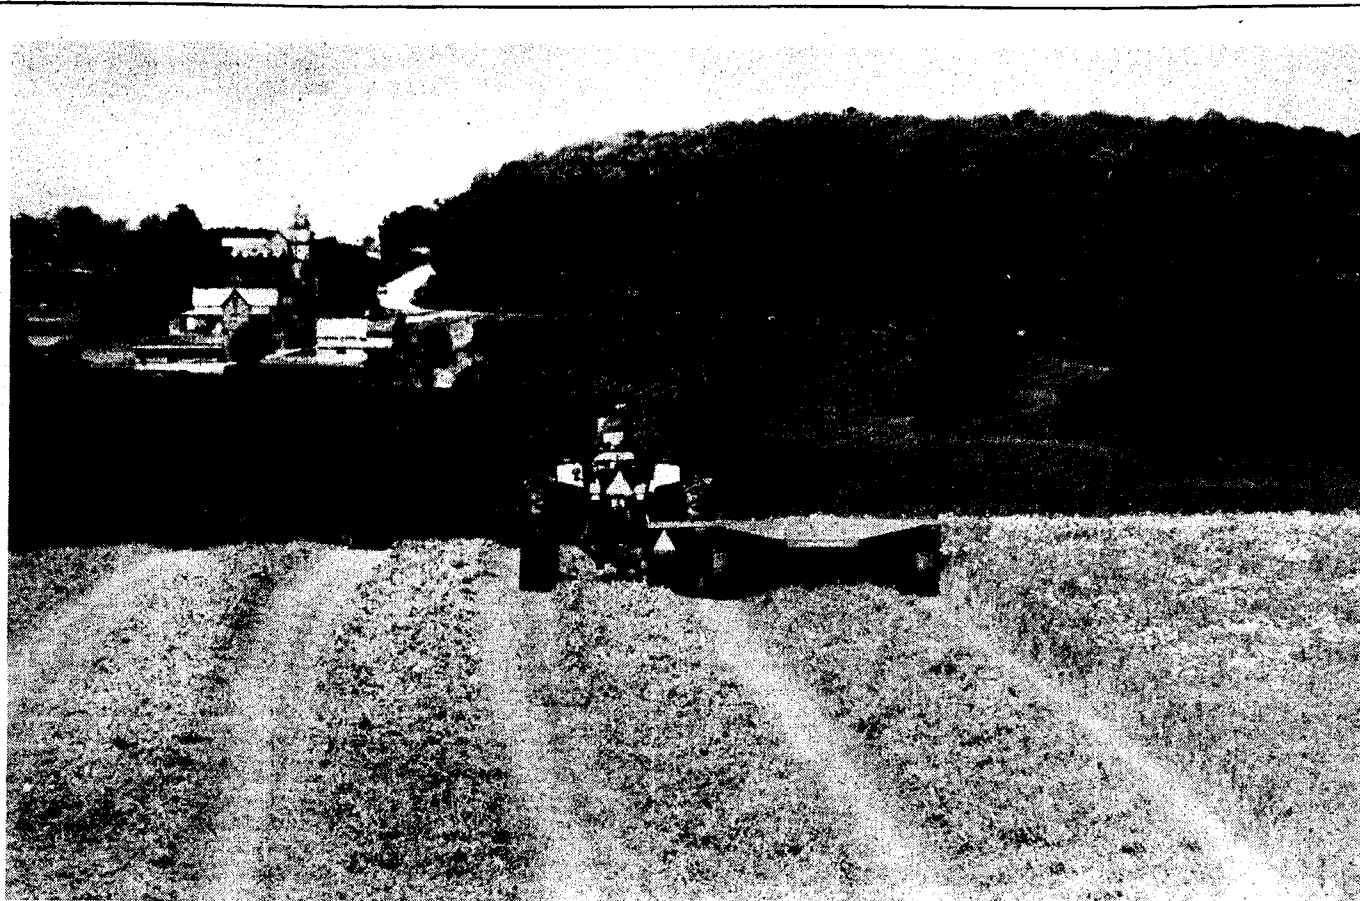

The students in Mr. Wollenberg's Sophomore English classes would like to thank Mr. Henry Erber for speaking about what it was like to take part in the Vietnam Conflict during the 1960s.

By sharing his time with us, we learned - first hand - what we had read about in a non-fiction novel entitled "Letters Home From Vietnam." Mr. Erber explained the historical background of this conflict, told many stories about personal experiences, and answered many questions which must have been difficult to talk about.

Thanks again, Mr. Erber, for helping us understand our book and the difficulties encountered while defending our country.

A MOM'S LIFE

Cook it and they will come

By CINDI PLACE

As summer approaches, and the end of school looms immediately ahead, we find ourselves with the gigantic task of keeping the kids busy. It's not that children shouldn't be made to create their own forms of entertainment, but for our family at least leaving all the decisions up to the children is not a good idea.

The daily to-do list for our kids usually directly reflects the mood of the list maker. If mom is having a busy day, the kids will also look forward to lots of stuff to do. On the other hand, a relaxing "let's just read a book" kind of day can leave all sorts of room for free time and imaginative play.

So, our kids have learned to try and influence the kind of "list" they are given by either becoming mysteriously absent in the early hours of each summer day, or by encouraging mom to consider the short time of school-less days that lie ahead (or are left) and the fact that playing is a good thing for instilling creativity and imagination in children. (I've got to stop leaving my "self-improvement" and "how to discipline a difficult child" books lying around. I forget sometimes that all our children can read now.)

So, as the first day of summer rapidly approaches, our family has begun to consider all the free time they will have and just how to make this the best summer ever. And for each member of this family, the agenda is completely different.

For mom and dad, the long summer days mean more time to work on the house and the lawn and still allow for some recreation time with the family. For the college-bound student, summer is simply a time to work more hours and earn more money so that college will be a reality.

For our youngest two, being out of school is still a mixed blessing. It means sleeping late a little, and no more lunch-making duty. But they will also miss their teachers and all the great stuff they get to do while in school. These two will spend most of their summer in special classes, or being driven from music lessons to gymnastics to baseball games.

But the summer looms large for the eldest son. He is suddenly old enough to work and drive, but too young to have permission to do either of these activities regularly. He wants to "hang" with friends, but can't decide just what they'll do. A dangerous combination in a small town with few activities for teenagers.

So, the mom's energy this summer will probably be spent in the direction of teenage entertainment. We'll need to make our home a welcome place for these kids to come and "hang." And we'll be cooking. Lots of cooking.

Because, if we've learned anything from raising a teenager it's that if there is food, they will come.

BASIC BANTER

Even an unwelcome intrusion can offer many opportunities

By HARRIET KENNEY

Often during bedtime hours I hear a near inaudible reveille that urges me out into the night darkness. I refer to it as a calling.

Actually it's our dog. Her message is barely detectable, but I'm so attuned to her nightly requests that she thinks she has only to sit beside my bed and stare intently to wake me. At times I swear that works. Because of habit, I need no lights, even though I'm half asleep yet as I open the outside door.

Tonight, there is no moon and there seem to be no clouds, yet there are no stars. Whoa! It is dark, so very dark! The only light is at the other end of the house, the beam that illuminates the flag above the trees.

It is not cold; it is not warm. There is no wind, no breeze, yet the air is heavy with the smell of rain. It is quiet, as if the earth stands at attention. Spring is still early so there is not yet a chirping of crickets, no light from a single firefly and no irritating buzz of mosquitoes. There is no sound within the range of our hearing. Usually the ears pick up the familiar sound of a dog in the distance, howling its displeasure at the night ghosts or communicating with another canine farther away. Often you hear the rumbling of a car hurtling down the road or the faint hum of a high-flying jet. But not tonight.

I can barely see our dog with her nose close to the ground, tracking over all property that she deems necessary, within the circle of her rope. I slide down the side of the open door way and sit on the step as she returns to nuzzle close beside me. As if bound in spirit, we sit, aware only of the gravity of the moment. Deep-meaning thoughts emerge in these few seconds of darkness and we linger a bit longer.

I do not stray from the safety of the porch steps, for the outer realm belongs to another species: the nocturnal animals. Nature's law gives each inhabitant his own time and space and we try not to trespass into that which is not meant for us. It could be hazardous to our health especially, if it has black and white stripes!

We two are not unique for there are many night wanderers and stalkers in a far away forgotten world of night. Sleepless souls walk the lighted city streets, factory workers hold their place on production lines and students work well into the wee morning hours on a thesis or studying for an exam. Then, there are those who always sleep soundly, having no desire to experience a moment such as this. When one is determined to utilize each minute, even an unwelcome intrusion can make a positive impact. There are so many opportunities. Tomorrow night, the universe will sleep once again and perhaps, we'll all smother in sweet dreams.

DOWNTOWN EAST JORDAN GETTING A NEW LOOK

Streetscape work ready to begin

C.H. Smith Co., Inc., plans to start construction on Main Street in downtown East Jordan this week, beginning Phase Two of the city's streetscape plan, after being awarded the construction bid at last week's city commission meeting.

The Boyne City contractor estimates the cost for the streetscape and infrastructure work to be $802,280, with an Oct. 15 completion date, according to Gary Voogt of Moore and Bruggink, Inc., the project's consulting engineers.

Other bidders were Manthei Development, coming in at $931,800 and Petrie Construction, the contractor for the city's new police station, which bid $932,950.

The transformation of the city's downtown will include all new and wider sidewalks with brick pavers, landscaping, lighting, curbs, gutters and reconstructed streets. Underground water main improvements will also improve water pressure for residents on the west side of town.

Phase One renovations, which included sewer and water main construction and the paving of Spring Street, were completed in May.

Initial estimates for the project came in at $1.95 million. Last year city commissioners approved the sale of nearly $1 million in bonds to finance part of the project, to be paid back through Tax Increment Financing (TIF) which is generated through the Downtown Development Authority. Following its May 5 meeting, commissioners put out notification of intent to issue an additional $785,000 in bonds for Phase Two.

Even though Main Street will be closed to through traffic for the duration of the project, downtown businesses will remain open. A street map will be displayed in the window of the old gas station at the corner of Main and Mill streets with instructions on "how to get there," said chamber director Mary Faculak.

Store owners are excited about the renovations, she said, although there is some apprehension about how it will affect business during construction. But, she pointed out the proposed renovations didn't stop several businesses from opening or relocating to the downtown district.

Plaid Petunias, a folk art and gift shop, and the Jordan River Fly Shop moved into a newly constructed log-style building this spring on Main Street. Jordan Valley Accounting and Northern Ladies Consignment Shop have relocated downtown as well, and a soda fountain has moved into an extensively renovated building.

Other downtown improvements include a new police station, which is under construction on Main Street at the site of the old Spike's Standard Station. The old building at Spring and Esterly streets was demolished in April.

IN OTHER BUSINESS at last Tuesday's meeting, the city commission adopted a resolution calling for a public hearing to allow for an approval of an amendment to the TIF plan, to increase the DDA's bonded indebtedness limit from $2 million to $4 million, in anticipation of future city improvements. If amended, the increase would in no way affect property tax rates.

The commission also opened bids Friday for building new basketball courts in Murphy Court in place of the old tennis courts. The project will be funded by a Charlevoix Community Foundation Grant. The tennis courts will be rebuilt in the future at a site to be decided.

Watch out Evian, East Jordan's drinking water won the American Waterworks Association's regional award for quality. City representatives will take water samples to a state-level competition in Grand Rapids later this year.

City denies Red Mesa's request for sidewalk dining Red Mesa Grill's wish for sidewalk dining was dashed at last week's Boyne City commission meeting when commissioners denied the restaurant's request to serve patrons at four, cordoned-off tables in front of the downtown eatery, citing that the seasonal use of the sidewalk right-of-way does not meet current ordinances.

At a previous meeting, co-owner Fred Moore said he saw the fresh-air dining as adding to the flavor of Boyne City in a positive manner, and being reflective of similar venues in down state cities such as Ann Arbor. The Mexican-style restaurant is located on Water Street in the downtown business district.

If this type of commerce is a need, said City Manager Eric Strahl, the city must look at how it can address that need along with the city's liability for the right-of-way.

"Part of the issue is the fact that now, compared to 30 years ago, there's much more of a concern about liability and how you handle that," said Strahl, noting that the city can't give up its liability for the sidewalk even when a business holds its own insurance.

City staff will gather information from other municipalities which allow for outdoor vending, to help determine what types of requirements are needed, should the Boyne City ordinance be amended.

JUDY FOLLETTE'S 12-YEAR SCHOOL BOARD CAREER COMES TO AN END

Time to be a grandma

As Jill Rowley is welcomed to the Boyne City School Board, Judy Follette is saying goodbye.

After serving 12 years as a school trustee, she decided it was time for a change — both for herself and the board — and did not seek another term.

"It's time to leave," Judy said. "The board needs some new blood and a lot of things change in life as you go."

You could say Judy went to school twice. The first was as a student of the Boyne City Schools. The second was her 12 years on the board.

While she is looking forward to spending more time with her family and being a grandmother to her grandson (another grandchild is due in October) she's "sad about leaving in some aspects."

She said there is a lot of change happening in the district with the hiring of a new high school principal and new band director and she would like to see the changes through.

During her 12 years on the board, there were many tough times and good times, many controversies and successes, but Judy is proudest of Porter Creek, Hemingway and Great Lakes Academy, the district's alternative education schools.

"To me those are our greatest accomplishments," Judy said, "because they serve our kids. They help kids who leave and have no place to go. It is cheaper and better for kids and the community to educate kids than to house them in jail."

"Porter Creek has turned out to be a wonderful place."

Judy would also like to see the district continue to develop vocational programs for students. "I think that's the way it has to be. We have to train students because all of them are not going on to college for whatever reason."

She feels the school district working in partnership with businesses will create job opportunities for students that they otherwise would not have.

As a school trustee, Judy served in all board offices. Currently she is a member of the personnel committee and she will continue serving with the committee until a new high school principal is

Gymnastics club can stay another year at school gym

Boyne Area Gymnastics won't be leaving the Boyne City Elementary School gym, at least not this year.

At the Boyne City School Board meeting Monday night, the board granted the gymnastics club a year extension to use the elementary school gymnasium for classes through next June on Mondays from 3-6 p.m. and Tuesdays and Thursdays from 3-9 p.m.

The group, which has grown to nearly 300 students, has been searching for a location to build a facility to house its gymnastics and dance classes, but so far no solution has been found that will work in time for fall classes.

Board member Judy Follette, who voted against granting the group permission to use the gym asked, "Where do you draw the line?"

Gymnastics director Kari Streehman said the club hopes to be in a building by next year and has raised $46,000 toward that end. The group has recently received tentative approval from the Boyne City Parks Commission to construct a facility at Rotary Park but the request has not yet been considered by the city commission. Streehman said the club is also considering another option that would take it out of Boyne City.

The school board will review the group's use of the elementary gym again next June, if the need arises.

In other business, the board and community members discussed bussing of in-town middle and high school students in response to crowding and discipline concerns, the schools' hand-book policies, progress reports, and National Honor Society standards.

Looking forward to the task ahead

Jill Rowley was elected to the Boyne City School Board for a four-year term Monday night. She received 339 votes to Phil Cloyd's 271. Twelve percent of the district's 5,000 registered voters turned out at the polls.

Rowley, who replaces 12-year board member Judy Follette, is a 17-year resident of Boyne City, has children enrolled in both the elementary and middle schools and owns a design business.

"I think I'm fair and I listen and I'm willing to work," she said. "I'm very enthusiastic about working with the board."

She said she hopes to be an excellent representative of diverse people throughout the community and to make the best decisions possible for them. "I listen to them and I take in information. That's where I hope to become well informed."

Rowley is involved with the Educational Facilities Committee, a group she helped organize to address the district's facilities needs. If possible, she would like to continue her participation with the committee as a board member. She currently sits on the group's steering committee as does board member Jim Stackus.

She said the group is working toward a very reasonable proposal, but one that will still bring the district into the future and provide students the best education possible.

"I have good listening power, I have ideas and am an incredibly hard worker," said Rowley.

She will serve in her first official capacity at the July 13 school board meeting.

STEPHANIE NORTON PARTICIPATING ON A MISSION TRIP TO KENYA

Summer vacation will be spent in an unusual place

By GINA SOLTIS KENDELL

East Jordan resident Stephanie Norton will head to Kenya for a 3 1/2 week mission trip this Saturday, merely one week after her high school commencement ceremony.

It will be her first trip overseas, but the 18 year old has already spent nearly two months doing similar volunteer work in Appalachia. Two of those weeks in West Virginia fulfilled a scholastic requirement carried out in the spring of her junior year with 20 fellow students and adults. And she headed down for an additional six weeks the following summer to assist volunteers and to photograph their work.

"I've wanted to do this mission work ever since I was a little girl," said the Harbor Light Christian School graduate.

In Kenya she will help build a polytechnic school which is slated to provide vocational training opportunities such as carpentry, masonry, and tailoring to 200 impoverished youth each year. Just as she did in West Virginia, Stephanie will pound nails, hang drywall, and apply shingles to the facility.

She has also been working with a local doctor to collect medical supplies like antibiotics, bottled pain reliever and medication to ship to an under-supplied health clinic that the World Servant missionaries, the organization she will be working with, built last year in Kenya.

"It makes me humble and very appreciative of what I have," she said. "I get changed totally on mission trips." She hopes to complete as much of the building as possible in Kenya and to share Jesus' light and hope to the people in the depressed and drought-ridden area, she said.

For the recipients of her good deeds, Stephanie believes it gives them hope and makes them feel that God and people really do care.

She's not nervous about the international trip. "I love adventure travel. I like to spend time with the people."

Her mother Jeanette said she can't help but be nervous herself, but she's happy that Stephanie has this opportunity.

"You learn to have confidence in the God you are serving," said Jeanette. Stephanie is no stranger to mission work. Her parents have been involved extensively in the calling themselves and her father is a retired minister of 30 years.

In Appalachia last year, Stephanie helped build a community center at Chestnut Ridge, the mission base. Although she said the main community is quite nice, she was amazed to see the level of poverty in the outlying areas. "A lot of people don't know how to read and some people don't even go to school," she said. "It was really different from up here." She recalled poor nutritional practices, and inadequate plumbing and sewer systems.

Upon her return from Kenya, she will head back to Appalachia and Kentucky for four weeks to work construction again and to photograph the mission work. She will create slide shows from her snapshots to share with local churches, community members and to help raise funds for the mission.

She hopes to eventually use her interest in photography and her calling to the missions in her life's work, chronicling the inroads volunteers make in poor communities.

This fall she will take a few courses in photography at North Central Michigan College, and then attend the Moody Bible Institute in Chicago to pursue missions' training which will include classes on leadership training, government protocols and bible study.

Her favorite quote, by Emmet Gowin, serves as part of her motivation: "Photography is a tool dealing with things everybody knows about but isn't attending to."

Erica McIntire is on her way to Costa Rica

Erica McIntire's summer vacation will not start like most other students her age.

Instead of the beach, softball field and spending time with friends, Erica has something different planned.

On Thursday, the 15-year-old Boyne City student is leaving for a mission trip to Costa Rica.

The first stop on her trip will be Miami where she will participate in three days of intensive training. Then it is off to Costa Rica for two weeks.

Erica attends High Praises Ministries, a church which was recently started in Boyne City by the Rev. David Crumbaugh, formerly of Boyne City who lives in Gladwin. Big World Ventures is organizing the mission trip. Crumbaugh's son Joshua, is also a member of the group visiting Costa Rica.

The cost of the trip is $1,400 and so far Erica has received contributions of more than $800.

Have a seat

East Jordan Mayor Russ Peck accepted a hand-crafted bench on behalf of the city commission from East Jordan middle schoolers Eli Boss, left, Amy Schroeder and Whitney Hershberger at last week's commission meeting. The sixth grade class, under the guidance of teacher Gayle Gotts, constructed 10 benches, giving six to the city and four to the middle school. The woodworking project allowed students to gain experience in drafting, operating a CAD system and working with tools. The project was funded by a Malpass Foundation mini-grant.

Holiness Camp hosting annual meeting

The Northern Michigan Holiness Camp will host its 87th annual meeting June 14-21.

The camp is on North Park Street in Boyne City, five blocks north of the Dairy Queen. Capt. Bill Cox will be the speaker and Kimber and Kathy Decker are the musicians for the old-fashioned camp meeting.

Services will be at 6 p.m. Sundays and 7 p.m. Monday through Saturday. A Vacation Bible School will be offered to children week-nights.

The camp was organized in 1911 by men and women from the various holiness churches in the area. A few of the evangelists, singers and World Gospel Missionaries were from local families.

The original tent, benches and sawdust floor were replaced by a wooden frame building. The tabernacle was improved about 20 years ago to seat a larger number of people. Everyone is welcome to attend.

For information, call the Rev. Lane Eddy at 582-6843 or Betty Bradley at 582-7000.

Molly will spend the summer working with the Boyne City 4-H swim school and is also looking for a second job, before leaving for Aquinas College in Grand Rapids this fall.

ROBBIE SCHILLER of Richmond has been here with her mother, Alta Fluckey, who returned to her Litzenburger Place apartment over the weekend, after having spent the previous week in the Charlevoix Area Hospital with pneumonia. Mrs. Fluckey's oldest granddaughter, Krisan Fluckey of Kalamazoo, was here over the weekend.

DON KARLSKIN of Boyne City is to be honored by his wife Sue with a 50th birthday open house celebration at their home on 02332 Bauman Road on Saturday, June 13, from 1-4 p.m. Those wanting to wish him "Happy Birthday" are welcome to stop in.

PRAYERS AND CONCERNS are going out for 12-year-old Cody Coblentz, the son of David and Shirley Coblentz of Boyne City.

Cody was in a football scuffle last January and broke his right arm. He and his parents will be leaving for his scheduled surgery on June 17 at Beaumont Hospital in Royal Oak, to remove a cyst now formed on that arm.

JACK DAVIS, wife Gwen, and their two granddaughters, Kassandra and Natalie of Durand were here over the weekend, visiting his sister, Thelma Behling. They also brought Thelma's 12-year-old granddaughter, Shannah Behling of Batesville, Arkansas, who will vacation here with grandma and go to camp, before her parents Mark and Jeanette Behling arrive around the 4th of July.

"THERE WAS NOT a dry eye in the place," said my caller. And that's the way it was, as over 100 watched the totally surprised expression on the face of Rose Schwem. Feeling somewhat neglected on Saturday because nobody remembered her birthday, this celebration of her 85th year, given by her family at the Christ Lutheran Church on Sunday, was a very happy occasion indeed. Friends, neighbors, grandchildren, great grandchildren, and all her nieces and nephews came from all over the country, and even from Scotland, to attend. Rose, a former teacher at Western Michigan University in Kalamazoo, was very surprised to see a couple of her former students there. All enjoyed the beautiful flowers and birthday cake. The memory book, made up by her granddaughter, with the many notes, cards, and letters, should surely remind Rose that she was not forgotten.

Season ends at regionals

Win over Elk Rapids was girls' first regional victory ever

A 9-6 victory over Elk Rapids (32-4-1) at this weekend's tournament was the first regional game ever won by a Boyne City varsity softball team. But a 9-0 loss to Rogers City foiled any hopes the girls had of heading to the state finals.

Pitcher Abbey Roberts was on the mound against Elk Rapids, throwing two strikeouts and no walks. The Ramblers were ahead in the fifth inning 3-2, when Elk Rapids scored four more to make it 6-3. The Ramblers came back in the bottom of the sixth with six more runs, holding its 9-6 lead to the end.

On offense, Katie Dhasaleer and Abbey Roberts each had a single, Sarah Bobowski hit a triple and a double, Brandy Barren and April Roberts each had a base hit and Heidi VanHoosier hit a single for two RBIs.

Abbey Roberts was on the mound again for the Ramblers against Rogers City, but gave up eight runs in the first inning and a half. Barren took over the pitching spot in the second, giving up one run.

the end and I was really proud of them," said coach Rick Simon.

Abbey Roberts went three for three in the tournament with a double against Rogers City. Barren hit a double and a single, and Katie Bernthal and Roberts each had a base hit.

The team ended its season with an 18-12-1 record overall.

Ramblers down Suttons Bay but lose to Rogers City in finals

The trip for Beano Archey last Friday evening wasn't nearly as long as the one his baseball team took Saturday morning to Pine River for the regional tournament.

But once there he faced a far greater challenge.

Instead of being with his team Saturday, Archey was in Northern Michigan Hospital due to complications from his heart attack a few weeks ago.

He was taken to the hospital Friday evening, where he spent the weekend. He underwent successful angioplasty surgery Monday morning. Tuesday afternoon he was released from the hospital. He said he was feeling fine and looking forward to returning to a normal routine.

In his absence, assistant coach Rob Towne took over the team and while not winning the regional championship, the Ramblers gave it their best shot.

The Ramblers opened against Suttons Bay, a team that had defeated Lake Michigan Conference Champion Elk Rapids in the district tournament.

Behind solid pitching and timely hitting, they earned a 5-2 victory and then watched Rogers City pull off a stunning comeback to earn a berth in the regional finals.

Momentum, plus an outstanding pitching performance was too much for the Ramblers to overcome and they lost 9-2.

Against Suttons Bay, Chuck Stanek was the winning pitcher. He threw a four-hitter, struck out four and walked eight.

Boyne took an early 1-0 lead, and maintained it until they scored four runs in the fifth. Scott Karaszewski led the team with a double and single, Josh Bush had two singles while Jesse Simon doubled. David Cadarette and Danny Arner each singled.

Against Rogers City, the Ramblers were down 5-0 after two innings and trailed 9-0 until they scored two runs in the seventh.

Phil Simpson pitched 5 2/3 innings for the Ramblers. He gave up five earned runs, struck out four and walked two batters. Karaszewski relieved him and allowed one hit, one walk and struck out two in 1 1/3 innings.

The Ramblers finished the season at 18-14.

Ramblers earn year-end honors

Excellence on both the field and in the classroom have earned members of the Boyne City Ramblers district honors.

Seven members of the Rambler baseball team have been named to the All District team. They include:

Scott Karaszewski, first base; Derek Price, infielder; Jesse Simon and Danny Arner, outfield; and Phil Simpson and Chuck Stanek, pitching. The awards are based on a player's performance for the regular season and district tournament.

Boyne head coach Beano Archey was named district coach of the year.

Seven Ramblers also made the All District - All Academic team. They are: Danny Arner, Derek Friske, David Cadarette, Jeremy Peck, Jesse Simon, and Phil Simpson.

Karaszewski and Simpson were also named to the all-conference team. Chuck Stanek and Derek Price were honorable mention selections.

Gymnastic classes offered for the summer

Gymnastics classes will be offered in both Boyne City and East Jordan this summer by Boyne Area Gymnastics.

The summer program will begin on Monday, June 15. Classes are offered for boys and girls ages 4 and above. Tumbling, balance beam and bars are offered in both locations. In addition, vault is also offered in Boyne City. Beginner through advanced classes are provided.

The tuition for the seven-week session ranges from $23 to $30 for preschool and beginner level classes. In addition, there is a $3 membership fee per family for all new students. Classes are held at Boyne City Elementary School and at East Jordan Middle School.

To enroll or for more information, call Kari Strelman at 582-3493.

Young anglers get a lesson in how it's done

Nearly 40 kids headed out to Young State Park in Boyne City last Saturday for the third annual Kids' Fishing Clinic to learn how to cast, bait and reel in fish.

The program is sponsored by the Department of Natural Resources in conjunction with local businesses.

The clinic was designed to help youngsters develop an interest in fishing and to learn techniques to help them develop a lifetime interest in recreational fishing. Jay Hoekwater of Boyne City was the only angler to hook one of 10 specially marked fish.

The DNR extends its thanks and recognition to local, participating individuals and organizations: Pat Mitchell, of The Sportfisherman in Boyne City who has donated bait each year, McDonald's restaurant of Boyne City for providing refreshments, Pizza Hut of Gaylord for donated coupons for free pizza, and Don's Sport and Marine of Gaylord for ordering the fishing poles used at the clinic.

MARDI GRAS IS THIS YEAR'S THEME

Music will fill the air for Freedom Festival

Put on your dancing shoes for this year's Jordan Valley Freedom Festival on June 26-28, where a Mardi Gras theme means music, music, music.

"We've never had this much variety as far as music," said East Jordan Area Chamber of Commerce Executive Director Mary Faculak. "We are just elated."

Performers will include Newman Navy League Cadet Corps #30, Tittabawassee Valley Fife and Drum Corps, Royal Canadian Legion Drum and Trumpet Band, Sault Ste. Marie Canadian Pipe Band, Jordan Valley Community Band, East Jordan

High School Marching Band, Sean Galloway, Epsilon Jazz Band and Strutters, Roundhouse 22, Up North Big Band, and Phil Dirt and the Dozers.

The weekend celebration will also include a grand parade, kiddie rides, craft show and flea market, triathlon, raffle drawings, a regatta, artist's invitational, concessions, and possibly fireworks.

The parade will kick off at 4 p.m. on Saturday, June 27 from the East Jordan High School parking lot and head down Mill Street, over the bridge and end at Murphy's Field. Local residents Tom Clemens and Mike Burr will serve as Masters of Ceremonies. Connie Roberts will fill the Grand Marshall slot and Mark and Penny Postma and family will sit in the Grand Spectator seats.

Festival prize/raffle buttons cost $2 each and include tickets for chances at prize drawings which will range from large power tools and water craft rentals to restaurant and hotel gift certificates. This year festival attendees will not be "jailed and fined" for failing to wear a button, as they were in the past.

Festival 500 tickets cost $5 and can be purchased at the chamber office. First prize is $500, and $50 prizes will go to 10 lucky winners.

Commemorative, embroidered festival T-shirts will be on sale at The Busy Bridge and EJ Shoppe in downtown East Jordan, and at the chamber office for $20. Proceeds go toward the festival.

Coming up July 3-4 is the festival's fourth annual Cruise Night and Car Show in Memorial Park.

The Jordan Valley Freedom Festival still has spaces available for crafters and flea market vendors. The cost is $25 per day for a 12 x 12 space in Memorial Park. Anyone interested can call the Chamber to register at 536-7351.

Vincent's lends a hand to help patrol area lakes

Jack Vincent would be the first to tell you that jet ski's aren't all fun and games.

No need to take his temperature — the water-craft retailer isn't ill. He's just pointing out that the vehicles have also become key equipment for water safety and rescue operations.

Vincent, owner of Vincent's Yamaha in East Jordan, in conjunction with Yamaha, has loaned one new Wave Runner to the Central Lake Fire and Rescue Department and two to Petoskey fire departments for the fifth year in a row. He said the East Jordan Fire Department has its own vehicle.

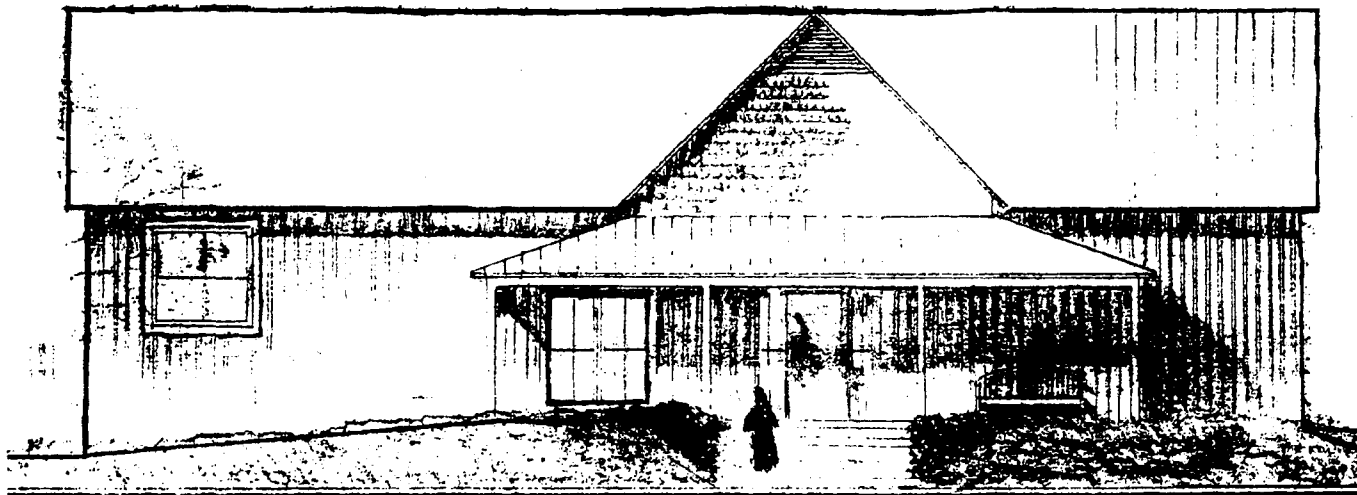

Central Lake firefighter and EMT specialist Marianne Chellis, said with so many more crafts in the waters — including jet-skis — there is certainly the potential for more accidents.

She said they've had plenty of calls over the years for assistance using the Wave Runners and thankfully, have had no serious injuries so far. The machines can transport two rescuers and tow a sled for transport of accident victims.

Yamaha offers the machines at a discount to the dealer for handling the loan project. Vincent's staff provides maintenance on the vehicles through the summer season and then sells them at a discounted price when the crafts are returned.

Jack Vincent loans Wave Runners to area fire departments for the summer months.

This drawing shows the cottage-look of the new Walloon library. Construction should start late summer or early fall.

Plans taking shape for new Walloon library

The sounds of late summer or early fall in Walloon will include the pounding of hammers and buzzing of saws when construction of the new Crooked Tree Library gets underway.

The library's board met recently to approve final plans for the 3,000 square foot facility and is looking to put the project out to bid by early July.

The building was designed in anticipation of the community's needs for the next 15 years. It will be just the right size for one librarian supervised by one director and will have cozy, casual seating with a conversational area that can be expanded for meetings of up to 20 people. A children's area and adult fiction and reference sections are included in the plans.

For 25 years, the township branch of the Crooked Tree District Library has rented space in the Walloon Lake Community Church and has been searching for space in which to grow.

The solution came from the Mary K. Peabody Foundation in Manchester, Ind., which gave the library the funds last summer to purchase property at 2203 Walloon Street.

The site for the new building is near the library's present location. Last fall, CH Smith dismantled the house that occupied the lot.

Since then, the foundation has increased its gift to provide the funds for the new building as well, but the gift came with one string attached. And that string led straight to the community.

Area residents needed to prove their support for and involvement in the library in order for the foundation to provide its gift.

Because the new library's home will be larger than its current one, operating expenses will be greater. The board will host fundraisers throughout the summer to create an endowment fund for library operations, which will help run the library and illustrate the extent of library support in the community.

Board members for the district library, which includes the Boyne Falls and Walloon lake branches, are JoAnn Zerbel, Jean Korhase, Rebecca Disney and Kathy Skop for Boyne Falls, and Mary Erb, Nancy Cole and Dolores Wehrenberg for Walloon.

The newly formed Friends of the Library board include Sue Barr, president, Cindy Young, vice president, Cynni Hermann, secretary and Jane Smith, treasurer.

For more information, contact the Crooked Tree District Library in Walloon Lake at (616) 535-2277 or library board president Dolores Wehrenberg at (616) 535-2942.

Girl Scouts trained to enter the world of babysitting

Parents, if you are looking for a well-trained babysitter you need look no farther than 23 Girl Scouts who recently attended a Red Cross Babysitting clinic.

Scouts from East Jordan, Boyne City and Charlevoix participated in the clinic, which was hosted by East Jordan Jr. Girl Scout Troop #365.

The Scouts learned infant and child first aid, and all the skills necessary to be a responsible child care giver.

For completing the clinic, Scouts received a Red Cross babysitting card and a pin for their efforts.

Students get a close look at Lake Charlevoix

Two hundred sixth graders from Boyne City, Boyne Falls, and Charlevoix will never look at Lake Charlevoix the same way again.

They recently participated in an "Experience Lake Charlevoix" field trip made possible by the Lake Charlevoix Association, The Beaver Island Ferry Company, and the Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council.

The trip began with a demonstration of the importance of life preservers given by Steve Hansen, president of the Lake Charlevoix Association. Students then visited three separate stations to take part in interactive water resource education activities. At the Secchi disk station, students measured water samples, and gauged pH at the second station.

In the third station, they learned about the Lake Charlevoix watershed. Students used a watershed model to explore non-point source pollution and to gain a better understanding of what affects water quality. Volunteers were on hand at each station to answer questions that students had about water resources.

Volunteer John Danly shows students how to use a Secchi disk during the Experience Lake Charlevoix field trip.

Fiddlers putting on a show at Flywheelers' grounds

The Original Michigan Fiddlers' Association will host a Fiddlers' Jamboree on Saturday, June 13, at the Northern Michigan Antique Flywheelers Club located on US 131, 2.5 miles north of Boyne Falls. Musicians will set the backdrop for a musical jamboree from 1-5 p.m. and callers will keep time for good old fashioned square dancing from 7-10 p.m. Food will be available throughout the day for purchase. Fiddlers and musicians with other non-electrified instruments are invited to stop by too. Donations are welcome. For those interested in making a weekend of it, the club will be open for rustic camping as well from June 12-14. There will also be a potluck dinner and live music on June 12, at 6 p.m. Bring a passing dish and your own place settings. For more information contact Dan Goldsmith at 347-4010, Jack Stebe at 547-9066 or Byard Stevens at (616) 361-8289.

Bike patrol

research by Reece. It is decked out with a red and blue flashing light, reflective lettering, an extra-sturdy frame and shocks, and night-lights. "You can go anywhere and everywhere imaginable. There's nothing to stop you," said Reece. It's kind of ironic, he said, that now he can actually get from one part of town to another quicker than he could in a marked car. The two-wheeler will come in handy with the streetscape construction on Main Street too. Few other surrounding municipalities have the bike patrol, which Reece said historically is not really so unusual. During the depression, he noted, it was economical for law enforcement officials to ride their beats on bikes and Metropolitan Detroit currently has one of the largest mounted bike patrols around. "I think for a start, this bicycle patrol has been a great success," said city commissioner Ron Klooster. So far Reece is the only East Jordan officer trained for duty on the bicycle. Physically, he said, it's a lot more demanding — he's discovered how very hilly East Jordan is. "It's not too bad. Actually it's a lot of fun." Reece will ride the streets Mondays through Wednesdays and weekends, and for special events when warranted, along with the standard marked car. "It takes a special person to do that," said Alward. "He's done an excellent job."

Police departments organize bike rodeos

The Boyne City Police Department will sponsor a Bicycle Safety and Registration Rodeo on Saturday, June 13, from 10 a.m.-2 p.m. at Grandma's Day Care Center in Boyne City. The rodeo will feature a safety course and registration or re-registration for adult and children's bikes and a chance to win a bicycle helmet. Those successfully completing the safety course will also be eligible to enter a drawing to win one of two new bikes, donated by the Boyne City Fire Department and the Boyne City Ambulance Department. The rodeo is also sponsored by Mark Patrick State Farm Insurance and Grandma's Day Care Center. The center is located on Beardsley, around the corner from Boyne City Elementary School. THE EAST JORDAN Police Department will hold a Bicycle Safety and Awareness Program on June 20 beginning at noon in the parking area of the Jordan Valley Express. The program is open to 4-12 year olds and will include a bicycle skills rodeo, general bicycle maintenance, bike accessories from D.A.R.E. and refreshments, snacks and coupons provided by McDonald's Express. The official East Jordan Police Bike will also be on location for viewing. Children ages 8-12 who attend the rodeo will be given an opportunity to participate in the Grand Parade during the Jordan Valley Freedom Festival as well. Those planning to attend must bring a helmet and pre-register by calling the police department at 536-2273.
