Boyne C.A.F.E. plans forum on bond proposal

Before voters go to the polls Sept. 29 to decide the fate of an $18,850,000 bond proposal, the Boyne City School Board and Boyne C.A.F.E. (Community Action for Education) wants to provide them with all the details of the plan they have developed to address the facilities needs of the district.

As part of that, the board and Boyne C.A.F.E. will host an information forum on Thursday, Aug. 19, from 7-9 p.m. at the Boyne City Elementary School cafeteria.

The main component of the bond proposal is building a new high school with a 600-seat auditorium constructed on existing school property.

Other parts of the plan include:

- Converting the current high school to a middle school for grades 6-8;

- Converting the current middle school to an upper elementary for grades four and five. Administration offices would also be moved to the school;

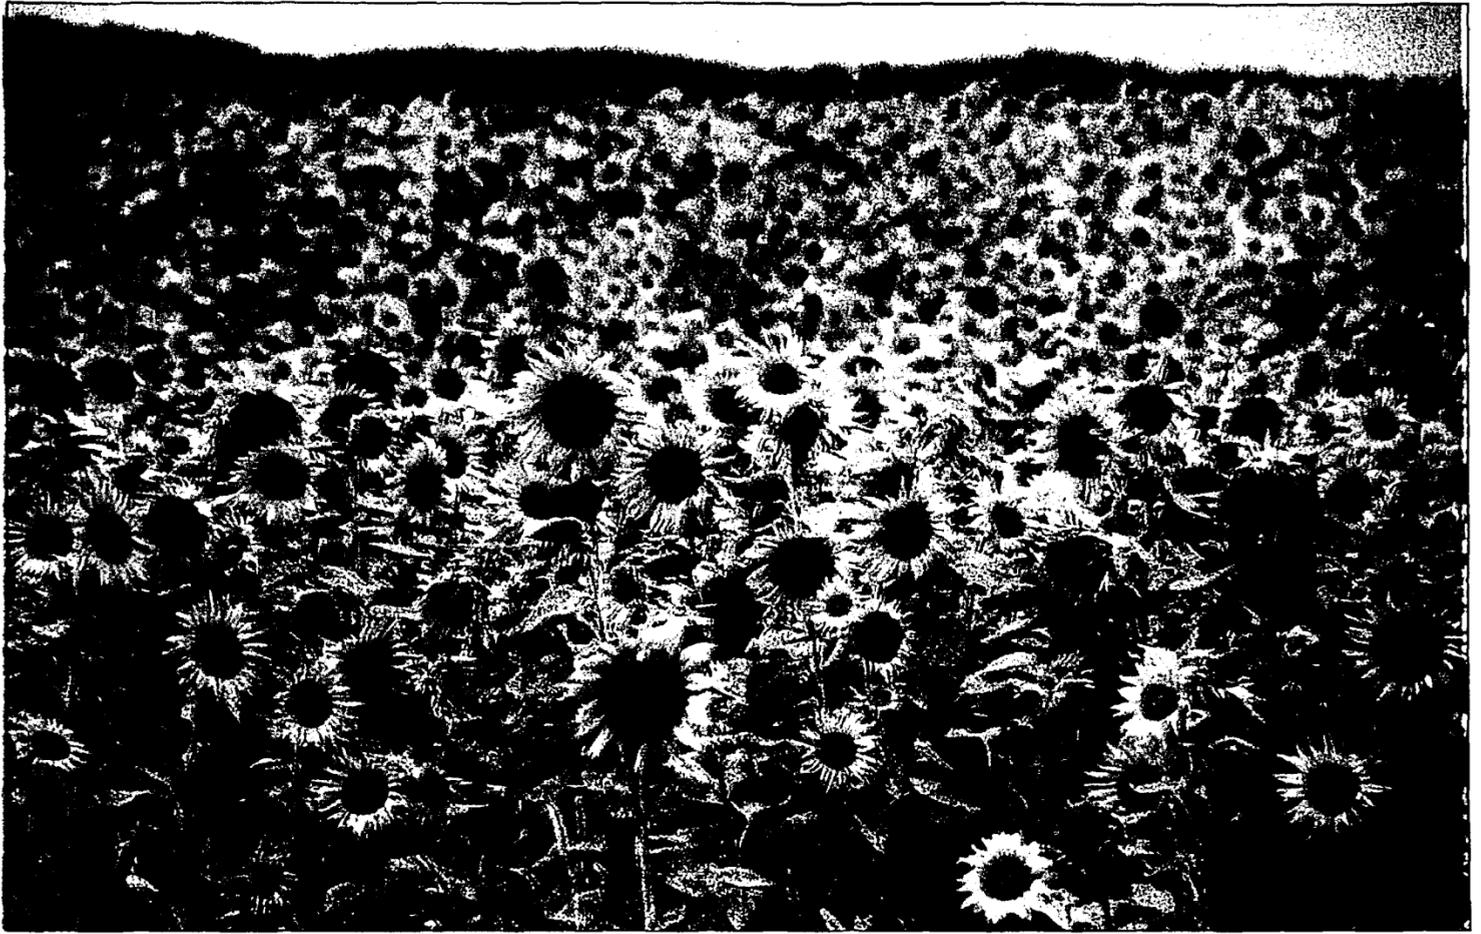

- Making improvements to the elementary school which will house grades K-3;

- Making site improvements to the school property to improve traffic, parking and pedestrian flow.

Information stations will be set up around the cafeteria explaining each aspect of the proposal.

The night will not be all business, however. The drama club will perform at 7:30 p.m. and the band at 8 p.m.

Refreshments will be served and child care will be provided.

Blooming beauties

A half acre of sunflowers brightens a stretch of Barber Road located between East Jordan and Boyne City. Howard Johnson planted the grand blooms for the first time this year simply to see how they would fare. His wife Lila said birds and squirrels have enjoyed the flowers, whose petals will soon fade.

After a close brush with death and a changed outlook on life, police officer Lee Cloyd is . . .

Back on the beat

By GINA SOLTIS KENDELL

On Saturday, April 24, 1999, Lee Cloyd had worked the day shift at her job as a Boyne City police officer. Afterwards she went to dinner, then to her home in the country. She turned into bed a little earlier than usual because she had to work the next day. Her husband Phil came to bed a little later.

Early Sunday morning, Phil woke up sensing something was wrong with Lee. He heard her moaning, rolled her over and saw her eyes were wide open, as if she'd been frightened. But she wasn't awake or responding to his words.

He called the ambulance. When the paramedics arrived, a worried Phil even had to keep their German Shepherd, Lobo, physically away from Lee, as the dog, sensing something was wrong, tried to edge its way between the gurney and the bed.

Lee was taken to Northern Michigan Hospital around 3 a.m.

They would find out that a vessel had burst in her brain. She was suffering an aneurysm and on her way to bleeding to death.

Conscious at the hospital, Lee remembers asking Phil what happened and where was she. But heavily sedated, Lee wasn't aware she should have been in fear for her life. On Monday, April 26, she underwent 12 hours of brain surgery in which a titanium clamp was attached to the severed vein. Not only was she bleeding to death, but the seeping blood was also corrosive to brain tissue. Her brain was raw and inflamed. The doctor described it as a "red angry brain." Simply touching it would cause bleeding.

Beforehand, neurosurgeon Merle Rust told Phil that Lee would probably not survive the surgery. If she did, she could have a completely different personality.

Lee not only lived, she's back to work — not on her regular patrol, but working 40 hours, most recently doing a parking survey.

"My surgeon keeps saying

Lee Cloyd returned to her job last week.

"you don't understand what a miracle it is," she said.

Lee agrees. "I don't believe in luck anymore. It's the grace of God."

Throughout her ordeal, family, friends and even acquaintances have prayed for Lee.

"From what I understand, the whole town was praying for me," she said.

Even high school softball players gathered before their games to pray for her, which Lee found nearly unbelievable.

"If I was still in Detroit, they'd be praying I'd die," she said.

She is convinced this is why she is still living.

Although she said she always believed in God and tried to be a good person, she wasn't church-going and didn't think much about miracles and the power of prayer.

Grant for Big C property falls through

If at first you don't succeed, try again.

That's the strategy the City of Boyne City will pursue after learning two grants it applied for recently have been denied.

The city applied for a $1.2 million Waterfront Redevelopment Grant to purchase the former Big C building located on the shore of Lake Charlevoix across the street from Glen's Market and was officially informed last week its request had been denied.

It also applied for a $200,000 grant to help fund construction of the Boyne River riverwalk. The city has yet to receive written notification, but was verbally told the riverwalk grant had also been denied.

The city plans to resubmit each of the grants. The deadline for the next funding cycle is Oct. 1.

There has been no word on a third grant request, for $671,000 from the Michigan Department of Natural Resources to develop Rotary Park.

Competition for the Waterfront Redevelopment program grants was intense. There were 29 applications from 27 communities totaling $71 million for the Waterfront Redevelopment Grant. Only $20 million was available.

Approximately $30 million will be available in the second round.

In a letter to the city explaining why the grant was declined, the Department of Environmental Quality, the state agency administering the grant fund, explained that the city's application could be strengthened if it provides a more specific development plan for the property and addresses a trichloroethylene plume which is known to exist on the property.

Since receiving the letter, the city has checked with the Department of Natural Resources regarding the plume and was told the only environmental issue on record regarding the property pertains to an underground tank.

The Big C property has become an issue in recent months since the business has closed. Public concern has been raised about the loss of lakeshore property within the city and there is strong public sentiment that the city should purchase the property and convert it to a park.

Regarding the riverwalk grant, the city requested $200,000 from the DNR Landwater Conservation Fund. The estimated cost for the project is $400,000. The riverwalk is one of the projects of the Downtown Development Authority and it has budgeted approximately $200,000 for its construction.

Reasons given for the denial, ac-ording to City Manager Eric Strahl, concern the close proximity of the riverwalk to the nearby service alley; the lack of documentation regarding how the riverwalk will improve fish habitat and fishing opportunities for that stretch of the river; and the lack of a signed easement for one parcel of property the riverwalk will cross.

As proposed, the riverwalk will run on the south side of the Boyne River between Lake and Park streets. The preliminary plan has been completed and construction drawings are 90 percent complete. The riverwalk's design was paid by a $45,000 Coastal Management Grant the DDA received last year.

East Jordan waits word on Boswell grant

The City of East Jordan has not yet heard if it has received a $369,000 grant toward building recreational facilities at Old Boswell Field on M-32.

If approved, the city will make a $246,000 match to build three soccer fields, four baseball diamonds, a parking lot and to renovate a concession and a restroom facility at the field.

The Rotary Club of East Jordan has committed $20,000 toward the project.

Money buys the votes

As hard as I try, I can't understand the significance of the Iowa straw poll.

Yet if you listened at all to the news last weekend, you'd think it was a major political event.

What credibility can it have when all the tickets for the event are bought up by the candidates — the one with the deepest pockets buys the most — and then those attending vote for the candidate who paid their way (and fed them and entertained them).

Rather than measuring a candidate's appeal or their ability to effectively run a presidential campaign, it's the ultimate in demonstrating how money is the name of the game in politics.

While George W. Bush took the top prize with 31 percent of the vote, the real winner was Arizona Sen. John McCain.

He was the only one of the 10 Republican candidates seeking the nomination who stayed away. He also is the only candidate who is making campaign finance an issue.

I hope he can stay in the race a long time.

Summer disappearing with each day

By MAGGIE DOHERTY

There is a distinct smell in the air that signals the closure of summer.

The gentle breezes that dance around us have transformed into rushed blows of crisp and raw air. The vibrant sun that once burned brightly well into the evening is beginning to retire earlier each night.

The magic of summer is disappearing as each day dwindles down. Nature, as well as everyone around me, is preparing for the chilly days of fall. My mailbox is stuffed with fall "back to school" catalogs and all of my friends are anticipating the day when they spend all their summer's hard earnings on a new wardrobe.

The excited talk of returning to school and leaving behind the days of freedom is saddening. We barely have three months of a season which is so relaxed and fun, so why is everyone rushing into fall?

Yes, I will be depressed when school starts and I won't be able to sleep until noon. Of course, I could, but I don't think I want to risk missing half of my classes and not being able to graduate due to my sleep habits. I've come 11 years already. I'm not pushing my luck.

But this summer hasn't been just about sleeping the entire day away and then going to the beach, as my nonexistent tan proves. No, this summer has been very memorable and rewarding due to the people I have encountered.

Working in a highly social job as a hostess at the Red Mesa restaurant, where I'm paid to socialize, has given me a different perspective on people. People of all kinds. From the chatty locals who always come in at 6 and sit at the bar to the party of 20 who come in right at peak dinner hours on a Saturday night and don't understand why there is a wait.

They've driven 10 hours in a car from smoggy, crowded cities to enjoy the "northern Michigan experience" and they and their 10 kids are very, very hungry. At least I can tide them over with some chips and salsa, but after five baskets, they want a table and their food. NOW.

Besides dealing with customers I have to admit that I'm lucky to work with some interesting people. Most of them are under 35 and have experienced so much in their young lives. I've never met anyone besides my mother who adores Nina Simon as much as I do until one of the bartenders who I work with got on the subject of great blues singers. There is this waitress who I am insanely jealous of because she spends her winters out west in the mountains, snowboarding. Of course I'd be skiing, but still.

Each night we work together, we share our stories from our thrilling or even not-so-thrilling lives between sipping that party of 20 and refilling glasses. We trade off from describing our previous evening's adventure to listening to a dream that a co-worker harbors in their heart.

Although many of the conversations last only as long as our shift, I've realized there are people everywhere with amazing goals. With all the talk of under-motivated young people not striving to achieve anything, I don't buy it.

(Maggie Doherty will be a senior at Boyne City High School this fall. On Monday she began practice with the girls' varsity basketball team.)

'We don't need a new high school'

TO THE EDITOR:

Now that I seem to have everybody's attention lets just say it again, loud and clear. We don't need a new high school, we don't want a new high school and we will not VOTE for a new high school. Every school building we have was designed for expansion and that is the route we should be taking.

No matter how much they play around with the millage figures, their plan will put us with the interest somewhere between 35 and 40 million dollars. That is a debt we do not want or need.

Now as to superintendent Dana Compton. First I want to commend the editor of the Citizen his good judgment for not giving Mr. Compton my little bee letter so he could respond to it and then run them both at the same time. This breach of letter box integrity was committed by your competitor just north of us. Mr. Compton was a willing part of it.

That little old bee sure got around. When it finally got back home it told me that just maybe I had gotten closer to the truth than even I suspected. The truth always rises some people up.

Now I would like to give Mr. Compton a word of advice seeing as how he is new in town. Any more cracks about the Litzenger Place or its residents and you will find yourself right smack dab in the middle of a hornets nest where you'll really get pollinated.

We have all paid our dues and have every right to speak out on any issue of public interest we choose to and resent being considered somewhat less than a full-fledged citizen. We care more about this community than you Mr. Compton ever will.

In my most humble opinion Mr. Compton should just do the job he was hired to do. We the people will decide on the school buildings. I will have more to say later on.

Classroom shortage is fault of administrators

TO THE EDITOR:

An emergency operation for Boyne City's school system is outlined below. A tranquil convalescence is almost guaranteed. It's all up to the new superintendent, Dana Compton. The following is for your information, Mr. Compton.

A majority of the area's school voters (and thousands of others) have for a long time known who the real culprits are behind all the plus/minus forty (40) million dollar Taj Mahal building bond election failures. They are, probably, the elected and hired school building officials themselves. And they too know it - but stubbornly refuse to believe or acknowledge why.

Most of these officials have made questionable decisions. They have absolutely no business being school officials.

For example, they have over the last several years - with deliberate intent - taken more classrooms from students, parents, and voters, than there now are portable ones. Such diversion of classrooms for non-teaching misuse allowed the resulting portables to also serve as visible intimidators. Helping to strengthen many voters belief that a shortage of classrooms existed.

An absolutely erroneous impression. But one, perhaps hard to shake off. Such decisions by school officials must be prevented before Sept. 29.

Otherwise, school officials will again succeed in bringing an entirely bogus building bond question before Boyne City school voters. This would be a terrible injustice.

Here, Mr. Compton, is how you can help avoid that:

1. Investigate the above declarations. You will then understand the extent of voters' reluctance and elected and hired school officials' deceptions.
2. Cancel the Sept. 29 election; that is, persuade the school board to do so.
3. Give the local newspapers the results of #1.
4. Fire the hired school officials and their accessories. Ask/force involved elected ones to resign.
5. Begin immediate reclamation and reconstruction - as needed - of all misused (as administrative and other offices, teachers lounges, etc.) classrooms.
6. Sell all the portable classrooms. Use the money for #5's renovations.

Do the above, Dana Compton, and you will earn the respect of all the people (not just the voters) of the Boyne City school district. You will have also been a major catalyst towards restoring many people's sense of dignity and fair play. Most important of all, you will have stimulated a return to an emphasis on children's education.

Michigan's shorelines are unlike all others

By WILFRED CWIKIEL

Northern Michigan is known for its extraordinary beaches. Sun, sand, and clear water make the Great Lakes shoreline a great place to enjoy the summer ... but did you know that our Great Lakes shorelines contain extraordinary plants that are found nowhere else on earth?

The "Dog Days" of August are here and as you head to the beach to cool off and enjoy the sun and sand, remember that you share the beach with exquisite plants like the Dwarf Lake Iris, Pitcher's Thistle, Lake Huron Tansy, and Houghton's Goldenrod — plants that make Michigan's shorelines unique in all the world.

The bright purple blooms of the Dwarf Lake Iris grace the sandy woods near the shorelines. Because of its beauty and the fact that it is found nowhere else on earth, the Dwarf Lake Iris has been designated as Michigan's state wildflower. This plant's beautiful purple blooms have already come and gone this season. Next spring, look for them along the shorelines of Wilderness State Park.

In the 1820s, Dr. Zina Pitcher, a founder of the University of Michigan Medical School, discovered a distinctive plant that now bears his name. The Pitcher's Thistle is a handsome, white-flowered thistle found only on the dunes and shorelines of Lakes Michigan, Huron, and Superior. Flowers can be seen in July, August, and the beginning of September.

The yellow buttons of the Lake Huron Tansy create a splash of color where sandy dunes meet the Great Lakes beaches. This plant is similar to the common garden tansy, but somewhat shorter, with hairy or woolly leaves and stems throughout. There can be up to thirty striking yellow flower heads on a single plant and they are usually larger (up to an inch across) than the common tansy.

The Houghton's Goldenrod beautifies damp areas along the shore with bright yellow blooms well into the fall. This plant was discovered in 1839 by Douglass Houghton, Michigan's first state geologist. Many people unfairly blame this and other goldenrods for causing hay fever. In reality, the showy yellow flowers bloom at the same time as the less-conspicuous ragweed flowers that cause the itching and sneezing. In fact, goldenrod pollen is too heavy to be carried on the wind. Instead, goldenrod pollen is carried by insects that pollinate the flowers and is not wasted on the wind or allergy sufferers.

These rare and beautiful plants are a valuable part of our shared natural heritage. They are also threatened with extinction as a result of loss of shoreline habitat due to increased human activity in shoreline areas. Heavy foot traffic and illegal vehicle traffic on the shoreline represent major threats.

The Dwarf Lake Iris, the Pitcher's Thistle, and the Houghton's Goldenrod are all listed as

Mary Murray

Familiar face takes reins, for now, at EJ Elementary School

East Jordan Elementary School counselor Mary Murray has been named interim principal at the school.

She will take on the role when current principal, Chuck Hershberger, leaves for a new post as principal of Woodview Elementary School in Belding in mid-September after nine years with the district.

Murray, the school's full-time counselor, will manage the building until a permanent principal is hired.

She has worked at the school for 20 years, beginning as a teacher for the district. She has taught almost every grade since then, eventually earning a Master's Degree in counseling and then taking on her current position.

"I don't want to give up my counseling altogether, but I am looking forward to the challenge. We have some great people working for us so they'll make the transition easy for me," Murray said.

A social worker, John Lein, has been hired to work three days a week to take on some counseling duties, a position he will share with Central Lake Public Schools. Lein worked as a counselor for Third Level Youth and Family Services in the East Jordan area for the past nine years.

The principal's position has been posted with colleges, universities and professional organizations, and applications will be taken throughout August.

Interviews will be conducted in September after school begins and, assuming that the successful candidate will be unable to leave their district right away, East Jordan hopes to fill the position by Jan. 1.

Miraculous recovery

"People always say they'll pray for you. But obviously some people were doing some heavy duty praying for me," she said.

From the beginning of the ordeal, she knows a higher power was by her side, noting that she didn't have any symptoms prior to the aneurysm.

"I believe an angel came to wake him up, because Phil doesn't wake out of a sound sleep." Lee said of her husband's sense that something was wrong with her the night she was taken to the hospital.

Phil also stood vigil by Lee's bedside before surgery until a trusted friend convinced him he needed to rest. Then she took over the watch.

The five days following surgery were critical. Lee spent two weeks at the hospital and then a week of rehabilitation at Munson Medical Center in Traverse City. Again, Phil was by her side, including every one of her rehabilitation sessions.

During that time, friends and family had to "push favors on us because maybe we weren't so accepting."

A man from Lee's work bathed and cleaned her dog Lobo and brought him to visit her in the hospital three times. At home, the dog walked from room to room, looking for Lee.

"I love my dog," Lee said.

When her horses found their way out of their paddock, Police Chief Randy Howard and his wife brought hay and repaired the fence.

A luncheon and auction benefit, coordinated by the Boyne City Police Department, raised $3,000 for Lee.

Not a day went by when someone from work or another friend would call and help pick up her spirits or make sure she was all right.

In June, Lee's sick leave ran out. But city employees donated enough of their sick leave to her to tide her over until she came back to work.

"Nobody even asked them. How do you thank them for that?" she wonders.

"I can't say enough about the people I work with," Lee said.

The list of favors goes on. Each one appreciated as much as the next.

In an unfortunate turn of events, Lee's mother passed away while Lee was in rehabilitation.

When the Cloyds asked a neighbor to feed the horses while they attended the funeral in Windsor, the neighbor then insisted the Cloyds drive their new Explorer rather than Lee's pickup truck.

Though initially resistant, Lee is now grateful because it allowed other family members to travel with them and Lee was able to lay down in a reclining seat and sleep during the trip.

The Cloyds have already been met with other trials this year.

Phil's mother died in May, he himself had surgery in February, a niece was in a serious car accident in March and Lee's father had chest pains leading to the need for a pacemaker.

Not many people are given a second chance. I don't want to blow it.”
--Lee Cloyd

"I know it sounds like a lot of bad things, but if I wouldn't have had the aneurysm, I probably wouldn't have seen my mom before she died," Lee said.

Her mother and father made the trip north from Florida sooner than they would have because of Lee's surgery.

She spent Mother's Day with her mom and because she wasn't working, had more time to spend with her.

Lee, with seven years on the Boyne City police force, went back to work in July for a few days but only returned to full time work last Friday.

Although she was back to driving last week for the first time, she undertook a downtown parking survey by foot to help her get back in shape.

She misses her regular patrol work and anticipates eventually getting back to it. A six month check-up in October will tell her more about her recovery.

She hasn't lost her sense of humor throughout the ordeal saying that now the way people stared at her before is nothing compared to the way they stare at her now.

She jokes that some gray hair has grown in since the surgery. Well, she admits, there was gray before too.

And then there are the references about her "flip-top lid."

She still gets down sometimes, but usually a phone call from a friend will come or she will just pull out her bag of 100 or so get-well cards she's amassed to give her a boost.

Her demeanor is generally cheery and even rainy days don't get her down.

"I'm alive," she said.

Lee and Phil were baptized over the weekend.

She was apprehensive about immersing herself in Walloon Lake but thought, "God's done an awful lot for me this year, I guess I can get a little wet. God was knocking me upside the head. I'm getting the message."

She can't emphasize enough how grateful she is for all the support. "I think, who am I that all these people should do this stuff for me?"

"I don't know why I've been given a second chance," Lee said. "Not many people are given a second chance. I don't want to blow it."

Boyer superintendent faces assault charge

Boyer City School Superintendent Dana Compton faces a pretrial hearing in Bay County on Aug. 20 for charges that he assaulted a female friend.

According to Bay County Prosecuting Attorney Joseph Sheeran, Compton, 48, was charged with assault and battery, a 90-day misdemeanor, for an incident that allegedly occurred on July 26 in Bay City.

Compton allegedly pushed Marlene Christoff-Sunberg to the ground, grabbed her and hit her in the head with a towel outside of her home, Sheeran said.

Bay City Police investigated the incident and arrested Compton the day it happened.

Judge Scott Newcombe will preside over the hearing.

Boyer City School Board president Kathy Anderson said she did not know anything about the incident until she read about it in the newspaper Monday afternoon.

She said the board will hold a special meeting on Thursday to discuss the incident.

Compton, who served nine years as superintendent of Morenci schools in Lenawee County, began his job in Boyer City on July 1.

NEWS FROM CITY HALL

By SUE HOBBS

BOTH EAST JORDAN and Charlevoix Emergency Medical Services were called to stand-by for Boyer City EMS this past week. The Charlevoix EMS responded for a medical run. All Boyer City EMS ambulances were committed to other runs at the time.

ZONING PERMITS issued recently were: Marvin and Marilyn Roberts, 320 Division St., new home and garage; Don Hocquard, 412 East Main St., addition; Carolyn Jackson, 617 Groveland St., deck; Mike Kolkjen, 630 Lake Park, garage.

AT THE AUG. 12 Parks and Recreation Commission meeting, board member Lou Awodey distributed copies of a city map showing both existing and proposed routes for pedestrian/bicycle paths. The city commission had requested development of a plan for such routes for the entire city in order that, each time a request is made for installation of a section of pathway, they can see that this will be connecting to a system rather than an isolated, short path. Copies of this proposal are available at city hall for public comments. This plan will be discussed further by the parks and recreation commission and by city commission in the future.

RESTORATION WORK at the Division Street Pathway should begin shortly with black dirt and hydroseeding. The North Lake Street project is proceeding well in spite of the rain. This project should be completed shortly after Labor Day, allowing a few days for rain delay.

JUST A REMINDER that the entrance to City Hall by the police department can be used for access to the administrative offices. Work on the front entrance should be finished this week, however, North Lake Street will be closed.

BOTH THE WATERFRONT overlay and noise ordinances, recently approved at their second readings, will take effect on Aug. 18.

FOLLOWING DENIAL of the Waterfront Redevelopment Grant from the state, city staff is reviewing outstanding debt and planned projects, meeting with state officials and the property owner, and beginning work on another application for grant funds to be submitted in October. DEQ officials felt this is a good project, we just need to "fine tune" our proposal.

(Sue Hobbs is assistant city manager and city clerk for the City of Boyer City.)

Marvin Loding Awards honor community pride

A group of area citizens were recognized at last week's Boyne City commission meeting for making improvements to their properties and exhibiting outstanding community spirit.

THE RESIDENTIAL award was presented to Corinne and Richard Warmbold for improvements to their home at 473 Elm St.

Residents of Flint, the Warmbolds bought the two-story house as their weekend retreat three years ago, completing most of the updates the first six months they owned it.

They painted the formerly white house and garage a warm yellow with red and green trim. A new roof and windows complete the major portions of the exterior updates. The front porch, outfitted in cozy, cushion-laden furniture, is an inviting spot to sit and sneak a peak of Lake Charlevoix. Extensive new landscaping not only rims the front yard and house, but they designed and planted quaint gardens along the side and back of the house.

Inside they stripped and sanded wood floors and other woodwork, stripped wallpaper, and painted and decorated each room in lively colors.

FRIENDS OF THE BOYNE River captured the community spirit award for its efforts to preserve and enhance the Boyne River.

"We have an awful lot to do yet," FOBR president Tom Sheets said. "We've had a lot of community support."

The group was formed a year ago in May and since then has gathered a 130-person membership — surpassing its one-year goal of attracting 100 members.

Besides clean-ups on and along the river's shores — including the eradication of purple loosestrife — the group is actively involved in educational efforts in the schools and in the community.

It will focus its efforts in the upcoming year on erosion and monitoring the river's water temperature.

DR. DENNIS KIRKBY captured the commercial award for the restoration of the building that houses

Richard and Corrine Warmbold were winners of the residential award for the improvements they've made to their house on Elm Street.

Dr. Dennis Kirkby and his wife Denise restored their Main Street building to its original architecture.

his dental office on Main Street.

Kirkby and wife Denise, owners of the building, had the updates completed a year ago this fall.

The restored storefront now reflects its original traditional architecture. Its remodeled interior complements the state-of-the-art equipment and services offered by Kirkby.

The dental office takes up one half of the bottom floor of the building, the Family Barber Shop remains next door with a few updates to the facade, and there are apartments above.

The Boyne City Planning Commission voted for the winners by secret ballot at its July meeting. Nominations were made by local citizens, staff, board members and volunteers.

The award is named in honor of former citizen Marvin Loding whose list of contributions to the community include his being a three-term mayor, a planning commissioner and a member of the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners.

He was also actively involved in the development of the North Boyne Launch Ramp and Shelter House of Veteran's Memorial Park, was instrumental in the engineering of the Boyne City Wastewater Lagoon System and spent much time working on Avalanche Preserve.

Jake's Place cookout a benefit for Michigan Special Olympics

Jake's Place will team up with endurance snowmobilers Wertz Warriors to host a pig roast, hayrides and raffles on Saturday, Aug. 21, to help raise money for the Michigan Special Olympics Winter Sports program.

The public is invited to attend.

The eats at the second annual Fun Filled Day will be rounded out with deep fried turkey, bean pot and all the fixings. Countryside views will come with hayrides up Old Cherry Hill, and the Never Never Band will keep things hopping back at Jake's Place.

Last year — in its first year raising money for the Special Olympics — the Boyne Falls tavern took in $4,100 for the cause. Bar owner Kim Rotermond hopes to break $5,000 this year.

The all-you-can-eat cook-out begins at noon. The cost is $8 for adults, $7 for senior citizens, and $5 for children. Jake's Place is located at 2670 U.S. 131 in downtown Boyne Falls.

Bud and Lorene Jonas led the Snapper's tour group through the scenic back roads of northern Michigan in their 1910 Oakland.

SNAPPER'S TOUR EXPLORES THE BACK ROADS OF NORTHERN MICHIGAN

Old-time cruising

By GINA SOLTIS KENDELL

The usually desolate two-tracks and county roads on the outskirts of town were abuzz with tourists last week.

Any onlookers would have thought they'd stepped back in time to see them tooling along in their old cars — none newer than 1915.

Bud and Lorene Jonas, of Belding, cruised down the trails in their 1910 Oakland — Bud driving and Lorene navigating.

"You can see things," Lorene said of the scenery.

And with top speeds on paved roads generally reaching about 35 mph, they probably see things a little differently than those clipping along at the posted speed limit or better.

Backroads are ideal, because the drivers can ramble at a leisurely pace, without confronting much modern road traffic.

Bud was the trip planner for this Snapper's Tour trip, having spent three days in the spring with Lorene, mapping out and driving the five, 100 mile per day circular routes the group would cruise along in northwest Michigan.

In detail, they noted exact mileage between turns, where to turn, which way to turn, and copied maps for packets which they distributed to all the participants.

Once on tour, Bud would wake up each morning before the rest of the group, head out from the Boyne City base and drive the routes again to ascertain if all the roads were navigable. One morning he found a road under water and logging at another one. That necessitated rerouting, and informing the owners of the 58 other cars before they headed out for the day from the Big Boy restaurant parking lot.

"You see parts of the country you would have never seen," Jeanne Carroll said.

She and her husband Jim have a 1911 Cadillac. They are from Columbus, Mich. On Thursday, when the group stopped off in Walloon toward the end of their day trip for an ice-cream cone, he noticed oil had sprayed all over his wheel.

Back at camp — the Boyne City High School parking lot — he took the wheel off with help from fellow Snapper Henry Jansen, who is from Eden, N.Y., south of Buffalo.

Jim said it's the first time he's had a problem with the car which he's driven 3,000 miles since they bought it three years ago.

"We need Bud Jonas," Jim said. "He's not only a good tour director, but he's a good mechanic."

"That's the nice part about it (the tour). Someone's always available to give you a hand," Jim said.

If a car breaks down along the road, members of the rest of the tour will stop to help, until they are waved on.

Most of the car owners are well versed in fixing problems themselves, but the extra help is appreciated.

"It doesn't matter, if you're a working person or a retired person of great means, when you've broken down, anyone will stop," Jeanne said.

Like the Carrolls and Jonas, just over a dozen Snappers pulled their antique cars to the north with motorhomes, living in the RVs throughout the tour.

The Carrolls' rig, custom painted to match the trailer, is 68 feet long. They used to pull their car with a truck and trailer.

"It's only a $200,000 whim," joked Jim of the hobby.

American LaFrance, and Reo among others.

Bud and Lorene have put nearly 140,000 miles on their 1910 Oakland since they bought and restored it with two original engines.

Restorers can spend up to $200,000 fixing up some cars, which cost $1,200-$2,400 new.

Rarely, if ever, do they even hit the newspapers when they come up for sale.

Most of the vehicles are owner-restored.

In addition to traveling the back roads, members of the Snapper's car tour also stopped in several northern Michigan communities to give people a chance to get a close up look at their vintage automobiles.

"We like old cars. We like them with lots of brass on them."

Another motorhome — looking more like a customized greyhound bus — probably cost closer to a quarter million dollars.

The motorhomes settled in at the Boyne City High School parking lot last week, while the remainder of the group stayed in local hotels.

The hobby draws folks from all walks of life. Doctors, mechanics, retirees, families.

"The people that are involved are nice people," Bud said.

"We're all sort of like a big family," Lorene added, even though not all the members knew each other before coming on this trip.

A national group, the Snappers hail from 25 states and include about 150 couples. This trip included folks from 11 different states. They average three trips per year.

More than 3,300 different kinds of the "brass and gas" cars were manufactured during that era.

This trip featured 30 different cars including Henry Jansen's 1909 violet Petrel. Violet — New York's state flower — was the only color the car was painted. A petrel is a seagull.

Others drove a Ford, Chevy, White, Pierce Arrow, Pope Hartford, Kissel, taking anywhere from a year to five years to refurbish one.

"It's a matter of time and money," Henry said. "When you've got the time, you haven't got the money."

Daily tours begin with about a 20-mile jaunt and then a stop off for coffee at an interesting spot. The scenery and the fellow tourists are the mainstays of the trips.

"Rain or shine, we still go," Lorene said. Tops and sides pop up in case of inclement weather. Or lacking that, the tourists don rain gear.

Evenings included gatherings to enjoy watermelon. Sometimes the women dressed in period garb for the events.

One night the group gathered for homemade banana splits, complements of the Jonas family, who had three generations along for the trip — including a grandson who drove a modern-day Hummer as a trouble truck.

Then there are the admiring onlookers everywhere they go asking how much the cars cost new, and interestingly enough, wondering if they've owned them since they were new.

"We like old cars," Henry said succinctly. "We like them with lots of brass on them."

Concert raises $29,000 for Charlevoix Area Hospital

Charlevoix Area Hospital received a donation of more than $29,000 from its Development Council members who organized the inaugural "Symphony On the Green" event in July at Bay Harbor Equestrian Club.

"Symphony on the Green" featured the Traverse Symphony Orchestra and Katia Skanavi, the Van Cliburn International Piano Competition finalist. All proceeds from the concert went to Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Chris Unbehaun and Mike Bergeon, co-chairs of "Symphony on the Green" and members of the hospital's Development Council community relations committee, recently reported that plans are under way to make the symphony a yearly event.

The symphony fund-raiser was sponsored by the Bay Harbor Company, Charlevoix State Bank, Citizens Bank, Crown Motors, Federico's Jewelers, Gary Faust of Masterpiece Gallery in the Bay Harbor Marina District, Bank One/NBD, Lexalite International Corporation, and Southdown Inc. (formerly Medusa Cement Company).

Charlevoix Area Hospital is a non-profit, community-owned hospital with 32 physicians on staff.

Community foundation grants reach far and wide

Trustees of the Charlevoix County Community Foundation recently announced a new round of grants and the awards will benefit area elementary school students, athletes, Alzheimer patients, environmentalists, the elderly, and just about everyone in between.

Now that Community Foundation assets have topped $6.5 million, the organization has stepped up its grantmaking to support local programs. This most recent group of grants, totaling more than $35,000, brings the foundation's distribution of charitable dollars to $1.4 million over the past five years.

Projects chosen to receive grants from the foundation's general fund include:

Raven Hill Discovery Center - $4,500 to support a new, hands-on educational project that will connect lessons in science, math, history, and art.

Third Level Crisis Intervention - $1,000 to make improvements to the phone system used for the program's 24-hour hotline.

Northern Michigan Antique Flywheelers - $1,500 toward construction of a museum to house the organization's historical artifacts.

Alzheimer's Association - $1,500 to increase outreach services in Charlevoix County and purchase audio/visual equipment for the Alzheimer's reference library at the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Charlevoix County Land Conservancy - $800 to help the organization produce membership recruitment materials and conservation brochures.

Commission on Aging - $3,000 to expand the Personal Care Program serving this area's elderly.

Habitat for Humanity - $1,500 toward construction of a new home in Charlevoix County.

Receiving grants from the Community Foundation's East Jordan Enrichment Fund:

City of East Jordan - $3,500 in a one-to-one challenge match that will help purchase an EKG machine for emergency medical services.

East Jordan Public Schools/City of East Jordan - $2,200 for equipment and camper scholarships at Camp EJ.

East Jordan Police Department - $1,500 to help sponsor a bicycle safety day and provide bike helmets for children.

East Jordan Public Schools - $1,500 to support a "Makes a World of Difference" program in the elementary school.

East Jordan Public Schools - $7,800 to resurface and paint the track at Boswell Stadium.

East Jordan Public Schools/

Wagbo Peace Center - $3,500 to provide scholarships for at-risk students participating in the mentor program.

East Jordan Public Schools - $1,500 to purchase golf equipment for school team members who otherwise would not be able to participate in the sport.

The Community Foundation will accept grant requests again this fall. Programs and projects eligible for funding must serve residents of Charlevoix County and should address an area of need such as health, human services, education, youth enrichment, recreation, environmental preservation, or the arts and culture. Staff at the Foundation are happy to discuss proposals and worthy ideas with prospective grant-seekers.

The Charlevoix County Community Foundation is a charitable organization founded by local citizens in 1992. Some 90 funds made up of donations from families, individuals, businesses, and civic groups now are held in permanent endowment by the Foundation.

Each year, a portion of the income earned on these funds is used to make grants that benefit Charlevoix County. For information about the Community Foundation or its grantmaking, call 536-2440.

For many attending the show, walking by certain cars probably stirred up a wealth of memories. For this 1933 Buick passenger sedan, even young people had visions of some gangster opening the door and stepping out.

With a 1912 EMF in the background, these two settled down to a fun game of cards to pass the afternoon.

Classic admirers

Boyne City's Veteran's Park was crowded with vintage automobiles and people admiring their beauty for the 26th annual Antique Auto Show and Flea Market. Organizers of the event said it was one of the best ever, with more than 140 cars -- not including members of the Boyne Country Region of the Antique Automobile Club of America -- registered for judging. They knew crowds were big too, when they ran out of food late Saturday. Among the cars on display was Jim Shepherd's 1941 Dodge, pictured at right.

Jordan River friends hosting race through the valley

The Friends of the Jordan River Watershed (FOJ) will host the fourth annual Jordan River Run/Walk on Saturday, Aug. 21.

A 15K run, 5K walk and 5K walk are the three main events. There is also a one mile fun run.

The 15K course has garnered a reputation among runners as one of the most scenic in Michigan as it winds down through the Jordan Valley, much of it along the river. The races give participants a chance to enjoy the natural surroundings of the Jordan River watershed, while seeing first hand why the scenic wilderness area needs to be protected.

Trophies will be awarded to the overall winners of the 15K and 5K runs and medals to the top three finishers, male and female, in each age group. All fun run participants will receive a ribbon.

The races will kick off at 8:30 a.m. at the Alba Sportsman's Club in Alba, approximately seven miles north of Mancelona and one mile west of US-131. Participants should check in between 7 and 8 a.m.

The entry fee is $15. The one mile fun run is $1. T-shirts will be given to the first 150 registrants for the 15K and 5K.

Texas folk musician taking the stage at Aten Place

Austin, Texas songwriter, singer and guitarist Peter Keane will perform at Aten Place on Saturday, Aug. 21, at 8 p.m.

A superb finger-style guitarist and singer, Keane mixes the country blues picking of Mississippi John Hurt with a subtle wit and wry humor to create a songwriting style at once classic sounding, yet utterly unique. Working in the same roots-oriented vein as folks like Ramblin' Jack Elliott, Paul Geremia, Greg Brown and Bill Morrissey, Keane's music might best be described simply as "Americana." Keane (pronounced kane) has established himself as a major figure on the acoustic music circuit across the country. With an extensive national touring schedule on the heels of his critically-acclaimed Rounder/Flying Fish recording "Walkin' Around," an ever-growing audience has been finding out about one of folk music's best-kept secrets.

Aten Place is located 1/2 mile south of Cherry Hill Road on Old Mackinaw Trail in Boyne Falls. The concerts are non-profit productions with a $5 donation at the door provided as compensation to the entertainers.

Former Boyne teacher's sexual assault trial set to begin August 24

Former Boyne City teacher Christi J. Brilinski will stand trial in Charlevoix County Circuit Court beginning Aug. 24 on charges that she sexually assaulted a 15-year-old female student.

Jury selection is expected to begin at 8:30 a.m. Circuit Court Judge Richard Pajtas will preside over the trial.

In late April, Brilinski, 44, of Boyne City, a former teacher, coach and athletic director at Boyne City High School, was arrested and charged with fourth degree criminal sexual conduct and molesting a child for an immoral purpose.

At a preliminary hearing in late May, the former student testified that she had a sexual relationship with Brilinski for more than a year and had numerous sexual encounters with Brilinski at Brilinski's home, at the Boyne City High School locker room and in Brilinski's school office.

Now 20 years old, the former student testified that she and Brilinski became close friends during 1994, when the student was a 15-year-old freshman attending two of Brilinski's classes. She described herself as a troubled teenager at odds with her parents and turning to Brilinski for help.

The former student testified she went to live with Brilinski for 11 days during the summer of 1994 and that her parents had to get a court order and have Boyne City Police intervene to bring her home. She said Brilinski was manipulative and alienated her from friends and family.

The former student also testified that even after her parents told school officials they did not want Brilinski to have any contact with their daughter, Brilinski arranged for private rendezvous in a locker room.

While the former student testified she never said "no" to Brilinski's alleged advances, she said Brilinski knew the encounters sickened her and that she vomited after several incidents. The woman also testified that Brilinski told her that if she ever told anyone about the incidents it would "ruin" Brilinski's life.

Brilinski's defense attorney Randall Karfonta argued that even though the former student testified to a sexual relationship with Brilinski, the woman never accused her of force or coercion. He said therefore, the criminal sexual conduct charges were unwarranted.

But Prosecutor Mary Beth Kur said Brilinski, as a teacher, exploited the teenager and coerced her psychologically.

District Court Judge Richard May said based on the testimony, the student was not emotionally stable during the alleged encounters, although the former student was 16 at the time -- the legal consent age.

The former student said she did not tell authorities about the relationship until recently because she had few friends and never felt she could tell anyone before.

Brilinski did not testify at the hearing. She is free on a personal recognizance bond and ordered not to have any contact with the victim. Brilinski resigned her teaching position in April. She taught English, physical education, was the high school girls track coach and a former athletic director.

Brilinski faces three counts of criminal sexual conduct in the fourth degree at the upcoming trial.

Criminal sexual conduct in the fourth degree, which involves using force or coercion to accomplish sexual contact, is a felony that carries a maximum penalty of two years in jail and a $500 fine.

Brilinski is also charged with soliciting a child for sex or other acts of indecency or delinquency, a misdemeanor offense which carries a maximum punishment of one year in jail.

East Jordan School Board approves staff appointments

Irene Ferguson was appointed interim administrative assistant at East Jordan Middle School by the East Jordan School Board at its meeting Monday evening.

Ferguson replaces Leon Dyer who has been deployed to Kosovo with the Michigan National Guard.

The board approved Ferguson's and Mary Murray's appointment as interim elementary principal and a $5,500 stipend for each as compensation for their additional duties and responsibilities.

In other business the board:

- Approved a resolution authorizing the enrollment of non-resident students who live in contiguous school districts outside the Char-Em Intermediate School District.

- Appointed Kelly Flynn to the half time PREP teaching position in the elementary school and Becky Miller to the Business Services and Technology teaching position at the high school.

- Named Elizabeth Huyck middle school girls basketball coach and Eric Richardson the men's varsity soccer coach.

- Approved the internal transfers for support staff Sherry Gaunt and Holly Nieman.

- Reviewed bids for the purchase of a driver education vehicle, and approved the bid from Ed's Used Cars for $20,000, for a 1998 Chevrolet Astro all-wheel drive minivan. The vehicle will also be used to transport small groups of students to events, eliminating the need to send a school bus.

- Reviewed the student dismissal procedure at the elementary school. The City of East Jordan has granted approval to close Fourth Street between Williams and Garfield streets each day from 3:35 p.m., allowing busses to line up diagonally for student dismissal, separating cars and busses on the site which will increase the level of safety for students.

GARDEN PATH

Refuge from the sun

By ANGELA SHULTIS

Beating the heat is on everyone's mind during the summer. With the hot and humid weather we often have in July and August, it's no wonder. And even though signs of fall are in the air, it's always a good idea to have a refuge prepared for the inevitable heat waves of summer.

Gardeners at times underestimate the value of shade. Most gardeners, when planning, wish for sun, sun, and more sun. While it's true that the most showy garden specimens call for lots of sun exposure, that's not where we gardeners want to retire after a long afternoon of weeding. And anyone with a shadeless yard can tell you what they wish for on an August afternoon with temperatures pushing the mid-90s.

Trees are obviously our most valuable asset for a long hot summer (or even a short, sort-of-hot one). I am fortunate enough to have a yard chock full of them. My house is surrounded with (somewhat overgrown) cedars and pines, which provide a natural form of air conditioning. Because of them, the inside of the house is plenty cool enough; with a fan to move the air around, we've stayed comfortable. And outside they provide a haven as well. The simple, flat deck off the back of our house has become a favorite place in recent days; the surrounding pine trees provide shade all day long, making it a cool place to hang out, even at high noon. A few pots of shade-loving annuals, such as coleus and begonias, add some color to enjoy throughout the summer.

If you already have some trees, use them. If they're not in proximity to a deck or patio, go to where they are. Set out a bench, some outdoor chairs, or a hammock. Kids love to have their own place in the shade, too; when it's too hot to be racing around in the yard, give them an inviting place to settle in and play a game, read a book or just hang out with friends.

Planting trees is always an option, and is something I encourage; but realistically, in most cases it will be a few years before they provide any real usable shade. In the meantime, an arbor or gazebo can add interest to the landscape while providing instant shade. Annual or perennial vines, such as morning glory, clematis, honeysuckle, and roses growing up and around these structures provides additional shelter from the blazing sun.

And fear not, plant lovers, there are plenty of interesting and attractive shade-loving, or at least shade-tolerant, varieties. Hostas are probably the easiest and most prolific, providing beautiful foliage in an endless range of sizes and forms (but beware - deer love them). For floral accents, astilbes boast feathery spikes of white, pink, purple, and red, and violas, bleeding hearts, sweet woodruff, forget-me-nots, begonias, and impatiens all add color while requiring minimal light.

Water features are another way to add a little bit of cool to your yard. A simple pond can be created with one of the many kits available at most home and landscape stores. Fountains are another option, and even a simple birdbath, amidst some trees and surrounded by ferns, myrtle, or lily of the valley, is just enough water to refresh the senses.

And when looking for a place to cool off, there is always the old-fashioned front porch. Looking around, you may notice that the front porch is back; many new houses seem to feature some form of one, and lots of older homes are making additions of them. Not only is a covered porch cool, it's friendly, too; there's nothing better than settling onto the porch after supper for a chat with the family or neighbors. A few hanging baskets and flower boxes on the rail make it that much more inviting. Be conscious of the color palette when choosing flowers to fill them; blue, white, lavender, and green will convey a sense of coolness and tranquility.

When summer is at its peak, the best way to keep cool is to be prepared - give yourself a place to hide out from the hot summer rays. And make sure there's enough room for a few of your friends; once they find out about your refuge, you won't be alone for long.

CITY OF BOYNE CITY COUNTY OF CHARLEVOIX ADOPTION OF AMENDMENT A 29(2), HOUSING ORDINANCE, TAX EXEMPTION AMENDMENT.

At a regular meeting of the City Commissioners of the City of Boyne City, County of Charlevoix, MI held at City Hall in said City the 10th day of August, 1999 at 7 p.m., the second reading and consideration of adopting amendment A-29(2) to City of Boyne City Ordinance #A-29, Housing Ordinance, was held and approved. The following is a synopsis of that amending ordinance.

THE CITY OF BOYNE CITY ORDAINS:

SECTION 1. This Ordinance amendment shall be known and cited as the "City of Boyne City Tax Exemption Ordinance."

SECTION 2. Preamble.

It is acknowledged that it is a proper public purpose of the State of Michigan and its political subdivisions to provide housing for its citizens of low income and to encourage the development of such housing by providing for a service charge in lieu of property taxes in accordance with the State Housing Development Authority Act of 1966 (1966 PA 346, as amended, MCLA Section 125.1401 et. seq., MSA Section 116.114(1) et. seq.) The City of Boyne City is authorized by this Act to establish or change the service charge to be paid in lieu of taxes by any or all classes of housing exempt from taxation under this Act at any amount it chooses not to exceed the taxes that would be paid for this Act. It is further acknowledged that such housing for persons of low income is a public necessity, and as the City of Boyne City will be benefited and improved by such housing, the encouragement of the same by providing certain real estate tax exemption for such housing is a valid public purpose; further that the continuation of the provisions of this Ordinance for tax exemption and the service charge in lieu of taxes during the period contemplated in this Ordinance are essential to the determination of economic feasibility of housing developments which are constructed and financed in reliance on such tax exemption.

The City of Boyne City acknowledges that the Boyne City Housing Commission (the "Sponsor") has offered, subject to receipt of an allocation under the Low Income Housing Tax Credit (LIHTC), to erect, own, and operate a housing development identified as Boyne Senior Housing Development on certain property in the City of Boyne City to serve persons of low income, and that the Sponsor has offered to pay the City of Boyne City on account of this housing development an annual service charge for public services in lieu of all taxes.

SECTION 4. Class of Housing Developments

It is determined that the class of Housing Developments to which the tax exemption shall apply and for which a service charge shall be paid in lieu of such taxes shall be Elderly, which are financed or assisted pursuant to the Act. It is further determined that Boyne Senior Housing Development is of this class.

SECTION 5. Establishment of Annual Service Charge.

The Housing Development identified as Boyne City Housing Commission Development Number One and the property on which it shall be constructed shall be exempt from all property taxes from and after the commencement of construction. The City of Boyne City, acknowledging that the Sponsor and the Authority have established the economic feasibility of the Housing Development in reliance upon the enactment and continuing effect of this Ordinance and the qualification of the Housing Development for exemption from all property taxes and a payment in lieu of taxes as established in this Ordinance, and in consideration of the Sponsor's offer, subject to receipt of an allocation under the LIHTC program, to construct, own and operate the Housing Development, agrees to accept payment of an annual service charge for public services in lieu of all property taxes. The annual service charge shall be equal to 0% of the difference between the Annual Shelter Rents actually collected and Utilities.

SECTION 6. Limitation on the Payment of Annual Service Charge.

Notwithstanding Section 5, the service charge to be paid each year in lieu of taxes for the part of the Housing Development which is tax exempt and which is occupied by other than low income persons or families shall be equal to the full amount of the taxes which would be paid on that portion of the Housing Development if the Housing development were not tax exempt.

The term "low income persons or families" as used herein shall be the same meaning as found in Section 15(a)(7) of the Act.

SECTION 8. Payment of Service Charge.

The service charge in lieu of taxes as determined under the Ordinance shall be payable in the same manner as general property taxes are payable to the City of Boyne City except that the annual payment shall be paid on or before Dec. 31 of each year.

SECTION 9. Duration.

This Ordinance shall remain in effect and shall not terminate so long as the Authority's Mortgage remains outstanding and unpaid or the Authority has any interest in the property; or the Housing development remains subject to income and rent restrictions pursuant to Section 42 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as amended, provided that construction of the Housing development commence within one year from the effective date of this ordinance.

A copy of this amending ordinance is available at the City Clerk's office during normal business hours. This amendment shall take effect fifteen (15) days following final enactment, Aug. 25, 1999.

Sue Hobbs, City Clerk
