See page 8 for more on how the football and basketball seasons are shaping up.

EJ Community Park going out to bid again

At the request of the Department of Natural Resources, the city of East Jordan is in the process of re-bidding the East Jordan Community Park project.

The project had originally gone out to bid earlier this summer, and the city had tentatively awarded the contract to SRW Contracting/Paving. Due to proposed changes in the contract, which would involve the deletion of one baseball field and a concession stand, the Department of Natural Resources has determined that the contract may not be awarded to the original low bidder, SRW Contracting/Paving, and must be re-bid entirely. The commission had approved the changes at a previous meeting after receiving bid amounts much higher than anticipated for the project.

According to Richard T. Beaupre, a representative of Capital Consultants, project engineers, the DNR indicated that the project needed to be either re-bid, or that a post-bid addendum be issued to the original four bidders. Capital Consultants recommended that the city reject all bids and re-bid the project with a reduced scope.

Any changes to the contract must meet with the DNR's approval due to the fact that the project is being funded in part by a Natural Resources Trust Fund grant.

The city is already advertising a new request for bids, with the bid package once again including the concession stand, but deleting a regulation baseball field originally, in the plan.

In other business at last week's city commission meeting, the commission approved a new rate for Advance Life Support intercepts performed by the East Jordan Ambulance Department, setting the rate at $275. At the meeting, ambulance director Jay Peck, who had originally requested the rate be set at $150 per run, stated that the $275 proposed by commissioner Bernard Hammond at a previous meeting was comparable to the fees charged by other ALS services in northern Michigan. The commission also approved an engineering proposal from Capital Consultants for engineering services for street and utility improvements on Main Street.

Alternative ed. finds a new home at old B.F. School

While Boyne Falls is busy moving into its new school building, the old school is already being prepared for its next incarnation.

The building has been purchased by Char-Em Intermediate School District, with the intention of moving its Resort Pike alternative education program there. The district has also given Boyne City the opportunity to move the Hemingway and Great Lakes alternative programs into the school.

"It's a real positive option for the alternative programs," said Boyne City alternative program director and high school principal Mary Jason.

The school already has a gym and cafeteria in place for the students to use, and some special services, including consulting, will be more readily available in the new location.

According to Char-Em ISD superintendent Mark Eckhardt, the district is always looking for a better location for its alternative education programs, for which the district usually rents or leases space.

The move into the old Boyne Falls School will also afford the programs the opportunity to combine services and programs for students.

"Right now the building is being renovated," Jason said, noting that some walls are being removed and painting and carpeting are being completed. The building will be ready for the alternative programs to move in for the start of the school year in September.

The Porter Creek alternative education program will remain at its current location in Advance.

In the future, the building may also be used for Char-Em staff training, since the district currently doesn't have the space to hold trainings and usually rents a facility for that purpose.

"Right now we do not have enough rooms for all of the training," Eckhardt said. The building has "the potential to offer that," he said, but will require further renovations to suit the district's needs.

The district will likely begin looking at making those renovations after the end of the coming school year.

Jason noted that the building will still be available for the community functions it has housed in the past, such as church dinners.

"It's not totally lost for the community," she said. "We will still make it available."

Getting ready for the first day

With only a couple of weeks to go until the start of the school year, Boyne City Elementary's new principal, Fred Sitkins, has a lot on his plate.

First and foremost, he is involved with the interview process in the search for a new school secretary. And secondly, he is getting acclimated to his new surroundings.

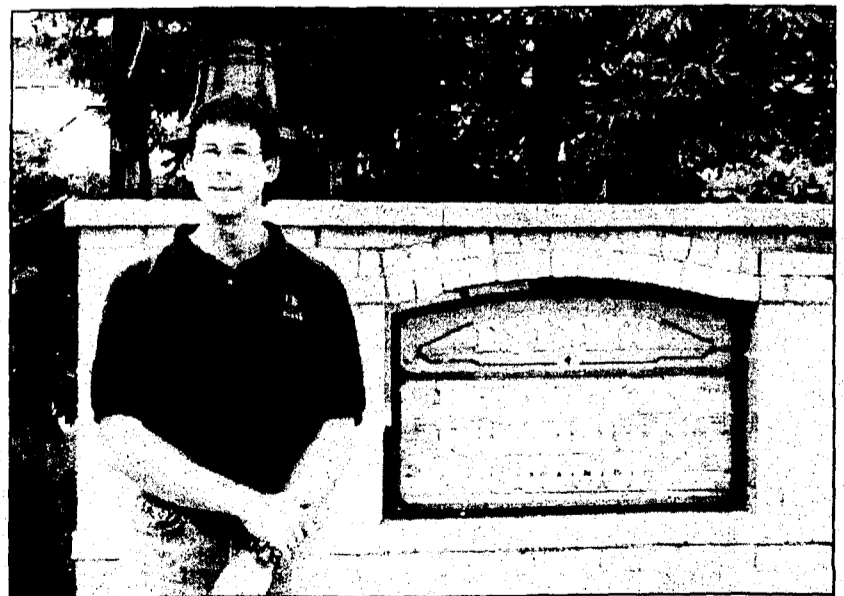

Sitkins is new to the area, having spent his teaching career in Manton and Central Lake. A graduate of Western Michigan University, he taught first, second, and third grades in Manton, and fourth and fifth grades in Central Lake. "I've covered the whole elementary range," he said.

Still, from early on, Sitkins knew that he'd like to pursue an administrative position. He decided after his first year of teaching that his long term goal would be an administrative position.

The appeal of such a position, he said, lay in "being able to influence a larger number of kids" than he could reach as a teacher, and in the idea that, as an administrator, he could be instrumental in focusing a whole group towards some common goals.

After a few years in the classroom, he said, he decided that he was ready to make the leap. Having recently received his master's degree in educational administration, Sitkins became aware of the Boyne City opening through a posting at Central Michigan University.

After being hired for the position this month, he is in the process of moving into a new home with his wife, Lisa, and their sons Kyle, 2, and Elliott, 6 months.

"It's a wonderful place to be," Sitkins said of the school. His primary goal is for the building to be a school built on respect, mutually between staff, students, parents, and community. "I want that to be a central theme in the school," he said, noting that from his experiences here so far, it seems that the school is already on that track.

Besides being a provider of resources and a goal-setter for the school, Sitkins plans to concentrate on developing relationships with the students. He feels that personal relationships are necessary to be effective in running the school. "I'm big on building relationships," he said. "I want to let them know I'm working with them, not against them."

"I'll be in classrooms as much as possible," he said.

BETWEEN the LINES

Is looking 'normal' the most important thing?

By ANGELA SHULTIS

I've long been critical of elective plastic surgery and the emphasis we place on appearances. I've cringed at magazine spreads of post-operative pictures of folks, bruised, stitched, and swollen, in the quest to be more attractive, younger, better. I've heard horror stories about plastic surgery gone bad, and wondered why, knowing the risks of surgery, anyone would voluntarily go under the knife strictly in the name of vanity.

The other evening, though, my disbelief was elevated to new heights.

On the Discovery Channel I caught the latter half of a program about a couple with a child with Down's Syndrome. A laughing little boy, who, though I didn't catch his age, I guessed to be two or three years old. The focus of the show was the fact that the parents had decided, in order to make their son's life easier, that he would undergo plastic surgery in order to appear more "normal."

I couldn't quite believe what I was seeing, but was compelled to watch, with a horrified sort of curiosity, to see what the outcome would be.

I started watching at about the time that one of the doctors was viewing a picture of the little boy on a computer screen, showing the parents where they would be doing some liposuction, where they would build up his nose, where they would "give him some cheekbones." The parents smiled and nodded approvingly, while a voice-over told us that the rationale behind this was that the surgery would give the little boy a chance to have a better life, to be teased less, and to have a normal appearance in a world where appearances count.

What I actually saw happening were some doctors with a God-complex and an eye for a market giving the parents some false hope that a few nips and tucks will take away the stigma of Down's. The doctor who actually performed the surgery, at one point in the program, made a frighteningly over the top statement, something like "we have the power to take it all away."

This very graphic program showed scenes from the actual surgery. And the first moments of the child awakening, struggling and sobbing uncontrollably behind bloody bandages and eyes swollen shut. And I, as a parent, could hardly imagine how anybody could willingly put a tiny child through such an experience, especially one who has no concept of the complex "why" of it. And who, in all likelihood, may one day interpret having had the surgery as further evidence that "there's something wrong with me." So much so, that the way he looked simply was not to be tolerated.

Perhaps my view is harsh. And I'm trying very hard not to judge too severely parents who would not agree to this procedure. Certainly I'm blessed with two very healthy children, and have not, thank God, ever been faced with such a situation.

But, upon deciding to have children, many of us have considered what might happen in the eventuality that our child was born with a birth defect, or one of the many syndromes that affect unsuspecting families. And while Down's is undoubtedly a challenge, and certainly something of a heart-break for any family dreaming of a healthy, "normal" child, I simply can't imagine that changing a child's appearance, especially in such a risky, painful fashion, would make any difference at all. It's an ill-conceived Band-Aid on a complicated and lifelong family issue. Now, I realize there's more than vanity going on here. But, most important, we have to wonder if that's really how we should approach combating prejudice and ignorance, by taking extreme measures to mask the situation while at the same time reaffirm the idea that appearance is the most important thing?

Ironically, in the end, the little boy's looks were not, at least as far as I could see, significantly altered by the surgery. He still looked very sweet, and like a boy with Down's Syndrome, granted one with a more defined chin and a more prominent nose. His parents seemed disappointed, though they spoke about their hope that it would have a greater impact as he grew older. And the doctor brightly suggested that, hey, if a "few adjustments" were necessary as he grew up, they could take care of it. The parents said that they "were open to that."

What I'm wondering is, how many rounds of surgery and reinvention will this child, or other children like him, have to go through before the doctors, and more importantly, the parents, deem their looks "normal?"

A MOM'S LIFE

No crayons on the list this year

By CINDI PLACE

Preparing for another school year has always been a major event in our household. There's stuff to buy, clothes and shoes to dig out and try on, decisions to be made about transportation and class choices, and just the psychological mindset that needs to go from "fun-in-the-sun" summer to "it's-time-to-discover-a-schedule-again" school year.

I know that as the kids have gotten older, this preparation process has changed and taken some twists and turns. But for some reason, this year seems to be the weirdest in terms of things being different.

When once we were mostly concerned with which cartoon character should be on the lunch box and back pack, and whether or not our shoes should light up or make a noise when we walk, now the major worry appears to be what kind of notebooks we'll need and whether a calculator will have enough memory!

School shopping with my kids used to take the better part of a day, with me acting as the banking police, telling the kids that "no, you don't need a notebook that costs more than a week's groceries," and "okay, I'll pay for my part of those jeans, but where are you going to get $100 for the rest?" But no longer.

The kids knew what they needed, which really wasn't much, and had planned out exactly where we should go and which store had the best price and selection. What in the past has taken nearly eight hours, was over and done with in four. And everyone seemed happy with their selections, another miracle.

Even the little guy announced that he wanted a plain lunch bag, not the one I had selected with some cute aliens on it. The backpacks needed to be black (they won't get dirty, mom), the jeans needed to be a little baggy, and for the first time, I had been informed that I will not be purchasing crayons or markers for anyone.

When I tried to talk someone into the cool glue that sparkles and comes in several bright colors, my children looked at me as if I was losing my mind.

Thank goodness for the daughter majoring in elementary education! At least she understood my need to purchase anything "Pooh." But, I admit I feel a little silly being the only one in my family with a lunch bag covered in Looney Tunes and a backpack with a little honey pot on the front.

Sometimes it seems that the more my children grow up, the more I want to snuggle back into childhood.

Low water levels uncover the past

TO THE EDITOR:

Earlier this year, The Citizen-Journal uncovered the past with a photo of lake shore pilings off of the present One Water Street Restaurant site. Old timers might remember the boat house that once stood on this site and some might remember the story behind it.

The story begins around 1927 when the Boyne City professional baseball team called the Maroons had been phased out and the Maple Street Grandstands were in disrepair. Heroes of that team were Floyd "Punk" Aldread and Harold Saffron, pitcher. Mr. Aldread was the Manual Arts teacher in the Boyne City Schools when I was a boy and is remembered for his "no nonsense" teaching method. As a student I remember my first day of school when Mr. Aldread made it known to his students that his class was where "boys would become men." It wasn't uncommon for him to physically put a student up against the wall and remind them who he was and what he expected of them. I wonder if there are any "Punk" Aldread teachers alive today. Seems as though society could use a few.

Anyway, the Maple Street Grandstands stood where Brotherston Field stood and where the new track and field/football complex is today. My friend, Dr. Hylon Heaton, a retired veterinarian and lifetime resident of Boyne City, recalls how he and his brother Boyd hauled the lumber from the old grandstand down to the waterfront site where they would construct a seven slip boat house. Nothing exciting about that, you say, well the truck had no brakes. Would that change your thinking?

The names of Roland Kerry, Henry Lee, Ray Garlinghouse, Albert Worthing and Hylon Heaton Sr. were placed on the various boat slips. The fastest boat on the lake "a thin and long affair" according to Wanda Hill of Charlevoix was owned by the "man from the train depot. His name is lost to us now!"

I wonder how the water levels were at that time it was constructed. No one I talked with could say. I remember, though, as a boy (circa 1950) asking my Grandpa Heaton why there were two levels of docks built on top of the original dock in the boat house and why the boat house doors had been cut away. My Grandpa blamed the deep water on those "blank" Canadians at the Soo Locks for pouring too much water into Lake Michigan and consequently Lake Charlevoix. One wonders today if we shouldn't investigate those Soo Locks people and see if they aren't pumping the water the other way.

Test yourself on Conservative Compassion

TO THE EDITOR:

One of the more irritating things about growing older is the way that things change before you realize it. Even cherished institutions like churches and political parties, unions and universities make abrupt turns and go galloping off to the left before we become aware that their turn signal has been blinking. It's enough to turn a sweet, charming old guy into a cantankerous curmudgeon. Hey, it even happened to me!

Now it has happened to my friend, Everett Sayles. Alas, the poor chap has really lost it and his cute nursery rhyme about George W. Bush in the Aug. 16 Citizen-Journal is proof enough. For example, he accuses Bush of buying votes but ignores all the Clinton-Gore give-aways and promises of give-aways that are on the Democrat record. Or perhaps, if you call them "entitlements," then it doesn't count. Still, if government gives someone a dollar they didn't earn, then government must first take that dollar from someone who earned it. Could that account for our current tax rates, the highest since the war years of 1945?

And now a word about Conservative Compassion in the form of a quick test. Which is more compassionate: (1) to introduce a bill to outlaw partial birth abortion - or to veto it? (2) a bill to eliminate the marriage tax - or a veto of it? (3) a push to let kids escape from failing public schools through school choice legislation - or a rigid stance against any change the teacher's union doesn't want? (4) a plan to place Social Security on a secure footing with enhanced returns for retirees - or a plan to merely postpone its bankruptcy? Do we need any more examples? If you chose the first part of any of the four questions you are truly compassionate and at the very least, a closet conservative.

One more thing, Everett, I've really missed seeing you at breakfast the last few weeks. Try to make it soon.

THE CHANGING LANDSCAPE OF BOYNE CITY SCHOOLS

As the construction project at Boyne City High School progresses, residents will see a new landscape emerging. Much of the recent work has focused on the completion of the refurbished parking area in front of and alongside the current high school building. A new parking area off of Brockway is being completed as well.

With the upcoming sports season, those attending games will be asked to park in the new lot on Brockway and in the area around the bus garage until further notice. The school has also received permission from the county to allow parking in the graveled parking area at the garage for the county road commission, located on Boyne Ave., with the request that patrons use only the graveled lot and do not park on the grass.

Handicap access will be available by driving behind the school bus garage and continuing on, as indicated by the dotted line in the drawing, to a parking area adjacent to the sports complex.

The drive in front of the high school is expected to be completed by the start of school on Sept. 5.

Recycling site opening in Boyne

With the Charlevoix County Recycling Committee hard at work to move forward with the new countywide recycling program, the group is calling for volunteers to help out at the unmanned drop-off site being established in Boyne City.

"We will need volunteers when the site is open," said committee member Michelle Hewitt, "especially on the weekends, when the traffic is the heaviest." Volunteers will be at the site as often as possible to assist with monitoring materials dropped off and to provide information for participating residents.

While the permanent containers for the Boyne City site will not be ready for six to eight weeks, the site will start out with containers on loan from Emmet County. The county hopes to have the Boyne City site, along with a new site in the city of Charlevoix, open by Oct. 1. Until then, county residents may take recyclables to any operating site in the county, including East Jordan, Melrose Township, Boyne Valley, and Beaver Island.

"WE WILL NEED VOLUNTEERS WHEN THE SITE IS OPEN, ESPECIALLY ON THE WEEKENDS, WHEN THE TRAFFIC IS THE HEAVIEST."

The drop off site in East Jordan will continue operating as usual. The only difference, said East Jordan city administrator and recycling committee member David White, is that the city "will soon be out of the recycle business," with the site becoming part of the county operation.

The recycling committee recently met with representatives from the Emmet County transfer site, and are fine tuning the county's contract with them, as well as getting ready to bid out the trucking contract for the program.

For more information or to volunteer, call Hewitt at 582-0335.

Time to vote for the best flower bed in BC

This summer, businesses in downtown Boyne City were challenged to plant and maintain the tree well in front of their respective storefronts. With many of the businesses having taken part, it's time now for the community to vote for their favorite flower bed on either side of Water and Lake Streets during the week of Aug. 28-Sept. 1.

Those who would like to cast a vote may do so at city hall any time during regular business hours. The business receiving the most votes will win a gift certificate donated by One Water Street.

According to organizer Chris Carleton, a few tree wells were left unclaimed, and she hopes that next year those will be "adopted" by an interested group or club. Anyone who would be interested in adopting a tree well can call Carleton at 582-1148.

Information sought in Boyne Falls school bomb threat

Boyne Falls School buildings received the all-clear last week after the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office, Boyne Valley Fire Department, and Michigan State Police searched the buildings in response to a bomb threat phoned in to 911.

According to Sheriff George T. Lasater, at 11:38 a.m. on Tuesday, Aug. 15, 911 received an anonymous call that a bomb was in the Boyne Falls School.

A bomb sniffing dog was utilized in the search of both the old and new Boyne Falls School buildings. Bill Aten, principal of Boyne Falls School, said the threat did not specify which building the bomb was allegedly in. Both buildings were cleared by 7:49 p.m. "We do have a suspect," said Sheriff Lasater, noting that the department was aware of where the call had originated due to its being called in to the 911 system. The sheriff's office is offering a $500 reward for information leading to a conviction of the responsible person or persons.

The bomb threat came during a crucial time for the school, as staff is currently making the move from the old building into the new one in preparation for the upcoming school year. "We didn't need to have any setbacks," commented Aten on the threat. Still, the move is progressing, and will be completed in time for the start of school.

Health center plans appreciation day

The East Jordan Family Health Center feels it owes a debt of gratitude to its members, and plans to show it by holding the second annual Patient Appreciation Day on Thursday, Aug. 31, from 4-7 p.m. at the health center.

According to co-organizers Ann Dingman and Laurie Hurwitz-McNeil, the event will not only allow the center to thank its members for their support, but will also serve as an opportunity to let other people in the community know what services are available.

"The health center has gone through a lot of changes," Hurwitz-McNeil said. "We wanted the opportunity to just say thank you," but also, she continued, to make people aware of what they offer, including services for parents, older people, a dental clinic, an optometrist, and a food pantry.

The event will feature barbecue with all the fixings, as well as popcorn and ice cream.

Entertainment includes a 4 p.m.

performance by the Northwest Academy Jazz Band, performing swing and big band sounds. Performer Tommy Tropic will also provide entertainment, and East Jordan cheerleaders will be assisting with children's games throughout the event.

Health Center staff members and volunteers will be on hand, conducting blood pressure checks and providing information and demonstrations from The Living Room, the East Jordan Senior Center, Grandvue Medical Care Facility, the Michigan Family Independence Agency, the Alzheimer's Association, the Area Agency on Aging, and the Humane Society. The East Jordan Ambulance Service will also be on hand with equipment demonstrations.

Volunteers will also be available to sign up new members, and to register participants to win one of many prizes, including gift certificates to local restaurants and businesses. Participants may also sign up to become a volunteer at the event. Membership to the health center can be purchased for a nominal donation fee, with proceeds going towards the organization's building fund, which is used for building improvements and additions and major equipment purchases.

The East Jordan Family Health Center was established in 1976, and is a private, not-for-profit member-owned corporation. The center serves over 10,000 active patients in the area, and last year had 36,500 encounters with patients including at the center, hospital, and Grandvue Medical Care Facility. Services include a family practice, pediatrics, internal medicine, and occupational medicine. There are five doctors, a physician's assistant, and two nurse practitioners on staff, as well as a doctor and a physician's assistant at their Bellaire location. Services are available on a sliding fee scale, based on the patient's income.

For more information on the health center or Patient Appreciation Day, call Hurwitz-McNeil at 536-2206 ext. 202 or Dingman at 536-2883.

The East Jordan varsity girls basketball team has been practicing hard to prepare for the upcoming season. The Lady Red Devils will open their season on Tuesday, Aug. 29 at Mancelona, while the Lady Ramblers will play at home against Rogers City the same day.

LET THE SEASON BEGIN

Lady Ramblers won't be at full strength for opener

The Boyne City High School girls varsity basketball squad will play its first game next Tuesday, though a few preseason injuries may make for a rough start.

"We may not be at full strength to start," said head coach Tom Neidhamer.

Senior Ellie Neidhamer is nursing a fractured knee, which will keep her on the bench for two to three weeks, and junior Ashley Haddox has had a tender ankle for about three weeks, since team camp.

Add in a couple of back injuries, and that creates some early problems.

Even so, Neidhamer believes that the team has enough depth to compensate for those benched.

Of 13 players on the roster, five are returnees. Ellie Neidhamer will play point guard in her third year on varsity, along with returning starter Nikki Peck, who will play the perimeter.

Both Neidhamer and Peck averaged about eight points per game last year. Senior Kara Perry is also returning as a point guard.

Along with Ali Swaim playing the post. Junior Kriste Gaither is the final returnee — the 5'10" junior started last year, and averaged 12 points per game.

Of the returning team members Neidhamer said that they are "one year quicker, stronger, and faster. I see a lot of maturity. We can score inside or outside."

Moving up from a successful junior varsity team are Lindsey Helsley, Ashley Haddox, Kelsi Brewer, Liz Bargas, and Wendy Chrysler.

"They're a very athletic group," said coach Neidhamer, noting that the team will find quickness in Brewer and Bargas, and, in Helsley, a good shooter and rebounder.

"Lindsey can go inside or outside," Neidhamer said. Of the group he said, "I expect them to challenge for starting positions."

Filling out the roster are new faces Shelly Deschermeier, Jen Makarewicz, and Sophie Hartwick. Deschermeier is a senior, and Makarewicz and Hartwick are juniors.

Despite the challenges of injury and assimilating new team members, Neidhamer sees an opportunity to do great things this year.

"For the last four years, we've been in the upper echelon of the league," he said, "taking second or third for the last four years." The challenge now, he said, is to "take it to the next step."

"We're always striving for a league or district championship," he said. "We're very capable of being there."

A well-balanced league creates tough competition, and, he said, the "race is up for grabs." The key, Neidhamer said, will be to "play consistent and smart" and "not beat ourselves."

Boyne City will kick off the season at home against Rogers City on Tuesday, Aug. 29, followed by a home game against Petoskey on Thursday, Aug. 31. Game time is 6 p.m.

"We're always striving for a league or district championship. We're very capable of being there."

-- Coach Tom Neidhamer

Lady Red Devils have nothing to prove, much to gain

With a new coach and only four returning players, the East Jordan varsity girls basketball team has some challenges to overcome heading into the season.

To head coach Dan Pepin, though, the situation does have its positives.

"This is a good situation to begin my tenure as head coach," he said. "No one has any great expectations for us, considering we graduated eight seniors from last year's team and will be returning a mere four players, only one of which had any significant playing time."

"Throw in the fact that this will be my rookie year, we really have nothing to prove and everything to gain."

While Pepin expects some early-season jitters and mistakes, he feels that there is enough talent in the team to compensate for their youth and inexperience. "This is a great group of young ladies who get along, are very coachable, and possess good work ethics," he said.

Seniors Linda Slough, Kristen Haley, Jessica Peverall, and Wendy Walczak will be taking leadership positions, both on and off the court.

Pepin plans to give plenty of playing time to juniors Anna Olson, Andrea Palmrose, and Jackie Haley in the post positions, and Renee Nowka, Erica Carey and Stefanie Skop at the perimeter.

Freshman Courtney Hammond, said Pepin, "has all the tools and, with some playing experience, will figure heavily into the success of this year's team."

Pepin is also looking to senior Slough to play a key role, noting that she "could very well be one of the best point guards in the conference if not in the area."

East Jordan will open the season on Tuesday, Aug. 29, at Mancelona, followed by a home game against "perennial powerhouse" Gaylord St. Mary's on Thursday, Aug. 31.

"We are anxious for the season to begin," Pepin said. "Regardless of what the season brings, I emphasize to the kids that wins and losses are secondary to playing hard, playing smart, and having fun."

"Regardless of what the season brings, I emphasize to the kids that wins and losses are secondary to playing hard, playing smart, and having fun."

-- Coach Dan Pepin

Past success is a motivator for Red Devil football team

For any athletic organization, coming in off a banner year can either be intimidating or motivating. East Jordan High School head varsity football coach Allan Peterson is betting on the latter.

"I think it has a positive effect," he said. "Losing is contagious, and so is winning." Last season, the Red Devils took home the school's first-ever playoff win, followed by the district title. During practice this season, he said, "We took the district trophy and set it on a chair in the middle of the field, let them look at it."

"It's a motivator." And like last year, the team is starting with a slim roster, with 20 kids dressed and playing in Monday's practice.

"We've had a couple of slim years here," Peterson said. "We're really down on numbers, and I'm not sure why." The Red Devils graduated about half their team from last year, and of the 11 or so

"We're a pound-it-out, grind-it-out, run-the-ball team 99 percent of the time."

-- Coach Allan Peterson

Ramblers will rely on balance and depth to meet goals

With 38 kids on the varsity squad, Boyne City has depth on its side. "It's a high number compared to numbers around the state," said head coach David Hills. But, with only eight or nine returning players, gaining experience on the field could be crucial.

Still, Hills doesn't see that as a major issue. "I don't think that will have a huge impact," he said, noting that more important will likely be the fact that the Ramblers are adjusting to "a new coach, a new system."

With coaching changes and new players, the focus is a broad one, encompassing all levels of play. "We're trying to get the entire program on the same page," he said, "junior high down to Pop Warner included. Everybody needs to be building toward the same goal, having a varsity football team as successful as they can be."

"We're not going to be one-dimensional on either side of the ball. We'll be effective in every phase of the game."

-- Coach David Hills

Rambler football

The Ramblers had a tough season in 1999, finishing with a 3-6 record. "Obviously, we'd like to make improvements over last season," Hills said. "We'd like to finish with a winning record, qualify for playoffs. That's the goal of every high school team." Still, he said, "we're going to get at our own pace. You can't force a team to come together before they're ready to."

Early season play looks a little daunting at this point, but Hills is accentuating the positive. "We're opening with three difficult teams," he said, referring to games against Glen Lake, Rogers City, and Benzie Central. But, Hills said, those games can serve as a learning experience as well as a chance to take a look at where the team is at. "Our season doesn't start and end with one game," he added.

And while a winning record is always a goal, equally important, said Hills, are the individual goals the players have set for themselves. Part of the coach's job, he said, is to "let the kids see how their individual goals fit into the team's goals."

Despite the obstacles, the team has its strengths, and will do its best to capitalize on them. Their biggest strength lies in their balance, Hills said. "We're not going to be one-dimensional on either side of the ball. We'll be effective in every phase of the game."

The Ramblers will kick off the season at home against Glen Lake on Friday, Aug. 25. Game time is 7:30 p.m.

Red Devil football

returning seniors, only six were starters on last season's squad. "Experience is down a little bit," said Peterson. Still, a size advantage should help compensate for loss. "We're really big, and that always helps," he said, "especially in our offense. We're a pound-it-out, grind-it-out, run-the-ball team 99 percent of the time."

And while focusing, as always, on the nuts and bolts of offense and defense, Peterson said they will also spend more time than in the past on special teams. "We aren't always very good at special teams," he said. "That's the coaches' fault. [Special teams usually] take a back seat to offense or defense." Beyond that, the goal will be "just to get some overall experience. Get through the first couple, two, three games." Getting that experience in play will be key, he said, since with only 19 or 20 kids playing, it's tough to scrimmage with each other.

The first games will, of course, be key. "They're super important," said Peterson. "They're always tough, some real close rivalries." The coach noted that the first games can be unpredictable, like their matchup against Central Lake, a smaller school. "They get up for the game because we're a lot bigger than they are," he said. "We've been beat by them in key years. They come in all fired up."

A recent scrimmage gave the team a chance to see where they stand, and, according to Peterson, the news is good. "It's a helper," he said. "We went against Gaylord, Ludington, and Grayling, [teams that are] bigger than we are. We got a really good look at how the kids are going to respond."

East Jordan will open its season on Friday, Aug. 25, at Central Lake. Game time is 7:30 p.m.

New East Jordan Middle School principal Michael Haynes served as the director of instrumental and choral music at the middle and high schools from 1997-1999.

Leader of the band returns

Michael Haynes hired as East Jordan Middle School principal

East Jordan Middle School will have a familiar face in the principal's office this fall. The school district recently hired Michael Haynes as the new middle school principal.

No stranger to East Jordan schools, Haynes was the director of instrumental and choral music in the middle school and high school from 1997-1999.

"Michael Haynes knows us and we know him" said schools superintendent Chip Hansen. "His experience, enthusiasm and commitment to creating a positive environment for students, staff, parents, and community made him a clear choice for the position."

Haynes spent the 1999-2000 school year as a coordinator of residence life at the Interlochen Center for the Arts, where he was involved in curriculum development, student supervision and discipline, and staff leadership and evaluation.

He is a 1992 graduate of Florida Southern, and earned his Master of Arts degree in educational administration from Central Michigan University this year. He is currently enrolled in the CMU education specialist program.

"I'm thrilled to be coming back," Haynes said. "While in East Jordan, I was always overwhelmed by the sense of community and support for learning that exists in the district."

Haynes will replace Shirley Bishop, who, after seven years as principal, is leaving to take a new position in staff development at the Char-Em Intermediate School District.

Murphy Field hit by vandals

Vandals descended on Murphy Field early last week, causing significant damage and rendering the tennis courts unusable.

According to East Jordan City Administrator David White, damage to the park included graffiti in the concession stand and damage to a bleacher set.

On the tennis courts, netting was cut and thrown into the lake, as well as damage to the poles and internal gears. At the marina, some boats were cut loose from the docks, and a fence behind Galmore's was cut as well.

The graffiti in the concession stand at Murphy Field was devil-related, White said.

According to East Jordan Police Chief Jerry Alward, the department was notified of the damage at 8 a.m., and by 12 noon, three people had confessed to the activity. Warrant requests are at the prosecutor's office, Alward said.

Monetary damages are still being assessed, and may be somewhere around $8,000.

"Estimates will be coming in as damages are repaired," Alward said.

Work in progress

Crews at Rotary Park have been working on the final clearing and grading of a soccer field and a baseball field, as well as moving topsoil to the location from the high school. Hydroseeding will be the next step. According to parks director Tim O'Leary, the city of Boyne City is combining resources with local groups in "sort of a joint effort to do what we can with what we have" to move forward with planned expansions.

New Boyne students can register this week

Boyne City students entering grades K-8, who were not enrolled in Boyne City at the end of the last school year, can register on Aug. 23 or 24.

To register, a parent or legal guardian should call the elementary school (grades K-4) at 439-8300 or the middle school (grades 5-8) at 439-8200 to make an appointment.

Parents registering their student need to bring the student's birth certificate, record of immunization and, if possible, a copy of last year's report card.

Students who were enrolled in Boyne City Schools at the close of school last spring are already registered and need to do nothing further at this time.

Teacher assignments for grades K-4 will be ready on Wednesday, Aug. 30. Parents may stop in or call 439-8300 on or after this date to find out who their child's teacher will be.

Also available on Wednesday, Aug. 30, will be core teacher assignments for fifth and sixth graders, and advisory teacher assignments for seventh and eighth graders (seventh and eighth graders will have different core teachers for their respective grade).

Parents may stop in or call 439-8200 to get information on their child's core teacher or advisory classroom assignment.

Boyne City McDonald's employees bring home the gold

Two local employees recently took home the gold from Michigan's Golden Arches when they competed successfully in McDonald's All American Crew competition District Finals in Birch Run.

Clay Wiseman, who placed first in the sandwich assembly position and Evan Helms, who won a position as one of three alternates on the team, are both residents of Boyne City and are employed at the McDonald's in Boyne City.

Wiseman and Helms were among 90 of Michigan McDonald's "best of the best" crew people who were competing for positions on the 20-member Grand Rapids District team. Competitors were judged using a point scale developed for each job-station activity, including speed, accuracy, personality, and teamwork.

The All American Crew Competition began with company-owned and operated restaurants selecting their best crew people from a total of 12,350 restaurant employees throughout the McDonald's Grand Rapids District to participate in one of six Michigan zone competitions.

The 17 winners from each of the six Michigan zone competitions then competed in the district final against each other for one of 20 positions on the Grand Rapids District team.

The 'real' Dr. Patch Adams speaking in Petoskey

Dr. Adams' visit is part of the Second Annual Nicholas Michels Memorial Lecture Series hosted by the Northern Michigan Hospital Foundation.

Dr. Adams will present, "The Healing Power of Humor." He will share insights into how to encourage one another to feel healthier and happier. He will also give practical tips for giving moral support and help to those dealing with grief, loss and depression.

House Calls, Dr. Adams' new book, which offers helpful suggestions for small, yet meaningful ways to express care for someone who is ill, will be available for purchase at the lecture.

Dr. Adams' presentation is free-of-charge and open to the public.
