

Lake trout are there says Great Lakes fish biologist

Charlevoix - The great pre-lamprey era of lake trout fishing has returned to Northwestern Michigan, but apparently angler skills that once accounted for whopping catches has been lost.

That, in effect, is the substance of a survey completed last week by Myrl Keller, Great Lakes fisheries biologist for the Department of Natural Resources, stationed at the state hatchery here.

Keller and his survey crews set test nets at such strategic shoals as Nine Mile Point, South Point, Old Mission Peninsula, Suttons Bay, Big Rock, and similar landmarks.

They lifted surprising numbers of lake trout from two to 6 pounds in weight. The 6-pounders, according to fin clippings were from the first major planting, under the new fisheries restocking program, that was started in 1965.

"We found some veteran fishermen, chiefly off Charlevoix, who were making excellent catches of lake trout," Keller said.

"The reason they were making good catches, while many boats were going scoreless, was because the old-timers remembered the techniques they used years ago to take trout.

"While we found that the trout were running at depths of 30 to 60 feet, many anglers fishing at that depth were having little success, while the old timers who were practicing the old bottom-bumping techniques, were the ones who were scoring."

Keller said that two principle techniques were being used in the principle areas surveyed.

In the Grand Traverse Bay region, off Old Mission, and Leelanau, anglers were using a spinner, or flasher combination and using large minnows trailing the lure from 18 inches to 24 inches.

"This seemed to be the best bet in those waters, but off Charlevoix, the situation was quite different.

"The most successful anglers in this area were using the old bottom bumping techniques in which lures like a large William's Wobbler or a Big Doctor were rigged with wire lines.

"Anglers maintained close contact with bottom by lowering their lures, bumping, and then retrieving in a pumping type of action that is frequently used in deep Canadian Lakes," Keller said.

"We found that anglers who knew their waters and knew their fishing techniques were highly enthusiastic about prevailing fishing conditions in these waters. And we found many who were fishless."

Keller was enthusiastic about the total result of the test survey.

"I would say that from Grand Traverse Bay to Little Traverse Bay, we now have a great lake trout fishery, if anglers will just learn the techniques involved in fishing for this specie."

Keller also pointed out that Lake Charlevoix is included in the good angling catalogue, since lake trout are being caught off "Hemingway Point," in the deep waters where the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix empty into the main body of the lake.

Angling pressure has been light in this area, since catches are rather scattered and the population build-up is not as extensive as it is in Lake Michigan.

All Department of Natural Resources personnel constantly advise all anglers going into these rugged waters to have their craft properly equipped with life saving equipment - - as well as having seaworthy craft for the type of sea action they will encounter. This includes dramamine for seasickness.

Community sponsored Jordan fish plant

East Jordan--This community's fish rearing program will provide a plant of 400 legal size rainbow trout in the Jordan River each week throughout the coming summer.

The weekly fish plant is all part of a community fish rearing program started last year by the East Jordan Chamber of Commerce, and hatchery owners, Dorton Gibbard and Julius O'Brien.

The "keepers" which were planted last week by Dorton Gibbard (shown sorting and planting rainbows in the accompanying pictures) were raised in the East Jordan Sportsman's Park's Whiskey Creek raceways. Planted in the raceways last spring, the fish have received a year long steady diet with the help of members of the East Jordan Sportsman's Club, park custodian, Elmer Green and tourists. The results of such a rearing program were seen this week when 400 healthy, mature rainbows were dumped in the Jordan River.

Fishermen from throughout the mid-west, who make the Jordan River their fishing mecca, will have a better chance of filling their creels as a result of the East Jordan community supported fish rearing program.

School chiefs endorse Interm. School Dist. millage request

The two administrative chiefs of the Twin Valley School District, Max Damoth and T. H. Bray, this week, put their endorsement on the half-mill charter millage which the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District seeks in next Monday's annual school election.

The campaign to raise one-half mill charter millage will cost taxpayers of both Emmet and Charlevoix counties a total of 1.18 mills for the operation of the intermediate school district as well as the administration of its special education programs such as education in speech correction, education for the physically handicapped, the mentally disturbed, the hard of hearing, the crippled, and for psychological analysis.

The total cost breakdown is figured thus:

Voters previously approved one-half mill charter millage for the operation of the program; .18 mills was allocated by the Emmet County Tax Allocation Board; and the new millage, if passed by the voters, will result in a total cost of 1.18 mills.

The householder whose property is assessed at $5,000 would be paying $5.90 per year toward the cost of educating 550 students with speech defects; 253 educable mentally handicapped; 46 hard of hearing or physically crippled; 83 emotionally disturbed; 500 with learning disabilities; 30 homebound or hospitalized students; as well as social work and psychological testing.

But behind the dry statistics there is an absorbing tale of the difficulties local school administrators are faced with in dealing with the problems of educating the handicapped.

And all the schools in the county are heavily involved since lack of class room space, special transportation, as well as time and effort are impairing the efficiency of the educational system according to the educational administrators of the local district.

Max Damoth, the Twin Valley District's business administrator, said: "The real truth is that the Intermediate District needs the money because state aid is not as great as it was, and because, with limited finances they (the special educational staff) are not getting into all areas where they are needed. For instance, how do you get into the area of great need with respect to helping the mentally retarded under the present program?"

"Special education is a necessary and needed function. The more it is supported at the local level, the more support it will receive through other programs. Even the federal government is involved in phases of it, as its total concept involves vocational education too.

"You ask me if there is a need for it, and my only answer is that there is a great need for it," Damoth said.

Theron H. Bray, the Twin Valley District's educational administrator, presented the Press with a realistic picture of the problems that have been involved in keeping the program going. He said that during the past year, due to the fact that Boyne City and East Jordan class rooms are filled to capacity, it was necessary, in order to continue the program, to arrange special transportation for students to other schools having available class room space, i.e.:

"All of the special education activities in our school had to be cancelled out this last year due to lack of class room space," he said.

"Thus, it was necessary for us to transport students to schools where special education classes could be conducted. For instance, we had to hire Mrs. Lentz to drive pupils to Alanson, throughout the year.

"Of course we were re-imburbed 75 per cent by the state and 25 per cent by the Intermediate School District for such transportation. Right now, most of the special education activities are centered in Petoskey, simply because they have the facilities to conduct the classes. "The state insists that the handicapped live in 'the main stream' of their environment, and thus we can't shunt the handicapped into emergency class room space like churches - - even though it's permissible to put our regular students, temporarily into such quarters.

"In another year, or two, when we have the combined Boyne City - East Jordan High School, we'll have room for conducting special education courses so it won't be necessary to transport pupils to Alanson, Petoskey, or Charlevoix. That's why I am in favor of supporting the Intermediate District's proposed addition of an additional half-mill of charter millage.

"In a matter of a year or two, both East Jordan and Boyne will benefit greatly through local support since they'll receive more aid from both state and federal programs," Bray said.

Educators are keeping an eye to another phase of the special education problem too - - with booming school enrollments and a pronounced influx of new residents which appears to be far in excess of previous population studies, there will be a greatly increased demand for all phases of educational activity as well as special education.

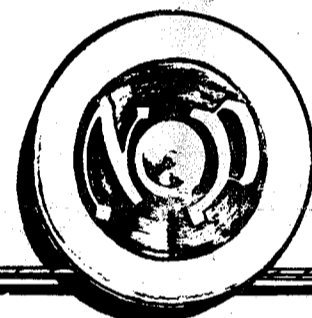

"We are now transporting students to Petoskey for vocational courses; we are even hoping that class room space might become available for special education courses in Boyne Falls for next year. But they will be facing a problem of space too if things keep going the way they are now," Bray said.

To offset the outright costs of the increased special education millage in terms of expense, both administrators pointed out that there were other cost considerations involved.

Since increased tax support results in federal and state income tax deductions, the cost is minutely less than the straight millage assessment would indicate - - to most all householders in the Char-Emmet Intermediate School District.

Chas. A. Robinson, superintendent of the Char-Emmet Intermediate School District,

Boyne medical body acquires doctor's quarters

The Boyne Valley Medical Center, Inc., the formal organization that resulted from a 2-year effort to acquire a doctor for the Boyne Valley region, this week, disclosed the purchase of the former "Johnny's Plumbing and Heating Bldg.," on State Street, to serve as temporary quarters for Dr. Richard Mansfield, the osteopathic physician who is slated to set up practice here, July 1st.

Purchase price of the structure, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Robert DePrekel, of Petoskey, was disclosed to be $19,500.

Peter Johnson, Top O'Michigan public relations worker, serving as vice-president in charge of public information for the newly formed corporation, said that officers of the group have set an immediate goal of raising $50,000 by August 1 to continue with the non-profit organization's objective of completing the new medical center that is slated to be erected across the road from the temporary quarters that Dr. Mansfield will occupy.

The work of the organization has already received encouraging support through contributions from such organizations as the Lion's Club, the Senior Citizens, the Eagles, and local women's sorority organizations which have contributed $1,500 to the corporation.

Johnson said that fund drive campaign plans are now shaping up. "We estimate that there are approximately 1,500 families in the Boyne area that would directly benefit from the presence of a

Rites held for accident victims

Elmira - Double requiem rites were held here Wednesday morning for Raymond V. Cherry, local farmer, and his daughter, Diane Gale Cherry, 24, of Ferndale, who were killed 2.5 miles south of Boyne Falls, Sunday, June 1, at 1:20 p.m., when the car they were riding in, driven by Arthur R. Girard, of Detroit, headed north, was struck head-on, by a car being driven southward by Gary J. Pavich, 24, of Bay City and Beaver Island.

Interment rites were staged at St. Mary Cemetery, of Gaylord, by the Elmira parish pastor, Rev. Fr. Leo Eieninis, of St. Thomas Parish.

State police reconstruction of the accident, still under investigation, indicated that Pavich, attempted to pass a southbound vehicle, saw the Girard Falcon approaching, and ducked back into his lane. Pavich's 1967 Corvair slewed onto the right shoulder of the road briefly then whipped back into the road striking the Girard car.

Arthur Girard, Cherry's son-in-law, suffering multiple fractures and lacerations, is listed as serious at Little Traverse Hospital, Petoskey. Pavich's condition was listed as good.

Raymond Cherry was president of the Gaylord Chapter of the National Polish Alliance at the time of his death.

Survivors include his wife, the former Lillian Oshinos; 3 brothers, Stanley, Elmira; Peter, Detroit; John of Clawson; four sisters: Mrs. Mary Hanson, Toledo, Ohio; Mrs. Regina Schneider, Boyne Falls; Mrs. Gustie Worna, Detroit; Miss Cecilia Cherry, Boyne Falls; four sons, Edward, East Jordan; Stanley, Detroit; Edmond, Grand Rapids; Peter, Gaylord. Four daughters: Mrs. Irene Bagzin, Mrs. Charlotte Girard, Mrs. Mercedes Boylan, all of Detroit, and Mrs. Florence Wisniewski, of Ferndale.

The accident marked the fifth fatality occurring in the same vicinity in recent years. Sunday's crash was followed by a violent fire extinguished by the Boyne Falls department.

City doubles fireworks

Boyne City - Chamber of Commerce directors, this week, appointed Don Seamon as chairman of the annual event and thereby touched off what may be the greatest fireworks display ever seen in the region.

Seamon has enlisted the Lions, Rotarians, the Chamber of Commerce, and on down the line to the Little Leaguers to promote the event with a "blast."

That already has involved the Chamber, as sponsoring organization, to authorize double the fireworks display that was staged last year.

The Lion's Club, as its contribution, is staging the sponsorship of the first annual Boyne Valley Lion's Horse Show complete from horse flies to trophies - - with all profits destined toward defraying the expenses of the Boyne Valley Medical Center, incorporated.

Seamon told the Press that the enlarged scope of the event was just the preliminary plans that had been discussed and that in addition to the usual features such as the Kiddy's Pet Parade, and antique car show, other special events will be announced pending the meetings of the Fourth of July committee being held next week.

The Book Worm

First book will keep you glued

News of the East Jordan Library

Joan Burkey

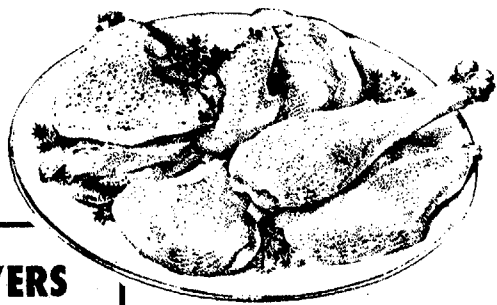

No gardening books this week for a change. This first book will keep you glued to the pages. "The Andromeda Strain" by Michael Crichton: A novel with a course in Biology, a course in Computer talk and space-age biological emergency. It sounds like a science fiction book, it may well be, but you can also believe it could happen today. A research satellite returns to earth quite mysteriously, a crew goes looking for it and finds the people in the town where it descended dead. Four scientists chosen a year beforehand to be on hand for such emergencies as this, are summoned. Thereby hangs this tale. It is very well written and as I said, most plausible. "The Fifteenth Pelican" by Tere Rio: A book for young adults and young in heart adults. The incredible adventures of a Nun who discovers she can fly. One of the Sisters thinks she is a Saint sent from heaven and the CIA thinks she is a Communist spy. "The Girl With Six Finches" by Hugh Pentecost: A John Jericho mystery novel. The setting is in a small very staid New England town, in the time of today. A young widow has a lot of money and helps young artists. One day she decides to give a party, complete with psychedelic lights. One of the young women was engaged in a happening where the young men were painting her with different colors, two men come in and drag her out. . . other men break up the party and pack the young people back home on a bus. The young woman was not seen again. . . A good detective novel, but you might figure it out for yourself before the end. "Bullet Park" by John Cheever: Mr. Cheever's first novel, "The Wapshop Chronicle" won him the 1958 National Book Award, he has other awards to his credit. All I can say about this book is: it is a modern day one with the language to match, one of those stories you can't quite get and you wonder if you skipped a few pages. "Floating Island" by Emily Kimbrough: A delightful book about the travels on a converted barge. Emily and ten good friends were aboard it and intent on a lazy voyage through the rivers and canals of France. "Three Cheers for the Paraclete" by Thomas Keneally: Another story of the conflict of the church and today's young people. Father Maitland is the key character. I make it sound rather trite and I shouldn't, it is a good book and worthy of your time. But we do seem to read of so many books about the new generation and how they are trying to change us and how our world should be changed, it does make one kind of exasperated.

Want to quit smoking? Here's how millions did

from TODAY'S HEALTH published by the American Medical Assn.

To help those who want to quit smoking - even those who have tried often and failed - the American Cancer Society has compiled the recommendations of experts in cigaret-withdrawal programs.

There are 19 million ex-cigaret smokers in the United States. Many stress willpower as the decisive factor in giving up cigarets. For them, the sense that they can manage their own lives is of great importance. Others, often successful in many aspects of living, find that willpower does not help them in giving up cigarets. They try to stop, aren't successful, and feel guilty over their weakness. This is a mistake, since many smokers fail in their first, second, even their 5th attempts, and then finally succeed. Their approach must be less through determination and more through relearning new behavior with patience.

To think of stopping as self-denial is an error - the ex-smoker should not believe that he is giving up an object of value. He must recognize that he is teaching himself a more positive, more constructive, more rewarding behavior.

An important first step in the process of quitting for many smokers is to set a date and, as it approaches, to gradually cut down.

In the process of reducing the number of daily cigarets try these tactics: If you always carry your pack in one pocket, put it in another so that you will have to fumble for it. If you always use your right hand to bring your cigaret to your mouth, use the left hand. Do you rest the cigaret in the right corner of the mouth? Try the left side.

Shift from cigarets you like to an unpalatable brand.

Before you light up, ask yourself, "Do I really want this cigaret or am I just acting out of empty habit?"

A smoker may find an unlighted cigaret in the mouth is helpful. Cigaret smoking is a habit that is usually very well learned - learning the habit of not smoking can be difficult.

Write down carefully, after some thought, in one column the reasons why you smoke and in another all the reasons why you should give up cigarets.

As you turn this matter over in your mind, new material will occur to you for one or the other columns. Thoughtful concentration on your reasons for giving up cigarets is important in changing your behavior.

The week before you quit, think over your list of reasons why you should not smoke: "The risk of disease, the blurring of the taste of food, the cost, the cough, the bad breath, the mess and smell of morning-after ashtrays. Concentrate each evening when you are relaxed, just before you fall asleep on one dreadful result of cigaret smoking. Repeat and repeat that single fact. Drive home another fact the next night and another the next.

Review the facts that you know about the risks of cigaret smoking. Remind yourself that you may indeed if you continue smoking, lose 6 1/2 years of life, that - if you are a heavy smoker - your chances of dying between 25 and 65 years of age are twice as great as those of the non-smoker. Are the 6 minutes of pleasure in a cigaret worth 6 fewer minutes of your life? Would you fly in an airplane if the chances of crash and death were even close to the risks of cigaret smoking? Think over why it is that 100,000 physicians have quit smoking.

What do you do when you've actually quit and want a cigaret?

Here are some tips that may prove useful:

--Drink water.
--Nibble fruit, celery, carrots, cookies.

--Suck candy and chew gum. (Sugarless gum will be easier on your teeth.)

--Chew bits of fresh ginger.
--Bite a clove.

--Deep breaths of fresh air can be wonderfully calming.

--Inhalers - that clear sinuses - may help tide you over the first few days.

--For some, the cigaret after a meal is very important. Instead of a cigaret, try a mouth wash.

--Be sure that you have your favorite food on quitting day. Give yourself all the things that you like best - except cigarets. When you have saved a bit of money by not smoking, buy yourself a present - perhaps a new record, a blouse, necktie, book, or a trinket.

Constantly remind yourself why you are stopping cigarets. Remember the reasons you listed for not smoking. Recall the disease, disability, and death that are caused by cigarets.

For a few days, spend as much time as possible in libraries or other places where smoking is forbidden. Ride in "No Smoking" cars. A spurt of motion picture of theater going will pass many hours.

Keep away for 2 weeks from friends who are heavy smokers. Strenuous physical activity can be very helpful, particularly in working off the irritation - real anger in some ex-smokers - at not having a cigaret in the mouth. Vacation is a good time for some people to stop.

If you follow a specific pattern after dinner, you may want to change it: read a book instead of a newspaper, skip familiar television programs, sit in another comfortable chair, try crossword puzzles, do some household task you have been putting off, take your dog out for a walk.

You may be very uncomfortable but "this too shall pass" relates to cigaretteless shakes, irritation and temper, the urge to climb walls, depression, anxiety. Time is a great healer.

Boyer City - Mrs. Hattie Healey received word of her niece, Miss Gwendolyn Bristol's retirement, after teaching school the past 35 years.

She began her teaching career in Everett School, Ingham County, where she taught two years before going to Midland and Carpenter School in 1934.

She received various tributes, among them a certificate from the Midland Chamber of Commerce of appreciation in recognition of distinguished service to the school and children of Midland.

Miss Bristol graduated from Boyer City High School in the class of 1927. She is very well known, being a frequent visitor here.

doctor, as well as the medical center that it is our purpose to build.

"That's approximately $34 per family to pay for a facility that's very badly needed, and a very small investment in terms of the returns that it will bring to the community."

New theatre owner

THE BOYNE THEATRE, long owned and operated by Albert Worthing, the late Hylon J. Heaton, sr., and Boyd Heaton (left) sold this week to Joseph Gierlach, owner of the Log Jam Restaurant.

Gierlach, a native of the Lexington, Kentucky area, is a former Boyne Mt. Lodge executive. Two years ago he managed Thunder Mt. Lodge for the Kircher interests.

Gierlach said that he planned to keep the theatre open on a year-round basis, and it will be open six nights per week throughout the summer months.

School millage

points out that the increased support would still be a modest assessment in comparison with many other districts in the state.

District staffers, of the Intermediate School District, this week released an extensive direct mail campaign to contact all the householders of Emmet and Charlevoix Counties to acquaint the school district electors with the principle objectives for which they seek the one half mill charter millage.

Charter millage, once approved, may be levied annually whenever the Intermediate School District may show a need for it - without staging a special vote. Officials of the Char-Emmet Intermediate District state that the 3 basic reasons underlying the need for additional local support are:

--The number of programs have grown from 2 prior to 1964 to 22 during the current school year.

--The state, for 2 consecutive years, has not paid out full formula (costing the district $761 per program last year and $1,463.00 per program this year.)

--There are approximately 900 handicapped students who are not being provided for through special education. Many of these would become perpetual wards of the state, and their training, to become at least partially able to support themselves, will more than justify the investment made at this time.

Teacher retires

Boyer City - Mrs. Hattie Healey received word of her niece, Miss Gwendolyn Bristol's retirement, after teaching school the past 35 years.

She began her teaching career in Everett School, Ingham County, where she taught two years before going to Midland and Carpenter School in 1934.

She received various tributes, among them a certificate from the Midland Chamber of Commerce of appreciation in recognition of distinguished service to the school and children of Midland.

Miss Bristol graduated from Boyer City High School in the class of 1927. She is very well known, being a frequent visitor here.

 In loving memory of our dear husband, father and grandfather, Derby A. Hayden, Sr. who passed away five years ago June 6, 1964. When our family gets together, There is one we fail to see, And it fills our hearts with sadness, Thinking of the used to be. One by one new faces added, How the family has grown, Many children in the household, Dad, Those you have never known. There is a place that's always vacant, And we miss your voice and smile, But we hope things will be better, Somewhere in the afterwhile. God alone can give us comfort, In these hours of grief and woe, For our hearts were crushed and broken, When our loved on had to go. Sadly missed by wife Dorothy, Daughter and sons and grandchildren. 32-1tp

Queen of many titles becomes bride of D. Robert Linsin

Boyer City - In a colorful marriage rite at St. Matthew's Church here Saturday Miss Linda Hale who won wide acclaim as a queen of many titles, exchanged marital vows with Mr. D. Robert Linsin of Denver, Colorado, in a double ring ceremony. Father Thomas Carolan, St. Francis Xavier Church, Petoskey, officiated at the Nuptial Mass in the presence of two hundred guests. The main altar was decorated with bouquets of white snapdragons and pink carnations.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Otis T. Hale, Boyne City, is a graduate of Western Michigan University, school of liberal arts, and a holder of many titles, Miss Boyne City, Miss Michigan Winter Queen, National Cherry Queen, Ferris State Homecoming Queen and a second runner up for Miss Michigan.

It was on a national tour as cherry queen that she met the groom, now an Account Executive with KDEN-FM Radio, Denver, Colorado, who was then employed at a Cincinnati radio station. He is the son of Wm. and Mrs. Edward J. Linsin, Indianapolis, Indiana. For her new role as Mrs. Linsin, the bride was gowned in a white silk peau de soie full length A-line gown. Long sheer organza sleeves enhanced the beautiful gown which was fashioned with a cowl neck and cuffs trimmed with silver metallic embroidery, hand set with imported jewels. She wore a full length white veil which touched the edge of her chapel train. Miss Hale carried a bridal ring, centered with a silver cross. The floral arrangement was in the Hogarth line of stephanotis florets and ivy. At the end of the Mass the lovely bride presented a bouquet of white roses to the Blessed Mother.

Music provided was Trumpet Voluntary by Purcell; 23rd Psalm, Newman; The Lord's Prayer and Allemand, by Brade. The matron of honor was Mrs. Richard L. Butler, Iowa City, Iowa, sister of the bride. Bridesmaids were Mrs. John C. Hale, Grosse Pointe Park, Mrs. Jon Beck, Big Rapids; Mrs. Robert Edlund, Coopersville; Mrs. John Monger, Portage; Miss Anne Rasmussen, Mt. Pleasant and Miss Christine Moll, Boyne City. The attendants wore identical gowns of chantuse French Bengaline, American Beauty pink, with sheer organza sleeves - styled to compliment the bride's full length A-line. They wore deep crowned picture frame straw hats with trim matching the gowns. They carried small lace parasols arranged with clusters of pink carnations and ivy. The best man was Mr. Craig Clough of Evanston, Ill; Groomsmen were Mr. Gregory Linsin and Mr. Gary Linsin, brothers of the groom, Mr. John Hale, bride's brother, Mr. Richard Butler, brother-in-law of the bride, and Mr. Douglas Grubbe.

Mrs. Hale selected an ice blue silk dress and coat ensemble for her daughter's wedding. Her corsage was of pink carnations centered with pink miniature roses. The groom's mother was attired in a mint green dress with a lace coat overlay. Her corsage was of white carnations centered with white miniature roses.

A reception was hosted by the bride's parents at Boyne Mountain Lodge. Hostesses at the church and reception were Mrs. Charles Moll, Mrs. John Schmitt-diel and Mrs. D. D. Nelson. At the punch bowls were Kathleen Reid, Royal Oak, and Laura Zinchook, Detroit. Helping at the gift table were the maids of honor and Kati Moll. Miss Connie Moll was in charge of the guest book.

The bride changed to a camel color pant suit for their honeymoon trip which will take them through the midwestern states enroute to their home at 10 Emerson, Apt. 603, Denver, Colorado.

The groom attended Xavier University, Cincinnati, Ohio, and served four years with the U.S. Marine Corp.

Out of town guests were from Battle Creek, Grand Rapids, Royal Oak, Mt. Pleasant, Greenville, Jenison, Grosse Pointe Park, Birmingham, Detroit, Kalamazoo, Union Lake, Lansing, Petoskey, Harbor Springs, Michigan; Iowa City, Iowa; Indianapolis, Ind.; Evanston, Ill.; Arvada, Colorado; Joplin and Kansas City, Mo.

Cancelled

The Golden Wedding Anniversary party scheduled for Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Behling on June 8 has been cancelled because of illness. Mrs. Behling is a patient at Little Traverse Hospital.

Stage open house

East Jordan - The Grandvue Medical Care Facility will stage a tea and open house on Thursday, June 12, at 2:00 p.m. for the purpose of organizing an Auxillary.

All of the women in the communities are cordially invited and urged to attend. The tea will be held in the all-purpose room.

The U.S. government is now worried because 25% of the people are living beyond their means. Look who's talking.

At Wits End

Surely we can paint together

Erma Bombeck

Some women are lucky. They have the kind of husbands who insist on doing all the painting inside and out. (There were only 12 of them born last year.) Some women get the ones that faint at the sight of a paint brush and give their wives complete custody of the paint.

Me? I had to marry a painting partner. Surely Margaret, he says, we brought three children into this world, paid off a mortgage and play bridge together. Surely we can paint a room together. (These were the last words spoken by 17 million Americans last year just before they entered the divorce courts.)

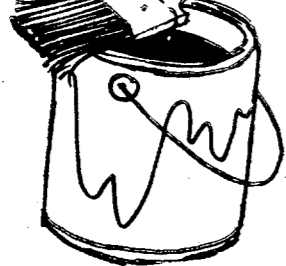

He's a little dictator, that's what he is. Where does it say, The dummy gets to do the woodwork, the inside of the closets, the shutters and the window panes and frames? The last time I painted that closet I had a bum trip.

And look at this brush! It sheds like a dog in spring and is eight inches wide. He acts like a surgeon. Don't forget to scrape the paint off the windows. Wash out the brushes. Move the ladder. Hand me the putty knife. Get me a paint rag. Find the ashtray. He'll do his straightaway of wall and then he'll cut out.

Oh well, what the heck. He's enjoying himself. A Man's View Over The Paint Can

A man shouldn't have to watch his wife paint. It destroys every illusion he ever had about womanhood. After a while they begin to look like William Bendix. Look at her dipping that brush into the bucket as if there's a prize in the bottom. There it goes, paint covering the handle . . . now it's running down the forearm and slowly dripping off her elbow and onto the carpet. And that's a brand new brush. At least it was until she swept the cobwebs off the porch with it. And brushed the dog with it. And washed the wheels of the car with it. And painted the porch with it. And then let it soak in a coffee can filled with two parts water and one part nail polish remover.

Look at her, would you? No drop cloths (Heloise showed me a way to paint neat.) No step ladder (I'm not mechanical!) I shouldn't think this, but I hope she falls off her lousy milk box!

Always carping around about her chores. If I were five feet, two inches, I'd do the baseboards. It's logical. And the closets. The only reason I asked her to do the closets is because her hands are small.

Very frankly, I don't know why she is painting again. This room was done just five years ago. Oh well, if it keeps our marriage together, I'll give the kid a hand.

Junkin' with Barb

Storage can be beautiful

Barb Christensen

People aren't rolling stones that gather no moss or mementos or belongings. We're more like rolling balls of taffy. Things keep getting stuck to us - books and baby pictures, tools and tennis rackets, flower vases and vacuum cleaners, electric blankets and Easter baskets. And isn't it great? Where would we be without our tender trappings, our blessed work-savers, our completely personal treasures of beloved junk? We need "our own things." They're part of us and we're part of them. They make us feel happy, warm and special.

Except, when they make us feel cranky and unkempt. The problem of course, is that of devil storage. Everybody has a storage problem. Whether we're squirrels who haven't thrown anything out in 20 years or "heavers" who threw the morning paper out this morning, the problem is the same (it's just that the squirrel's problem is bigger). Where will we put it all - we wall. Sometimes it seems that our house is just one big closet - if we opened the front door, we'd be buried alive under an avalanche of canned peas, ski boots, and the kids' records. Sometimes we think that a good, strong, ill wind wouldn't be all bad! Well, luckily, there is storage you can build, storage in places you never dreamed of. Storage is a personal thing. But it needn't be a personal hang-up.

Cardboard cartons from the supermarket are unsurpassed in lack of cost. While most cartons will not support a great deal of weight (such as a TV), they are very serviceable for storing toys and light household items.

By using heavy weight cartons from appliance and hardware stores, stronger units can be built for books. By inserting thin plywood or cardboard reinforcements between layers, surprisingly sturdy structures can be built. Connect boxes all in a row or stack them in an interesting arrangement with white glue and small sheet-metal screws. Or use clothespins. Three coats of your own special color latex paint will cover the whole unit and resemble built-ins.

Look up for storage too - basement and garage ceilings. For things like lawn chairs, baseball or football equipment and toys, hang them by metal shower curtain hooks nailed to the overhead garage or basement beams. Storage can be beautiful - and you can live with all the things you can't live without!

Wendy Nichols becomes bride of William Darbee

Boyer City - Bouquets of white daisies and ivy decorated the altar of St. Paul's by-the-Sea Episcopal Church at Ocean City, Maryland, for the late afternoon wedding of Miss Wendy Elizabeth Nichols and Mr. William Howard Darbee on May 26. Father William Dewees, Ocean City, Maryland, officiated at the double ring rites.

Mr. and Mrs. John T. Nichols, Ocean City, Maryland, are parents of the bride and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard C. Darbee, Boyne City. Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride chose a floor length A-line white dotted swiss gown fashioned with long, full shirt sleeves. Venetian lace trimmed the high Victorian collar. Her headpiece was a half bonnet of dotted swiss trimmed in matching Venetian lace with a cascade of silk illusion veiling.

She carried a bouquet of daisies with ivy.

Contemporary wedding music was provided by Mr. Jack Caldwell, organist. Mr. Harold Gordy served as matron of honor and the bridesmaids were Mrs. Harold Vickers, Miss Sally Owens and Miss Debby Holladay. They wore identical gowns of jonquil yellow cotton Ottoman, floor length, sleeveless, accented with stand-up ruffled necklines. They carried bouquets of daisies and ivy.

Mr. Calvin J. Darbee, of Oxford, Michigan, served as his brother's best man. Groomsmen were Robert L. Darbee, groom's brother, Bay City, Mr. John Irwin, Pa.; Mr. Joseph Mosier, Allegan, Mich.; Mr. Michael Smith, Ann Arbor, and Mr. Roger Jacobson, Chicago, Ill.

The mother of the bride wore a powder blue shantung dress-coat ensemble with matching accessories and the mother of the groom chose a turquoise blue knit dress-coat ensemble with matching accessories. Both mothers wore a corsage of gardenias and ivy.

A reception was hosted by the bride's parents at the Beach Plaza Hotel, Ocean City, Md. Wendy and William were honored guests at a buffet supper hosted by Mr. and Mrs. John Showell and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Brittingham Saturday, May 24. The groom's parents hosted the rehearsal dinner at the Phillips Crab House in Ocean City.

The bride changed to a white linen suit with red, white and blue trim with blue and white accessories for their honeymoon. They are at home at 187 Cherry Valley Drive, Apt. F 11, Inxter, Michigan 48141.

The bride attended Gunston School, Hartwick College, the University of Maryland and United Airlines Stewardess Training. She will be employed by United Airlines as receptionist at Metropolitan Airport, Detroit, Michigan.

The groom is a graduate of Boyne City High School and the University of Michigan. At present he is a student at Wayne State Law School, Detroit.

Out of town guests attended from St. Paul and Minneapolis, Minnesota, Bay City, Boyne City, Oxford, Ann Arbor, Allegan, Michigan, Alexandria, Virginia, Indianapolis, Indiana; Chicago, Ill.; Philadelphia, Pa. and Baltimore, Maryland, and Washington, D. C.

Letters to the Editor

Thank you for year's reign as Miss Boyne City

Editor's Note: The following letter was written by Miss Gail Meyer, former Miss Boyne City, and now a student at Ferris State College, to the Boyne City Chamber of Commerce.

Dear Friends:
I say friends, because I want this to be to all of the people instrumental in the Chamber both past and present. My very best wishes to the Chamber and also deepest thanks for a wonderful year for me as Miss Boyne City. After receiving the check, I had to think of all the people that should be acknowledged also.

Boyne is a very unusual city, for it holds so many things from the past or lumber age in its city limits as well as the potential for a thriving 'year round' tourist and local business town. Last week I had the privilege to meet the State Director of the Chamber of Commerce, who resides in Big Rapids. He asked me some rather interesting questions about our fair city, things that made me know he too likes the Boyne area. I hope I answered his questions correctly, for I said what I felt for the community.

I must take this opportunity to thank everyone for giving me the chance to represent Boyne, as girls before me have and I only hope girls will want to carry on the tradition, if for nothing more than valuable and rewarding experiences. People I've waited on in Big Rapids will ask if I'm from Traverse, Muskegon or even lowly little ole Kalaska, simply because they remember seeing me there.

Once again Best Wishes and if I can help in any way, I'd more than be happy too.
Sincerely,
Gail Meyer

Reunion time?

Dear Editor,
Quite a few of the class of 1959 are wondering if we missed the announcement on our 10 year class reunion, or hasn't it been printed yet? I, for one am holding off on plans for our vacation until I know when this event is to be held so I can be there for it.

Is there any way you could find out this information for us? Enjoy my bit of "home" very much every week.

Greatly Appreciated
A "Fifty-Niner"
Detroit, Mich.

Muddled approach

A week ago headlines in the state's press sprouted with such messages as:

"Tax Board Hikes Schools and Cuts County But Both Get More."

"State Aid Down but School Revenues Up."

The headlines merely detailed the actions of the annual county tax allocation board meetings.

This is the constitutional action in which representatives of county, school, township, and intermediate school districts set down to review budgets and scramble for the 15 mills of tax money which the state says is the limit of funds that can be assessed for operation of local governmental units.

In general, we can safely say that throughout the state, the movement was up. The reasons are too detailed for comment, but they are involved with such factors as higher property valuations, greater local support due to decreased state aid, and other factors.

However, in Emmet County, they do things differently -- if not mysteriously.

Mrs. Martha Drake, member of the Petoskey school board, who served as the "school representative" on the Emmet allocation board championed and introduced a motion which passed successfully that could only be considered as contrary to the usual conception of a school delegate's action.

After reviewing the budget requests submitted, she introduced a motion which reduced the Charlevoix - Intermediate school district by .02 mills, from .20 to .18 mills.

This, in effect, because of the loss of state matching funds, deprived the Intermediate District of $8,000, while the Emmet County government gained $1,874.

Balancing one sum against another, the net loss to local government was $6,126 since in any total concept of public expenditure the total revenue has to come from one pocket or another.

Mystified by the Petoskey News-Review's account of the tax allocation board meeting, I called Mrs. Drake to ask why, in view of the fact that school support trends were upward throughout most of the state, she had championed the movement to downgrade the local district's customary allotment.

She stated that in reviewing the budget submitted by the Charlevoix - Emmet Intermediate District, there was a request for $10,000 in film strips for the visual education program.

She stated that the district did not show $3 to $4 thousand that it was supposedly receiving from school districts for film and other visual aids. She stated that this should have been listed as income.

"Of course, we have such activities as The Child Guidance Clinic and the Children's Aid Fund which should receive support from the county too," Mrs. Drake said.

"They (the Intermediate

School District) have a huge administrative budget of $58,000 compared to the Child Guidance Clinic's budget of only $15,000.

"Then, of course, most of the activities of the district seemed to be centered in Charlevoix, and Emmet County doesn't seem to figure much in the district's activities," Mrs. Drake said.

"The Intermediate District has a librarian, a clerk, and 2 secretaries and educational co-ordinators." She added that she felt some balance should be maintained between the counties.

Mrs. Drake continued:

"There also seems to be a great deal of resentment between our local teachers and the members of the district staff. They are better paid, and a lot of them are done working by 3 o'clock in the afternoon, while our teachers must put in a full day."

Do you suppose the money that was saved by dropping the .02 mills to .18 mills will be turned over to the Child Guidance Clinic for its support?

"Yes, I think that it will," Mrs. Drake said.

Queried concerning Mrs. Drake's statement that administrative expenses were unusually high, Chas. A. Robinson, superintendent of the district, said:

"Yes, we have a high administrative expense because we are primarily an administrative organization, but our expenses are very much in line with other districts throughout the state. As a matter of fact, many many districts have higher millage appropriations than we do.

In succession, he responded to Mrs. Drake's statements by pointing out:

--Mrs. Drake, in March, had approved the district's budget intent for an appropriation of .20 mill.

--The $3 to $4 thousand Mrs. Drake claimed as revenue for film aids from the school districts was actually money being repaid the Intermediate District for films the district had purchased on a matching agreement with the schools. "Mrs. Drake was aware of this arrangement," he said.

Hunting Herman's ashes

Gregg Smith

We note with great interest that the man on the Lapeer County Press, "Old Fitz," which also happens to be his favorite brand, is becoming bored with 4-letter words employed by graffiti artists.

In the interest of avoiding the monotonous as well as adding a certain degree of sophistication to 4 letter words, I'd like to be the first to suggest that the higher order of graffiti authors simply upgrade their product by adding an "e" to all their 4-letter words.

Look what it did for "Ye Nyne Olde Holles," the most unbelievable title for any golf course anywhere. It made that Charlevoix County course famous. In the realm of 4-letter words it could also do wonders to recreate interest in smokehouse poetry.

A young lady of our acquaintance, (and the older we get, the fewer young ladies we know) tells a ribald, but true tale, of the demise of her great uncle Herman.

Since I've always been an advocate of cremation, her story intrigues me no end, and because she's still a minor, I must refrain from disclosing her identity.

She hasn't cleared the release of this skeleton from the family's tree, with her parents.

But after a long and frugal life, the very industrious Herman whose chief vice was taking on an overload of schnapps every Saturday night, finally departed this world.

He had paid his schnapps bill at the corner saloon, and had, in fact, left quite a sizeable fortune -- along with a request that it be turned over to his sisters and that his body be cremated.

He also donated his ashes to his sisters.

They forthwith set out for St. Louis, Mo. to pick up Herman's ashes and Herman's cash.

Grief stricken, and with a sense of impending death that is the fate of us all, they sought a bit of alcoholic solace themselves as they set forth (in easy stages) for the return trip to Michigan. Having become additionally affluent, the trip homeward was made partially by taxi, by bus, and by inter-urban railway as they hedge-hopped from saloon to saloon in an effort to assuage their grief.

In addition to Uncle Herman's favorite beverage, schnapps, they sampled an assortment of other alcoholic delights.

They tried bourbon with gin chasers; mesticia; anise; manhattans (martinis mixed with Manhattans); they mixed rock and rye with sloe gin and soda.

After rounds and rounds of such exotic creations as zombies and coca-bolos, they arrived back at Advance, Michigan (obviously a spurious address) in an advanced state of embalmment.

Following a somewhat painful withdrawal period during which the pink elephants left the pasture; the centipedes cleared out of the bed sheets; and the big, black tarantulas, and snakes had cleared from their bleary minds, they made a sad discovery.

Somewhere enroute between there and here, the poor old spinners had mislaid Brother Herman's ashes.

Try as they might, from that date to the day of their death, they couldn't recall where they had left Herman's urn.

And now, if in your travels westward, you should ever run into a saloon keeper with an unidentified urn of ashes, please be kind enough to inform this publication and we shall have done our civic bit in aiding the grief stricken descendants of Poor Herman.

Letters to the Editor

No thanks due to Circuit Control

Ninety nine percent of the people of East Jordan know the story of the Poppy - and what it stands for as was evidenced when the American Legion Auxiliary took in $367.00 during Poppy Days.

For those that have doubts, just come with us to Battle Creek or any other VA Hospital to meet the guys that make this little flower. Not only are they from W. W. I and II, but Korea and now Vietnam.

We received the kindest treatment from the East Jordan Iron Works, Mt. Clemens Metal Products, East Jordan Tool and Die, and Multi-Cut Tool, who made arrangements for the girls to be escorted through their plants to sell poppies.

However, when a call was made to Circuit Controls for permission to stop there, a man, who refused to be identified, replied to their question of going through

Is this what our sons and husbands are fighting for? We realize, going through plants is not always the best or easiest way for companies to co-operate, but when we are refused to even stand on the grounds, it is not only an insult to our organization, but to the Veterans that died for all of us.

We thank again the companies that did co-operate, the business places that let us display our posters, and Colwell Agency for letting us use their window for the Poppy Display, and to all the people of the community for their support.

Personal problems got to me

By Jim Fitzgerald

As I type this, Williw Horton is back in leftfield for the Detroit Tigers and I am back at my typewriter, as any fool can plainly see.

Willie walked out in the middle of the 7th inning. I quit on a Tuesday morning, about half way through editing that week's issue of my favorite weekly newspaper.

I went home and into seclusion, locking the bathroom door behind me. My family stood outside and begged me to get back on the job.

"The publisher just called," my wife said. "He has suspended you without pay until you return. It is costing you $8.75 a day to sit in there."

"Walter Cronkite just said on TV that you quit because you couldn't stand all the insulting letters-to-the-editor," my daughter said. "Especially the one from your mother."

"Yeah," added my son, and Joe Garagiola said you are unhappy here and want to be traded to the Detroit Free Press. He said you're mad because your publisher won't pay your bar bill at the country club."

"There's a little boy at the back door and he's crying," my wife said. "He says you've got to get back on the job or the newspaper just won't be the same. And he'll never get the $2.50 you owe him for cutting our lawn."

My assistant pounded on the door. "The newspaper is interrible shape without you," he said. "I remembered that you don't use periods after Mr. Dr. and Jr. but I forgot how you get rid of all those unused periods. They are rolling all over the floor and people are tripping."

"All your close friends are on the front porch," my wife said. "They both said to tell you the whole town is behind you. Those people who spit at you and throw rocks at your car don't really mean it. It is just their way of saying they love you, Jimmie, and they know you can do better."

been like a father to me, even if she is a woman.

Unfortunately, I couldn't read Professor Gilmartin's writing. But I shall always treasure her note.

After 4 days, I went back to work. "I wasn't mad at my readers or my boss and I don't want to be traded. I love it here," I explained. "The pressure of personal problems simply got to be too much. But I feel fine now after 4 days in the bathroom, near my Right Guard and my Listerine and my Crest."

Junkin' column shocked me

Dear Editor:

I read many things in your paper of last week. Some of them I quite agree with.

But 'Junking with Barb' shocked me. I and my family own a considerable amount of rural property.

And we had never felt it was free plunder for every one. We have had the houses broken into and contents scattered and some stolen. Bulbs dug out of the yard etc. We felt the people who did this were trespassers and thieves. And we would consider anyone digging for bottles etc. the same.

We pay taxes on this property and I am sure any court of law or policeman would feel we have our rights.

Also Chestonia was south of the picture in your paper week before last. That mill was built there in just the last few years.

I am a native of this vicinity the last 65 years.

"Varmint" makes Press appearance

Boyer City Little League and Babe Ruth goers need only to look at Andy Bogema's pharmacy at this summer, to find out who's playing who, at what time and where. The baseball schedule is another public service from druggist Andy Bogema, who during the school year sponsors cafeteria menus. As president of the local Chamber of Commerce, Bogema also helps sponsor mushroom contests, even if he can't find them himself. No charge for that last squib. . .

Last week's East Jordan FFA Banquet photos failed to include at least one picture of the girls who were responsible for the affair - namely the members of the FFA (Future Homemakers of America.) Sandra Schuette, home ec. teacher, called to remind us that the dinner meeting was for both FFA and FFA groups, and that the girls did prove one thing to the boys -- they can cook, even if it's only once a year.

A talking animal syndicated cartoon strip, appears on the feature page (page 11) of this week's Press. The strip, authored by veteran cartoonist Robert W. Knorr, is a blend of sophisticated humor with slapstick comedy, and occasional comment on topical event. Some of Knorr's lovable characters include "Melvin," the crazy mountain lion; "Vincent," a scowling vulture who loves pizza and holds a black belt in karate; "Rufus," the lonely and unloved rattlesnake; "Arnie," the armadillo, and a weight-conscious wart hog named "Winston."

A good friend was killed in Vietnam this year. And another young man we much admire is forever helpless in a veterans hospital, a big part of him drained into a rice paddy. And somehow we don't feel like writing the usual poem to our heroes, past, present or future.

*****
The truth is, right now, we are sick up to here with all the trappings of war and this includes the so-called glory which is relished by so many organized breast-beaters. Sometimes we wonder if the war-spawned organizations don't make too much of battlefield heroics. Sure, it is ok to remember and to appreciate and to have parades and to make speeches. But sometimes we see chips teetering on the shoulders of men who hate war but, 'by God, I blasted holes in those yellow Japs and I'd love to do the same thing to those lousy commies.'

*****
War should be remembered only for what it is -- a ghastly, uncivilized, barbaric insult to the intelligence and humanity of man. Nothing else. There can be no real glory in killing, for whatever reason. It can be self-defense; it can be justified; it can be patriotic. But it should never be the 'wonderful adventure' which is too often romanticized in stupid John Wayne movies or at beery gatherings of old veterans.

*****
Friday is another Memorial Day. Each year at this time we write approximately the same editorial. We say remember the men who gave their lives in our many wars. We add that you should also remember the boys who may die tomorrow in the current war. And we conclude with a choice bit of philosophy which heralds the time when there will be no Memorial Day because no one will be able to remember what war was.

*****
All of which are noble, appropriate sentiments, the stuff from which most ho-hum editorials are spun. If there are any stuffy words left over, we save them for our next editorial favoring traffic safety, or condemning flag-burning.

*****
The logical way to stop the killing is total disarmament, nuclear and popgun. Sure, it sounds like a pipedream. But, with the proper leadership, it could be done. That leadership must come from the nation with the most firepower and brainpower, the United States. The U.S. must rehash the ingenuity that puts men on the moon and total devastation under a push button. A Utopia with no tools of war is far in the future. But it must be there, and this nation must work toward it, or there'll be no future.

Let's replace Memorial Day with Disarmament Day.

Herman - - the man with the lost ashes. Ere we close this true, but somewhat fanciful tale, let it be known also that Herman enjoys a kind of immortality as the result of this ill-fated mishap. His descendants from that date to this, always greet any member of the family who comes in late at night, staggering, and bleary eyed with the sarcastic question: "I suppose you've been out hunting for Herman's ashes?"

opinion is political hanky-panky, let not all Emmet County householders be greatly disturbed since the cost is very minute.

An Emmet householder assessed at $10,000 now saves 4 cents per year. The Intermediate School district is the great loser in more than terms of pennies.

Fortunately one member of the Emmet Allocation Board, Sebron Litzenburger voted against the proposed millage reduction; other Emmet county educators were sorry to observe the political rift too.

"Rather than see the district penalized, I'd rather we'd raise our own millage. To us, it means no more than the cost of one typewriter, but the benefits are manifold greater," said Martin Mang, superintendent of the Pellston school.

All of this just proves my contention that cremation has more survival value than even a high-priced tombstone. No one ever asks you if you've been out looking for a tombstone.

Auto dealers of Charlevoix County missed a rare opportunity a few weeks ago when GM announced the passing of the Corvair. Al Sinclair, of Boyne City, and Bill Fochtman, of Charlevoix, the locally franchised dealers could have donned themselves in black as chief mourners; their sympathetic rivals, Bill Kusina, Bill Battiste, and Jack Dickhout, could have joined the rites as the singing choir. And we would have been on hand with camera to record the event for posterity. Man what publicity! - - No charge for the free plug, lads.

MORT HANDY displays a wren house which may be as simple as a cigar box or as elaborate as a mansion.

GLASS SIDES on winter bird feeders built by Mort, make bird watching interesting.

Handy is handy at building homes for birds and dogs

by BARB CHRISTENSEN

East Jordan - Morton Handy . . . and so he is! Handy at turning scrap lumber into homes. Mr. Handy is an expert in the home-building field - for wrens, purple martins and robins, as well as for puppies and dogs. Salvaged small pieces of lumber and shingles provide materials for attractive handmade birdhouses and dog houses of interesting architectural design.

Many successful birdhouse builders seek to make somewhat of a mystery of their craft. The facts to be learned are few, says Mr. Handy. First of all, you must know the kind of birds for which you are planning the house. This sounds like one of those things that everybody knows, but it is a fact that many amateurs, with more enthusiasm than knowledge proceed to bore a hole - any size hole - in a box - any old box, hang it up in the yard and expect any kind of bird from a wren to a stork to come immediately and take possession of this splendid residence. What usually happens to this kind of a "birdhouse" is that the squirrels take immediate possession. And the proud maker ought to thank his lucky stars that they don't camp on his trail while they are at it.

It should be pretty obvious that a house suitable for a wren, would prove too crowded for a woodpecker, even if the red-head could get in through the entrance hole bored for the wren. Having decided then just what kind of a guest we are designing our house to attract, we give it the proper amount of floor space, make the interior of the correct depth and bore the entrance hole of the right size and at the proper distance from the floor. The same holds true for your pooch. Give him plenty of room, and don't construct his residence while he is still a pup. Decide on the type of construction to be used so that the house will stay weatherproof throughout its life, figure on some simple ventilation scheme so the interior won't get too stuffy - and that's practically all. With these things taken care of in the design, the house may be made as simple as a cigar box, or as elaborate as a forty-room mansion, depending on the choice of the builder.

In the winter Mr. Handy constructs bird feeders especially for chickadees. Scraps of glass are used for the sides so bird feed can be seen at all times and the top can be lifted off for filling with corn meal or sunflower seeds. If you are planning a home of tomorrow for your pets of today, consult Mr. Morton Handy for complete homebuilding and architectural service!

Mary Bennett

East Jordan - Funeral services for Mrs. Jackson (Mary I.) Bennett, 79, who died unexpectedly at her home May 26, were held at the Watson Funeral Home Wednesday at 2 p.m. Rev. Marcus Krake officiated and burial was in Sodus, Michigan.

She was born Mary Ida Emurth February 12, 1890 at Mt. Horab, Wis. She made her home in Eau Claire, Mich., before coming to East Jordan in 1945. She married Mr. Bennett in Charlevoix April 3, 1952. She was a member of the Eastern Star and attended the Lutheran Church.

Survivors include her husband, four daughters, Mrs. Emil (Eva) Behnke, Dowagiac; Mrs. Kenneth (Vera) Geldeman, Niles; Mrs. Duane (Marion) Stiles, Berrien Springs and Mrs. Wilbur (Mary) Stark, East Jordan; four sons, Herman, Dowagiac; Calvin, Sodus; Carlisle and Archie, Eau Claire; 27 grandchildren, 31 great grandchildren; three sisters, Mrs. Carrie Berugski, Madison, Wis.; Mrs. Katherine Baker, Mt. Horab, Wis., and Mrs. Robert Pope, Sun Prairie, Wisconsin.

Frederick Haney

East Jordan - Funeral services for Frederick G. Haney, 48, World War II veteran, were held at St. Joseph's Church at 8:30 a.m. Thursday with the Rev. Joseph Malinowski officiating. Burial was in Calvary Cemetery in Wilson Township.

Mr. Haney died Monday, May 26, at Little Traverse Hospital a short time after he was admitted. Born in Wilson Township Sept. 29, 1920, Mr. Haney attended Cedar Valley rural school and the East Jordan High School before sailing on the Great Lakes until entering the U.S. Army in March 1943. He served in the European theatre with the 94th Infantry Division and was a prisoner of war until the war in Europe ended and he was released. He was discharged from the Army in Nov. 1945 and sailed for the Pittsburgh Steamship Co. for 2 1/2 years before returning to East Jordan because of failing health. He was a member of the Rebec-Sweet post of the American Legion.

Surviving are three brothers, S/Sgt. Robert, stationed in Thailand with the U.S. Air Force, Leslie and James of East Jordan; four sisters, Mrs. Theodore (Beatrice) Francis of Elmira, Mrs. Edward (Edna) Skop, of Detroit, Mrs. Margaret Lewis and Miss Dorothy Haney of East Jordan and 11 nieces and nephews.

Two week heart course to be held

The Michigan Heart Association announces a two week course to train area nurses in the specialty of Coronary Care Unit Nursing, to be held in Traverse City in June. This course will be co-sponsored by the Grand Traverse Area Heart Unit and Munson Medical Center, with the Traverse City Osteopathic Hospital and Northwestern Michigan College also participating in the instruction.

The classes will be held between June 2 and 13th. The course is planned to train qualified nurses for service in a coronary care unit. Course enrollment has been completely filled, representing hospitals in Ann Arbor, Grand Rapids, Kalamazoo, Manistee, Petoskey, Marquette and many other cities throughout the state. This will be the first such course offered by the Michigan Heart Association in the Northern area. It is part of a Coronary Care Education Project, supported by an operational grant to the Michigan Heart Association by Regional Medical Programs.

The key factor in the operation of a coronary care unit is a trained team of nurse specialists. It is anticipated that this course will be instrumental in furthering the establishment and efficiency of Coronary Care Units in other areas of Northern Michigan. The facilities and staff of the Munson Coronary Care Unit will be used extensively in the course, as well as those of the Osteopathic Hospital and Northwestern Michigan College.

Dietrichs have 3 to buy gifts for

East Jordan - Graduation gift buyers with too many gifts to buy should consider the plight of the Russ Dietrichs, who have three sons graduating in May and June.

On May 15, the Dietrichs attended commencement exercises at Grand Rapids' Kendall School of Design for their son Richard, who received a degree in advertising.

On May 24th, another son, Russ, graduated from Stout College in Menominee, Wisconsin, with a bachelor's degree in industrial art.

And on June 8th, Russ and his wife will attend graduation ceremonies in Mt. Pleasant for their son Bill, who is majoring in accounting at Central Michigan University.

All breed horse show

Traverse City - Bowers Harbor Park on Old Mission Peninsula, 10 miles north of Traverse City will again be the setting for the Annual All Breed Horse Show, sponsored by the Peninsula Saddle Horse Association.

Approved by M.H.S.A. as a class "B" show in all divisions except Half Arab, which is class "C", this spring time show is one of the biggest and best in the region and has drawn high praise from the Michigan Horse Show Association Board. The dates this year will be Friday, Saturday and Sunday, June 13, 14, and 15. Rain or Shine.

Entries are coming in daily from surrounding states. There will be 99 classes, so the youngest rider as well as the most experienced will enjoy entering.

Local residents move less than national average

(Special to the Northland Press) New York, May 24 - Of the 40 million or more Americans who will be changing their home addresses this year, how many residents of Charlevoix County will be among them?

Do local people pick up and move as frequently, or more so, than those in other areas? According to data compiled by the government, their record indicates that they do less moving about than people in most parts of the country.

And the time of year when they are prone to do so is fast approaching. The most popular season for moving is the summer. Statistics show that between 70 and 80 percent of it takes place in the months of June, July, August and September.

This mobility rate, 40 percent, was lower than the rate reported for the nation as a whole, 47 percent.

In the East North Central States, it was 46 percent and, in the State of Michigan, 44 percent.

Why do people move? The reasons are numerous. Frequently it is the economics of life that dictate the change. Sometimes a family moves in search of better jobs or business opportunities. Or because a man is transferred by his company. Or because the family has become better off, financially, and wants to live in a fancier home.

Marriage, the birth of a child and other social changes are also cited as major motives for moving.

Helps to recover Apollo

With the Apollo Ten Recovery Force, May 19 - Radioman Third Class David L. Griffin, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Archie Griffin of 1000 Griffin St., East Jordan, Mich., and husband of the former Miss Nora K. Marshowsky of 3319 Geneva Lane, Zion, Ill., is serving aboard the communications relay ship USS Arlington, a unit of Task Force 130, for the manned flight of Apollo 10.

The ship's mission is to serve as the major relay station for communications of the primary recovery units.

The Apollo 10 mission is one of the final steps before reaching the ultimate goal of the Apollo program to land men on the moon for limited observation and exploration and assure their safe recovery upon return to earth.

The extent to which the Charlevoix County population is given to moving is revealed in another government study, covering a five-year period, based on data gathered in connection with the last census.

It reveals that 4,701 local residents were living in different homes than those they had occupied five years earlier.

Of this total, 2,290 had merely moved to new locations within the county. The other 2,411 were people who had come from outside the county to take up local residence.

As to the number of people who may have moved out of the county in the five-year period, no figures are given.

What it boils down to is that 40 out of every 100 persons in Charlevoix County over the age of five changed their addresses at least once in a period of five years.

D-Day is unique in history books

by BARB CHRISTENSEN

25 years ago on June 6, 1944, the greatest amphibious force in history, composed of American, British, Canadian and Allied troops, landed in Normandy, starting the final campaign against Germany in World War II which led to her unconditional surrender on May 8, 1945. Thousands of troops from an armada of warships and paratroopers covered a stretch of more than a hundred miles of beaches.

The first report of the long-awaited event reached the United States through the German news agency Transocean, in a broadcast announcing that the Allies were landing and a naval battle was in progress in the English Channel. There was no Allied confirmation, but the New York Times of June 6th departed from its usual conservative format by repeating the Transocean broadcast. The national radio networks too by to confirm the report, and all programs, even those sponsoring the highest-paid comedians and other performers were subject to interruption without warning. Throughout the U.S. people talked of little else, in their homes, on the streets, in stores, and in offices where business was disrupted by the day-long suspense.

Led by President Roosevelt over the radio at ten that night, the entire country joined in a solemn prayer for the success of the invasion. General Dwight D. Eisenhower's announcement from London was the first official news and gave the brief facts of the landings with no details, but it was greeted with a burst of sirens and whistles. The Liberty Bell in Philadelphia was rung six times.

More than 4,000 ships and smaller landing craft participated in the tremendous undertaking, and the largest airborne force ever employed was landed with remarkably low losses. At the hour of invasion the broadcasting facilities were linked together in an international chain to insure a maximum audience for General Eisenhower's statement to the people of Western Europe. Transmissions were made in 22 languages on a 24 hour basis. The operation by which the continent of Europe was successfully invaded in the teeth of a strong enemy will probably remain unique in the history books for a long time to come.

Music festival

East Jordan - A Festival of great Christian music will be held in the Presbyterian Church at 7:30, Sunday, June 8.

Performing will be Bertha Slough as organist, the choirs of the Methodist and Lutheran churches will join the Presbyterian choir; there will be a duet by Helen and Phyllis Shepard, a flute duet by Ann Pray and Mary Snyder, solos by June Benton and selections on the harp by Judith Gardner.

Church hymns will also be sung.

REV. Chandler Benton, First Presbyterian Church, gave the Memorial Day address at East Jordan's lakeside Memorial Park.

MEMBERS of the American Legion Women's Auxiliary held a service for those who died at sea on the Christopher Taylor Memorial Bridge.

EAST JORDAN CITY COUNCIL

Minutes of the Special Meeting of the City Council held Monday, May 26, 1969 at 8 p.m.
The meeting was called to order by Mayor Olson.
Present: Mayor Olson, Aldermen Watson, Olson, Morris and Burkey, Supt. Kitson, City Attorney Klevorn, Dean Mikulski and Walter Franczek of the Health Dept.
Absent: Aldermen Morrison and Gee.
Purpose of the meeting: To meet with representatives from the Health Department concerning the City Dump.

Mr. Dean Mikulski read portions of Act 87, Public Acts of 1965. He then explained that the City is in violation of this act, and that it must comply or the Health Department would cite the City as being in violation.
City Attorney Klevorn requested 60 days for the City to come into compliance.
Mr. Mikulski said no - not that long.
Attorney Klevorn asked how much time?
Mr. Mikulski said he would write the city a letter and give fourteen (14) days after receipt of the letter to come into compliance.

Supt. Kitson is to explore the north end of the Dump Site (Gravel Pit) for feasibility of digging a trench for a sanitary landfill which was the recommendation of Mr. Mikulski;
The meeting was adjourned by Mayor Olson.

Two men sentenced to prison terms

Yearling rainbow trout were scheduled to be planted in two Charlevoix County lakes, Walloon Lake and Lake Charlevoix, last week. Twenty-five thousand of the less-than-legal-size trout were to be dumped in Lake Charlevoix at Boyne City and the same number in Walloon Lake. Plantings of steelhead in Lake Charlevoix and Little Traverse Bay of Lake Michigan will take place later this spring.

The Charlevoix County Tax Allocation Board recently adopted the tentative tax rate as final. The final rate allocated 5.5 mills to the county; 8.3 mills to all schools in the county; one mill to each of the 15 townships and .2 mill to the Intermediate School District. The last figure, however, may be changed slightly after the Emmet County Allocation Board cut 2/100 of a mill from its millage earmarked for the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District. All other counties in the intermediate district, Antrim, Cheboygan and Charlevoix had approved the .2 allocation.

If the allocation is not appealed by the Intermediate Board, then the other three counties will have 2/100 of a mill for use elsewhere. Since the state allocates matching funds to the school district, the Intermediate district stands to lose approximately $8,000 or a tenth of its budget by the Emmet County decision.

Charlevoix County's millage will be levied on the county's new valuation figure of $93,063,822.

The Charlevoix County Board of Supervisors will meet at the county building in Charlevoix on Tuesday, June 10, for its regular June meeting.

Two men were sentenced to Southern Michigan prison recently during the May term of Circuit Court at which Judge James A. Fitzpatrick presided. Joseph R. Leaman, 32, of Detroit and Boyne City, and Murley Shananaquet, 40, of Charlevoix, were sentenced to 18 months on separate charges of taking an automobile without intent to steal.

At the same term of court Judith Potter, 17, of Charlevoix, charged with forging, was placed on two years probation and ordered to pay fine and costs of $125 at the rate of $10 per month beginning July 1; Robert Blake, 25, of Charlevoix and Detroit, pleaded guilty to a charge of forgery. His case was referred to the probation officer for investigation. He will be sentenced at a later date; the case of Rick L. Young of Boyne City, charged with carrying a concealed weapon (a knife) was remanded to district court; Arden Vallad, 28, of Boyne City, charged with illegal sale of goods, pleaded innocent to the charge; Mark Coleman and Graham Fineout, both 17, Boyne City, pleaded innocent to charges of statutory rape; Joseph Washburne, 40, of Boyne City, charged with breaking and entering, appealed the case to a higher court. Judge Fitzgerald took the request under consideration.

The Charlevoix City Council adopted its 1969-70 budget recently, a budget of $353,245 which is $11,224 less than the 1968-69 budget.

An eight mill tax levy will bring in $93,069 with other revenue coming from state sources ($102,520); public service enterprises ($45,100) and miscellaneous ($110,775) including the transfer of $71,435 from the electric fund.

With the exception of a $35,000 appropriation for a new sewer line to the southeastern section of the city, there are no major amounts earmarked for capital outlay this year.

A Melvindale youth, Dennis G. Milewski, 22, was killed in a motorcycle accident on Memorial Day while enroute to Ironton to join his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank P. Milewski, who purchased a home there last year and plan to retire there. He was killed when he struck his head on the branch of a tree when his motorcycle went out of control and left the road in Kalkaska County. According to sheriff's department officials, he was not wearing a helmet at the time of the accident.

Services and burial were at Charlevoix Monday.

Scriptures selected by the American Bible Society

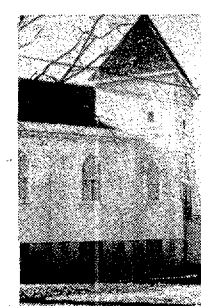

Today it's just a skeleton against the sky. But tomorrow people will live in it, and it will become a home. Within its walls, the pattern of life will be carried out.

But will this be enough? As a home, will this house stand or fall as the years pass? Will the people who live in it develop into better, stronger human beings? Or will they acquire selfishness, greed, indifference, conceit?

Remember the foolish man who built his house on sand, only to have the rains wash it away, and the wise man who built his house permanently on a rock? The future of this house - the future of a home - depends upon its foundation.

In the story, the "rock" symbolizes the Church. Those who build their faith upon its foundation will take into their homes the strength to keep them standing, regardless of what life may bring.

The Kingfish was the last of the red hot radicals

Russ Metz

I believe it was a professor named Hubert Humphrey, who called for an America in which no man has to live below the level of poverty. And I think he has an important point there. Thirty years ago a single man could hope to attain a position of genteel impoverishment on $10 a week. That's when I was making $8 for 44 hours and the rest of the time trying to figure out how I could spend such a princely paycheck.

Today a man would have to make $60 a week or more, to attain the level of poverty. The way the government keeps raising the ante, we may never be lucky enough to hit that magic plateau. It is pretty obvious we will never achieve a goal of poverty for all the people, unless we can whip inflation. Furthermore, people's ideas of what poverty is differ for all the people.

Huey Long, the Louisiana kingfish, was regarded as a radical in his day, though he was neither left or right. We are familiar with the leftist and rightist fringe of the radical wings, but Huey was probably the only radical of the center we have ever produced.

The Kingfish's platform called for few things. He wanted a guaranteed annual wage. He wanted regular payments of money to people over 65 and a shorter work week for labor. He wanted the government to furnish quarters for the poor, and he thought Uncle Sam ought to fork up the money for college educations to kids that couldn't afford it. All radical stuff in those days.

But Huey made a mistake. He wanted to limit individual fortunes to three million dollars, and here he ran afoul of some people whose idea of poverty was very different from his own.

As soon as Prof. Humphrey can define poverty, we ought to get started bringing people up to that level. President Nixon was never a great admirer of Humphrey's theories, so he may instead prefer to shove poverty down to where everybody could afford it.

But don't hold your breath until it happens. There are vast problems in achieving a general level of poverty for the United States. No one is sure whether the country can afford it.

My wife has a curious way of taking the fat out of any conversation on overweight. In the same breath, she tells me I'm picking up too many pounds and claims the bathroom scales does not accurately reveal her own proper size.

I keep telling her, "Men become portly. Women become fat."

Some doctors go so far as to say over-eating may be either a means of releasing simple tension or an important defense against destructive emotional forces. I like to think a fellow overeats because he enjoys it. He ought not gorge because of any emotional force unless it is fear that the groceries will run out before he gets his hide full.

The truly great over-eaters are truck driver, cat tractor jockeys, cowboys, newspaper reporters, telephone linemen, coal shovelers, pint-size stenographers and town loafers. They will eat anything that does not bite back or have a French name.

The late A. J. Liebling appears to have been one of the great over-eaters of all time. According to reports we have, he was an enormous consumer of food and drink, as well as an unusually talented literary man.

At the time of his death, many things were said about his talents as a gourmet. One of his friends, however, objected to all this.

"Joe wasn't any gourmet," he said, "He was a hog."

Over-eaters are made - not born. The United States Army learned years ago how to control the appetites of its men. For their meals, the Army brought its men into one big building called a mess hall. The men were served mutton with the wool still on it, steaks and chops professionally rubberized, potatoes floating in grease and beans that disintegrated when stared at. This tended to hold the gourmets and over-eating in check.

One of the great misconceptions of our time is that there is a connection between over-eating and obesity, or fatness if you want to put it bluntly. Fatness is caused by a gland, the stomach. In the true over-eater, it simply becomes an adjustable sac.

Work and appetites do not necessarily go hand-in-hand. Young boys are the greatest over-eaters in the world without hitting a lick of work. "I'm building up for football," my boy tells me. At the rate he is going, I'll have more money in him than Green Bay even if he becomes their first-draft bonus choice.

Will Rogers, invited to dinner by a friend, replied, "No thanks, I've already eaten."

"You should say 'have eaten' his friend corrected.

"Well," drawled Rogers, "I know a lot of fellers who say 'have eaten' who ain't eat!"

A morbid desire to eat is a rare disease called bulimia and some bulimia patients have to spend 15 hours a day eating. The record says 12-year-old Matthew Daking consumed 384 lbs. of food in six days while suffering from the disease in 1743.

The world's greatest trencherman is Bozo Miller of Oakland, Calif., who grinds up 25,000 calories per day and has eaten every dinner partner under the table since 1931. He'd probably eat more, but his 57-inch waistline keeps him away from the table. In 1963, Bozo polished off 27 two-pound pullets at one sitting. That same year, he inhaled 324 ravioli - the first 250 in 70 minutes.

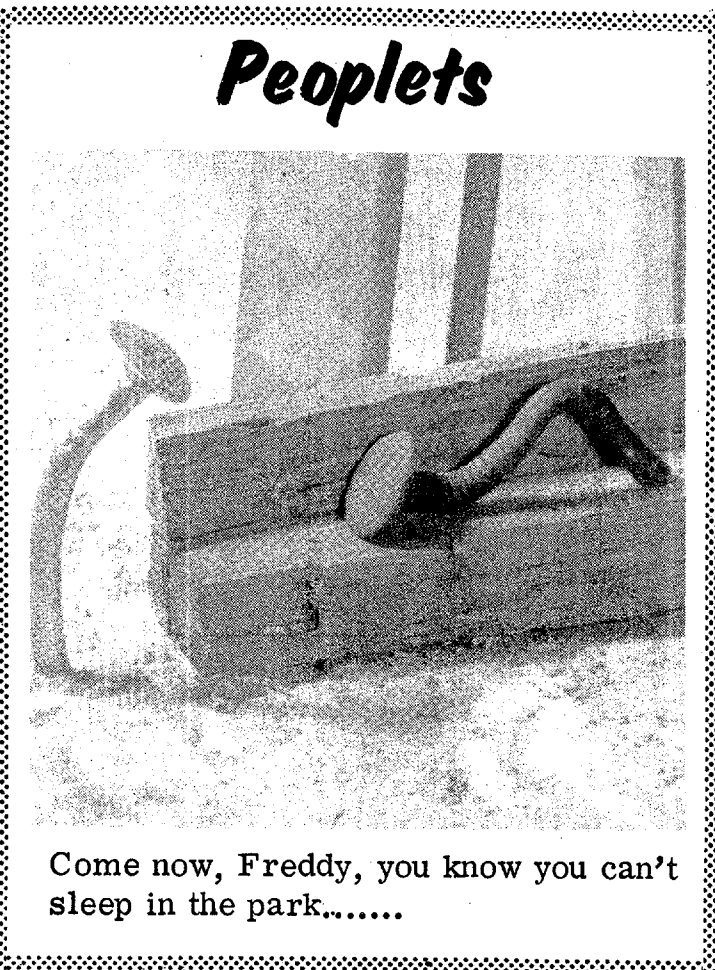

Next time you are so hungry you could eat a horse, think of Johann Ketzler of Germany. He didn't care for host meat, but he ate a whole roasted ox in 42 days.

The reason those fellows beat the rest of us, they kept records. A quick tally shows that over the past 25 years, I have eaten 2275 lbs. of bologna. This will probably never be entered on the record books because my wife thinks it is a hollow claim. She'd prefer to think my waistline is swelling with pride from her home cooking.

The only club that ever made sense to me is the LEG(Let's Eat, Gang) Club in my hometown of Tell City, Ind. They roll dice to choose officers and the last member to get married has to feed the gang at their annual feed. Once a year is a fer piece between meals for me, but the club serves a noble purpose. Makes any member think a long time before getting married and having that bunch of vultures swoop in on him for dinner.

To keep from over-eating I eat only what I want.

Semper fidelis.

Come now, Freddy, you know you can't sleep in the park.....

Surplus fire towers are going on sale

Lansing--If your interests go "high" enough, there's a chance for you to buy a rare collector's item through the Purchasing Division for the State Department Administration in Lansing. Through 3:30 p. m., June 23, that Division is accepting bid offers of $100 and up for each of 20 surplus fire towers which have been phased out of use by the Department of Natural Resources (DNR).

All of the big steel structures, ranging from 75 to 115 feet tall, are located in backwoods areas of the Upper Peninsula, except for two standing in Isosco and Antrim Counties.

People buying these obsolete outposts of the DNR's old fire detection program must dismantle and remove them within 90 days after their offers are approved. They must also clean up grounds where the towers now stand.

Bid forms and additional information on the towers may be obtained by writing to: Michigan Department of Administration, Purchasing Division, Lansing, Michigan 48913.

The 20 towers now on the buying block are the latest to give way to the DNR's 18-unit air arm which is saving the State about $300,000 a year while providing fire detection coverage assigned to 135 of these steel structures abandoned since the late 1950's. Of those surplus towers, 57 have been sold in recent years on a bid basis.

The DNR is now down to 15 active lookout towers and it plans to deactivate most of them. A few will escape phasing out in such places as Drummond Island and the tip of the Keweenaw Peninsula because they are located in remote areas which do not lend themselves to good air flight patterns.

No big die-off expected for Lake Michigan

Lansing -- Lake Michigan's die-off of alewives this summer is not expected to approach the costly, stench-ridden disaster of 1967, according to an authority for the U.S. Bureau of Commercial Fisheries (BCF) in Ann Arbor.

A.L. McLain, investigations chief for the BCF's Lake Michigan-Lake Huron Program, reports that an assessment study made last fall indicates that adult alewife numbers south from Ludington along the east shore of Lake Michigan are at---or perhaps slightly below---the level they were in 1967 following that year's massive losses of the nuisance fish.

That die-off knocked the lake's fall population of adult alewives 65 percent below 1966.

Largely as a result of this, there were no "conspicuous" losses of alewives in Lake Michigan last summer, a turn of events welcomed by the area's shoreline owners, tourists, and resort operators.

The happy relief these people enjoyed last summer should carry through this year and probably again in 1970 because adult stocks of the problem fish were unable to build up last fall. Part of the reason is traced to poor survival from their hatches in 1965 and 1966, notes McLain.

It is assumed that age classes of alewives from both of those years faced tremendous competition from very dense populations of their older counterparts which were already in Lake Michigan prior to the heavy 1967 die-off.

Whatever the reason, McLain says neither year class appears strong enough to trigger a substantial recovery of adult alewife stocks in Lake Michigan. It also looks as though the 1967 year class of the lake's alewives is weaker than those during the earlier explosion of the nuisance fish.

Thus far, fisheries men haven't been able to measure what impact planted lake trout and salmon have had on alewife stocks in Lake Michigan. However, as populations of these predator species increase, they will play a decided role in limiting alewife levels.

Outdoors With Gordie

"Glamor" fishermen, don't forget bluegills

Gordie Charles

While wading the shoreline of a little lake a few evenings ago, our luck wasn't too good on trout. We were flinging flies near the drop-off and expecting a rainbow to latch onto the little nymph. It just didn't happen.

However, instead of going home defeated, we turned it into one of the most exciting evenings imaginable. We switched over to a little rubber spider and started casting toward the reeds that were poking up out of the shallows. That's where a few little dimples had been appearing on the surface.

Pop! The fly disappeared and we were fast to a chunky bluegill. Second cast, same thing. And, before the night was over, we had a rather comfortable weight in the creel that added up to some mighty fine eating next day.

There's a lesson to be learned here. Many of us get so wrapped up in the techniques of catching trout, bass and the other "glamor" fish, that we forget about these little battlers which are much more plentiful and just as much fun to catch.

Tackle is the key to fun with bluegills. Sure, the guy with the cane pole enjoys himself. But, for the ultimate in fight from this little fish, give him a whirl on a light flyrod. You won't horse him in any more than you would a big bass that has nailed a plug.

A bluegill is built to put up a scrap. Headed directly toward you he comes in easily but when he turns his broad side against the pull of your rod, you will think you've got a whopper.

While bluegills are not particularly large fish to begin with, you will run into a lot of eight and nine-inchers, with an occasional specimen hitting the 10 and 11-inch mark. These are fish that elude the average summer angler, yet right now they are almost ridiculously easy to catch. Those of us who write about the outdoors have to accept part of the blame for doing such a good selling job on the merits of fishing for the major game fish species. We even tend to forget about bluegills and the other panfish until something happens to remind us again. Like the evening when the trout were not hitting and we again recalled that bluegills are fun to catch, too.

Far be it from this writer to ever declare that trout, bass, pike and salmon are better fish than bluegills. It just isn't so.

The little bluegill may not be spectacular to look at and he may not weigh ten pounds but put him on the business end of a light flyrod and he won't take a back seat to any of those glamor-type fish.

That's why you won't find us trout fishing this weekend. We're goin' bluegillin' instead!

A still intact 1898 copy of the Boyne Citizen was found recently by Mrs. Lucille Hersha's husband, while working on an old house, next to the Boyne City A&W. With Mrs. Hersha (at right) are Mrs. Ruth Mapes and their children, Theresa Mapes and Bill Hersha.

Straight Talk

They'd sell their mother for a profit

Tom Anderson

Some naive and uninformed parents and teachers, concerned about their bed-ridden teenagers, have bought the fraudulent claims of the professional sexologists that sex education is a cure for premarital sex, promiscuity, and illegitimacy. Who and why are the professional sexologists? They are mainly an assortment of atheists, Communists, pornographers, huggers, muggers, and fast-buck artists who would sell their mother for a profit. Chief culprit which has surfaced so far, or (pardon the expression) exposed, is SIECUS (Sex Information and Education Council of the U.S.).

Gary Allen comments in American Opinion magazine: "These sex educators are turning sex into a game and children into guinea pigs. Children are taught that in sex you take what you want (and are told what you need). SIECUS advocates 'responsible sexuality' (or 'situation ethics') which means that whatever sex act you feel the urge to do with any person at any time is all right if you have a consenting and responsible partner."

As the Reverend Dr. Joseph Fletcher, long associated with pro-Communist causes, explains it: "For me, there are no rules at all. . . anytime and everything is right or wrong according to the situation - - what is wrong in some cases is right in others. . . A situationist would discard all absolutes except the one absolute: always act with loving concern."

Millions of teen-agers in the back seats of parked cars will always act with loving concern.

Head Madam at SIECUS is Mrs. Mary Calderone, who shocks her audiences by frequently using four-letter words. Her motto is "tell them everything and tell them early."

"Sex is not just something you do in marriage, in bed, in the dark, in one position," said Dr. Calderone in concluding her formal lecture at Blair Academy. As she sat down, Headmaster James Howard led the boys in a sustained standing ovation. Dr. Calderone then chided the boys about their double standard, saying: "You're perfectly willing to make somebody else's sister, but you're not willing to let someone make your sister. Why? Why are you trying to stop your sister from what you believe is lovely and beautiful?"

At an informal meeting attended only by student seniors, Dr. Calderone and the Blair boys discussed the question of whether girls usually get through high school without being seduced. One Blair senior seemed to think few do. He said, "We knock 'em over pretty easy."

After telling her youthful audiences that there doesn't seem to be any correlation between premarital sex and success in marriage, Mrs. Calderone regularly leaves the decision of premarital intercourse up to the glands of her young listeners. The Boston Globe of December 5, 1968 quotes her as telling a blushing audience of five hundred boys and girls: "The question goes far beyond 'Will I go to bed?' and it's one you must answer for yourselves. You boys may have to ask yourselves: 'Am I ready to take the responsibility to say, yes, she is ready emotionally and psychologically?'"

Dr. Calderone tells students: ". . . you just can't move economically or educationally. You must move sexually as well."

And the little dears are moving! Estimates of the number of illegal abortions performed on adolescents run into the hundreds of thousands. One of the findings that influenced New York City's New Lincoln School to adopt sex education was a poll of its 11th-graders on their attitudes toward premarital intercourse. The majority saw nothing wrong with it. Teen-age marriages have risen 500% since World War II, and the divorce rate for such marriages is three times higher than the rate for marriages contracted after 21.

What is happening in America is not sexual revolution but the evolution of a system which has replaced the prostitute with the girl next door. -- American Way Features.

The Pun Of It

"Mother was right, you're a kook"

Tom Garlock

"Do we have a bag of marshmallows in the house?" I asked Old Ironsides the other night.

"I think we do in the pantry," she answered, "Why?"

"I'd like to read a bag of marshmallows," I replied. Old Ironsides gave me a funny look. A look something between asking "Are you crazy?" and "Pack your bag, I'm taking you to the Funny Farm."

"Why do you want to read a bag of marshmallows?"

"I've always wanted to read one. An occupied mind is a healthy mind."

"I don't think your mind is so healthy, if you want to read a bag of marshmallows."

This rather serious conversation went on for a while. Old Ironsides still wouldn't believe I wanted to read a bag of marshmallows. I went to the pantry and sat on the dryer as I read the bag. It was interesting, if you like to read that sort of thing. About 30 minutes later, Old Ironsides came walking into the pantry.

"Thank heavens you're still alive. I was just about ready to call the cops to find a missing husband," she explained.

"I'm sorry dear, I got so wrapped up in reading this bag of marshmallows, I lost all track of time," I answered.

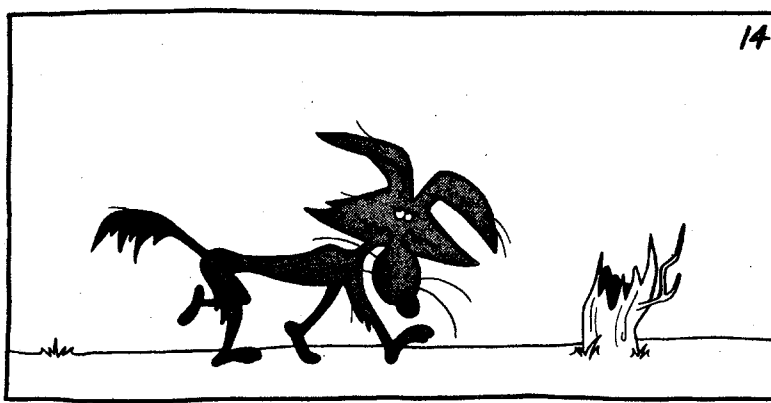

"I think mother was right. She said you were a kook the day you gave her a fruit cake made out of fertilizer," Old Ironsides said.

"If she thinks I'm a kook because of that fruit cake, why did she serve it to her company last Sunday night?"

"Forget the fruit cake. If you think you can wiggle out of telling me why you're in the pantry reading a bag of marshmallows, you have another guess coming. I know you do a lot of

Furlong's harbor haven tops in comfortable living

THE Furlong home is located on Lakeshore Drive, between Advance and Boyne City.

AVOCADO appliances and green hued cabinets create a cheery, spacious feeling in the kitchen.

Boyne City - Mr. and Mrs. Robert Furlong of Lakeshore Drive in Boyne City have achieved the maximum in family comfort and privacy, but still have a touch of every-day-in-the-year excitement and elegance in their charcoal-shuttered pale gray rancia home along Boyne Harbor. The inviting horseshoe black drive matches wrought iron pillars of the front deck for a strong influence in the character of this lovely traditional home.

Timely maple dropleaf table and hutch in the dining room combine with a white porcelain labevo and walnut marble-topped chest for a time-honored look of elegance. Three staggered blue candle goblets add a bright accent to the neutral walls.

The living room looks as traditional as Thomas Jefferson's, yet the sea foam velvety carpeting, champagne tufted couch and chocolate brown chintz side chairs are of today's modern styling. Aqua and olive slab pillows on the big roman brick fireplace blend with a pale olive occasional chair and large blue ceramic wall spray of flowers.

All the main rooms face the lake, including a den so comfortable it makes you want to sit and put up your feet. The master bedroom is completely rose biege in various pale shades on the floor, walls and accessories, with two marble-topped chests and a white antique porcelain pitcher and bowl for contrast. Even the kitchen with its avocado appliances and green hued cabinets has a cheery spacious feeling. The picture window in the separate eating cove provides a delightful hillside view, as well as plenty of natural light for family meals.

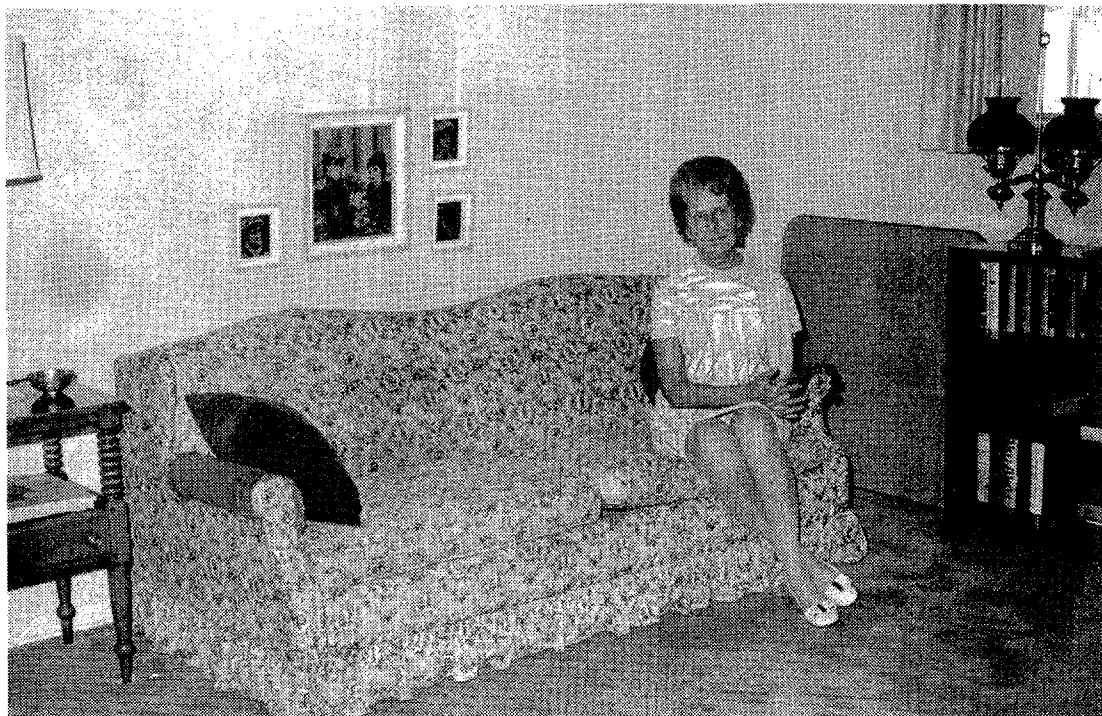

The Furlong's harbor haven sparkles atop a list of everything a home should be for comfortable traditional living.

East Jordan

East Jordan - We would like to add several names to our 1969 business memberships which were too late for the Chamber of Commerce page in the Northland Press last week. These include: Vallance TV, Jordan Valley Greenhouse, and Gidley Drug Company.

All of these businesses deserve our patronage and so before you shop, think of the Chamber of Commerce members who make possible the many activities you enjoy each year, then buy from them.

The information booth is now open for the summer season. If any cottage owners have cottages available, be sure to call the Chamber today. Martha Kamradt will once again be on hand to greet and inform our many visitors to the area. She has done a very fine job for the past several years in this capacity.

Winners for the Michigan Week Poster Contest will be pictured in next week's Northland Press. This was certainly a very hard job for our judges as there were many lovely and very original entries.

Anniv. dinner set for June 10th

A. L. Drapeau

East Jordan - At our meeting of May 27, twenty-six members were present. Alta Drapeau gave an excellent report on the district meeting at Lake City, May 14. The East Jordan delegation enjoyed the trip and already an interest is being shown in next year's session to be held at Big Rapids. June 10th has been set as the date of our anniversary dinner.

A letter from the National Council of Senior Citizens was read and it was agreed that the East Jordan Club apply for a charter.

Recently an article in a Charlevoix paper stated that a post office was established in East Jordan in 1869. During the discussion regarding a centennial observance of this event it was revealed that the building now owned by the city and occupied by Mrs. May Heinzelman was the original post office. Discussion on this subject will continue. Collaboration with East Jordan's recently chartered Lions Club regarding the sponsorship of a leader dog was suggested. A. L. Drapeau was appointed to confer with officers of the Lions Club.

Guests at our meeting were

what's a funny place for a phone?

That depends on your sense of humor. If interrupting your washing or ironing to rush upstairs to answer the telephone leaves you breathless, then an extension telephone makes good sense.

An extension telephone saves steps and lets you do your telephoning from where you are. You can select from many smart styles and decorative colors.

Call your Michigan Bell Business Office or ask your telephone man. For as little as ninety-five cents a month (plus tax) you can have an extension telephone in any funny old place you'd like.

stupid things. After all, I've had 16 years of this. I know about you and your kooky ideas. Now tell me at once!"

"As a matter of fact I will," I said. "And it does pertain to your mother."

"Oh no," Old Ironsides said. "You're not going to save marshmallow bags and give 5,000 at one time to her. You're not going to line her flowerbeds with marshmallows? You're not going to cut the plastic bags into strips, weave them together and make her a car coat?"

"Dear, I'd never do such a stupid thing as that," I interjected.

"What are you going to do then?"

"I didn't really give your mother a good Mother's Day present, so I thought I'd try to cook up the world's largest marshmallow and give it to her, to show her I cared."

"Shades of corn starch and dextrose," my patient wife screamed, "how big a marshmallow do you intend to make?"

"Well," I said, "the size of things is sometimes gauged by the feelings I have for your mother. If I made a 10 pound one, she'd appreciate it. If I made a 50 pound one, she'd probably think I cared some. But if I made a 250 pounder, she'd know I really cared."

I am writing this from our back shed. If there is any home in Boyne City that would let me cook a 250 pound marshmallow please let me know. My mother-in-law is patiently waiting for one and her daughter won't let me make it.

East Jordan Brownies "fly-up" to scouting

Girls taking part in the Brownie "Fly-Up", under the leadership of Mrs. Howard Best and Mrs. Stanley Hayes, were Sandra Baker, Kim Chak, Jeanne Best, Merrie Blekken, Diane Fowler, Donna Brownell, Becky Bundy, Jamie Burrows, Janice Clark and Vicki Drenth.

Others were Pamela Dressel, Donna Fisher, Tina Fitch, Ruth Ann Hayes, Lori Hilliker, Wanda Leaman, Jerrilyn McKenney, Nora M'sner, Jennifer Burkey and Susan Purroll. Still others were Debbie Rebec, JoAnn Reid, Donna Sheridan, Joan Walter, Michelle Seelye, Donna King and Barbara Umlor. All these girls participated in activities that led to their "Fly-Up", which included learning the Girl Scout Laws and Promise.

Local Scouts recently went on a weekend camp out with Mrs. Chandler Benton at the Girl Scout Camp located outside of Charlevoix. Girls from Troop 284, including some of Mrs. Albert Slate's and Mrs. Tom Sheridan's patrol, took part in the weekend of fun and learning.

Other activities on the agenda for local Scouts are a trip to Fort Michilimackinac on June 7 for all the Brownies and a trip to Mackinac Island for the Juniors and Cadets on June 11th.

Cadets from East Jordan will be attending a "Cadet Caper" at Camp Sakekawaaw on Bass Lake near Traverse City on June 20-21. There will be over 100 girls and their leaders participating in a weekend of camping with other Cadets from all over the 11th district.

"FLY-UP" ceremonies for East Jordan third grade Brownies were staged by Mrs. Stanley Hayes (left) and Mrs. Howard Best.

Your Better Health Solution for "mono" is getting closer

Walter Alvarez, M.D.

There is new hope for a solution of some of the problems about infectious mononucleosis - a common disease usually of young people. For years, of course, many research workers have thought that the cause must be a virus, but nothing could ever be grown from the blood or tissues of a patient.

of cream that can be rubbed in the hairless areas. In these cases, he has given up the use of corticosteroids by mouth or by injection. Often the best thing the doctor can do, especially when a child loses his hair, is quickly to have the parents buy him a wig, so that he will be much happier. Tranquilizers will sometimes help.

Then recently it was found that antibodies to a virus that can be isolated from the Burkitt's lymphoma (a cancerous disease) are produced by most patients suffering from infectious mononucleosis. Also, a cell culture of this virus, injected into volunteers, has produced infectious mononucleosis. More work must still be done, to make sure that the E.B. virus is the cause of the mononucleosis. This virus is something like that which causes shingles. The E. and B. represent the initials of the two men who first described the virus. If a protective vaccine can now be made, infectious mononucleosis may be wiped out as polio recently was wiped out. We can be hopeful.

As to treatment, Dr. Eyles says that the judicious use of steroids (cortisone-like medicines) can return the student to his classes a little earlier than if he were not treated with such medicine. It is important that for a while, the student not engage in active athletics, especially football or basketball, until his spleen is definitely back to normal size. This is because a big soft spleen can be ruptured.

The most important and hopeful thing I can say is that when a woman comes in to tell me that her hair is coming out in comb-falls, my first question is, "Did you have some emotional or physical shock, some 3 months ago, such as the death of a loved one, an operation, or the labor of a childbirth?" Often she will say, "That's right; 3 months ago I had a hysterectomy," (or "my fiancé decided to marry another girl"); then I can reassure her and tell her, "Do nothing; wait a bit, and your hair will almost certainly come back. It died 3 months ago, and new hairs have just finished pushing the old dead hairs out of the follicles (tiny pits in which each hair grows)."

Fortunately, the disease is usually mild. As Dr. T. E. Eyles, of the Health Service at the University of Georgia in Athens, Georgia, recently wrote, some experts in university health services say that as soon as the student is over his or her fever, he may as well get out of bed and go back to work.

Physicians have long puzzled over the fact that the disease seems to be not very infectious. For instance, a student can get the fever, when his pal, who lives in the same room with him, does not get it. But according to recent observations, the inference is that most people probably had the infection in their childhood without much fever or any trouble, and hence they are immune. In describing the symptoms,

Dr. M. J. Tye of Boston writes in Postgraduate Medicine that the cause of the sudden loss of hair from the scalp, either complete or patchy, is not always known. It looks at times as if emotional distress had had something to do with it. The sudden loss of hair can certainly cause great emotional shock; sometimes hair goes off the rest of the body, too.

Muddled approach

A week ago headlines in the state's press sprouted with such messages as:

"Tax Board Hikes Schools and Cuts County But Both Get More."

"State Aid Down but School Revenues Up."

The headlines merely detailed the actions of the annual county tax allocation board meetings.

This is the constitutional action in which representatives of county, school, township, and intermediate school districts set down to review budgets and scramble for the 15 mills of tax money which the state says is the limit of funds that can be assessed for operation of local governmental units.

In general, we can safely say that throughout the state, the movement was up. The reasons are too detailed for comment, but they are involved with such factors as higher property valuations, greater local support due to decreased state aid, and other factors.

However, in Emmet County, they do things differently -- if not mysteriously.

Mrs. Martha Drake, member of the Petoskey school board, who served as the "school representative" on the Emmet allocation board championed and introduced a motion which passed successfully that could only be considered as contrary to the usual conception of a school delegate's action.

After reviewing the budget requests submitted, she introduced a motion which reduced the Charlevoix - Intermediate school district by .02 mills, from .20 to .18 mills.

This, in effect, because of the loss of state matching funds, deprived the Intermediate District of $8,000, while the Emmet County government gained $1,874.

Balancing one sum against another, the net loss to local government was $6,126 since in any total concept of public expenditure the total revenue has to come from one pocket or another.

Mystified by the Petoskey News-Review's account of the tax allocation board meeting, I called Mrs. Drake to ask why, in view of the fact that school support trends were upward throughout most of the state, she had championed the movement to downgrade the local district's customary allotment.

She stated that in reviewing the budget submitted by the Charlevoix - Emmet Intermediate District, there was a request for $10,000 in film strips for the visual education program.

She stated that the district did not show $3 to $4 thousand that it was supposedly receiving from school districts for film and other visual aids. She stated that this should have been listed as income.

"Of course, we have such activities as The Child Guidance Clinic and the Children's Aid Fund which should receive support from the county too," Mrs. Drake said.

"They (the Intermediate

School District) have a huge administrative budget of $58,000 compared to the Child Guidance Clinic's budget of only $15,000.

"Then, of course, most of the activities of the district seemed to be centered in Charlevoix, and Emmet County doesn't seem to figure much in the district's activities," Mrs. Drake said.

"The Intermediate District has a librarian, a clerk, and 2 secretaries and educational co-ordinators." She added that she felt some balance should be maintained between the counties.

Mrs. Drake continued:

"There also seems to be a great deal of resentment between our local teachers and the members of the district staff. They are better paid, and a lot of them are done working by 3 o'clock in the afternoon, while our teachers must put in a full day."

Do you suppose the money that was saved by dropping the .02 mills to .18 mills will be turned over to the Child Guidance Clinic for its support?

"Yes, I think that it will," Mrs. Drake said.

Queried concerning Mrs. Drake's statement that administrative expenses were unusually high, Chas. A. Robinson, superintendent of the district, said:

"Yes, we have a high administrative expense because we are primarily an administrative organization, but our expenses are very much in line with other districts throughout the state. As a matter of fact, many many districts have higher millage appropriations than we do.

In succession, he responded to Mrs. Drake's statements by pointing out:

--Mrs. Drake, in March, had approved the district's budget intent for an appropriation of .20 mill.

--The $3 to $4 thousand Mrs. Drake claimed as revenue for film aids from the school districts was actually money being repaid the Intermediate District for films the district had purchased on a matching agreement with the schools. "Mrs. Drake was aware of this arrangement," he said.

--Six out of 9 of the major activities of the district are carried on in Emmet County, 4 programs for the educable mentally handicapped, 1 for the trainable mentally handicapped, and 1 for the crippled, or physically handicapped.

--Thirty nine per cent of the revenues for the operation of the district come from Emmet County, 47 per cent of the revenues for the district come from Charlevoix County, while 10 per cent are from Antrim and 3 per cent from Cheboygan. Seventy per cent of the district's funds go to the Petoskey district for the programs carried on there.

--The Intermediate District would be happy to invite salary comparisons with the disgruntled members of the Petoskey faculty.

While the sound and the fury of these charges and rebuttal add up to what in our

Hunting Herman's ashes

Gregg Smith

We note with great interest that the man on the Lapeer County Press, "Old Fitz," which also happens to be his favorite brand, is becoming bored with 4-letter words employed by graffiti artists.

In the interest of avoiding the monotonous as well as adding a certain degree of sophistication to 4 letter words, I'd like to be the first to suggest that the higher order of graffiti authors simply upgrade their product by adding an "e" to all their 4-letter words.

Look what it did for "Ye Nyme Olde Holles," the most unbelievable title for any golf course anywhere. It made that Charlevoix County course famous. In the realm of 4-letter words it could also do wonders to recreate interest in smokehouse poetry.

A young lady of our acquaintance, (and the older we get, the fewer young ladies we know) tells a ribald, but true tale, of the demise of her great uncle Herman.

Since I've always been an advocate of cremation, her story intrigues me no end, and because she's still a minor, I must refrain from disclosing her identity.

She hasn't cleared the release of this skeleton from the family's tree, with her parents.

But after a long and frugal life, the very industrious Herman whose chief vice was taking on an overload of schnapps every Saturday night, finally departed this world.

He had paid his schnapps bill at the corner saloon, and had, in fact, left quite a sizeable fortune -- along with a request that it be turned over to his sisters and that his body be cremated.

He also donated his ashes to his sisters.

They forthwith set out for St. Louis, Mo. to pick up Herman's ashes and Herman's cash.

Grief stricken, and with a sense of impending death that is the fate of us all, they sought a bit of alcoholic solace themselves as they set forth (in easy stages) for the return trip to Michigan.

Having become additionally affluent, the trip homeward was made partially by taxi, by bus, and by inter-urban railway as they hedge-hopped from saloon to saloon in an effort to assuage their grief.

In addition to Uncle Herman's favorite beverage, schnapps, they sampled an assortment of other alcoholic delights.

They tried bourbon with gin chasers; mestic; anise; manhattans (martinis mixed with Manhattans); they mixed rock and rye with sloe gin and soda.

After rounds and rounds of such exotic creations as zombies and coca-bolos, they arrived back at Advance, Michigan (obviously a spurious address) in an advanced state of embalment.

Following a somewhat painful withdrawal period during which the pink elephants left the pasture; the centipedes cleared out of the bed sheets; and the big, black tarantulas, and snakes had cleared from their bleary minds, they made a sad discovery.

Somewhere enroute between there and here, the poor old spinsters had mislaid Brother Herman's ashes.

Try as they might, from that date to the day of their death, they couldn't recall where they had left Herman's urn.

And now, if in your travels westward, you should ever run into a saloon keeper with an unidentified urn of ashes, please be kind enough to inform this publication and we shall have done our civic bit in aiding the grief stricken descendants of Poor

Letters to the Editor

No thanks due to Circuit Control

Ninety nine percent of the people of East Jordan know the story of the Poppy - and what it stands for as was evidenced when the American Legion Auxiliary took in $367.00 during Poppy Days.

For those that have doubts, just come with us to Battle Creek or any other VA Hospital to meet the guys that make this little flower. Not only are they from W. W. I and II, but Korea and now Vietnam.

We received the kindest treatment from the East Jordan Iron Works, Mt. Clemens Metal Products, East Jordan Tool and Die, and Multi-Cut Tool, who made arrangements for the girls to be escorted through their plants to sell poppies.

However, when a call was made to Circuit Controls for permission to stop there, a man, who refused to be identified, replied to their question of going through

Is this what our sons and husbands are fighting for? We realize, going through plants is not always the best or easiest way for companies to co-operate, but when we are refused to even stand on the grounds, it is not only an insult to our organization, but to the Veterans that died for all of us.

We thank again the companies that did co-operate, the business places that let us display our posters, and Colwell Agency for letting us use their window for the Poppy Display, and to all the people of the community for their support.

"If It Fitz. . ."

Personal problems got to me

By Jim Fitzgerald

As I type this, Williw Horton is back in leftfield for the Detroit Tigers and I am back at my typewriter, as any fool can plainly see.

Willie walked out in the middle of the 7th inning. I quit on a Tuesday morning, about half way through editing that week's issue of my favorite weekly newspaper.

I went home and into seclusion, locking the bathroom door behind me. My family stood outside and begged me to get back on the job.

"The publisher just called," my wife said. "He has suspended you without pay until you return. It is costing you $8.73 a day to sit in there."

"Walter Cronkite just said on TV that you quit because you couldn't stand all the insulting letters-to-the-editor," my daughter said. "Especially the one from your mother."

"Yeah," added my son, "and Joe Garagiola said you are unhappy here and want to be traded to the Detroit Free Press. He said you're mad because your publisher won't pay your bar bill at the country club."

"There's a little boy at the back door and he's crying," my wife said. "He says you've got to get back on the job or the newspaper just won't be the same. And he'll never get the $2.50 you owe him for cutting our lawn."

My assistant pounded on the door. "The newspaper is in terrible shape without you," he said. "I remembered that you don't use periods after Mr. Dr. and Jr. but I forgot how you get rid of all those unused periods. They are rolling all over the floor and people are tripping."

"All your close friends are on the front porch," my wife said. "They both said to tell you the whole town is behind you. Those people who spit at you and throw rocks at your car don't really mean it. It is just their way of saying they love you, Jimmie, and they know you can do better."

"Yeah," added my son, "just go back and write something decent for a change and things will be ok again."

A note was slipped under the bathroom door. It was from Professor Gilmartin who taught me everything I know about writing, who encouraged me to enter the newspaper game, and who has always given me wise advice when I've been troubled. I've always said that Professor Gilmartin has been like a father to me, even if she is a woman.

Unfortunately, I couldn't read Professor Gilmartin's writing. But I shall always treasure her note.

After 4 days, I went back to work. "I wasn't mad at my readers or my boss and I don't want to be traded. I love it here," I explained. "The pressure of personal problems simply got to be too much. But I feel fine now after 4 days in the bathroom, near my Right Guard and my Listerine and my Crest."

Junkin' column shocked me

Dear Editor:

I read many things in your paper of last week. Some of them I quite agree with.

But 'Junking with Barb' shocked me. I and my family own a considerable amount of rural property.

And we had never felt it was free plunder for every one. We have had the houses broken into and contents scattered and some stolen. Bulbs dug out of the yard etc. We felt the people who did this were trespassers and thieves. And we would consider anyone digging for bottles etc. the same.

We pay taxes on this property and I am sure any court of law or policeman would feel we have our rights.

Also Chestonia was south of the picture in your paper week before last. That mill was built there in just the last few years.

I am a native of this vicinity the last 65 years.

Boyne City Little League and Babe Ruth goers need only to look at Andy Bogema's pharmacy ad this summer, to find out who's playing who, at what time and where. The baseball schedule is another public service from druggist Andy Bogema, who during the school year sponsors cafeteria menus. As president of the local Chamber of Commerce, Bogema also helps sponsor mushroom contests, even if he can't find them himself. No charge for that last squib. . .

Last week's East Jordan FFA Banquet photos failed to include at least one picture of the girls who were responsible for the affair -- namely the members of the FHA (Future Homemakers of America). Sandra Schuette, home ec. teacher, called to remind us that the dinner meeting was for both FFA and FHA groups, and that the girls did prove one thing to the boys -- they can cook, even if it's only once a year.

But a good friend was killed in Vietnam this year. And another young man we much admire is forever helpless in a veterans hospital, a big part of him drained into a rice paddy. And somehow we don't feel like writing the usual poem to our heroes, past, present or future.

The truth is, right now, we are sick up to here with all the trappings of war and this includes the so-called glory which is relished by so many organized breast-beaters. Sometimes we wonder if the war-spawned organizations don't make too much of battlefield heroics. Sure, it is ok to remember and to appreciate and to have parades and to make speeches. But sometimes we see chips teetering on the shoulders of men who hate war but, 'by God, I blasted holes in those yellow Japs and I'd love to do the same thing to those lousy commies.'

War should be remembered only for what it is -- a ghastly, uncivilized, barbaric insult to the intelligence and humanity of man. Nothing else. There can be no real glory in killing, for whatever reason. It can be self-defense; it can be justified; it can be patriotic. But it should never be the 'wonderful adventure' which is too often romanticized in stupid John Wayne movies or at beery gatherings of old veterans.

Older men start wars, young men fight them, and innocent civilians suffer if they should be unlucky enough to live where the bombs fall. The killing ends when some stuffed shirts finally reach an agreement they could have reached 60,000 deaths earlier. It is this incredible foolishness which we choose to remember this Memorial Day.

Yes, we also remember the fallen servicemen and we don't for a second question the magnitude of their contribution and sacrifice. But this is obvious. Everyone with half a brain remembers and regrets and curses the loss of all the fine young men. Most of us have been properly pious and mournful for lo, these many Memorial Days. As we should be. But has it done any good? The more we remember, the more there is to remember, and you probably know a grandmother who has lost loved ones in 4 different wars within 50 years.

So this Memorial Day, we're remembering things like this: Russia now has enough nuclear strength to wipe out the world once. The U.S. has enough to wipe it out 5 times. And the military-industrial combine wants to build more and more weapons. What kind of a civilization is this?

The logical way to stop the killing is total disarmament, nuclear and popgun. Sure, it sounds like a pipedream. But, with the proper leadership, it could be done. That leadership must come from the nation with the most firepower and brainpower, the United States. The U.S. must rehash the ingenuity that puts men on the moon and total devastation under a push button. A Utopia with no tools of war is far in the future. But it must be there, and this nation must work toward it, or there'll be no future.

Let's replace Memorial Day with Disarmament Day.

Postmistress honored at open house

Vanderbilt's present Postmaster, Mrs. Jack Dickhout was given a surprise open-house send-off at Union Pier, Michigan, recently when 300 members of the community gathered to wish her well in her new venture and honor her for 25 years of civic service. Here, shown with a huge plaque presented to her by the Union

igan Postmaster's Association; served as sergeant-at-arms for 7 national conventions of the National Postmasters Association; collaborated in co-authoring the national association's public relations manual; and in 1961 instigated the idea of an annual state postmaster's training school, a movement that has now spread to 46 states. At Union

Pier she served in many civic capacities: New Buffalo Women's Club president, Band Parents Club, county March of Dimes Chairman, as a director of Blossomtime, Inc. Mrs. Dickhout worked briefly at the Gaylord post office after joining her husband in Boyne City prior to taking over the post of Vanderbilt postmaster.

Herman - - the man with the lost ashes.

Ere we close this true, but somewhat fanciful tale, let it be known also that Herman enjoys a kind of immortality as the result of this ill-fated mishap.

His descendants from that date to this, always greet any member of the family who comes in late at night, staggering, and bleary eyed with the sarcastic question: "I suppose you've been out hunting for Herman's ashes?"

All of this just proves my contention that cremation has more survival value than even a high-priced tombstone. No one ever asks you if you've been out looking for a tombstone.

Auto dealers of Charlevoix County missed a rare opportunity a few weeks ago when GM announced the passing of the Corvair. Al Sinclair, of Boyne City, and Bill Fochtman, of Charlevoix, the locally franchised dealers could have donned themselves in black as chief mourners; their sympathetic rivals, Bill Kusina, Bill Battiste, and Jack Dickhout, could have joined the rites as the singing choir. And we would have been on hand with camera to record the event for posterity. Man what publicity! - - No charge for the free plug, lads.

The ideal secretary has been defined many times. Here's the way she was described in a recent U.S. Department of State newsletter:

"She should be young enough to start at the lowest salary, thus leaving room for promotion; but near enough to retirement age so no other office will try to take her away; able to spell the words I use, but not those of anyone else; efficient and accurate enough so she does all my come along and marry her; sensible enough so that she uses good judgment in all her duties, but good work for anyone else; attractive and cheerful enough so she brightens up the office, but not so much that some guy will stay on the job."

opinion is political hanky-panky, let not all Emmet County householders be greatly disturbed since the cost is very minute.

An Emmet householder assessed at $10,000 now saves 4 cents per year. The Intermediate School district is the great loser in more than terms of pennies.

Fortunately one member of the Emmet Allocation Board, Sebron Litzenburger voted against the proposed millage reduction; other Emmet county educators were sorry to observe the political rift too.

"Rather than see the district penalized, I'd rather we'd raise our own millage. To us, it means no more than the cost of one typewriter, but the benefits are manifold greater," said Martin Mang, superintendent of the Pells-ton school.
