

To elect officers for Grandvue Women's Auxiliary

A seven year old Vanderbilt youngster, Brett VanSickle, son of the Robert VanSickles, seemed none the worse for his recent experience. He wandered away from the family's rural cottage in Hudson Township just before dark recently and spent the night lost in a nearby swamp area known to have countless mudholes filled with water as the result of the heavy rains.

The child wandered out of the woods, spent the night in a car on a farm and during the morning made his way to the farm house four miles north of Gaylord near Huffman Lake.

State Police from several area posts and other law enforcement officers joined in the search for the child.

The Charlevoix Community Chest Board has adopted a budget of $19,414 for 1969. The fund drive, however, will raise $17,914 after funds on hand were applied to this year's budget needs.

William Peck of Ironton is president of the Chest. Charles England will head the forthcoming fund drive.

Archeologists from Michigan State University, headed by Charles Clellan, an associate professor of anthropology and curator at the MSU Museum, have unearthed ancient Indian settlements along Lake Michigan.

The 'villages' actually are camp sites where a small number of Indians of an unidentified tribe camped while traveling along the lake. The first camp is located at the mouth of a small creek where it empties into Lake Michigan.

Officers of the newly organized Grandvue Medical Care Facility will be elected at an organizational meeting to be held at the facility Thursday, July 10, Mrs. A. E. Steinbrecher, acting chairman of the group, has announced.

A nominating committee of Mrs. Joseph Wilkins, chairman, Mrs. Arthur Thompson of East Jordan, Mrs. Harry Griffin of Walloon Lake, Mrs. Steinbrecher, Mrs. Louie Manglos, and Mrs. Ernest Dietze of Boyne City will present a slate of officers.

Mrs. Charles Groover, president of the Michigan Association of Hospital Auxiliaries, will be present to address the group and to assist with the organization of the auxiliary.

The constitution committee composed of Mrs. Floyd Chamberlain, Mrs. George Plumm and Mrs. Robert Neff, all of Charlevoix, will also present a constitution and by-laws for consideration.

The steering committee met recently at the facility. Others present were, Mrs. Ray Uhlinger of East Jordan and Mrs. Royal (Hilda) Watkins of Boyne City, superintendent of the facility.

Pete Green of Birmingham, who has been participating in the Michigan Amateur Golf Championship for 13 years, defeated 19 year old Mike Fedewa of Portland, Western Michigan University junior, 2-up to win the Michigan Amateur for the first time.

Green defeated Dick Drager, Jr. of Roseville and Fedewa won over Gene Hunt of Grand Blanc to go into the finals.

The City of Charlevoix has renewed fire protection and ambulance service contracts for the coming year with all but one unit, Eveline Township located on the west side of the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix which did not want ambulance service.

The township units participating in the service pay six-tenths of a mill for fire protection and one-tenth for emergency unit (ambulance) service.

The Charlevoix Board of Education has announced an austerity budget which will eliminate sports, vocational education, band, Co-op and other less programs and all extra-curricular activities from its program.

Sports and band boosters groups immediately asked to meet with the board to ask if these two programs could be returned to the curriculum if they were underwritten by public subscription. The board will hand down its decision at a later date. There is also some talk of lessening the millage request from 3.75 mills.

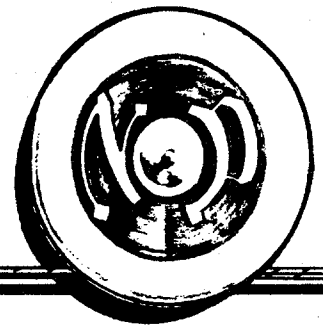

Billy Grieves of Detroit was elected commander of the Michigan Chapter of Submarine Veterans of World War II at the organization's annual convention held in Charlevoix. He succeeds Warren Stien of Ionia.

Tom Stewart of Petoskey has been named head golf pro at Walloon Lake Country Club. He is a former assistant pro at the same course and for the past three summers was assistant at the Wequetonsing Golf Club at Harbor Springs.

He will be assisted by Myron Lick of Boyne Falls.

Camp Charlevoix, located on the north side of Lake Charlevoix, four miles east of Charlevoix, opened Saturday for its 44th season. The nationally (continued on page 12)

Senior Citizens

Senior citizens ready for Jordan festival

A. L. Drapeau

The Snowmobilers' Club House was again the meeting place of the East Jordan Senior Citizens. Thirty members attended the meeting.

For several of us, it was the first visit and, of course, the new building interested and impressed us; its rustic, weathered-board panelling, heavy, built-up trusses, and centrally-located forge-like, field stone-veneered barbecue pit caused quite a lot of complimentary remarks. We certainly enjoyed our visit and we are grateful to the snowmobilers for its use. The business meeting was shortened some after which recreation ensued. During the meeting, however, Bertha Raveau reported that the float was about done, and in response to a request for help from the parade officials several volunteered to assist in getting the parade under way. Marie Woodcock is still busy acquiring names and addresses of BoysTown G.I.'s in Vietnam. Alta Drapeau, secretary pro-tem read a letter regarding the charter, which we will receive from the National Council of Senior Citizens in the near future. Glen Snyder is now our newest member. Agnes Hegerberg has returned home from a stay at Charlevoix Hospital. Visitors were Bernice Fowler and Ruth Roberts - both from our area. Our next meeting - July 8, will again be at the Snowmobilers' Club. All area Senior Citizens are welcome.

Northland Churches Invite You To Worship

It's your privilege...

Here in America no one tells you that you have to work. Of course, when you do, you and your family enjoy self-respect as well as material benefits. No one tells you, either, when or how you must play. But, when you take time for occasional recreation, you become refreshed, alert and ready for more work. And no one tells you that you must worship the Lord, your God, regularly. But, when you do, you and your family are immeasurably blessed. His mercy and loving-kindness will embrace your life. Knowledge of His infinite goodness and confidence in His eternal vigilance and love will sustain you at all times. These blessings, and more, are yours so long as you keep alive the glorious American privileges of freedom to work, play and worship as you choose.

Goldbrick writing still too much luxury for business warriors

Russ Metz

An ad on television has convinced me I have no business writing business letters. If you can believe the pitch put out by the machine advertised, a letter costs even more than an expense-account lunch.

I believe the figure was something like $2.45. Anyhow, it was enough to convince me that I can no longer afford to write any letters. My welfare check cannot stand the gaff. It also raised the question in my mind whether all this writing, especially at high speed, is necessary.

Certainly the caveman who started this writing business did not intend to create a $2.45 monster. He was probably just chinking the cracks in his wall with some vermillion mud, when his wife was on a redecorating binge. Ever since then man has had an inner compulsion to write something down even if it is only his initials on restroom walls.

Writing is an art developed by the gold-brickers of the race. The Assyrian with his clay tablets was not out drag racing in his war chariot or carving off earblades of his enemies. He left this chore to more energetic types. The Egyptian scribe was not out there lugging those big rocks across the sand dunes. He was marking things down on a papyrus. The Roman with his wax slate and the medieval monk with his inkhorn and scabbard of pens was not up to some useful work like planting turnips.

It has now come to the point where writers have now developed computers to write for them. These machines are equipped not only with typewriters but with the writer's temperament, and occasionally one of them rebels and spells out "I write the way I please."

All this compulsion to write is mental disturbance because anybody who has tried it knows that writing never pays. It has to be subsidized by some rich English lord or a toothpaste manufacturer.

It is about time, however, to quit yielding to the childish impulse to write, to stamp out the whole practice. The human race cannot afford to throw away $2.45 every time it turns around. Things have a habit of snowballing and the first thing you know a business letter will cost you $10 to order a simple three-dollar forbesetter. And anyone with any business sense at all can tell you paying that much for a forbesetter will drive you to the wall.

Since writing has a narcotic effect on many people, it ought to be controlled like dope. That way, it would force the most dedicated addict back to his musty garret, where masterpieces were produced.

When Nathaniel Hawthorne lost his government job, he went home dejected and almost desperate because when you can't hold down a spot at the public trough, you are in bad shape. His wife, after a cooling period, instead of sympathizing with him too much, set pen and ink on the table and put a fire in the grate. Then she said:

"Now you will be able to write your book."

He began to write and the world was enriched with "The Scarlet Letter."

It's probably no wonder we don't find many great writers today. You can't hardly find a wife who will fire the furnace these days.

How unlucky can a guy be. I'll tell you. I'm among the 20% who do not dream in color.

The fact that I have only black and white television I took in stride, shrugging it off as an occupational concession. Then I learned that 80% of people-types dream in technicolor and my world had crumbled down on drab old dad.

Still, it could be a blessing in disguise. Some of the dragons that have chased me through the swampland of dreams have scared the pajamas right off me. I'd hate to think how frightening they would appear in natural color.

According to a doctor in the dream lab of Brooklyn's Maimonides Medical Center, you dream every night whether you are conscious of it or not. Those who do not dream are either drunk, drugged or have been dropped on their heads. Dreaming is an absolute necessity to good health, but no one can figure out why most are chaotic and disorganized.

Young adults spend about 25% of their sleeping time dreaming, while the proportion decreases to 20% among the elderly. The good doctor believes the dream represents a way for an individual to express his wishes and to work out his tensions. I disagree. I have never yet caught any beautiful blondes in my dreams because that turned dragon keeps blocking my path.

Authorities are divided on whether a dream has any significant meaning to the dreamer. In some cases, dreams have been associated with the individual's pattern of life. In my own particular case, that dirty old dragon looks a lot like the owner of a watermelon patch I once knew.

Along with not being wired for color, I do not have control of my dreams like some folks. Some can decide what they are going to dream about before they go to bed. Some can remember a pleasant dream one morning and decide to repeat the dream the next night. They are not always successful, however. And still others can control a dream while it is going on. I have found it rather hard to get control of a situation when you are running lickey split away from it. Dreams are thought to keep the brain in tune for its daily functions. My dream pattern has blown a fuse. My running legs are what's getting the tuning up.

Barking dogs and howling cats that interrupt your sleep also play havoc with your dream time leaving you physically and mentally tired the next morning. Booze and drugs also put your dreams on a binge which contribute towards your hung-up feeling. Coffee is not a dream killer.

Nightmares are horses of a different color. Dreams may be recalled by the individual, but when he has a nightmare, he seldom can remember what color nag kicked him in the head.

Some people have used dreams to become famous. Robert Louis Stevenson dreamed up Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde. Physicist Niels Bohr visualized the model of an atom in a dream and Elias Howe, after struggling for years to perfect the sewing machine, got the cue from a terrible dream. Some spear-waving savages captured him and threatened to cook him unless he invented a sewing machine in 24 hours. By the firelight he noticed the savages' spears had eye-shaped holes in the tips and immediately Howe had solved his bottleneck. He had been trying to make the machine sew with the thread running through the middle of the needle.

I haven't worked up anything more than a cold sweat over dreams but the experts say you can. When you first awaken in the morning, lie there and try to interrupt your dreams - if your wife will let you. Keep a diary of your dreams for a month and see if your subconscious is helping to solve your problems. Look for items in your dreams that might be symbolic, but avoid any hard and fast judgements. Before going to sleep concentrate several evenings on a certain problem. This is a way of encouraging creative dreams.

First thing you know, you can sell your color teevee, stop chasing real-life girls, quit smoking pot and butting your head against the establishment wall and go the full dream route.

Lucky you. It's back to dragonsville for me. Semper fidelis.

Definitely, "Knot for sale."

Straight Talk

What chance against such men

Tom Anderson

How was our freedom won, nearly 200 years ago? What manner of men were they who pledged their lives, their fortunes and their sacred honor that this nation under God should not perish?

Colonel Peter Horry, in his life of General Francis Marion, gives the answer in the following incident:

About this time we received a flag from the enemy in Georgetown, S.C., the object of which was to make some arrangements about the exchange of prisoners.

The flag-bearing officer was conducted blindfolded into Marion's encampment. Having heard great talk about General Marion, his fancy had naturally enough sketched out for him some stout figure of a warrior, such as Cornwallis himself, of martial aspect and flaming regimentals. But what was his surprise when led into Marion's presence, and the bandage taken from his eyes, he beheld in our hero a swarthy, smoke dried little man, with scarcely enough of thread-bare homespun to cover his nakedness!

Instead of tall ranks of gaily-dressed soldiers, a handful of sun-burnt, yellow-legged militiamen; some roasting potatoes, and some asleep, with their flintlocks and powder-horns lying by them on the logs. Having recovered a little from his surprise, he presented his letter to General Marion, who perused it and soon settled everything to his satisfaction. The officer took up his hat to retire.

"Oh no!" said Marion, "it is now about time of dining; and I hope, sir, you will give us the pleasure of your company to dinner."

At the mention of the word dinner, the British officer looked around him, but to his great mortification, could see no sign of a pot, pan, Dutch-oven, or any other cooking utensil that could raise the spirits of a hungry man. "Well, Tom," said the General, "our dinner will not prove so palatable to you as I would wish; but it is the best we have."

The officer, who was a well-bred man, took up one of the potatoes, and affected to feed, as if he had found a great dainty; but it was plain that he ate more from good manners than good appetite.

The Englishman said he "did not believe it would be an easy matter to reconcile his feelings to a soldier's life on General Marion's terms; all fighting, no pay, and no provisions but potatoes."

"Why, sir," answered the General, "the heart is all; and when that is once interested, a man can do anything. Many a youth would think it hard to indent himself a slave for 14 years. But let him be over head and ears in love, and with such a beautiful sweetheart as Rachael, and he will think no more of 14 years' servitude than young Jacob did. Well, now this is exactly my case. I am in love; and my sweetheart is LIBERTY. Be that heavenly nymph my companion, these woods shall have charm beyond London and Paris in slavery. To have no proud monarch driving over me with his gilt coaches; nor his host of excisemen and tax-gatherers insulting and robbing; but to be my own master, my own prince and sovereign; gloriously preserving my natural dignity, and pursuing my true happiness, planting my vineyards, and eating their luscious fruit; sowing my fields, and reaping golden grain; and seeing millions of brothers all around me, equally free and happy as myself - this sir, is what I long for."

The officer replied that both as a man and a Briton, he must subscribe to this as a happy state of things.

"Happy," quoth Marion, "yes happy indeed; and I would rather fight for such blessings for my country, and feed on roots, than keep aloof, though wallowing in all the luxuries of Solomon. For now, sir, I walk the soil that gave me birth, and exit in the thought that I am not unworthy of it. I look upon these venerable trees around me, and feel that I do not dishonor them. I think of my own sacred rights, and rejoice that I have not basely deserted them. And when I look forward to the long, long ages of posterity, I glory in the thought that I am fighting their battles. The children of distant generations may never hear my name; but still it gladdens my heart to think that I am now contending for their freedom, with all its countless blessings."

The Englishman hung his head and looked as if he had been the upbraiding ghosts of his illustrious countrymen, Sidney and Hampden. On his return to Georgetown, he was asked by Col. Watson why he looked so serious?

"I have cause, sir," said he, "to look so serious." "What?" Has Gen. Marion refused to treat?" "No, Sir." "Well then, has old Washington defeated Sir Henry Clinton, and broken up our arm?" "No, sir, not that neither; but worse." "Ah! What can be worse?"

"Why, sir, I have seen an

Due to the popularity of the American General and his officers, without pay, and almost without clothes, living on roots, and drinking water; and all for LIBERTY! What chance have we against such men?"

Outdoors With Gordie

Did you know -- fish prefer red?

Gordie Charles

We don't have any idea how much research went into the old statement that "gentlemen prefer blonds." In light of the fact that many of our male friends are very happily married to red-heads and brunettes (some of whom change colors occasionally) we are inclined to discount this theory completely.

As for another statement, we are more inclined toward belief: That's the one that says "fish prefer red."

Source of information for that one belongs to the American Society of Ichthyologists and Herpetologists. These are the guys who have made a life study of fish and why they act like fish act.

Among the many experiments the scaly crew has made was one with rainbow and brown trout. Both were strongly attracted by red and no other color. Another researcher found that red is a favorite color of black bass. Several other fish not found in our state were also extremely fond of red.

Most hatchery fish are raised on brownish food but oddly enough they, too, prefer red. The old theory that brightness attracts fish apparently does not hold water because fish don't seem to care too much for white or yellow, both of which are much brighter than red.

On the other hand, fish are more attracted by the sunny side of a red object than to the dark side.

Another old notion has been exploded by the society. This one concerns the idea that fish can only see color if it is in the water. When different colored corks were suspended over a hatchery pond, the fish all gathered under the red one.

So fish like red. Just what does all of this really prove?

Well, we suppose it shows that fishermen should possibly be investigated by some federal agency for their inhumanity to fish by forcing the finny ones to strike lures they don't particularly like. Possibly, though, this is just in the category of the kid who will finally eat his spinach if you don't give him anything else to eat till he cleans up his plate.

Or maybe we should look at it from an entirely different viewpoint. Maybe the guy who refuses to fish with red lures is the real sportsman, realizing that anybody can catch fish on a red bait. Perhaps he gets his kicks out of passing up the sure-fire red and creates extra joy for himself by catching his trophies on silver spinners, copper spoons and green and yellow plugs.

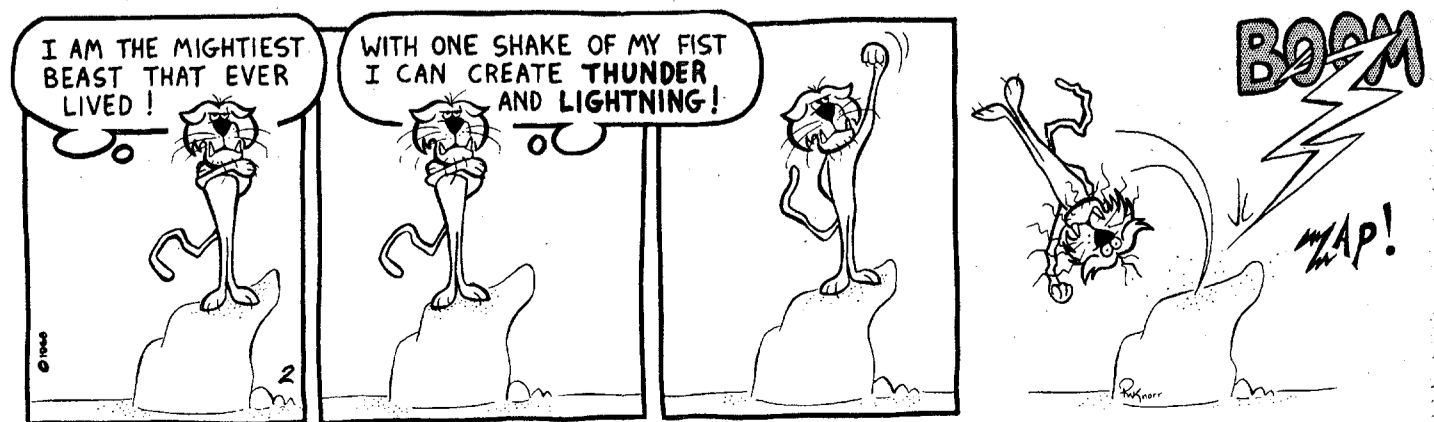

We doubt, however, if the American Society of Ichthyologists and Herpetologists would agree with us on that.

A New Mexico hunting regulation fascinates us. Did you know squirrels there are classed as big game? As such, it costs a non-resident 25 cents more to hunt squirrels than to hunt elk.

Years ago the N.M. Legislature classed tree squirrels with big game because all other small game there is birds. It was plain that a squirrel isn't a bird just because it lives in a tree. Therefore, it must be big game.

Eleven students named to Dean's List

Central Michigan University has named eleven students from Charlevoix County to the spring semester Honors List. To be eligible for the scholastic honors list, a student must have a cumulative grade point average of "B" or better for his entire college career.

A senior from Boyne City, Ronald Hausler and a sophomore from Boyne were both named to the honors list for their scholastic achievement.

Six seniors from Charlevoix who were named to the list are: James Curtis, Betty Klooster, Nancy Novak, Sherrel Pearsall, James Racignol and Janice Vandenberg.

Marjorie Harter, Theodore Jeffery and Annette Schenck, all of East Jordan, were named to the honors list.

The 1,277 students named to the honors list were among 10,865 enrolled at the University for the spring semester that ended June 6.

Named to Dean's List

Boyne City - Named to the Hope College Dean's List from Boyne City is Eileen Reus for her academic achievement during the second semester of the school year, 1968-69.

Eileen is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Leonard Reus.

Vacation costs are up for county families

New York, June 16 - To Charlevoix County families who will be spending their vacations this summer by taking automobile trips to the hinterlands, be prepared. Costs are up.

Food, gasoline, lodging for the night, tolls and sales taxes in many places will be found to be higher than in previous years.

Two years ago, according to a survey made then by the American Automobile Association, a day on the road cost about $36 per couple. Now, at today's prices, it takes nearly $41, it is estimated.

This assumes that they cover 300 miles a day and that they get 15 miles to the gallon of gas.

Thus, a two-week trip for two Charlevoix County people will cost approximately $574. And that is just for the necessities. It does not take care of any of the 13.6 cents that the AAA reported in 1967.

Most of it, $1,160, is for fixed costs, which have nothing to do with how much the car is used. This includes depreciation insurance and license fees.

The variable costs, chiefly for gas and oil, total $390 for 10,000-mile usage.

Based upon the 6,970 cars in operation locally, residents of Charlevoix County are spending some $10,804,000 a year in this direction.

The record number of cars in the area has also been a boom to local service stations. Their business volume in 1968 came to $2,586,000.

The facts and figures are based upon the latest reports from the Commerce Clearing House, the Bureau of Labor Statistics and others.

The $41-per-day budget breaks down to $15.50 for meals and snacks, or $2.50 more than in 1967, $13.00 for sleeping accommodations, $1 increase, $9 for gas and oil, also $1 more, and $3.50 for tips and miscellaneous, an increase of 50 cents.

In addition to the cost of a vacation being higher, the annual expense involved in the ownership and operation of a car has mounted considerably.

For the typical driver of a standard-sized car in the medium price range, driven 10,000 miles a year, it now comes to $1,550, it is estimated. The cost per mile, 15.5 cents, compares with outlays for amusements, souvenirs or admissions to places of interest.

Flag didn't start with Betsy in 1777

July 4th celebrations bring out fireworks, parades and flags. Different flags tell us different things. White indicates a truce and red tells of danger. The Weather Bureau, Immigration Service, Navy and even the Public Health Service have their own flags. Boys and girls in scouting can spell out words and sentences with two small square flags. As good citizens we should have a knowledge of one flag in particular - the flag of our country. But, to many Americans the story of our nation's flag is a mystery.

It would be very wrong to think that the story of the flag started with Betsy Ross in 1777. The full story begins at least 200 years earlier! The Pilgrims who came to Plymouth in 1620 had spent several years in Holland. The flag of Leiden, a town in Holland, was of 13 red and white stripes. Though it never became the national flag of Holland, it had a red strip for each of the 7 Dutch provinces and was flown by the Dutch Navy. Red and white stripes began to represent religious and political freedom to the people.

In 1643 Plymouth, New Haven, Massachusetts and Connecticut organized for defense against the Indians and flew a flag of 4 red stripes, representing each one of the colonies. In this way, the leaders expressed their thanks to Holland, which had sheltered them during their religious exile. By 1775 the flag had acquired 13 stripes as additional colonies were added. In England, this flag was called the "Rebellious Stripes". A small Union Jack, the flag of England, was added in the upper left-hand corner to show that the colonies recognized the mother country, but that they would not be suppressed by the laws of an unjust king.

After the Declaration of Independence, the Union Jack in the corner had no significance, so it was replaced by a symbol of our own union of 13 states. Why stars were chosen for this symbol is not quite certain; however, a resolution from Congress decreed that the official flag of the 13 United States was 13 red and white stripes and 13 white stars on a blue field representing a new constellation.

General Washington did come to Betsy Ross' shop in Philadelphia with a rough drawing.

The only changes that she suggested in the design were that the stars have 5 points instead of 6 and be placed in a circle. Her suggestions were accepted and the 1777 flag has always been known as the Betsy Ross flag. Eighteen years later, two more stars and stripes were added to include the new states of Vermont and Kentucky. This was the flag that was "so gallantly streaming" when The Star Spangled Banner was written.

As more states were added the question naturally arose as to whether the stripes as well as the stars should be increased. In 1818, Congress decreed that the flag should revert to the original 13 stripes and that a white star be added for each new state. This was to take effect on July 4th following the admission of the state to the union. The rule (continued on page 13)

Early American casualness reproduced in rambling Munson home

The white rambling cottage of the Munson family at 140 Lincoln Street in Boyne City has all the welcome warmth of summer sunshine. Just a stone's throw from downtown, but serene as an isolated country farmhouse, the charcoal gray shuttered home partially faced with sliced natural stone is accented by flower boxes of fire red petunias. Front patio rattan circle chairs sprayed gray and scalloped Dutch effect door adds that special cottage touch.

"Spring Morn" aptly describes a large painting, as well as the entire colonial living room. Pale yellow walls and a tapestry print couch blend with avocado soft carpeting and matching chair. Standing majestically in a corner, a Grandfather's clock, originally from an old Boyne City general store, reflects an authentic early American room. Next to a pillowed rocker is a sewing bucket basket, and a colonial dough box sides the couch. The finest rocker made years ago for Cindy Munson from a maple syrup bucket is now the cuddle spot for the family cat.

The entrance way bypassing the living room is of flagstone and a housewarming gift maple console with mirror from Mrs. Munson's brothers and sisters fits in perfectly with the antiqued brass ceiling fixture with flicker candle bulbs. Deep tone oak royal panelling is met half way up the dining room wall by a general store print wallpaper. Oatmeal nubby texture drapes have a slight tint of green to match the blue-green tweed carpeting and pull across a wide, wide paned picture window.

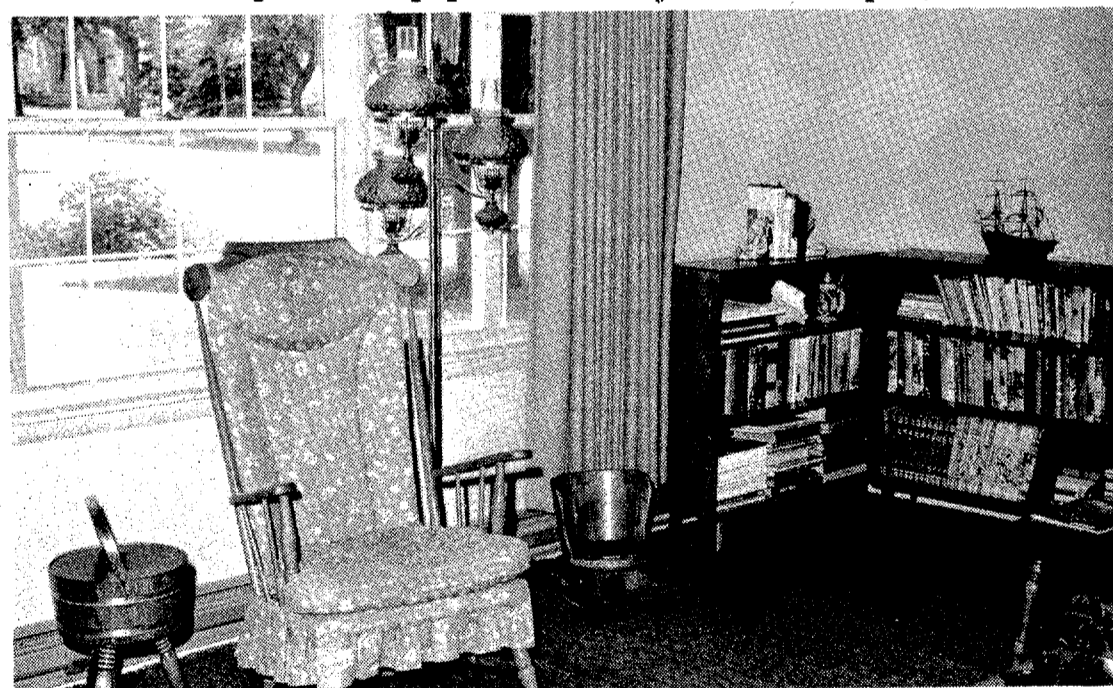

Old fashion glass candy jars, one embossed "Bunte", also came from the town general store and now serve as canisters on the pale turquoise, gold-flecked counter top. White eyelet curtains with a deep turquoise valance dramatize the tweed kitchen carpeting, as well as the oak royal cabinets. Emphatic red, white and blue in Cindy's room is climaxed by soft red furniture with white drawers and knobs, painted by the neatnik (P.S. not beatnik, Barb) teenager herself. Dark blue carpeting is accentuated even more by a mod pop art Campbell soup can night table! Another bedroom has fresh celery green carpeting and walls splashed bright by red twin bedspreads. A Jenny Lind maple bed with a soft flowered spread stands on deep scarlet carpeting in the third bedroom. Peacocks handpainted on black velvet by Mrs. Munson's mother decorate pale walls. One of the ceramic baths is smartly decorated in shades of blue and avocado, including a rich blue-berry oval sink and oval gold and white framed mirror.

Here in the Munson home the casual livability that was early America is reproduced, adding a seasoned beauty to their new thoroughly modern country cottage downtown.

The breakfast nook is a cheerful asset to the entire home with its colorful print wallpaper and nubby texture drapes.

A high-back rocker and colonial bookshelves in the living room reflect the cozy, early American look accented with shades of green.

Authentic old-fashioned candy jars catch the eye of visitors in Mrs. Munson's modern kitchen.

THE rambling Munson home is located at 140 Lincoln Street in Boyne City.

Story of Flag

has been followed ever since. Such is the story of the stars and stripes. Although stars have been added from time to time, our flag is the oldest national flag in existence, except for Den-marks. Hawaii's entrance brought the number of stars up to 50. The development of the flag from a pattern of stripes borrowed from the Dutch to a banner of 13 stripes and a blue canton of 50 stars has been a slow and difficult one. Americans should be proud to display old glory 365 days a year!

Food rates top spot in county

(Special to the Northland Press) Charlevoix - For Charlevoix County's retail merchants, 1968 proved to be a good year, the final figures show.

Because local families, as a whole, were in comparatively good financial shape and spent their money accordingly, expenditures for goods and services hit a new high.

The details are noted in the annual survey made by the Standard Rate and Data Service. It reveals just how much was spent locally for food, clothing, automobiles, furniture, drugs and other items.

Comparable data is given for communities in other parts of the country. In Charlevoix County, the figures show, food was in the top spot. Local residents spent more of their money in that direction than in any other.

Their expenditures in local grocery stores, meat markets, bakeries, delicatessens and other stores selling food for home consumption, came to a grand total of $7,557,000, an increase over the previous year's $7,228,000.

This was exclusive of the amount spent in restaurants and in other places where food and drink are consumed on the premises.

In effect, approximately 28 cents out of every dollar spent in local retail stores was for take-home food. This was more than in many localities.

In general, throughout the United States, 22 cents went for that purpose and, in the East North Central States, 21 cents.

What each family's food bill for the year would have amounted to, if the total were divided uniformly among the local population, would be $2,081 per family.

The report indicates that business was good in the area for most other types of retail business also.

Sales of cars and other automotive equipment, including boats and motorcycles, totaled $5,174,000, as against the previous year's $4,145,000.

General merchandise and department stores chalked up $760,000. In 1967 they did $566,000.

Sales of shoes, hats, coats and other kinds of wearing apparel came to $1,195,000, against the prior total of $940,000.

Stores selling furniture and other home equipment and furnishings grossed $1,715,000, as compared with their 1967 volume of $1,240,000.

Camp Greilick begins summer season

The 1969 season of Camp Greilick, Boy Scouts of America in Traverse City, got underway on June 16 when 185 Cub Scouts invaded the camp for a one day outing. During the two week long "Cub Days" more than 1,000 Cubs took part in the activities which included swimming, archery, and a nature hike through the camp.

Camp weather didn't seem to hinder boys from Pack 49 of Boyne City. Older Cubs who are part of the Webelos program cooked their lunch outside, while the remainder of the cubs ate in the Besser Hall dining area. The camp trading post, with its supply of candy and scout equipment was a favorite stop of the boys. The day's activity concluded with a campfire.

From June 18 through June 21, a training program for Senior Patrol Leaders was held at the camp. These Boy Scouts were put through a rigorous series of training sessions designed to improve their effectiveness as the boy leaders of their troops. While much of the training centered around the camp operation, they did participate in such activities as program planning and scout advancement that they can use anytime in their troops.

One of the highlights of the summer camping season is a week of camp in August for underprivileged boys. The program is under the sponsorship of the Traverse City Kiwanis Club, and is in its second year of operation. Anyone knowing of such a boy who would benefit from a week at scout camp, is encouraged to write to the council office: Scenic Trails Council, BSA, 2308 U.S. 31 North, Traverse City, Michigan 49684.

Forecast record 4th of July

Fourth of July festival chairmen in East Jordan and Boyne City are forecasting "bigger and better" parades and festivities in both communities this weekend.

Jordan Valley Festival parade chairman, Joe Wilkins, who has promoted East Jordan's three day festival into a celebration of gigantic proportions, has once again lured entries, queens and floats from all over the state for Saturday's parade. Among this year's three day festival features are a Kiddie's Day, soapbox derby, carnival, boat races, Northern Michigan's second annual dry drag snowmobile race, chicken barbecue and boat races. Highlight of the three day celebration will be Saturday's Jordan Valley Festival Parade, which each year gets larger. "We're the only community in the north that makes the 4th a three day celebration," said Wilkins. "This is our big event and we'd like to see everyone come to East Jordan sometime during the weekend. . ."

At Boyne City, chairman of the 4th celebration, Don Seamon, said that he's purchased the largest display of fireworks in the north for Friday night's spectacular. In addition, a pet show, grand parade, antique car display, girl's softball game, band concert and Independence Ball are on tap. And on Saturday, the Boyne Valley Lions Club will stage their first annual horse show. The show will be held just east of town, off M-75, and across the highway from Jim and Charlie's Auto Service.

Medical center enters active phase of drive

Boyer City - With an August 15th deadline, the board of directors of the Boyne Valley Medical Center, this week, launched an all-out drive to raise $25,000 to pay for the community's new medical and community center which will serve as the offices of Dr. Richard Mansfield who will open a practice here July 1st. While more than $25,000 is needed, that is the immediate figure that must be met if the project is to get "off the ground." Center directors have launched a flyer information sheet program that clearly explains their position, and have now called upon the entire Boyne region for support in their drive.

Donations for the medical center are being sought in Boyne City as well as Advance, Boyne Falls, Horton Bay, and Walloon Lake.

Any amount under $25 will be considered as a donation. Investors in the project may also aid by buying $25 non-interest bearing debentures in any amount.

A stipulation in the articles of incorporation for the medical center decrees that it cannot be sold until such time as the non-profit corporation which has sponsored its establishment supplies another clinic facility equally as good or better than the present establishment.

The price of the Beyer Bldg., located on East State Street was $19,500, and the board of directors of the clinic, authorized the purchase of $7,000 in medical equipment.

Dr. Richard Mansfield is to receive the use of the building for one year on a rent-free basis. He has made arrangements to purchase his own x-ray equipment.

The medical center is being dedicated in memory of the late Drs. Conkle and Litzenberger, and the board of directors are requesting that all persons who were delivered by either of the beloved doctors donate an extra dollar to aid the finance project.

Contributions may be made by sending them to Robert Prebble at the Northwestern State Bank, or to Box 216, Boyne City.

The corporation has applied to the Internal Revenue Service for permission to make all contributions deductible; debentures, of course, cannot be considered deductible. Request for debentures, or certificates, may also be made to Robert Prebble, care of the Northwestern State Bank.

Employees of the Top O'Michigan are donating one extra day at time and a half; UAW-1403 at Courter has already pledged over $1,500; organizations are staging their own fund raising programs such as the Lions' Horse Show, Fourth of July.

Swim school

East Jordan - All children 7 years and older interested in taking swimming lessons this year, are asked to register at the Tourist Park on Thursday, July 3rd, at 9:00 a.m. Registrants are also asked to bring their last year's completed course certificates.

Jordan dump to stay open

East Jordan -- The East Jordan city dump, which was slated to be closed July 1st, will stay open. Decision to keep the dump in operation came at Tuesday night's city council meeting.

Instead of its prior seven days a week schedule, the dump will be open Tuesdays, Thursdays, and Saturdays, from 10:00 a.m. to 8:00 p.m.

The city of East Jordan will continue to maintain the dump, and there will be no dumping fee. Councilmen formed a dump committee, headed by Bob Burkey, at Tuesday night's meeting to undertake a continual study of the dump operation. "We'll let it run the rest of the fiscal year, this way," said Burkey, "and see how it works out."

Various ways of running the city dump were discussed at Tuesday's meeting. They include (continued on page 5)

Commission to discuss ramp

Boyer City - James Muschell, of Cheboygan, an official of United Engineering Associates, will meet with the city commission, within the next week to discuss construction of the new $100,000 launching ramp to be constructed on N. Lake Street in time for the autumn salmon run.

In the meantime, City Mgr. Forbes Tompkins has disclosed that the Michigan Waterways Commission has scratched many of the proposed launching ramps throughout the state in the wake of the coho - D.D.T. scare, except the Boyne City project. Waterways Commissioner Wilson stated before the legislature that the ramp here was needed, in spite of salmon fishing considerations due to the ideal cruising qualities of the lake as well as its fine steelhead fishing grounds.

The city is awaiting permits for the start of construction from both the Corps of Army Engineers as well as the Conservation Department.

Final date for objectors to file complaints against the project was June 16th. City Mgr. Tompkins said that it was merely a matter of formality now, since to the best of his knowledge there were no objectors to the ramp by the federal deadline of June 16th and the state automatically issues such permits on their own projects if there is no objections from the Corps of Engineers.

The ramp will be constructed on city-owned property just north of the Essex Wire plant on North Lake Street. It will have accommodations for approximately 200 craft.

HILLBILLY HAVEN, Chipman's Plumbing and Heating entry from Boyne City, was a hit with parade goers at last year's Jordan Valley Festival Parade.

Jordan Festival billed as north's largest

East Jordan - With a round the clock schedule of events, this year's Jordan Valley Festival promises to live up to chairman Joe Wilkins' statement of "bigger and better than ever." Saturday's parade extravaganza that rolls down mainstreet will feature over 300 baton twirlers, the Grand Traverse County Sheriff's Mounted Patrol, the Clown Band from Lansing, a Scottish bagpipe band, the Devil and his Court from Hell,

Michigan, and bands, floats and parade entries from all over the state. In addition, over 18 queens, among them four national title holders, will be in the parade. The usual contingent of state drum and bugle corps will perform and even "Smokey the Bear" will walk the parade route. According to chairman Wilkins, this year's festival was featured in the Sunoco-Gram, a release from the Sun Oil Company, which is distributed to over seven million credit card holders. "We're mighty proud of that listing, and we're proud of all the publicity this year's parade has received," said Wilkins.

Indicating that this year is his last as parade chairman, the colorful Wilkins said that Saturday's parade would be even larger than last year's, which was billed as one of the largest ever staged in the northland.

DR. Richard Mansfield and his nurse, Linda Branscombe RN, inspect the soon to be completed medical center facilities.

LL Dist. Tournament

Boyer City Little League All Stars have drawn a bye in 1969 District Eight Little League Tournament play, and East Jordan All Stars will meet Tri Lakes (Indian River) in the first round of tournament play. The pairings were announced this week by tournament director, Tom Turcott, Petoskey. Tournament play will get underway Thursday, July 17, and run through Saturday, July 19th. All games will be played in Petoskey, at Bates Field. Other teams in the Petoskey tournament are Gaylord, Lower St. Marys and Petoskey.

Turn out your lights

Turn them out. Shades of the old radio spook stories and ghost tales back in the 30's and 40's. No "Hermits' Cave" or "I Love A Mystery" ever had a story more ghostly or spooky than the new book by Barbara Michaels, "Ammie, Come Home." A chilling and utterly absorbing story of suspense. Take it from this writer, you'll like this book whether you are 18 or 88 - - and you don't scare easily.

Airport operation is the background for this intriguing mystery story.

"The Devil and Sant Serena", a non-fiction book by Esther Kellner, is the story of three little girls growing up in rural Indiana in the 20's and how they manage to survive Aunt Serena's well-meaning tyranny. "Nostalgic but not Sentimental," "Delightful reading. Two new books that we have acquired are, "The World of Currier and Ives" and "The Village Blacksmith" by Aldren A. Watson; the now extinct world of the blacksmith is recreated in more than 100 superbly detailed drawings and colorful text.

"Man's Rise to Civilization as Shown by the Indians of North America from Primeval Times to the Coming of the Industrial State" by Peter Farb. . . "This book has a long title but a short and vital purpose - - to probe the deepest roots of human behavior." Mr. Farb explores such questions as - Why are some people considered "war-like" and others "peaceful?" Why is our Memorial Day observance really a cult of the dead? How have some societies made it socially acceptable to rebel?

For the wee ones, Astrid Lindgren's "Pippi in the South Seas" and "The Velvetene Rabbit" by Margery Williams. A quote from this fantastic bunny, "When a child loves you for a long, long time, not just to play with but really loves you, then you become real."

Library has today's music

News of the East Jordan Library

Joan Burkey

Here is a schedule of the hours the library is open:

Monday through Friday; 1:00 p.m. to 5:00 p.m. - Tuesday; 9:00 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. - Wednesday; 7:00 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. Saturday; 9:00 a.m. to 12:00 a.m.

We have been given more new records by RCA and there is a good selection, this time, mostly today's music. Here are a few: Floyd Cramer plays the Monkees, Hank Locklin - Nashville Women, Jefferson Airplane, The Everlovin World of Eddie Arnold, You Ain't Heard Nothing Yet, by Eddie Fisher, Perry Como sings some Christmas Carols, Sound track - Tommy Steele in Half a Sixpence, The Spirit of Christmas by the Living Strings and many more.

A new book written by Elizabeth Seifert; "Bachelor Doctor," has a lot of reading to it. It is written from a mother's point of view. The main character is Grady McCord, he is from a family of doctors which include his uncles. They all live in one special area in the town which results in a very closely knit family. But Grady is a different person, certainly not quiet like the rest of them. He is a rebel and doesn't take the trouble to deny it. Grady has one eye, the other lost in the war; he is a bachelor; he writes articles for magazines which are very critical of the medical profession and will not withdraw anything he writes not even to please his father. His father doesn't ask him to anyway. A very good story; one you will enjoy.

"The Royal Family" by Raabe M. White and Graham Fisher; A personal portrait of the royal family. If you have ever wondered how many maids and servants they have, or who does what and answers to whom, this book tells it. On every journey a member of the royal family takes, always include a suit of mourning in their wardrobe. We read how the present queen met Prince Phillip and of their life henceforth, of the queen's father, the late King George the VI whose death was a great blow to his daughter. We read of his becoming King and how he reacted to the abdication of the Duke of Windsor.

This book is written by a former Footman of the Royal Household. He has done a rather good job. The explanations of the titles, names, certain household staff and government men are very easy to follow, so you should learn a great deal from it, and enjoy it in the process.

"Lilies of the Field" by William E. Barrett; Our librarian was most surprised to find out that this book was not among the books on our shelves, and being the good librarian she is, immediately sent for it, now we have it for our readers.

"Dag Hammarskjold Strictly Personal": A portrait by Bo Beskow. Bo Beskow was a good friend of the late secretary general of the United Nations, so was able to witness him for quite a few years as a man of strength and character. This book is written with tenderness and deep loyalty with pictures galore.

"Pottery Step by Step" by Henry Trevor; There are many of you ladies who are taking up pottery as a hobby and this book would be great for you to read first or even whilst you are making your pots. There are many photographs for you to follow and guide you, making this a very able aid as you begin.

Presbyterian Church receives gift of English handbells

Dr. Robert Hieber, President of the American Guild of Handbell Ringers, and 13 junior high school boys of the Trinity Methodist Church of Grand Rapids played the Dedicatory Concert on the new gift to The First Presbyterian Church of East Jordan of the set of English Handbells. Rev. Chandler Benton extended an invitation to anyone in the community who would like to be a part of this musical group. About 12 young people are to play the bells and assistance in directing the handbell group is also invited.

The Bell Ringers of the Trinity Methodist Church used 36 bells to play "Bell Music", "Flemish Dance", "Berceuse", "Fair Lord Jesus" and "O Worship the King" at the dedication service. Several bells are played by one ringer in the course of a piece and for this reason they must play at a table. The new Presbyterian bells were cast of a metal which is an alloy of copper and tin, and each bell is hand cast and hand tuned. The clappers are made of nylon, felt or leather, and the resulting tone is quite mellow. The tuning is a slow process since the bells are played in chords and must blend perfectly.

Handbells originated during the Middle Ages as pictured in the Worms Bible of 1148 which shows a figure striking with a hammer on eight bells arranged to form a scale. In the 16th and 17th centuries, the handbells were used in England by Tower Bell Ringers to practice the changes that were rung from the church towers on Sunday mornings or on Festival Days. These changes are based on various formulae done rhythmically wherein a change is made in each series of rings. Change ringing is done by trained teams, of which there are many in England. Not much printed music is available for handbells, and the director must arrange the music for the particular set of bells that he has, or exchange music with another group which has a similar set. The boys ring in pairs, and they read two staves of music at once, as do pianists.

Though a fascinating art, the playing of handbells taxes one's rhythmic sense, and since the bells can be sounded loudly or softly, there is a certain amount of artistic sensitivity required. To play the lower bells requires strong wrist and arm muscles.

Some of the requirements of a good bell ringer were taken from the belfry of a church in England: "Who rings this belle, Let him look welle, To hone and hedde and herte, Ye honde for werke, Ye hedde for wytte, Ye herte for worshyppe."

Snowmobile entries still coming in East Jordan - Entries for Northern Michigan's Second Annual snowmobile dry drag race are still coming in, according to East Jordan Sno-Mobile Club President, Andy Anderson.

Last year's race, the first of its kind in the northland, drew over 2,000 spectators to watch snowmobilers race machines on the grass. This year's race, according to club members, promises to be even bigger.

The race will get underway Saturday, July 5th at 12 noon. Races will be held at the East Jordan Sno-Mobilers Clubhouse, about two miles south of town, just off M-32. Directions to the race site are available from chamber directors, snowmobilers or at the Chamber of Commerce's information booth in the Tourist Park.

A special dealers' and manufacturers' display area will be set up near the race area. All of the latest in snow machines and accessories will be on hand for public inspection.

Admission to the race is $1.00, with an Apache Camper Trailer being offered as a door prize. Trophies will be awarded to winning drivers.

It all began 65 years ago with pulling braids

It all began some 65 years ago - - "I used to pull her braids when I sat behind her at school and she'd jump up and whallop me with a book," reminisced Ernest Erfourth, who will soon celebrate his 62nd wedding anniversary with his wife on July 3.

The Boyne couple are presently living at Grandvue Medical Center after moving from their Boyne City home on Park and Vogel streets where they lived for 50 years.

The Erfourths were married in 1907 in the Methodist parsonage in Charlevoix when Mrs. Erfourth was "going on 16" and her bridegroom had just turned 19 and shyly confess that their wedding was more of an elopement.

Formerly Eva Barkley, Mrs. Erfourth is a native of Horton's Bay, "although now they call it Horton Bay." Mr. Erfourth was born near the site of the Penn-Dixie Cement Company and was employed at the former Boyne City pickle factory, the iron foundry and the Howe's Leather Company. He retired in 1957 after 40 years of service at the tannery. The Erfourths will spend their anniversary with one of their 4 sons, Ted Erfourth of Petoskey. Their other three sons are Cecil of Rudyard, Harvey, Lincoln Park and Carl of Tucson, Arizona. In addition to their 4 sons, the Erfourths have 14 grandchildren, and seven great grandchildren. Today Mrs. Erfourth is "going on 78" and her light-hearted bridegroom has just turned 81, and both contend that their "first 82 years of marriage were the happiest and that their next 82 years will be even better!"

MSU team to study region's Indian culture

Walloon Lake - A party of 7 Michigan State University anthropologists under the direction of Dr. Chas. E. Cleland, will start a 3-month initial archaeological survey of an area ranging from south of Charlevoix to Hemlock Point here in search of prehistoric Indian artifacts during July, August and September. Dr. Cleland has disclosed that the work is part of a 5-year project to establish the presence of an extensive Indian culture that once flourished in this region. In previous studies, he has uncovered the remains of 30 Indian villages and camp sites ranging from the Straits of Mackinac to Grand Traverse Bay. Carbon analysis of the artifacts uncovered in exploration of the remains of these campsites has established that the tribal era covers a period ranging from 8,000 B.C. to 1650 A.D.

Two Indian village sites that the exploring party plans to dig are located on the shores of Lake Michigan and on Walloon Lake.

Dr. Cleland believes both were occupied between 1,000 and 1,300 A.D.

He said that if previous experience holds true, the archaeological party composed of both instructors and advanced anthropology students, expects to uncover quantities of flint tools, flint debris, numerous pottery fragments, as well as the post-patterns of the Indian houses. Dr. Cleland said the parties interest also includes locating the possible site of heretofore undisclosed Indian village locations and that he and his staff would be grateful for any further information that county residents might furnish.

Correspondence may be addressed to Dr. Cleland, M.S.U. Museum, East Lansing, Mich.

Creek dumping causes concern

East Jordan - The dumping problem that exists at the East Jordan city dump is causing some residents, who live near the dump, to become concerned for the safety of the community's youngsters.

According to Mrs. Bill Lange, a home owner near the dump, the same stream that is being used as a dump by a few people is also the favorite fishing spot for quite a few East Jordan youngsters.

"I think parents should be alerted to the dangers and hazard that exists when their youngsters fish in the creek," said Mrs. Lange.

The creek, which flows just below the dump, has been the target of a recent outbreak of trash dumpings, outside the city dump. "There's broken bottles and everything else, near the creek," said Mrs. Lange. "And youngsters are up there fishing everyday..."

Speak nuptial vows in East Jordan

East Jordan - Candles twined with ivy and white gladiolus on the altar decorated the Mio Methodist Church for the nuptial vows of Mary Elizabeth Miller and Charles H. Reed on June 14.

The bride's parents are the Rev. and Mrs. John W. Miller of Fairview and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Reed of East Jordan are the bridegroom's parents. The marriage was performed by the bride's father in a 4 p.m. service in Mio. The bride was given in marriage by Mr. John K. Miller, her brother. The bride chose an Empire A-line silhouette gown of white satin with a wedding ring neckline of Venise lace with the lace repeated on the bell sleeves, and around the bottom. The back was fashioned with a removable white satin chapel train. Her shoulder length-bouffant illusion veil was secured by a satin pill-box and off-setting her costume was a cascading arm bouquet of white daisies and trailing ivy.

The bride's maid of honor was her sister, Nancy Miller of Fairview. Miss Toni Osborne of Plymouth and Mrs. Roger Cyr, sister of the groom from Petoskey, were the other bridesmaids. Their dresses were also empire style with wedding ring collars and were romance blue Karate and Venise lace. Their headpieces were made of blue daisies and they carried arm bouquets of blue and white daisies and ivy.

The brother of the groom was the best man, Mr. David Reed of East Jordan. Ushering were Mr. Jerry Kennedy of Howard City and Mr. Jon Jensen of Jackson, Michigan.

The church hall was the setting for the reception immediately following the wedding ceremony. A buffet dinner was served.

The couple traveled to Virginia for ten days for their wedding trip. Upon return the couple will reside in Whittemore, Michigan sometime in August.

The bride is a 1969 graduate of Central Michigan University and will be teaching 2nd grade at the Whittemore Elementary School. Graduated from Central Michigan University in 1968, the groom is teaching industrial arts at Whittemore Prescott High School.

Out of town guests at the wedding came from Atlanta, Georgia, Plymouth, Michigan and neighboring areas.

ded distribution of identification cards to dump users with a $5.00 per car dump charge, and a dump appropriation of $3500 a year by the city of East Jordan and $500 per year by each of the townships to cover the cost of operating the dump. Dump custodian Bill Rowley suggested using a sticker system, similar to the one Ellsworth uses. Councilman Harry Watson quipped that crossed garbage pails might be a suitable design for a window sticker.

Councilmen also discussed purchasing a caterpillar tractor for around $8,000 to compact garbage. No decision was reached until the newly appointed dump committee could swing into action. Councilmen did agree, however, that the present dump site would eventually be moved.

On hand at Tuesday's meeting were Mr. and Mrs. Tom Breakey, representatives of the Jordan River Watershed Commission, who objected to any move to relocate the dump site near the Jordan River.

Councilmen also... --Agreed to eliminate parking on Main Street Saturday, July 5th, because of the Jordan Valley Festival Parade.

--Agreed to appropriate extra deputies for Police Chief Joe Hammond during the upcoming three day Jordan Valley Festival.

--Heard complaints against Glen's Market and Mount Clemens' Metal Products. John Cartwright acted as a spokesman for home owners near the Mount Clemens Plant area. He said the plant was burning oil and other undesirable refuse. Spokesman Bruce Healey said that Glen's Market was burning meat and other things in their incinerator which produced a terrible odor.

Councilman Harry Watson told Healey and Cartwright that a cease and desist order can be obtained from the court and served by individual home owners.

--Authorized the fire department to make fireworks purchases for the 4th of July. The formal authorization is necessary for liability and insurance purposes.

--Heard a motion from Bob Burkey that the city collect $.50 per day from boat owners using the city dock. Burkey said policemen could make the collections as part of their daily rounds. He pointed out that the city had received $8.74 in donations since last August in their donation box located at the dock. Council agreed to study the motion.

--Heard a report from Bob Burkey that he's still working with the State Waterways Commission on East Jordan's harbor improvement drive.

Home ain't the office

Erma Bombeck

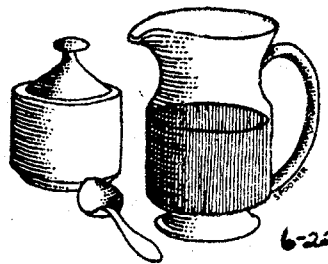

My husband's secretary is a wonderful person. (Personally, I have always felt an ugly girl could type as well but . . .) The point is, I do get sick and tired hearing how Miss Fitz could run my home better and more efficiently than I from a telephone booth with one arm tied behind her back.

I do the best I can with what I have to work with. I wonder whether Miss Fitz could raise three children with only half of a Dr. Spock paperback. I know it was a stupid thing, but with the first baby we ripped the book in half one night so I could whip through the first half while my husband could read through the second. I lost my half, which explains why I packed diapers with the kids' lunches.

And then there's the household dictionary. What would you say, Miss Fitz, if I told you I go through life using only words from I through z. I sent notes with my children to school for the last 11 years saying they were absent because of an upset stomach because I didn't know how to spell dirarh. .diahirri. . see what I mean?

Our encyclopedia stops with World War I, our World Almanac has a forward written by President McKinley. Our filing cabinet is a stove drawer which contains bottle stoppers, string, marriage license, coaster, will, yo-yo's, insurance policies and a mousketeer beanie.

Can you bear to read anymore, Miss Fitz? Then let me tell you about what I laughingly call my reference books. There's a first aid manual in the medicine chest which prescribes leeches for everything. There's a cookbook of basic recipes which pictures on the cover a young girl in a finger wave and headband. I must fill out a requisition everytime I want to use the phone.

I don't have paperclips, Miss Fitz, or rubber bands or little bottles of glue. . . or pencils or felt-tipped pens, or envelopes or stationery, or rubber stamps with my name on it. I make do with brown paper bags, pieces of yarn, eyebrow pencils and spit.

Lord, you don't know the nights I've envied you your petty cash box. Do you have any idea what it is like to borrow from children? I would rather float a loan from the Mafia.

Please forgive me for getting emotional, but this morning was particularly devilish. I misfiled one of my husband's children (I know he'll call in), the bank refused to honor a check written on an Ohio-Kentucky road map, and I served my husband coffee in a plastic cream pitcher.

That tore it. "Miss Fitz would never serve me coffee in a cream pitcher," he shouted. "I'm curious, Miss Lady Efficient! What would you have done if the sugar bowl was dirty?"

Patsy Bray becomes bride of Ernest Dietze

Amidst the decorative motif reflecting the festive atmosphere of summer, pert brunette Patricia Bray, a former High School Beauty Queen, became the bride of Ernest R. Dietze III in a double ring candlelight ceremony at the First Presbyterian Church here Saturday afternoon.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. Howard Bray, Superintendent of Schools, Boyne City, pledged her troth to Ernest Dietze III, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Dietze Jr. of Petoskey. Rev. Duane Ferris, pastor, officiated before an altar decorated with baskets of pink peonies, white delphiniums and pink and white gladioli in the presence of 200 guests.

Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride was attired in a white organza over taffeta A-line gown fashioned with a chantilly lace bodice in shirtheast style. Long full sleeves with a deep organza cuff with covered buttons accented the gown. A detachable chapel train with appliques of Alencon lace was secured at the waist with an organza Dior bow. The bride wore an elbow length mantilla of chantilly lace accented with pearls and carried a bouquet of white daisies, baby mums and ivy centered with three large white roses.

Organist Paul Ferris provided the wedding music -- Processional, Festival Fanfare in C Major, Bach; Recessional, Prelude and Fugue in C Major, Bach. Miss Lynn Angove of Northville served as her cousin's maid of honor, and bridesmaids were Miss Sally Dietze, sister of the groom, Miss Mary Conkle and Miss Patti Bowman. They wore identical floor length gowns fashioned of silk pique -- the maid of honor wearing candy pink and the bridesmaids almond pink. Embroidery trimmed stand up collars and flowing back panels fashioned with an overlay of applied lace accentuated the graceful lines of the gowns. Matching bow headpieces were worn by the attendants and they carried identical basket-like arrangements of white mums, ivy and painted daisies.

Mr. John Manning, Petoskey, assisted the groom as best man and groomsmen were Mr. Paul Bray, brother of the bride; Mr. Geoffrey Guillaume, Lansing; and Mr. Michael Miller, Daleville, Alabama.

Mrs. Bray selected a lace trimmed aqua chiffon gown with matching accessories for her daughter's wedding and the mother of the groom chose a lavender terylene crepe gown. Both mothers wore corsages of white roses.

A reception was hosted by the bride's parents at Shadow Trails Inn, Walloon Lake, with Mrs. Byron Neidhamer and Mrs. Maurice Dixon acting as hostesses. The wedding cake was served by Mrs. Fletcher Johnson and Miss Lei Johnson, aunts of the groom. Punch was served by Mrs. Edward Angove, the bride's aunt, Mrs. Murray Foster and Mrs. Robert Angove; coffee and tea served by Mrs. Vernice Nelson. Miss Gail Meyer attended the guest book. A rehearsal dinner was hosted by the parents of the groom at the Bay View Country Club.

After a wedding trip to Canada visiting Montreal and Quebec City, the couple will be at home at 8181 Wayne Rd., Westland, Michigan.

The bride is a graduate of Boyne City High School and a student at Henry Ford Community College in Dearborn. The groom is a graduate of Petoskey High School and North Central Michigan College and the University of Michigan in the School of Business Administration where he was affiliated with Alpha Kappa Psi, professional business fraternity, and Beta Alpha Psi, national honorary accounting fraternity. He is now employed in the Detroit office of Lybrand, Ross Bros., and Montgomery, C.P.A.'s.

Out of town guests attended from Petoskey, Bay Shore, Traverse City, Bay City, Flint, Saginaw, Alpena, Ann Arbor, Bloomfield Hills, Dearborn and Detroit, Michigan, and Sylvania, Ohio.

Junkin' with Barb Bid your way to bargains

Barb Christensen

Recently a Detroit man bought a $350 German camera for $25 from the police department and drove home in a station wagon he had purchased for $700 less than market value. In another section of the city, a private trucking company sold, among other things, a new $300 refrigerator for $45; a new 20-foot boat complete with outboard for $75, and a table saw for $35! Bargains such as these are available to everyone in all major cities. So, if you're spending your vacation visiting relatives in one of the big cities, the simple secret is to find out when and where auction sales are being held by various Federal, state and local agencies.

The U.S. Post Office holds the most frequent sales. Each year the Post Office acquires over a half-million unclaimed or damaged packages, which are eventually sold through auction. These sales include almost anything that can be shipped through the mail. As with all government sales, postal auctions are open to the public, and everything over a dollar, goes to the highest bidder.

Through the mail. A 50% deposit is required on all purchases, payable upon acceptance of the bid. Merchandise cannot be claimed during the sale, but must be picked up within a few days and the balance paid.

Excellent bargains can be found at sales held by the U.S. Customs Service. Practically anything can turn up at a Customs sale. This merchandise had been seized from smugglers, or abandoned on docks or ships in lieu of customs payments. It is possible to purchase $50-an-ounce French perfume for as little as $2, or a $1,000 watch for $50. Trucking lines hold public sales offering a variety of things at extremely low prices. These items are acquired through damage in shipment, lack of payment and unclaimed C.O.D. packages. The damages in most cases are scratches, water marks and things that are easily repaired.

Police departments in large cities hold regular public auctions, where everything from automobiles to zircons is offered to the highest bidder. Generally, things from this source are used. However, occasionally some confiscated merchandise, recovered stolen goods or objects abandoned will be brand new. A police auction is an ideal place to find a bicycle. There are always plenty of bikes at a few dollars each.

At all Federal sales, where there are similar items, they are often packaged and sold in lots. Although you might want only one item, the price for the entire lot will usually be low to warrant purchase. It's possible to sell the ones you do not want, and wind up making money on the deal. Notices of auctions are listed in all newspapers. Catalogues of merchandise are distributed free before each sale. If you request your name be added to regular auction lists, you can receive an advance notice and catalog

Many people fail to investigate public auctions on the assumption that dealers with financial backing buy up everything. This is not necessarily true, dealers have no more rights than you or I, and must enter their bids the same way. In addition to auctions being gold mines for bargains, you'll find them a lot of fun and excitement. It's a type of shopping that can become a fever, and once you try it, you'll want to take city auction vacations year 'round!

Items for sale can usually be examined before the auction begins. Mechanical objects sometimes require repair, but a general estimate of their condition is listed. No items are offered that are beyond easy repair, since real junk is sold in bulk to junk dealers. Bus, train and airlines have a wide range of things that have been lost, recovered from theft, abandoned or unclaimed. These must be liquidated due to lack of storage space and complicated accounting. The price received for merchandise is incidental to the real problem of disposing of the items as quickly and easily as possible, so public auction is the logical answer.

Through the mail. A 50% deposit is required on all purchases, payable upon acceptance of the bid. Merchandise cannot be claimed during the sale, but must be picked up within a few days and the balance paid.

Retaining our balance

Occasionally our readers may become a bit exasperated with what may seem like our preoccupation with vital statistics as well as financial factors concerning the county's general economy.

Our only defense is that figures, like navigational aids, are the only checkpoints we have to determine where we are going, and in that respect, a fortnight ago, in the news columns of the Northland Press there were some significant ones discussed by Intermediate District School Superintendent Chas. A. Robinson with reference to special education expenditures in what is known as the Charlevoix Intermediate School District.

He stated that 47 percent of revenues for the intermediate district's special education program came from Charlevoix County while 70 per cent of the disbursements being made for special education were being made in Emmet County - mostly Petoskey.

That's interesting. It proves to be even more interesting in view of the fact that Supt. Robinson also stated that Emmet County's contribution to the "pie" was 39 per cent while Antrim County's was 10 per cent and Cheboygan's was 4 percent.

From the standpoint of tax base, this indicates that Charlevoix County has surpassed Emmet County in the value of its tax base - or Emmet County is playing footsie with the state tax commission and doesn't have its valuations up where they should really be. That, of course, is pure speculation.

But of greater significance is the fact that while Charlevoix County has a greater potential in the field of special education, as of now, the school districts aren't keeping their program in balance with the annual contribution in terms of tax dollars that local property owners are paying.

This is quite understandable at the present time since Petoskey, with a larger school system, and larger school plant, and staff, and an aggressive administration, has probably pursued the task of special education with greater zeal than Charlevoix County school districts.

But this situation is not equitable - particularly for a particularly fair sized segment of the intermediate district - that portion comes from Antrim County. Obviously Petoskey is a little too far for Antrim residents to realize the full benefit of their tax dollars they pay into the system. Their contribution, coupled to Charlevoix County's amounts to 57 per cent of the total.

Place this situation in juxtaposition to the over-all growth of Charlevoix County, and it seems apparent that something should be afoot right now to upgrade the Charlevoix County portion in special education activities.

Perhaps it's time to call in someone from the state department of education to map out a plan of action which would more equitably distribute the benefits to be derived from monies that are paid in for this phase of our educational system.

Tax revision slips on oil

Tax revision in the United States is off to a good start. But it is only that -- a start. Far more sweeping changes are needed to bring the nation's tax laws and taxing policies in better line with today's needs and with greater fairness for all. But it is likely that President Nixon's present tax-package is about all that the White House believed it possible to get through Congress. And it does accomplish some well worthwhile ends.

The cut in taxes on the very poor, and the 50% limit on the use of tax preferences by wealthier citizens are both sorely needed. Each, at different ends of the economic spectrum, cuts back sharply on long-standing and harsh inequities.

Also excellent is the decision to ask for an end to the 7% tax credit to business, not because this is automatically bad in itself, but because today it is held to be a major inflation-breeder. Today the greater need is to dampen economic expansion, not to feed it by encouraging more industrial building.

Unhappily, however, there seems to be a major -- and unjustifiable -- omission in the White House's present tax plans. This is the failure to go after the monstrous 27 1/2 depletion allowance on oil.

This depletion allowance has the effect of letting the oil millionaires off with almost no income tax. The reason it's there is due entirely to a block of senators from the southern and western oil states. The oil barons put up the millions to win them their seats. Even the most pious of them (including Johnson when he was a senator) don't have the guts or the principle to close this huge and totally unfair loophole.

We had hoped that President Nixon would face up to it, but he didn't. His aides explained that if he had, his whole program would be thrown out.

Well, maybe that's the way it has to be. But it's hard to understand why.

One man's philosophy

"One should never be too certain of the absolute rightness of his current opinions. In my student days, I proposed marriage to several girls, and made speeches for the election of Henry Wallace. The world is a better place to live in today, and a number of people are distinctly happier, because my ideas were rejected at the time."

Perfect technique Don, except for one thing

Gregg Smith

Among the various reasons that people have for requesting unlisted telephone numbers, or, for having their numbers changed, are these generally routine causes:

Their number is too similar to that of a Chinese Chop Suey take-out service, and they get all-night calls for egg Foo-Yung.

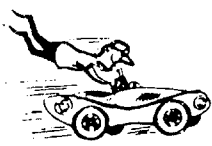

Their number is too similar to that of a bookie establishment and someone is always calling up to put a couple of bucks on a hot tip for what's hot in the fifth at Jamaica.

Their number is too similar to another number like Courter Products which is 582-6526, and the Northland Press which is 582-6562 and the billings are always getting crossed.

Their number, upon investigation, appears as graffiti on the walls of every John in the area, because some prankster wrote: "Call Mary if you're lonely."

But of all the reasons we know of, there was that one ungrateful old maid who didn't appreciate the fact that her number was closely similar to that of the local artificial insemination service.

Don Seamon, formerly a construction consultant, and now a real estate salesman, but a man of so many talents that he could easily have qualified as a top race driver at the "500" or as a cross country driver in the Grand Prix, and his wife have adopted their second child. This time it's an 8-month old baby girl who's bringing out a few more of Don's versatile capabilities.

Sunday, with his newly-adopted daughter, he was proudly perched in the bawl room of St. Matthew Church with bottle warmer, spare diapers, and the trimmings, as he went through the business of bouncing the little sweetie on his knee and alternately burping her and billing and cooing to preserve the tranquility.

As the proudest new father in town, he's accomplished about every technique of being the perfect parent -- except breast feeding.

The black people who are invading churches around the country demanding $500 million in reparations to their race must, of necessity, be very selective in making their presentations. There are many harried pastors whom we know of who would be happy to hand them $500 million -- in mortgages they are attempting to pay up.

The young American male is

so fortunate that he's not a member of the British royal family. He's not exposed to the mummery of becoming a Prince of Wales.

Howard Johnson, the man who made millions, with his chain of highway restaurants, is accumulating another fortune in the burial business with a huge corporate venture in which he and his associates are buying up cemetery lots throughout the county.

They're getting nearly an 8 for 1 return on their investment by using circular caskets, large post-hole diggers, and burying corpses in an upright, rather than a horizontal position, thus putting 8 bodies in the amount of space that one body formerly occupied.

We assume that the system will gain wide popularity, among the dead as well as the living. Come Judgement Day, the "standers" will be in a better take-off position, either way they are ordered to go.

The Johnson burial system also has some interesting problems. If the super-sized post hole digger which is supposed to save many man hours of labor runs into hardpan at 3 or 4 feet, what then? Will the corpses be buried in a crouched position?

Enough of this ghastly speculation -- now to something brighter! Jack Minor, the man of many talents, including a fine touch at the piano, and one of the first contributors to the Medical Center Fund reports that he's willing to work the Walloon area in behalf of the fund drive that's committed to raise $19,500 for payment in full of the John Beyer Bldg. by August 15.

First things first, however, someone from the organization should acknowledge his early donation of $100 when the fund was still in the "talking stages," last winter.

Life is a goldfish

By Jim Fitzgerald

It's summer rerun time again. Jim Fitzgerald is vacationing. This column is repeated by popular request (from Mother and Aunt Madeline) from Aug. 25, 1966.

It is probably fitting that the Wall Street Journal should confirm what I've suspected for many years -- I am never going to be rich.

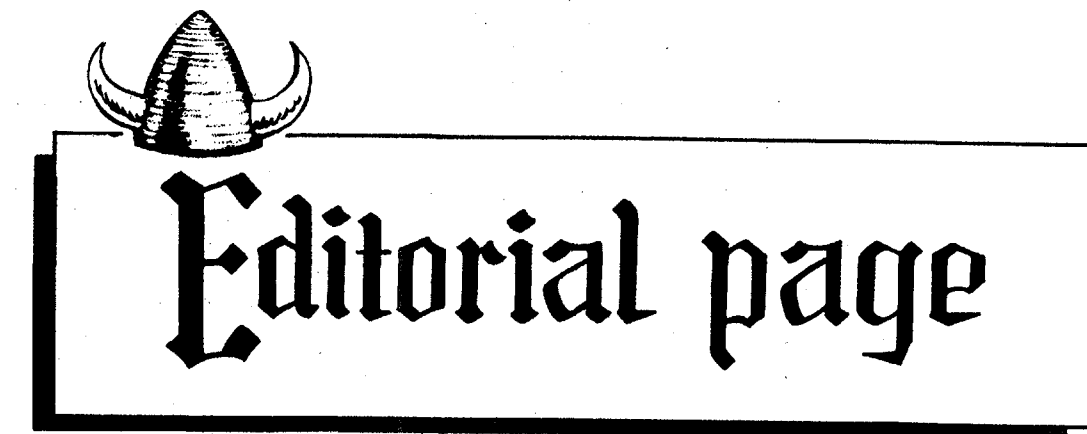

In fact, right now I am well into my second 2-week vacation of the summer and such foolishness will certainly keep me sneezing lint from the bottom of a poverty pocket.

A Journal story said most high-powered executives get that way by saving minutes. You know. They dictate into recorders while flying. They shave and read stock reports while being chauffeured along freeways. They eat lunch at their desks -- or with clients while scribbling $1 million figures on the table cloth.

Time is money; don't waste it. The Journal told about a Detroit physician who used to have a tank of tropical fish in his office. He got rid of the fish because he was wasting too much time talking about them with his patients. Joe Sick would come in and say, "What kind of fish is that red one?" instead of immediately plopping his broken leg on the table. The doctor had to answer and there went 2 minutes, or $200.

The Journal also described, so help me, a new standup desk which is popular with Big Business. It has a perch seat "so the executive will remain more alert and will be able to walk his visitors to the door without being trapped in a desk situation."

Oh me. I would not lie and tell you I wouldn't like to have a million bucks. I realize that money doesn't buy happiness but

The Third Degree

Last week, Telles got her wish

Gregg P. Smith

Telles O'Brien, who for the past six years was Grandvue Care Facility's artist in residence, died last week. She was 94.

The fact that someone died at Grandvue doesn't usually prompt me to head for the typewriter -- but Telles was kind of special. She had one of those kind of histories that now you can only read about.

A native of Ohio, Telles came to Beaver Island with her physician husband when the island was nothing but a wilderness outpost, inhabited by a few Irish fishermen families and a handful of Indians. Times were tough -- but so was Telles. She survived two husbands, ran a business and endured a life which would have killed most women -- living on a desolate island which was totally isolated from civilization during the winter months when a gulf of ice separated the island from Charlevoix, some 30 miles away.

Six years ago, Telles left her beloved island to become a permanent resident of the county's facility for the aged -- Grandvue.

A year ago I met Telles. The fact that my last name was Smith didn't impress Telles. The fact that my mother's maiden name was Gallagher -- one of the Gallaghers from Beaver Island, made an instant hit.

When I met her, Telles was confined to a wheel chair with a broken hip. However, she painted daily in therapy sessions, and two of her paintings were being forwarded to the National Art Dealers Convention in Los Angeles, by Doris and Bill Huckle, East Jordan photography and art supply shop owners. The paintings were going to be shown in a special art for rehabilitation exhibit at the convention. That Telles had a chance of winning anything at the convention seemed remote, but my reason for seeing her was to get some type of story about the sweetheart of Grandvue, who was the facility's artist in residence since she happened to be a resident.

Three months later, her paintings came back from the convention -- with an honorable mention award, a congratulatory letter and a check for Telles.

I wish I could have been there when news of Telles' winning reached Grandvue. They say that after nurses told Telles of her good fortune, she clutched the award, and with Irish dimples quivering said. . . "I shall always treasure this. . ."

Up until her death, Telles painted daily in therapy sessions. Most of her canvasses captured scenes from Beaver Island, for it was the island scenes that she painted best. And it was the island that Telles talked about when expressing her continual wish -- to go home. Last week, Telles O'Brien got her wish.

TELES O'Brien, displaying some of her paintings, which were entered in last year's National Art Dealers competition.

Solutions to garbage problem

If East Jordan has enough garbage, perhaps they can put it to use as other communities have.

Garbage collected from the tenants will provide part of the fuel supplying all electricity, heating centers to be built in Missouri and New York. Two small New York companies announced plans for combining garbage disposal with the so-called "total energy" concept of supplying all energy needs with on-site plants.

A maker of air and water pollution control devices will design, manufacture and maintain a garbage collection and disposal system for the two shopping centers.

It said the system will be "pollution free."

Time is money; don't waste it. The Journal told about a Detroit physician who used to have a tank of tropical fish in his office. He got rid of the fish because he was wasting too much time talking about them with his patients. Joe Sick would come in and say, "What kind of fish is that red one?" instead of immediately plopping his broken leg on the table. The doctor had to answer and there went 2 minutes, or $200.

The Journal also described, so help me, a new standup desk which is popular with Big Business. It has a perch seat "so the executive will remain more alert and will be able to walk his visitors to the door without being trapped in a desk situation."

Oh me. I would not lie and tell you I wouldn't like to have a million bucks. I realize that money doesn't buy happiness but it certainly buys a lot of things that make me happy. I can be as ambitious and greedy as the next guy. Unless the next guy is one of these go-go minute counters described in the Journal. Poor as I am, I feel sorry for a millionaire who hasn't got time to share his goldfish with a customer.

There are times when I must leave work early and go home and rub my son's head and ask him what he did that day and then listen to a fantastic story about Batman being in the basement.

I have a daughter who stood in one spot 6 hours straight to make certain she could buy 2 tiny china dolls at a household auction. I wasn't there but people who were have interrupted my work several times to tell me how cute she looked and how everyone was rooting for her to make the buy, which she did. I have heard this story 8 times now and I got misty-eyed each time. I am ready to hear it again.

I have long been convinced that Saturday afternoons are good for watching baseball or football games. Nothing else. Don't tell anyone, but I often let the phone ring on weekends. I realize it might be someone offering me gold. But they should call back Monday.

I have a teenage daughter who drives me wild and I spend hours trying and failing to convince her I am smarter than she is. I might better shut up and buy her a book by Ann Landers. But once in a while she admits I was right 2 weeks ago and thanks me for the good advice. This does more for me than it ever could for Ann who, by the way, probably never wastes a minute.

I like to just sit and peek over my newspaper at my wife as she sews clothes for a Barbie doll, for gosh sakes, or plays some stupid game with 2 little kids, both lousy losers. I must fritter away several hours a week just observing and enjoying how much my kids love their mother, and vice versa.

As you read this I am vacationing and probably haven't made a constructive move in 6 days. I could be writing something for a couple of magazines that have solicited material but . . . there's a lake to look at and kids to listen to and a book to read and new golf clubs to swing. Or I might just sit and remember things about my dead father.

No, I'll never be rich by Wall Street standards. I don't have time. Life is a goldfish and I must watch closely how it glitters and splashes before it slips away.

Sunday night Memcor Courter defeated Alanson 28-1, Helen Myers was the winning pitcher.

Mary Lou Ingalls hit a double and a triple. Boyne's Memcor Courter team will meet Petoskey Oil team Friday evening, July 4th, at 6:00 on the local field, for an exhibition game. Sunday, July 6, Memcor will play Petoskey Oil in regular league competition at Petoskey, at 8:00.

This is no accident

But you're our witness, anyway—to a piece-ful demonstration of how quickly and easily Maverick can be taken apart and put together. We designed Maverick that way for a good reason. When you're paying by the hour for service or repairs, speed is important. And at times like this, nothing can beat a simple machine.

Most new cars are more and more complicated. And more expensive to care for. Maverick's so simple to service, you can do it yourself—if you really mean it about being independent.

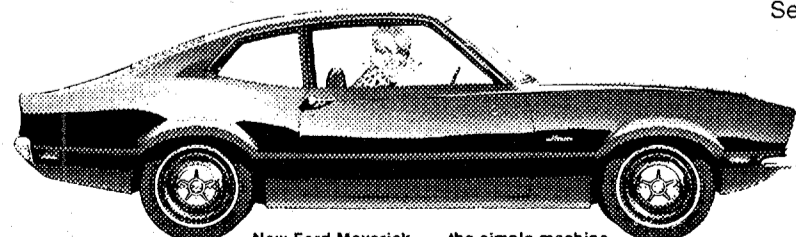

You won't feel like an orphan either. Our Owner's Manual shows you how to handle all the routine service. You can tune and time your engine, change plugs and points, adjust the idle, the headlamps, the handbrakes, do nearly 40 different service operations.

And if you crease a fender or crack a grille, you can almost smile. Maverick's front fenders bolt on and grilles are replaceable in minutes. And where time means money, fast means savings.

Stop in once every 36,000 miles for a lube job. Oil changes are 6,000 miles apart. (The leading import suggests oil changes twice as often and lube jobs every 6,000 miles.)

While still being simple, Maverick is big enough to take the whole family—without streaming luggage from the roof. It's small enough to park easily, and go light on gas. A 105-hp Six gives you real passing power. (You get 52 more horsepower than the leading import offers.) And the wider stance gives you a smoother ride, better handling and roadability.

It's no accident that Maverick is the hottest selling new car to come along in five years. We designed it that way. See it at your Ford Dealer's.
