

Lawrence Titsworth and his rainbow pond.....

Boyne council ponders trout pond problem

Boyne City -- What was once a "relief valve" for this community's surplus water has become a "pain in the neck," between Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Titsworth, of E. Division street and city officials.

Tuesday night, commissioners heard Mr. Titsworth's side of the story, at length. They also gave Mr. Titsworth their side of the story, at length.

The Titsworths have a lot of fine rainbow trout in the pond that the city created on their property in 1963. The pond was built by the city as a by-pass during periods of excessive water entering the city's disposal system.

Comes 1969 and the city no longer has excessive run-off periods, so stated the commissioners. In fact, this past weekend, water in the city's reservoirs was so low that when the sole pump in the city's south side water pumping station started sucking air, and was in danger of burning up, the flow of water into the Titsworths pond had to be shut off.

This made the Titsworth rainbow trout very sick -- and the Titsworths angry.

This wasn't the first time tragedy had befallen the school of rainbow trout. Lawrence Titsworth said that 2 years ago he had lost $200 worth of fish; that he had invested over $800 in making the pond a beauty spot and this did not include the labor that he and his wife had invested.

Commissioners said they had no contract specifying that there was an agreement that they should keep Mr. Titsworth's trout alive.

He stated repeatedly that if the city can't guarantee a flow of water through the 2 ponds on his property, he wants the ponds filled in and planted back to grass because he enjoys live grass better than dead fish.

Mayor Austin Sevener said that a full immediate investigation should be made and some kind of course of action should be taken--after thoroughly investigating the situation.

Commissioner Marvin Loding, qualified steam engineer, and the watchdog of the city's water system stated:

"If we give you 50,000 gallons of water daily to keep your fish alive and the pump fails, someone else will have a red face. And I want to be quoted that I'm against it." And he was quoted.

The Titsworth Lake case was tabled to give commissioners an opportunity to inventory the city's water stock.

In other actions, city water rates were hiked an average of 10 percent upon the recommendation of City Mgr. Forbes Tompkins. He pointed out that water department operations, as well as U.S. currency had been subjected to more than 30 percent inflation -- with no corresponding increase to cover the department's operations. Minimum rates thus are now hiked from $6.33 to $7.00 per quarter for the first 7,500 gallons; 30¢ per M vs. 25¢ per M for the next 7,500 gallons. Bulk rates for the city's highest consumers were raised from 15¢ per M gallons to 17¢ per M gallons. Mgr. Tompkins said the new rates put local water costs on a par with Charlevoix, Petoskey, and other cities in the area.

A technical discussion concerning the accounting methods for street department funds was presented by the City Auditor Larry Woodcock, of Hill and Woodcock, CPA's of Petoskey.

In other actions: -- Rick Young and Linda Davis representing "the youth of Boyne City" were granted the use of

Boyne Valley Medical Center stages fund drives

Boyne City - An old fashioned auction sale, street dance, corn roast and garbage pail lunch, are being scheduled by the Boyne Valley Medical Center Corporation for the last of August to add funds to the group's growing kitty.

At a meeting last Wednesday night, Rotary representative Steve Moody disclosed plans for an all day Saturday, August 30th, fund raising party in the city park. Moody said that with the approval of the city commission, one street would be closed and that several riotous events were being planned to induce summer visitors and residents alike to loosen pocketbooks and donate to the worthwhile medical center fund.

Already on tap for Friday, August 22nd, is a community wide auction sale to be staged at the community bandshell at 6:00 p.m. Jim Brannan, well known area auctioneer has volunteered his services for the night, and has guaranteed medical center directors that his chortle will be heard all over town.

Food, pop and coffee will be available at the auction. All proceeds will be turned over to the medical center fund drive.

Area residents with appliances, tools, sporting goods, garden equipment or furniture that they don't need are urged to donate to the auction. Anyone wishing to contribute are asked to contact either Keith Fitzpatrick, 582-6608, or Larry Behrens, 582-7854, for pick-up service.

At Wednesday night's meeting, president of the group, Thelma Behling, reported that a balance of more than $5,000 was in the bank. She said that to date the fund drive had netted about $7,000.

An immediate goal of $18,000 has been set by the medical fund group. This will finance the medical care building now in use by Dr. Richard Mansfield, D.O.

An additional $30,000 is needed by the medical fund group to finance the remodeling of the inside of the medical care building into a suite for two physicians, an X-ray equipment area and a community room.

Jordan Community Chest sponsors poster contest

East Jordan - With area community chest drives just around the corner, directors of the East Jordan Community Chest announced this week that they're sponsoring a poster board drawing contest for youngsters 16 and under.

East Jordan chest campaign chairman, Mrs. Richard Hamerski, said this week that cash prizes of $5, $3 and $2, will be awarded to children in two age brackets -- from 12 to 16, and 11 years of age and under.

"We hope that all boys and girls in the area will enter the contest," said Mrs. Hamerski. "And for youngsters worrying about stiff competition from older kids, the age of the entrant will be taken into consideration when we judge the drawings. . ."

Poster board will be provided by the community chest and can be picked up at the East Jordan library. All entries must be turned in to Mrs. Hamerski at the library by Saturday, August 23rd. Winners will be announced on the Thursday, August 28th edition of the Northland Press.

Subject for the drawings is the slogan "Be Big Enough to Give Enough to Help Enough. . ." However, Mrs. Hamerski points out that youngsters can submit a poster from any of the following organizations or community projects which are helped financially by the East Jordan Community Chest. They include. . . Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Newspapers for Servicemen, American Red Cross, Life Guard, Firemen's Monitors, Baskets for the Needy, Michigan Children's Aid, School Children's Milk Program, Needy Children, Little League, Summer Softball and Rescuee Anne.

Youngsters wishing to enter should fill out the entry blank appearing in this week's Northland Press (Women's Section, page 5) and take it to the East Jordan Library. After submitting entry blanks at the library, children will be given their poster drawing board.

Two Boyne youths critical

Boyne City - An accident in which two Boyne City youths were seriously injured is still under investigation by state police.

At 9:25 p.m. last Friday, William Fineout, jr., 17, Boyne City, failed to negotiate a curve on the Camp Daggett Road. The curve was located one tenth of a mile south of the Reycraft Road. The north bound auto went out of control, into a ditch, upset, then struck a tree.

A passenger in the Fineout car, Edward Frederick jr., 16,

Boyne City, was also injured.

Fineout was pinned in the wreckage of the 1963 Ford, while Frederick was thrown from the vehicle.

Fineout was taken to Lockwood MacDonald Hospital where he was reported in fair condition by hospital authorities Tuesday afternoon.

Frederick was reported as "progressing well" by Little Traverse Hospital authorities Tuesday afternoon. He is in the hospital's intensive care unit.

Twin Valley elementary registration

Boyne City - Parents of children who have moved into the Twin Valley School District during the summer months, and who will be attending the elementary school in Boyne City are requested to telephone the school (582-9981) for registration purposes after Monday, August 18.

Kindergartners who were not enrolled during the May registration period must also be registered before school starts in September.

Discuss student merger

Boyne City--The possibility of merging the school populations of East Jordan and Boyne City, before a new, centrally located facility is built, dominated discussion at Tuesday night's Twin Valley School Board meeting.

Merger of the students could take place as soon as next school year. Board members agreed that it was too late to do anything this year. However, they unanimously endorsed a suggestion by board secretary, Robert Kleborn, to start working and moving in the direction of a student merger.

"I want someone to show me why this can't work," said Kleborn, referring to any early student body merger--before a new, centrally located school facility is built.

"We've got to look to the future, and today's problems today. Why can't we be working for a merger right now?"

"I've had enough people tell me why we can't merge early. I want someone to show me why we can do it..."

Kleborn said that he saw no reason why East Jordan seniors and Boyne City seniors couldn't start co-mingling. "Then, they won't have two problems facing them---moving into a new school and meeting new students---when it comes time to relocate in a couple of years..."

"Let's get the communities thinking as one as far as the school system goes," he commented.

Assistant Superintendent, Max Damoth, expressed agreement with Kleborn's ideas. "That's been my line of thinking for a long time," said Damoth. "And the main reason why I supported the merger..."

Principal Robert Korn said he felt the board wouldn't save any money by merging the student populations before moving into a centrally located school facility. "You would be achieving your goal of getting the students together before relocating," said Korn. Transportation and personnel transfers were posed as the main problems against an early student merger.

"We're going to be bussing them one way or another," quipped one board member. "What's the difference?"

"I've been told by countless school consultants and education experts that it doesn't make any difference whether you bus students one mile or ten..." commented Kleborn.

Principal Korn said that he, Boyne counselor, Bud Neidhamer and Leatha Larson, East Jordan counselor, had tried to work out a type of student exchange last year for a couple of classes.

"Anyway we tried to work it, we ran into snags and students missing classes."

Korn said that one of the biggest problems was scheduling around lunch hours in the two schools.

East Jordan has a 45 minute lunch hour for all of their students, and Boyne has a 90 minute lunch hour for three sections.

"As an administrator," said Korn, "I'd either like to see this thing go whole hog or not at all."

The board also...

--Agreed to retain their membership in the Michigan Association of School Boards for 1969-70.

--Approved the transfer of $500 from the general fund to the athletic fund.

--Noted as of June 30, 1969, that athletic funds of both high schools were funded out to no balance. School auditors advised that athletic funds be compiled into one account.

--Paid bills totaling $7999.14.

--Discussed the booster club's proposed project of purchasing a video-tape machine for athletic and school use. The machine will cost $2500 and require 2 or 3 years to pay for. Board members thought the project was a good one. However, they made clear that they were staying out of any endorsement of the project or money raising.

--Approved the purchase of a dishwashing machine and garbage disposal unit from Louis Manglos sales representative for the Post Fixture Company, Grand Rapids. Cost of the machine is $1800, with installation and plumbing work set at an additional $1,000. Instant approval of the project was given so as to have the installation completed by the time school starts.

--Approved a black topping project for the Boyne City Ele. School. Cost of the project is $8489, and is contracted by Hodgkiss and Douma, Petoskey.

--Approved the Twin Valley Public School system's participation in the Title I program for the 1969-70 school year.

BOYNE City Community Chest President, Don Seamon (left), maps plans with co-chairmen Orville Walker and Cass Toton (right), for the upcoming chest campaign. The local community chest kick-off breakfast has been set for Monday, September 29th. This year's fund drive goal is $11,000.

Medical center canvassers net $2,896 for fund

Boyne City - Door to door canvassers for the Boyne City Medical Fund have netted $2,896.60 so far according to Mrs. Marie Parlett, who heads the drive for the medical center corporation. This figure will be added to the group's $5,000 now in the Northwestern State Bank.

Mrs. Parlett said this week that she was extremely pleased with the amount given, and in particular with the residents of the fourth ward, who gave a whopping $1,034 to the fund. She added that anyone not contacted during the drive could give their donation to Robert Prebble, assistant cashier at the Northwestern State Bank.

The door to door drive was organized by Mary Dunlop, who enlisted the aid of cancer crusade workers who had worked for her in previous fund campaigns.

A breakdown of medical center donations by wards includes first ward, $438.00; second ward, $298.75; third ward, $640.85; fourth ward, $1,034.00; Springwater Beach, $168.00; and Ad-

Watershed hosts steak barbecue

East Jordan - Members of the Jordan River Watershed Commission will toss protocol to the wind when they meet next Monday night, August 18th, for a steak barbecue.

The barbecue will be held at 6:30 p.m. at O'Brian's Pond (Warner's Pond) on the Jordan River.

Previous meetings have been held at the East Jordan American Legion Hall, however, watershed officers are hoping the relaxed atmosphere and prospects of a delicious steak dinner will lure more members to the meeting.

Making arrangements for the barbecue and serving as chefs will be county extension director, Ed Rebman, and state forester, Jack Lockwood. The total cost of the barbecue will be shared by members of the commission at the meeting.

All watershed commission members are being asked by Rebman to notify him if they plan to attend the steak barbecue. Reservation cards have been sent to each member and should be returned as soon as possible. The barbecue is scheduled to start promptly at 6:30 p.m.

Purchases Fineout Realty

Walloon Lake - Dee Adgate, formerly associated with Jerry Fineout Realty, announced this week that he has purchased the Fineout Realty business.

Fineout Realty, since the death of its owner, Jerry Fineout, last spring, has been operating as a branch under Mark Haines Realty, Boyne City.

Adgate, a licensed real estate broker, has been associated with Fineout Realty for ten years.

Both Adgate and Fineout were area ski resort developers who sold their ski operations to Everett Kircher, Boyne County owner, in December of 1967. Fineout was instrumental in developing Walloon Hills, and Adgate founded and developed Thunder Mountain.

Adgate, a real estate broker, will operate out of Jerry Fineout Realty's same Walloon Lake location.

The Book Worm Inches off diet book in library

News of the East Jordan Library

Joan Burkey

The library has some new mystery books in now, and this week I have chosen a few to review. The first one which I read is: "Shot Gun" by Ed McBain an 87th Precinct mystery.

A man and wife are found shot to death by a 12 gauge shotgun. The shotgun was owned by a man living in a town of 10 million people, then another murder was discovered, this time a stabbing. Well, the favorite people from the 87th precinct start investigating and give you a good run for your money while hunting down the killer. The language is pretty sticky in a few spots, but a good book.

reading, you will probably get through it in one night.

"The Doctor's Quick INCHES-OFF DIET": The nicest chapter in this book which a lot of you parents will agree with, was the chapter devoted to youngsters with weight problems. Doctor's suggest they can still eat and eat well, but of course not everything. The doctors recommend hard boiled eggs, chicken legs, A narrative history of American

Your Better Health

He can't cure dandruff -- he has it!

Walter Alvarez, M.D.

I can remember when I was about 20 and began to have dandruff just like my father's. By 30 I was losing hair on the top of my head -- just as my father had done. Then my father, who was an able physician, gave me the ointment that long ago was popularized all over the world by the great Frenchman, Sabraud. It consisted of 10% sulfur and 1% salicylic acid. I was not enthusiastic about using it because I saw that my father still had his dandruff, but for a few years I rubbed it on.

I doubt if it did much good because I still have some so-called "seborrhea" on my forehead. The word seborrhea comes from two ancient Greek words -- Sebium, which is the normal fat in the skin, and Rhea, which refers to flowing -- hence seborrhea means that there is too much grease in the skin. My impression is that this is a lifetime peculiarity.

This peculiarity is common -- so common that I read that we Americans spend each year some $67 million for antidandruff medicines and shampoos.

So far, in scientific journals, I have not read of a cure, only remedies that lessen the flaking and perhaps itching. Only the persons with a severe form of the disease have a lot of flakes on their coat collar. Many unhappy people get the idea that dandruff will make them social outcasts and unsuccessful businessmen, but I cannot believe that. I am sure that my father and I never were handicapped in the least by our dandruff.

Everyone should have some flaking off of his or her skin, because there is an outer layer of our skin that dies and this has to flake off. It takes about a month for the dead cells to move out until they can drop off. Similarly, some of our hairs are constantly being pushed out of the little follicles, or tiny tubes in which they grow; also our fingernails keep constantly growing outward. The difficulty with dandruff is that the normal peeling away is exaggerated.

So far as I can learn, no one yet knows what the cause of dandruff is. It cannot very well be any form of ill health, because I got mine when in college and later when I was an athlete on the track and in the gymnasium and climbing up the highest mountain peaks in California. I still have some dandruff, in spite of having been very healthy throughout my long life. My hunch is that I was born to have a skin with a bit too much oil, just as a rare person is born to have no oil in his skin.

Today, anyone can go into a drugstore and find many lotions and shampoos designed to cure dandruff. As E. J. Helton said recently in "Today's Health," that excellent magazine put out by the American Medical Association, any shampoo must for awhile get rid of some of the flaking-off of the skin. If the dandruff comes back, one can always consult a skin specialist. But I hear that he is likely to prescribe the ancient drugs, sulfur, salicylic acid and tar, plus perhaps the newer resorcinol, selenium sulfide and cadmium sulfide.

What is unfortunate is that, so far as he knows, no one had yet compared the results of prolonged treatment of hundreds of people with the several drugs used.

CATARACTS

A short while ago I told here of my enthusiasm over a new type of cataract removal in which no big cut has to be made in the front of the eyeball. Instead, a hollow needle is pushed into the frosted eye lens and with very rapid impulses the cataract is liquefied -- and then sucked out. This work is being done by Dr. Charles D. Kelman of 215 E. 64th St., New York, N. Y. 10021.

I just heard from Dr. Kelman and he says he has performed 70 such operations and "the results compare very favorably with the visual results obtained with conventional techniques." The New York patients are discharged on the first day, but out-of-town patients are held for 4 or 5 days.

Dr. Kelman says he is now trying to organize an out-patient eye institute where this operation can be performed on a large scale and taught to other eye specialists. He says that the company that makes the equipment plans to finish 6 units in the next 6 months and these will then be used in teaching hospitals. Evidently then, it will be awhile before ophthalmologists all over the country can be performing this type of operation, which appears to me to be ideal.

ACNE BULLETIN

Acne, a common skin ailment especially for the teen-ager, is not only distressing but may have a bad psychological effect. There are many treatments which Dr. Alvarez discusses in his booklet, "Acne," available to you for 25 cents. Please enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request and address it to Dr. Walter C. Alvarez, Dept. LCP, Box 957, Des Moines, Iowa 50304.

Sno-Kist Tree Corporation sold to Maryland Senator

Boyne Falls--Purchase of the Sno-Kist Tree Corporation, one of the state's largest cultivated yule tree enterprises, has been disclosed here by officials of the North Star Tree Corporation. Sno-Kist, a family corporation headed by Nicholas Lentini, M.D., of Cheboygan, is based at Cheboygan but operates plantations ranging from the Straits of Mackinaw to the Muskegon, Michigan area.

The new owners of the corporation are Joseph Stazak, of Baltimore, Md., state senator of Maryland's first senatorial district, who owns yule tree plantations and a summer home here.

Walter Romanik, a former Boyne Falls area resident, now of Cheboygan, is secretary and vice-president of the new Sno-Kist venture; and Richard Stazak, son of Jos. Stazak, serves as treasurer.

Walter Romanik, Cheboygan area oil dealer, who has headed North Star's plantation and marketing operations for the past 12 years, will serve as Sno-Kist general manager.

He has disclosed that the firm will continue to operate its North Star marketing operations as well as the Sno-Kist corporation because of the fine reputation North Star had built during the years the enterprise was on its way up to becoming a major Michigan yule tree producer.

The dual phased growing enterprise will have over 4,000 acres and approximately 8 million trees under cultivation, as well as an additional 2,000 acres it manages for landowners throughout a 20 county area.

Approximately 200 seasonal employees are engaged in spraying, shearing, and marketing operations at various times of the year and 2 full-time foresters are employed by the corporation.

Walter Romanik disclosed that the final agreement for the sale of the Sno-Kist corporation was reached on June 15th, but that technical details and adjustments of the sales agreement were not completed until recently.

Sno-Kist was founded by Dr. Lentini in 1959, after approximately 1,500 acres of northern Michigan "waste lands" had been planted by the founder.

Sno-Kist annually ships to markets in 30 states and tree baling and carloading operations take place each fall on at least 20 Northern Michigan rail sidings.

North Star's principle markets have been California, Texas, Alabama, North Carolina, and Georgia.

Jos. Stazak, president of the new Sno-Kist operation, stated that demand for North Star and Sno-Kist trees is great and that one of the firm's most pressing problems is to be able to supply the market demand and judge future commitments.

Places second in cycle race

SECOND place winner in the heavyweight motorcycle B division (650cc), Sun and Snow Riders Club sponsored races, last Sunday, was Don Griffin, Boyne City. Griffin, along with East Jordan rider, Howard Penny, has copped a large share of the Sunday race trophies this season.

Grandvue Auxiliary to meet

East Jordan - Members of the newly-organized Grandvue Hospital Auxiliary are reminded that the regular monthly meeting will be held Thursday, August 14 at 2 p.m. The meeting will be held at the facility, according to Auxiliary president, Mrs. W.G. Boswell of East Jordan.

New members are welcome and are urged to attend this meeting. Plans are being finalized for a Tag Day to be held at the end of this month.

The facility is located on Peninsula Road, two miles north of East Jordan.

County records rising business tempo

(Special to the Press)

New York, Aug. 14 - Charlevoix County's economy continued moving forward during the past year, according to a report on the nation's markets, just released.

Significant gains were chalked up in the local trading area as consumers, with more money at their command, indulged in large scale spending.

The amount that they spent in the area, and what it meant for local retail merchants, are brought out in Sales Management's new "Survey of Buying Power."

The copyrighted report presents data on income and spending for every section of the country.

It shows that Charlevoix County residents had net spendable earnings in the year, after payment of their personal income taxes, of $37,418,000, as compared with the previous year's $35,076,000.

Just how much this represented, on a per-family basis, was determined by dividing the total income by the number of local households. It amounted, on average, to $7,795, an increase over the prior year's $7,308.

The rise, 6.7 percent, was greater than elsewhere in the United States, 6.4 percent, and the State of Michigan's 5.4 percent.

What did local residents do with their bigger incomes? The figures show that they spent more for furniture, bought more air conditioners, refrigerators and washing machines, purchased fancier foods and, in general, treated themselves more luxuriously.

Neither the surtax nor the higher cost of goods and services deterred them to a noticeable degree.

As a result, retail business in the area was good. Local merchants accounted for gross sales of $25,501,000, bettering the previous year's $22,742,000.

Each community is rated in the survey on the basis of the amount of retail business actually done, as compared with its estimated full capacity.

It does this through an "index of buying power," which takes into account income, population and sales.

Charlevoix County's index rating is .0070, indicating that it is capable of producing that percent of the nation's retail business.

Since it accounted for more than that last year, .0075 percent, the conclusion is that some of the local purchasing is done by non-resident shoppers.

Firemen stage picnic

East Jordan - The East Jordan Firemen's annual picnic will be held Sunday, August 17 at 1:00 p.m. The picnic is to be held at the East Jordan Tourist Park Recreational Bldg. This is to include firemen and their families, also ex-firemen, retired firemen and their wives and firemen's widows. Please bring a dish to pass and your own table service. There will be entertainment events for the youngsters.

Teens donate

Boyne City - Area teenagers will soon get their chance to contribute to the Boyne Valley Medical Center fund.

All proceeds received from this Friday night's teen dance at "The Steeple" will go to the medical center.

Commission

the city Memorial Park, Saturday Aug. 23rd, between 6 and 12 p.m. -- Larry Martin was granted the right to run sewer and water on an abandoned alley on Trent Street provided he gives the city an easement to take care of such utilities.

-- The subject of unsightly weeds on certain properties was aired. Appearance of the Howes Leather Company property evoked considerable comment since a number of private citizens have kept a portion of the tannery's property looking trim and neat. Commissioners delegated City Mgr. Forbes Tompkins to contact Rudolph Jacobson, tannery superintendent, to see what the firm would do.

-- Request of Mrs. Gregg Boswell, East Jordan, to sell tags for the new Grandvue Medical Facility Auxiliary, Aug. 22nd, was approved.

-- City Mgr. Forbes Tompkins reported that city officers were nearly prostrated with shock with Mrs. D. Lata of the Bi-County Hospital, Dearborn, wrote the city complimenting some unknown member of the police department for extreme courtesy in providing her with directions to Boyne Falls on the evening of July 9th. This nearly floored the commission too.

A Citizen's Salute To Better Community Builders

ANDY BOGEMA

When Boyne City's Chamber of Commerce atrophied to a name only, community leaders were spurred into decisive action, and the Chamber was "revitalized."

The new directors of the reborn civic organization picked Andy Bogema, pharmacist, to take over the reins as president.

Results became readily apparent. There was renewed interest in the community's annual mushroom hunting championship; the Fourth of July celebration drew a record number of parade entries and a superb fireworks was staged; the community's first Sidewalk Day Sale was an outstanding achievement in retailing.

Of course, Andy had capable aides to do the legwork, and he's quick to make it a point that they were the ones who have effected the complete transformation in the community's outlook, but executive sparks start at the top!

That's why, this week, the Northwestern State Bank salutes the contribution of the former World War II navigator-bombardier for his civic effort in bettering the lot of his fellow business colleagues as well as the community.

A native of Kalamazoo, he was once an ink specialist with the Sun Chemical Company before deciding to go into pharmacy. After graduation from the University of Michigan school of Pharmacy, he was pharmacist for the "The Professional Clinic," of Detroit; and operated the pharmacy at Lynn Hospital.

He purchased the former Gerrie Drug Store, Sept. 1, 1967, and since then has actively been interested in community affairs. He is a member of the Boyne City Lion's Club too.

How can you describe the moon

Erma Bombeck

If we have learned anything from the last moon shot it is that by November 18 when Apollo 12 blasts off, we must invent at least four new words to replace, "Fantastic, beautiful, great and wonderful."

Even Frank Borman noted that one of his fellow astronauts used a record "Four fantastics and three beautifuls within a two minute span." NASA, of course, isn't publicizing it, but hearsay has it that there is a team of English teachers at work on the problem. They are isolated in a small trailer in a corner of Mission Control. A member of the committee told me it went something like this:

"Okay, fellas," said the chairman Burgess Evans. "Let's hold it down. The crux of the problem is this. We were caught with our Funk and Wagnalls down so to speak. People have been complaining that all they've heard from the astronauts, their wives and families, geologists and the people interviewed on the news programs are the same four tired words, 'fantastic, beautiful, great and wonderful.' All I know is, gentlemen, we can't send those poor devils to the moon again armed only with four adjectives. We've got to come up with some words that have some meaning, yet aren't repetitions."

"What about spooky, weird, big and dusty," said one member, half to himself.

"Flash Gordon always used Neato," said another.

"We could resurrect Super-califragilisticexpialidosis from Mary Poppins," said another.

"Get hold of yourself, man!" snorted Evans. "By the time they got that out they'd have orbited it three times. No, it's got to be short, clear and concise."

"What about things like unbelievable, remarkable, unexampled, incredible, preposterous, bombastic, inspired or stimulating?"

"We're not describing Raquel Welch, Morman. We're attempting to describe the moon."

"Maybe," said a young English professor, "we could use some right now words. Perhaps if we borrowed some lingo from the youngsters."

"Really, Larkins," sighed Evans, "can you imagine Conrad reporting to Mission Control that the 'Moon is out of sight?'"

"I hadn't thought of that, sir."

"I've got it," said Professor Grimes. "How about brand new words? A vocabulary that has never been used before. What about Quard, schneer, blimp and primple?"

"They sound like reindeer, Grimes, but maybe you have something. Go on."

"It would take a bit of getting used to. Each time the astronaut would use 'them, a translation would flash on the screen until people came to know them."

"Brilliant," said Evans. "What do Quard, schneer, blimp and primple mean?"

"Fantastic, beautiful, great and wonderful," he shrugged.

"We'll break for lunch," sighed Evans, "and meet back here at one."

Handy ideas for little things

Barb Christensen

What do you do with a baby gate when baby outgrows it? Stand it out in the garden. It makes a dandy trellis for roses or tomatoes. Drive a couple of stakes to support it and stretch it to suit the size of your thriving tomatoes or climbers.

Last winter's snowsledder will make a cute little garden pool or bird bath. Just scoop out some dirt for a pool and lay in the flying saucer, or screw it to a post or old tree stump for a bird bath. Rust on old garden plows can be removed with a solution of equal parts of vinegar and water. Spray the plow with a rust resistant paint and stand on end so that the scoops are up for a cascading waterfall in the garden. Hose woven up the middle will take water to the top of the plow for its journey splashing down from curve to curve.

An umbrella's life is not over when the fabric rots and leaks run through. Take the umbrella skeleton, with the outside fabric edge still intact, to the garden. Morning glories and clematis vines will climb in and out of the ribs and then drip towards the ground. Just attach the handle to a stake or insert it in a pipe driven in the ground for a lovely umbrella tree of flowers. A wagon wheel planter is an especially good idea for your patio, lawn or garden. To make this unique planter, get a large sewer pipe from a construction or lumber company. Place a wagon wheel across this and paint the two bright red. From the florist, get clay flowerpots to fit and nestle them between the rings all the way around the wheel. Plant these with petunias, geraniums and other flowers. However, strawberries thrive in here because the drainage is good, there's plenty of sun and they can climb all over the wheel. Your imagination can tell you ideas about the beauty of this planter.

I also nestled small flowerpots between the wheel's rungs and planted them with a herb garden. Basil, chives, mint, rosemary, thyme and parsley. Believe me, you can't help but impress your dinner guests when you float across the kitchen like the girl in the hair color commercial, daintily snip fresh basil from your wagon wheel planter, and toss it into the spaghetti sauce!

If you find an old coal shuttle, give it the rust clean up treatment, a coat of rust preventative paint and two final coats of antique black. Fill the shuttle three quarters with briquettes, set the starter on top and you're ready to grill. One of our annual summer rituals has always been the slow but certain destruction of a newly purchased, metal barbecue grill. We don't have to look at the calendar to know that it's late August. One glance at the rusty, charred flooring in our grill and we know that summer is on its way out. But this year should be a different story because we lined the bottom of our grill with gravel.

Speaking of gravel, if you have a gravel patio or driveway that keeps spouting weeds, you should have put down sheets of plastic before the gravel. Or, you could have saturated the soil with old crankcase oil drained from cars at your friendly service station. This would have sterilized the soil for years. But, if the gravel is already down, your only answer would be weed killer, which is pretty expensive for such an area. Try water softener salt sprinkled on the weeds and then watered down good, or just wait for the rain. It will make those weeds yellow and die, and it's lots cheaper than weed killer. Junk can be beautiful!

Presbyterian Church scene of Reich-Barnard marriage

East Jordan - Baskets of gladiolas and snapdragons decorated the Presbyterian Church for the nuptial ceremony of Miss Barbara Ann Reich and Michael Lee Barnard on Saturday evening, August 9th. The parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Allen Reich of R.R. #2 of East Jordan. The groom's parents are Mr. L. J. Barnard of Olympia, Washington and Mrs. Philip Shirley, of 262 South Waverley of Eaton Rapids, Michigan. The Presbyterian Church's pastor, the Rev. Chandler Benton and the Rev. Leona Winegarden of the United Methodist Church of Elk Rapids officiated the wedding ceremony.

The bride walked down the aisle on her father's arm wearing a gown of alencon lace with a basque bodice. Styled with a sabrina neckline and petal point sleeves, the gown featured a silhouette bouffant skirt with the old tradition tiers. The gown's top tier was fashioned completely of alencon lace and flowed into a slight train. A full length chapel train fell gracefully from the bride's shoulder with a mantilla hood which accented the back of the dress. Both were bordered with scalloped edges of lace. The bride's headpiece was a Juliet cap of matching lace and sequins and was attached to tiers of nylon tulle. She carried a bouquet of white roses and stephanotis.

The soloist, Mr. Jason Snyder was accompanied by Mr. Paul Ferris on the organ for the wedding ceremony.

The sister of the bride, Miss Sharon Reich was the maid of honor. The two bridesmaids were Mrs. William Huff and Mrs. Rodney Pearsall, both of Charlevoix. The brides attendants wore floor length gowns of pink dotted nylon over pink satin. Their pink shoulder length veils were held in place with matching satin bows. They carried bouquets of pink and white carnations.

Mr. James Barnard, brother of the groom, was the best man. The groomsmen were Mr. Dale Reich, brother of the bride, of Royal Oak, and Mr. William Snyder of East Lansing. The ushers

Reid-Hausler exchange vows in candlelight service

Petoskey - Solemn vows were exchanged in an afternoon candlelight service in the United Methodist Church by Miss Jean Ann Reid of Petoskey and Ronald Dean Hausler of Boyne City. The parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. James M. Reid, Sr. of 925 Star Street in Petoskey and Mr. and Mrs. Vernon O. Hausler of 522 Grant Street in Boyne City. The double ring ceremony was officiated by the Rev. Russell King before the 150 guests attending.

Flowers and bows decorated the pews and candelabras trimmed with white flowers and foliage added a serene glow to the church's altar.

Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride chose a gown of silk organza over taffeta with an empire waistline. Venise lace enhanced the bodice and cuffs of the gown as were the full, organza Juliet sleeves. The gown's back was accented with a matching chapel train and shoulder length veil. She carried a colonial bridal bouquet of white roses, carnations and daisies. Mrs. Walter Fairbairn played the wedding music for her walk down the aisle.

The matron of honor was the sister of the bride, Mrs. Donalush Bush of Pickford, Michigan and the bridesmaids were Jean Moyer, Linda Lucy and Janet Miller, all of Petoskey. The bride's attendants wore identical gowns of yellow dotted swiss with empire waistlines and scoop necklines. Yellow daisies secured their matching yellow fingertip veils and they carried nosegays of white and yellow daisies and babies breath.

Michael Hausler, brother of the groom, was the best man. The groomsmen were Steve Smith of St. Clair Shores, Jeff Hocquard and Tom Barkley, both of Boyne City.

The reception was held at Stafford's Bay View Inn where the bride's parents hosted a lovely buffet dinner for the guests attending. The tiered wedding cake was cut by Mrs. James Reid, Jr. and Miss Jan Paxton. The guest book was attended by the bride's aunt, Mrs. W. H. Judd and by Mrs. Thomas Paxton.

Following the couple's week-long honeymoon trip, they will return to Boyne City where they will both be teaching school.

Guests attending the wedding from out-of-town came from Detroit, Lansing, Flint, Battle Creek and Grand Rapids.

Evening nuptial rite unites Taylor-Jerome

East Jordan - A lovely evening nuptial ceremony took place at the United Missionary Church on Saturday, August 2 when Mary Diane Taylor and Gary Jerome exchanged their wedding vows. The couple's parents are Mrs. Mary Stark of East Jordan and Mr. and Mrs. Jerome of Alba. The double ring ceremony was performed and officiated by the Rev. Marcus Krakow.

Baskets of gladiolas and double candelabra created a pretty setting in the church for the couple's wedding as Bonnie Gee of East Jordan played the organ music for the ceremony.

The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, Archie Bennett and was gowned in a dress of white taffeta of empire style, with a chapel train of the same material. Her fingertip veil of net was held in place by a tiara of leaves and sequins. She carried a bridal bouquet of pink sweetheart roses and babies breath.

The bride chose for her maid of honor, her cousin, Miss Sherry Stiles of Berrien Springs and her bridesmaid was Jean Stark of Boyne City. They wore identical floor-length gowns of pink and each carried a single pink rose.

The best man was Leo Bunning of Alba and the groomsmen were Robert Ulvund and Glen Bennett. The flower girl and ring bearer were the niece and nephew of the bridegroom.

For her daughter's wedding, the mother of the bride wore a yellow dress with beige accessories. The groom's mother wore a blue sheath dress and their for the ceremony were Mr. Thomas Brown of East Lansing, Mr. Samuel Shirley, brother of the groom, of Eaton Rapids.

The mother of the bride wore a dress of green lace and the groom's mother was attired in a two-piece ensemble of beige lace. Both mothers wore corsages of white carnations and a single rose bud.

After the wedding ceremony, the bride's parents hosted a reception given at the East Jordan Farm Union in honor of the new couple. Mrs. John Reich, the bride's aunt, cut the wedding cake while Miss Sherry Kitson, the bride's cousin, attended the guest book. Mrs. Dale Reich and Mrs. James Barnard poured the beverages.

corsages were of tangerine color roses and white gladiolas.

The reception was held at the East Jordan Tourist Park with wedding cake, ice cream, jello and punch served to all the guests. Charlene Van Horn of Niles cut and served the cake while Mrs. Ruth Stark of Boyne City, the bride's aunt, poured the punch. All those who assisted in serving at the reception wore corsages of pink and white carnations. The groom's grandparents were also present at the reception.

The bride will graduate from the East Jordan High School with the class of 1970. The groom is presently serving in the Navy and is stationed in San Diego, California. The bride will stay with her husband until school begins in September. She will then reside with her mother during her husband's absence.

Out of town guests who attended the wedding were from Niles, Berrien Center, Berrien Springs, Alba, Gaylord and Mancelona.

East Jordan - The marriage of Miss Catherine A. Goebel and Dale I. Everett took place Saturday afternoon in a wedding ceremony at the Evangelical Lutheran Church. The couple's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Walter Goebel, Sr. of East Jordan and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Everett of Central Lake. The Pastor James Larsen officiated at the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of angel mist taffeta with venise lace trim on the stand-up collar, the cuffs of the bishop sleeves, and also on the front of the gown. Creating an A-line silhouette, the gown's lace was threaded with white satin ribbon. Her mantilla chapel train fell from a half moon cap of venise lace and satin ribbon. The satin ribbon and lace also trimmed the edges of her train.

The organist at the wedding was Margaret Thomson who played the accompaniment for Jason Snyder as he sang 'The Lord's Prayer'.

The bride's maid of honor was Miss Janice R. Goebel. Her gown was of powder blue silk taffeta enhanced with a lace bodice and a satin belt with streamers.

Willard Shafer was the groom's best man for the ceremony. His two ushers were Gerald Everett and Clifford Watrous.

The bride's mother was dressed in a sheath of light blue lace over taffeta and she wore white accessories. The mother of the groom wore a blue print dress. Both mothers wore corsages of white and pink carnations interspersed with babies breath.

The law say "how"

The decision of the State Tax Commission in overruling the Emmet County Tax Allocation Board's decision to deny the Char-Emmet Intermediate Board .2 mill should come as no particular surprise in view of the obvious irregularities that were pointed out during the commission's hearing, a fortnight ago.

The law in respect to handling public monies is quite specific as to what may, or may not be done with funds.

A couple of decades ago, Charlevoix County Supervisors, in anticipation of building a new county building, took it upon themselves to divert public funds into a special sinking fund.

This was good business, and the county was fortunate in having foresighted representatives who could see the day when such a practice might result in saving the residents of the county many thousands of dollars.

But the State Auditor General's Department said "nix," in no uncertain terms.

The fund was declared illegal, and it wasn't until later, when voters went to the polls to approve millage to build a new county structure, that the ambitions of the Board of Supervisors were realized.

Ordinarily, Charlevoix County residents would have little concern with the actions of the Emmet County Supervisors, except for the fact that the Bi-County school district arrangement now results in Charlevoix County residents being interested in the fact that Emmet County toes the line in handling its funds, so that residents of both counties get an "equal shake."

Such was not the case when it came to the Emmet County Allocation Board's decision in holding back on the .2 of a mill that had been requested by the Char-Emmet Intermediate Board of Education.

While the .2 mill meant an additional $1,875 in Emmet's total operating budget, it deprived the ISD of approximately $8,000 in state aid matching funds.

But of particular significance (and a fact that was not pointed out by many press sources) was the fact that the Emmet County Board of Supervisors is tucking away "rainy day funds." There is a retirement fund with no voted retirement plan.

And only last week, an Emmet County weekly newspaper reported that Chairman Greenwell stated that he was very proud that the Emmet County Airport was operating in the black and that some $20,000 of county-allocated funds were being placed in the airport terminal building fund.

This is a very fine gesture on the part of the Emmet County Board of Supervisors, but it harks back to the fact that there are certain methods prescribed by law as to how public monies can be diverted into certain little "nest eggs."

Local self-starters needed

The University of Michigan's Great Lake's Survey and Research activity a year ago disclosed that Lake Charlevoix was growing old at a rate 100 times what would be considered its "normal aging rate."

This is due, in part to the inadequacies of the Boyne City sewage disposal plant (a state health department approved facility); the pollution, (both airborne and waterborne) of Howes Leather Company Tannery; and last, but far from least, the Northern Michigan Rural Electric Co-operative steam generation plant at Advance.

In the past year, Howes Leather Company has been conferring with experts in the field of tannery waste disposal and it has installed a mechanical precipitator to reduce the amount of carbonaceous material that pollutes the air.

The City of Boyne City has been one of the first communities in the state to apply for funds, under the newly voted state bonding issue, to correct the faults in its sewage system, namely to separate the storm sewers from the sanitary sewers so that the efficiency of its plant will be upgraded during seasons of the year when the greatest run-off occurs.

But it's quite obvious to any eye-ball surveyor that the Northern Michigan Rural Electric steam generation plant at Advance is shooting ever-greater quantities of fly ash into the atmosphere.

In addition, a certain amount of thermal pollution is occurring in the lake due to the plant's use of a considerable volume of lake water to cool its condensers.

To a great extent, the Advance activity is a U.S. government sponsored enterprise since its financing, as well as its operational policies are set by the National Rural Electric Administration in Washington.

It would seem that this federal agency, in its approval of any of the local operating policies of fossil fueled electrical generation plants would, as a matter of good public practice, see that its plants were equipped with high quality electronic fly ash precipitators, as well as cooling ponds, or radiation systems to reduce thermal pollution.

Without adequate scientific equipment it's difficult to state how many tons of fly ash is settling on the country side as well as the surface of Lake Charlevoix from the Advance plant.

However, the time seems past due for some agency, whether it be the local township board, the state, or the federal government to start looking at the situation that is occurring at Advance.

Better still, the board of directors of the Northern Michigan Rural Electric Co-operative should initiate steps to correct what is a big problem now that is only going to grow progressively worse.

Those are the concluding lines of a famous ode about anglers. And they are true.

In the course of a year, we shoot several dozen pictures of trophy sized fish. Invariably we ask the question: "Where did you get them?"

With a cautious look over each shoulder, the fisherman goes s-h-h-h, while he puts his index fingers to his lips, motions you to come a bit closer, and then whispers...

"I got them at the south end of Deer Lake... but don't you breathe a word. Use green frogs, and you can't miss."

So we use green frogs. Boy, you should see how far we can miss.

Instead of a nice string of smallmouth, we settle for bullheads.

When one character posed for a typical trophy shot last year, he told us that he got the nice string of rainbow in Walloon Lake.

We got a tipoff from another source that it really wasn't Walloon Lake, but it was Lake Louise. And instead of the fish being native fall spawners, they really were nothing but a bunch of hatchery throw-outs, too old for good spawn production; too stewed with pellets to taste good; and too dumb to do anything but bite at the first clothes pin that was tossed out to them.

News travels fast in a case like this.

We went out to Lake Louise and found a congregation of about 100 "sportsmen," throwing every imaginable kind of lure at the hapless "fall run rainbows."

If there's anyone that beats fishermen for lying, it's mushroom pickers.

For 25 years, we've noticed, without fail, that 99 per cent of the good hauls of mushrooms are made in Whiting Park.

Everytime someone comes to the office to have his picture taken with 2 fine bushels of morel mushrooms, we get 2 answers.

At least one per cent of mushroom hunters are truthful. They don't say "Whiting Park."

They say: "In the woods."

As a result of our long years of research concerning the pervarication habits of anglers, we've formulated what might be termed "Smith's Law."

It goes like this: If an angler tells you that a certain water is good for lake-trout, you can expect bluegills.

Largemouth bass, you get sun-fish.

Brook trout, you get chubs.

Rainbow trout, you get suckers.

Brown trout, you get redhorse.

Salmon, you get carp.

Small mouth, you get logperch.

Bluegills, you get rock bass.

If a fisherman tells you to use nightcrawlers, use minnows.

Frogs, use crickets.

Flies, use worms.

Worms, use a spear.

If he tells you that he caught them in the Jordan River, it was Bear Creek.

Lake Charlevoix, it was Walloon Lake.

Walloon Lake, it was the Boyne Falls pond.

The Boyne Falls Pond, it was the Sturgeon River.

This is only one reason that newspapermen are invariably referred to as "those cynical newspapermen."

It's also the reason why those concluding lines of that famous ode read:

"... He returneth home in the evening, Smelling of strong drink and the truth is not in him."

It Would Have Made a Good Story Dep't: Last week, a Mrs. Wm. Mack, of Watervliet, Mich. came to Boyne City to meet the members of the Carol Seelye family. They were on holiday, in Huntington, Ind., so Mrs. Mack had to trail down the in-laws and relatives of the Seelyes.

Her pilgrimage to Boyne was in the nature of a mission of gratitude.

It was Mrs. Mack who received a kidney from Billy Seelye, 13-year-old son of the Carol Seelyes, who died at U. of M. Hospital, last year, but bequeathed his organs to anyone who might need them before he died.

The story hit virtually every paper in the country because Billy was a Boy Scout and this fact was duly noted to the effect that he had accomplished a supreme final Good Deed in the best Scout tradition.

Mrs. Mack, who was down to 76 pounds, has gained weight so rapidly that she is now on a diet, and at the time we tried to locate her, she was back at Ann Arbor to have a checkup - - things are going that good with her.

Swim school closing

Boyer City - The Boyne City Swim School officially draws to a close Friday, August 15, with two competitive swim meets scheduled for the children at Whiting Park. Prizes and ribbons will be awarded to the winners of the events.

The bus will leave Memorial Park at 9:30 a.m. for the morning swim meet and again at 1:00 p.m. for the afternoon meet.

Eleven advanced swimmers and junior life savers, ranging from ages 10 to 13, will culminate the swim school year with a swim across the lake - leaving Young State Park at 10:00 a.m. and finishing at Whiting Park. Red Cross certificates of swimming achievement will also be awarded at this time.

The interested public as well as parents, are cordially invited and encouraged to witness the fun.

"If It Fitz. . ."

Nice people are racists

By Jim Fitzgerald

"Old liberal Jim went swimming with the niggers again, and probably had watermelon for dinner."

So spoke a friend of mine upon my recent return from a weekend in Detroit. Yes, I said friend. Which brings us quickly to the subject at hand: the astonishment of several University of Michigan students who invaded Detroit to make a detailed survey of white attitudes towards blacks.

These door-knocking liberals found the prejudice they expected. Oh, white Detroit isn't as wary of Negroes today as in 1967, year of the riot. There are, in fact, a growing number of white Detroiters who recognize that blacks get a bum deal and something should be done about it. But please let someone else do it.

What surprised the surveyors was that truly "nice people" are racial bigots. Many of the students finally admitted they had been guilty of the same stereotyping they condemn when the other guy does it. They had decided all bigots were nasty rednecks who pick their noses and spit at black children. They weren't prepared for the graciousness and likeability of many whites who served the surveyors highballs and cookies along with sincere tech-tches over the plight of the Negro: "But my neighbors would never speak to me again if I sold my home to a Negro."

"I had to change a lot of my thinking," admitted one surprised surveyor who had been well charmed by a neighborhood of polite racists.

Lions launch state anti-pollution program

A mercy flight was carried out recently when the U.S. Coast Guard helicopter from the air station at Traverse City was called on to transport an injured crewman from the Lansing Shoal light station 44 miles northwest of Charlevoix to the Charlevoix Hospital.

The injured man, John J. Miller, 21, Engineman second class, suffered a concussion and head laceration when he slipped and fell, striking his head on the cement floor of the light station.

The 30 foot patrol boat from the Beaver Island station, 12 miles away, was sent to remove the injured man from the 'crib' of the station so he could be taken aboard the helicopter.

Fochtman plans to visit the 50 clubs in his district, distribute bumper stickers which carry the legend "You're the Solution to Water Pollution" and to gather information on pollution of area waters. The information will be channeled to Lion headquarters and then turned over to the proper departments.

BCMC who has returned after 21 years in the same service. He has been in charge of the Charlevoix station since March 1, 1968. He will make his home in San Jose, California.

The Charlevoix Hospital has launched a fund campaign to raise $8,000 still owed on x-ray equipment purchased earlier. The equipment, which replaces that in use since the hospital opened in 1954, cost $41,500. Thus far, $32,500 has been contributed by individual, local and summer residents, business and industry.

Charles C. Hambley BCMC, veteran of 20 years in the U.S. Coast Guard, has returned from Vietnam to assume command of the Charlevoix Lifeboat station. He relieves Richard S. Covey.

Charlevoix launched its Community Chest campaign last week under the guidance of Charles England.

Goal for the campaign is $17,914 in which 12 agencies will share.

The city conducts its campaign in several series with the Special Gifts and Summer Business division beginning in August followed by the Industrial, Commercial and Professional in early September and Residential and Outlying area in mid-September.

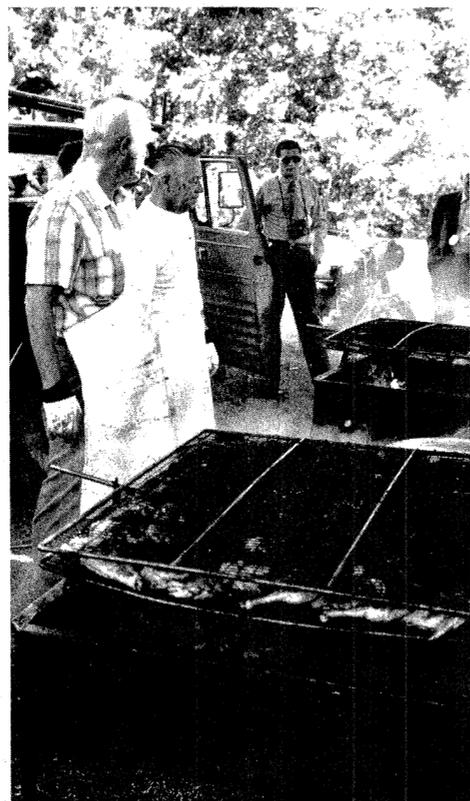

The rifling of coin boxes continues in the Charlevoix area. Earlier coin containers on several downtown telephone pay stations were broken into. Sometime early last week, the Charlevoix Rod and Gun Clubhouse off US 31 North was entered. A coin operated pool table, juke box and soft drink machine were smashed and the change taken.

The Lions of Michigan have launched a program to halt pollution. Richard Fochtman of Charlevoix has been named chairman of District 11-E which takes in 18 northern Michigan counties.

COUNTY Republican Committee Chairman, Oscar Stroud, Charlevoix, mans the coffee stand.

Receives Interlochen first alternate music award

Boyne City - Sherry Behrens, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Behrens, Boyne City, was recently honored at Interlochen National Music Camp by being named the first alternate recipient of a $450 Interlochen Musical Scholarship.

Sherry, who for the past two weeks has been attending Interlochen's All State Program, was chosen for the award by her teachers, counselors, conductor and fellow students. The honor is based on citizenship as well as musicianship.

According to Dennis Johnson, Boyne City band director, Sherry tied for the winner's award, however, the girl who won the scholarship expressed a desire to major in music after high school - Sherry did not.

Sherry's two week stay at Interlochen was sponsored by the local Chapter of Barbershop Harmony Masters (SPBSQSA).

The $450 scholarship is awarded each year to one outstanding music student per camp session.

In addition to a winner, four alternates are named.

"I think this is really quite an honor for Sherry," said Johnson. "And the local barbershoppers are to be commended for giving her the opportunity to attend Interlochen."

Other Boyne youths who attended Interlochen on scholarships financed by the local Rotary Club were Ann Battiste and Alan Newville.

East Jordan senior citizen creates 'Bunyanite'

BY BARB CHRISTENSEN

"BUNYANITE" creator, Adolph Drapeau, works on one of his creations.

East Jordan - Tales of Paul Bunyan fill several books of good reading. The mighty logger born with a beard, was the hero of the lumber camps. The adventures of Paul Bunyan and Babe, the mighty blue ox who was his constant companion, were first told to amuse the lumbermen as they sat around the stoves in lumber camps. Everyone thinks of the great outdoors when reminded of this mighty logger. Today forest products are being used with modern synthetics in the Paul Bunyan Workshop to create "Bunyanite."

A. L. Drapeau, retired Industrial Arts teacher, wanted to find a use for paper waste products. While teaching he developed a composition of old newspapers, cardboard cartons or any paper product which could be packed into molds to assume shapes from which students could machine or work like wood. Because of its toughness, origin and similarity to wood, "Bunyanite" was trademarked. Students found decorative bowls, platters, vases and figurines easy to make since Bunyanite has no end grain and will not chip or split as easy as wood. Even pulleys and wheels could be easily made by sawing, drilling or turning this product with standard woodworking hand or power tools.

At the Paul Bunyan Workshop, Mr. Drapeau's substance is made by pulverizing mounds of scrap paper through a machine that has multiple blades and a suction fan that draws the pulverized fiber into burlap bags. Paper dust fills the air, requiring an inhalator face protector during this process. Looking like vacuum cleaner fluff, it is then mixed with a powered synthetic resin formula to form a solution resembling a heavy cream.

Wood molds are coated with paraffin before filling with solution, which is packed in tight

Look closely at a so-called perfect rose! Scan the petals; you will find they are far from perfect. Yet heaven shapes, blends or misshapen stems will not spoil the delicate color, rich fragrance and sheer beauty of the total flower.

How clearly a rose illustrates that nothing in life is truly perfect! But, rather than discourage us, this should give us fresh confidence and strength. God did not make the rose perfect--nor did He make us perfect. Yet He thinks none the less of us for our faults and blemishes. In His eyes we always have another chance. But it is up to us to take it. Start by going to the church of your choice next Sunday.

Digesting the news at the dinner table

Russ Metz

Since the advent of television, it has been said the American family has lost the art of conversation. It has not been said at our house because we still talk a lot, usually with our mouths full of food.

During a dinner between the baked beans and spumoni, we have been known to solve the Arab-Israel crisis, the cause of inflation and the high cost of public welfare, when I am allowed to enter the conversation to any degree.

When talk lags, I usually read to the family some of the major news happenings of the day. This automatically makes me the moderator and gives me the choice of picking the most enlightening events for comment from the table. The other night, I came on with openers like this:

"O.K., gang, tonight we review the case of the Sacramento Municipal Court Judge and the bottomless go-go dancers." Mother choked on her asparagus, Grandma dropped her frankfurter and young son asked, "What is a bottomless go-go dancer?" "Be quiet and drink your milk," his mother told him. "What kind of a discussion is this when a fellow can't ask a simple question," he growled, reaching for his fourth helping of staples.

"Why did you happen to bring up this particular event at the supper table," my wife asked me, right off questioning my chairmanship. She always hedges like this when I bone up on current events so I can't be out-talked.

"I'll tell you why," I said. "Because I am interested in jurisprudence and go-go prudence, because somewhere along the line I never had much opportunity to study either one closely."

"Remember," I reminded her, "when I wanted to research the impact of topless dancers on the average American male and you ruled it non communicato on grounds of personal conflict?" "What's a topless dancer?" from young son.

"Both you and your father drink your milk," she ordered.

It seemed like a good topic. This judge, Earl Warren Jr., son of the former supreme court chief justice, set up court in Sacramento's Fig Leaf A-Go-Go to study the bare evidence of two bottomless dancers, who had been brought before the bar of justice on charges of indecent exposure.

While the gals bounced to the tune of Woolly Bully, Judge Warren looked... and looked... and looked. After defogging his specs, he took 13 pages to explain why these girls were innocent. Not that this was any blanket approval of naked dancing, he pointed out. He simply felt that a ballerina in tights or a bottomless go-go gal were each entitled to the same rights of self-expression and he was not about to let a few threads make any appreciable difference. "Now that this learned judge has struck a blow for art and freedom, don't you think it is time I begin to get a little freedom on my topless trend investigation?" I said to the missus of the house.

"A nut off the old tree," she stated. She has never been one of big Earl Warren's most ardent admirers. "And I can appreciate your own academic interest in this thing, but you know how poorly paid those art critics are."

"You've lost me. I'm going out and play baseball," young son announced and left.

"Tut, tut," said Grandma and went to watch Bonanza.

"All right buster," mother said. "Your table talk-in bombed out tonight. This is the last time we're going to let you choose the subjects."

I put the newspaper between us and read the story again to try to find out where I went wrong. Sometimes, it seems, trying to drum up a decent family discussion is about as hard as finding a decent barebottom go-go dancer.

My family plans to keep talking to one another, but after the conquest of the moon, the freeing of Dr. Spock and the great Fig Leaf A-Go-Go verdict, dinner music at our house is likely to seem mighty dull.

Straight Talk

Kennedy needed a neck brace

I defend Senator Kennedy's wearing of the neck brace at the Kopechne girl's funeral. He needed it to hold his head up.

Senator Teddy Kennedy is a liar. On the morning of July 19 (nine hours after the tragedy) and for five days thereafter, Senator Kennedy steadfastly maintained that he had no recollection of how he got out of the death car; that he was "exhausted" and "in a state of shock;" that he "walked around for awhile," "rested in the back seat of a car," and that "someone" then drove him back to Edgartown, where he went to his hotel room.

"When I fully realized what had happened this morning, I immediately went to the police," he said. Police Chief James Arena originally said the Senator was "so much in a state of shock that he didn't tell the people that he came over with" about the tragedy. The fact is that Kennedy and two of the people he came over with had lied to the Police Chief.

"I was unfamiliar with the road and turned right, instead of bearing hard left" shortly after which the car "went off the bridge," Kennedy stated. "This was doubtless the first time the junior Senator from Massachusetts ever turned right. He is accustomed to bearing hard left.

A native, who happens to be a deputy sheriff, reported that a man and woman were parked in the Kennedy car at that fateful fork in the road shortly before the accident and that he went up to them and asked if they needed help. They didn't. Since that was shortly before the Kennedy car plunged into the water, who else could the couple have been other than Kennedy and Miss Kopechne? Were they parked there trying to decide which fork to take (a reflector sign pointed the way)? Why didn't they ask the native?

Why didn't Kennedy tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth from the beginning? And why doesn't he now?

Ten hours after the accident "a source close to the Kennedys who asked not to be identified said the Senator was still in a state of shock and was unable to hold a press conference to discuss the accident," reported a wire service. Another lie. The "shock" was realization that he might have blown his chances for the Presidency. He and his Massachusetts Mafia spent hours diving to try to recover the body. Unsuccessful they left the girl who idolized him trapped in the upside down car and concentrated on deciding how they were going to extricate him.

"I was exhausted and in a state of shock," Kennedy had claimed. "I recall walking back to where my friends were eating. There was a car parked in front of the cottage and I climbed into the back seat. I then asked for someone to bring me back to Edgartown. "I remember walking around for a period of time and then going back to my hotel room. When I fully realized what had happened this morning, I immediately contacted the police."

This was all a carefully planned, coldblooded lie! Was Kennedy under oath when he mouthed that cock and bull story devised with the help of his lawyer friends? If so, he should be prosecuted for perjury. The incredible gap of this story is greater than that of the Bay of Pigs. (More next week.)

Animal eye colors and dead beer cans

Gordie Charles

It's night and you are driving along a dark road when your car's headlights pick up a pair of eyes. They stare for a moment, then disappear into the ditch and you have no idea what it was you saw.

While this sort of thing might be a little frustrating, it doesn't have to be. Did you know you can identify various night-prowling animals by the color of their eyes?

Deer eyes, for example, shine like golden coals. A cow's eyes look pretty much the same in color but a cow will occasionally blink. A deer won't blink but will continue staring at the lights.

A raccoon's eyes have a definite green tint when seen in the dark. If you happen to pick up an opossum with your car lights, which is quite possible in the southern part of the state, the eyes will glow with a deep red. Bobcats and housecats have eyes which will glow with a pale gold color.

These should do for a starter. If the idea interests you, start keeping track of what you see along the roads at night and make a mental note of the eye colors. It can be quite fascinating.

Chances are, the first thing you will see gleaming back at you with a steady shine from the roadside ditch is one of the most common "trophies" of all. If it refuses to move as your lights approach, it's a good bet you have spotted that not-so-rare creature -- the dead beer can.

Speaking of those tossed-out beer cans and bottles, which are much too numerous along our roads and highways, something quite disappointing happened not long ago.

An announcement came from Sweden that a so-called "degradable" plastic beer container had been perfected and would soon be on the market. Hopes were raised throughout the civilized world that here, at last, was a bottle that could be slung out of car windows and, in as little as two months, would melt away to nothing!

Manufacturers of glass and aluminum cans were undoubtedly having fits as they visualized their profits drying up. Then came a second announcement.

This one said that somebody's translation of Swedish into English wasn't so hot. The Swedish bottles took a bit longer than a couple of months to melt away. Such a container, in fact, would take about 15,000 hours of ex-

Just four generations ago - a vast wilderness

George Washington, first president of our embryonic United States of America was not only an astute leader but also possessed with prophetic vision as witnessed by his recorded words of wisdom: "As our Country grows and its population increases--as it will--care must be taken to have each succeeding generation know the trials and tribulations of those who preceded them."

A Michigan map of 1839 from the Michigan collection of Chester W. Ellison of Lansing gives cause for thought--thought that little more than four generations ago northern Michigan was still a vast wilderness stretching between Lake Michigan and Lake Huron from the 44th parallel to within a stone's throw of the 46th parallel with no designation other than Township of Michilimackinac.

White men were few and far between in the Township of Michilimackinac in 1839 and those for the most part concentrated on the shores of the Big Lakes that spread like three extended fingers into the prehistoric forests.

It was a time when eastern fur trading fortunes were being accumulated from the Astor holdings on Mackinac Island to the Canadian border and knowing lumber speculators were casting greedy eyes northward.

Less than a century earlier the British had been massacred at Fort Michilimackinac (June 1763) and the Lake Charlevoix area was a dense jungle of hardwoods and pines.

Roads were non-existent. Communication was carried on by Indian runners along trails blazed by tomahawk slashings on ancient tree trunks through the deep forests--Michigan's famous Mackinac Trail (old U.S. Highway 2) remains today, renamed by interested historians, as evidence that these trails not only existed but were once of vital necessity to the growing white population of Michigan.

Transportation was carried on in dug-out canoes which were soon supplemented by sailing vessels as the white man extended his presence and influence throughout the land. But it was a bone-bare existence at best and there were few comforts for the hardy pioneers.

By mid 1800s county supervisors as far south as Kent and Mason counties were planning primitive roadways to literally "get the homesteaders out of the woods". Although that might seem unbelievable to today's citizenry, still the late Sarah (Mrs. James) McNeal, pioneer resident of the Boyne City area often mentioned that she recalled the dense woods surrounding her own girlhood home as almost suffocating. Small wonder the pioneers so recklessly slaughtered trees near their log homes: They needed both sunshine and air circulation for health and well being. The rutted, pioneer roads, so muddy wagon wheels became mired or so sandy the husky team breathed heavily on infrequent trips to market were a boon to our first settler... The roads made life less lonely as a social interchange between neighbors became possible.

And so it behooves today's travelers to breathe a silent accolade to the hardy pioneers who made modern conveniences pos-

Pat Moody completes basic

San Antonio - Airman Patrick M. Moody, son of Mr. and Mrs. Steven M. Moody of 701 Spring St., Boyne City, has received his first U.S. Air Force duty assignment after completing basic training at Lackland AFB, Tex. The airman has been assigned to a unit of the Air Training Command at Sheppard AFB, Tex., for training and duty as an information specialist. Airman Moody, a graduate of Boyne City High School, attended Career Academy of Radio and Television Broadcasting in Milwaukee.

As President Washington affirmed so succinctly, the trials and tribulations of our first settlers should never be taken for granted as the Divine Right of Moderns--rather understanding of those early discomforts should be an illumination appreciation of what they contributed to today's pleasures.

Swedish beauty enjoys Northern Michigan visit

Boyer City - For Kirstin Gramberg, 17-year-old Swedish honey-blond, the past year has been virtually a process of continuous "Americanization."

It was a little more than a year ago that her parents, residing at Stora Tuna, Sweden, about 120 miles northwest of Stockholm, took part in an exchange student program and Donna Lou Fox, of Boyer City, daughter of Mr.

and Mrs. Donovan Fox was their guest for the summer.

Then Kirstin embarked for the United States for an entire year of study as an exchange student with the Keith Marshall family, of Elmhurst, Nebraska, where she lived almost in the same environment as her native Sweden.

The Marshalls, on their large farm, specialize in beef cattle, but raise a lot of corn and beans.

At home, Kirstin's parents are dairy farmers, and they raise barley, and engage in selective cutting of their timberlands to provide pulpwood for Sweden's major industry - paper making.

A fortnight ago, enroute home to her native land, Kirstin came to Boyer City to spend three weeks with Donna Lou Fox, before rejoining a troupe of European students who were slated to make an extensive tour of the United Nations activity in New York before boarding the S.S. Aurelia, of the Italian line, enroute home via Rotterdam, Netherlands.

For the two companions of a year ago, the visit to Northern Michigan is an idyll which Kirstin will never forget.

"I love it here, because the hills, the forests, and the many lakes are so much my homeland," she said, just prior to her departure.

Mastery of English is somewhat difficult for Swedish students she explained because of the confusion over whether they are going to learn "American English," or "British English."

"It's the accent that is so confusing to us," she said.

Almost from the moment Swedish students enter elementary school, their training in learning other languages is started.

Using tapes, as well as texts, they derive a phonetic sense of the language as well as its correct grammatical constructions. While English is a required language subject, other electives that most students undertake are French and German.

Many students emerge from their high school curricula with a basic ability in all 3 languages.

Kirstin's next educational stint will be three years in "The Gymnasium," which is the equivalent of U.S. junior college, and then on to the university. After that there are careers for Swedish girls in chiefly teaching - or matrimony.

Since she's a stunning blue-eyed beauty, there's no doubt that Kirstin could become successful in either elective.

REUNION - Donna Lou Fox, left, and Kirstin Gramberg turn on for the cameraman in this souvenir shot of Kirstin's visit to Northern Michigan which she loves so much because it looks very similar to her native Stora Tuna, Sweden.

Charlevoix Hospital seeks funds for radiology equipment

Charlevoix - A baby swallows a nail. A teenager slides his car into a ditch. A workman's hand slips and a piece of steel is lodge in his flesh. A woman has a pain in her stomach. What do these people have in common?

Ask any doctor because he knows that the baby, the teenager, the workman and the woman will each be x-rayed before the doctor begins his treatment.

Our Charlevoix Hospital is fortunate to own new Radiology equipment that will x-ray a crying baby in the split fraction of a second, will x-ray a patient no matter how large, that does not need to be operated in the dark, that will give a better picture faster than ever before (completely processed in 60 seconds), equipment better than that which serves many major hospitals.

This new equipment (125 to 150 Kv., 300 ma. unit, 15 degree-90 degree table with moving top, fluoroscopic device with amplifier capable of being connected to a TV camera and monitor etc.) has been in operation here since last fall.

"We're using this equipment more than ever before," says June Cross, technician. "We have more doctors to serve a growing population."

But unfortunately the life saving equipment is not fully paid for. "We've raised $32,500.00 so far and we're proud of the many generous donors who have contributed to the x-ray fund--but we're still $8,000.00 short of our goal," says Julius Gilbert, fund raising chairman and board member of the Charlevoix Hospital.

Until now donations have been privately solicited from individual permanent and summer residents, business and industry.

"We're concerned because we know many interested persons have not been solicited personally, either because these people were out of town during the campaign or are new in the area. We hope that everyone interested in good health who has not been contacted will get in touch with me." All checks may be sent to Mr. Julius Gilbert, 510 Michigan Avenue, Charlevoix, Michigan. Donations payable to the Charlevoix Hospital are fully tax deductible.

Spokesmen for the Glass Container Manufacturers Institute, after heaving a big sigh of relief, were quick to point out that it was all just as well. Partly decomposed material is difficult and costly to pick up from roadsides, they said. Besides, the decomposing material might well present "health and pollution hazards," they concluded.

Well, so much for degradable containers -- for the present! Looks like you'll just have to keep putting your empties in trash barrels. At least, we hope you will!

Niver home even has a framed thank you note from Winston Churchill

JAY Niver in his den which looks straight downtown.

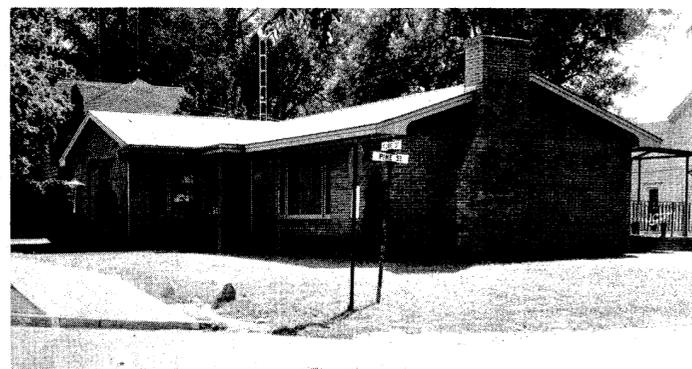

MRS. Niver sits in her kitchen, at the glass topped wrought iron table set.

Boyer City - Mr. and Mrs. Jay Niver's home at 402 S. Lake in Boyer City is a pleasant blending of lakeside country living and downtown convenience. Their brick T-shaped ranch trimmed with pale green is perfectly roomed.

Ringed with wrought iron railing, the green concrete patio within earshot of band concerts, looks down the street at water skiing and boating on the lake. Clusters of plants at the front entrance introduce an L-shaped living-dining room in serene pastel furnishings. Celery tinted walls and nubby drapes along with pale green carpeting that flows throughout, blend softly with a conversation grouping of biege, brown and rust chairs around a round low table. Queens lace and black eye susans arranged in blue glass vases bring out the pink and clay colors of the French Lick stone fireplace; the focal point of which is a framed thank you note to Mr. Niver from "10 Downing Street, Whitehall" handwritten by Winston Churchill.

From the fireplace corner a tufted curved metallic gold couch looks at the dining area of fashionable Drexel furnishings displaying timeless silver sleek peacocks. Five white candles in a silver candelabra stand next to a beautiful intricate silver service on the dining buffet. Gracing a small table is a pale blue saline glass lamp near the entrance to the neutral tone kitchen accented by an ebony refrigerator and platinum cabinets. Ebony is repeated in the glass top wrought iron kitchen set and complimented by a condiment print paper on the soffit and a tiny petal pattern on one wall.

Mr. Niver's den looks straight downtown from his desk in its quiet avocado green surroundings. "God Bless Our Home" needlepoint picture done by Mrs. Niver's mother while in college is kiddy-corner to a rough framed Dutch fishing scene on the shores of the "Zyder Zee." Beige carpeting and quilt spreads in the master bedroom bring in warmth to the pale pink walls. Framed thoughts of the day on pleasure, recreation, freedom, friendship

Time To Go BACK TO SCHOOL

"Here From There"

By Tom Minor

Dateline - Room 128 - Little Traverse Hospital. Your Walloon Lake reporter is reluctantly here from there! Instead of covering the news, I am covered with sheets. Happily I have a few sleuths and two stalwart scouts who ferret out the news and feed me the "scoops albeit intravenously!"

Guess there is never a good time to "take off" for an operation. However, this week I had lined up an unusually heavy schedule before I realized that I was also on Dr. Connaughton's busy schedule. Fortunately, Gary Whitfield and I were able to plot the course for the annual Walloon Lake water skiing contest before I was trapped. Trust I will be able to view Monday's event in comfort from our float boat and hopefully report the results.

From here on it's heresy - Emmy Sloneker, a very persistent young lady, has conquered the slalom and skis over the lake with great grace and precision. Too bad it's too late to place bets on this dark horse. Emmy's brother, Howard III, has been developing his muscles this summer at Camp Kooch-in-ching in International Falls, Minnesota. He loves it as have all of the alumni of this fine camp. Howard will arrive at Walloon this weekend.

Mr. Fritz Lohman, who I am told, is an interior decorator of some note, wafled in for a weekend visit with family and friends at Walloon. Mr. Lohman lives in New York City and is an advocate of bell bottom trousers.

Mr. and Mrs. John Bontjes were here from Peoria, Illinois. Too bad they had to depart before Mrs. Bontjes could participate in the annual Walloon Lake Country Club Golf Tournament.

Walloon News Editor

Sooner or later Walloon calls us all back. Mr. and Mrs. Sam Nickey of Memphis, Tennessee, are old-timers who have returned for a visit to the lake. They are the house guests of the Jeter Eason's. Mrs. Eason, the gardener's friend, lectured on Bonsai last Tuesday in Petoskey.

From what I hear from there, the Gerrard Mudd's Teenage "do" last Friday was a smashing success. It was Marion Mudd's fourteenth birthday and I gather it was one that she will never forget. It included a swell spaghetti supper, a scavenger hunt, dancing, dunking in the lake and jumping on the trampoline. An active, athletic evening! Winners of the hunt, who will enjoy a free lunch at the Beach House, included Lee and Phillip Lange, Nick McCumber, Rolly Harrison, and Janet Reus. They worked hard to earn their bread and water. It isn't easy to "find a Froggie nicely clad sitting on a lily pad" or "the charred remains of a house that was" or "a false lash for eyes that blink and flash." I am told that Mrs. Lawrence Freeze gallantly supplied them with the latter!

Tom Gratsch, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Gratsch, is here to relax a bit after spending most of the summer in Chili at a ski resort fifty-five miles from Santiago. Last year Tom had the distinction of being the only freshmen on the University of Colorado Varsity Ski Team. At the suggestion of Austrian born Martin Burger, ski instructor at Boyne Mountain and Jack of all trades at The Cliff Dweller, Tom decided to sharpen his skill as a skier during the summer. An abundance of snow in Chili made it well worth the long journey for Tom and seven other Michigan boys to go from here to there. Hope I will be able to be a spectator at one of Tom's events next winter in Boulder.

Last Thursday was a rough day on the lake as several visitors to Walloon can certainly verify. Miss Judy Tibbets of East Lansing catapulted off a catamaran and was rescued by my dad. Mrs. Howard Sloneker braved the waves to save her niece, Christy Markam as well as their capsized sail fish and Mr. Pete Rentschler answered Derek Egbert's call for help. I have really missed a lot of excitement this week!

Bulletin: Flash from Izack Walton Lohman! There really are fish in Walloon Lake and big ones. Mrs. Ann Baird landed a 22 inch smallmouth-bass last Sunday. She was happy to tell us of this feat, but declined to inform us where she accomplished same.

Stage annual Walloon Lake corn roast

"Corn and beef, all you can eat" at the Walloon Lake Country Club annual Corn Roast on Tuesday, August 19th. Sides of beef, bushels of corn and crates of home-grown tomatoes are consumed every year but best of all is the finale, when those gathered there join in singing, "Walloon, Walloon, Walloon." See you there!

The lady golfers at the Club continue to out-do the men. Mrs. Dee Sterling recently followed thru with an eagle three on number four. Fortunately however, Mr. Henry Beadell did help to restore the honor of the "gentlemen of the game" by shooting an eagle on number 7. The Club Championship tournament is in full swing with thirty men and women participating. The winners will be known to us all at the corn roast.

SERVING THE WORLD'S MOST BEAUTIFUL LAKE SINCE 1960

Wiles cops first in "Old Men's Race"

Walloon Lake Country Club Pro Shop, dedicated to the memory of the John Edgar Johnsons

Naturally, the big event this week was the "Old Men's Race" which took place last Sunday. These aged and able sailors have great heart despite their years. A brisk breeze tested their ability to hit the starting line at the sound of Sammy Balok's horn. Despite the fact, that Iyan Wiles and his crew "jumped the gun and were forced to cross the starting line a second time" and were No. 21 and Mr. Wiles were the victors of the race.

Mr. Carl Rasmussen, a recent addition to the "17" fleet, slipped by that Old Mariner, Allen Cameron, to cop second place. Philo Lange trailed in taking the fourth spot. Am sure that he does better on the ski trails of Colorado in his fine boots than on the waters of Walloon in his sneakers.

It was a lost week for the Sail-fish fleet. I can give you no results due to the fact that Monday's race was protested and Wednesday's weather did not cooperate. However, the Snipe class did manage to beat the elements that day. Rolly Harrison took first place, Paul Zent a close second and Jim Reus third. All were soaking wet at the finish.

Other bizarre races on the lake this week included a Float-Boat contest between two neighbors. One had hoped that he could get away with a 55 horsepower motor on his new craft but has now concluded that he must go for an 85. How about that Walt?

Stage fourth annual Walloon News Water Ski Tournament

FOURTH Annual Walloon News Water Ski Tournament winners were (from left) Bill Stemer, 3rd place, boy's division; Walter Barker, 1st place, men's division; Sue Reus, 2nd place, women's division; Jan Reus, 2nd place, girl's division; Beth Bartlett, 3rd place, women's division; Joan Vallenga, 1st place, women's division; Jim Kerr, 2nd place, boy's division; Doug Lotspiech, 1st place, boy's division; Kyrlla Lowe, 1st place, girl's division, Gary Whitfield, 3rd place, men's division; Marion Mudd, 3rd place, girl's division, and Greg Hague, 2nd place, men's division.

Walloon Lake - Thanks to two fine fellows, my editor, Gregg Smith, who graciously extended my deadline and my M.D. Peter Connaughton, who with equal grace, released me from the hospital a day or two early, I was able to cover the fourth annual Walloon Lake Water-Ski Tournament last Monday.

What a day it was for skiing. Not a cloud in the sky nor a ripple on the water. The contestants gathered at Shadow Trails Inn promptly at nine o'clock. Although there were fewer participants this year than last, all were extremely competent and their enthusiasm for the sport was great. Mary Ellen Griest gave a sterling performance even with seven stitches in her big toe.

In order to qualify for the tournament, skiers must be residents of Walloon Lake and must be able to ski on one ski. As in previous years, the course led the contestants through six buoys twice at two different speeds. Skiers were divided into four groups, men and women (17 years and up) and boys and girls (16 years and under).

First to take off was the mens division. Gary Whitfield, co-sponsor of the tournament with yours truly, led the way. His administrative responsibilities, caught up with him on the return run. He dumped between the second and third buoy. However, managed to chalk up a score of 13 and landed third place. That flipper-finned Floridian, Walter Barker, captured the number one spot. Greg Hague, who hails from my old home town, Cincinnati, Ohio, was second.

Joan Vallenga, the first to sign up for the tournament, decided to renig Sunday night. Pressured by pals, she reconsidered, had a perfect run and is the new women's champ. Susie Reus, a year round resident of Walloon took second and Beth Bartlett came in for a third.

Marion Mudd, one of the most graceful skiers on the lake, "went under". However, she still made a solid third place in the girls division. Jan Reus skied into second position. Those Reus girls are a good bet for "Win, Place or Show". Winner was Kyrlla Lowe with a score of 12.

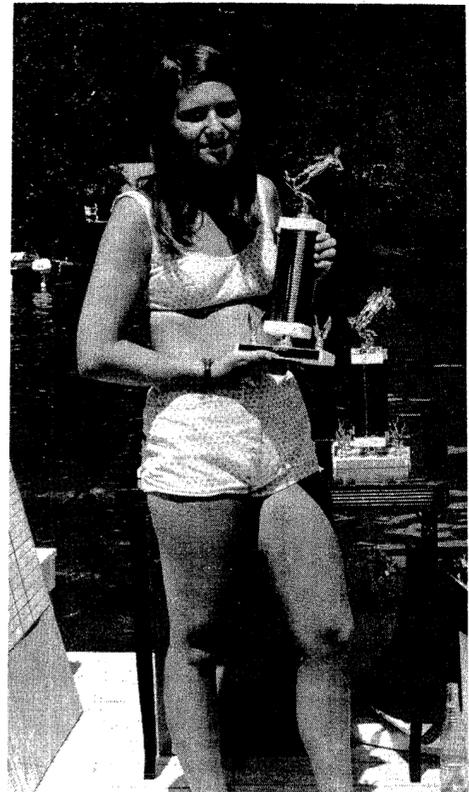

The most spectacular performance of the day was executed by Doug Lotspiech. He completed two flawless runs and easily skied his way to first place in the boys division. Jim Kerr, boosted by his parents, glided into a smooth second. Bill Stemer hit third after a run-off with Doug, Jim and four others.

An innovation to the day's proceedings was provided by Gary Whitfield and Patty Freese who did a "between the acts" demonstration of the course. Gary had put the buoys out with care but Patty missed a few.

Of course, this exciting competitive event could never have taken place without the interest and support of friends like John Horan Shop, Ed Behan Tweed Shop, Pendleton Shop, Andrew Kan Travel Service, Mr. Carter Sales, Mr. Sterling, Mr. Jack Minor, Mr. Art La Ppin, Ed Brown, Inc., Mr. Woody Geist, each of whom donated a handsome trophy. Also Mrs. Skip Grow donated the use of a ski boat, Walt Masters supplied the gas for the judges ship, the Lawrence Freese family contributed the tow boat and Shadow Trails Inn contributed dock facilities. Our grateful thanks to all of you.

Oops! Judges were Jack Minor and Rocky Kimball and I strongly suspect that a smart dog named Roddy had a hand in their decisions.

THE Shadow Trails Inn dock was crowded Monday morning with skiers and spectators alike. Walloon News photos by Jack "Shüt-terbug" Minor, who pinch hit for recuperating son, Tom.
