Tickets are $20 each for Chellis' performance, and can be purchased at the high school or through the Crooked Tree Arts Center in Petoskey.

Negotiations begin with top manager candidate

After interviewing the five top candidates last week, the Boyne City City Commission passed a motion authorizing the city attorney Jim Murray to begin contract negotiations with top candidate Michael Cain.

In public deliberation after the completion of interviews, Cain was ranked by the commission as the top candidate, followed by Todd Campbell, designated first alternate, and Maureen Barry, second alternate.

Cain brings 18 years of municipal leadership experience, most recently as the city manager for the City of St. Johns. He has previously served as the special projects coordinator of the City of Troy; the city manager for the City of Fenton; and the village administrator of the Village of Wolverine Lake.

When asked during the interview process what he could offer to the City of Boyne City, Cain replied that he believed he offered a "balance of education, experience and personality," with "expertise in almost every area [the commission is concerned with]."

Cain described himself as calm and even-tempered, and also as someone with a sense of humor and who likes "to have fun on the job."

The commission, on the whole, appeared to agree. After conducting interviews with each candidate, consisting of 25 prepared questions to be answered in the space of an hour, the commission quickly put Cain in the top three candidates by consensus, with four of the five commissioners listing Cain as their first choice.

Cain was also a top candidate for many of the department heads in attendance throughout the interview process. Water department head Dan Meads noted Cain's level of experience as a positive, adding that with the "large projects on the horizon" for the City of Boyne City, that experience would be valuable, and necessary.

Campbell and Barry were then designated as alternates one and two.

Opening day

Thought to be a large residents Nov. 15 is a day to be in the woods, these local residents decided to celebrate the opening day of deer season by taking to the open waters, of Lake Charlevoix and Lake Michigan, that is. Here Dick Schaible, Chip Lorenger, Mick Hurchick, and Dave Malusi prepare to launch Schaible's 48-foot sailboat, Aquila. The four Boyne City Yacht Club members, joined by pal Mike Sheean, sailed to Harbor Springs.

City of BC okays plan to research ambulance merger

As Boyne City's ambulance service continues to pursue Advanced Life Support (ALS) designation, research is beginning on a measure that could mean a whole new life for ambulance service across the area.

At last week's regular meeting, the Boyne City City Commission passed a resolution authorizing research on the possibility of a merger or consolidation of the Boyne City Ambulance Service with East Jordan's Ambulance Service, including area townships that would be affected by such a measure. According to commissioner Chuck Vondra, the measure, which is only in the preliminary stages of research, could be a win-win situation for all involved.

After discussions with East Jordan City Administrator David White and East Jordan Ambulance director Jay Peck, Vondra said that in speaking with Boyne City interim manager Dick Huebler, it was determined that further inquiry into a merger "would be in our best interest." The resolution to pursue an evaluation of the process, which would be done by a committee with representatives from Boyne City, East Jordan, and area townships, passed by a vote of 5-0.

"We basically want to provide a full-time self-sustainable ALS service," Vondra said. "The key would be that the city would be kind of giving control to everybody involved. Everyone would have an equal say, including the townships." Though the word "merger" has been used, Vondra said there is also the alternate possibility of setting up a system overseen by an independent authority. How those details may play out depends upon the reaction the proposal receives from the City of East Jordan as well as affected townships. As one would expect, money will be a key factor in determining the feasibility of such a project. "The bills are going to go up one way or another," Vondra said. "It takes more money [to be ALS]. If this happens, we could offer bigger and better services, better training. The possibilities are endless."

Now that the Boyne City Commission passed a resolution supporting research of the issue, the next step is to find out where the City of East Jordan

Put to the Test

Char-EM ISD gives grown-ups a chance to learn more about the MEAP

It was obviously not the way the more than 40 adults filing into the conference room at the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District building were accustomed to spending a Tuesday evening. As those attending gathered their materials and found seats, they joked and fidgeted like students getting ready to take a test.

Understandable, since they were, in fact, getting ready to take a test — a sample test, that is — designed to acquaint parents, educators, and community members with the Michigan Education Assessment Program test, also known as the MEAP. The event, dubbed "Take the Test," was hosted by the Char-Em ISD as part of a state-wide effort to increase familiarity with the MEAP test, which is taken at various grade levels by every student in the state.

The group of invited participants, a thorough mix of parents, teachers, administrators, school board members, business people, and members of the media, were given an opportunity to not only learn a little more of what this test is all about, but to actually get a feel for what's expected of students taking the test.

Scanning the questions, it was clear that this was not your father's (or your own) MEAP test. In-depth queries requiring the interpreting of data and prior knowledge in areas such as democratic core values, economics, and civics stood in stark contrast to the test example dated 1987, in which students were presented with a picture of a half-shaded triangle and asked "Which part is shaded?" with the choice of four possible fractions. That question, in 1987, was right beside a number of questions which required the student to read the temperature off of a thermometer graphic. The current test requires knowledge of business models and science concepts. Its form and scope surprised many of the test-takers, who voiced their opinions at a question and answer

Let it snow

Wintery temperatures have been good news for the folks at Boyne Mountain resort in Boyne Falls. Since last week, making snow has been a top priority for work crews, and with the weather forecast for the weekend showing continued freezing temperatures across the area, it's likely that the guns will keep running.

respectively. Should negotiations with Cain prove unsuccessful, Campbell would become the number one candidate.

Under the guidance of Michigan Municipal League representative William Baldrige, the commission authorized a request to Cain to submit a written indication of his contract expectations within two to three business days, after which the city attorney would begin negotiations. "The memo from the candidate gets the process started," Baldrige said to the commission at the meeting. During negotiations, "the attorney will consult with the commission." No official action will take place, he added, until after the candidate signs the contract. "So that you know it's a done deal."

Baldrige advised the commission to not be put off "by what may appear to be a strong negotiating stance. One of the skills you're looking for is a good negotiator." Additionally, Baldrige advised that the commission be sure to keep the process moving along. "Keep pressure on the city attorney," he said. "You should know in a week to 10 days if you can come to an agreement. If not, move on."

In the meantime, an outside party or parties will be contracted to perform criminal and credit checks on the candidate, and commissioners voiced intentions to visit Cain's home city of St. Johns to speak with residents and officials there to gain more information.

Cain and the other top candidates were culled out of a total of 59 applications for the position received by the city. The position opened in October of this year, following the termination of previous city manager Eric Strahl's contract, amid controversy over personnel and departmental issues in the city.

dan stands on the issue. The East Jordan City Commission was scheduled to discuss the issue at their regular meeting on Tuesday, Nov. 19.

If the measure finds support, the action would not, Vondra said, affect the status of the Boyne City Ambulance Department's efforts to achieve an ALS designation. Vondra stated that he was concerned about that possibility, but has been assured by representatives from Michigan Consumer and Industry Services that the move would create no problems in Boyne City's current process.

If this [merger] happens, in fact, having gone through the ALS process will "make it go that much quicker."

"The big picture here is the sustainability of service," Vondra said.

MEAP test

session following the brief sample testing period.

"It's not as black and white as the ACT or SAT," one test-taker commented, noting the emphasis on written justification of conclusions as opposed to just choosing an answer. "It forces the student to think about [their answer]."

WHEN DO STUDENTS TAKE THE MEAP?

The MEAP test is administered by the following schedule:

- English Language Arts assessments, fourth and seventh grades
- Math assessments, fourth and eighth grades
- Science and Social Studies assessments, fifth and eighth grades
- High School MEAP (with all four content areas), 11th grade with options for early testing as well as re-testing.

By 2006, students will begin taking these tests annually, as required in the new federal No Child Left Behind legislation.

HOW ARE MEAP SCORES USED?

The test initially was used, according to Char-Em ISD superintendent Mark Ekhardt, to simply measure standards and benchmarks of the education being provided within a given system. Later, once the media got hold of the numbers, the test began to be utilized to compare districts, a development that Ekhardt sees as a negative.

Still, the test provides an important "snapshot of student progress," Ekhardt said, and one that has become the primary component of Michigan's new school accreditation system, Education YES!, in addition to other learning indicators such as family involvement, school facilities, and teacher quality.

District test scores are utilized to determine whether schools are meeting standards at the state level, which can affect funding from the state. Individually, 11th grade MEAP scores can qualify students for state-funded Merit Scholarships, in the amount of $2,500 towards higher education. "Fifty-six percent of the students [in the Char-Em ISD] that take the MEAP qualify for a Merit Scholarship," said Charlevoix Public Schools superintendent John Sturock. "If you look across the state, that's a very good percentage." Additionally, students who score well on the high school test prior to 11th grade are given the opportunity to take college level courses for college credit prior to high school graduation.

The rigorous test, Sturock said, helps ensure that public education is held "more accountable," especially in light of recent federal legislation, entitled "Leave No Child Behind," which calls for greater accountability for public school systems throughout the nation. While other states are still trying to settle on a comprehensive test for federal assessment, Michigan, Sturock said, is ahead of the game, having already implemented the MEAP test years in advance.

Scores are also a way for districts to monitor their own progress, and make adjustments accordingly. "The MEAP has helped in terms of professional development," said Petoskey schools superintendent John Jeffrey. "[Districts] are looking at academic areas where we're not performing well, and focusing professional development where we want to see improvement."

Of course, ISD officials concurred, the test is only one piece of the overall picture of student performance. "This isn't the entire answer," Jeffrey said. "It doesn't measure everything kids can do."

ISD superintendent Ekhardt agrees with that assessment, citing a recent visit to the area by state schools superintendent Tom Watkins, who presented the question, "Is this measured on the MEAP?" to kids in auto shop, leadership, and fine arts classes. "No" was the common answer, a fact that Watkins, and other school leaders, acknowledged. "It's just a 'snapshot' of what kids know," Ekhardt said.

But it is, they say, a tool which districts can use to make sure they're living up to the standards for which they're held accountable. And ultimately, any tool that can help in the furthering of students' education is a valuable one.

"With the MEAP and everything else, are we turning out better students?" Jeffrey said. "Absolutely, no question."

"Ultimately, we're all in the business of trying to improve our students."

Taking the MEAP: Tips for Parents

Parents can make an invaluable contribution to improved MEAP scores by helping children come to school on MEAP days prepared for success.

- Make sure your child is well-rested.
- Make sure your child is not hungry. High-protein meals are recommended.
- Students should prepare by reviewing learning in the academic areas to be tested.
- Students should come to the MEAP tests relaxed, but also understanding the importance of staying on task and doing their best.
- Avoid scheduling medical, dental, or other appointments on MEAP days. Research shows students do better when tested with their class than in a make-up session.

Contact your child's teacher, principal, or district administration offices if you have questions or comments.

DPW workers "did not commit a crime"

Report from Boyer City interim city manager concludes tree disposal controversy stemmed from lack of communication, leadership void

Some Boyer City DPW workers finally got a little bit of satisfaction during last week's meeting of the city commission.

After controversy which resulted in a police investigation regarding the disposal of downed trees from last summer's tornado, workers involved received their absolution, with a public statement made in the form of a recommendation by interim city manager Richard Huebler and approved by the commission, to the effect that the DPW employees involved, specifically Dave Fuller, Dennis Amesbury and Dennis Jason, did not commit a crime, nor did they violate any city policy.

The situation in question, Huebler said, resulted from the "different interpretations of policy, a lack of clear communication, and a void in single-point leadership."

The incident involved the removal of logs from city property by private citizens, as part of the clean-up of downed trees resulting from a tornado that struck the downtown area on

Outdated policies can cause no end of problems, and our manual is old.”
--Interim Boyer City
City Manager Richard Huebler

In Huebler's written report on the issue, he stated that during the crisis, "the DPW director and staff understood they were to clear the streets and parks as rapidly as possible. Adding contractors to the staff was part of the answer. Using volunteers to haul materials was another... When the city manager had a question relative to what was happening to the waste material he directed the police chief to investigate."

"After learning that the DPW director had allowed the volunteers to remove waste material the investigation continued."

ing place, the new city manager, once hired, should rewrite the manual. "Outdated policies can cause no end of problems, and our manual is old," Huebler said.

Huebler also suggested to the commission that the city staff was not fully prepared for the incident in question with plans and training to handle the disaster.

"While independently departments did their jobs, and it appears did them well, there was little or no crossover communication," Huebler stated in a memo to commissioners.

His recommendation was that the city must create a first response emergency management plan, with the guidance of the new city manager as well as staff and the tri-county emergency plan coordinator, prior to July 1, 2003.

The commission approved all of Huebler's recommendations unanimously.

MCACA grant will help Raven Hill make more 'Connections'

Raven Hill Discovery Center has been awarded a grant of $22,550 from the Michigan Council for Arts and Cultural Affairs (MCACA) for Connections 2003.

The grant was awarded to Raven Hill to support innovative projects that explore the relationship between science and culture. Raven Hill received the grant through the MCACA Peer Review Process, and was one of 470 applications to compete for MCACA 2003 funding.

This is the third and final part of the Connections series and will be similar in structure to Connections 2001 and 2002 More Connections. The program will give participants an opportunity to explore connections between science, history and art in five different media: leather, quillwork, papermaking, sculpture and blacksmithing. Media boxes will display history, culture and scientific principles involved and will show the different steps involved in each art form. Artwork representing each form will be displayed in the boxes and hands-on boxes will give viewers an opportunity for a tactile experience to enhance the visual. When completed, there will be a total of 12 art media Boxes, each featuring a different art form.

Students from middle school through college and teachers will have opportunities for in-depth examination of the five different media as well as opportunities to practice the art form. Invitationals will be held during the school year for middle and high school students and weeklong sessions will take place during June, July and August for college students and teachers.

The Connections 2003 grant program will conclude with an open house on Sept. 28, 2003 where the public is invited to view the exhibits and participants in the summer workshops will display their work and give a short presentation. Organizations receiving an MCACA grant award are required to match those funds with other public and private dollars. Last year Raven Hill supporters rallied to meet the challenge. The Frey Foundation, The Great Lakes Energy People Fund, The Charlevoix County Community Foundation, and many other generous members of the community contributed to the successful matching of funds. Schools who participated in the program also provided support in the form of bus transportation for the students to attend the invitationals. Raven Hill will be asking once again for financial assistance to support their endeavors in bringing this program to northern Michigan.

Since May of 1992, Raven Hill Discovery Center has provided a unique environment of quality learning experiences for people of all ages. ### 'Friends' will make a difference for Boyne library

TO THE EDITOR:
Thanks to all the people who attended the Friends of the Boyne District Library Community Forum in October. The Steering Committee also wants to thank those who responded to the survey of library patrons' ideas about a Friends group.

These ideas and suggestions will help guide the direction of our new Friends organization in its efforts to meet its mission of facilitating communication and support between the library and the community, enhancing the services offered by the library, and volunteering time, resources, and talents to support the library.

The survey results indicate strong support for continuing book sales, promotion of library services, and producing programs. These projects will form the core effort in the organization's first year of existence.

The next step towards realizing the mission of the Friends of the Boyne District Library consists of a membership drive, which will begin in late December. Look for details in the upcoming issue of the quarterly Boyne District Library newsletter, the bibliolink. We will ask all library patrons to join the Friends as a positive expression of support for our library.

No other community institution has more Boyne Area residents participating than the Boyne District Library; over 3,800 citizens carry library cards. It is a premier community center that will thrive with the support of a strong Friends organization.

Thank you again for your help in making our library a special place.

NEIGHBORS

By NANCY NORTHUP

LORETTA STANSELL of Boyne City left for the home of her daughter, Shirley Suter, in Bowling Green, Ohio on Oct. 15. The very next day, the two of them set out on a cross-country trip to Arizona to visit family and friends. On the way, they stopped in Branson, Mo. and saw two shows featuring Bobby Vinton and Mickey Gilly. In Arizona, they visited Huachuca City, the Tombstone of the shoot-out at OK Coral, Boot Hill, Bisbee, Phoenix, Old Scottsdale, Prescott Valley, Jerome, Sedona, the Grand Canyon, Petrified Forest, and the Painted Desert. They both agreed that the beauty of our country is breathtaking. Unfortunately, on the way home, in Tulsa, Okla., Loretta had a heart attack and underwent the balloon procedure on her heart, during a four-day hospital stay. Well enough to leave, they returned to Boyne Nov. 10. Loretta says, "I am glad I went, but it's good to be well again and back home!"

LUKE REINHARDT, a student at Lake Superior State University, bagged a four-point buck while he was here at home over the weekend.

THERE WAS A great turnout of the residents of Deer Meadows on Thursday evening as they enjoyed a pre-Thanksgiving potluck dinner of turkey and all the trimmings.

LINDA FELTON of Boyne City and four college friends gathered in Mesick for their fourth annual "Doe Camp" weekend and really had a great time, while their husbands were off hunting elsewhere.

THE GRANDVUE AUXILIARY meeting for November was very well attended this past Thursday. Appreciated by all was the interesting program given by staff member, Louise Ernst, who spoke on dementia. The group welcomed new member Shirley Howie and plans were made for various decorating and other projects for Christmas. Betty Kelts, who is doing well, was among those residents attending.

GEN VARNUM returned home over the weekend from Northern Michigan Hospital and the Rogers City Rehab Center, following her second knee replacement surgery. On the mend yet, she's coming along well.

JAMIE AND CHRIS DOBROWOLSKI and daughter Jaelin of Alpena arrived at the Dale and Christy Reinhardt home on Friday. Chris went on to Charlevoix to join in family deer hunting there for a while, returning to his family here before all left for home on Sunday.

WEDDING ANNIVERSARY congrats go out to Jim and Linda Felton who marked 35 years of togetherness on Monday, Nov. 18! They are planning a wintertime celebration trip.

GRANDPA AND GRANDMA PHIL and Carolyn LaVanway of Ellsworth honored their grandson, Phillip Adam Boynton, son of Josh and Joni, on Saturday for his first birthday of Nov. 13. Grandparents Bob and Pam Clark of Boyne City, aunts, uncles and cousins from surrounding areas were there to share it all with Phillip, the picture taking, and ice cream and cake and the "ton" of gifts!

Snowbirds end season for Loggers

In the first round of Class D district play, the Lady Loggers were pummeled by the undefeated Gaylord St. Mary Snowbirds in a 97-24 loss that capped off Boyne Falls' season.

Top scorers for Boyne Falls were Megan Pernicano and Manda Sewejkis with six points each.

Last week, the Lady Loggers played at Wolverine last Thursday, closing their regular season with a win, 73-24. Rachael Lewin scored 20 points and Sewejkis scored 19 points in leading Boyne Falls to their victory. Pernicano added 11 points and four steals. Also, Kayla Reynolds added three steals.

Boyne Falls made 34 field goals and was 5-for-10 from the free throw line. Boyne Falls took the lead in the first quarter with an eight-point advantage.

Then the Loggers stepped it up for the second quarter leaving the half-time score at 40-11. The Loggers then outscored Wolverine in both the third and fourth quarter that resulted in a 73-24 win.

The Loggers ended their regular season with a 6-6, 8-12 record.

Kellie Kondrat scored 18 points and Katie Grubaugh added 10 as the Logger JV defeated the Rudyard freshman, 45-28.

Ramblers face league champion Harbor Springs in district tournament

On paper it doesn't look good for the Boyne City Ramblers when they meet Harbor Springs in the semi-finals of the district tournament at Elk Rapids tonight, Wednesday.

The Ramblers come into the game with a 3-15 record while Harbor Springs boasts a 19-1 record after a convincing 76-48 victory over East Jordan Monday evening in the opening round of the district tournament.

But you never know what can happen on any given night. And the Ramblers have reason for hope. In the final weeks of the season, Boyne City played both conference champion Harbor Springs and Charlevoix and in both games they were in it until the final buzzer.

Wednesday's game tips off at 7 p.m. at Elk Rapids. Tickets are $4. The winner of the game will play in the championship game Friday at 6 p.m. against the winner of the Mancelona-Charlevoix game, which tips off at 5 p.m. Wednesday.

Boyne City's Mallory O'Brien (above) is one of four seniors playing out their final season with the Ramblers.

The Ramblers closed out the regular season last Tuesday at home against Charlevoix, losing 55-51. The Ramblers trailed by 11 at the end of the third quarter but then mounted an impressive comeback. With three minutes remaining the Ramblers were down by three but then went to a full-court press and cut the lead to three with 18 seconds to go. But that was as close they could come.

"The girls really gave an all-out effort," said Boyne City head coach Maurie Tomkins.

Kim Foster led the Ramblers with 16 points and Hannah Decker had nine.

The game marked the final home game for seniors Sarah Hall, Meredith Clemens, Mallory O'Brien, and Amber Lehto.

But while they played their last home game, the Rambler seniors and their teammates are hoping they have more than one game remaining in their high school careers.

The season's final chapter

The East Jordan Red Devils played Harbor Springs just a week ago, losing by 10 points but they had hope they could put together an attack and surprise the Rams in district play Monday night in Elk Rapids.

Harbor Springs had other ideas, and put its plan into action from the opening tip on its way to a 76-48 win.

Paying exclusive attention to Courtney Hammond, the Rams shut off the East Jordan star for the first half of the opening quarter and surged to a 12-0 lead before Hammond could push two free throws through the basket.

Keeping the pressure on, the Rams scored almost at will for the first eight minutes, taking a 22-5 lead and never allowing the Red Devils to get any kind of offensive rhythm going.

"We had way too many turnovers," said East Jordan head coach Lisa

Parrish. The Harbor press and attack was in high gear and cruelly effective all night. That pressure in turn made East Jordan anxious, and in her earnestness to get the team motivated, Hammond found herself picking up four first-half fouls, limiting her contributions to the team effort.

Harbor Springs kept the heat on and the scoring flowing, taking a 47-11 lead into the half. With fouls limiting the Red Devil attack, Harbor raised the lead to 63-21 with eight minutes to go.

The Rams cruised home with the win, 76-48.

Hammond had a flurry of scoring in the fourth quarter to finish the game with 24 points, giving her 1,519 for her career. Averaging 25 points a game in her senior year will get her to the magic 2,000 point plateau.

Amy Schroeder completed her junior season with a 13-point game for the 10-11 Red Devils, who will have all but Claire Niewendorp returning next season, with Tabitha Grover, Jalessa Baier and Amber Gettel moving up to provide East Jordan with a solid scoring pool of talent to build on in 2003.

THE RED DEVILS concluded their regular season at home last Thursday defeating Bellaire 69-36.

"It was a good team win, with lots of people scoring points for us," Parrish said.

The got off to a good start for East Jordan as Hammond popped in the first two scores and led the Red Devils to a 15-8 first quarter lead.

At the half East Jordan led 29-19.

Sierra Roberts and Hammond did the most damage in the third quarter, pushing a 21-0 advantage onto the visiting Eagles and boosting the lead to 50-28 with eight minutes left. A 16-1 finish to the game concluded the win for East Jordan, 69-36.

Hammond finished with 30 points, Jessica Skop scored 14 points and had nine rebounds in a well rounded effort, while Sierra Roberts added 10 points.

Claire Niewendorp, putting the pressure on the Eagles' offense, is the sole senior on the Red Devils' squad this season.

HEALTH TIPS FROM MEDICAP PHARMACY

A BANANA A DAY MAY KEEP STROKES AWAY

A new study published in Neurology reinforced the link between low blood potassium levels and increased risk of stroke. Bananas are a good source of potassium, as are orange juice, cantaloupe, and baked potato. Potassium intake seems to be particularly important for people who take diuretics ("water pills" given for high blood pressure.) If you're taking diuretics check with your doctor or pharmacist to make sure you are getting enough potassium.
