Man arrested after pursuit

A 37-year-old Harbor Springs man was arrested for fleeing police Sunday around 10 p.m. after a domestic dispute in an East Jordan home. hearing the police were responding to the scene and was arrested at Boyne Mountain Resort after refusing to pull over for Antrim and Charlevoix counties' sheriff's deputies.

According to the Antrim County Sheriff's Department. Goss made a threatening phone call to his estranged wife, who lives at a Mount Bliss Road residence, as he was driving up to the house in his car. His wife called 911. An Antrim County sheriff's deputy responding saw Goss's vehicle and attempted to pull him over without success. Sheriff's deputies followed him on M-32 into Charlevoix County, where officers from the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department joined the pursuit. Goss was arrested for fleeing and eluding police, driving under the influence-third offense, driving while his license was suspended and home invasion. He was held in Antrim County Jail on a $100,000 bond. Goss was to be arraigned Tuesday.

He may also face charges in Charlevoix County for felonious assault on a police officer for running into the patrol car.

BC goal-setting session takes a new approach

After enjoying one of the larger turnouts for a Boyne City community goal-setting session, city staffers are hard at work compiling data in order to provide timely results to the community.

According to city manager Mike Cain, tabulated information will be sent to the evening's participants this week, with results being posted shortly thereafter in public locations such as the Boyne District Library, City Hall and on the City website. Providing timely information was a key element to planning this year's goalsetting session; doing so, Cain said, is intended to show citizens that "we do view this as important." Though goal-setting sessions have become fairly routine in Boyne City in recent years, often churning out the same handful of goals year after year, the timing of this particular session was crucial, coming on the heels of the hiring of a new city manager. The event provided not only an opportunity to meet Cain, who took his post in mid-December, but also gave Cain a chance to hear first hand what citizens have in mind for the community. "The reason we're here today," Cain said in his introduction to the session, "is not to hear my goals and vision, but to hear your goals and vision.

In contrast to previous years this session followed a slightly different format, with participants dividing into small groups to discuss the top eight goals gleaned from the previous years' goalsettings. After discussing those eight topics, which included Waterfront Planning, Affordable Housing, Economic Stimulus, Emergency Service Upgrade, Park Improvements, Street Improvements. Sidewalk Repair/Construction, and Water/Wastewater Improvements, the groups then filled out brief written questionnaires. An opportunity was also given to add new goals to the list of eight, after which time those attending the session individually ranked, from high-

Ski School

■ In January, East Jordan students take to the slopes

When you're growing up in northern Michigan, snow sports just seem to be a natural fact of life. With busy family schedules, though, and tight family budgets, it's become increasingly more difficult to provide kids with an opportunity to enjoy all the area has to offer. In East Jordan, that's where the school system comes in. Like a growing number of area schools, the East Jordan Public Schools offer an annual ski club program to kids grades kindergarten through eighth, traveling by bus four consecutive Fridays in January to Boyne Mountain Resort in Boyne Falls. There, students enjoy lessons, independent ski time, as well as have an old-fashioned good time on the slopes with friends.

In its fourth year, the club is headed up by organizer Wendy Crick, an East Jordan Middle School teacher who. spurred by her own love of skiing, helped resurrect the program which had died out more than a decade ago at the

"It's wonderful," she said of the experience. "These kids are learning a life-long sport."

Through a package deal with Boyne Mountain, 125 students this year alone are taken by school bus to the resort,

Boyne WinterFest fun in the works

Like the season itself, plans for the Boyne Area Annual WinterFest are in full swing, with both old favorites and a few new additions for families seeking some good, old-fashioned winter fun. "It's going to be the best [WinterFest] to date," said Boyne Area Chamber director Scott MacKenzie.

Scheduled for Friday and Saturday, Feb. 7 and 8, the event will feature activities both downtown and at Avalanche Preserve. On Friday, area merchants will feature special deals at the Indoor Sidewalk Sales. followed by an evening downtown full of winter games like the Frozen Fish Toss, Frozen Turkey Bowling, and Human Sled Dog Races. Also featured will be the Cardboard Sled Parade. After building up a hearty appetite, festival-goers can warm up with the Coney Dog Eating Contest at Thick N'Juicy at 7:30 p.m.

On Saturday, the day will kick off at 9 a.m. at Johann's Bakery for a donut eating contest. Particpants can then work off those pastries starting at 10:30 a.m. with activities at Avalanche, including Cardboard Sled Races, Snowshoe Relays, and Ice Skating Races. The day will also feature snowshoe tours and winter ecology programs.

Later in the day, those who need a warm-up won't be disappointed, with the always-popular Chili Cook-Off taking place from 4-5 p.m. at

■ Boyne City Middle School Teen Night gives kids a safe place to have a good time

The monthly Teen Night events at Boyne City Middle School are in full swing, with more than 150 students grades 5-8 enjoying a supervised evening of video games, board games, pizza, pop, karaoke, and more.

Now in its sixth year, Teen Night is the brainstorm of organizer Marty Moody, who conceived of the event when his oldest daughter entered middle school. Supported by donations from BC Pizza in Boyne City and Glen's Market in Boyne City as well as private funding, Teen Night is intended to provide a safe, fun outing for middle school aged kids, free of charge. Though others have suggested that it wouldn't be out of line to charge even a dollar per student for admittance, Moody said that he's rejected the idea. "Someone would al-

ZINC AND COLDS

High doses of zinc can cut the severity of colds, but it can also have harmful sideeffects. The study in the Annals of Internal Medicine found that people who took 80 milligrams of zinc (five times the recommended daily amount) when their cold first appeared had runny noses and coughs for half the time of those on the placebo. Your body already produces zinc so taking too much over a long period of time can interfere with blood cell production. Zinc therapy for the cold should be no tonger than three to five days. for the East Jordan Thespians and the East Jordan Community Pool, among others, and has maintained showcases for the East Jordan High School and the East Jordan Historical Society. Her distinguishing attribute, Mary said, is that she "never refuses to help an organization who needs her."

Prebble wasn't the only one taken by surprise at the event, where other award winners also expressed shock at the sound of their names being called.

Larry Ingalls was the recipient of the first-ever Aesthetic Awareness Award for his work in restoring and renovating two landmark downtown buildings in recent years.

His investments have, Faculak said, "helped build confidence for many other investors [downtown]." A humble Ingalls was struck nearly speechless by the honor; "I was caught by surprise," he said.

The Ambassador of the Year award went to a group rather than an individual, honoring the Charlie Stanek family for their work in promoting the community through public service and church and community involvement.

From that family, too, came the recipients of the President's Award, presented by outgoing chamber president Karen Walker, who honored Lisa Ernst and Teresa Stanek for their own community support, specifically in connection with the resurrected East Jordan Community Picnic.

This year's Executive Director's Award went to longtime chamber volunteer Debbie Grutsch, who, according to Faculak, has assisted the chamber for a number of years with "a ready smile and commitment to the community."

Also honored were outgoing chamber board members Cathy Cohen of Plaid Petunias; Joe Rebec of East Jordan Plastics, Inc., and Luanne Reed of The Family Tree.

This 2003 board members were recognized, and include Larry Oliver, president, of Dick and Jane's Day Care: Sara Schroeder, vice president, of Stark and Schroeder Realty and Blue Water Construction; Teresa Stanek, treasurer, of Signs, Letters, and Graphics; Peggy Beck of Great Hill Herbs; Bill Himmelspach of Korthase Insurance; Richard Hodgson of Charlevoix State Bank; Karen Walker of Karen Walker Photography and Custom Frame and Photo; and Barb Worgess of Jordan Valley Accounting.

Larry Ingalls was the recipient of the firstever Aesthetic Awareness Award, for his contributions to the restoration of historic downtown properties.

an increase in offering educational seminars in conjunction with other area chambers.

The big announcement of the evening was the discontinuation of the chamber's annual auto raffle gala, which had until recently been the organization's largest fundraiser. "We're willing to bring it back," Neilsen said, "but we need input. We're open to suggestions."

The annual meeting was sponsored this year by the Boyne City School Boosters, represented at the meeting by president Jeff Gaither, who noted that the sponsorship is a way for the Boosters to show their appreciation for the support from the local business community. "We come to you folks all the time," Gaither said addressing those attending, "and you're so generous with us. Because of that, we're able to do so many things for Boyne City Schools."

In addition to chamber business, the annual meeting of the Boyne Area Chamber has also become the night to honor those within the community working to make a difference. Previously known as the Boyne Pride Award, this year the nod was renamed the "Community Pride Award," in a move that MacKenzie said reflects the chamber's increasingly regional focus.

In that same vein, this year's recipient, the Friends of the Boyne River, was honored for the impact the group has made throughout the region with its efforts to rejuvenate and protect one of Boyne City's greatest resources.

While several FOBR members were on hand to receive the honor, president Larry Maltby spoke for the group. "This is a group that likes to work," Maltby said. "It's a joy to work with them."

For example, he continued, just that very day, an effort to lay woodchips on a path running along the river had just culmmated, through the combined efforts of students and volunteers and with the support of area business and government. "It all works together for the benefit of the community," Maltby said.

Though still a relatively young organization, FOBR was founded about five years ago by Boyne City residents and river enthusiasts Tom Sheets and the late Marie Zoberski.

According to longtime member and current secretary Amelia Ryan, the group's work ranges from research to education to hands-on projects. The common factor is the river. "The most interesting thing about [the Friends of the Boyne River]," she said, is that the group is comprised of "a diverse group of people that, regardless of their differences, backgrounds, ages, and interests, come together to be an important influence in shaping the health and beauty of this river."

Members range from those who simply support the group through dues to those who attend meetings and the educational component, to those who roll up their sleeves and get their hands dirty. "Everybody has a role," Ryan said.

The unifying component is that all members "have the common passion for the river, a common love for what it means to the community and what it means to the future of the community."

Key members, she noted, come from all walks of life and have different interests within the group. For example, Maltby is an avid fisherman; Shirley Howie is an historian; Ed and Diane Strzelinski are avid canoeists and birdwatchers; Ed Grice is a liaison for the group with his employer, Boyne USA; Bud Ellingwood, newsletter coordinator and editor, is the FOBR "written-word connection." And the list goes on.

"We're all good friends," Ryan

"We're able to maintain our dignity and respect for each other and still move forward with great purpose."

Physical fitness, northern Michigan style

By ANGELA SHULTIS

Now that the snow is really flying, many of us are doing a little more of that couch potato thing, deterred from heading into the great outdoors for winter activities by temperatures that have gone way beyond chilly. The direct result is, typically, the feeling that we're just not getting enough exercise.

If you think about it, though, winter days for the typical northern Michigan resident are filled with all kinds of physical activities we don't engage in during those balmy summer months (or, should I say, balmy summer month). Consider the following:

The Wheelwell Kick: Though styles vary, the goal is the same - to remove that gunky mix of snow, sand and ice that's built up in the wheelwells of your vehicle. Good for neither your shoes nor your ankles, the sheer immovability of the packed-in ice is still a sure muscle builder. Repeat four times each outing for best results.

The Windshield Scrape: An obvious one, probably the most common exercise of this variety. Great for stretching that spine and toning arms and shoulders, equipment is key to this particular activity. A long-handled brush is indispensable for full-size trucks or SUVs, but in a pinch, a plastic CD case or credit card will do the trick on any vehicle. Gloves are highly recommended, unless you don't actually want to be able to feel the steering wheel once you start driving.

The "I'm Freezing" Shuffle: Form is highly personal here; most often, the move is performed with clenched shoulders and stiff legs, with chin pressed tightly to the chest. Typically done in double time from vehicle to building and vice versa, style and speed may be enhanced by external factors such as driving snow or a nice brisk wind blowing sideways off of the lake. Usually followed by The Snow-Removal Stomp (see below).

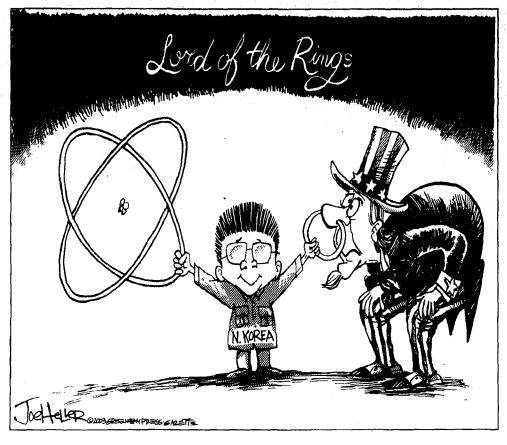

The Snow-Removal Stomp: Performed upon entry to any building, this movement consists of stomping the feet vigorously to shed any snow clinging to footwear. Some stop to execute, others prefer to combine the stomp with a forward motion. Accompanied by a loud pounding noise that can be identified by any northern Michigan resident within a 100-yard radius. CAUTION: Since this is typically done in the entryway of a building, the move tends to leave behind conspicuous and potentially slippery puddles of water and slush; perform at your own risk.

The Automobile Push: Okay, admit it, we've all been there, especially that small faction of us who still don't own a four-wheel drive vehicle. This is a move best done with a partner, though the more help you have, the less physical benefit you reap. Often followed by curse words and the increasingly popular Cell Phone Dial Move (which, I think, is self-explanatory).

Well, there you have it. Remember, though, that you should never undertake an exercise routine without first consulting your doctor.

As for me, well, I'm hoping to just get a doctor's excuse 'til spring

Many Thanks

"Boyne Meets Broadway" was a showcase for plenty of talent

TO THE EDITOR:

Star Search American Idol Who needs 'em! We here in Boyne City have something that will blow them away! Yes, you heard correctly, blow them away! Our Boyne City Drama Department led by the Wollenbergs and Company put on their "Boyne Meets Broadway" out at the Boyne Mountain Civic Center, and any one of those kids would have brought down the house on any of those talent search shows!

For those of you that were able to attend one of the two performances on Jan. 22 and 23 you saw first hand what I'm talking about, talent and lots, I mean lots, of it! From the awesome talents of our soon to be graduating seniors Betsy Weber, Katie Grice, Mallory O'Brien, Molly Babb, Jeff Bonneville, Pat Cassidy, and Joe Houser, who all poured their hearts and souls into their last dinner show, with great singing, dancing and a little bit of slapstick, the crowd ached for more. The list continues on with some incredible talent that will continue to be enjoyed from the likes of Matt Ku, Jon Hoaglund, Christine Dixon, Marie Johnson, Emily McLane, Trevor Mapes, Paige Smith, Jake Shotrosky, and Taylor Carlston, who like their senior cast members kept the crowd in awe for three hours.

Mixed into all the wide array of talent thrown at the crowd was the message that our talent pool in Boyne is not, and will not be diminishing anytime soon, as we were treated to the young talents of Kaitlin Fitzpatrick, and Zachara Wollenberg who brought the house down and the crowd into instant awe! We will be getting some serious use out of that incredible new auditorium we are blessed to have!

Not only were all that attended offered a evening full of fun entertainment, you were able to enjoy it as Boyne Mountain served up a wonderful five course meal as well. Now where else in northern Michigan are you going to get a chance to enjoy an experience like that, great food. great atmosphere, and awesome talent all packaged together for our community to enjoy!

For those that missed the opportunity to experience all this talent, not to worry, as all the above mentioned names will be wowing the crowds at the end of March for the Spring Musical "Peter Pan" in our new Auditorium. But, would urge those that missed the "Boyne meets Broadway" performances this year, to mark your calandars for next January so you can experience for yourself the awesome individual talents that the Boyne City High School Drama Department has to offer. I promise you won't be disappointed! Just one more reason why Boyne City Public Schools are the fine arts schools of choice!

What a great community we are blessed to live in!

Boyne River 'friend' grateful for award

TO THE EDITOR:

I would like to formally thank the Boyne Area Chamber of Commerce for honoring the Friends of the Boyne River with their annual Boyne Community Pride Award. This award recognizes the efforts of a group of over two hundred people who work together to keep this unique asset healthy and beautiful.

Throughout its history, people have been drawn to the Boyne River for both its beauty and benefits. It has served this area as a source of water, food, livelihood, and camaraderie, and continues to do so today.

Many people take our river for granted, that the waters will always flow, just as they have for centuries. But just as people change from generation to generation, so do rivers. And just as generations die out, so can rivers. Maybe not now, but we all know it does happen. The Boyne River is the heart of Boyne City. And the efforts of the many volunteers of the Friends of the Bovne River are important if it is to survive the changes that affect us

You'll find a varied group of people, people of all ages, from all lines of work, and with a variety of personal interests and hobbies. But the River has again somehow drawn them all together. As it was meant to be.

I thank you again for bestowing this great honor on a very worthy organization, and I thank the Friends of the Boyne River for providing me the means to serve my River and my community.

New name would honor late citizen

TO THE EDITOR:

I propose that we rename the old Boyne City Middle School the "Thelma Behling Education Center." It sounds silly to hear it referred to as the old Boyne City Middle School when we can honor someone who has meant so much to this community.

Bus drivers brave winter roads to keep kids safe

TO THE EDITOR:

With this snowy weather upon us, we are once again reminded about a group of amazing individuals in our community - our school bus drivers. Every school day women are nut on all kind and back roads transporting hundreds of students to and from school. Many evenings they are out on the roads transporting students to extracurricular events, thus enriching the lives of the students and our community.

We want to publicly thank these school bus drivers for sharing their skills, sound judgement, and compassion with the children in our community. We are grateful for all they do to safely transport our children in Boyne City.

RAMBLERS DO BOTH IN WIN OVER EAST JORDAN

Limiting turnovers, rebounding keys to BC's success

The keys to success for the Boyne City Ramblers are simple: They need to take care of the basketball and they need to out-rebound their opponents.

They did both against East Jordan last Tuesday in their 68-59 victory and they will need to do both if they hope to have any chance of defeating Elk Rapids this Friday in a key Lake Michigan Conference game.

Elk Rapids comes into the game after dominating East Jordan last Friday, 88-50. The Elks are tied for the conference lead with Harbor Springs with a 5-1 record. They are 8-3 over-

"This week will be a good measuring stick to see where we are," said Boyne City head coach Tim Smith, referring to the Ramblers' game Tuesday at Grayling and their home game Friday against Elk Rapids.

"It was a typical East Jordan-Boyne City game," said East Jordan head coach Lance Bailey, "hard fought and physical."

The Ramblers jumped out to a 19-13 lead after one quarter, and at the half they held a slim 37-34 lead. They built a seven-point cushion in the third period, on their way to the nine-point

"I thought East Jordan played very, very well," Smith said. "It was the best they have played so far. They played harder than we did at times."

But it was the Ramblers' dominance rebounding and their lack of turnovers - they had nine for the game - that proved to be the keys to their

"We attacked the offensive glass real well and we took care of the ball,"

Bailey agreed with Smith's observation. "We lost the rebound matchup and they have been an area of strength for us this year," he said.

Bailey was pleased with the play of his guards. "The intensity and play of our guards was excellent," he said. "We really forced their perimeter shootes into some tough shots."

The Ramblers were led by Beau Detcher with 16 points and Reed Ameel with 11.

Brenton Rozycki had a doubledouble, scoring 10 points and hauling down 10 rebounds.

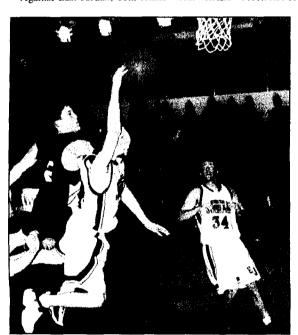

Tylor Daniels also scored 10 points and grabbed seven rebounds.

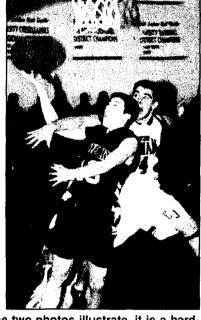

For East Jordan, Kevin Roberts led the team with 14 points, followed by Tyler Spence and Jon Reese, with 12 points each.

Following Friday's game at home against Elk Rapids, the Ramblers travel to Kalkaska next Tuesday.

The cost, Crick said, is a mere $75 for the entire program, which includes rental equipment, a one-hour lesson, and a lift ticket. "Boyne makes it very affordable for kids to learn the sport." Crick said. Information about the program is sent home to parents four to six weeks prior to the start date, in order to give families plenty of time to budget the money. "Some parents [pay for the program] as Christmas gifts for their children," she said.

Indeed, the best part of the program, Crick said, is that it's all about fun. "What's neat is . . . No matter what age they are, they can ski with their buddies, especially the young kids, with adults monitoring."

Huega Express raises $23,774 for MS

A snowstorm that swept across northern Michigan last week dumped welcome powder on skiers in Jimmie Heuga's Snow Express for MS at Boyne Mountain.

Presented by Columbia Sportswear and RSN, the 16th Annual Snow Express for MS attracted 10 teams of three racers each, and raised $23,774 to benefit The Heuga Center, a nonprofit that conducts medical programs to promote health and create hope for people with multiple sclerosis (MS).

Skiers and snowboarders of all ages and abilities formed the ten teams of three that participated in Monday's Snow Express and competed in a dual giant slalom and mountain challenge marathon.

At the end of the day, places and prizes were awarded based on a combination of on-snow results and amount of money raised.

The Flying Heugateers raised $10,195 and won the Snow Express for the eighth year in a row, earning themselves Columbia Sportswear sweaters and fleeces. Boeri helmets, Yakima snowshoes, and an expense-paid trip to Vail, Çolo., April 9-13, for the International Snow Express Finals.

The team was the youngest on the mountain, with 16-year-old Whitney Feret, her 15-year-old cousin, Beth, and 9-year-old Davis De Korte.

Youth bowed to experience in the Marathon and Giant Slalom races which were won by the Three Amigos, Darren Acton, Paul Morningstar, and Rob Fuhrman.

The Three Amigos dominated the races, skiing 123 laps in three hours during the morning competition, and returning to win the GS in the afternoon.

"This is one of the best ever Snow Express events we've had at Boyne Mountain," said event director Dale Hardy.

"The snow was great, the participants had fun, and we raised significantly more money for The Heuga Center to help people with MS."

Now in its 17th year, the Snow Express has 14 races nation-wide and is the largest source of funding for

The Heuga Center, raising approximately $1 million annually.

A percentage of the proceeds from the Boyne event are used to provide need-based scholarships for Michiganders to attend one of the Center's five-day medical CAN DO programs.

Former US Ski Team member and Olympic medalist Jimmie Heuga founded the Heuga Center in 1984. Heuga was diagnosed with MS in 1970, at the height of his ski-racing career.

Defying conventional wisdom, Heuga designed a program of exercise, nutrition and psychological motivation and found not only his physical condition, but also his outlook on life much improved.

Inspired by his success, Heuga founded The Heuga Center in order to teach others with MS how to live an active, fulfilling life within the constraints of the disease.

For more information about the Snow Express for MS or The Heuga Center, call 1-888-DO-IT-4-MS, or visit www.heuga.org.

EJES students raise cash for library donation

East Jordan Elementary students recently worked with AmeriCorps Member, Lois Brewer to raise more than $200 during a coin drive to celebrate "Make A Difference Day." The funds that were raised were donated to the East Jordan Elementary School library for the purchase of books about conflict resolution in honor of Julianna Valentine McCourt, age 4, who was a victim of 9/11. AmeriCorps presented a plaque with a picture of Julianna to the library.

Boyne concert to benefit local hospice

Area residents will be given the opportunity to enjoy the talents of a local artist while supporting a local cause, as musician Marty Ward takes the stage on Sunday, Feb. 16, in Boyne City to benefit the Hospice of Northwest Michigan, formerly Charlevoix County Hospice.

The concert, scheduled to begin at 3:30 p.m. at the Boyne City High School Performing Arts Center, is just one in a series the performer/ songwriter is embarking upon in support of similar organizations through-

Ward, a Boyne City native, has enjoved a long and successful music career, including appearances on Star Search, work on music tracks for two Jane Fonda "Walk to the Music" workout tapes, and two independent albums. A founding member of the popular Jelly Roll Blues Band, Ward's music is primarily adult contemporary, prominently featuring Ward's saxophone, lyrics, and vocals.

In recent years, Ward has made a commitment to lend his talents to support caregiving organizations, an effort he kicked off with the decision to donate 50 percent of the net profits of his most recent CD, Miracles in Paradise, to St. Jude's Children's Research Hospital in Memphis, Tenn.

County planners looking to area residents for input

The Charlevoix County Planning Commission is seeking public input to update the county's Land Use Plan. Now 30 years old and outof-date, according to Planning Director Larry Sullivan, the plan will be the subject of a visual preference survey being mailed to registered voters and nonresident property owners in the county.

A follow-up to a series of five "visioning" sessions held at various locations throughout the county last year, the survey is intended to determine residents attitudes on growth and development issues. Divided into six sections, the survey covers issues ranging from attitudes regarding real estate property rights, to regulations to control patterns of development, to tax millage issues.

Survey questions have been formulated from the earlier visioning sessions through the efforts of the Charlevoix County Planning Department and the County MSU Extension staff.

Approximately 13,000 surveys were to be mailed between Jan. 21 and 30, with the majority sent to registered voters. The deadline for returning surveys, mailed with postage-paid business reply envelopes,
