Boyne Falls students hold computer auction

Two Boyne Falls high school students are fixing up old computers and auctioning them off. The auction will be held on Friday, June 3, starting at 5 p.m., to continue until 7 p.m., or until everything is sold. The auction will be held in the Boyne Falls Public School cafeteria.

The money raised will go toward a new computer lab at the Boyne Falls school.

Boyne City planting spree

Garden club members and non-members are invited to gather on June 7 at 9:30 a.m. at the bridge for flower planting.

For Knock-Out roses or membership information, call Gary Francis at (231) 582-1129.

Second annual EJ two-fly fishing event

Saturday, June 4, the Miller Van Winkle chapter of Trout Unlimited will hold its second annual "Jordan River Two Fly." It's a great day of fishing with a twist: participants are limited to two flies each of two patterns — once the four flies are gone, the fisherman is out of the contest. Each participant will be partnered with another fisherman.

Register early in the morning and fish until early evening, when there will be a barbecue, fly casting demonstration and a fly casting accuracy challenge.

There is a $50 entry fee for the event, which makes participants eligible for prizes. Or for just the barbecue, the cost is $10. Day and evening events are open to all. For more information, call Dale Parsons at (231) 582-2198 or Jim Howell at (231) 582-7751.

Hospice holds fund-raiser

The 2005 Hospice of Northwest Michigan Auction will be held at Castle Farms in Charlevoix on Friday, June 3. Through the generosity of local businesses and patrons, funds will be raised to help offset volunteer and bereavement services provided to Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet and Otsego counties.

Donations will be grouped in package form this year, combining similar themes to showcase unique items from individual and business Hospice supporters. An example of a single item is an original oil painting by artist Martha Landis entitled "New Orleans Flower Shop," or a sit-on-top 11-foot, three-inch Cobra Explorer kayak, donated by Sunburst Marine in Boyne City. The auction's large range of items means there will be something for everyone.

Festivities will begin at 5:30 p.m. with the silent auction. Margaret Thomson, a local pianist, will precede auctioneers Jim White and Jeff McFarlane, who will call the live auction beginning at 7:30 p.m.

Tickets are $30, and include a beverage, a chance to win one $300 or one $200 door prize, and hors d'oeuvres, which will be provided by Sayre's Catering of Mancelona; Grey Gables of Charlevoix, and Darlene's Restaurant of East Jordan.

Tickets are available at Boyne Country Books in Boyne City; Busy Bridge Antiques in East Jordan; The Clothing Company in Charlevoix; Orchard Hills LTD in Bellaire, and at the door.

Call Hospice of Northwest Michigan with questions, at (231) 536-2842.

■ EMS workers at races save man's life

Boyne City emergency medical services took a strategic location at the end of the drag race course last Sunday, where they would be on hand to deal with any accident that may occur.

The races went off without mishap, as cars and motorcycles raced down the strip burning rubber and revving engines, vying not for a purse, but for the sheer entertainment of racing and watching the race — and maybe coming out ahead at the end of the day.

But for one spectator, the ambulance provided more than a secure backdrop to the races.

Manned by Mike Andersen, Ryan Cole and Dave Moyer, the ambulance was approached by a 38-year-old man who was

BC police host annual drag races

Despite weather forecasts of rain, the weather was breezy and beautiful for the Boyne City Police Department Memorial Day Drag Race fund-raising event at the Boyne City airport last Sunday.

The numbers of spectators and drivers were down a little bit from last year, according to police chief Randy Howard, but with 68 drivers the turnout was still good, and the spectators appreciated this year's addition of a return lane that kept that cars moving.

SALUTING OUR HEROS

Memorial Day dawned bright and clear, and servicemen and women gathered in local cemeteries to pay their respects and honor veterans who have died — some in service to their country, some who returned from duty to live out their lives in their home towns with their families. Below, a lone veteran makes his memorial pilgrimage through a Boyne City cemetery.

Walloon Lake resident Harry Colestock will always take time to share his love of magic with any interested fan.

BY JANE BOOZER
 Citizen-Journal Editor

I learned a Harry Colestock original magic trick today. There were these two paperclip bandits, you see, and a rubber band police man, and a thousand dollar bill. You put them all together, and the magic in the story, and the trick in its assembly, have those two bandits tied up in no time, ready for the paddy wagon.

It's more science than magic, when you look at the components of the tricks Colestock pulls out of his sleeve, but the magic is in his twinkling eyes and sleight of hand.

Now living in Walloon Lake, Colestock was born in Highland Park General Hospital in 1923. He exemplifies the qualities that earned his generation the distinction of

■ National Honor Society students volunteer to clean Jordan River

Kay and Scott Harper, proprietors of Jordan Valley Outfitters, and lovers of the Jordan River, donated canoes, paddles and personal flotation devices for the fourth annual National Honor Society clean-up recently.

The clean-up, brainchild of Kay, always coincides with National River Clean-Up week.

"There is a national organization that sponsors river clean-ups, providing bags to collect waste," Kay said. "This year they are sponsoring a competition for fourth through 12-graders that keep people aware of environmental clean-up needs."

Kay first became aware of the program several years ago and called the school to see if there would be any group that would want to participate in a clean-up. The National Honor Society did.

"We provide the boats, paddles and PFDs," Kay said, "and

Stroll the streets of Boyne

Spring is here which means summer and Stroll the Streets of Boyne are right around the corner! People who were in downtown Boyne City on Friday nights last year know how nice these events were. Those who weren't missed great evenings filled with entertainment and activities for everyone — but it's not too late to start strolling.

This year, the Main Street Promotions Committee is making the event bigger and better, but we need your help. There are many levels of sponsorship and entertainment opportunities available. Local businesses should be receiving details in the mail soon and Main Street volunteers will try to follow up with a personal visit. Don't miss out on this opportunity to help make 2005's Stroll the Streets of Boyne awesome.

If you know someone who might be interested in entertaining or sponsoring entertainment, contact either Karen Guzniczak at (231) 582-2355 or Leslie Neilson at (231) 582-0542.

Boyne Library collects books for soldiers

The Boyne District Library and the Friends of the Boyne District Library are joining forces to bring cheer to the area men and women serving in the military overseas.

For the second year the duo is collecting new and "gently used" paperbacks to send overseas to bring a little home front comfort to those far away.

Dava Maat, the Boyne District children's librarian, said that the book boxes hold 24 books, and that they will be sent as they fill up, so there is no deadline for donations. However, shipping rules have changed so that book boxes are no longer allowed to contain "media," so newspapers and magazines cannot be accepted.

Used paperbacks are gratefully accepted, but they should be in good condition and have the covers intact. Books can be dropped off at the Boyne District Library.

In addition, the library and Friends are compiling an updated list of service men and women, and would appreciate names and addresses, so that they can identify which local people are still overseas, and which have returned home.

"Last year we sent out 24 boxes, which were greatly appreciated," Maat said. "We got thank-you notes from several people who received books."

For more information, or to provide updated names and addresses, call Dava Maat at the library at (231) 582-7861.

Treats for troops returns

The "Treats for Troops" program is returning this summer. Kilwin's of Boyne and American Legion Post #228 Boyne City are again working together to send boxes of fudge to Boyne area troops. Kilwin's offers a free box of fudge for every two boxes of fudge purchased. The free box of fudge may be designated for our troops. Because so many of our Boyne area troops have returned from overseas, there will be at least two special mailings of fudge to them thanking them for their service to our country.

One mailing is planned for before the Fourth of July and the other for before the Polish Festival.

Harry Colestock, who learned magic in the 1930s from Harry Blackstone Sr., demonstrates how he can defy logic and fool the eye when he ties a knot without ever releasing the ends of the rope.

being the "greatest." He lived through the Great Depression with a resourceful family, became Valedictorian of his class, captain of his football team, earned a scholarship to Michigan State University, where he studied for a year-and-a-half before he was drafted into the Army's Air Force to serve during World War II. He married his high school sweetheart and graduated from the University of Michigan after the war, having completed his education while working full-time as an electrician and supporting his wife and young son.

During his career as an electrical engineer, he led a group of engineers in the design of the guidance computer for the Atlas missile — the one that put John Glenn into orbit. He also worked for advanced automation companies. Even after he retired in 1988, Colestock continued to invent things — a medical device that melts the knot at the end of a suture to seal it against the stresses of an active body, for instance.

But in the 1930s, something occurred that has stayed with, inspired, and challenged Colestock ever since. He studied magic with the great Harry Blackstone Sr., and he fell under its spell completely.

"You can use a lot of creativity in creating tricks," Colestock said.

He created the rubber band and bands one at 30,000 feet, flying home from Melbourne, where he had engineered an automatic assembly and test line for a six-cylinder engine for the Holden company, a division of General Motors.

"My specialty is walk-around tricks," he said, but he also invents large stage illusions, such as David Copperfield's paper plane.

He said that when you have been doing magic, as he has, for more than 70 years, people get to know you. Copperfield, he said, will call and say, "Harry, what's new?"

And with Colestock, some magic trick is always new.

A card-carrying member of the Society of American Magicians since 1986, and in the Order of Merlin in the International Brotherhood of Magicians, Colestock believes that magic should be fun.

A child still sees the wonder
Of the diamonds in the dew,
Magic in cloud mountains
As they float across the blue.
Each walk becomes adventure
To some distant far-off land.
Each strange new path exciting
As he holds his father's hand.

The years will find us older,
More wiser, some will say.
Age transforms a child to man
In many subtle ways.
Take away my youthful years,
The worldly goods I've piled.
Only let me hold most dear
The wonder of a child ...

— HARRY COLESTOCK

"Everyone needs a little magic in their life," he said. He feels magicians who do the same old tricks — just doing what they have been taught — are losing something. "You have to invent some," said Colestock.

And the great thing is, magicians still are inventing new tricks. Sometimes they even fool Colestock.

"I have ideas about how it might have been done, but some are more puzzling than others," he said.

Still, magicians will share their magic with him so he doesn't have to live in suspense, as his audience does, when he makes a yellow silk scarf disappear and then reappear in blue, or when he can consistently make a person draw the Queen of Hearts, or when he can guillotine a finger without leaving a mark.

Also a painter, a gardener and a poet — all creative outlets, as are the magic and engineering, he insists — Colestock's home, which he shares with his wife Marilyn, is a haven of beauty, whimsy and light. If the idea of "magic" conjures up an image of darkness or scariness, Colestock's house and demeanor dispel the misconception.

Marilyn and Harry met and fell in love shortly after the death of his first wife in 2000. Both watercolorists, they met at an art gallery. For Marilyn, alone for 12 years, it was an unexpected blessing to meet and marry what she calls a Renaissance man. "He can do anything," she said. "He puts younger men to shame." For both, it was "electricity." Harry asked her to marry him on their first date.

Their basement — an inappropriate name for this bright chamber — is their studio, a long room filled with artwork and light. At one end is Harry's electrical inventions workshop. At the other, his magic workshop, filled with antique magic show posters and more than 600 books on magic. Now in his early 80's, Colestock still does magic workshops and is even available for birthday parties and special events — and he comes complete with a tuxedo and top hat, clown suit or wizard regalia. At Christmas he is a convincing and magical Santa.

"Always, he is a wonder to behold, and almost too busy — he installed the electrical and most of the plumbing in their new home himself.

Currently, Harry is working on his next book (McGraw-Hill published his book "Industrial Robotics" earlier this year and is asking for another) — a book of magic tricks for children.

It promises to be good, for he has managed to hold on the wonder of a child, capture it in brilliant color, and pull it out of his hat like — magic.

Graduation

I went to my oldest sister's graduation on Sunday. It was a long drive from East Jordan to Olivet, through pouring rain most of the way, and I have a bone to pick with whoever created the signage for M-69, just north of Lansing. Or it may have just been operator error, but in any event I got turned around a time or two.

The graduation was supposed to be outside, but after several hours of downpour, the venue was changed, and the thronging mass was squished into a little gymnasium to sit sideways on bleachers so that our knees wouldn't impale the backs of the strangers in front of us. It was hot in the gym.

The ceremony was good. Winston Spencer Churchill III spoke, his rich, clear accent ringing through the gym. If you closed your eyes, you could imagine the House of Parliament, and the elder Churchill speaking the words now spoken by his grandson, and you could be sitting there. And from the vantage point of history, the hairs would stand up on your arms, because knowing how it ended makes all the difference.

LAST CALL

Jane Booze

A poignant moment was when a graduate, instead of letting a school official read his list of thanks, took the microphone himself and thanked his parents. And then he thanked his girlfriend, and asked her to join him.

There was a collective, "Oooh," from the rest of us, as we leapt to conclusions.

The girlfriend approached to a student-led chant of "say yes." He knelt (we were right), and told her he wanted to wake up to see her beautiful face for the rest of his life and presented her with a ring. She accepted it. My sister, sitting kitty-corner behind me, said prosaically that she could always say no later, without an audience, if she felt she'd been put on the spot.

But we hoped she didn't. We cried. How contrived is that, and yet, we cried because it was sweet and hopeful. We imagined that they had agreed to postpone marriage until he was out of school, and he had honored that agreement at the earliest possible moment. That was such sweet conjecture that it took on the form of truth, and we accepted it as such and cried just a little. Even the prosaic one cried.

But mainly we did not cry. We envied or didn't envy, as the case may be, and clapped for stranger after stranger, as we waited for the lone familiar face.

My sister's face. At 49, graduating amid a sea of 20-somethings, smiling and talking to them, one of them: a senior, a graduate, a compatriot in Olivet country — her grey hair and theirs, multi-hued, hidden under square mortarboards, and anyway, who cares about grey hair? I am so proud of this sister.

This is the sister who often said, when I was little, and her favorite (there has been some argument over that — often heated — but I have not conceded the point), that my hair was like "spun gold," or who, five years my senior, thought that my childish witticisms were the stuff of genius and said so.

She signed my sixth-grade autograph book, "I won't wish you luck, since I will be there to help push you up the ladder."

When my niece was born, Ann's allegiance turned immediately and unequivocally over to her. That made me mad and jealous (and I was in high school). I remember saying, how can you like her better than us (I meant me, but I am sure I diluted it to us) when you have only known her for a month? She told me I would understand when I was a mother, and of course, she was right.

My niece, through no fault of her own, cut short a stellar college career for my sister, who went on to raise a family of six daughters, and never returned.

Until two years ago. At 47, with her children now in school, Ann enrolled at Olivet and immediately resumed stardom. She took a "full load" and then some, and kept her grades in a region most people only hope for even without six children, a grandson and a host of activities to deal with.

My sister is an involved person. Schoolwork sometimes had to take second place to ballet recitals, track meets, baklava for the bake sale at her Greek Orthodox church (I made that last part up, but it could have really happened, and something similar undoubtedly did).

She's busy, but now she's finished with school, and will start looking for a full-time job. She will be teaching at a Lansing school, I do not doubt, combining the maturity and experience of her age with the fiscal appeal of a first-year teacher, and she will be a prize: one of those teachers students remember forever. A turning-point teacher.

I just hope she slows down enough between the cap and gown and the chalkboard that I can get a little face time this summer. But it looks like now she'll be at the top of the ladder, pulling instead of pushing.

NEIGHBORS

A RECAP TO LAST WEEK'S ITEM about the dedication and ribbon cutting ceremony "Open House" of Grandvue's expanded and renovated facility is that several hundred people strolled through the building. Part of the honorary ceremony was the dedication of the Cafe to Hilda Watkins, long-time administrator. Oral Sutliff introduced the original board that started renovation three years ago as well as Hilda's daughters, Judy (Hartlep) Owen and Joni Zucchiatti. Impressive it was: the interior design was professionally decorated and created a beautifully classy yet homey atmosphere, including a theater with a large screen for the patients to enjoy. Another highlight was the dedication of post office boxes in the name of long-time board member and mail carrier, Herb Griffin. Sutliff also presented a large aerial photo of the "new" Grandvue (taken by pilot Royal Watkins) to Penny Drury, present administrator. There was lots of food in each dining room and live entertainment of the Cousins Music Group, Margaret Thomson, pianist; Nan McPherson, pianist, and Jan Goodwin, harpist. The music groups were located in different areas around the facility, entertaining all afternoon. The residents are so proud and happy, like we all should be of our Medical Care Facility.

JENNIFER SHALER OF COLUMBUS, Ohio was home for the long Memorial Day weekend, visiting her dad, Kevin Shaler, her mom and step-dad, Shelly and Michael Breimer, sister Valerie, and son Mason and other relatives.

VIRGINIA HEGERBERG returned to her Boyne Ridge Condo this week after undergoing surgery last week at Northern Michigan Hospital. Her daughter Pam and husband Dick Schmidt of St. Louis, MO. were here with her until Tuesday.

ANNE JENKINS AND DAUGHTER, June Morcy of Iona, were here this past week and Anne enjoyed her annual May birthday celebrations with friends in this area.

MARK AND SHEILA ZINCK, and family, of Grand Rapids arrived late Friday night to spend the Memorial Day weekend with his mother Meta, sister Diane and family.

ATTEND THE BOYNE AREA SENIOR CENTER on Thursday, June 2 and enjoy meatloaf for lunch. Pumpkin pie will be served for dessert. Bingo will follow lunch on Thursday. Friday, June 2 the Cousins Music Group will be playing at 11 a.m. On the menu is Polish sausage with sauerkraut. Remember to be there early on music day! June 6, Monday, is Bingo day. Everybody wins! Come join the fun. They will be serving baked chicken for lunch. Tuesday, June 7, Swiss steak will be served with mashed potato. Wednesday, June 8, is macaroni and cheese. Lime sherbet will be served for dessert. A foot clinic is scheduled for Wednesday (you must make an appointment). There will be cards games after lunch.

A WARM "WELCOME NEIGHBOR" goes out to Jan Henderickson, who moved into Litzenger Place over the weekend.

MARY JANE KROLL OF BOYNE CITY was a third time winner as "Queen of the Year" of the Boyne Valley Slim and Trim Club on Wednesday. In celebrating this event, the group treated her to a delicious lunch and fun time at Boyne City's "Chinatown" — the Indo China Gardens restaurant.

MR. AND MRS. DON MOSES, their grandchildren, Jonah and Olivia, and Louise Moses, all of Spring Lake, were in town over the holiday weekend. While in the area, they visited with Louise's sister, Caroline McCleary and the group spent Sunday afternoon cooking out at the home of Patrick McCleary in Alanson.

CRISTY DAVIS OF JACKSON was here over the Memorial Day weekend, visiting his sister, Ruth Yahr.

WOW! WHAT A DIFFERENCE CLEAN WINDOWS MAKE! And that's the way it was on Wednesday's hot evening, for many appreciative residents of Litzenger Place. A team of eight young and healthy teens of the Trinity Church, committed to their "Random Acts of Kindness" program, washed inside and outside windows, upstairs and downstairs and had lots of fun while they were at it!

PHYLLIS TISRON OF LITZENBURGER PLACE is now at Boulder Park Terrace for rehab following surgery after a fall, resulting in a broken wrist and leg, on her right side.

MURRAY AND JAN NORTHUP OF MIDLAND, son Kevin, wife Debbie and their sons, Ryan and Mike of Sterling Heights, and Nels and Louisa Northup of Boyne Falls and daughter Lori and Bill Bailey of Alto, spent Sunday afternoon with mother and grandmother, Edna May. All enjoyed a picnic and a fun time on a beautiful sunny day.

Graduation: Exiting my comfort zone

By BRITNEY MOODY
Contributing Writer

Although the majority of my classmates are overwhelmed with anticipation to graduate, I, on the other hand, dread the day. True, I have had my fair share of complaining about school work and such, but I have formed a family unlike anything I could imagine elsewhere.

Graduating, to me, makes it so I must accept letting go of the past. But how do you let go of 18 year's of closeness with family, companions, teachers, etc? I do not know. I have yet to come close to answering the question. I don't understand how it is easy for some to scream "hallelujah" over graduation, when in fact most will have more work after high school than they did in high school. It is hard for me to be excited about starting over at stage one.

Most of my classmates also explain how they are excited to get away from Boyne City. And yes, it is a small town, and I am anticipating getting a feel for living in a bigger city, but after everything that the town has given me I don't know how to push it away that easily. Honestly, it has a very homey and safe feeling that I don't believe I will receive when I enter Lansing to go to MSU in the fall next year. I will miss that comfort level of knowing so many people and being a part of a real, close-knit community.

miss that comfort level of knowing so many people and being a part of a real, close-knit community.

As far as what I'm leaving behind, even though I've convinced myself that my relationships with my schoolmates are strong enough to last miles apart; in all actuality I fear the end of such relationships. True we have the internet, so keeping in touch should not be that difficult, but what about for those who feel opposite of me? That we should start out on a clean slate? I don't want to leave my friends that have always been there behind.

Already the immense feeling of loneliness is building up inside of me with graduation so soon to come. I view myself as capable of succeeding past my high school career, to the utmost expectations, but the thought of losing everything has withheld me from the excitement of my future.

Thoughts of going off to college to make new friends, start new ambitions, and take responsibility for everything that I do, has put a heavy weight upon my shoulders. I spend most of my time frustrating myself with the thought of how often I will see everybody, and what we will do when we reunite. Or the dreadful thought of hardly ever seeing some of those I care for so much who are moving far away and missing important events in one another's lives.

Just the thought of being surrounded by everyone on graduation day, watching the senior send-off together, running through each individual memory gets me choked up. All the get-togethers at each others' houses, the unity at spirit events and dances, the infinite inside jokes among one another, and the hardships people went through to come together for their final moments. Being surrounded by those I love, accepting an inevitable goodbye, or accepting somehow letting go will break my heart.

Even more, I have never been the child who enjoys leaving home for more than a few days. I have a huge attachment to my home and my family and I do not know how I will cope without them — let alone how I will cope with waking myself up everyday without my mom and dad there to yell at me in the morning.

All in all, I wish I could be as upbeat as most of my classmates are. Unfortunately, I don't see that happening anytime soon. It seems my experience in graduating will be indefinitely rough and my sorrow over the events will only heal with time.

Britney Moody is a soon-to-be graduating senior at Boyne City High School, and a student intern with the Citizen-Journal.

The biannual races, which take place on the Sundays of Memorial and Labor Day weekends, are in their third year, and are a fund-raising effort for the airport, which receives 75-percent of the proceeds, and the police department, which receives 25-percent.

"We're always satisfied with the fund raising," Howard said. "It was down a little bit, but everything went well. Drivers and spectators liked the outside return lane. It went a lot faster. We got a lot of positive comments from everybody on that."

The next race is scheduled for Sunday, Sept. 4, the day before Labor Day. Traditionally that has been a somewhat better attended race, but the event is still in its infancy. With each race, the sponsoring police department finds ways to improve the races, challenge the drivers and thrill the crowds.

And they're off! Racers driving in last Sunday's drag races were pleased with the new outside return lane that kept the cars moving.

watching the races and began to feel ill.

According to EMS director, John Lamont, the patient was sweating profusely and complaining of pain in his arm. It was a basic EMS crew, meaning there was not a paramedic with the truck, but when the patient suddenly announced that "it hurts really bad," and lost consciousness, the men immediately initiated cardio pulmonary resuscitation.

"It was a basic crew, and they initiated CPR, controlled his airway, and applied the AED," Lamont said.

An AED is an external automatic defibrillator, which will supply an electric shock to a person's heart in the case of cardiac arrest. The AED will also monitor the heart rate and will either advise for or against defibrillation in an emergency.

The AED advised in favor of defibrillation.

"They shocked and got rhythm back," Lamont said. Paramedic Lisa Vincent arrived on scene and stabilized the patient on the trip to the hospital, and when she left him, he was "alert to time and place and talking," according to Lamont.

The AED was in place for approximately three months when it was used Sunday, and one of the EMTs on the scene, Ryan Cole, is newer even than the AED. Just last week he was in the Upper Peninsula finishing his state exams.

Cardiac arrests account for only two percent of the volume of an emergency medical service.

"It is not routine," Lamont said. "To come out of training — to be real fresh — (Cole) couldn't have done it any better."

As for Cole, he was "riding high," according to Lamont, who said the new technician was pretty excited to be part of the team in the life-saving effort.

Lamont said his staff is experienced, dedicated and supportive.

"A lot of times they don't get anything back," Lamont said. The Boyne City ambulance association is holding a golf scramble fund-raiser this coming weekend to try and raise money for a Stryker stretcher and a used Lifepac 12-lead cardiac monitor and defibrillator.

But mostly it's a way to see people (not in the back of an ambulance). A chance to do something fun, and, as Lamont said, a way to get ownership of the service by helping to maintain and update equipment through fund-raising.

Yacht club announces sailing regatta

The Boyne City Yacht Club announced its first annual sailing regatta for the benefit of Challenge Mountain. The event will be held June 11 and 12, in Boyne City on Lake Charlevoix. The event will include multiple races around buoys and after racing will also include a Cajun shrimp boil on Saturday night.

"We are excited to be planning what we anticipate to be the BCYC's signature sailing event. Being able to do it for the benefit of a fine organization such as Challenge Mountain makes it even better," said Bob Kopec, sail fleet captain. Challenge Mountain is also involved in many other adaptive sports such as skiing, snowboarding, Nordic skiing, snowshoeing, camping, hiking, and other water sports. For more information, visit www.boynecityyachtclub.com or www.challengemtn.org. Interested racers or donors can also call Bob Kopec at (231)549-5522 or Sue Moody at Challenge Mountain at (231)535-2141.

HEALTH TIPS FROM MEDICAP PHARMACY

TIPS TO HELP WITH MEMORY LOSS

To aid in remembering important phone numbers, use programmed phones or place photos of familiar people next to their numbers and mount near the phone. In the kitchen, forgetting to turn off the burners can lead to fires. Adaptive stove controls can be installed to automatically turn off electric burners after a certain period of time. Keep a fire extinguisher in easy reach. Remembering to take daily medications is a problem for some. Setting up a weekly supply in a clear pill case with dividers for each day of the week can help. There are also automatic pill dispensers with alarms, visual alert systems and battery backup.

Support our troops

BY MAXINE HOUGH
Contributing Writer

As our seasons change here, so do they in Iraq. Very hot weather, with temperatures constantly above 100 degrees, is beginning to make for discomfort for our troops.

Additions to our boxes to be shipped should include moisturizing eye drops to counter the heat and sand. While "wet-naps" are a necessity, a soldier should not have to deal with tearing open a dozen little tiny ones for cleansing and refreshing. Break down a large box of moisturizing wipes and repack them in packets about one inch thick in zip-lock bags. These will be easy to put in their packs when away from base camp. Gatorade is a necessity for replenishing the minerals lost throughout perspiration. Whole bottles of Gatorade in a pack can be heavy. The troops prefer adding powdered Gatorade to their water bottles—with which they are supplied when they are away from base camp. In some parts of the country Gatorade is available in packets, like tea and Kool-Aid, but not around here. Very small zipper bags are available for repackaging the powder into smaller packets. Try a jeweler or a sport/fishing store to get some small baggies.

There's good news and bad news from the U. S. Postal Service. First, the good news. Both large and small size (free) shipping boxes are available for domestic use. (APO and FPO are domestic.) Any weight is only $7.70 for either size box. The smaller box would be ideal for cookies. The bad news is the customs declaration forms now have four copies, plus the original. It will be necessary to write with a heavy hand so the information is clear on all forms. Another note on the forms: in the lower right hand corner under "Sender's Instructions" — if the package is not deliverable to the person addressed, check "redirect to address below" — and write "Unit Commander." If the addressee has moved to another camp or has a different assignment, the package probably will not be forwarded. The unit commander may then distribute the contents to the troops in the unit. Thanks to the "lunch bunch" at the Boyne City Senior Center for collecting money for postage for packages sent to our troops.

During Veterans Appreciation Day, which was held at American Legion Post #228 in Boyne City on May 11, students from local schools had the opportunity to meet with and talk to men and women who had served their country during world War II, the Korean War, the Vietnam War, the Gulf War and the Iraqi Wars. The veterans helped interpret the materials, equipment, photographs and clothing on display.

Of special note were two veterans, both Legionnaires from the Post, who are home from the war in Iraq: Sgt. Kelli Howard and Sgt. Troy Drebenstedt. The students were able to hear first hand what these two soldiers did to help fight the war on terrorism. Troy was an impressive figure in his Army camouflage uniform.

Kelli was in "civvies" and therefore was not wearing her Purple Heart (awarded for being wounded in action) or her Army commendation with "V" for Valor Medal. Her three-year-old daughter, Cassidy, was clinging to her mother's leg, happy to have her home again.

Also on hand to talk with the students was a representative from the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department — Boyne Falls' own officer Clyde Payton, who delighted the students by hand-cuffing them and letting them cuff each other. Amazingly, at the end of the day, no students were left cuffed to chairs or tables. As they left for the day, each student was given an American Flag which had flown over the grave of a veteran.

Maxine Hough is from the Troop Support Office at the American Legion Post #229 in Boyne City.

Concord Academy Boyne student, Evan Bobo, looks serious about juggling as he performs for the middle and high school students.

Concord students show off talents at circus

The elementary students of Concord Academy Boyne spent the day on Friday, May 20, becoming a circus. With the help of Cirque Amongus of Livonia, the students learn feats of balance, hand-eye coordination and skill.

The program was designed to self-esteem, develop motor skills and promote teamwork. In the morning students learned circus arts such as unicycle riding, trapeze, juggling, tight rope and ball walking. In the afternoon the elementary showed off their new skills in a circus show for the High school and Middle school.

The event was funded by Arts on the Go, a program to bring artists and performers to do hands-on programs with the students.

EJ girls take third at invite

BY PHIL TROMBLEY
Sports Writer

On the heels of a regional title the East Jordan girls track team was invited to run at the Michigan Interscholastic Track Coaches Association team state finals held in Kent City on Saturday, May 28.

The Lady Devils took third at the event, which was open to regional winning teams only. Maple Valley finished first followed by Kent City.

Highlights of the day for East Jordan were Jessica Skop, who won the 100 hurdles and the 400 relay team of Jaleesa Baier, Sierra Richards, Sarah Kupovits and Skop which broke the school record with a time of 52.97.

Other top finishes were: 800 relay (Skop, Kupovits, Mary Shaw, Baier, 3rd) 3200 relay (Shaw, Chelsey Poindexter, Meghan Thomas, Kristi Werner, 3rd), Thomas (4th 800), Shaw (4th long jump), Skop (4th 300 hurdles), and Baier (5th 400).

SOCCER

Rams roll past East Jordan

Harbor Springs scored eight goals in the first half and added two goals after the break to hand the East Jordan varsity soccer team a 10-0 loss at home on Thursday, May 26.

BobAnn Fick played a strong game working hard in the midfield to break up the Harbor Springs attack and turn the East Jordan attack, according to East Jordan coach Pete Elliott, while Katherine Rowley also played well helping to press the attack.

"East Jordan's young team finished the season with no wins in their 13 games, but they did win in other ways growing as a team, having fun playing and exhibiting good sportsmanship. The ladies did win a few halves and they worked hard in every game," said Elliott.

A police escort leads veterans down Main Street during the Memorial Day parade, while spectators pay their respects to servicemen and women; those who have died, as well as veterans now serving in various parts of the world.

a day of remembering

Memorial Day was a reminder this year not only of veterans that have died, but also of the young people now serving their country in foreign places. Tomorrow's servicemen and women, bottom, drop flowers off the bridge in a tribute to those whose lives were lost at sea.

"We provide the boats, paddles and PFDs," Kay said, "and they provide the willing bodies. We always have a good turn out. We had about 48 students this year."

And it wasn't the weather that brought out the volunteers. The day of the clean-up was rainy and the temperature hovered at about 50 degrees. Students who came equipped for canoeing in flip-flops and shorts were cold long before they reached Rogers Bridge, and were happy to see the warm bus waiting to take them back to the East Jordan high school. Still, Kay said, the students got a lot cleaned up and were fun to work with.

"They are the best. How often do you have kids going to work, and then they thank you for letting them clean the river? And it happens every year," she said. "They are all very polite and helpful."

She admitted that the weather dampened a little enthusiasm, but still: "Everything they picked up is something that is no longer in the river."

One student had collected a bag full of bobbers by the time they arrived at Rogers Bridge. He planned to take them home and use them for his own fishing — another benefit of the expedition. But Kay thinks the students gain far more than an occasional bobber.

"I think the kids gain self-worth and confidence. There is a lot of camaraderie between the kids," she said. "Scott and I really like working with them. They are so refreshing."

Each year the Harpers and the Honors Society students concentrate on the portion of the Jordan River that runs between Graves Crossing and Rogers Bridge — "the most travelled section," Kay said. Each year they have fun looking through their collection at the end of the trip to identify the most unusual item.

"One year it was a crock pot," Kay said. This year the students were too chilly to linger over the collected items and were just grateful to Waste Management, which collected the trash for free.

Subway in East Jordan also got in on the action, providing the canoers with lunch, which they got at a "greatly reduced rate," according to Kay. In addition, the river-cleaners were joined by members of the American Canoe Association, who brought up the rear, and, well-prepared for canoeing eventualities, brought warm and dry clothes to share.

As for the Harpers, returning to Jordan Valley Outfitters to unload equipment in the rain, the trip was an unmitigated success.

"We plan to keep doing it — absolutely," Kay said.

They are the best. How often do you have kids going to work, and then they thank you for letting them clean the river? And it happens every year.
