Dog Days can be fun

Bring your pet downtown Friday, Aug. 5, to Boyne City's Stroll the Streets event for "rollicking fun activities, contests and prizes for all pets." Bidders on the pet dream houses, which are still on display at Pet Haus Cuisine, The Bird's Nest, Boyne Country Books, and Edward Jones Investments, will find out who the lucky winners are during the weekly Stroll event. It isn't too late to place a bid on the "Ol' Dog Cabin," the "Victorian Labradorian," the "Safari Dog," and the "Patriotic Pooch" dream doghouses.

All proceeds benefit the Boyne City Main Street Program and the Charlevoix County Humane Society.

Polish Festival hosts 3-on-3

The Polish Festival 3 on 3 Shoot-out will be held at the Boyne Falls Public School on M-75 South, on Friday, Aug. 5. The cost of registration is $60 per team, if registered early — by Aug. 4 — or participants can register on the day of the event at 8 a.m., for $75.

Bracketing takes place at 8:30 a.m., and play begins at 9 a.m.

There will be boy's and girl's divisions, grades 3 - 4; 5 - 6; 7 - 8; 9 - 10; 11 - 12; and Jr. College. There are no adult divisions.

Medals will be awarded for first and second places and sportsmanship, and all players will receive a T-shirt.

Bill and Sue Hahn, left, and Arlene and Art Calvin, are some of the family members that still come to a quiet lakeside resort in East Jordan. Sue's family and Arlene's family have both been enjoying summers on Lake Charlevoix for a combined total of more than 100 years.

Two families, 100 years

Sue Hahn and Arlene Calvin have both been coming north to a peaceful little resort on Lake Charlevoix since the 1940s. Calvin's family began coming in 1945, when she was only two years old. Sue was a little older when her family found Cedar Rest Resort in 1947. Together their combined vacations have been enjoyed on a sandy Lake Charlevoix beach for more than 100 years.

But they weren't combined vacations. In fact, Sue and Arlene met each other over a picnic table and some wonderful recollections for the first time this summer.

Sue said that her father had an image of the perfect beach vacation, an inland lake, cabins, sandy beaches, waterskiing, boating and evening cocktails and dramatic productions. She said they had been to just about every inland lake in Michigan when they found Cedar Rest, and they never went to another since. Cedar Rest was what he was looking for.

He came and brought family, friends and coworkers with him. They began to rent all 12 of the cabins every year, and every year there were important executives — and nary a phone, Sue said.

Parade of Power

Juday sentenced

Former Boyne City Public School employee Wendy Juday was sentenced last week in connection with embezzlement charges brought by the United States Department of Agriculture.

On June 1, 2004, the Boyne City police department was contacted by the Boyne City School District regarding the apparent ongoing theft of funds from the school food service department. Because school food services are subsidized by the USDA, federal investigators were contacted to complete the investigation.

Mark McClutchey, a special agent of the USDA Office of Inspector General, issued an affidavit in support of a criminal complaint alleging that Juday stole funds from the BCPS lunch program over the course of her five years' employment.

Juday issued a written sworn statement on June 24, 2004, admitting to the theft. She was arrested on March 16, 2005, and on April 19, Juday plead guilty to stealing nearly $100,000 in student lunch money.

Juday was sentenced in federal court last week, according to McClutchey. She received a sentence of six months in a federal prison, and three years' probation. In addition, she must pay back $55,000, due immediately.

The $55,000 will go directly back to the Boyne City schools, according to Boyne City police chief, Randall Howard.

Public hearing on Boyne City marina

There is a public hearing scheduled for the next regularly scheduled Boyne City city commission meeting on Tuesday, Aug. 9, at 7 p.m.

The meeting will be an opportunity for the commission to hear final comments from the public regarding the planned city marina.

City manager Michael Cain said that it will be an opportunity for citizens to express their ideas and concerns before the commission gets into "decision mode."

"Where should it be? Do people like it at the mouth of the river, or snuggled around the west side (as proposed by commissioner Jerry Douglas)?" he said, adding that this will be the chance for people to have their opinions heard.

"We are gathering information and comments, getting ready to start bringing this to a conclusion," he said.

The city's consultant on the project, Abonmarche, will be there to answer questions, and the wave study and marina master plan will be available for review, along with various additional plans which have been submitted to the commission.

Pink Ribbon Ride raises awareness, money

The third annual Pink Ribbon Ride took place recently, in memory of Kathleen McDonald of Boyne City.

Though she was never able to ride in the event, Kathy was its founder. Diagnosed with breast cancer in 2001, Kathy was also newly a bicyclist, and she found courage and hope in her rides along the shores of Lake Charlevoix, as she and her family educated themselves on treatment options and took advantage of available resources in Kathy's battle against the disease.

In the course of her research, Kathy discovered Bike4BreastCancer, Inc. on the Web, and she decided to start her own event, in the hope of raising awareness of the prevalence of breast cancer, as well as a way to contribute to research to prevent and cure it.

Kathy did not live to see that first Pink Ribbon Ride, but passed the baton to her friend, Susan Morris.

"I got involved because Kathy was my friend," Morris said. "She started working on this in 2002 and asked me to help. She died in January, 2003, five months before the first ride. "It fell into my lap," she said.

Diane Gorkiewicz of the Charlevoix Area Hospital Foundation, said it couldn't have fallen in a better lap. But every year it has been a little bit more challenging to come up with donations that exceed the year before. Last

HEALTH TIPS FROM MEDICAP PHARMACY
RESTLESS LEG SYNDROME
 The FDA has recently approved the use of ropinirole (a Parkinson's Disease medication) for the treatment of restless leg syndrome. RLS is a neurological condition which is characterized by an irresistible urge to move your legs. It often occurs during the night interrupting sleep patterns. The sometimes painful sensations are described as a jittery, tingling, creeping, burning or aching feeling in calves, thighs or feet.
 Researchers believe the cause is an imbalance of the brain chemical dopamine or possibly iron deficient brain cells. If you think you have RLS, speak with your doctor. With treatment, calm legs and sleep should be restored.

Portside Art Fair and docents at Elm Pointe this weekend

Cyg Riley, history-maker

Cygrid Riley of East Jordan loves history, and made it when she inspired and helped establish the Portside Historical Museum and Cygrid Riley Art Gallery at Elm Pointe, just north of East Jordan on M-66.

Riley came from Lansing, and her first art show was held there: a clothesline show, where the artist's offerings were literally pinned to a line with clothespins.

She invited friends and members of the several clubs she belonged to, saying that for many, it was their first exposure to abstract art. While she herself does not claim to be an artist, Riley's interest was piqued by her husband, a fine craftsman, and her father-in-law, who was an artist. But living just around the corner from the Turner Museum in Lansing, in the years before the Michigan Museum was established, Riley also became interested in history. The Rileys moved north to East Jordan in their early retirement years, and Riley immediately began to apply her interests and skills to her adopted town. "I could see where so many of the things were going out of East Jordan to downstate museums — especially the railroad — instead of staying here," Riley said. So she began collecting things in her basement.

"Right away I put a restriction on it that things had to come from the East Jordan area or Antrim County. Railroad lanterns and things of that sort.

The postal wagon went down, as I understand, to a museum in Kalamazoo." In addition, Riley began an art show, which was held downtown at the Memorial Park, to benefit the growing historical collection. After the fair had been established for about 10 years, the organizers decided to allow the artists to apply for the purchase prize of, at that time, $50 (it is now $500 for two dimensional artwork, $250 for three dimensional), which was donated by the bank. The first winner was a Chicago watercolorist, Victor Hayes, and the painting was of the Memorial Park and its historic engine.

But Memorial Park was an unsheltered place for the art fair, and Riley was always looking for a better location, where the artists could worry less about their work being scattered to the wind.

"... Harry Watson was mayor of East Jordan," Riley said. "The Westgates were old friends of his, and he got them to donate Elm Pointe to the city. He came to me and said, 'Cyg, I have got the place for you.' They (the Westgates) would have donated it to a boy's club." Watson told her, she said, that Elm Pointe would be an ideal place for the show — and a historical museum.

"Which it has been. We started out with just a minimum of things, but it was a start," Riley said, adding that the recent restoration of the museum exhibits by Kim Prebble and Paula Vollbach have given the museum a renewed appeal. "They are super people."

The Portside Art Fair has been held at Elm Pointe since 1976, every year on the first full weekend in August, and has become an important feature in East Jordan summers. Thirteen artists have been returning to the fair for more than 10 years, with many others working toward their decade of exhibits.

Elementary docents continue education

"Docent: a teacher at a college or university; conducts groups," according to Webster's. The 17 docents at the East Jordan Historical Museum are a few years away from college or university in any capacity, but they do conduct groups.

They are East Jordan elementary to high school students, who are volunteering weekends and free time during the summer months to continue learning, and to teach others. These enthusiastic students have each been assigned to a display at the museum, where they are given a scripted history of their area — say a turn-of-the-century parlor or a lumber company — which will be presented in costume, in the first person. In addition, the students are encouraged to do their own research on their area to learn more about local history and the everyday tools and implements that have disappeared from modern homes and businesses.

They have their own ideas about what a docent is.

"A person that dresses and acts and tells people about back in the olden times," said Alyssa Jakielek, who tells museum visitors about East Jordan's early industries.

"They help explain to people — and help them learn, too," added Donny Miller, a docent lumberjack.

The students are all volunteers, and they all have their own reasons for wanting to be a docent, ranging from "It sounded fun," to Samantha Gardner's, "I like learning about history and teaching people about it." Sam and her younger sister, Kathleen, wear their kitchen aprons with pride — and were pretty thrilled when they got to meet the previous owner of the wood cook stove that graces their domain — East Jordan resident, Jean Pardis.

"They didn't have stoves like we have now. The mothers would sometimes have to cut the wood to fit into the wood cook stove. They had a cream separator — they didn't go to the store and buy it, they did it themselves," Sam said. "In the summertime, they still had to use the wood stove. And they wore the same clothes all the time. They didn't go to the store to buy fancy clothes like we do. And if their crops didn't grow, they didn't have much food for the winter."

Kathleen has a similar enthusiasm for her role in the kitchen.

"I liked having to know more stuff and telling about it, because I like talking a lot, and knowing more stuff than other people do, for some reason," she said candidly. "And it made me feel like a movie star."

"I like museums," said Brandi Voss, a docent in the parlor.

The docents had their debut at a recent Wake-Up East Jordan event that was hosted by the museum and Portside Art Gallery.

"It was really fun," said Lindsey Graham, the proprietress of the business district. "It was really easy, because you already knew what you were going to say."

Ellie Arthur, a parlor docent with Brandi, was a little nervous before her first day of docent role-playing.

"It felt like I was going to slip up," she said. "I was really nervous." She did not slip up, but was comfortable with her subject. "(The museum) is a good place to go because you can learn about the parlor, the shop, the veterinarians. There is a dress (that belonged to) Louise Loveday, who was famous for her dramatic readings at the Temple Theatre. Her niece, Peggy Midener, still lives in East Jordan."

Some of the museum visitors asked questions that the docents didn't know the answers to.

"What battle was the 13-star flag in?" was the question that stumped Lindsey. It stumped everyone — but the museum staff is on a quest to find out. The docents know that if they don't know the answer, they can direct questions to Paula Vollbach or Kim Prebble, and if they don't know either, they will do some research to find out. But some students have been doing their own research.

Michael Cardwell didn't know what the prop in his military display was from, so he looked it up on the internet and identified it as a propeller from a sea plane.

"And a lot of the sea planes were about transporting people, not equipment," he said. Brandon Cardwell, Michael's brother, also got a hard question, which he directed to Miss V., he said.

"I wanted to get involved because a while before my dad was researching something and I was interested and wanted to learn more about East Jordan. And I wanted to do extracurriculars — something to do in the summer," said Alyssa. "And I wanted to be in drama when I am in high school."

Most of the student docents are interested in expanding their knowledge to other areas of the museum. Both the Gardner girls want to learn about the military display because their grandfather was in World War II. Brandi would like to learn more about church in the olden days.

Lilly Arthur, who is the church docent, would like to learn more about the Army, she said, and so would Dusti Voss, who is a farm docent, and learning quite a lot about making wooden shingles.

Ellie said she was "more interested in the lumberjack era because of all the cool things they did." Michael wants to learn about the theater.

Donny, who said he would like to learn more about the past, is already working to learn more about the lumbering industry, where he is a docent. He learned something new about the swinging bridge in East Jordan after the debut — how it opened to let ships and logs being ridden by lumberjacks with their cant hooks through.

"There's still a lot of room up there," he said, pointing at his head, but he's filling it fast and passing on the knowledge with enthusiasm.

When the fourth graders start learning about Michigan history, these docents will be on hand to explain the some of the unfamiliar tools and traditions of their forebears.

The docents will also be at the Portside Art Fair on Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 6 - 7 from 2 - 3 p.m., so that visitors to the art fair can step into the cool of the museum and be transported back in time by a collection of youthful museum guides who would like nothing more than to share their knowledge of the past.

Donny Miller and a silent partner warm themselves by a "campfire" in the lumbering exhibit at the Portside Historical Museum. Donny is a student docent at the museum.

Talking neighborly

Next year I am going to grow a garden and the object of my farming will be to become self-sustaining. I am not going to worry about making my own clothes, yet, since I have plenty to last for a while.

The reason is because my computer has been giving me trouble at work. I mean loads of trouble. I have gotten behind on Monday (not a day I can afford to lose) for the last two weeks because I was troubleshooting computer things, and I am no master.

I turn to Aimée, Up North Publication's Girl Friday, in times of trouble, but sometimes it takes me a while to remember to use all my resources — especially those invaluable human ones. Instead I go through a process of closing out, shutting down, restarting, opening again, only to encounter a light show on my desktop and an error message that pops up like a genie from a bottle. But he's a miserable genie, and doesn't grant a single wish. Sadly, I confess that I repeat this procedure several times before I am willing to concede that I need Aimée.

Anyway, this brings me in a roundabout way to the Good Old Days, in a couple ways. One is this: Aimée is my neighbor. (Actually, she is my neighbor.) But I mean that in a cyber world, when I got in a bind, I went to her to borrow a couple of eggs. We have gotten so unused to going to our neighbors for things. In the real world, we often do not even know our neighbors. I have lived on my street for almost two years now, and I would not consider knocking on my neighbor's door for eggs or a cup of sugar. What was once commonplace, what made a neighborhood an entity separate from other streets and locales, was knowing one another — and being a little bit interdependent.

It sounds like I am on two different tracks, doesn't it? Self-sustaining and interdependent seem like they would cancel each other out.

I don't think they do. If I can grow tomatoes, and you can raise chickens, we can choose to be interdependent, and self-sustaining at the same time.

That leads me to a whole different train of thought, but it ties in.

We are not just unneighborly, we are polarized. It isn't just a matter of eggs and tomatoes, or computer savvy, either. We are separated into blue and red states, and blue and red states of mind, as well.

We are driven by ideology instead of real common sense values. When we are ideologically separated from our neighbors, we almost never get anywhere near the tomato-sharing stage — we simply dismiss each other, or worse yet, don't like each other, because we don't share ideologies.

But I think we share more than we don't share, we reds and blues.

Can't we agree on a few things we all want? Don't we all want a clean environment, for example? Don't we all agree that abortion in and of itself is a bad thing? Don't we all pretty much agree that we are too dependent on foreign oil? Don't we all think that terrorism should be eliminated? Don't we all think that having an educated, literate population is a good thing?

We just have different ideologies about the means to these ends, and our differences keep us from being able to reason logically.

I suspect that if we could get to the real values that are buried in there somewhere, we would discover that we are neighbors. We'd be so much closer to being able to find solutions to our shared goals if we didn't see them through the lens of politics and ideology, and started to deal with them through conversations and debates. Debates, yes, but debates seasoned with thoughtfulness and love.

Robert Frost wrote a poem called, "A Time to Talk"
When a friend calls to me from the road
And slows his horse to a meaning walk,
I don't stand still and look around
On all the hills I haven't hoed,
And shout from where I am, What is it?
No, not as there is a time to talk.
I thrust my hoe in the mellow ground,
Blade-end up and five feet tall,
And plod: I go up to the stone wall
For a friendly visit.

Talking may leave some things undone for awhile, like Frost's un-hoed rows. But it builds neighborliness, and in a time of crisis, it makes borrowing from each other's ideas and passions possible. In the end, that neighborly visit may end up solving the problems of the world, one egg at a time.

Many people in town are getting caught up in the One Book, One Community — Boyne Reads program. "My Sister's Keeper" by Jodi Picoult (pronounced "PEE koe", like the tea) has been selling out at Boyne Country Books, checking out at the library, and generating discussion all over town — with good reason. It is a fascinating work of fiction that could be taken from today's headlines. Like most of Jodi Picoult's books, sticky moral and ethical issues are raised that require hard thought, and don't always have clear right or wrong answers.

On Monday, August 8, at 7 p.m. in the Boyne District Library community room, a panel of four professionals from the fields of law, medicine, religion, and psychology will discuss these issues, and the book, in an open forum. The panelists are: Dr. Cathy Wonski, Boyne Area Medical Center; Pastor Bob Faulman, First Presbyterian Church; Brian Seelye, an attorney with Tom Schraw & Associates; and Bernadette Beyer, a family and child therapist practicing in Boyne City.

Other upcoming events for the Boyne Reads program include book discussion groups over the rest of the summer, and Jodi Picoult in Boyne for a day this Sept. Schedules of events are available at the library, the bookstore, or online at www.boynelibrary.org.

Don't miss what is sure to be one of the most interesting events of the summer. Pick up a copy of "My Sister's Keeper" today and see what everybody is talking about.

AMERICAN LEGION UPDATE

BY JERRY EVANS

At the regular meeting of Ernest Peterson Post 228, held on July 7, the regular business was suspended and an installation of officers was conducted.

Past State Commander Alton Ford officiated and was assisted by Everett Meggitt of Wolverine Post 122 as installing Sergeant-At-Arms. Following the installation of the Post officers, the gavel was passed to the American Legion Auxiliary 19th District President, Marilee Walters, who installed the officers of Ernest Peterson Unit 228. The gavel was then passed to Post Commander Dean Kleinschrodt who conferred the ceremony of initiation on new members Joe Gerant and Cheryl Young. After the closing ceremony, Ernest Peterson Squadron 228, Sons of the American Legion, convened and nominated, elected and installed the following officers: Squadron Commander, Howard E. Crozier; 1st Vice-Commander, John D. Mathers; 2nd Vice-Commander, Teddy T. Kotowich; Adjutant, Lane T. Young; Finance, Ronald L. Crozier; Chaplain, Ernest G. Evans; Sergeant At-Arms, Gerald E. Evans.

The Commander then adjourned the meeting. The evening events were preceded by the Veteran of the Month ceremonies, conducted for Alfred Jason Stark and Edward Clinton Brannon, and a potluck supper with 52 in attendance. The next regular meeting will be held Aug. 4, at 7:30 p.m. in the Post home and will be preceded by the Veteran of the Month ceremonies at 6:15 p.m., to be followed by a potluck supper at 6:30 p.m. in their honor.

Area veterans are welcome and encouraged to attend.

VETERAN NEWS

BY MAXINE HOUGH

Thanks to the generosity and thoughtfulness of Boyne area people, the American Legion and Kilwin's of Boyne program to mail two boxes of fudge to each of our Legionnaires in the military by the time of the Polish Festival will be met.

The first goal of mailing each person two boxes of fudge by the 4th of July is history. Sgt. Edward M. Hayden, Major Jeffrey Wicker and PFC Carrie Belford were recipients of this week's fudge, thanks to the Young family; Neece and Bob Carson; a "fudgey tourist"; and that old faithful shopper "anonymous."

The veterans of American Legion Post #228 have 19 members who are on active duty in the military and receive complimentary memberships in our Post. This program of Treats for Troops is one way of implementing the Legion's slogan of "Veterans helping Veterans" by sending them this special treat, along with a note from their fellow Legionnaires, thanking them for their service to our country.

Thank you Boyne area shoppers for your help.

Maxine Hough of Boyne City is Troop Support Officer 2 at the American Legion Post #228, and a regular contributor to the Citizen-Journal on behalf of our enlisted men and women and their families.

MANY THANKS

THE BOYNE VALLEY LIONS CLUB would again like to thank all of the Boyne Valley residents and our visitors who contributed to our White Cane Sale on July 8 and 9 and made it such a great success.

As always, 50 percent of all monies collected will remain in the local area for vision needs for qualified local residents. The balance of the monies collected will go to Lions state vision projects such as Welcome Homes for the visually impaired, Michigan Eyebank and Leader Dog School.

Without our community's support we couldn't have done it; thanks again.

Shooting the messenger

TO THE EDITOR:

When a person steps forward to deliver some bad news, there is sometimes a tendency to "shoot the messenger" rather than deal with the issue at hand.

I got a little bit of "shoot the messenger" treatment right here in Boyne City last week as a result of a letter to the editor about my recent experiences at Whiting Park. In that letter, I described the uncontrolled, drunken behavior of some of the guests and the failure of the park's management to control it. I suggested that signs be posted warning families that they may encounter family-unfriendly conditions. I didn't mince any words.

I got a lot of face-to-face responses from people who read my letter, and they all consistently said the same thing: "It's been going on for years." It seemed to be pretty common knowledge — had I been a life-long resident, I would certainly know better than to take kids camping in Whiting Park during the 4th of July week.

There were also a couple of written responses printed in this paper, and they raised some interesting points. One writer suggested that we should have lower expectations during the 4th of July; another pointed out that you can see the same kind of alcoholic misconduct at a baseball game. And, they pointed out, not everyone who visits the park is guilty of obnoxious behavior.

I'll certainly agree with that. From what I've seen, most of the campers are quiet, respectful, and willing to abide by park rules. Like me, they appreciate Whiting Park as a jewel in the county's crown. I understand that it takes only a few miscreants to ruin the experience — but it is the failure of the park's management to successfully deal with that minority that is the heart of this issue.

At the ballpark, the management has had a lot of experience with unruly fans. Ballparks are well-staffed with ushers, vendors, and security personnel, and they won't hesitate to have on-duty police officers arrest troublemakers. In contrast, the on-site manager at Whiting Park is there all day performing his duties, and is then expected to single-handedly monitor the grounds at night. This sounds like a lot to ask from just one person, and perhaps Whiting is simply understaffed, at least during the busiest weeks. It is the job of the Charlevoix County commissioners to ensure that Whiting Park is a safe and family-friendly place to camp. They must be willing to provide adequate staffing, and to train that staff in dealing with those who are drunk and disorderly.

Otherwise, if we're going to allow Whiting Park to become an adult playground during the first week of July, I still think it's a good idea to let visitors from out of the area know what they're in for, before they pitch their tent. You don't want them going home and describing an experience like mine, which was the worst camping experience I've ever had. Our local economy relies heavily on seasonal visitors, and we must carefully guard our reputation as a resort destination.

The most disappointing response to my letter came from an individual who tracked down my place of employment and placed a call to my supervisor, followed by a fax. The caller told my supervisor that I was a liar, which is a serious matter in an office where we are held to the highest standards of honesty. I found myself in a closed-door meeting with my boss explaining why I wrote a letter to the editor.

One of the great strengths of our society is our respect for free speech — and when it comes to public safety, that means a willingness to confront the issue instead of trying to shoot the messenger. Because I love this area, I'll probably offer some more opinions on ways to keep it looking like a slice of heaven. And, if you disagree with me, I'm reminded of the Scripture which says, "Come, let us reason together."

In the meantime, calling my employer — besides being a waste of time — is contrary to the high ideals of our society — a society which, hopefully, attacks the problem instead of the messenger.

So, look for it to be right next to the moon on Saturday, August 27. Even at a distance of 34,649,589 miles from earth, it is said that at 12:30 a.m., it will be at its highest peak and as visible to the naked eye as the full moon.

Garden Club, FOB share goals

Charx bike ride set for Aug. 6

The fifth annual Ride the Charx — pronounced "sharks" — bicycle ride will be held on Saturday, August 6. The Charx is becoming one of Boyne City's important tourist attractions as well as a source of wholesome family fun for Boyne City and Charlevoix County residents. According to Paul Servais, Charx director, the ride attracted approximately 300 riders last year, with significantly more expected this year. The majority of riders travel to Boyne City from distant locations and many stay for the entire weekend.

The Charx is a non-profit ride and the entry fee has been kept consistently low over the years. The day-of registration fee is $20 for the ride and lunch, or $10 for lunch only, making it one of the most economical bike rides in Michigan. Services are supplied by approximately 30 volunteers from Boyne City. The lunch is catered by Lester's, and has become known as, "The ride with the great lunch." Servais said. In addition, the riders receive snacks at rest stops along the routes; SAG vehicle service assistance with on-the-road repairs or a free ride back to Boyne City; route maps; on-the-road painted directional arrows; and showers at the end of the ride.

The ride starts and finishes at the pavilion in Veteran's Park in Boyne City and provides four routes for all ability levels. The 20-mile ride goes along Ferry road to the Ironton Ferry and back. The 43-mile route circles Lake Charlevoix and includes the Little Traverse Wheelway along Lake Michigan. This route crosses Lake Charlevoix on the Ironton Ferry. The 62-mile ride is the hilliest ride of its length in Michigan. Many riders from Southern Michigan come specifically to ride the hills. The 105-mile ride consists of the 62- and 43-mile rides with a lunch break in between. The 20-mile ride departs Boyne City between 10 and 11:30 a.m. on Saturday, and the longer rides depart between 7 and 8:30 a.m. In the interest of safety, all riders must wear helmets.

Last year the Charx had a small financial gain, which allowed the organization to purchase a bike for the new Boyne City police bike patrol. Also, a donation was made to the city to help sponsor the city planner, Dan Reed's attendance at a three-day out-of-state seminar for training to help Boyne City become a "bike friendly community." For more information, call (231) 582-3468 or come to the park on Saturday morning ready to ride.

Venture into Ancient World

Despite the heat and humidity, a crowd of children and adults ventured into the Ancient World on Saturday, July 16, at Raven Hill Discovery Center to try their hand at ancient games and sports. Visitors got to try archery, spear throwing, juggling and gymnastics. They played ball on a Mayan ball court, planished copper, learned origami and sampled foods from various ancient cultures. The highlight of the day was the grand opening of Raven Hill's new "Ancient World" outdoor exhibit including an Easter Island Sculpture, Egyptian Pyramid, Mayan Ball Court and Olmec Mound. The daylong benefit included the afternoon event for families and social hour during the early evening for adults. Funds raised support the exciting and innovating programs that take place throughout the year at this Northern Michigan education center. The "Ancient World" exhibit is now open daily for visitors to Raven Hill. The Center is open 10 a.m. - 4 p.m. on weekdays, noon - 4 p.m. on Saturdays and 2 p.m. - 4 p.m. on Sundays. For more information call the Raven Hill Discovery Center at (231) 536-3369 or check the website at www.ravenhilldiscoverycenter.org.

Harris wins third tournament of champions

Michael Harris, a 27-year-old touring professional from Troy, won his third career Michigan PGA Tournament of Champions Wednesday by shooting 67 in the final round on Boyne Mountain Resort's Monument course and then outlasting a charging Scott Hebert in a two-hole playoff. His three round total in the $100,000 event was 69-69-67 - 205 (-11).

Hebert, 36, an assistant professional at Sunnybrook Country Club near Grand Rapids, began the day two strokes behind Harris, but shot the tournament-low, 65, to finish at 11-under-par and force sudden death.

"Scott is bitten by the runner-up bug, I guess," said Harris of Hebert, who finished second to the University of Michigan alum three weeks ago in the Michigan Open in Traverse City.

"When you shoot 11-under-par in this tournament you'd think he ought to win. Unfortunately for him, I shot 11-under too."

And while Harris has won the Tournament of Champions three times, Hebert has five T of C runner-up finishes, including the last three years in a row, and now two of them to Harris.

"Always a bridesmaid, huh?" quipped Hebert, who missed a seven-foot par putt on the second playoff hole — the par-three 13th hole — to seal his fate. It was his only bogey of the day.

"I read too much into it," Hebert admitted, but nevertheless, was proud of his effort. "I played well. In a playoff, anything can happen. Unfortunately I three-putted. Golf is funny. I goofed up in the playoff but I missed plenty of putts earlier in the week," said Hebert. "My putting is so bad right now I can't tell if I'm stroking them well or not."

Hebert missed a three-foot birdie putt on the 17th hole that would have given him a one-stroke cushion over Harris heading to the final hole of regulation.

"It would have given me a huge momentum boost, but I couldn't do it. I couldn't get one more birdie in. Scott was three strokes ahead of me with five holes to play. I just caught fire with four straight birdies and caught up with him," said Harris, who birdied the 14th through 17th holes. "For 13 holes I didn't make anything and suddenly I caught fire."

Harris collected $17,000 for the victory.

"This is a great event. I love it up here and am glad to have these trophies on my shelf," said Harris, who took eight months off of golf after a disappointing 2004 season on the Nationwide Tour, but has returned to the game with astonishing proficiency. In the past month, he's won the Vermont Open, the Michigan Open, a mini-tour event in New England, and now, his third Tournament of Champions.

"I actually spent the winter looking for other jobs. But now I've given my golf career a second life. I'm in a better financial position now to afford the steep price of trying Monday qualifying on the PGA Tour and the travel expenses required to do that."

He'll attempt to play his way into the PGA Tour's Buick Open, held next week in Grand Blanc, at a qualifier on Monday in Auburn Hills.

Ron Beurmann, head professional at the Country Club of Jackson, also began the day two strokes behind Harris. He shot a final round 70 to finish the Tournament of Champions in third place at 6-under-par.

The low amateur in the event was Jenny Calkins, a 19-year old from Greenville who plays at the University of Louisville. She finished the event at 5-over-par. Mike Raymond, an amateur from Jackson, who finished 7-over-par, was the low senior.

The Detroit Newspapers Tournament of Champions was played for a $100,000 purse. The first two rounds were played on Boyne Mountain's Alpine course.

Wednesday's final round was played on Boyne's Monument Course. The event pitted champions of Michigan golf tournaments against each other. Professionals, amateurs, men, women, seniors and juniors competed side by side for the same title. The field was 119 players including 76 male professionals, 32 male amateurs, five professional women, and five amateur women, and four "super senior" gentleman age 75 or older.

Aten's welcomes Hutchison

Aten's Barn, the premier listening venue in Northern Michigan, will continue its unbroken string of outstanding talent with Grammy Award winner Barbara Bailey Hutchison. For more than ten years The Barn has been a summer icon in Boyne Falls. They've done such a great job of finding talent, that even if you don't recognize the musician's name, you're still certain to enjoy the evening.

Coming up, is one of the nation's most outstanding singer/songwriters, Grammy Award winner, Barbara Bailey Hutchison. In addition to her 2004 and 2005 concerts at the White House, colleges and universities nationwide have voted her "Best Solo Act", "Best Acoustic Act", and "Best Female Performer". She will bring her finely crafted songs and clever wit to Aten's Barn, on Saturday, August 13, at 7:30 p.m. Tickets are $10.

This extraordinary singer's rich, warm voice is familiar to millions of television and radio listeners. The hundreds of commercials she has sung for McDonald's, Hallmark cards, and other national advertisers attest to her vocal prowess.

She describes her music as "neo-folk," but in truth it defies categorization. Some have tried, none is

Barbara Bailey Hutchison

100-percent accurate — she's more like the best parts of each. While her music carries a message of tolerance and human rights, she's quick to show the humor in everyday life.

Barbara Bailey Hutchison and her music are full of grace and humor. Circle August 13 on your calendar and plan on arriving early. You'll kick yourself if you miss this special concert. A critic wrote "Hutchison's performance left me thinking that even at 90 minutes, it ended too soon."

Hutchison's concert will begin at 7:30, at Aten's

Barn, in Boyne Falls. The Barn is located 1/2 mile south of Cherry Hill Road on Old Mackinaw Trail.

Bring your own beverage. There are no sales of food or beverage on the premises. Patrons are encouraged, but certainly not required, to share an appetizer or treat. Whether or not you bring something to share, everyone is welcome to sample at intermission.

Hutchison will be available following the concert to talk with the audience and sign CDs. For more information, call (231) 549-2076.

Family

The head of Frigidaire was one of the guests, and on vacation his life was transformed by a passion for drama on the lake. For weeks before the trip took place, he would plan a production, and during the weeks on the beach, the plays would be rehearsed and eventually performed, with everyone getting involved.

"He always planned a show — we had a theme, a stage and wore costumes," said Sue. She said she was once a bride in a show, and there were renditions of Father Time, and her mother, Bea, was the Queen Bea, and her father the Bull Moose.

"It was just good, clean fun for two or three weeks," she said.

Arlene's family, which had been coming a couple of years before Sue's, had different a different angle on the resort: an angler's angle. They were a fishing family.

"People could go all summer and not get a fish," Bob Draves, owner of Cedar Rest, said. "Her dad would always get fish."

But Arlene said it was her mother, not her father, that got the fish. They would go out together, he would find the hole, she would light a cigarette, drop her line, and pull out a trophy — or if not a trophy, at least dinner.

That was the routine, and it seemed to work. "Dad lived for his two week's of fishing," Arlene said. "No newspapers, no radio."

Interestingly, while both families have been coming to Cedar Rest a similar length of time, and, in fact, staying many of those years in the same cabin, they have always vacationed different weeks, and never had occasion to meet. So as they met with the Draves to celebrate more than a hundred years of vacations, the Calvins and the Hahns had many memories in common.

Both families are still coming with extended family, but while in the old days, Sue and Arlene were young girls coming with an older generation, now they are the older generation, and it is their children and grandchildren who are still coming to join them at Lake Charlevoix.

Bill Hahn, a real estate agent, came to the resort as a newlywed, and as he remembers it, his first reaction to a honeymoon at Cedar Rest was, "On vacation? With your family?" But he laughs as he tells it, because he never stopped coming — the summer by the lake bug got him, too.

Art Calvin also spent his honeymoon on Lake Charlevoix, but his inaugural year was the summer before his wedding, when his father-in-law brought him to Cedar Rest to make sure that he could fish — a final test before marrying into the family. He must have passed, according to Draves; the Calvins will celebrate 44 years of marriage next month.

These days the dramatic productions have been replaced with a magnetic card table and cards, so that the Hahn generations can enjoy a game of euchre in a strong wind, while the Calvin grandchildren — seven boys — build forts in the woods and play on the beach.

"What's nice is our kids love it, and their husbands love it, so that helps," Arlene said. Her grandsons "love it up here," she said. "When they were little, they thought they owned the cabins they stayed in."

"It is the best place in the world to bring children," said Sue. "You never have to worry about them." She and her family did have a lapse of a few years, when they took their vacation somewhere else.

"Then the kids said, 'We want to go back to Lake Charlevoix,'" she said. "It was the favorite place of memories for their whole lives."

The families both remember walking for supplies. Bill and his daughters to the farm market, two and a half miles away — "Perfect way to start the day," Bill said.

For Sue and her family, the walk was to the farmhouse on Peninsula to get fresh eggs. That farm is no longer there.

The resort was established in the early 1940s, and came into the Draves family in 1957. Bob began running Cedar Rest in 1965, and he and his wife, Pam, have managed it together since 1972. The guests remember his grandfather, and "little Bobby."

"We watched him grow up," said Sue.

In turn, Draves has watched their children grow up, and now their grandchildren.

"Time doesn't mean anything here," Arlene said. But maybe it does. Time has cemented a relationship over generations, and Draves said that's what makes it fun.

"It was a simpler life," he said.

It still is, said Sue and Arlene. In the woods along Lake Charlevoix, with children and grandchildren tucked into rustic (but updated) cabins next door, for at least a couple weeks a year, life is still simple.

All Stars

A happy team of 13 and 14 year old East Jordan girls, the Little League Girls Softball All-Stars, traveled to Tecumseh last weekend, to compete against seven other teams in a state tournament. They played one game Saturday, one Sunday. On Monday, the teams played in "pool play." The four remaining teams, including the East Jordan All Stars, played on Tuesday, with the last two winning teams competing in the state championship game on Wednesday. It was unknown at press time whether the team went on to the state championship game. The girls were joined by about fifty of their family members and friends for a weekend of tough competition and good fun, as they camped and had lots of activities planned for in between their games. Pictured are, front, from left, Hailey Crick, Mary Gocha, Ashley Skrocki, Alex Snowden, Shaina Peters, and Andi Chew; back row from left, manager Anita Shepard, coach Rachael Bennett, Randi McFall, Melyssa Skrocki, Megan Keyser, Emily Bajko, and coach Paul Keyser.

riders alone." Morris said. "That was a big thing. It put us way over this year."

There were 89 riders pre-registered for the ride, and 90 more registered the day of the ride, Morris said.

"It was amazing to me," she said. There were items for sale: hats, socks, bracelets and jewelry, that raised additional funds. And there was a Gary Fisher Tarpon bicycle, donated by Bo Mayfield of North Country Cycle Sports, that was raffled off.

All the food was donated, from lunch by BC Pizza, to energy bars by Bikefix Cycling Center. Many local businesses made food, product and prize donations.

"The turnout was amazing from around the state — and out of state," Morris said. "There were some inexperienced riders — but they all finished the 42 miles."

The ride gave bicyclists a choice of two routes, each 42 miles. Next year, Morris hopes to lengthen one route to a 60-mile ride, for the more experienced riders.

"Lots of families ride — some families of women who have died of breast cancer. Some people have ridden who are battling breast cancer," Morris said.

More than anything else, Morris wants the Pink Ribbon Ride to accomplish one thing: to remind people that eventually, their lives will be touched by this disease.

"A friend, a co-worker, a family member," she said. "With early diagnosis, it is beatable. But if you don't get mammograms, if you don't do self-checks, you can't catch it early, and it will be harder to beat."

Bike4BreastCancer, Inc., is a national organization that provides a lot of advertising and coverage for the Pink Ribbon Ride, and 15-percent of the proceeds go to that organization. The other 85-percent is distributed locally. The Pink Ribbon Ride divides the money evenly between CAHF and the Northern Michigan Hospital Foundation. This year, each foundation received $7,500. The money is used for breast cancer programs, testing and support, such as CAHF's Circle of Strength.

Above, the threshing demonstration separated the wheat from the chaff in a golden storm of straw. Right, like cars and motorcycles, boats and snowmobiles, tractor models have their own die-hard followings. This gleaming row of Allis Chalmers tractors attest to its popularity.

A craftswoman makes baskets using veneer made on-site at the Flywheelers show. The thinly shaved wood has long been used for berry and bushel baskets.

Breaking from summer chores for a weekend of shop-talk, these tractor enthusiasts visit beside their farm equipment. The Flywheelers show is getting bigger every year, with expanding camping and parking facilities, and more people discovering the old-fashioned fun.
