Students helped by new reading methods

BY JANE BOOZE
 Citizen-Journal Editor

Wendy Crick has been a teacher since 1988, and she is currently teaching 6th-grade language arts and reading at the East Jordan Middle School. She is a high-energy, passionate teacher and student advocate, who has experienced the heartbreak of a learning disability both as a teacher and as a parent. She believes she's found a system that will change lives.

Crick's educational struggle with literacy instruction came even before her own daughter began to have difficulty learning to read. "I didn't have enough tools to teach reading," she said, saying that sometimes desperate parents would come to her begging for help for their child. "I tried different things, all the tools that teachers have — but it didn't help.

"I was always searching. I felt like as a teacher, I was failing," she said. "I studied, I asked questions — it wasn't there. Nothing I found was efficient and effective. I needed one, two, three grade levels in one year for some of the students. By 7th grade they're walking the fence, by high school (if students can't read) we've lost them. And most of them think they're broken."

Crick believed that the methodologies were what needed fixing in these cases, not the students.

"I knew there was something. There had to be. Too many students were stuck at fourth-grade reading levels. Too many. It wasn't going to get them where they needed to go," she said.

When Crick's oldest child, Hailey, was in second-grade and wasn't learning to read, it

Summertime ride

Bikers ride through an idyllic landscape during last weekend's perfect weather. The weekend was packed full of things to do, from East Jordan's Portside Art Fair, to the Boyne Falls Polish Festival, the annual Charx ride, reunions, concerts, boating, picnics, and many other events and activities that our area provides to its residents and guests in the beautiful summertime.

Kori Mathers is warmed by her mother, Jen, after completing her first lake swim last week. The 4-H swim class closes out its summer schedule with a lake swim every year. Students must have completed a rigorous pre-lake swim before they qualify for the swim across Lake Charlevoix.

Swim class takes on lake

The annual 4-H swim school lake swim was well attended with as many as 38 intrepid swimmers setting out across Lake Charlevoix from Young State Park last Friday.

The morning was clear, and cooler than previous mornings, but the sun was starting to warm the beach and the swimmers and bystanders well before the 9 a.m. start time.

Kori Mathers, 11, has been a swim school student for the last three years, and was making her first lake swim. She admitted she was both nervous and excited about the event, but wasn't worried about feeling like dropping out halfway through.

"I'm not going to go back," Mathers said. To swim the lake, students have to have achieved a Level 5 in swim skills. This means, according to swim instructor Kayla Eaton, that they would have been swimming laps and have to have swum five miles.

According to Tyler Barys, the swim school director, and an instructor, the swimmers from the school range in age from 10 to 15, but some of the participants are adults. Parents, swimming with their children; people just swimming along for fun; and triathletes who are doing it for the training. A couple of instructors will be swimming as well, Barys said, and the swimmers will be escorted by boats.

Clerk earns honor

Lori Campbell, the East Jordan city clerk, earned the designation of Certified Municipal Clerk recently, as a result of her continuing education, conference attendance, work experience and professional and social contributions to her community.

Lori Campbell

The recipients must be recertified every four years, or may opt to continue on with further training and achieve a Master Municipal Clerk designation.

The classes for certification are held in East Lansing at Michigan State University, and one week annually for three years.

"It took me a lot longer to meet all the requirements," Campbell said. "We don't have the conferences and access to training up north. Not that it's not worth it, but it does take more time."

In addition to the inconvenience of scheduling and time off work to attend conferences and participate in continuing education classes, Campbell noted that small towns and cities have budgetary restraints, and have to budget training in incrementally, so that a clerk from a small municipality will achieve less per year than one from a larger city.

Campbell plans to at least keep recertified, but is considering taking the next step and getting the training for the master designation.

"I would like to continue to better myself, and would like to move on to Master Clerk," she said.

According to Toni Brandt, accreditation specialist with the International Institute of Municipal Clerks, the CMC is "a declaration that you are proficient in your important position and that you have demonstrated mastery of administrative skills critical to good government."

In addition, Susan Morrow, president of IIMC said, "IIMC grants the CMC designation only to those municipal clerks who complete demanding education requirements; and who have a record of significant contributions to their local government, their community and state."

Science teacher county ambassador in bridge race

Craig DeHoog is a sixth grade science teacher at the East Jordan Middle School, about to enter his third year in that school system. He may be tired when he enters the classroom on Tuesday, Sept. 6, because on Labor Day he will be running across the bridge with Governor Jennifer Granholm.

DeHoog qualified to apply for the annual run after he completed the Memorial Day bridge run, and had also run six other Michigan races over the summer, including the Freedom Festival's triathlon and a biathlon, and five road races.

The Labor Day runners would be chosen by lottery from the eligible pool of athletes, but there was also an invitation to apply as a county ambassador, which DeHoog did.

It was as an ambassador of Charlevoix County that DeHoog was selected to race with the governor, based on his social and employment contributions to his home county.

"I have been here two years," said DeHoog, 27, who admitted that he came to East Jordan for the job, and was uncertain whether he would want to remain. "When I was writing why I should be an ambassador, I realized that I was telling the truth about this area — I love it here."

His love for his city and county is evident in the mutual affection between DeHoog and his students. A student stopped by on a recent summer afternoon with a newspaper, and DeHoog discussed bass-fishing with him, including an invitation to take the youngster on a fishing expedition.

It is also evident in the produce he shares with his neighbors from his first attempt at gardening — a successful attempt at that. He is swamped in fast-ripening cucumbers, and warns that he will soon have tomatoes to give away.

It is evident, too, in the grants he has won the middle school science program; the coaching he has done with girls and boys middle school basketball, and for the Lighthouse Missionary Church's co-ed softball team. This fall, he will not be coaching girls basketball, because he has taken on the high school varsity golf team coaching position.

In addition to loving his job, DeHoog said he likes to fish a lot. He is also continuing his education: last month he completed his second summer of Master's classes. He will finish his Master's next year, in curriculum and teaching.

After DeHoog was selected to run with the governor as an ambassador, he had to deal with the hard part — security.

"I had to send a picture and fill out (a form) like an application for employment," he said. "They asked, basically, if I had any enemies who would be out to get me on the bridge. They asked my political affiliation."

Finally, he called to make sure he'd gotten the right application. He wasn't, he explained, looking for a job. But it was the right application, and he was told it was for security reasons.

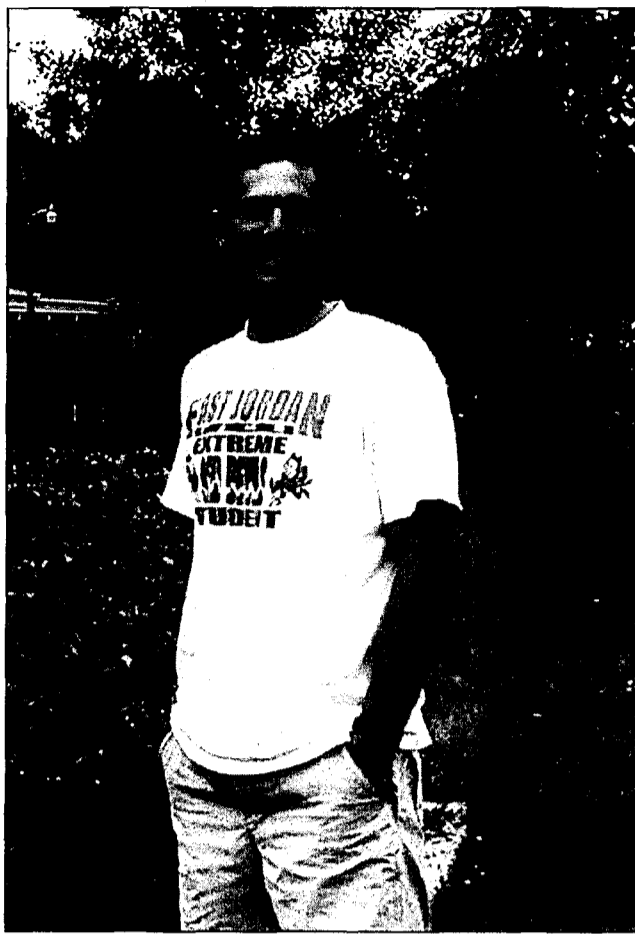

Sunday evening before the race, runners will have a pasta dinner in Mackinaw City, and DeHoog's parents and brother will join him for that.

The race is at 6:30 in the morning on Labor Day, and the participants will be taken to St. Ignace on a special ferry.

Runners who complete the race before Granholm are expected to wait at the end of the run and cheer for the governor, and then there will be photo opportunities.

DeHoog has been told that the race will not be timed, so he intends to see the beauties he missed competing in the Memorial Day bridge race.

"I am running for fun. I plan to enjoy it, to run slow, and enjoy the sun, the water and the sky," he said.

Craig DeHoog, teacher, coach and county ambassador, has been selected to represent Charlevoix County in the annual Labor Day run across the Mackinaw Bridge with Governor Granholm. DeHoog plans to just enjoy the experience and the scenery.

Thelma McKinnon takes the cake

Andrea Evans Myaard, formerly of East Jordan, turned 30 recently, and celebrated with her thirtieth Thelma McKinnon birthday cake: white with buttercream frosting and thirty pink roses, because everyone in her family loves the roses.

Thelma McKinnon of East Jordan, 82, made Myaard's first birthday cake and Myaard hasn't had a birthday without one since, even though it now means a trip up north from her home near Grand Rapids. She got a doll cake when she was a little girl; a piano shaped cake when she was taking piano lessons and, of course, a graduation cake.

"She said to me, 'I hope you're still making cakes when I get married,'" Thelma said. "Well, I kept getting older. Finally I said, 'Andrea, if you want me to make your wedding cake, you better be looking!' She looked, and I made her wedding cake."

It all started about 45 years ago, when Thelma's brother was planning a wedding on a shoestring, and she wondered what she could do to help him out. With a little encouragement, she decided to make the wedding cake — and she said she hadn't even made birthday cakes before that."

"I had a 59¢ cake decorator that had been pushed to the back of the cupboard for a few years," she said. Her close friend Annabelle Galmore loaned her the tier cake pans and showed her how to make sugar bells.

"I decorated it with little stars, silver (candies for decorating cakes and cookies) and sugar bells. It turned out just fine," McKinnon said.

A couple weeks later, someone called and asked her to bake her folk's 50th wedding anniversary cake. McKinnon accepted the challenge, coloring some sugar gold and creating her second cake with golden sugar bells.

Another cake was requested, and another. "And here I'd never even made a birthday cake!" McKinnon laughed. "I've made way past 1,000 wedding cakes, and never advertised."

In all her years of baking, she said she has never had a genuine disaster. One or two close calls, but never an outright disaster. She has made some extravagant cakes, with fountains and tiers and stairs, and some large cakes — one took 20 boxes of cake mix. She uses Duncan Hines cake mixes for her cakes, but confesses that she does "doctor up some of them."

"I've been in every hall, every country club, church or hotel that has weddings," McKinnon said. "I have met a lot of nice girls. I've enjoyed that.

"Sometimes I've overdone myself, taking two or three cakes on the same day, but it's been a fun time. I've enjoyed myself."

After more than a thousand cakes, McKinnon never has had a formal business.

"If the state gets after me for it, I'll tell them I only bake for my friends and their friends," she said. "I am almost 83 and it would be okay if they did close me down — but not right now. I've got a few more I've got to bake."

Including another brother's wedding cake, and one for Andrea Myaard's thirty-first birthday next year.

"I pack a lot of love into them, and send them on their way," she said.

Dew-bious beauty

You know how people say, oh, this particular alignment of the planets won't happen again for another fifty years, so make sure you get out your super hi-powered telescope at 3:15 a.m. Friday to see it? And you do a quick count on your fingers and realize you might not be around in another fifty years, and so you think maybe you would like to get up in the night and see what you'll be missing those many decades hence?

I always miss those alignments.

But there are mornings just that spectacular, and being a morning person, I sometimes see those. This morning was one.

LAST CALL

Jane Booze

As I drove to work, I noticed that a heavy dewfall had risen all the way to the tops of the evergreens, and they glowed white in the morning sun, as if covered with frost. The fields lay in their golden-brown dryness, thirsty for that blanket of moisture.

And scattered across them, stretched between parched blade after blade, were myriad gossamer handkerchiefs: spiderwebs revealed in dew, as if a thousand lacy hankies had blown off a clothesline, and caught there in the grass.

When there is a frost, it reveals things on your car windows: fingerprints, drawings, words (if you have children and teenagers), paw prints, smear marks from someone (me) trying to clear away the fog before the defroster can do its work, impatient to be away.

Dew works the same way on the spiderwebs. They emerge from hiding, catch the sun, and sparkle. Besides the suspended handkerchief webs, I saw a perfect spiraling web on the side of the road, a classic web, a web of perfect proportions and beauty. Dewdrops clung to it like crystalline jewels, and every tensile line of it stood in relief against the grass.

It was a star, a firework, a jewel, cut glass, or lace. For some moments, until the dew dried or the sun moved, a spider stood in grave danger of discovery or starvation, so brilliantly exposed was that web.

Topping another hill, I sank into a different landscape, not of field, but of low-lying wetland, watery black earth and cattails. Here the ground was in shadow, and no dew was visible. A thick mist rose from the saturated ground and wound around and over the cattails and disappeared into the encroaching dark cedars that circled the marsh.

Morning dew is gone now, but afternoon will descend on the lake and inland hills and forests and some new beauty will be awakened that is unique to today, as tomorrow's will be, and yesterday's was.

A week or two ago my sister and nieces and I went to see a movie in Charlevoix. It was a soft, warm summer night. After the movie we drove to the lighthouse, just to see the sunset, which had set the sky on fire in ribbons of wild reds. It had not seemed storm-tossed in town, but grey-green creamed waves crashed up on the shore taller than some of the humans that dove into them. The breakwall shattered whitecaps into walls of broken glass against that spectacular sky, and a freighter was silhouetted in black on the horizon (a News Review photographer was taking it all in with his camera, while I gnashed my teeth, cameraless).

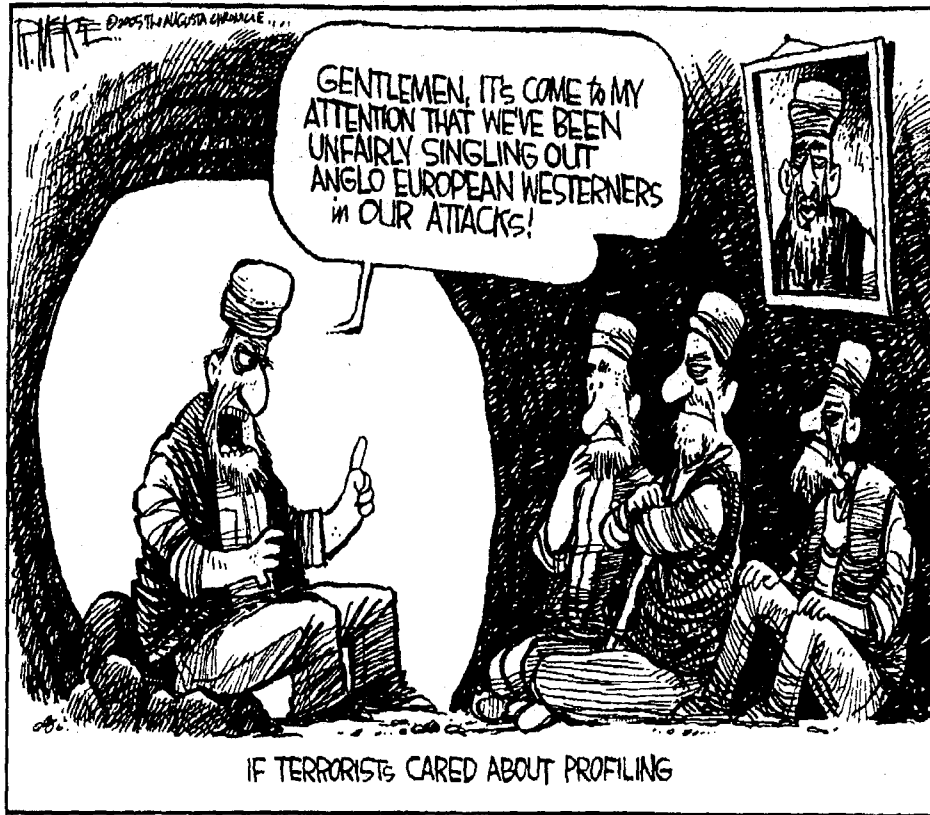

I remember once riding into the Jordan Valley on a clear dark winter night. The snow had fallen recklessly while the wind slept, leaving a limb-threatening tonnage weighting down the branches of the trees. Snow lay so thick a person would sink up to his waist in it, soft, crustless, and sparkling in snowmobile headlights.

This beauty was breathtaking. From the bare bones of birch and beech, wearing the thick snow like a stole, to the encumbered and dipping branches of the cedars and firs, the loveliness burned through the numbing cold.

Never mind if you missed these transient beauties, because there is always another season, another common work of nature like dew or frost, the trick of cloud or atmosphere on light, the first and last of leaves, the reflection in a pool or in a vast lake.

This has been a wonderful summer, a real summer, a summer our children will tell their children is what summer used to be. But when the first bite touches the nose in fall, with its scent of leaves and apples, I will find myself inexplicably ready for it, and attentive to its particular magical moments. When the first snow falls in fat, lazy flakes, for a moment it will be as if I am seven, and the childish excitement at snow will recur, however briefly. It's snowing!

Take Florida, Tahiti, Hawaii, the Bahamas. I will take Michigan, with warmth in summer, its exciting autumn and fickle spring, its frozen winter, and all the countless, indescribable, heartbreaking beauties they bear.

VETERAN NEWS

Over the top!

BY MAXINE HOUGH

The Veterans of American Legion Post #228 and Kilwin's of Boyne's program to send boxes of fudge to our troops by the Fourth of July and again by the Polish Festival has been a huge success! All twenty Legionnaires who are deployed overseas, were deployed overseas or are on duty at a military base in the States have received two mailings of boxes of fudge from the Boyne area. At Kilwin's, customers who buy two boxes of fudge get a box free. With signs posted in the store and about town, residents and visitors to the Boyne area have responded enthusiastically to this easy way to support our troops. This past week, "A Nony Mouse" was very active and designated eight boxes for our troops. Additionally, the Schinella family, the Kampt family from Bellaire, Texas, Dan and Heather Dornbos, Yanis, Ecker, Rinck, S. Serne & J. Robbins, Celletti and Koets (who gave two) designated their free boxes of fudge be sent to our troops. Legionnaires SSgt. "Rusty" Gilmore, Jr., Lt. A.J. Brong, Jr., and (former USMC Sgt.) Mike Belford have boxes of fudge on the way to them with a note thanking them for their service to our country. And thanks from the Veterans of American Legion Post #228 in Boyne City and the staff at Kilwin's of Boyne for remembering our troops with fudge!

Maxine Hough of Boyne City is Troop Support Officer 2 at the American Legion Post #228, and a regular contributor to the Citizen-Journal on behalf of our enlisted men and women and their families.

TO THE EDITOR:

It saddens me to announce that I am retiring from Boyne City Public Schools as of September 1st. I have made a decision to move on to another level of my professional life.

The past eleven years that I have spent managing the health needs of Boyne City's school children have been the most gratifying of my professional career as a Registered Nurse.

The Boyne City school children from Kindergarten through twelfth grade are the very best in the world. Each student is a bright, enthusiastic package of energy, winding their way through their school life. I will grieve each day I am not at the school to care for the students. Each student I have known and cared for will be in my heart forever.

The Boyne City Public School educational opportunity is exemplary. For the past eleven years I have observed the teaching, paraprofessional, administrative and auxiliary staff bring the wonderment of learning to their students. The teachers go way beyond the call of duty to stimulate the love of learning in each student on a daily basis. I stand in awe of the teachers of Boyne City Public Schools.

The Boyne City community, parents, families and businesses are always there to support the school and its efforts to educate children and give them new experiences. Thank you, Boyne City, for the opportunities you give to the students of Boyne City Public Schools.

The people of Boyne City, the School Board of Boyne City Public Schools and the educational community itself, have supported having a Registered Nurse in the school, taking care of the health needs of our children for the past sixty-plus years. This community has always valued having a School Nurse, and I beg you to continue to do so.

Talk to your school board members about ensuring the legacy of having school nurses continue to serve the health needs of you and your children in the Boyne City Public Schools.

With gratitude,
Jean Odgers, RN, BSN

NEIGHBORS

BY NANCY NORTHUP

Guess who's turning 70! Could it be Renny Hawkes, BCHS graduate of '53? You can bet he is — Happy Birthday, Renny!

Elma and Bob Proctor of Nashville, Tenn. arrived in Boyne City July 18, to spend two weeks with her sister and brother-in-law, Vera and Leonard Brooks. While she was here, Cheryl Racignol of Petoskey planned a potluck for a cousin's get-together in Boyne Falls. There were 25 who attended and all had great fun!

Dick and Betty Jo Sarchet hosted the first annual party for the newly formed Olde Marina Cove Association on the front lawn of their Lake Charlevoix home. Those attending were Warren and Edith Todter, Larry and Marion Martin, Walt and Susan Coyle, Judy and George Shiotellis, Barb and George Ellwanger, Dan and Connie Wollschlager, Lynn and Dave Seeber, Net Gingras and Bruce Barget and their son Justin, and Barb Miller and her sister Pat. All enjoyed a potluck dinner, Bocce ball and reminiscent stories about the neighborhood.

Belated "Happy Wedding Anniversary" greetings go out to Lloyd and Joyce Kelsey of Boyne City! In celebrating the special day that marked their 58th year together on August 2, they were treated to dinner at the Wolverine Dilworth Inn by their grandson, Daniel Mancuso, with their daughter and son-in-law, Janel and Robert Pawlus joining them for this special occasion. Afterwards, all were given a tour of Avalanche Bay Indoor Water Park, the Boyne Mountain Grand Lodge and Everett's Dining Room. The evening ended with tasty Key lime pie!

Residents of Litzenger Place are in sincere sympathy for neighbor, Phyllis Sheehy, who has returned from Florida, after last week's call of the unexpected death of her youngest son, Patrick Sheehy. Patrick, age 47, was cremated and his mother and brother's and many friends were there for his funeral service. Plans are being made for a memorial service to be held for family and friends here, at a later date, as his ashes are to be placed by his Uncle Bruce Cooper's grave in Clarion.

William Northup of Tampa arrived this week to visit his mother, Edna May, and other Michigan families. He's also here to attend the BCHS class of 1960's 45th reunion next weekend.

A surprise drop in visit by Litzenger Pace resident, Dorothy Bergeon and son, Gene Farley, was enjoyed on Sunday. Dorothy, who has had recent hip replacement surgery, was doing great and should be returning home to stay soon, after a little more therapy at Bortz Health Care in Petoskey.

Former Boyne City resident Bob Tucker and friend Jimi of Florida called on Flo Davis this week. Nice it is, his remembering what good friends his mother, the late Chris Tucker, and Flo were.

The annual Hardy-Plumb family reunion was a big success on Sunday afternoon. A beautiful day it was for a cookout and potluck for the 75 attending from Washington, Wisconsin, Grand Rapids, Detroit, and the surrounding area to enjoy being together again. The kids had a ball, too, up and down an inflatable slide. Great entertainers, Pat and Nord Schroeder, hosted the wonderful afternoon.

Join them for Bingo at the Boyne Area Senior Center on Thursday, August 11. For lunch at noon, they will be serving veal and mushrooms. Bingo will follow lunch. Friday, August 12, egg casserole, sausage links and corn bread will be served. Monday, August 15, they will be serving cheeseburger and sweet potato. Monday is also Bingo day. Tuesday, August 16, garlic chicken is on the menu. Dessert will be pumpkin pie. Wednesday, August 17, lunch menu will include a beef pastie. You will find a group of friends to join each day for a card game. Drive by their new site on Division Street to follow the on-going construction.

Great it is, having Ken and Lena May of Kentucky here vacationing and visiting our family (we've missed them!) and other friends. They are also celebrating their 45th wedding anniversary of August 6. Healthy and happy, they are proud parents of three children, grandparents five grandchildren, and one great grandchild. Congratulations, Ken and Lena!

Art and Lee Young of Mesa, Arizona (former owner's of Boyne's Hotel Dilworth), have been here for a couple of weeks, visiting family and friends. On Sunday afternoon, they each were honored for their 80th birthdays and 60th wedding anniversary, with lots of family and friends sharing in a really fun time of a barbecue at the lovely home of their daughter and son in law, Yvonne and Dennis Looze. Especially here for this special occasion was their daughter, Collette Kolasinski of Phoenix, and Lee's sisters: Pat Robertson, also of Arizona; and Irene Beaudrie of Manistee. The three daughters, Yvonne and husband Dennis Looze; Collette Kolasinski; and Debbie and husband Bud Ferris hosted the memorable afternoon.

The well-known Royalaires Quartet of multi-downstate areas, professionally presented many soul-touching moments of beautiful inspirational worship for the Sunday morning service at the United Methodist Church in Boyne City.

Marie Schmittiel has returned from a pleasurable trip and visits with her son Dan and Julie Schmittiel in Chicago, and then to Buffalo, Michigan, going on to Grand Rapids and then back to Buffalo before coming home.

Since it was founded by a group of local citizens in 1992, the Charlevoix County Community Foundation's net assets have grown to more than $15 million. A charitable organization dedicated to improving and enriching life in the area, the foundation accepts gifts from individuals, families, businesses, and organizations and manages them as permanent endowments. Every year, a portion of the endowment's investment income is used to support programs in education, the environment, the arts, human services, health and wellness, youth activities, community development, and various civic projects. The principal of the endowment continues to grow, providing charitable capital to perpetually benefit Charlevoix County residents and nonprofit organizations.

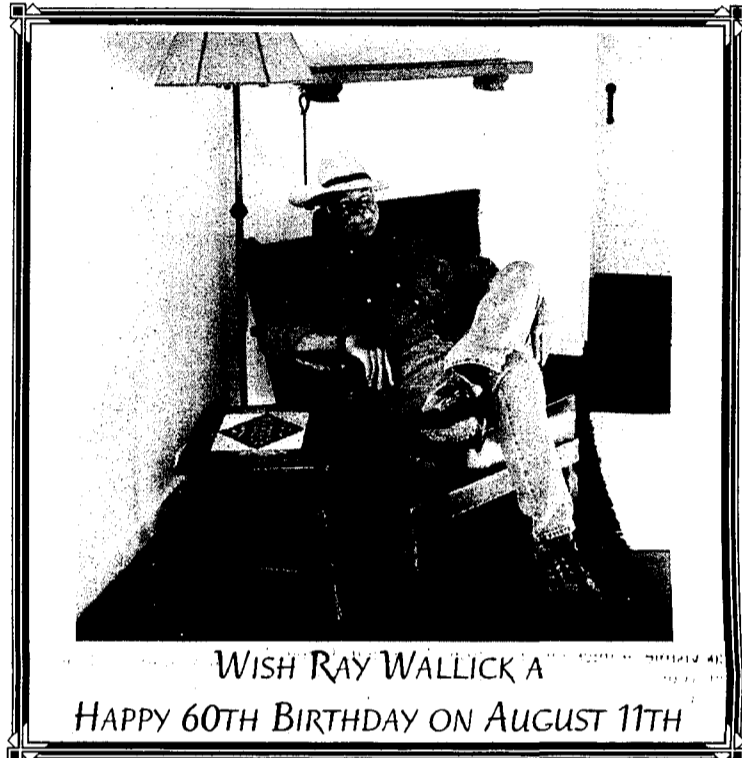

The community foundation will review grant requests again this fall. The deadline for applications is Oct. 1. For more information about grant opportunities, or the community foundation, call (231) 536-2440.

Recital supports scholarship opportunity

On Aug. 11 the community will have an opportunity to help young violist Andy Tuck achieve his dream of studying at Interlochen Arts Academy by attending a scholarship recital at Castle Farms.

Tuck presently studies viola with David Holland, Interlochen Arts Academy professor, and piano with Dr. Maria Kranz, retired professor of music from American Conservatory of Music, Chicago. The concert will include works by Debussy, Telemann, and a Concerto attributed to J. C. Bach, but actually written by a 19th century, French violist.

Tuck will perform the "Bach" Concerto for Viola with Don Neidert, the collaborative pianist. Tuck will play the famous piano work, "Claire de lune" by Debussy, and be accompanied by members of the Great Lakes Chamber Orchestra in a performance of Telemann's Concerto for Viola. Wine and hor d'oeuvres hosted by "Esperance" will begin at 7 p.m. The concert will be presented at 8 p.m. at Castle Farms, M-66 N., Charlevoix. Refreshments, also by "Esperance," will follow the concert.

Tickets available at Castle Farms and at the door that evening: $25. The scholarship fund is being administered by the Charlevoix Area Hospital Foundation and checks and donations should be written to the CAHF for the Andy Tuck Scholarship.

On January 2, 1948, Thelma Joyce Davis married Marshall D. Behling in Boyne City. In 1954 she left the hospital and became the Boyne City School nurse. In 1976 Behling obtained a degree in Health and Community Development from Central Michigan College in Mount Pleasant. Behling retired in 1986 as school nurse but continued her service to the community until she answered the final call on August 22, 2002. She is being honored by her son Mark, family, and friend Ruth Witek.

To honor a veteran, call the program chairman at (231) 588-6067, or on Tuesdays call (231) 582-7811 between 4-6 p.m. The ceremony may be witnessed on the first Thursday of each month in front of The American Legion Post on the corner of Lake and Main in Boyne City at 6:15 p.m.

RECYCLE

The departing maintenance crew at Boyne Falls Public Schools put up a farewell sign to let the staff and students know that they will be missed.

Maintenance crew says good-bye

Local residents have all heard about the area schools being forced to make difficult budget decisions in the last couple of years, with no clear end to the fiscal problems in sight. Boyne Falls Public School recently chose to hire a private maintenance company, due to budget restrictions.

The former staff of three included Rodney Loper, who had been with Boyne Falls school for five years; Tim Roback, who was entering his eighth year; and Larry Beyer, who had been in maintenance at the school for 16 years.

Tim Roback said that losing the job is particularly tough because of the kids, saying that he was invited to graduation parties.

"I'm going to miss the kids," he said. "That's why I was there every day. I liked helping the kids."

Roback said he will take some good memories with him, going to games; the water fight at the summer "Camp Road" program; the going-away party the teachers threw for the maintenance staff at the end of July.

"That was fun," he said. He is looking for another maintenance position. Preferably at a school or hospital, he said. And he had a few words for the kids in Boyne Falls:

"Have a good year," Roback said. "We'll miss you, but we'll see you around."

Crooked Tree provides new downtown art

A new piece of public art in the downtown has been provided and installed by the Crooked Tree Arts Center. On July 23, a new sculpture was installed in the grassy area between the Dairy Queen and Country Now 'N Them/Up the Lazy River. The sculpture is part of an art in public places project the center is sponsoring. The art will be displayed in seven sites in northern Michigan including Pellston, Harbor Springs, Petoskey, Charlevoix, Boyne City, and East Jordan and will celebrate the work of seven Michigan sculptors.

Every six months, for the next three and a half years, Crooked Tree Arts Center will move the pieces through a rotation so that every community will enjoy all seven pieces of art.

Crooked Tree Arts Center has developed a marketing plan for the purpose of selling each piece. The project time frame gives Crooked Tree Arts Center sufficient time to sell each of the works of art on behalf of the individual artists. The time will also give each municipality enough time to raise funds necessary to purchase the sculpture as well.

The Boyne City 4-H swim class and instructors waited on the warm sand of the beach at Young State Park in Boyne City before they swam across to finish at Whiting Park on the other side of Lake Charlevoix.

Barsy started his swimming career as a six-year-old when he was enrolled in this same Boyne City 4-H program. He has been an instructor for four years, and the program director for the last two. He is attending college at Ferris and is going into plastics engineering. His future plans include a great job in California — and swimming instruction or lifeguarding.

The lake swim is a yearly event for the swim school, which takes place close to the end of instruction days. Students have had to do a pre-lake swim, in which they rounded the buoys at Whiting Park, approximating the length of the lake swim, a distance of a mile and a third.

The swim ended at the Whiting Park beach, where Barsy welcomed the fastest swimmers in after approximately 40 minutes. All of the participants were greeted with doughnuts, punch and water at the end of the swim, and they also got a lake swim t-shirt.

"We have a little beach party," Barsy said.

Swim class students have looks of concentration and determination as they contemplate the width of the lake before the swim.

Local golfer plays in international tourney

Logan Smith, 6, recently placed first in the state in the U.S. Kids Golf Tournament, allowing him to move on to international competition for the second year in a row.

The world championship was a three-day tournament in Virginia, where the golfers played three nine-hole rounds with the winner having the best total score of the three games. Logan played in the four to six-year-old age bracket, representing the State of Michigan.

Both Angela and Arnold Smith, Logan's parents agreed that the world championship is actually a lower pressure event, because the chances of winning the tournament are reduced. Logan played with 75 other children in his age bracket alone.

He shot a 46 on the first day; a 43 the second and a 44 on the final day of the tournament, for a total of 133, which put him in 43rd place.

"He shot his average, and ended up right in the middle, just like we expected," said Angela.

But Logan had to overcome some odds to meet that expectation. The Virginia heat was intense, and soon after their arrival, Logan became feverish, suffering from a high temperature and nausea, and remained sick throughout the tournament, though determined to compete.

"There is some amazing talent out there," said Angela. "One little boy shot a 28 for nine holes."

PUBLIC NOTICE

Date: August 10, 2005
Permit No. M10021474
Boyne City WWTP

The Michigan Department of Environmental Quality proposes to reissue a discharge permit to the City of Boyne City, 319 North Lake Street, Boyne City 49712 for the Boyne City WWTP located at 312 Front Street, Boyne City, Michigan. The applicant collects, conveys, and treats municipal wastewater for Boyne City, Boyne Valley Township, and Winston/Evangeline Townships. The applicant proposes to discharge treated municipal wastewater to Lake Charlevoix in the SW 1/4, NE 1/4, Section 36 Town 33 N, Range 6W, Charlevoix County.

The draft permit includes the following modifications to the previously issued permit: The final effluent limitation for Total Mercury, 10 ng/l, is the Level Currently Achievable based on a multiple discharger variance from the water quality-based effluent limit of 1.3 ng/l, pursuant to Rule 323.1103(9) of the Michigan Water Quality Standards. Monitoring for Mercury and whole effluent toxicity is required for two years until limits become effective. This allows time for program improvements. Plant upgrades and ultraviolet disinfection capabilities are planned for the term of this permit.

Comments or objections to the draft permit received by September 12, 2005, will be considered in the final decision to issue the permit. Persons desiring information regarding the draft permit, procedures for commenting, or requesting a hearing should contact: Diane Carlson, P.E., Permits Section, Water Bureau, Department of Environmental Quality, P.O. Efforts continue to contain EAB

Field staff with the Michigan Cooperative Emerald Ash Borer (EAB) Response Project recently implemented the 2005 EAB detection tree program, which is an essential part of Michigan's continued statewide efforts to contain the beetle.

As part of this program, 12,000 ash trees were strategically selected at varying densities in every county in the state (except in the 20 quarantined counties of southeast Michigan) to serve as EAB detection trees. The selected ash trees were "girdled," a process removing a ring of bark from the tree trunk, to stress the trees. Research has shown EAB adults are more likely to lay eggs on stressed trees, but will not lure the pest from long distances nor create new infestations.

The detection trees are four to eight inches in diameter and located in road rights-of-way, in state parks and state and federal recreational areas. Trees chosen for girdling on private property were selected with permission from the property owner.

This EAB early detection program was first implemented in 2004 based upon the recommendations of the National EAB Science Advisory Panel, comprised of some of the nation's leading entomologists. These ash detection trees have proven to be a useful tool for early detection of EAB. Girdled trees such as these have been used to help contain the pest in an already infested area by attracting the beetles to the stressed trees.

"In 2004, this program helped us detect and implement containment strategies in six isolated areas of EAB infestations," said Patricia Lockwood, EAB policy director for Governor Jennifer M. Granholm. "Early detection is critical to the successful containment of the beetle in Michigan and to the overall response strategy. Detection trees provide a clearer picture of where the pest is in the state and allows us to effectively implement the best response and containment efforts."

It is essential that the trees be left alone as any disturbance of the tree may lower the effectiveness of detecting the borer. Thus, Detection trees are tagged with "Do not disturb" signs.

The detection tree recovery process is slated to begin in mid-September. During that process, the trees will be cut down and the bark peeled to look for larva. The recovery phase of this project should be completed in mid-November.

The Emerald Ash Borer is an exotic, aggressive beetle native to Asia and was discovered in southeast Michigan in 2002. To date, the pest is responsible for the death or damage of approximately 15 million ash trees in 20 quarantined counties and 19 quarantined outliers.

For more information about the detection tree program or EAB, visit one of these Web sites: www.michigan.gov/eab or www.emeraldashborer.info. You may also contact your regional MDA office, your local Michigan State University Extension or conservation district office.

"Kids made fun of her for reading baby books, and she frustrated me when she just guessed at words," Crick said. "Thousands of parents have this experience. Hailey would see a 'th' and guess 'there,' because it was a 'wall word,' even though it might really be 'Thanksgiving.' She just saw the 'th' and ran through the 'th' words she knew."

Crick worked with her all the time, but Hailey continued to fall behind. Crick wanted more information, and had her daughter tested and evaluated, and consequently Hailey was found to be learning disabled. Crick couldn't help but question the diagnosis, not just for her own daughter, but for other students. These children were of normal intelligence, they weren't impaired — why couldn't they read? The conclusion Crick drew was that it wasn't the children, it was the methods used to teach them.

Eventually, the Cricks hired a tutor for Hailey from the Michigan Dyslexia Institute in Harbor Springs. In addition, Hailey began receiving special education services. Even with the tutor, twice every week, Hailey was making very little gain.

By fourth-grade her self-esteem had plummeted, and she did everything she could to hide her inability to read at school.

"She had phenomenal teachers, who were encouraging and helped her learn new personal strategies and how to advocate for herself," Crick said. In addition, Hailey had a very good special education teacher, and both mother and daughter loved her. But at a parent-teacher conference that spring, Crick asked the teacher to give her a bottom line, and the bottom line was that Hailey would never be able to read. Some children are just wired differently, Crick was told.

"I lost it," Crick said. "I wasn't worried about her getting a job when she grew up. She's got lots of personality and skills. But what about poetry?" For awhile, however, she tried to accept it. She got Hailey books and textbooks on tape. Hailey was a fantastic auditory learner, as most students who can't read are. Crick said, but still she wasn't excelling in school. Fifth grade came and went, with Hailey still struggling along at a second-grade reading level.

"I just have a great faith in God and I just put it out there," Crick said. "I knew there was something in this wonderful world we live in, with all those intelligent people, that I needed to find to help Hailey and all these other kids."

That summer, she found Lynn Zimmer, an instructor in Evidence Based Literacy Instruction, and she enrolled the now discouraged Hailey in a summer tutoring program.

"By November or December of (her sixth-grade year), Hailey came to me and said, 'I started reading "The Lion, the Witch and the Wardrobe," and I really like it,'" Crick said, with tears starting in her eyes. "From then on, she has read every single night — mostly history and social studies."

All of a sudden Hailey was getting all As, and getting on the Superintendent's List and honor rolls. And Crick, absolutely convinced, took out her own credit card and got trained in the EBLI methodologies, which she now teaches at the East Jordan middle school as well as instructing other teachers.

"(Hailey's) been a great role model," Crick said. "By eighth-grade, kids have been let down so many times they don't want to risk any more. I tell them, 'Look at Hailey, talk to Hailey, and if that's what you want, come to me.' And kids do."

EBLI methodologies have a strong phonics element, but students are also taught to understand that the English language contains approximately 40 sounds, and there are approximately 140 letter combinations to create those sounds — and they learn these combinations. Instruction involves a lot of conversation, sorting and categorization, as well as having each student speaking, seeing and touching the concepts.

For instance, a student will be given a word, and that word scrambled letters or combination of letters that create a single sound (such as "ci" sounding like "sh" in the word "spacious"). As the student physically takes the letters or letter combinations to spell a word, he is speaking the sound of that symbol or combination, as well as seeing it with his eyes. Students are always taken from the most concrete concepts to the most abstract. Each segment of teaching is only pursued for a few minutes at a time, but returned to, if the student has not mastered it.

In addition, students use tactile aids, such as touching their lips when they sound out a word. If their lips are moving, they are creating different sounds. And the sessions always include about 15 minutes of reading the words in a context.

The system provides an organized way for students to learn the difficult English language in an efficient manner. Students do not learn the very flexible "rules" of English, but instead learn the facts of it. Learning that "ci" sounds like "sh" not only creates better readers, it also simultaneously creates students who are better able to spell.

Crick has one year of results under her educational belt, and she is more convinced than ever that for students who have been struggling with literacy, there is a light at the end of the tunnel. Her initial 25 students, with reading levels ranging from primer to fourth-grade, averaged an increase of two grade levels in a matter of less than a year. The parent and student testimonials are often accompanied by tears (parents) and huge grins (students).

Since she began, two more East Jordan teachers, as well as teachers in Boyne City, Charlevoix, and Harbor Springs have been trained in the EBLI methods. She also has teachers come into her classroom to observe, and students who self-enroll to improve fluency and comprehension. Illiterate adult students are also benefitting from EBLI strategies and learning to read.

"I couldn't have done all this without a lot of help and support from other people," Crick said. "My principal (Mike Haynes) has supported me 100-percent. I am so incredibly thankful for the Malpass Foundation. I wrote a mini-grant and they offset the cost of training."

Crick asked Hailey if she can tell her story, the one about coming up to her grade level in reading with EBLI strategies, and Hailey agreed, but corrected her mother. "Above my grade level," she said, and she is right.

For more information, visit the EBLI Website at www.ounceofprevention.net; or E-mail Wendy Crick at wcrick@ejps.org, or call her at (231) 582-0053, ext. 5225.

Beautiful Portside weekend

East Jordan's annual Portside Art Fair fell on a perfect weekend, with soft breezes to cool the exhibitors and browsers, but no strong winds to do damage to art work or displays. The crowd remained steady throughout the weekend.

The purchase prizes, given annually since 1971, were awarded to local artist, June Otis, and Mary Doezema of Lowell.

Otis, who, with her husband David, owns Otis Pottery on M-66, north of East Jordan, won the $500 two-dimensional purchase prize, with a piece entitled "Kimono." It is a small stoneware sculpture of a traditional Japanese gown, matted and framed in a shadowbox frame.

Otis is interested in the kimono form, but also interested in the surfaces, texture and color and, she said, a sort of reference to fabric, particularly old Japanese fabric.

"It is not an exact design, but influenced by the patterns, textures and motifs that you might find in a kimono," she said.

Otis has a master's degree in painting, but when she and David returned to the United States 18 years ago, they began to turn their attention to pottery, and have been working with it ever since.

The $250 three dimensional purchase prize was given to Doezema for a shallow pottery bowl.

Doezema was a teacher 34 years ago when she introduced her students to clay.

"They loved clay and it was a good teaching medium," she said. She admits that she herself knew nothing about potting at that time, but she and her students researched the art form, learning how to mix glazes and fire a kiln.

"I got hooked and quit teaching," she said. She has been at it ever since.

While Otis has been exhibiting for 18 years, and this is her second purchase prize (David won once, as well), Doezema was making her first visit to Portside.

June Otis, winner of the 2-D purchase prize, has been exhibiting at Portside with her husband David for 18 years.

"It's a lovely show," she said. "Very friendly, well laid out and managed. The public likes it, and the quality of work is good." She added that she was happy to see a large number of young artists.

Mary Doezema of Lowell was pleased to win a purchase prize the first year that she exhibited at Portside. A former teacher, Doezema got "hooked" on clay and never looked back.

Pet Nutrition
 The "100% Complete" Myth

Many pet owners take it for granted that their pet companions are receiving complete nutrition from their regular diet. However, no two pets are the same, and variations in dietary needs go deeper than the listed ingredients on a pet food label.

In order for Nutritionists and manufacturers to produce a "100% complete and balanced" pet food, they must first know 100% about nutrition. Science has not proven it has 100% knowledge of animal nutrition. So common knowledge would suggest that "100% Complete" is a Myth.

Bring your pets in to visit us at Pet Haus Cuisine, and learn more about pet nutrition.

HEALTH TIPS FROM MEDICAP PHARMACY

TIPS FOR SAFE GRILLING

To avoid dangerous flare-ups, never squirt starter fluid on smoldering charcoal and keep a squirt bottle of water nearby. Clean the surface of the grill of old food and heat the grill before use to reduce exposure to bacteria. Avoid high heat and charring meats because this can cause the formation of cancer-causing agents. Marinating meats also reduces possible carcinogens. Never mix uncooked meats with cooked meats. When removing cooked food, don't use the same plate that held the raw meat without first washing it with soap and hot water.
